#8.00 Application for final fees and/or expenses for Orantes Law Firm P.C.

fr. 9/6/18

Docket 256

Tentative Ruling:

The Orantes Law Firm, P.C. (“Applicant”), counsel for the debtor – approve fees of $9,635.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $244.47, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. All fees and expenses approved on an interim basis are approved in a final basis. The Applicant may collect 100% of the outstanding approved fees and expenses. The Court has not approved $1,450.00 in fees for services rendered from January 1, 2018 through March 23, 2018 for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 11 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor’s estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

#9.00 Blakeley LLP's Second and Final Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses counsel for Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors

fr. 9/6/18

Docket 205

Tentative Ruling:

No later than September 27, 2018, pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 2016-(a)(1) (J), Blakeley LLP ("Applicant") must file a client declaration regarding its fee application, or a statement regarding steps taken to obtain such declaration if none is forthcoming. Provided that such declaration is timely filed, the Court will approve fees and expenses as follows:

Applicant, counsel for the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors of ColorFX, Inc. (the "OCC") – approve fees in the amount of $47,310.00 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $3,988.26, for the period between August 26, 2017 through August 3, 2018, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. All fees and expenses approved on an interim basis are approved on a final basis. Applicant may collect 100% of the outstanding approved fees and expenses. The Court will not approve $6,529.50 in fees for the reasons below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor’s estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

The Court will reduce the following fees because, rather than attending the hearings in person, Applicant could have appeared telephonically. In both instances, the posted tentative rulings were in the OCC’s favor, and there were no objections to the disclosure statement.

Category	Date	Timekeeper	Description	Rate	Time	Fee	Adjusted Fee
CLAIMS ADMIN & OBJECTIONS	7/19/18	RAC	Travel to and attend hearing on claims objection of Davidian, and meeting with Davidian after the hearing	$395.00	5.50	$2,172.50	$592.50
DISC STMT & PLAN OF REORG	3/29/18	RAC	Prepare for, and attend disclosure statement hearing	$395.00	5.50	$2,172.50	$592.50

The following fees aggregate to $21,369.50. In light of the limited complexity of the chapter 11 plan and the fact that the debtor’s business had already been sold, these fees appear to be excessive. Consequently, the Court will allow $18,000.00 of the following fees.

Category	Date	Timekeeper	Description	Rate	Time	Fee

Docket 374

Tentative Ruling:

Jeffrey S. Shinbrot, APLC ("Applicant"), general counsel to chapter 11 debtors and debtors in possession – approve fees in the amount of $114,597.00 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $1,632.42, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis.

On August 27, 2018, Applicant filed a First and Final Application of Jeffrey S. Shinbrot, APLC, General Counsel to Chapter 11 Debtor for Approval of Compensation in the Amount of $114,597.00, and Reimbursement of Expenses in the Amount of $1,632.42 for the Period February 1, 2018 Through September 20, 2018 (the "Application") [doc. 374]. On September 7, 2018, Creditor John Kochakji ("Creditor") filed an untimely opposition to the Motion to Dismiss and Final Fees and Expenses (the "Opposition") [doc. 377].

In the Opposition, Creditor argues that he came into this case recently as a creditor and needs more time to evaluate the administrative claim within the context of benefit to creditors and the estate. Creditor did not make any substantive objections to the nature, extent nor time entries of the fees. Creditor merely requests more time. However, Creditor was properly served with notice as required under Local Bankruptcy Rule 9013-1(d)(2). Creditor had sufficient time to make substantive objections to the Application, but did not. The Court will not continue this hearing.

The Applicant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#15.00 First Interim application of Law Offices of Robert M Yaspan, for compensation and reimbursement of expenses incurred as counsel to debtor-in-possession

fr. 8/16/18; 9/6/18

Docket 136

Tentative Ruling:

Law Offices of Robert M. Yaspan (“Applicant”), counsel to the debtor and debtor in possession – approve fees in the amount of $91,416.77 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $5,982.08, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, on an interim basis.

Applicant may collect 85% of the approved fees and 100% of the approved expenses at this time. Applicant may draw down on its retainer in satisfaction of the foregoing approved fees and expenses. The Court has not allowed fees in the amount of $8,358.50 for the reasons set forth below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Chapter 11

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

The Court will reduce the following fees, as they appear excessive in light of Applicant's experience, and the relative complexity of the work performed compared to the time billed:

Category	Date	Timekeeper	Description	Time	Fee	Adjusted Time	Adjusted Fee
Schuller	5/11/2018	RMY	Law research re 2004 examination	2.0	$1,100.00	1.0	$550.00
Schuller	5/30/2018	DB	Draft reply brief to 2004 examination	5.4	$2,349.00	3.4	$1,479.00
Schuller	6/6/2018	DB	Draft opposition to motion to extend time to file complaint for non-dischargeability	1.0	$435.00	0.4	$174.00
Schuller	6/7/2018	DB	Draft opposition to motion to extend	3.2	$1,392.00	1.6	$696.00

In light of the Court's disallowance of the claim filed by Schuller & Schuller ("Schuller"), the Court will reduce the following fees arising from the discovery dispute with Schuller. The debtor listed Schuller as holding a disputed claim. Rather than engaging in extensive discovery litigation with Schuller over its disputed claim, the debtor could have objected to Schuller's application for 2004 examination on the basis of standing. If that objection had been sustained at the outset, it would not have been necessary for the debtor to file a motion for protective order, or for the parties to prepare their joint discovery stipulation.

Category	Date	Timekeeper	Description	Time	Fee	Adjusted Time	Adjusted Fee
Schuller	5/10/2018	DB	Research re filing of protective order	0.8	$348.00	0.40	$174.00
Schuller	5/10/2018	DB	Draft protective order	0.6	$261.00	0.30	$130.50

On April 24, 2018, the Court entered an Order to Show Cause (1) Requiring William Hill, AKA Bill Hill, to Personally Appear and Explain His Connection to This Case; (2) Why William Hill, AKA Bill Hill, Should Not Be Fined and Ordered to Disgorge Fees for Violating 11 U.S.C. § 110; (3) Requiring Bruce Rorty to Personally Appear and Explain by Whom He was Hired to Appear in This Case and What Fees, If Any, He Received; and (4) Requiring Carmit Benbaruh to Personally Appear and Explain Who Prepared Her Bankruptcy Documents and the Amount, If Any, She Paid for Such Services. (the "OSC") [doc. 79]. The Court held several hearings on the OSC.

On August 24, 2018, the United States trustee (the "U.S. Trustee") filed a statement as to the OSC (the "Statement") [doc. 115]. In the Statement, the U.S. Trustee states that based on the testimony provided at the OSC hearings and the entire record in the case, the U.S. Trustee does not believe that William Hill was acting as a bankruptcy petition preparer pursuant to 1 U.S.C. § 110 in this case. Accordingly, the U.S. Trustee will not be seeking disgorgement of fees, fines, and/or sanctions in this case.

In light of the Statement and the testimony at the OSC hearings, the OSC is discharged.

On February 21, 2014, the Court entered an order dismissing the First Case for failure to file schedules and statements timely [1:14-bk-10311-VK, doc. 11].

On May 7, 2015, Debtor filed another voluntary chapter 11 petition (the "Second Case") [1:15-bk-11603-MT]. Debtor was again represented by Mr. Kwasigroch. On July 23, 2015, the Court entered an order dismissing the Second Case for Debtor's failure to provide required information to the U.S. Trustee [1:15-bk-11603-MT, doc. 16].

On July 18, 2018, Debtor filed a third voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating Debtor's current bankruptcy case (the "Third Case"). Debtor once again is represented by Mr. Kwasigroch. On August 16, 2018, the Court entered an order [doc. 27] setting an initial status conference and requiring Debtor to file a status report, supported by evidence, no later than September 6, 2018. Contrary to the Court's order, Debtor has not filed a status report.

In addition, on August 21, 2018, creditor Luis Crescitelli filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay (the "RFS Motion") [doc. 33]. Through the RFS Motion, Mr. Crescitelli sought to pursue his nonbankruptcy rights to obtain possession of property which Debtor leased pursuant to a month-to-month tenancy. Debtor did not oppose the RFS Motion. On September 12, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the RFS Motion. Debtor did not appear. On September 13, 2018, the Court entered an order granting the RFS Motion [doc. 39].

#27.00 Debtors' motion to avoid lien under 11 U.S.C. sec. 522(f)
real property

Docket 78

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On August 20, 2009, Mehdy Gharachehdaghy and Mahnaz Aalam ("Debtors") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. In their schedule A [doc. 13], Debtors claimed an interest in real property located at 18747 Wells Drive, Tarzana, California (the "Property") and valued the Property at $1,700,000. Debtors did not claim an exemption in the Property in their schedule C. In their schedule D, Debtors listed two encumbrances against the Property: (A) a first priority deed of trust in favor of EMC Mortgage ("EMC") in the amount of $1,600,000; and (B) a second priority deed of trust in favor of GMAC Mortgage ("GMAC") in the amount of $246,397.

Debtors did not include the Law Offices of Moghadami & Sadig (the "Law Offices") in their schedules and did not provide notice of the bankruptcy case to the Law Offices. On December 3, 2009, the chapter 7 trustee filed the Notice of Possible Dividend and Order Fixing Time to File Claims (the "Notice of Assets") [doc. 28] and set a claims bar date of March 8, 2010. The chapter 7 trustee did not provide notice of the claims bar date to the Law Offices.

On February 8, 2010, Debtors received their discharge [doc. 36]. On December 9, 2011, Debtors' bankruptcy case was closed. On June 4, 2018, Debtors filed a motion to reopen their bankruptcy case (the "Motion to Reopen") [doc. 74]. On June 26, 2018, the Court entered an order granting the Motion to Reopen [doc. 76].

On July 25, 2018, Debtors filed a motion to avoid the Law Offices' lien under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) (the "Motion") [doc. 78]. On August 8, 2018, the Law Offices filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 79], asserting that Debtors did not provide enough evidence of the amounts owed to EMC and GMAC as of the petition date and that the debt owed to the Law Offices is nondischargeable, such that the Law Offices would be able to record another abstract of judgment even if Debtors avoid their lien. On August 23, 2018, the Court entered an order setting the Motion for hearing (the "Hearing Order") [doc. 80]. In the Hearing Order, the Court instructed Debtors to file and serve written notice of the hearing on the Law Offices no later than September 6, 2018. The Court also instructed Debtors to file and serve any response to the Opposition by September 13, 2018.

On August 30, 2018, Debtors timely filed a notice of the hearing [doc. 83]. On September 13, 2018, Debtors filed an amended schedule C [doc. 84], claiming a $1.00 exemption in the Property. On the same day, Debtors filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 85], attaching an appraisal valuing the Property, as of the petition date, at $1,600,000.

II. ANALYSIS

First, Debtors do not include evidence of the amount owed to EMC or GMAC as of the petition date. The Court will cannot properly assess the equity in the Property until Debtors provide evidence of the loan balances as of the petition date. The Court will continue this hearing for Debtors to supplement the Motion with this information.

If Debtors provide the required evidence, the Court notes that Debtors may avoid a lien that is based on a nondischargeable debt. Debtors apparently did not provide notice to the Law Offices of Debtors' bankruptcy case. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(3), a discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt—

- (3) neither listed nor scheduled under section 521(a)(1) of this title, with the name, if known to the debtor, of the creditor to whom such debt is owed, in time to permit—
  - (A) if such debt is not of a kind specified in paragraph (2), (4), or (6) of this subsection, timely filing of a proof of claim, unless such creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the case in time for such timely filing; or determination of dischargeability of such debt under one of such paragraphs, unless such creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the case in time for such timely filing and request....

Here, Debtors acknowledge that they did not provide notice of their bankruptcy case to the Law Offices. Based on the record before the Court, it appears the Law Offices did not receive notice of the bankruptcy prior to March 8, 2010, the claims bar date. The record also does not demonstrate that the Law Offices had actual knowledge of Debtors' bankruptcy filing.

Assuming the debt owed to the Law Offices is nondischargeable, despite the Law Offices' contention, the Court still may avoid the lien. See In re Farr, 278 B.R. 171 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2002) (citing Walters v. U.S. Nat'l Bank in Johnstown, 879 F.2d 95 (3d Cir. 1989) (finding that "Walters is consistent with most case law holding that liens resulting from nondischargeable debts are avoidable under § 522(f) if they impair the debtor's exemption."); and In re Hunnicutt, 457 B.R. 464-65 (Bankr. D.S.C. 2011) ("Courts have routinely held that the avoidability of a lien is not affected by the dischargeability of the underlying debt.") (collecting cases).

To the extent Debtors have claimed a valid exemption (the deadline to object to Debtors' exemption has not yet expired), even the Law Offices' presumably nondischargeable debt may be avoided if it impairs Debtors' exemption. The Law Offices next assert that, even if their lien is avoided, because the debt owed to the Law Offices is nondischargeable, the Law Offices will be able to obtain another lien against the Property. However, neither party discusses the application of 11 U.S.C. § 522(c). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 522(c)—

Unless the case is dismissed, property exempted under this section is not liable during or after the case for any debt of the debtor that arose, or that is determined under section 502 of this title as if such debt had arisen, before the commencement of the case, except—

- (1) a debt of a kind specified in paragraph (1) or (5) of section 523(a) (in which case, notwithstanding any provision of applicable nonbankruptcy law to the contrary, such property shall be liable for a debt of a kind specified in such paragraph);

- (i) not avoided under subsection (f) or (g) of this section or under section 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, or 724(a) of this title; and

- (3) a debt of a kind specified in section 523(a)(4) or 523(a)(6) of this title owed by an institution-affiliated party of an insured depository institution to a Federal depository institutions regulatory agency acting in its capacity as conservator, receiver, or liquidating agent for such institution; or
- (4) a debt in connection with fraud in the obtaining or providing of any scholarship, grant, loan, tuition, discount, award, or other financial assistance for purposes of financing an education at an institution of higher education (as that term is defined in section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001)).

Two cases include facts relevant to this case. In Farr, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition and claimed an exemption in his residence. Farr, 278 B.R. at 173. Subsequently, a creditor obtained a nondischargeability judgment against the debtor under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Id. After the debtor received his discharge, the creditor recorded an abstract of judgment, creating a lien against the debtor's residence. Id., at 174. The creditor then sought authority by the bankruptcy court to enforce its lien through a sale of the residence. Id.

The bankruptcy court denied the motion, holding that § 522(c) "protected [the debtor's] entire residence from a lien for the type of nondischargeable debt held by" the creditor. Id. Despite the bankruptcy court's ruling, the judicial lien was not released and remained of record. Id. Later, the debtor sought to sell his residence and, because the lien remained attached to the residence, the debtor moved to hold the creditor in contempt for refusing to voluntarily release its lien. Id. The creditor argued that there was nonexempt equity in the residence and that its lien properly attached to the nonexempt equity. Id. The bankruptcy court disagreed, again holding that § 522(c) protected the debtor's entire residence. Id. The creditor appealed. Id.

On appeal, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") first discussed the application of § 522(c) in general:

Section 523, which is incorporated in part by § 522(c), provides an exception from discharge for certain types of debts. Section 522(c) then specifies certain nondischargeable debts which may be pursued against a debtor's exempted property. These include debts for taxes (§ 523(a)(1)), alimony, maintenance or support (§ 523(a)(5)), debts of the type described in § 523(a)(4) and (a)(6) owed to federal depositories, or debts in connection with educational financial assistance fraud.

The legislative history of this section also shows that it was enacted to insulate exempt property from any nondischargeable prepetition debts which are not listed as exceptions. See S.Rep. No. 95-989, at 76 (1978), reprinted in 1978 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5787, 5862; H.R.Rep. No. 95-595, at 361 (1977), reprinted in 1978 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5963, 6317.

Section 522(c)(2) further denies a debtor's exemption for valid liens, such as tax liens and liens that have not been avoided in bankruptcy. The rule of Long v. Bullard, 117 U.S. 617, 620-21, 6 S.Ct. 917, 29 L.Ed. 1004 (1886), that unchallenged liens pass through bankruptcy unaffected, was codified in § 522(c) to uphold the enforcement of valid liens on both exempt and nonexempt property. H.R.Rep. No. 95-595, supra, at 361. A lien creditor, whose lien has not been avoided in bankruptcy, is generally free to pursue its in rem remedies under state law, subject to the provisions of the automatic stay in § 362(a). Johnson v. Home State Bank, 501 U.S. 78, 82-84, 111 S.Ct. 2150, 115 L.Ed.2d 66 (1991).

Thus, § 522(c) performs both a protective function, by preserving the exemption if nondischargeable claims other than those specifically excepted by § 522(c) are sought to be enforced against exempt property, and a limiting function, by denying the exemption protections for certain kinds of nondischargeable claims and unavoids liens.

Id., at 176–77. The BAP disagreed with the bankruptcy court’s holding that the creditor’s lien could not attach to the nonexempt equity in the debtor’s residence, noting that “[i]n this case, ‘property exempted’ in § 522(c) means only the $100,000 homestead exemption allowed by California exemption law.” Id., at 177. Because there was nonexempt equity in the debtor’s residence, and the lien could not be avoided under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f), the BAP held that the creditor’s lien could attach to the nonexempt equity under 11 U.S.C. § 522(c)(2). Id., at 177-81.

After Farr, a bankruptcy court within this circuit considered similar facts. See In re Feathers, 2015 WL 1598087 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2015). In Feathers, the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) had a pending action against the debtor at the time the debtor filed his chapter 7 petition. Id., at *1. Postpetition, the district court entered judgment in favor of the SEC and, subsequently, the SEC obtained a judgment of nondischargeability under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(19). Id.

After the debtor received his discharge and the debtor’s case was closed, the SEC recorded an abstract of judgment, thereby attaching a judicial lien to the debtor’s real property. Id. The debtor then reopened his bankruptcy case and moved for avoidance of the SEC’s lien. Id. The bankruptcy court held that the debtor could avoid the lien despite the fact that the judicial lien was recorded postpetition. Id., at *1-2. As part of its assessment, the court found:

Reviewed in the context of § 522 as a whole, other provisions “set forth limitations as to when exemptions may or may not trump a creditor’s claim or lien rights, but they focus on the nature and timing of the claim, rather than the time when the lien affixed.” Id. The general rule is that exempt property will not be liable for pre-petition debts but § 522(c) sets forth four exceptions. None of these exceptions apply to the SEC’s claim. Further, the fact that Congress created certain exceptions, implies that only those exceptions and no others were intended.

Id., at *2. After holding that the timing of the lien attachment was not relevant to the question before the court, the court held that the SEC's lien could be avoided under § 522(f):

The plain language of Bankruptcy Code § 522(c) makes clear that property exempted during a bankruptcy case may not be required to satisfy debts that arose prior to the bankruptcy case: "Unless the case is dismissed, property exempted under this section is not liable during or after the case for any debt of the debtor that arose, or that is determined under section 502 of this title as if such debt had arisen, before the commencement of the case." The Code Section then lists four exceptions to the general rule. One of the exceptions is for a debt secured by a lien that is not avoided pursuant to § 522(f). As the SEC's judgment lien may be avoided, this exception does not apply, and Feathers is entitled to his homestead exemption.

This case is similar to Feathers. Here, the debt which gave rise to the lien is a prepetition debt. The Law Offices recorded an abstract of judgment after Debtors' discharge. Subsequently, Debtors seek to avoid the lien on the basis that the lien impairs their homestead exemption. Although the debt owed to the Law Offices may be nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(3), the lien against the Property may still be avoided under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). Moreover, under 11 U.S.C. § 522(c), the lien may not attach to the exempt portion of the Property, either "during or after the case." 11 U.S.C. § 522(c) (emphasis added). If Debtors provide sufficient evidence that there is no nonexempt equity in the Property and if Debtors have a valid claim of exemption in the Property, then the Court may avoid the Law Offices' lien, and the Law Offices will not be able to record another abstract of judgment against the Property for a prepetition debt.

#30.00 Motion For Dismissal of Chapter 11 Cases and Approval of Proposed Distribution of Sale Proceeds of The Estates In The Order of Priority Set By The Bankruptcy Code

Docket 370

Tentative Ruling:

Grant, for the reasons discussed below.

I. BACKGROUND

On April 28, 2017, Capri Coast Capital, Inc. ("Capri") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On August 2, 2017, the Court entered an order granting the Debtor's motion for joint administration of its case with the cases of Ravello Ventures, Inc. ("Ravello"), Amalfi Assets, Inc. ("Amalfi"), and Hampton Heights, Inc. ("Hampton") (collectively, the "Debtors") [doc. 43]. John Kochakji ("Creditor") was not listed as a creditor in the schedules filed in each of the Debtors' cases.

On September 21, 2017, the Court entered an order setting the bar date for filing proofs of claim in the Debtors' cases (the "Bar Date Order") [doc. 108]. The Bar Date Order set December 1, 2017 as the deadline for filing proofs of claim.

On October 2, 2017, the Debtors filed and served the Notice of Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim in a Chapter 11 Case [LBR 3003-1] (the "Bar Date Notice") [doc. 118]. The attached proof of service does not indicate that Creditor was served with the Bar Date Notice.

On February 23, 2018, Creditor filed an action in state court against Capri and other defendants, asserting causes of action including breach of contract, failure to pay wages, retaliation, and wrongful termination (the "State Court Action"). (Doc. 335, Exh. 1.) Before filing the State Court Action, on November 30, 2016, Creditor had filed a claim with the California Labor Commission. (Doc. 335, Exh. 3, at p. 4.)

On February 28, 2018, the Debtors filed a motion to approve the sale of substantially all of the Debtors' assets (the "Sale Motion") [doc. 221]. On April 5, 2018, the court entered an order granting the Sale Motion [doc. 257]. The Debtors received approximately $216,750 in proceeds from the closing of the sale.

On July 14, 2018, Creditor filed a Motion to Allow Late-Filed Claim (the "Claim Allowance Motion") [doc. 335]. On August 23, 2018, the Court entered an order granting the Claim Allowance Motion [doc. 367].

On July 26, 2018, the Court entered an Order Granting Motion of Landlord Golden Spectrum Property, LLC, Regarding the Massage Envy Palmdale Location (Hampton Heights, Inc.), for Allowance and Immediate Payment of Administrative Claim for Unpaid-Post Petition Rent (the "April Rent Claim") [doc. 345]. The April Rent Claim approved the payment of administrative rent in the amount of $1,953.33. As such, the Debtors currently have $214,796.67 of the sale proceeds remaining.

Also On July 26, 2018, the Court entered an Order Approving Apportionment of Sale Proceeds Among Chapter 11 Debtors [doc. 346]. The Court approved the proceeds from the sale to be apportioned as follows:

- a. Hampton - $0
- b. Amalfi - $7,500 fixed assets; $25,012.50 general intangibles/goodwill;
- c. Capri - $15,000 fixed assets; $65,197.50 general intangibles/goodwill; and
- d. Ravello - $7,500 fixed assets; $96,540 general intangibles/goodwill

On August 27, 2018, the Debtors filed a Motion for Dismissal of Chapter 11 Cases and Approval of Proposed Distribution of Sale Proceeds of the Estates in the Order of Priority Set by the Bankruptcy Code (the "Motion") [doc. 370].

On September 7, 2018, Creditor filed an untimely opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 377]. In the Opposition, Creditor opposes case dismissal to allow his State Court Action to resolve to determine his proof of claim amount and nondischargeability. Creditor contends that by having this case continue, he can amend his proof of claim and potentially have it deemed nondischargeable and elevated from a nonpriority unsecured claim to a priority unsecured claim. Creditor alleges that if the case is dismissed, he stands to be financially harmed by the uncertainty to find assets to collect against the Debtors' principal alone.

11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) provides in pertinent part:

- (b) (1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, subsection (c) of this section, and section 1104(a)(3), on request of a party in interest, and after notice and a hearing, absent unusual circumstances specifically identified by the court that establish that the requested conversion or dismissal is not in the best interests of creditors and the estate, the court shall convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter, whichever is in the best interests of creditors and the estate, if the movant establishes cause. . . .

Motions to dismiss under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) require a two-step analysis. "First, it must be determined that there is 'cause' to act. C.D. Cal. 2000) ("A bankruptcy court has broad discretion to convert or dismiss a chapter 11 petition for 'cause' under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b).").

Here, there is cause to dismiss the Debtors' cases. There does not appear to be any purpose served by the Debtors remaining in chapter 11. Dismissal is in the best interests of the estate and creditors, because continuing the prosecution of the Debtors' chapter 11 cases will only decrease the pro-rata payments available to administrative claims and conversion of the case will yield no dividend to unsecured creditors.

B. Bankruptcy Code Priority Scheme

Allowed claims in bankruptcy cases are paid according to a priority scheme established by the Bankruptcy Code. See 11 U.S.C. § 507. Funds are distributed under six tiers. See 11 U.S.C. § 726(a). In general, where funds are insufficient to pay in full all claims in a single tier, the funds are distributed pro rata. See id. at (a)(6). This distribution scheme assumes all secured claims have already been paid. In re SPM Mfg. Corp., 984 F.2d 1305, 1312 (1st Cir. 1993).

The first tier is priority claims. 11 U.S.C. § 726(a). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 507(a), there are ten types of priority claims, which have priority in the following order:

- (2) Second, administrative expenses allowed under section 503(b) of this title, unsecured claims of any Federal reserve bank related to loans made through programs or facilities authorized under section 13(3) of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 343), and any fees and charges assessed against the estate under chapter 123 of title 28.

(4) Fourth, allowed unsecured claims, but only to the extent of $12,850 for each individual or corporation, as the case may be, earned within 180 days before the date of the filing of the petition or the date of the cessation of the debtor's business, whichever occurs first, for—

(A) wages, salaries, or commissions, including vacation, severance, and sick leave pay earned by an individual...

Here, the Debtors seek approval of the proposed distribution of the sale proceeds of the estates. The Debtors propose to pay all secured creditors of Amalfi, Ravello, and Capri in full and to pay the allowed administrative claims of each of these estates pro rata with any funds remaining. The contemplated distributions are in conformity with the priority scheme established in the Bankruptcy Code. As such, the Court approves of the proposed distribution scheme.

Creditor opposes dismissal because he alleges that once the State Court Action is resolved, he will file a nondischargeability action which will elevate his claim to priority unsecured. Creditor has cited no law for this proposition. The priority scheme for unsecured claims is found in 11 U.S.C. § 507, which states nothing about a general unsecured claim being elevated to a priority unsecured claim if found to be nondischargeable. Creditor already has a priority unsecured claim to the extent that the State Court Action seeks payment of wages for the six-month period before the Debtors filed bankruptcy. However, Creditor's priority unsecured claim is lower in priority than administrative claims. Further, these are corporate debtors and there will not be a discharge in these cases. Thus, it is unclear what Creditor would accomplish by filing a nondischargeability action against the Debtors.

Finally, the remaining estate funds will not satisfy all secured creditor and administrative claims. The proposed distribution to secured creditors and administrative claims will exhaust all estate funds, such that there will be no distribution to remaining unsecured creditors, whether priority or general. Creditor will not be financially harmed by dismissal of the case before the State Court Action

#36.00 Motion in individual ch 11 case for order approving a budget for the use of the debtor's cash and postpetition income

Docket 284

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

Pursuant 11 U.S.C. § 363(c)(1)—

If the business of the debtor is authorized to be operated under section 721, 1108, 1203, 1204, or 1304 of this title and unless the court orders otherwise, the trustee may enter into transactions, including the sale or lease of property of the estate, in the ordinary course of business, without notice or a hearing, and may use property of the estate in the ordinary course of business without notice or a hearing.

(emphasis added). As to the expenses incurred after the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee, the debtor does not have standing to move for relief under 11 U.S.C. § 363(c), which allows the trustee to make payments in the ordinary course of business.

As to the portion of the budget that predates the appointment of the chapter 11 trustee, the debtor need not seek approval of the Court for "ordinary course" living expenses:

Rather than struggle to invent out of whole cloth a procedure and standard for approving requests by chapter 11 debtors for authority to spend property of the estate for the payment of post-petition living expenses, the court should give section 363(c)(1) the same interpretation in chapter 11 cases as it has always been understood to have in chapter 13 cases. That is, the court should recognize that section 363(c)(1) authorizes a debtor in possession to use property of the estate to pay post-petition living expenses without prior court approval, so long as the amounts to be disbursed qualify as "ordinary course" expenses. An individual chapter 11 debtor needs to pay his living expenses in order to continue generating revenues for the estate. Thus, the payment of ordinary course living expenses should be treated as being within the debtor's ordinary course of business for the purpose of interpreting section 363(c)(1).

In re Seely, 492 B.R. 284, 290 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2013); see also In re Villalobos, 2011 WL 4485793 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Aug. 19, 2011).

Here, with the exception of the "miscellaneous" line item in the debtor's attached budget, the debtor is moving for approval of a budget that involves "ordinary course" living expenses, such as mortgage, food and utilities. As such, the debtor does not need an order from the Court to make such payments.

If any of these expense are outside the "ordinary course," the debtor should have moved for Court approval before making the payments. The debtor is now seeking nunc pro tunc approval of these payments. In Villalobos, although the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") did not reach the issue of whether nunc pro tunc relief was appropriate, the BAP noted that "such retroactive relief is limited and requires specific findings in the Ninth Circuit." Villalobos, 2011 WL 4485793 at *9 n.14 (citing In re Warren, 568 F.3d 1113, 1116 n.1 (9th Cir. 2009)). In Warren, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals stated:

The order issued by the bankruptcy court was designated nunc pro tunc to November 15, 2006. "Nunc pro tunc signifies now for then, or in other words, a thing is done now, which shall have [the] same legal force and effect as if done at [the] time when it ought to have been done." United States v. Allen, 153 F.3d 1037, 1044 (9th Cir.1998). This "inherent power of the court to make its records speak the truth," id., "is a limited one, and may be used only where necessary to correct a clear mistake and prevent injustice." United States v. Sumner, 226 F.3d 1005, 1009–10 (9th Cir.2000). The power does not, however, allow the court "to alter the substance of that which actually transpired or to backdate events to serve some other purpose. Rather, its use is limited to making the record reflect what the ... court actually intended to do at an earlier date, but which it did not sufficiently express or did not accomplish due to some error or inadvertence." Id. at Warren, 568 F.3d at 1116 n.1. Here, the debtor has not articulated any reason why the Court should provide nunc pro tunc relief.

For the reasons set forth above, the Court will deny the debtor's motion for retroactive approval of a budget.

#37.00 Chapter 11 Trustees Motion to Convert Case to Chapter 7

Docket 76

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

I. BACKGROUND

On May 25, 2018, Victory Entertainment, Inc. ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On May 29, 2018, one business day after Debtor filed its chapter 11 petition, Debtor was scheduled to appear for trial in a state court action entitled Salazar vs. VIP Showgirls, aka Victory Entertainment, Inc. (the "Class Action"). Declaration of Howard M. Ehrenberg ("Ehrenberg Declaration"), ¶ 4. The Class Action involves 1,305 plaintiffs who constitute the largest group of creditors of Debtor's estate (collectively, the "Class Action Plaintiffs"). Ehrenberg Declaration, ¶ 5.

On June 5, 2018, the U.S. Trustee (the "UST") filed a motion to dismiss or convert this case (the "UST Motion") [doc. 15]. In the UST Motion, the UST noted that Debtor had not provided: (A) a declaration regarding Debtor's compliance with the UST's guidelines; (B) sufficient evidence of closing all prepetition bank accounts; (C) sufficient evidence of opening and maintaining a debtor-in-possession account; (D) proof of appropriate worker's compensation insurance coverage; (E) a projected cash flow statement for the first 90 days of operation; (F) a statement of major issues and timetable report; and (G) prepetition financial statements.

On June 6, 2018, Debtor filed its schedules [doc. 20] and Statement of Financial Affairs ("SOFA") [doc. 21]. In its schedule A/B, Debtor listed $5,000 in cash on hand, $14,756 in a checking account and $25 in a tax account. Debtor also included a total of $2,000 in security deposits. Under Part 7 of schedule A/B, Debtor listed 120 chairs, 14 sofas, a safe, 55 lap dance booths, two computers, disc jockey equipment and a money counting machine, with a total value of $60,000. In its schedule D, Debtor indicated it does not have any secured creditors. In its schedule E/F, Debtor listed $289,154 in unsecured debt, which did not include an estimated amount of the debt potentially owed to the Class Action Plaintiffs. As to those listed claims, Debtor stated that the claims would be "6 to 7 figure[s]."

On June 18, 2018, Debtor filed a monthly operating report ("MOR") for the period between May 25, 2018 (the petition date) and May 31, 2018 [doc. 30]. The MOR reflected $14,756.99 in receipts during this period and $1,924.81 in disbursements. Debtor has not filed any other MORs since filing the May 2018 MOR.

On June 20, 2018, Debtor filed an initial status report (the "Initial Status Report") [doc. 31], attaching a declaration by Arshavir Khachikian, Debtor's principal (the "Khachikian Declaration"). In the Khachikian Declaration, Mr. Khachikian stated that the primary assets of Debtor are Debtor's goodwill (which Debtor did not estimate) and the $60,000 in furniture, fixtures and sound equipment. Khachikian Declaration, ¶ 2. In the status report, Debtor indicated that it had not made any postpetition transfers to insiders. Initial Status Report, p. 3.

On June 21, 2018, the next day, the Class Action Plaintiffs filed an objection to the Notice re Insider Compensation (the "Compensation Notice") apparently lodged with the UST (the "Compensation Objection") [doc. 32]. In the Compensation Objection, the Class Action Plaintiffs objected to Debtor's proposed compensation to its principal and requested a hearing on the Compensation Objection. To date, Debtor did not set its request for insider compensation for hearing or otherwise sought approval by the Court to make payments to Debtor's insiders.

On June 29, 2018, the UST filed a supplement to the UST Motion [doc. 38], noting that: (A) Debtor did not have worker's compensation insurance covering the dancers; (B) Debtor only issued Form 1099s to dancers if they asked for one; (C) Debtor did not fill out any government forms for the dancers; and (D) although Debtor has contact information, including addresses, for 1,300 to 1,700 current and former dancers in Debtor's computer system, Debtor did not provide notice to any of the dancers except the Class Action Plaintiffs. The UST requested appointment of a chapter 11 trustee. On the same day, Debtor filed an opposition to the UST Motion [doc. 39], stating that Debtor was unable to obtain worker's compensation insurance for the dancers because it classified the dancers as independent contractors.

The Class Action Plaintiffs filed a joinder to the UST Motion (the "Joinder") [doc. 40] and requested the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee. The Class Action Plaintiffs attached a prepetition decision by the state court certifying the Class Action Plaintiffs as a class (the "Certification Decision"). Declaration of Jeffrey M. Cohon, ¶ 6, Exhibit D. As part of its Certification Decision, the state court held that the Class Action Plaintiffs met the definition of employee under California law. Id.

On July 5, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the UST Motion. On the same day, the Court entered an order directing the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee [doc. 44]. On July 10, 2018, the UST filed a notice of appointing Howard M. Ehrenberg as the chapter 11 trustee (the "Trustee") [doc. 50]. On July 12, 2018, the Court approved the appointment of the Trustee [doc. 53].

On July 13, 2018, the UST, the Trustee, the Class Action Plaintiffs and Debtor entered into the Stipulation Regarding Trustee's Oversight, Management and Limited Related Duties Pending Execution of Class Action Settlement Agreement and Dismissal of Chapter 11 Bankruptcy Case (the "Oversight Stipulation") [doc. 54]. Through the Oversight Stipulation, the parties noted that they had reached an agreement to settle the Class Action and that the settlement provided for a conditional dismissal of Debtor's bankruptcy case and the appointment of an oversight receiver in the pending state court Class Action until final consummation of the settlement agreement. In anticipation of the settlement agreement, the parties agreed that the Trustee would have limited oversight over Debtor's business until the parties finalized their settlement agreement and the Trustee filed a motion for conditional dismissal of this case. On July 16, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Oversight Stipulation [doc. 58].

On August 29, 2018, the Trustee filed the Motion [doc. 76]. In the Motion, the Trustee noted that Debtor was no longer willing to proceed with the settlement agreement. Ehrenberg Declaration, ¶ 9. The Trustee also stated that, as of August 29, 2018, the Trustee shut down Debtor's business because it remained out of compliance with applicable law. Ehrenberg Declaration, ¶¶ 11-14. At this time, the Trustee believes that the goodwill of Debtor's business is the only asset with the potential to have any significant value. Ehrenberg Declaration, ¶ 14.

On September 6, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 93]. In the Opposition, Debtor states that it is actively attempting to obtain worker's compensation insurance and to renew its general liability insurance. Debtor also notes that it has renewed its efforts to settle with the Class Action Plaintiffs. Debtor argues that if this case is converted to a chapter 7 case, Debtor will not be able to generate income from operating its business and will not be able to pay what it owes under any settlement agreement. In addition, Debtor notes that Debtor's liquidation value is minimal.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b)—

- (1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) and subsection (c), on request of a party in interest, and after notice and a hearing, the court shall convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter, whichever is in the best interests of creditors and the estate, for cause unless the court determines that the appointment under section 1104(a) of a trustee or an examiner is in the best interests of creditors and the estate.
- (4) For purposes of this subsection, the term 'cause' includes...
  - (A) substantial or continuing loss to or diminution of the estate and the absence of a reasonable likelihood of rehabilitation;
  - (B) gross mismanagement of the estate;
  - (C) failure to maintain appropriate insurance that poses a risk to the estate or to the public;
  - ...
  - (E) failure to comply with an order of the court;
  - (F) unexcused failure to satisfy timely any filing or reporting requirement established by this title or by any rule applicable to a case under this chapter;

Motions to dismiss or convert under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) require a two-step analysis. "First, it must be determined that there is 'cause' to act. Second, once a determination of 'cause' has been made, a choice must be made between conversion and dismissal based on the 'best interests of the creditors and the estate.'" In re Nelson, 343 B.R. 671, 675 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006). The bankruptcy court has discretion to dismiss or convert a chapter 11 case pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §1112(b). See In re Consolidated Pioneer Mortg. Entities, 264 F.3d 803, 806 (9th Cir. 2001) ("The decision to convert the [chapter 11] case to Chapter 7 is within the bankruptcy court's discretion."); and In re Silberkraus, 253 B.R. 890, 903 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2000) ("A bankruptcy court has broad discretion to convert or dismiss a chapter 11 petition for 'cause' under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b).").

Here, there is cause to dismiss or convert the case. First, despite a finding by the state court that Debtor's dancers should be considered employees instead of independent contractors, Debtor has not obtained worker's compensation insurance, in contravention of applicable law. Moreover, Debtor has not filed any MORs since the May 2018 MOR. As such, there is cause to dismiss or convert this case.

As to whether conversion or dismissal is appropriate, the Trustee requests conversion. The Trustee notes that there is potential value in Debtor's goodwill. In addition, Debtor's schedules list $60,000 in furniture and equipment, which may potentially be sold to satisfy creditors. Further, the UST's guidelines for chapter 11 debtors provide that, if an objection to insider compensation is filed, as it was here, debtors "shall refrain from paying any portion of the disputed compensation or increase until the objection has been resolved." Guidelines and Requirements for Chapter 11 Debtors in Possession, Section IV.B.5. To the extent Debtor compensated insiders without this Court's approval, a chapter 7 trustee may be entitled to recover such compensation for the benefit of the estate.

Although Debtor generated post-petition income as an operating business, Debtor's business is now shut down for lack of compliance with the law. As such, dismissal of this case without liquidation will not necessarily provide for any recovery to creditors of Debtor's estate. Through a chapter 7 liquidation, the Trustee may be able to market Debtor's goodwill, to sell certain assets of Debtor and/or to recover unauthorized post-petition transfers for the benefit of the estate, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. §§ 549 and 550. As such, conversion to a chapter 7 case is in the best interest of creditors, and the Court will grant the Motion.

George J. Paukert as General Bankruptcy Counsel

Docket 42

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will approve the application to approve the employment of George J. Paukert as general bankruptcy counsel to the debtor in possession [doc. 42]. In connection with any fee application filed by Mr. Paukert (which is a prerequisite to Mr. Paukert obtaining entitlement to payment for any postpetition services to the estate), the Court will scrutinize Mr. Paukert's requested fees and costs in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 330.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under section 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including - (A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . . ." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 11 case," the court shall not allow compensation for - (i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not - (I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

Upon entry of the order, for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 2923.5, the Debtor is a borrower as defined in Cal. Civ. Code § 2920.5(c)(2)(C).

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

#7.00 Emergency motion to enforce the automatic stay

fr. 8/1/18; 9/5/2018;

Docket 11

Judge:

- NONE LISTED -

Tentative Ruling:

In the Court's prior ruling on September 5, 2018, the Court ordered the debtor to file a declaration by September 26, 2018, signed under penalty of perjury demonstrating that he made his August and September 2018 chapter 13 plan payments and his August and September 2018 deed of trust payments regarding his residence. As of October 1, 2018, the debtor has not filed a declaration stating he has made his chapter 13 payments or deed of trust payments.

It appears that the debtor is eligible for a discharge. Would the debtor like to convert the case to a chapter 7? Absent conversion of the case to chapter 7, the Court will deny the motion, and the automatic stay will terminate.

The Court will prepare the order.

Ruling from 9/5/18

The Court will grant the motion on an interim basis, through October 3, 2018, and continue the hearing to 9:30 a.m. on October 3, 2018.

This is the debtor's fourth chapter 13 case. The debtor's schedule I indicates that he and his spouse make a combined income of $15,000.00 per month. However, the debtor's statement of financial affairs does not support this assertion. The debtor's chapter 13 plan is based on an income of $15,000.00 per month. On or before September 26, 2018, the debtor must file a declaration signed under penalty of perjury demonstrating that he has made his August and September 2018 chapter 13 plan payments and his August and September 2018 deed of trust payments regarding his

Under 11 U.S.C. § 362(c)(4), in order to impose the automatic stay in a case filed within one year of two or more cases of the debtor that were pending but were dismissed, the debtor must show that the pending case was filed in good faith as to the creditors to be stayed.

The First Case. On August 31, 2017, Jose Luis Gonzalez (the "Debtor") filed a chapter 13 petition, commencing case no. 1:17-bk-12312-MT (the "First Case"). In the First Case, the Debtor was represented by counsel. On August 31, 2017, the Court issued a Notice of Dismissal of Case if Required Documents Are Not Filed or Signed ("Dismissal Notice") [1:17-bk-12312-MT, doc. 3]. The Dismissal Notice provided that the First Case would be dismissed if the Debtor did not comply within 72 hours. On September 6, 2017, the Court entered an order dismissing the First Case [1:17-bk-12312-MT, doc. 10].

The Second Case. On January 3, 2018, the Debtor filed a chapter 13 petition, commencing case no. 1:18-bk-10017-VK (the "Second Case"). In the Second Case, the Debtor was represented by counsel. On January 4, 2018, the Court entered an Order to Comply with Bankruptcy Rule 1007 and 3015(B) and Notice of Intent to Dismiss Case (the "Order to Comply") [1:18-bk-10017-VK, doc. 7]. The Order to Comply directed the Debtor to file his chapter 13 plan no later than 14 days after the petition date. No chapter 13 plan was filed. On January 22, 2018, the Court entered an order dismissing the Second Case [1:18-bk-10017-VK, doc. 12].

The Third Case. On January 29, 2018, the Debtor filed a chapter 13 petition, commencing case no. 1:18-bk-10251-MT (the "Third Case"). In the Third Case, the Debtor was represented by counsel. On March 28, 2018, the Court entered an order dismissing the Third Case, for failure to appear at the 341(a) meeting and/or to make pre-confirmation plan payments [1:18-bk-10251-MT, doc. 29].

The Pending Case. On July 31, 2018, the Debtor filed a chapter 13 petition, commencing case no. 1:18-bk-11936-VK (the "Pending Case"). On August 1, 2018, the Debtor filed an Emergency Motion to Enforce the Automatic Stay (the "Motion") [doc. 11]. Through the Motion, the Debtor seeks to impose the automatic stay in his case as to all secured creditors, with respect to his single family residence located at 22051 Sagebrook Drive, Chatsworth, CA 91311 (the "Property").

The Debtor states that on August 2, 2017, he submitted a loan modification application to Bank of America. Bank of America subsequently informed the Debtor that the loan modification process had been transferred to Carrington Mortgage Services, LLC ("Carrington"). Then the Debtor was informed that he had to re-start the loan modification process, directly with Carrington. On December 12, 2017, the Debtor submitted a loan modification application to Carrington. The Debtor alleges that Carrington improperly denied his loan modification application.

The Debtor represents that the attorneys who assisted him with his prior bankruptcy cases are responsible for the dismissal of those cases, because of their inadequate assistance. The Debtor further represents that he can confirm a 100% payment plan and has adequate income to cover the ongoing mortgage payments plus payment of arrears over 5 years.

In light of the foregoing, the Court will grant the Motion on an interim basis and impose the automatic stay on all secured creditors up to the date of the continued hearing. No later than August 8, 2018, the Debtor must also file and serve notice of the continued hearing, and serve the Motion, on all secured creditors. The notice of continued hearing must state that the deadline to file an opposition to the Motion is August 22, 2018. The deadline to file a reply is August 29, 2018. If the Debtor does not appear at the continued hearing on September 5, 2018, the Court may deny the Motion and lift the automatic stay.

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(2).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to repossess and sell the property.

This order is binding and effective despite any conversion of this bankruptcy case to a case under any other chapter of the Bankruptcy Code.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(4).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

If recorded in compliance with applicable state laws governing notices of interests or liens in real property, the order is binding in any other case under this title purporting to affect the property filed not later than 2 years after the date of the entry of the order by the court, except that a debtor in a subsequent case under this title may move for relief from the order based upon changed circumstances or for good cause shown, after notice and hearing.

The co-debtor stay of 11 U.S.C. § 1201(a) and § 1301(a) is terminated, modified or annulled as to the co-debtor, on the same terms and conditions as to the debtor.

A designated law enforcement officer may evict the debtor and any other occupant from the property regardless of any future bankruptcy filing concerning the property for a period of 180 days from the hearing on this motion upon recording of a copy of this order or giving appropriate notice of its entry in compliance with applicable nonbankruptcy law.

Tentative Ruling:

Unless an appearance is made at the status conference, the status conference is continued to 1:30 p.m. on December 5, 2018.

It appears that the plaintiff has not requested entry of default under Local Bankruptcy Rule 7055-1(a). The plaintiff must submit Local Bankruptcy Rule Form F 7055-1.1.Req.Enter.Default, "Request for Clerk to Enter Default Under LBR 7055-1(a)."

If the plaintiff will be pursuing a default judgment pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7055-1(b), the plaintiff must serve a motion for default judgment (if such service is required pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7055, Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2) and/or Local Bankruptcy Rule 7055-1(b)(1)(D)) and must file that motion by November 1, 2018.

If the plaintiff will be seeking to recover attorneys' fees, the plaintiff must demonstrate that the award of attorneys' fees complies with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7055-1(b)(4).

The plaintiff's appearance on October 3, 2018 is excused.

#34.00 Status Conference and Order to Show cause re remand

Judge:

- NONE LISTED -

Tentative Ruling:

In light of the joint status report filed by the parties [doc. 25], in which the parties indicate their willingness to participate in the Court's mediation program, the Court will defer ruling on remand in order for the parties to be able to engage in mediation for a reasonable period of time before the Court determines the issue of remand.

Alternatively, if the parties would like to discuss the possibility of a global mediation with the parties involved in the other adversary proceedings against the defendant/debtor, which appear to arise out of the same operative facts, namely, Albini et al v. Zuckerman [1:18-ap-01081-VK] and Abel v. Zuckerman et al [1:18-ap-01086-VK], the Court will continue this status conference to 1:30 p.m. on November 14, 2018.

If the parties in this adversary proceeding will commence mediation regarding solely this action (with the Court assessing that such a decision is well-founded), within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiffs must submit an Order Assigning Matter to Mediation Program and Appointing Mediator and Alternate Mediator using Form 702. During the status conference, the parties must inform the Court of their choice of Mediator and Alternate Mediator. The parties should contact their mediator candidates before the status conference to determine if their candidates can accommodate the deadlines set forth below.

Deadline to complete one day of mediation: 12/21/18.

In accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a)(4), within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiffs must submit a Scheduling Order.

Chapter 11

If any of these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

Judge:

The Court will enter judgment in favor of Mahshid Loghmani and Mohsen Loghmani ("Defendants"). The Court also will sever the joint petition filed by Defendants.

I. BACKGROUND

A. Defendants' Background

On August 1, 2016, Defendants filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition, initiating their current bankruptcy case [1:16-bk-12214-VK]. In their joint petition, Defendants indicated that they are married.

Mr. Loghmani is a licensed general contractor and engineer. Joint Pretrial Stipulation ("JPS") [doc. 57], 1:8-9. Ms. Loghmani also is a licensed contractor. JPS, 1:9-10. Defendants operate under the dba L.A. Design Group ("L.A. Design"), and Ms. Loghmani also operates under the dba May Design & Construction ("May Design"). JPS, 1:10-11.

In 1975, Defendants married in Iran. [FN1]. In 1981, Defendants divorced while they were living in Chicago, Illinois. According to Ms. Loghmani, Defendants remained divorced for a total of three to four weeks, after which time Defendants resumed living together. Upon reuniting, Defendants considered themselves married despite their divorce having been finalized and despite the fact Defendants never remarried. JPS, 1:12-13. Presently, Defendants continue to assert they qualify as a legally married couple. According to Ms. Loghmani, Defendants believe they are married because, although they divorced in the United States, they did not also initiate divorce proceedings in Iran. In addition, Defendants continued to file joint tax returns and refer to themselves as a married couple in all of their legal documents, including banking records, grant deeds and mortgage documents.

B. Plaintiff's State Court Actions against Defendants

Tessie Cleveland Community Services Corp. ("Plaintiff") hired Mr. Loghmani as a general contractor and engineer to remodel some of Plaintiff's corporate facilities. Ruling on Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment ("MSJ Ruling") [doc. 47], p. 1. On October 26, 2009, Plaintiff filed a state court action against Mr. Loghmani entitled Tessie Cleveland Community Services Corp. v. Mohsen Loghmani, Los Angeles Superior Court, Case No. TC023541 (the "Breach of Contract Action"). JPS, 1:14-16. In the Breach of Contract Action, Plaintiff alleged claims including negligence, four counts of breach of contract and intentional misrepresentation in connection with Mr. Loghmani's remodeling services. MSJ Ruling, p. 1.

On December 28, 2011, the jury in the Breach of Contract Action returned a verdict in favor of Plaintiff. Plaintiff's Exhibit 3. In light of this verdict, on March 7, 2013, the state court entered judgment in favor of Plaintiff (the "Breach of Contract Judgment"). Id. In the Breach of Contract Judgment, the state court awarded Plaintiff a total of $484,495.45 and awarded Mr. Loghmani a total of $96,169.98, which the state court offset against the amount awarded to Plaintiff for a net award to Plaintiff in the amount of $388,325.47. Id. The state court also awarded Plaintiff $1,458,101.25 in attorneys' fees and $22,963.15 in costs for a total judgment against Mr. Loghmani in the amount of $1,869,389.87. Id.

On October 28, 2011, Plaintiff filed a fraudulent transfer action against Defendants entitled Tessie Cleveland Community Services Corp. v. Loghmani, et al., Los Angeles Superior Court, Case No. EC05714 (the "Fraudulent Transfer Action"). MSJ Ruling, p. 3. Through the Fraudulent Transfer Action, Plaintiff alleged that Mr. Loghmani fraudulently transferred property, including the real property located at 8212 Laurel

In connection with the Fraudulent Transfer Action, Defendants argued that the Laurel Canyon Property could not be legally classified as "community property" because Defendants had been divorced since 1981. Plaintiff's Exhibit 6. On February 25, 2015, the state court entered a fraudulent transfer judgment against Defendants (the "Fraudulent Transfer Judgment"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 4. In the Fraudulent Transfer Judgment, the state court found that the Laurel Canyon Property was subject to attachment and execution to satisfy the Breach of Contract Judgment. Id. The state court also set aside the transfer of the Laurel Canyon Property from Mr. Loghmani to Ms. Loghmani. Id. In addition, the state court held that the Fraudulent Transfer Judgment would serve as a lien against the Laurel Canyon Property. Id.

On May 22, 2015, the state court awarded Plaintiff an additional $65,332.50 in attorneys' fees and, on July 25, 2015, another $23,507.50 in attorneys' fees. Plaintiff's Exhibit 3. The state court amended the Breach of Contract Judgment to reflect a total of $1,958,229.87 awarded to Plaintiff. Id.

On May 2, 2016, the state court entered an order for the sale of the Laurel Canyon Property (the "Sale Order"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 5. In the Sale Order, the state court valued the Laurel Canyon Property at $532,500. Id. The valuation in the Sale Order appears to be based on an appraisal dated March 22, 2016. Plaintiff's Exhibit 37.

C. M L Engineering & Construction, Inc.

On February 24, 2012, in response to being sued by Plaintiff, Mr. Loghmani filed Articles of Incorporation with the Secretary of State of the State of California (the "Secretary of State") to create a corporate entity named M L Engineering & Construction, Inc. ("M L Engineering"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 20. On May 25, 2012, Mr. Loghmani filed a Statement of Information with the Secretary of State, indicating that Mr. Loghmani was the Chief Executive Officer, Secretary and Chief Financial Officer of M L Engineering. Plaintiff's Exhibit 21. The following year, on April 12, 2013, Mr. Loghmani filed another Statement of Information on behalf of M L Engineering. Plaintiff's Exhibit 22. According to Mr. Loghmani, Defendants' son prepared both Statements of Information using LegalZoom.

Mr. Loghmani formed M L Engineering after Plaintiff sued Mr. Loghmani to better protect himself from litigation. However, according to Mr. Loghmani, M L Engineering never conducted any business. Despite the preparation of the two Statements of Information from 2012 and 2013, Mr. Loghmani asserted that not a single project went through M L Engineering and that the entity was "dead" soon after it was created in February 2012.

D. Mr. Loghmani's Prior Bankruptcy Case

On March 29, 2012, Mr. Loghmani filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition (the "Prior Case") [1:12-bk-12998-VK]. In Mr. Loghmani's schedules and statements filed in the Prior Case [1:12-bk-12998-VK, doc. 11], Mr. Loghmani indicated he was married and referred to Ms. Loghmani as his wife, such as by listing property as his "wife's" property or referring to assets or liabilities as community property or debts. In an amended schedule F [1:12-bk-12998-VK, doc. 75], Mr. Loghmani scheduled two debts in favor of Plaintiff totaling $1,846,426.72.

In Mr. Loghmani's Statement of Financial Affairs ("SOFA") filed in the Prior Case, Mr. Loghmani listed three state court lawsuits to which Mr. Loghmani was a party within one year preceding the Prior Case: (A) the Breach of Contract Action; (B) the Fraudulent Transfer Action; and (C) a quiet title action bearing case number NC054045.

On November 30, 2012, the U.S. Trustee filed a complaint against Mr. Loghmani requesting denial of Mr. Loghmani's discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A) and (a)(4)(A) (the "UST Action") [1:12-ap-01419-VK]. The UST Action was based on Mr. Loghmani's failure to disclose a prepetition transfer of real property in San Bernardino from Mr. Loghmani to Mr. Loghmani's son. On December 3, 2013, the Court held trial on the UST Action. On January 7, 2014, the Court entered a judgment denying Mr. Loghmani his discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A) and (a)(4)(A) (the "Denial of Discharge Judgment") [1:12-ap-01419-VK, doc. 47]. [FN2].

On December 9, 2013, after the Court held trial on the UST Action, Mr. Loghmani filed a motion to dismiss the Prior Case (the "Motion to Dismiss") [1:12-bk-12998-

The docket entry related to the closing of Mr. Loghmani's case notes that Mr. Loghmani "has not filed a Certification About a Financial Management Course proving compliance with the required instructional course requirement for discharge."

E. Defendants' State Court Actions against Plaintiff

On September 24, 2014, Mr. Loghmani filed a complaint against Plaintiff, among others, asserting a violation of the federal and California False Claims Act (the "Qui Tam Action"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 9. The Qui Tam Action was filed under seal. Id. On December 26, 2016, after Defendants filed their chapter 7 petition, the district court presiding over the Qui Tam Action entered an order unsealing certain documents filed in the Qui Tam Action. Plaintiff's Exhibit 10.

On May 19, 2017, Defendants filed another complaint against the County of Los Angeles and Plaintiff, among others, asserting claims for waste of public funds and requesting permanent injunctive relief (the "County Action"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 12. Although Defendants filed the County Action on May 19, 2017, emails between Mr. Loghmani and agents of Plaintiff indicate that Defendants contemplated filing the County Action as early as January 27, 2016. Plaintiff's Exhibit 30.

Through the County Action, Defendants requested an order "enjoining the continued unlawful and wasteful expenditure of tax dollars on [Plaintiff's] contract with the Department of Mental Health, County of Los Angeles, and declare their contract void and require [Plaintiff] to reimburse the [County of Los Angeles] all funds illegally obtained by defrauding the [County of Los Angeles]." Plaintiff's Exhibit 12. Defendants did not request monetary damages for themselves. Id.

F. Defendants' Current Petition and the Original Schedules

Following Defendants' filing of their joint chapter 7 petition, on August 3, 2016, the Court sent notice of Defendants' bankruptcy filing to several creditors, including the Franchise Tax Board (the "FTB") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 6].

On August 24, 2016, Defendants filed their original schedules and statements [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 14]. At the time, Defendants represented themselves in pro per. In their Statement of Related Cases, which calls for prior petitions filed by debtors, Defendants did not list the Prior Case. In their schedule A/B, Defendants listed the Laurel Canyon Property and valued it at $365,000. Defendants indicated that only Ms. Loghmani had an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property. In their schedule A/B, Defendants also listed a professional engineer's license and Ms. Loghmani's contractor's license. Defendants did not schedule Mr. Loghmani's contractor's license. Defendants also listed an interest in two lawsuits, which Defendants referenced by case number alone. Defendants did not include the Qui Tam Action. At this time, Defendants had not yet initiated the County Action.

In their schedule D, Defendants listed a first priority deed of trust in favor of Seterus Inc. ("Seterus") in the amount of $163,116.47. Defendants indicated that only Ms. Loghmani is liable on the mortgage. Defendants also listed a judgment lien in favor of Plaintiff in the amount of $315,891.75. As to the judgment lien, Defendants indicated that both Defendants were liable for the claim in favor of Plaintiff. In their schedule E/F, Defendants listed a claim in favor of Mahtab Azghadi, Ms. Loghmani's sister, in the amount of $65,000. Defendants indicated that Ms. Azghadi's claim is entitled to priority treatment. Aside from Seterus, Plaintiff and Ms. Azghadi, Defendants did not list any other creditors in their schedules.

In their SOFA, Defendants again indicated they are married. Under Part 4 of the SOFA, which requests information about lawsuits in which debtors are parties, Defendants listed two state court actions: a malicious prosecution, fraud and conversion action and a fraudulent misrepresentation and concealment action. Below these responses, Defendants handwrote "plus few more," but did not specify the additional lawsuits to which they were parties. Under Part 11 of their SOFA, which calls for debtors to list businesses they owned within four years prior to the petition date, Defendants listed two businesses: L.A. Design and May Design. Defendants did not list M L Engineering.

G. Defendants' Amended Schedules

On June 21, 2017, Defendants filed amended schedules and statements [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 33]. This time, Defendants were represented by counsel. In their amended schedule A/B, Defendants again listed the Laurel Canyon Property and valued it at $365,000. Once again, Defendants indicated that only Ms. Loghmani had an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property. Defendants also listed their interest in the professional engineer's license, Ms. Loghmani's contractor's license and the two lawsuits referenced by case number. Defendants did not schedule Mr. Loghmani's contractor's license. This time, Defendants added an attachment to their amended schedule A/B and included information about the Qui Tam Action. Although Defendants had initiated the County Action by this time, Defendants did not include the County Action in their amended schedules or statements.

In their amended schedule D, Defendants once again listed the mortgage in favor of Seterus. This time, Defendants stated that both Defendants were liable on the mortgage. Defendants also listed the judgment lien in favor of Plaintiff in the amount of $315,891.75 and again noted that both Defendants were liable to Plaintiff. This time, Defendants also listed another judgment lien in favor of Plaintiff in the amount of $1,869,389.87 and stated that both Defendants were liable on the claim. In their amended schedule E/F, Defendants listed the $65,000 claim in favor of Ms. Azghadi. Defendants continued to assert that the claim is entitled to priority treatment. This time, Defendants added an unsecured claim in favor of Plaintiff in the amount of $1,869,389.87.

In their amended SOFA, Defendants again represented that they are married. Under Part 4 of the amended SOFA, Defendants listed the Malicious Prosecution Action and the Fraud Action. This time, Defendants also included the Qui Tam Action. Under Part 11 of the amended SOFA, Defendants again listed L.A. Design and May Design, but did not include M L Engineering.

H. Other Relevant Events from Defendants' Bankruptcy Case

On October 7, 2016, Defendants attended a § 341(a) meeting of creditors (the "Meeting of Creditors"). JPS, 2:26. At the Meeting of Creditors, Defendants testified that: (A) they read and signed their petition, schedules and statements; (B) they were personally familiar with the information in their petition, schedules and statements; (C) with the exception of U.S. Bank, all creditors were listed in Defendants' schedules and statements; (D) all assets were identified in Defendants' schedules and statements; (E) except for the omission of U.S. Bank, the information in the petition, schedules and statements were true and correct; and (G) Defendants have been married since 1975. JPS, 2:26-3:5. Mr. Loghmani also testified that the Prior Case was dismissed. JPS, 3:5-6.

On December 6, 2017, after Defendants filed their amended schedules and statements, the FTB filed a proof of claim in the amount of $20,798.51. On August 8, 2018, the FTB filed an amended proof of claim, asserting a claim in the same amount. In both the original and the amended proofs of claim, the FTB stated that Defendants had not filed their tax returns for the years 2013, 2014 and 2015. As such, for purposes of the proofs of claim, the FTB included a hypothetical amount subject to amendment once Defendants filed their tax returns.

On August 16, 2017, Seterus filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay (the "RFS Motion") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 36], requesting authority to foreclose on the Laurel Canyon Property. On September 25, 2017, the Court entered an order granting the RFS Motion (the "RFS Order") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 42].

On December 19, 2017, the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") filed an application to employ general counsel (the "Employment Application") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 47]. On January 22, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Employment Application (the "Employment Order") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 54].

On February 14, 2018, the Trustee filed a motion to approve the sale of the Qui Tam Action, the County Action and a malicious prosecution action (collectively, the "Lawsuits") to Plaintiff for $75,000 [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 56]. On March 26, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the sale of the Lawsuits (the "Sale of Lawsuits Order") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 68].

On August 6, 2018, the Trustee filed an application to employ accountants (the "Accountant Application") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 73]. Through the Accountant Application, the Trustee seeks to retain accountants to help the Trustee complete tax work and financial analyses prior to administration of Defendants' estate. On September 27, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Accountant Application (the "Accountant Order") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 78].

On November 1, 2016, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendants, initiating this adversary proceeding. Plaintiff requested nondischargeability of the debt owed to it pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) and (a)(10) and denial of Defendants' discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2), (a)(3), (a)(4) and (a)(5). On October 27, 2017, Plaintiff filed a first amended complaint [doc. 30], adding a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A).

On November 17, 2017, Plaintiff filed a motion for summary judgment (the "MSJ") [doc. 33]. Through the MSJ, Plaintiff requested summary judgment on its claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523. On February 21, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the MSJ and issued the MSJ Ruling [doc. 47]. In the MSJ Ruling, the Court held that judgment would be entered against Mr. Loghmani, but not Ms. Loghmani, as to one of Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and as to Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(10). Regarding Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(10), the Court held that all debts owed to Plaintiff arising from Plaintiff's prepetition state court actions against Mr. Loghmani would be nondischargeable because of the Denial of Discharge Judgment. The Court denied the remainder of the MSJ. On April 16, 2018, the Court entered an order granting in part and denying in part the MSJ [doc. 52].

On May 23, 2018, the parties entered into a joint pretrial stipulation (the "JPS") [doc. 57]. In the JPS, the parties agreed that the Court would try Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2), (a)(3) and (a)(4)(A). On June 18, 2018, the Court entered an order setting dates and deadlines for trial [doc. 58]. On August 6, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the JPS [doc. 71].

On August 27, 2018, the Court held trial on Plaintiff's claims. At trial, Plaintiff asserted the Court should deny Defendants' discharge based on the following inaccuracies and omissions:

- (A) Defendants indicated they are married in their petition, schedules and statements;
- (B) Defendants indicated in their schedules that only Ms. Loghmani had an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property despite the state court finding that both Defendants had an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property;

they could not obtain a discharge of those debts, as a result of the Denial of Discharge Judgment, and did not believe they owed any taxes, including to the FTB; and

(M) Defendants believed the Prior Case was dismissed because Mr. Loghmani did not complete a financial management course.

After trial, the Court raised the issue of Defendants' marital status and asked the parties if Defendants' bankruptcy case is subject to dismissal because Defendants filed a joint petition despite not being legally married. The Court requested post-trial briefing from the parties. On August 31, 2018, Plaintiff filed a supplemental brief [doc. 82], arguing against dismissal and suggesting severance of the Defendants' petition as an alternative. Defendants did not timely file a post-trial brief.

II. LEGAL STANDARDS REGARDING DENIAL OF DISCHARGE

A. Burden of Proof

In an action under 11 U.S.C. § 727, the objector to discharge bears the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the debtor's discharge should be denied under an enumerated ground of § 727(a). In re Khalil, 379 B.R. 163, 172 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007), aff'd, 578 F.3d 1167 (9th Cir. 2009). "Proof by the preponderance of the evidence means that it is sufficient to persuade the finder of fact that the proposition is more likely true than not." In re Arnold & Baker Farms, 177 B.R. 648, 654 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994), *aff'd sub nom. ### B. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)

Section 727(a)(2)(A)-(B) provides that a court shall grant a debtor a discharge unless "the debtor, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor or an officer of the estate charged with custody of property ... has transferred, removed, destroyed, mutilated, or concealed ... (A) property of the debtor, within one year before the date of the filing of the petition; or (B) property of the estate, after the date of the filing of the petition."

C. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)(A)

Section 727(a)(4)(A) denies a discharge to a debtor who "knowingly and fraudulently" made a false oath or account in the course of the bankruptcy proceedings. To bring a successful § 727(a)(4)(A) claim for false oath, the plaintiff must show: (1) the debtor made a false oath in connection with the case; (2) the oath related to a material fact; (3) the oath was made knowingly; and (4) the oath was made fraudulently. In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 62 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). "[A] false oath may involve a false statement or omission in the debtor's schedules." In re Roberts, 331 B.R. 876, 882 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005), aff'd and remanded on other grounds, 241 F. ### III. ANALYSIS REGARDING DISCHARGE OF DEFENDANTS

A. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)

Plaintiff did not meet its burden of proving that Defendants concealed assets with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or officers of the estate. Plaintiff contends that Defendants concealed the following assets: (A) M L Engineering; (B) Mr. Loghmani's contractor's license; (C) the Qui Tam Action; and (D) the County Action.

i. M L Engineering

Plaintiff contends that Defendants omitted M L Engineering from their schedules and statements with intent to hinder, delay or defraud. However, Mr. Loghmani testified that M L Engineering did not conduct any business since its inception in February 2012. Plaintiff submitted evidence demonstrating that M L Engineering was active as of April 2013, however, with the exception of Mr. Loghmani's testimony that the business was perpetually inactive, the record is devoid of any information about M L Engineering after 2013. As such, Plaintiff has not shown that Defendants concealed property that belonged to Defendants "within one year before the petition date" or property of the estate after the petition date.

Even if M L Engineering was active within the timeframes set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2), Plaintiff did not demonstrate that Defendants omitted the asset with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or officers of the estate. Once again, according to Mr. Loghmani, M L Engineering did not generate any business and did not have any value. Plaintiff did not introduce evidence contradicting this testimony. At trial, Plaintiff suggested that Defendants did not provide evidence demonstrating that M L Engineering was inactive. However, Plaintiff bears the burden of proof, and Plaintiff did not demonstrate that it attempted to obtain any financial records related to M L Engineering, such as through discovery requests. The record did not establish that Defendants' interest in M L Engineering had any value to the estate, and Plaintiff did not meet its burden of showing that Defendants omitted this asset with intent to hinder, delay or defraud.

ii. Mr. Loghmani's Contractor's License

According to Mr. Loghmani, Defendants did not list Mr. Loghmani's contractor's license because the license was not active as of the petition date. Plaintiff did not produce contradictory evidence. To the extent the estate had an interest in Mr. Loghmani's inactive license as of the petition date, Plaintiff did not demonstrate that Defendants omitted the license with intent to hinder, delay or defraud.

iii. The Qui Tam Action

As to the Qui Tam Action, the estate did have an interest in the pending action as of the petition date. However, Defendants did not entirely conceal the Qui Tam Action. In the SOFA, Defendants wrote "plus few more" below the lawsuits they listed. As such, the Trustee and creditors were put on notice that Defendants were parties to additional lawsuits. Moreover, Defendants explained that the Qui Tam Action was filed under seal, which is why Defendants believed they could not fully disclose details about the Qui Tam Action. After the seal was lifted in the Qui Tam Action, Defendants scheduled the Qui Tam Action in an attachment to their amended schedules. Consequently, the Court finds that Defendants did not omit the Qui Tam Action with intent to hinder, delay or defraud.

iv. The County Action

Defendants did not list the County Action in either their original or amended schedules. Under 11 U.S.C. § 541(b)(1), "[p]roperty of the estate does not include... any power that the debtor may exercise solely for the benefit of an entity other than the debtor." Defendants testified, and the evidence showed, that Defendants did not have a monetary interest in the County Action. Through the County Action, Defendants requested only injunctive relief, i.e., terminating the contract between Plaintiff and the County of Los Angeles. Because it appears Defendants did not prosecute the County Action on behalf of themselves, the County Action is not property of the estate, and Defendants were not obligated to list the County Action in their schedules. As such, Defendants did not conceal "property of the estate" for purposes of § 727(a)(2).

B. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)(A)

Plaintiff also has not met its burden of demonstrating that Defendants knowingly and fraudulently made a false oath in connection with their bankruptcy case.

i. Defendants' Assertion of Marriage

In their petition, schedules and statements and throughout the course of their bankruptcy case, Defendants have represented that they are married. However, at trial, Defendants testified that they divorced in 1981 and did not remarry. Despite this fact, Defendants believe they are married at this time because they did not dissolve their Iranian marriage and because they have held themselves out as married for decades, including by filing joint tax returns and indicating they are married in other legal documents.

Because Defendants are not legally married, Defendants' repeated representation that they are married constitute a false oath. Moreover, because the status of their marriage impacts administration of their estate, the oath also relates to a material fact.

However, the Court does not believe that Defendants fraudulently made the oaths regarding their marital status. It is true that Defendants represented to the state court that they are divorced to prevent the Laurel Canyon Property from being labeled community property. Defendants may have used questionable tactics in state court to thwart (unsuccessfully) the sale of the Laurel Canyon Property. Nevertheless, Defendants' conduct before the state court is not at issue in this adversary proceeding.

As concerns Defendants' representations before this Court, Defendants did not stand to benefit from filing a joint petition as a married couple. Plaintiff, who bears the burden of proof in this action, did not articulate why Defendants would intentionally represent themselves as married to deceive creditors. To the contrary, Defendants' filing of a joint petition would benefit creditors by bringing into the estate both Defendants' assets and subjecting both Defendants to investigation by the Trustee, creditors and the Court. The Court finds credible that Defendants believed they qualify as a legally married couple able to file a joint petition; in fact, Mr. Loghmani consistently represented he was married in the Prior Case. As such, even if Defendants' representation regarding marriage was "knowing," the representation was not fraudulent, and Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4) cannot rest on Defendants' oaths regarding their marital status.

ii. The Laurel Canyon Property

Plaintiff points to two false oaths or omissions related to the Laurel Canyon Property, namely, that Defendants indicated only Ms. Loghmani has an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property and that Defendants valued the Laurel Canyon Property at $365,000 instead of using the $532,500 valuation assigned by the state court.

Regarding Defendants' valuation of the Laurel Canyon Property, Plaintiff did not articulate why Defendants were bound to use the state court's finding of value, which predated the petition date by three months. The state court appears to have based its finding regarding valuation on an appraisal obtained by Plaintiff dated March 22, 2016, over four months before the petition date. Defendants testified that they believed the Laurel Canyon Property was worth $365,000 as of the petition date. Plaintiff did not dispute this valuation in connection with Defendants' bankruptcy case, and the Trustee has not obtained an independent appraisal in an effort to market the Laurel Canyon Property. As such, the record does not demonstrate that Defendants' valuation as of the petition date constitutes a false oath.

Even if the Laurel Canyon Property was actually worth $532,500 as of the petition date, Defendants' scheduled value of $365,000 was not materially false. The Laurel Canyon Property is significantly overencumbered, mostly by the judgment liens in favor of Plaintiff. As such, the likelihood that the Trustee would liquidate the Laurel Canyon Property through the bankruptcy case was minimal. If the Trustee did decide to liquidate the Laurel Canyon Property, the Trustee would not be bound by Defendants' assigned valuation; rather, the Trustee's marketing efforts would yield an appropriate purchase price.

Further, Defendants' valuation of the Laurel Canyon Property was not fraudulent. Using Defendants' valuation, Seterus is fully secured. Aside from Seterus, the only creditor with a claim secured by the Laurel Canyon Property is Plaintiff. Plaintiff was well aware of the prepetition valuation of the Laurel Canyon Property. Thus, it does not appear Defendants were attempting to conceal the value of the Laurel Canyon Property.

With respect to the fact that Defendants indicated in both their original and amended schedules that only Ms. Loghmani has an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property, Defendants testified that they continue to believe that the Laurel Canyon Property belongs to Ms. Loghmani alone because she purchased the Laurel Canyon Property with her parents' money and Mr. Loghmani signed a document stating that he does not have an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property. However, because the state court found, through the Fraudulent Transfer Judgment, that the transfer from Mr. Loghmani to Ms. Loghmani would be set aside, it appears both Defendants had an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property as of the petition date. As a result, Defendants' statement in their schedules that only Ms. Loghmani has an interest in the Laurel Canyon Property constitutes a false oath.

However, the false oath is neither material nor fraudulent. In their amended schedules, Defendants indicated that both Defendants are liable on the secured claims in favor of Seterus and Plaintiff. Consequently, even if Defendants listed Ms. Loghmani as the sole owner of the Laurel Canyon Property, Defendants did not attempt to shield the Laurel Canyon Property from either of their secured creditors. Plaintiff did not articulate how Defendants would benefit from, or creditors would be harmed by, a representation that the Laurel Canyon Property belongs to one debtor but labeling each secured debt against the Laurel Canyon Property as a community liability subject to enforcement using the Laurel Canyon Property. Based on the foregoing, Defendants' representations regarding the Laurel Canyon Property do not satisfy the elements of § 727(a)(4)(A).

Plaintiff also contends Defendants' omission of M L Engineering from their schedules and statements was knowing and fraudulent. According to Mr. Loghmani, however, M L Engineering never conducted any business. The SOFA asks debtors to list businesses they owned, as well as businesses for which debtors acted in a certain capacity, such as officers, directors or managing executives of corporations, within four years of the petition date.

At trial, Mr. Loghmani testified that he did not list M L Engineering because M L Engineering was "dead" as of February 2012. However, the SOFA does not limit the question to active businesses, instead calling for debtors to list all businesses within the purview of the question. At least as of April 2013, when Mr. Loghmani's son prepared a Statement of Information to file with the Secretary of State, M L Engineering was still in existence and Mr. Loghmani still retained his multiple roles as Chief Executive Officer, Secretary and Chief Financial Officer. As such, the omission of M L Engineering from the SOFA constitutes a false oath. In addition, because the false oath relates to a possible asset of the estate, the false oath also was material.

However, the Court does not find that the false oath was either knowing or fraudulent. According to Mr. Loghmani, M L Engineering did not generate any income and none of the projects with which Mr. Loghmani was involved went through M L Engineering. Plaintiff did not introduce evidence to the contrary, e.g., financial statements from M L Engineering demonstrating that M L Engineering had any value. Rather than knowingly or fraudulently conceal M L Engineering from the estate, it appears Defendants inadvertently omitted this asset because they did not operate the asset anytime close to the petition date. Thus, Plaintiff has not met its burden of proof as to the omission of M L Engineering.

iv. Mr. Loghmani's Contractor's Licenses

The omission of Mr. Loghmani's contractor's license also was not material or fraudulent. Mr. Loghmani testified that his license was inactive as of the petition date. Plaintiff did not demonstrate that inclusion of the license in Defendants' schedules could have led to the discovery of assets, business dealings or the existence and disposition of Defendants' property. Defendants already listed the contracting businesses through which they conducted their business dealings. As such, the inclusion of Mr. Loghmani's license would have been, at best, a duplicative avenue of discovering the same information that the Trustee and creditors had available by reference to Defendants' scheduled businesses. In light of these facts, the omission was not material, and Defendants did not omit the asset with fraudulent intent.

v. The Loans between Defendants

Plaintiff also notes that Defendants did not disclose a loan made by Ms. Loghmani to Mr. Loghmani. To the extent Defendants were obligated to schedule a loan between themselves, the omission was not material. Inclusion of the loan in Defendants' schedules would not have impacted Defendants' joint estate or led to the discovery of additional assets. [FN3]. Plaintiff did not meet its burden of demonstrating why this information was material to the Trustee, creditors or the Court. Plaintiff also did not show why omission of this information was "knowing" or "fraudulent." The Court finds credible that Defendants would believe it was unnecessary to include this loan in their schedules and statements, and Plaintiff has not articulated any discernible benefit to Defendants that would result from omitting this loan from their bankruptcy documents. Consequently, Plaintiff has not met its burden of proof as to the loan.

vi. The Priority Claim in Favor of Ms. Azghadi

Plaintiff contends that Defendants falsely scheduled the claim in favor of Ms. Azghadi as priority. Plaintiff also asserts that Defendants did not provide evidence of the loan, such as a promissory note. Although there appears to be no legal basis for classifying Ms. Azghadi's claim as a priority claim, the Court finds that Defendants' designation of the claim was a result of legal confusion, as opposed to a knowing or fraudulent false oath. For instance, Defendants did not attempt to provide inaccurate information about the nature of the claim in an effort to give Ms. Azghadi's claim higher priority. Rather, it appears Defendants simply mislabeled the claim as priority because they did not understand the legal parameters of priority claims.

Moreover, Plaintiff's assertion that Defendants have not provided supporting documentation evidencing the loan is not a basis to deny Defendants their discharge. Plaintiff has the burden of demonstrating that Defendants made a false oath. Plaintiff did not introduce any evidence that would create doubt over the validity of Ms. Azghadi's claim. Plaintiff's conclusory statement that there is no evidence in support of the claim is an attempt at shifting the burden of proof to Defendants. Thus, with respect to the validity of Ms. Azghadi's claim, Plaintiff has not demonstrated that Defendants made a false oath at all.

vii. The Qui Tam Action

Defendants did not list the Qui Tam Action by name in their original schedules, but did include the Qui Tam Action in an attachment to their amended schedules. Because Defendants requested monetary damages through the Qui Tam Action, and inclusion of the Qui Tam Action could have led parties to discovery of assets of the estate, the original omission was material.

However, Defendants wrote "plus few more" below the lawsuits they did include in their original SOFA. The inclusion of the phrase "plus few more" would prompt the Trustee or creditors to inquire about the additional lawsuits to which Defendants were parties. Moreover, Mr. Loghmani testified that the Qui Tam Action was filed under seal, and the seal was not lifted until after Defendants filed their original schedules. Because of the seal, Defendants believed they could not disclose details about the Qui Tam Action. As a result, Defendants simply wrote "plus few more" in the SOFA instead of providing complete information about the Qui Tam Action. Because Defendants signaled the existence of additional lawsuits in their original schedules and believed that they could not fully disclose information about the Qui Tam Action, the Court finds that the omission of the Qui Tam Action from Defendants' original schedules was not fraudulent.

viii. The County Action

Defendants did not list the County Action in either their original or amended schedules. However, as noted above, the only relief Defendants sought through the County Action was to terminate the contract between Plaintiff and the County of Los Angeles. In addition, Defendants filed the complaint in the County Action long after the petition date. Given that the County Action was initiated postpetition and Defendants did not have a personal interest in the County Action, Defendants were not obligated to include the County Action in their schedules or statements, or to amend their schedules or statements following the filing of the County Action, and the omission does not qualify as a false oath.

For the same reasons, the omission also was not material or fraudulent. Because Defendants sought only injunctive relief through the County Action, the estate did not stand to gain or lose any assets as a result of the litigation; including the County Action in Defendants' schedules or statements, if appropriate, would not lead to the discovery of additional assets beneficial to the estate. Plaintiff also did not articulate how Defendants would benefit from omitting the County Action from their bankruptcy filings. Consequently, even if Defendants had an obligation to list litigation that was commenced postpetition and did not involve Defendants' individual rights, the nondisclosure was neither material nor fraudulent.

ix. The Prior Case

In their Statement of Related Cases, Defendants did not include the Prior Case. Because the Statement of Related Cases explicitly calls for debtors to list all prior petitions filed by debtors or their spouses, the omission of the Prior Case constitutes a false oath. Moreover, because the Denial of Discharge Judgment from the Prior Case would impact the extent of Defendants' discharge in this case, the omission also was material.

However, the Court does not find that the omission of the Prior Case was fraudulent. Mr. Loghmani testified that, although he inadvertently omitted the Prior Case from the Statement of Related Cases, he never intended to conceal the Prior Case from creditors or the Court. In fact, Mr. Loghmani stated that he did not believe the Prior Case could be concealed given that his current case was filed in the same district and division as the Prior Case. To this point, the Court notes that, other than failing to list the Prior Case in the Statement of Related Cases, Defendants did not actively attempt to conceal the Prior Case. For example, Defendants did not alter their names or Social Security numbers. As a result, the Court's electronic system automatically listed the Prior Case on the docket.

Plaintiff also notes that Mr. Loghmani testified at the Meeting of Creditors that the Prior Case was dismissed. In fact, the Court denied Mr. Loghmani's Motion to Dismiss, and the Prior Case eventually closed upon completion. At trial, Mr. Loghmani stated that he believed the Prior Case was dismissed because Mr. Loghmani did not complete a financial management course. Consistent with Mr. Loghmani's testimony, the case closing docket entry from the Prior Case included a notation stating that Mr. Loghmani had "not filed a Certification About a Financial Management Course proving compliance with the required instructional course requirement for discharge." The Court finds credible Mr. Loghmani's testimony that he read this language as a dismissal for failure to complete a financial management course. Thus, the Court finds that Mr. Loghmani's statement regarding dismissal of the Prior Case was not made knowingly or fraudulently, and Plaintiff has not met its burden under § 727(a)(4)(A).

x. The Omission of Creditors and the Amount Owed to Plaintiff

Finally, Plaintiff asserts that Defendants listed the incorrect amount owed to Plaintiff and that Defendants omitted creditors from their schedules, including the FTB, which filed a proof of claim in Defendants' case. Defendants acknowledge that they did not include certain creditors in their schedules and statements. However, at trial, Mr. Loghmani testified that he did not list debts that were included in the Prior Case because he believed that those debts were not subject to discharge because of the Denial of Discharge Judgment. For the same reason, Defendants initially scheduled the debt owed to Plaintiff as $315,891.75 and subsequently included the additional $1,869,389.87 in their amended schedules. In Defendants' view, they did not initially list the additional $1,869,389.87 because that amount, which was included in Mr. Loghmani's schedule F from the Prior Case, could not be discharged through this case.

Moreover, the proof of claim filed by the FTB notes that Defendants did not file their tax returns in 2013, 2014 or 2015. As such, the amount claimed by the FTB is an estimate and does not necessarily reflect the actual amount that will be owed to the FTB once Defendants file their tax returns. At trial, Mr. Loghmani testified that he believes he does not owe any money in taxes to the FTB. Given that Defendants may not owe any money to the FTB once Defendants' tax returns are filed, the record does not establish that Defendants made a false oath by omitting the FTB from their schedules.

In addition, even if Defendants should have included the FTB in their schedules, Plaintiff has not presented any evidence demonstrating that the omission was knowing or fraudulent. The Court sent notice to the FTB of Defendants' bankruptcy filing soon after the petition date; nothing on the record demonstrates that Defendants otherwise attempted to conceal their bankruptcy case from the FTB or to hide any debt they may owe to the FTB from the Trustee, the Court or creditors of the estate. Plaintiff also has not met its burden as to the amount of Plaintiff's claim listed in Defendants' original schedules or as to the omitted creditors.

C. Plaintiff's Abandoned Claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3)

In the JPS, Plaintiff included 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3) as a claim to be adjudicated at trial. At trial, Plaintiff informed the Court that it would not be pursuing its allegations regarding Defendants' alleged failure to preserve business records for L.A. Design. In the JPS, Plaintiff only discussed 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3) with respect to L.A. Design. Because Plaintiff elected not to pursue the allegations regarding recordkeeping at L.A. Design, it appears Plaintiff abandoned its claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3). In any event, Plaintiff did not present any evidence at trial demonstrating that Defendants failed to adequately preserve business or personal records.

IV. SEVERING THE JOINT PETITION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 302(a), "[a] joint case under a chapter of this title is commenced by the filing with the bankruptcy court of a single petition under such chapter by an individual that may be a debtor under such chapter and such individual's spouse." (emphasis added). "Non-married cohabitants may not file a joint petition pursuant to § 302(a)." In re Lucero, 408 B.R. 348, 350 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009). "Courts interpret § 302(a)'s 'individual and individual's spouse' as applicable only to those couples that are legally married." Id.

To determine whether joint petitioners are legally married, courts look to state law. In re Simmons, 584 B.R. 295, 297–98 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2018) ("An individual is in a state of marriage with another person based on the individual's status vis-à-vis the other person under state law."); and In re Villaverde, 540 B.R. 431, 434 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2015) ("To resolve [the issue regarding whether the joint debtors are legally married], the court must turn to California law to understand the status of domestic partners.").

- (a) Marriage is a personal relation arising out of a civil contract between two persons, to which the consent of the parties capable of making that contract is necessary. Consent alone does not constitute marriage. Consent must be followed by the issuance of a license and solemnization as authorized by this division, except as provided by Section 425 and Part 4 (commencing with Section 500).

- (b) For purposes of this part, the document issued by the county clerk is a marriage license until it is registered with the county recorder, at which time the license becomes a marriage certificate.

Cal. Fam. Code § 300. Aside from marriages formed under Family Code § 300, California also recognizes the validity of foreign marriages if the marriage is valid under the laws of the jurisdiction in which the marriage arose. Cal. Fam. Code § 308 ("A marriage contracted outside [California] that would be valid by laws of the jurisdiction in which the marriage was contracted is valid in California.").

Here, Defendants testified that they initially married in Iran. There is no evidence on the record demonstrating that Defendants' marriage was valid under the laws of Iran but, even if the marriage was valid under Iranian law, Defendants dissolved their marriage in Illinois. Under Illinois law, the effect of a dissolution of marriage is to give the parties to the divorce the same status as if the parties had never been married. Parkinson v. Parkinson, 116 Ill.App. 112, 114 (Ill. App. Ct. 1904) ("The effect of the divorce was to leave the parties, in legal status, the same as if they had never been married."). Defendants have not cited any authority that provides that Defendants also had to dissolve their marriage under Iranian law to finalize their divorce.

According to Defendants, soon after the divorce, Defendants resumed cohabitating together but did not remarry. Defendants imply that they should be treated as married because they held themselves out as married. To the extent Illinois law provides for common law marriages, Defendants' marriage may be deemed valid in California by operation of Cal. Fam. Code § 308. However, pursuant to the Illinois Marriage and Dissolution of Marriage Act, "[c]ommon law marriages contracted in [Illinois] after June 30, 1905 are invalid." 750 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 5/214. California also does not recognize common law marriages. See People v. Badgett, 10 Cal.4th 330, 363 (1995);

and Elden v. Sheldon, 46 Cal.3d 267, 258-59 (1988) (holding that unmarried cohabitants are not treated as spouses under California law).

As such, under both Illinois and California law, Defendants do not qualify as spouses despite having cohabitated or having represented themselves as married. See also Villaverde, 540 B.R. at 434-35 (holding that even registered domestic partners did not qualify as "spouses" under California law despite being afforded similar treatment under the law because California law did not explicitly classify domestic partners as spouses). Given that Defendants are not legally married, Defendants also do not qualify as joint petitioners under 11 U.S.C. § 302(a).

Because Defendants improperly filed a joint petition, the Court must decide the best remedy moving forward. Courts deciding the issue have used several approaches, such as providing the option of dismissing one debtor or risking dismissal of the entire case, Lucero, 408 B.R. at 350-51, treating only the first listed debtor as having initiated a bankruptcy case, In re Clem, 29 B.R. 3 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1982) or dismissing the entire case. In re Jephunneh Lawrence & Assocs. Chartered, 63 B.R. 318 (Bankr. D.D.C. 1986). In addition to these options, some courts have provided that severing the joint petition into two separate cases also is an option. In re Stancil, 473 B.R. 478, 481 (Bankr. D.D.C. 2012) ("The better view is that a bankruptcy case is commenced as to each such [joint filing] entity under 11 U.S.C. § 301, albeit with the entities treated as having improperly joined together in the same petition. Unless the court decides to dismiss the cases, the appropriate remedy to address the improper joinder is to sever the cases."); In re Gale, 177 B.R. 531 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 1995) (providing for severance of improperly joined involuntary petition); and In re W. Land Bank, Inc., 116 B.R. 721, 725 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1990) (same); see also Villaverde, 540 B.R. at 438 (noting that the options available to the debtors were "dismissing the case in its entirety; severing the joint petition and treating the [d]ebtors as having file[d] two separate cases; or dismissing the joint debtor").

Here, the Court finds that the best approach is to sever Defendants' chapter 7 petition rather than dismiss either of the Defendants from the bankruptcy case. Defendants' bankruptcy case has been pending for over two years. Dismissing the case instead of severing the case would unwind the two years of progress made in Defendants' bankruptcy case. By this time, Seterus has obtained relief from the automatic stay, and the Trustee has employed counsel and sold the Lawsuits to Plaintiff to recover

Moreover, Defendants, creditors and other parties in interest have relied on the deadlines set in Defendants' bankruptcy case, such as the claims bar date and the deadline by which parties may file nondischargeability or denial of discharge complaints. Severing rather than dismissing the joint petition would preserve those deadlines. In addition, severing the joint petition will not have an effect on the continued operation of the automatic stay.

Based on the above and the fact that Defendants' bankruptcy case has been jointly administered for the past two years, the Court will concurrently order the continued joint administration of Defendants' severed estates. Several courts have suggested that joint administration of estates is appropriate for unmarried debtors with several joint debts and assets. See In re Stancil, 473 B.R. 478, 481 (Bankr. D.D.C. 2012) (holding that a joint petition filed by unmarried debtors must be treated as commencing two separate cases and not jointly administered "unless the court later orders such joint administration"); In re Wilkerson, 2006 WL 3694638, at *1 (Bankr. M.D. Ga. 2006) ("The appropriate procedure for non-spouses who have numerous joint debts is to file individual cases and seek administrative consolidation."); In re Lam, 98 B.R. 965, 966 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 1988) (ordering mother-daughter joint petitioners to file two separate cases but providing for administrative consolidation); In re Malone, 50 B.R. 2, 3 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 1985) (offering to entertain a motion for joint administration if the unmarried debtors file two separate chapter 13 petitions); and In re Cole, 14 B.R. 5, 6 (Bankr. E.D. Penn. 1981) (holding that the unmarried debtors, who "have incurred joint debts and have obtained joint assets," may not file a joint petition under § 302 but ordering joint administration of their estates).

"Joint administration is... a procedural tool permitting use of a single docket for administrative matters, including the listing of filed claims, the combining of notices to creditors of the different estates, and the joint handling of ministerial matters that may aid in expediting the cases.... Used as a matter of convenience and cost saving, it does not create substantive rights." In re Gianulias, 2013 WL 1397430, at *6 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Apr. 5, 2013) (quoting In re Reider, 31 F.3d 1102, 1109 (11th Cir. 1994)). Joint administration also allows for the appointment of one trustee. See, e.g. Cole, 14 B.R. at 6.

Joint administration is appropriate in this case. Defendants' case has already been subject to joint administration for two years. Joint administration will ensure that the progress in Defendants' case will be preserved. The RFS Order, the Employment Order, the Sale of Lawsuits Order and the Accountant Order will remain in effect as to both bankruptcy estates. In other words, Seterus will be deemed to have relief from the automatic stay as to both estates; the Trustee's counsel and accountants will be deemed employed as to both estates; and the sale of the Lawsuits to Plaintiff will not be unwound. There will continue to be one chapter 7 trustee tasked with administration of both estates. Given the procedural posture of Defendants' case and pursuant to the Court's inherent authority under 11 U.S.C. § 105(a) and the authorities cited above, the Court finds ordering joint administration of Defendants' estates concurrent with severance of Defendants' joint petition is appropriate. Defendants must file amended, separate schedules and statements in their respective bankruptcy cases upon severance of their joint chapter 7 petition.

V. CONCLUSION

The Court will enter judgment in favor of Defendants. The Court also will sever Defendants' joint petition and order the joint administration of Defendants' estates.

The Court will prepare the judgment. The Court also will prepare a separate order, to be entered in Defendants' main bankruptcy case, severing the joint petition, setting dates and deadlines by which Defendants must file amended, separate schedules and statements in their respective bankruptcy cases and providing for joint administration of Defendants' estates.

2. On July 12, 2012, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Mr. Loghmani requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to Plaintiff and denial of Mr. Loghmani's discharge [1:12-ap-01223-VK]. After entry of the Denial of Discharge Judgment, Plaintiff requested and obtained dismissal of its action.

#65.00 Motion objecting to the response of JP Morgan Chase to the Chapter 13 Trustee's notice of final cure payment

fr. 9/18/18(stip)

Docket 122

Tentative Ruling:

On July 18, 2018, the chapter 13 trustee filed a notice of final cure payment (the "Notice") [doc. 118], stating that the amount required to cure the default related to the claim filed by JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. ("Chase") has been paid in full. On August 8, 2018, Chase filed a response to the Notice (the "Response"). Chase noted that, although the debtor paid the prepetition default amount in full, the debtor was not current on her postpetition obligations to Chase.

On August 29, 2018, the debtor filed an objection to the Response (the "Objection") [doc. 122]. The debtor provided a declaration in support of the Objection, in which the debtor testified that, after an audit, Chase informed the debtor that she was current on her postpetition obligations. The debtor properly served Chase with a copy of the Objection and notice of the hearing on the Objection. In light of the declaration filed by the debtor and the lack of a response to the Objection by Chase, the Court will sustain the Objection.

The debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On October 27, 2005, Freddy Benjamin Castro ("Debtor") and Imelda E. Castro executed a promissory note (the "Note"), made payable to Right Away Mortgage, Inc. ("Right Away"), in the principal amount of $103,800. Declaration of Gina D'Elia (the "D'Elia Declaration") [doc. 54], ¶ 5, Exhibit 1. The Note was secured by a second position deed of trust (the "DOT") recorded against the real property located at 14206 Pierce Street, Pacoima, California 91331 (the "Pacoima Property"). Id., ¶ 5, Exhibit 2. The DOT indicated that Debtor and Ms. Castro held the Pacoima Property as joint tenants. Id. Subsequently, Right Away assigned the Note and DOT to Deutsche Bank National Trust Company ("Deutsche Bank").

On September 12, 2017, Debtor filed a chapter 13 petition. In his schedule A/B, Debtor listed the Pacoima Property and valued the Pacoima Property at $370,000. In his schedule D, Debtor listed a first priority deed of trust in favor of Wells Fargo Home Mortgage in the amount of $416,000. Debtor also listed the second priority DOT in favor of Deutsche Bank in the amount of $103,800.

Concurrently with his schedules, Debtor filed a proposed chapter 13 plan (the "Plan") [doc. 2]. In the Plan, Debtor indicated that he intended to avoid Deutsche Bank's lien. Plan, Section V.F. On October 26, 2016, Deutsche Bank filed an objection the Plan [doc. 13], asserting that Debtor could not avoid Deutsche Bank's lien pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1322(b)(2). Deutsche Bank also objected to Debtor's valuation of the Pacoima Property.

On November 2, 2016, Deutsche Bank filed claim no. 2-1, asserting a secured claim in the amount of $151,042.92. On December 12, 2016, Debtor filed a motion to avoid Deutsche Bank's lien pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 506(d) (the "Motion to Avoid Lien") [doc. 19], valuing the Pacoima Property at $360,000. Deutsche Bank opposed the Motion to Avoid Lien [doc. 22], again asserting that applicable law prohibited avoidance of Deutsche Bank's lien and disputing Debtor's valuation of the Pacoima Property. This time, Deutsche Bank also asserted that Debtor could not release his non-debtor spouse from liability.

On January 10, 2017, the Court held an initial hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien. At that time, the Court continued the hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien and set deadlines for Deutsche Bank to file a competing appraisal. At the initial hearing, Martin Weingarten appeared on behalf of Deutsche Bank. According to counsel for Deutsche Bank, Mr. Weingarten did not inform Deutsche Bank about the impending deadlines. Declaration of Nichole Glowin ("Glowin Declaration") [doc. 55], ¶ 11. Nevertheless, the appearance report reflected that the hearing was "[c]ontinued per tentative." Id., ¶ 11, Exhibit 10.

On March 13, 2017, Deutsche Bank and Debtor entered into a stipulation to further continue the hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien (the "Stipulation to Continue") [doc. 26]. On March 14, 2017, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation to Continue [doc. 29].

On April 4, 2018, the Court held a continued hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien. Mr. Weingarten again appeared on behalf of Deutsche Bank. Prior to the continued hearing, Deutsche Bank did not timely file an appraisal, and did not otherwise request a continuance of the hearing. As a result, in light of Deutsche Bank's failure to file an appraisal timely, the Court adopted the Debtor's valuation.

On June 21, 2017, the Court entered an order granting the Motion to Avoid Lien (the "Order Avoiding Lien") [doc. 40]. On June 13, 2017, the Court held a confirmation hearing. Deutsche Bank appeared at the confirmation hearing. On June 29, 2017, the Court entered an order confirming the Plan (the "Confirmation Order") [doc. 42].

On March 28, 2018, Deutsche Bank filed a motion requesting relief from the Order to Avoid Lien and the Confirmation Order (the "Motion") [doc. 52], on the basis that Mr. Weingarten did not inform Deutsche Bank about the deadline to file an appraisal and on the alternative basis that the Court made a mistake of law by avoiding a lien on a property in which Ms. Castro, a non-filing co-obligor on the Note and the DOT, also holds an interest. On May 27, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 59]. On June 7, 2018, Deutsche Bank filed an untimely reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 60].

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 60(b)—

On motion and just terms, the court may relieve a party or its legal representative from a final judgment, order, or proceeding for the following reasons:

- (1) mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect;
- ...
- (6) any other reason that justifies relief.

A. Rule 60(b)(1)

i. Excusable Neglect

Rule 60(b)(1) is not intended to remedy "mistakes [that] arose from attorney misconduct." Latshaw v. Trainer Wortham & Co., 452 F.3d 1097, 1100-01 (9th Cir. 2006). "Neither ignorance nor carelessness on the part of the litigant or his attorney provide grounds for relief under Rule 60(b)(1)." Engelson v. Burlington Northern R. Co., 972 F.2d 1038, 1043 (9th Cir. 1992); see also Casey v. Albertson's, Inc., 362

Courtroom 301 Calendar

Tuesday, October 9, 2018

Hearing Room 301

11:30 AM

F.3d 1254, 1260 (9th Cir. 2004) ("As a general rule, parties are bound by the actions of their lawyers, and alleged attorney malpractice does not usually provide a basis to set aside a judgment pursuant to Rule 60(b)(1).").

Because Congress has provided no other guideposts for determining what sorts of neglect will be considered "excusable," we conclude that the determination is at bottom an equitable one, taking account of all relevant circumstances surrounding the party's omission. These include . . . [1] the danger of prejudice to the [opposing party], [2] the length of the delay and its potential impact on judicial proceedings, [3] the reason for the delay, including whether it was within the reasonable control of the movant, and [4] whether the movant acted in good faith.

Although Pioneer dealt with excusable neglect in the context of Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9006(b), the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in Briones v. Riviera Hotel & Casino, 116 F.3d 379, 382-83 (9th Cir. 1997), held that the Pioneer test also applies to determination of excusable neglect under Rule 60(b) ("We now hold that the equitable test set out in Pioneer applies to Rule 60(b) as well."). Significantly, although the trial court is granted discretion, the Court of Appeals has made clear that it is an abuse of that discretion to deny a Rule 60(b)(1) motion without considering (at a minimum) all four of the Pioneer factors. See Lemoge v. United States, 587 F.3d 1188, 1192 (9th Cir. 2009) (overturning denial of Rule 60(b)(1) motion because the trial court did not consider one of the four factors); Bateman v. U.S. Postal Service, 231 F.3d 1220, 1224 (9th Cir. 2000) (reversing trial court's denial of Rule 60(b)(1) motion for failure to mention and consider the test in Pioneer and Briones). In Lemoge, the Court of Appeals further noted that although "prejudice to the movant is not an explicit Pioneer-Briones factor," it may be a relevant factor as one of the "'relevant circumstances' that should be considered when evaluating excusable neglect." Lemoge, 578 F.3d 1195.

Here, Deutsche Bank asserts that its conduct should be excused because Mr. Weingarten, Deutsche Bank's appearance attorney, neglected to inform Deutsche Bank about the filing deadlines set by the Court. For the reasons set forth below, Deutsche Bank has not demonstrated excusable neglect warranting vacating of the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order.

a. Prejudice to Other Parties

Debtor will suffer prejudice if the Court vacates the Order to Avoid Lien and/or the Confirmation Order. If the Court vacates either order, Debtor will have to address how Debtor intends to treat Deutsche Bank's secured claim and will likely have to propose a modified chapter 13 plan almost a year after the Court confirmed the Plan. Vacating the Order to Avoid Lien and/or the Confirmation Order also will result in prejudice to other creditors of the estate, who may receive distributions in amounts different than the disbursements contemplated by the Plan. In addition, almost two years after the petition date, Debtor will have to spend time and resources again litigating valuation of the Pacoima Property. As such, this factor weighs against vacating either order on account of excusable neglect.

b. Length of Delay and its Potential Impact on Judicial Proceedings

Rule 60(c)(1) requires that "a motion under Rule 60(b) must be made within a reasonable time . . . and no more than a year after the entry of judgment or order." "What constitutes 'reasonable time' depends upon the facts of each case, taking into consideration the interest in finality, the reason for delay, the practical ability of the litigant to learn earlier of the grounds relied upon, and prejudice to other parties." Lemoge, 587 F.3d at 1196.

Debtor asserts that the Motion is untimely because Deutsche Bank filed the Motion over one year after the Court issued a ruling on the Motion to Avoid Lien. However, Rule 60(b) governs relief from final judgments, orders or proceedings. Here, the Court entered the Order to Avoid Lien on June 21, 2017, and the Confirmation Order on June 29, 2017. Deutsche Bank filed the Motion on March 28, 2017, less than a year after the Court's entry of the orders at issue.

Although Deutsche Bank filed the Motion within the one year deadline provided by Rule 60(b), the Court must still assess whether Deutsche Bank filed the Motion within a "reasonable" time frame. Here, Deutsche Bank appeared at the confirmation hearing on June 13, 2017, at which time Deutsche Bank opposed confirmation of the Plan and raised Deutsche Bank's objection to the avoidance of its lien. The Court informed Deutsche Bank that it would confirm the Plan and avoid Deutsche Bank's lien. Rather than file a motion as soon as practical, Deutsche Bank waited eight months. Significantly, all of the information on which Deutsche Bank relies in the Motion was available to Deutsche Bank at the time the Court adjudicated both the Motion to Avoid Lien and confirmation of the Plan.

According to Deutsche Bank, it delayed filing the Motion because Deutsche Bank and Debtor continued to engage in settlement discussions. First, Deutsche Bank could have filed a motion for reconsideration while continuing to discuss settlement with Debtor. The option to attempt settlement with Debtor was not mutually exclusive from seeking relief from the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order. Second, according to Deutsche Bank itself, Deutsche Bank had trouble communicating with Debtor's counsel for several months before Deutsche Bank decided to file the Motion. Despite several months of failing to reach an agreement with Debtor, Deutsche Bank continued to delay filing the Motion. Consequently, Deutsche Bank did not file the Motion within a reasonable time.

c. Reason for the Delay/Delay in Reasonable Control of the Movant

Again, Deutsche Bank attributes the delay in filing the Motion to Deutsche Bank's attempt to settle with Debtor after entry of the Order to Avoid Lien and the Confirmation Order. However, Deutsche Bank could have filed the Motion while continuing to discuss settlement with Debtor. In addition, Deutsche Bank did not learn of any new evidence or law that caused Deutsche Bank to delay filing the Motion for almost one year. Because Deutsche Bank had reasonable control of the delay at all times, this factor also weighs against granting the Motion.

d. Whether Movant Acted in Good Faith

There is no evidence on the record demonstrating that Deutsche Bank did not act in good faith. Nevertheless, Deutsche Bank attempts to exonerate itself from responsibility with respect to missing the deadline to file its competing appraisal. Although the appearance report did not include the deadlines provided by the Court in the Court's ruling, the appearance report explicitly referred to the tentative ruling. Glowin Declaration, ¶ 11, Exhibit 10. The Court's tentative rulings are available to the public on the Court's website. Thus, Deutsche Bank could have easily accessed the deadlines set by the Court.

Even if a lack of communication between Mr. Weingarten and Deutsche Bank led to Deutsche Bank's failure to file an appraisal by the required deadline, Deutsche Bank has not provided a reasonable excuse for its delay of almost one year in bringing this Motion. As noted above, vacating the Order to Avoid Lien and/or the Confirmation Order would be extremely prejudicial to Debtor and other creditors of the estate. At the time the Court entered both orders, Deutsche Bank had all of the information and law on which it relies. Debtor and the other creditors should not bear the brunt of Deutsche Bank's mistake and highly belated response to the Order to Avoid Lien and/or the Confirmation Order. Under these facts, excusable neglect does not warrant vacating the orders at issue.

ii. Mistake of Law

The alternative basis for relief under Rule 60(b)(1) set forth by Deutsche Bank is that avoidance of Deutsche Bank's lien and confirmation of the Plan was a mistake of law. Specifically, Deutsche Bank asserts that the Court did not have the ability to release the liability of Ms. Castro, as a non-debtor, or Ms. Castro's property through either the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order.

A chapter 13 plan may "modify the rights of holders of secured claims, other than a claim secured only by a security interest in real property that is the debtor's principal residence[.] 11 U.S.C. § 1322(b)(2). Although § 1322(b)(2) prohibits stripping of liens secured only by a debtor's principal residence, Ninth Circuit authority allows a chapter 13 debtor to strip from a primary residence any junior liens that are wholly unsecured. In re Zimmer, 313 F.3d 1220, 1225 (9th Cir. 2002) ("Without a secured claim, a creditor's rights may be modified.").

Here, because Deutsche Bank has not shown excusable neglect for the reasons set forth above, the Court will not consider Deutsche Bank's competing appraisal. Using the Court's original valuation of $360,000, Deutsche Bank's lien would normally be subject to avoidance under Zimmer. The issue is whether the Court had the authority to strip Deutsche Bank's junior lien at all, despite Deutsche Bank's status as a wholly unsecured lienholder, if Debtor and Ms. Castro, a non-filing co-obligor, held the Pacoima Property as joint tenants.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), "[e]xcept as provided in subsection (a)(3) of this section, discharge of a debt of the debtor does not affect the liability of any other entity on, or the property of any other entity for, such debt." In other words, the Court must decide if the Pacoima Property, or any part of it, constitutes "property of any other entity," such that this Court would not have authority to afford relief as to that portion of the Pacoima Property.

Here, the DOT notes that Debtor and Ms. Castro hold the property as joint tenants. D'Elia Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit 2. In a joint tenancy, joint tenants divide a property in equal shares, with a joint tenant's share considered his or her own separate property. Cal. Civ. Code § 683(a); see also In re Obedian, 546 B.R. 409, 412 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2016). Moreover, California Evidence Code § 662 creates a record title presumption whereby the nature of ownership set forth in title to the property controls and may be rebutted only by clear and convincing evidence. The analysis is different, however, if the joint tenants are married.

On the other hand, California Family Code § 760, provides that, "except as otherwise provided by statute, all property, real or personal, wherever situated, acquired by a married person during the marriage while domiciled in this state is community property." In 2014, the California Supreme Court issued a decision in In re Valli, 58 Cal.4th 1396 (2014), wherein the court addressed which statutory presumption prevailed in the context of a marital dissolution. In Valli, the husband had designated his wife as the "sole owner and beneficiary" on a life insurance policy, which was purchased with community property funds. Valli, 58 Cal.4th at 1400. Upon dissolution, the husband argued that the policy was community property despite the title of the policy being in the wife's name. Id. The California Supreme Court agreed, holding that the community property presumption trumps the record title presumption found in California Evidence Code § 662 in a dissolution proceeding. Id., at 1406.

After Valli, there was some ambiguity regarding whether the community property presumption serves to override the record title presumption in a context other than a marital dissolution. At least two bankruptcy courts found that the holding in Valli also applied in the bankruptcy context. Obedian, 546 B.R. 409; In re Collins, 2016 WL 4570413 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. Aug. 29, 2016). Recently, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") issued a decision laying the matter to rest. In re

Brace, 566 B.R. 13 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2017).

In Brace, the debtor and his non-debtor spouse acquired a residence and additional real properties in California as "husband and wife as joint tenants." Id., at 16. The debtor and his spouse then placed the properties in an irrevocable trust, with the debtor's spouse designated as the beneficiary of the trust and the debtor acting as the sole trustee of the trust. Id. Subsequently, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition. Id. The chapter 7 trustee then filed a fraudulent transfer action, requesting a declaration that the properties were property of the estate and seeking to avoid the transfer of the properties to the trust. Id. The bankruptcy court ruled in favor of the chapter 7 trustee, holding that the properties were property of the estate. Id.

The debtor and his non-filing spouse then asked the bankruptcy court to amend the judgment to provide that the properties were owned one half by the debtor and one half by his non-filing spouse, and that only the debtor's interests in the properties were property of the estate. Id., at 17. The bankruptcy court disagreed, holding that despite the record title showing that the debtor and his non-filing spouse took the properties as joint tenants, the properties were acquired with community assets and presumptively constituted community property. Id. After a lengthy and thorough analysis, the BAP affirmed the bankruptcy court's holding. Id., at 18-28.

The BAP first assessed the holdings of Valli and prior Ninth Circuit case law regarding the record title presumption. Id., at 18-21. In so doing, the BAP found, like Obedian and Collins, that the California Supreme Court's holding in Valli superseded the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' prior decision in In re Summers, 332 F.3d 1240 (9th Cir. 2003), where the Court of Appeals had held that the community property presumption is rebutted when a married couple acquires property as joint tenants. Id., at 20-23.

Importantly, the BAP held that the community property presumption applies despite the fact that the debtor and his non-filing spouse were not parties to a dissolution proceeding and did not attempt to transmute the properties like the parties in Valli. Id., at 23-25. Given the facts and extensive policy in Brace, the BAP held that "[a]lthough there may be instances where the record title presumption could apply to marital property..., as a general rule, California's community property presumption applies in disputes in bankruptcy involving the characterization of marital property."

Id., at 19. The BAP reached this holding: (A) despite the fact that the debtor and his non-filing spouse acquired the properties as joint tenants; (B) despite the fact that the debtor and his non-filing spouse were not parties to a dissolution proceeding; and (C) despite the fact that transmutation was not at issue in Brace, unlike in Valli.

In light of Brace, the community property presumption applies despite the fact that the title to the Pacoima Property may reflect that the parties hold the Pacoima Property as joint tenants. The record does not reflect any evidence that would serve to rebut the community property presumption. Under Brace, the mere mention of Debtor and Ms. Castro as joint tenants in the deed of trust is insufficient to rebut the presumption. In other words, the Court would need additional, strong evidence confirming that Debtor and Ms. Castro intended to take the Pacoima Property as joint tenants. Absent such evidence, the Pacoima Property is properly characterized as community property.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(2), the commencement of a bankruptcy case creates an estate comprised, in part, of "[a]ll interests of the debtor and the debtor's spouse in community property as of the commencement of the case that is... under the sole, equal, or joint management and control of the debtor; or... liable for an allowable claim against the debtor, or for both an allowable claim against the debtor and an allowable claim against the debtor's spouse, to the extent that such interest is so liable." 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(2)(A), (B).

Because the presumption is that the Pacoima Property is community property, upon commencement of Debtor's case, the Pacoima Property became property of the estate in full. As a result, the provision of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e) setting forth that the property of another entity is not relieved of liability is not applicable here.

In fact, the BAP has explicitly found that community property is subject to lien stripping under 11 U.S.C. § 506 even if only one spouse has filed for bankruptcy protection. In re Maynard, 264 B.R. 209 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001). In Maynard, the debtor filed a chapter 13 petition and subsequently filed a motion to avoid a lien pursuant to 11 U.S.C § 506(d). Id., at 211. The bankruptcy ruled in favor of the debtor and avoided the lienholder's lien. Id., at 213.

On appeal, the lienholder argued that the bankruptcy court erred in avoiding its lien because the debtor's non-debtor spouse also held an interest in the subject property.

Id., at 214. The BAP disagreed. Id. The BAP found that, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(2), the community property became property of the estate and, as a result, "the entire lien was subject to valuation and avoidance under § 506." Id.

Pursuant to Brace and Maynard, the Court had the authority to avoid Deutsche Bank's lien in full. Because Deutsche Bank has not demonstrated excusable neglect, supra, Debtor's appraisal stands as the only evidence of value of the Pacoima Property. That appraisal reflected the value of the Pacoima Property as $360,000. Using that valuation, Deutsche Bank's lien was entirely unsecured, and the Court appropriately avoided Deutsche Bank's lien in accordance with the authorities above.

Consequently, Deutsche Bank has not shown that the Court made a mistake of law warranting reconsideration of either the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order.

B. Rule 60(b)(6)

As with Rule 60(b)(1), a request under Rule 60(b)(6) "must be made within a reasonable time." Rule 60(c)(1). For the same reasons set forth above, Deutsche Bank did not file its request for relief within a reasonable time.

Rule 60(b)(6) is the "catch-all provision" of Rule 60(b) "that is read as being exclusive of the other grounds for relief listed in Rule 60." Cnty. Dental Servs. v. Tani, 282 F.3d 1164, 1168 n.8 (9th Cir. 2002). "In order to obtain such relief from a judgment, however, extraordinary circumstances must exist." In re Estrada, 568 B.R. 533, 541 (Bankr C.D. Cal. 2017) (citing U.S. v. Sparks, 685 F.2d 1128, 1130 (9th Cir. 1982)). "The burden is on the moving party to bring himself within the purviews of Rule 60(b)(6)." In re Hammer, 112 B.R. 341, 345 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1990).

First, Deutsche Bank does not provide a different basis for relief under the catch-all provision of Rule 60(b)(6). Deutsche Bank mostly relies on the same grounds as its request for relief under Rule 60(b)(1). Moreover, Deutsche Bank has not shown the type of "extraordinary circumstances" that merit relief under Rule 60(b)(6). As set forth above, the Court did not make a mistake of law that deprived Deutsche Bank of its rights. Rather, Deutsche Bank did not timely file an appraisal, and then waited nearly a year to file the Motion. Any injustice suffered by Deutsche Bank is a result of Deutsche Bank's own delay. There being no other facts showing the type of

On October 27, 2005, Freddy Benjamin Castro ("Debtor") and Imelda E. Castro executed a promissory note (the "Note"), made payable to Right Away Mortgage, Inc. ("Right Away"), in the principal amount of $103,800. Declaration of Gina D'Elia (the "D'Elia Declaration") [doc. 54], ¶ 5, Exhibit 1. The Note was secured by a second position deed of trust (the "DOT") recorded against the real property located at 14206 Pierce Street, Pacoima, California 91331 (the "Pacoima Property"). Id., ¶ 5, Exhibit 2. The DOT indicated that Debtor and Ms. Castro held the Pacoima Property as joint tenants. Id. Subsequently, Right Away assigned the Note and DOT to Deutsche Bank National Trust Company ("Deutsche Bank").

On September 12, 2017, Debtor filed a chapter 13 petition. In his schedule A/B, Debtor listed the Pacoima Property and valued the Pacoima Property at $370,000. In his schedule D, Debtor listed a first priority deed of trust in favor of Wells Fargo Home Mortgage in the amount of $416,000. Debtor also listed the second priority DOT in favor of Deutsche Bank in the amount of $103,800.

Concurrently with his schedules, Debtor filed a proposed chapter 13 plan (the "Plan") [doc. 2]. In the Plan, Debtor indicated that he intended to avoid Deutsche Bank's lien. Plan, Section V.F. On October 26, 2016, Deutsche Bank filed an objection the Plan [doc. 13], asserting that Debtor could not avoid Deutsche Bank's lien pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1322(b)(2). Deutsche Bank also objected to Debtor's valuation of the Pacoima Property.

On November 2, 2016, Deutsche Bank filed claim no. 2-1, asserting a secured claim in the amount of $151,042.92. On December 12, 2016, Debtor filed a motion to avoid Deutsche Bank's lien pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 506(d) (the "Motion to Avoid Lien") [doc. 19], valuing the Pacoima Property at $360,000. Deutsche Bank opposed the Motion to Avoid Lien [doc. 22], again asserting that applicable law prohibited avoidance of Deutsche Bank's lien and disputing Debtor's valuation of the Pacoima Property. This time, Deutsche Bank also asserted that Debtor could not release his non-debtor spouse from liability.

On January 10, 2017, the Court held an initial hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien. At that time, the Court continued the hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien and set deadlines for Deutsche Bank to file a competing appraisal. At the initial hearing, Martin Weingarten appeared on behalf of Deutsche Bank. According to counsel for Deutsche Bank, Mr. Weingarten did not inform Deutsche Bank about the impending deadlines. Declaration of Nichole Glowin ("Glowin Declaration") [doc. 55], ¶ 11. Nevertheless, the appearance report reflected that the hearing was "[c]ontinued per tentative." Id., ¶ 11, Exhibit 10.

On March 13, 2017, Deutsche Bank and Debtor entered into a stipulation to further continue the hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien (the "Stipulation to Continue") [doc. 26]. On March 14, 2017, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation to Continue [doc. 29].

On April 4, 2018, the Court held a continued hearing on the Motion to Avoid Lien. Mr. Weingarten again appeared on behalf of Deutsche Bank. Prior to the continued hearing, Deutsche Bank did not timely file an appraisal, and did not otherwise request a continuance of the hearing. As a result, in light of Deutsche Bank's failure to file an appraisal timely, the Court adopted the Debtor's valuation.

On June 21, 2017, the Court entered an order granting the Motion to Avoid Lien (the "Order Avoiding Lien") [doc. 40]. On June 13, 2017, the Court held a confirmation hearing. Deutsche Bank appeared at the confirmation hearing. On June 29, 2017, the Court entered an order confirming the Plan (the "Confirmation Order") [doc. 42].

On March 28, 2018, Deutsche Bank filed a motion requesting relief from the Order to Avoid Lien and the Confirmation Order (the "Motion") [doc. 52], on the basis that Mr. Weingarten did not inform Deutsche Bank about the deadline to file an appraisal and on the alternative basis that the Court made a mistake of law by avoiding a lien on a property in which Ms. Castro, a non-filing co-obligor on the Note and the DOT, also holds an interest. On May 27, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 59]. On June 7, 2018, Deutsche Bank filed an untimely reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 60].

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 60(b)—

On motion and just terms, the court may relieve a party or its legal representative from a final judgment, order, or proceeding for the following reasons:

- (2) mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect;
- ...
- (7) any other reason that justifies relief.

C. Rule 60(b)(1)

i. Excusable Neglect

Rule 60(b)(1) is not intended to remedy "mistakes [that] arose from attorney misconduct." Latshaw v. Trainer Wortham & Co., 452 F.3d 1097, 1100-01 (9th Cir. 2006). "Neither ignorance nor carelessness on the part of the litigant or his attorney provide grounds for relief under Rule 60(b)(1)." Engelson v. Burlington Northern R. Co., 972 F.2d 1038, 1043 (9th Cir. 1992); see also Casey v. Albertson's, Inc., 362 F.3d 1254, 1260 (9th Cir. 2004) ("As a general rule, parties are bound by the actions of their lawyers, and alleged attorney malpractice does not usually provide a basis to set aside a judgment pursuant to Rule 60(b)(1).").

Because Congress has provided no other guideposts for determining what sorts of neglect will be considered "excusable," we conclude that the determination is at bottom an equitable one, taking account of all relevant circumstances surrounding the party's omission. These include . . . [1] the danger of prejudice to the [opposing party], [2] the length of the delay and its potential impact on judicial proceedings, [3] the reason for the delay, including whether it was within the reasonable control of the movant, and [4] whether the movant acted in good faith.

Although Pioneer dealt with excusable neglect in the context of Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9006(b), the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in Briones v. Riviera Hotel & Casino, 116 F.3d 379, 382-83 (9th Cir. 1997), held that the Pioneer test also applies to determination of excusable neglect under Rule 60(b) ("We now hold that the equitable test set out in Pioneer applies to Rule 60(b) as well."). Significantly, although the trial court is granted discretion, the Court of Appeals has made clear that it is an abuse of that discretion to deny a Rule 60(b)(1) motion without considering (at a minimum) all four of the Pioneer factors. See Lemoge v. United States, 587 F.3d 1188, 1192 (9th Cir. 2009) (overturning denial of Rule 60(b)(1) motion because the trial court did not consider one of the four factors); Bateman v. U.S. Postal Service, 231 F.3d 1220, 1224 (9th Cir. 2000) (reversing trial court's denial of Rule 60(b)(1) motion for failure to mention and consider the test in Pioneer and Briones). In Lemoge, the Court of Appeals further noted that although "prejudice to the movant is not an explicit Pioneer-Briones factor," it may be a relevant factor as one of the "'relevant circumstances' that should be considered when evaluating excusable neglect." Lemoge, 578 F.3d 1195.

Here, Deutsche Bank asserts that its conduct should be excused because Mr. Weingarten, Deutsche Bank's appearance attorney, neglected to inform Deutsche Bank about the filing deadlines set by the Court. For the reasons set forth below, Deutsche Bank has not demonstrated excusable neglect warranting vacating of the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order.

how Debtor intends to treat Deutsche Bank's secured claim and will likely have to propose a modified chapter 13 plan almost a year after the Court confirmed the Plan. Vacating the Order to Avoid Lien and/or the Confirmation Order also will result in prejudice to other creditors of the estate, who may receive distributions in amounts different than the disbursements contemplated by the Plan. In addition, almost two years after the petition date, Debtor will have to spend time and resources again litigating valuation of the Pacoima Property. As such, this factor weighs against vacating either order on account of excusable neglect.

f. Length of Delay and its Potential Impact on Judicial Proceedings

Rule 60(c)(1) requires that "a motion under Rule 60(b) must be made within a reasonable time . . . and no more than a year after the entry of judgment or order." "What constitutes 'reasonable time' depends upon the facts of each case, taking into consideration the interest in finality, the reason for delay, the practical ability of the litigant to learn earlier of the grounds relied upon, and prejudice to other parties." Lemoge, 587 F.3d at 1196.

Debtor asserts that the Motion is untimely because Deutsche Bank filed the Motion over one year after the Court issued a ruling on the Motion to Avoid Lien. However, Rule 60(b) governs relief from final judgments, orders or proceedings. Here, the Court entered the Order to Avoid Lien on June 21, 2017, and the Confirmation Order on June 29, 2017. Deutsche Bank filed the Motion on March 28, 2017, less than a year after the Court's entry of the orders at issue.

Although Deutsche Bank filed the Motion within the one year deadline provided by Rule 60(b), the Court must still assess whether Deutsche Bank filed the Motion within a "reasonable" time frame. Here, Deutsche Bank appeared at the confirmation hearing on June 13, 2017, at which time Deutsche Bank opposed confirmation of the Plan and raised Deutsche Bank's objection to the avoidance of its lien. The Court informed Deutsche Bank that it would confirm the Plan and avoid Deutsche Bank's lien. Rather than file a motion as soon as practical, Deutsche Bank waited eight months. Significantly, all of the information on which Deutsche Bank relies in the Motion was available to Deutsche Bank at the time the Court adjudicated both the Motion to Avoid Lien and confirmation of the Plan.

According to Deutsche Bank, it delayed filing the Motion because Deutsche Bank and Debtor continued to engage in settlement discussions. First, Deutsche Bank could have filed a motion for reconsideration while continuing to discuss settlement with Debtor. The option to attempt settlement with Debtor was not mutually exclusive from seeking relief from the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order. Second, according to Deutsche Bank itself, Deutsche Bank had trouble communicating with Debtor's counsel for several months before Deutsche Bank decided to file the Motion. Despite several months of failing to reach an agreement with Debtor, Deutsche Bank continued to delay filing the Motion. Consequently, Deutsche Bank did not file the Motion within a reasonable time.

g. Reason for the Delay/Delay in Reasonable Control of the Movant

Again, Deutsche Bank attributes the delay in filing the Motion to Deutsche Bank's attempt to settle with Debtor after entry of the Order to Avoid Lien and the Confirmation Order. However, Deutsche Bank could have filed the Motion while continuing to discuss settlement with Debtor. In addition, Deutsche Bank did not learn of any new evidence or law that caused Deutsche Bank to delay filing the Motion for almost one year. Because Deutsche Bank had reasonable control of the delay at all times, this factor also weighs against granting the Motion.

h. Whether Movant Acted in Good Faith

There is no evidence on the record demonstrating that Deutsche Bank did not act in good faith. Nevertheless, Deutsche Bank attempts to exonerate itself from responsibility with respect to missing the deadline to file its competing appraisal. Although the appearance report did not include the deadlines provided by the Court in the Court's ruling, the appearance report explicitly referred to the tentative ruling. Glowin Declaration, ¶ 11, Exhibit 10. The Court's tentative rulings are available to the public on the Court's website. Thus, Deutsche Bank could have easily accessed the deadlines set by the Court.

Even if a lack of communication between Mr. Weingarten and Deutsche Bank led to Deutsche Bank's failure to file an appraisal by the required deadline, Deutsche Bank has not provided a reasonable excuse for its delay of almost one year in bringing this Motion. As noted above, vacating the Order to Avoid Lien and/or the Confirmation Order would be extremely prejudicial to Debtor and other creditors of the estate. At the time the Court entered both orders, Deutsche Bank had all of the information and law on which it relies. Debtor and the other creditors should not bear the brunt of Deutsche Bank's mistake and highly belated response to the Order to Avoid Lien and/or the Confirmation Order. Under these facts, excusable neglect does not warrant vacating the orders at issue.

ii. Mistake of Law

The alternative basis for relief under Rule 60(b)(1) set forth by Deutsche Bank is that avoidance of Deutsche Bank's lien and confirmation of the Plan was a mistake of law. Specifically, Deutsche Bank asserts that the Court did not have the ability to release the liability of Ms. Castro, as a non-debtor, or Ms. Castro's property through either the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order.

A chapter 13 plan may "modify the rights of holders of secured claims, other than a claim secured only by a security interest in real property that is the debtor's principal residence[.] 11 U.S.C. § 1322(b)(2). Although § 1322(b)(2) prohibits stripping of liens secured only by a debtor's principal residence, Ninth Circuit authority allows a chapter 13 debtor to strip from a primary residence any junior liens that are wholly unsecured. In re Zimmer, 313 F.3d 1220, 1225 (9th Cir. 2002) ("Without a secured claim, a creditor's rights may be modified.").

Here, because Deutsche Bank has not shown excusable neglect for the reasons set forth above, the Court will not consider Deutsche Bank's competing appraisal. Using the Court's original valuation of $360,000, Deutsche Bank's lien would normally be subject to avoidance under Zimmer. The issue is whether the Court had the authority to strip Deutsche Bank's junior lien at all, despite Deutsche Bank's status as a wholly unsecured lienholder, if Debtor and Ms. Castro, a non-filing co-obligor, held the Pacoima Property as joint tenants.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), "[e]xcept as provided in subsection (a)(3) of this section, discharge of a debt of the debtor does not affect the liability of any other entity on, or the property of any other entity for, such debt." In other words, the Court must decide if the Pacoima Property, or any part of it, constitutes "property of any other entity," such that this Court would not have authority to afford relief as to that portion of the Pacoima Property.

Here, the DOT notes that Debtor and Ms. Castro hold the property as joint tenants. D'Elia Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit 2. In a joint tenancy, joint tenants divide a property in equal shares, with a joint tenant's share considered his or her own separate property. Cal. Civ. Code § 683(a); see also In re Obedian, 546 B.R. 409, 412 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2016). Moreover, California Evidence Code § 662 creates a record title presumption whereby the nature of ownership set forth in title to the property controls and may be rebutted only by clear and convincing evidence. The analysis is different, however, if the joint tenants are married.

On the other hand, California Family Code § 760, provides that, "except as otherwise provided by statute, all property, real or personal, wherever situated, acquired by a married person during the marriage while domiciled in this state is community property." In 2014, the California Supreme Court issued a decision in In re Valli, 58 Cal.4th 1396 (2014), wherein the court addressed which statutory presumption prevailed in the context of a marital dissolution. In Valli, the husband had designated his wife as the "sole owner and beneficiary" on a life insurance policy, which was purchased with community property funds. Valli, 58 Cal.4th at 1400. Upon dissolution, the husband argued that the policy was community property despite the title of the policy being in the wife's name. Id. The California Supreme Court agreed, holding that the community property presumption trumps the record title presumption found in California Evidence Code § 662 in a dissolution proceeding. Id., at 1406.

After Valli, there was some ambiguity regarding whether the community property presumption serves to override the record title presumption in a context other than a marital dissolution. At least two bankruptcy courts found that the holding in Valli also applied in the bankruptcy context. Obedian, 546 B.R. 409; In re Collins, 2016 WL 4570413 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. Aug. 29, 2016). Recently, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") issued a decision laying the matter to rest. In re Brace, 566 B.R. 13 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2017).

In Brace, the debtor and his non-debtor spouse acquired a residence and additional real properties in California as "husband and wife as joint tenants." Id., at 16. The debtor and his spouse then placed the properties in an irrevocable trust, with the debtor's spouse designated as the beneficiary of the trust and the debtor acting as the sole trustee of the trust. Id. Subsequently, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition. Id. The chapter 7 trustee then filed a fraudulent transfer action, requesting a declaration that the properties were property of the estate and seeking to avoid the transfer of the properties to the trust. Id. The bankruptcy court ruled in favor of the chapter 7 trustee, holding that the properties were property of the estate. Id.

The debtor and his non-filing spouse then asked the bankruptcy court to amend the judgment to provide that the properties were owned one half by the debtor and one half by his non-filing spouse, and that only the debtor's interests in the properties were property of the estate. Id., at 17. The bankruptcy court disagreed, holding that despite the record title showing that the debtor and his non-filing spouse took the properties as joint tenants, the properties were acquired with community assets and presumptively constituted community property. Id. After a lengthy and thorough analysis, the BAP affirmed the bankruptcy court's holding. Id., at 18-28.

The BAP first assessed the holdings of Valli and prior Ninth Circuit case law regarding the record title presumption. Id., at 18-21. In so doing, the BAP found, like Obedian and Collins, that the California Supreme Court's holding in Valli superseded the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' prior decision in In re Summers, 332 F.3d 1240 (9th Cir. 2003), where the Court of Appeals had held that the community property presumption is rebutted when a married couple acquires property as joint tenants. Id., at 20-23.

Importantly, the BAP held that the community property presumption applies despite the fact that the debtor and his non-filing spouse were not parties to a dissolution proceeding and did not attempt to transmute the properties like the parties in Valli. Id., at 23-25. Given the facts and extensive policy in Brace, the BAP held that "[a]lthough there may be instances where the record title presumption could apply to marital property..., as a general rule, California's community property presumption applies in disputes in bankruptcy involving the characterization of marital property." Id., at 19. The BAP reached this holding: (A) despite the fact that the debtor and his non-filing spouse acquired the properties as joint tenants; (B) despite the fact that the debtor and his non-filing spouse were not parties to a dissolution proceeding; and (C) despite the fact that transmutation was not at issue in Brace, unlike in Valli.

In light of Brace, the community property presumption applies despite the fact that the title to the Pacoima Property may reflect that the parties hold the Pacoima Property as joint tenants. The record does not reflect any evidence that would serve to rebut the community property presumption. Under Brace, the mere mention of Debtor and Ms. Castro as joint tenants in the deed of trust is insufficient to rebut the presumption. In other words, the Court would need additional, strong evidence confirming that Debtor and Ms. Castro intended to take the Pacoima Property as joint tenants. Absent such evidence, the Pacoima Property is properly characterized as community property.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(2), the commencement of a bankruptcy case creates an estate comprised, in part, of "[a]ll interests of the debtor and the debtor's spouse in community property as of the commencement of the case that is... under the sole, equal, or joint management and control of the debtor; or... liable for an allowable claim against the debtor, or for both an allowable claim against the debtor and an allowable claim against the debtor's spouse, to the extent that such interest is so liable." 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(2)(A), (B).

Because the presumption is that the Pacoima Property is community property, upon commencement of Debtor's case, the Pacoima Property became property of the estate in full. As a result, the provision of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e) setting forth that the property of another entity is not relieved of liability is not applicable here.

In fact, the BAP has explicitly found that community property is subject to lien stripping under 11 U.S.C. § 506 even if only one spouse has filed for bankruptcy protection. In re Maynard, 264 B.R. 209 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001). In Maynard, the debtor filed a chapter 13 petition and subsequently filed a motion to avoid a lien pursuant to 11 U.S.C § 506(d). Id., at 211. The bankruptcy ruled in favor of the debtor and avoided the lienholder's lien. Id., at 213.

On appeal, the lienholder argued that the bankruptcy court erred in avoiding its lien because the debtor's non-debtor spouse also held an interest in the subject property. Id., at 214. The BAP disagreed. Id. The BAP found that, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(2), the community property became property of the estate and, as a result, "the entire lien was subject to valuation and avoidance under § 506." Id.

Pursuant to Brace and Maynard, the Court had the authority to avoid Deutsche Bank's lien in full. Because Deutsche Bank has not demonstrated excusable neglect, supra, Debtor's appraisal stands as the only evidence of value of the Pacoima Property. That appraisal reflected the value of the Pacoima Property as $360,000. Using that valuation, Deutsche Bank's lien was entirely unsecured, and the Court appropriately avoided Deutsche Bank's lien in accordance with the authorities above. Consequently, Deutsche Bank has not shown that the Court made a mistake of law warranting reconsideration of either the Order to Avoid Lien or the Confirmation Order.

D. Rule 60(b)(6)

As with Rule 60(b)(1), a request under Rule 60(b)(6) "must be made within a reasonable time." Rule 60(c)(1). For the same reasons set forth above, Deutsche Bank did not file its request for relief within a reasonable time.

Rule 60(b)(6) is the "catch-all provision" of Rule 60(b) "that is read as being exclusive of the other grounds for relief listed in Rule 60." Cnty. Dental Servs. v. Tani, 282 F.3d 1164, 1168 n.8 (9th Cir. 2002). "In order to obtain such relief from a judgment, however, extraordinary circumstances must exist." In re Estrada, 568 B.R. 533, 541 (Bankr C.D. Cal. 2017) (citing U.S. v. Sparks, 685 F.2d 1128, 1130 (9th Cir. 1982)). "The burden is on the moving party to bring himself within the purviews of Rule 60(b)(6)." In re Hammer, 112 B.R. 341, 345 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1990).

First, Deutsche Bank does not provide a different basis for relief under the catch-all provision of Rule 60(b)(6). Deutsche Bank mostly relies on the same grounds as its request for relief under Rule 60(b)(1). Moreover, Deutsche Bank has not shown the type of "extraordinary circumstances" that merit relief under Rule 60(b)(6). As set forth above, the Court did not make a mistake of law that deprived Deutsche Bank of its rights. Rather, Deutsche Bank did not timely file an appraisal, and then waited nearly a year to file the Motion. Any injustice suffered by Deutsche Bank is a result of Deutsche Bank's own delay. There being no other facts showing the type of manifest injustice required for purposes of Rule 60(b)(6), the Court also will not vacate the Order to Avoid Lien or Confirmation Order under this subsection.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Chapter 13

#70.00 Motion re: objection to claim number 4-1 by claimant
Edge Holdings Company, LLC.

Docket 58

Tentative Ruling:

Grant; sustain objection to claim 4-1 on the Court's claim register.

I. BACKGROUND

On April 19, 2018, Gabriel Medina (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. The Debtor owns the real property located at 15143 Polk Street, Sylmar, CA 91342 (the "Property").

In March 2009, Debtor alleges that he sought assistance from Michael Herrera in procuring a loan modification on the Property [Declaration of Gabriel Medina ("Medina Decl."). ¶ 3]. Debtor claims that Mr. Herrera stated that in order to obtain the loan modification, the Property would be held in trust by Mr. Herrera, who would negotiate the note down on Debtor's behalf [Id., at ¶ 4].

Debtor contends that unbeknownst to him, Mr. Herrera executed and fraudulently recorded documents purporting to be deeds transferring ownership of the Property at least five times [Id., at ¶ 5]. On January 26, 2012, one of these alleged transfers occurred [Id.]. A deed was executed and recorded ("Claimant's Deed of Trust"), which purported to transfer title of the Property from M & J Development Group, LLC to The Edge Holdings Company, LLC ("Claimant") [Id.].

On April 10, 2014, Debtor alleges that he was served a Three-Day Notice to Quit [Id., at ¶ 6]. On May 2, 2014, Debtor claims that Claimant filed an unlawful detainer action in the Los Angeles Superior Court against Debtor and his wife to vacate the Property [Id.]. The state court entered judgment against Debtor and awarded Claimant $6,098.00 in restitution and possession of the Property (the "Unlawful Detainer Judgement") [Claim 4-1, Exh. 1].

Debtor retained counsel and filed a lawsuit against numerous defendants including

Mr. Herrera and Claimant on several causes of action, which included an action to quiet title [Medina Decl., ¶ 7]. On October 5, 2016, the state court entered judgement (the "Judgment") in favor of Debtor [doc. 58, Exh. A]. The state court ordered that any deeds executed or recorded by Mr. Herrera, Claimant, and the other defendants in the action were voided and canceled. Furthermore, the state court ordered that Debtor was the owner in fee simple of the Property, free and clear of any interest, claim, or lien of any of the defendants in this action. The state court awarded Debtor approximately $497,982.07 in damages [doc. 58, Exh. A].

On June 29, 2018, Claimant filed proof of claim no. 4-1 for the amount of $6,098.00 (the "Claim"). The basis of the Claim is the Unlawful Detainer Judgment.

On August 29, 2018, Debtor filed a Motion Objecting to Claim 4-1 Filed by Edge Holdings Company, LLC Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §502(b)(1) (the "Objection") [doc. 58]. As of October 1, 2018, no opposition has been filed.

II. DISCUSSION

11 U.S.C. § 502(a) provides that a proof of claim is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest objects. Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 3001(f) provides that a proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the rules constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim. FRBP 3001(c)(1) provides that when a claim, or an interest in property of the debtor securing the claim, is based on a writing, a copy of the writing shall be filed with the proof of claim. See also Local Bankruptcy Rule 3007-1(c) ("an objection to claim must be supported by admissible evidence sufficient to overcome the evidentiary effect of a properly documented proof of claim").

"To defeat the claim, the objector must come forward with sufficient evidence and show facts tending to defeat the claim by probative force equal to that of the allegations of the proofs of claim themselves." Lundell v. Anchor Const. Specialists, Inc., 223 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2000) (internal citation omitted). "If the objector produces sufficient evidence to negate one or more of the sworn facts in the proof of claim, the burden reverts to the claimant to prove the validity of the claim by a preponderance of the evidence. The ultimate burden of persuasion remains at all times upon the claimant." Id. (internal citations omitted); In re Laptops Etc. Corp., 164 B.R. 506, 522 (Bankr. D. burden of persuasion as to validity of its claim, only "upon objection to the claim coupled with the admission of probative evidence which tends to sufficiently rebut the prima facie validity of the claim"); see also In re Campbell, 336 B.R. 430, 436 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2005) ("[o]bjections without substance are inadequate to disallow claims, even if those claims lack the documentation required by Rule 3001(c).").

Debtor seeks disallowance of the Claim on the grounds that the Claimant lacks standing to bring the Claim. It appears that Debtor is correct. As Debtor notes, the Judgment quieted title in favor of Debtor and against Claimant, Mr. Herrera, and the other named defendants. The Judgment held that any deed previously executed or recorded as to the Property by Claimant, Mr. Herrera, or the other defendants was void and canceled. The Unlawful Detainer Judgment appears to be based on Claimant's Deed of Trust, which was executed and recorded before the Judgment was entered. Thus, Claimant's Deed of Trust appears to be void and canceled. As such, it appears that the Unlawful Detainer Judgment is void. Furthermore, the state court ordered that Debtor was the owner in fee simple of the Property, free and clear of any interest, claim, or lien of any of the defendants in the action.

Tentative Ruling from 9/5/18

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Tentative Ruling:

Apparently, the validity of the quitclaim deed at issue is being challenged, and that dispute is pending before the state court. What is the status of the movants' preparation to try this matter in state court? Would it be possible for this Court to adjudicate that issue in or before December 2018?

If this Court grants relief from the automatic stay for the state court to determine only this issue, i.e., the validity of the quitclaim deed, why can't the chapter 7 trustee represent and litigate the interest of the debtor's bankruptcy estate in the real property (if any) in the state court?

In light of the expense of litigating this issue, are the movants and the chapter 7 trustee willing to participate in the Court's mediation program, in an attempt to resolve this dispute consensually?

#5.00 Motion for relief from stay [RP]

STRUNZO DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION
DEBTOR

Docket 66

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On April 19, 2018, Gabriel Medina ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. Debtor owns the real property located at 15143 Polk Street, Sylmar, CA 91342 (the "Property").

On May 3, 2013, Strunzo Development Corporation ("Movant") funded a purchase money loan to Edge Holdings Company LLC ("Edge") in the principal amount of $165,000 [Declaration of Pasquale P Caiazza ("Caiazza Decl."), ¶ 4]. The loan was evidenced by a note [doc. 66, Exh. A] and deed of trust executed by Edge as the borrower and Movant as the lender ("Movant's Deed of Trust") [doc. 66, Exh. B]. Movant's Deed of Trust was signed by Michael Herrera, as manager for Edge. On May 28, 2013, Movant's Deed of Trust was recorded.

On May 7, 2015, Debtor filed a state court action to quiet title to the Property [doc. 72, Exh. D]. On October 5, 2016, the state court entered judgment (the "Judgment") in favor of Debtor and against numerous defendants, including Herrera and Edge [doc. 72, Exh. C]. Furthermore, the state court ordered that Debtor was the owner in fee simple of the Property, free and clear of any interest, claim, or lien of any of the defendants in that action or of anyone claiming an interest in the Property adverse to Debtor's rights thereto excluding liens of non defendant parties (emphasis added) [Judgment, p. 3, lines 15-18]. The state court awarded Debtor approximately $497,982.07 in damages.

Pursuant to the terms of the loan, Edge was to tender payments to Movant in the amount of $1,447.99 per month, commencing June 15, 2013, until May 15, 2043

[Caiazza Decl., ¶ 5]. According to Movant, the loan was current until August 2018 when Edge defaulted on the monthly payment [Id., at ¶ 6].

On September 15, 2018, Movant filed a Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay Under 11 U.S.C. § 362 (the "Motion") [doc. 66]. On September 21, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 70]. On October 3, 2018, Movant filed a reply to the opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 71] and a request for judicial notice [doc. 72].

In the Opposition, Debtor denies involvement with Movant's Deed of Trust and contends that he does not have personal liability for Movant's Deed of Trust. Debtor further contends that Movant's lien against the Property is void.

II. DISCUSSION

A. Request for Judicial Notice

As an initial matter, the Court grants Movant's request for judicial notice [doc. 72]. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 201(b)(2), a court may judicially notice a fact that is not subject to reasonable dispute because it "can be accurately and readily determined from sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned." A court may also take judicial notice of "facts which are a matter of public record." Tal v. Hogan, 453 F.3d 1244, 1265 (10th Cir. 2006). Accordingly, the Court will take judicial notice of the specific documents identified in the request for judicial notice, as matters of public record.

B. 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1)

Section 362(d)(1) provides that "[o]n request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant relief from the stay . . . for cause, including the lack of adequate protection of an interest in property of such party in interest . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Debtor argues that the Motion should be denied because, pursuant to the Judgment, "any and all Deeds executed or recorded by any of the Defendants . . . , regarding the 'Subject Property,' . . . are null and void . . ." However, the next paragraph in the Judgment states that Debtor "is the owner in fee simple of the Subject Property, free and clear of any interest, claim or lien" of any of the named defendants "or of anyone claiming an interest in the Property adverse to [Debtor]'s rights thereto excluding liens of non defendant parties.

Movant, which is the beneficiary of a deed of trust, was not named as a defendant in the quiet title action. As such, Movant may have a valid lien against the Property.

C. CONCLUSION

In light of the forgoing, Debtor's counsel should be prepared to address the issues raised in the Reply, i.e., regarding the specific language in the Judgment and the effect of Debtor's failure to include Movant as a party to the quiet title action.

1:00 PM

1:18-12051 Mr. Tortilla, Inc.

Chapter 11

#7.00 Status conference re chapter 11 case

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to the Court's order [doc. 21], the debtor has not included a budget of the debtor's projected income, expenses and cash flow for the first six months of this case on a month to month basis. In addition, the debtor did not attach the exhibits identified in the Declaration of Ronald Alcazar [doc. 39]. In light of this omission, the debtor also has not provided evidence regarding the debtor's actual income, expenses and cash flow for the last six months preceding the filing of this case on a month to month basis. The debtor must file a supplemental declaration including this information.

The parties should address the following:

Deadline for debtor and/or debtor in possession to file proposed plan and related disclosure statement: January 31, 2019.

Continued chapter 11 case status conference to be held at 2:00 p.m. on December 6, 2018.

The debtor in possession or any appointed chapter 11 trustee must file a status report, to be served on the debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors, all secured creditors, and the United States Trustee, no later than 10 days before the continued status conference. The status report must be supported by evidence in the form of declarations and supporting documents.

The Court will prepare the order setting the deadlines for the debtor and/or debtor in possession to file a proposed plan and related disclosure statement.

Docket 38

Tentative Ruling:

Tentative Ruling from 8/22/18

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

The co-debtor stay of 11 U.S.C. § 1201(a) and § 1301(a) is terminated, modified or annulled as to the co-debtor, on the same terms and conditions as to the debtor.

Upon entry of the order, for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 2923.5, the Debtor is a borrower as defined in Cal. Civ. Code § 2920.5(c)(2)(C).

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Docket 7

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(4).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

If recorded in compliance with applicable state laws governing notices of interests or liens in real property, the order is binding in any other case under this title purporting to affect the property filed not later than 2 years after the date of the entry of the order by the court, except that a debtor in a subsequent case under this title may move for relief from the order based upon changed circumstances or for good cause shown, after notice and hearing.

Upon entry of the order, for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 2923.5, the Debtor is a borrower as defined in Cal. Civ. Code § 2920.5(c)(2)(C).

Any other request for relief is denied.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Docket 15

Tentative Ruling:

Tentative Ruling From 10/10/18

Apparently, the validity of the quitclaim deed at issue is being challenged, and that dispute is pending before the state court. What is the status of the movants' preparation to try this matter in state court? Would it be possible for this Court to adjudicate that issue in or before December 2018?

If this Court grants relief from the automatic stay for the state court to determine only this issue, i.e., the validity of the quitclaim deed, why can't the chapter 7 trustee represent and litigate the interest of the debtor's bankruptcy estate in the real property (if any) in the state court?

In light of the expense of litigating this issue, are the movants and the chapter 7 trustee willing to participate in the Court's mediation program, in an attempt to resolve this dispute consensually?

fr. 8/1/18; 9/5/18

Docket 26

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On August 1, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the motion to compel (the "Motion") [doc. 26] filed by Forum Entertainment Group, Inc. ("Plaintiff"). At that time, the Court ruled on Plaintiff's request to compel further responses to Plaintiff's propounded interrogatories and requests for production (the "Ruling") [doc. 33]. The Court continued the hearing to issue a ruling on Plaintiff's request to compel further responses to Plaintiff's propounded requests for admission. On August 21, 2018, the Court entered an order on the Motion [doc. 39].

On August 7, 2018, Robin DiMaggio ("Defendant") filed a response to the Motion (the "Response") [doc. 35]. Defendant attached his amended responses to Plaintiffs' discovery requests to the Response. As Defendant has now provided amended responses, the Court will evaluate Plaintiffs' request to compel further responses to their requests for admission ("RFAs") by reference to the amended responses.

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 36(a)(4)—

If a matter is not admitted, the answer must specifically deny it or state in detail why the answering party cannot truthfully admit or deny it. A denial must fairly respond to the substance of the matter; and when good faith requires that a party qualify an answer or deny only a part of a matter, the answer must specify the part admitted and qualify or deny the rest. The answering party may assert lack of knowledge or information as a reason for failing to admit or deny only if the party states that it has made reasonable inquiry and that the information it knows or can readily obtain is insufficient to enable it to admit or deny.

A. RFA nos. 2 and 81 and RFA nos. 1, 4, 61, 67, 70, 73, 79 and 109-110

In his amended response to the RFAs, Defendant states "yes" in response to RFA nos. 2 and 81. As such, the Court will deem RFA nos. 2 and 81 admitted. Moreover, in his amended responses, Defendant states "no" in response to RFA nos. 1, 4, 61, 67, 70, 73, 79 and 109-110. As such, the Court will deem RFAs nos. 1, 4, 61, 67, 70, 73, 79 and 109-110 denied. Defendant does not have to provide further response to these RFAs.

B. RFA no. 3

In response to RFA no. 3, Defendant states, "with the help of Steve Yu." It is unclear if this response is an admission or a denial. Defendant must respond by stating either "admit" or "deny," and after admitting or denying the request, Defendant may qualify his answer by adding "with the help of Steve Yu."

C. RFA nos. 5-6, 8-11, 36 and 47

In response to RFA nos. 5-6, 8-11, 36 and 47, Defendant states that he cannot recall and, in response to some of the requests, asserts that he cannot remember because he has been taking too much medication. These responses are insufficient. Defendant cannot simply state that he cannot recall matters; he must indicate whether he attempted to learn the information and how he attempted to recover the information before stating he cannot recall. See, e.g. Attali v. City of New York, 2017 WL 3268212, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 1, 2017); and Jacobs v. Scribner, 2009 WL 3614567, at *1 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 28, 2009). Defendant must provide additional information regarding whether he attempted to remember the information, and how.

D. RFA nos. 12-13, 16-17, 19, 21-22, 54, 60, 66, 75, 77-78, 80 and 108

In response to RFA nos. 12-13, 16-17, 19, 21-22, 54, 60, 66, 75, 77-78, 80 and 108, Defendant instructs Plaintiffs to ask Steve Yu, but does not admit or deny the matter. These responses are insufficient under Rule 36(a)(4). Defendant must respond with a clear "admit" or "deny," or, if Defendant cannot admit or deny, Defendant must state, in detail, why he cannot admit or deny the matter. For example, if Defendant does not know enough to admit or deny a request, Defendant may state that he lacks knowledge. If Defendant states that he lacks knowledge, Defendant must show the Court that he attempted to obtain the answer. As such, Defendant must provide Plaintiff amended responses to these RFAs.

E. RFA no. 14

RFA no. 14 asks Defendant to admit or deny that Will.I.Am and Pitbull did not perform at the concert. In response to RFA no. 14, Defendant states that the "concert never happened because Calvin Lau hired to[o] many people." Defendant's response implies that Defendant admits RFA no. 14. Nevertheless, Defendant should amend his response to clearly state either "admit" or "deny" in response to RFA no. 14.

F. RFA nos. 15, 18, 25-32, 34, 37-38, 40-46, 49, 50-53, 55, 58-59, 62-65, 68-69, 71-72, 74 and 76

In response to RFA no. 15, Defendant states, "Steve Yu failed." In response to RFA nos. 18, 49, 53, 59, 62-65, 68-69, 71-72, 74 and 76, Defendant states that Steve Yu has the materials or funds to which Plaintiff refers. In addition, in response to RFA nos. 25-32, 37-38, 40-46 and 50-52, Defendant states that Steve Yu handled the matters at issue. In response to RFA no. 34, Defendant states that Steve Yu made the statement to which Plaintiff refers. Finally, in response to RFA no. 55 and 58, Defendant states that Steve Yu took the money at issue and should have returned the funds. Defendant's responses to all of these RFAs are insufficient under Rule 36(a)(4). Defendant must respond to each of these requests by clearly admitting or denying the matters. If Defendant believes he did not commit the acts contained in the RFAs, and that a third party, such as Steve Yu, committed those acts, Defendant must respond with a denial.

In response to RFA nos. 20, 23 and 24, Defendant states that he was on television every night with the band to which Plaintiff refers. The requests ask Defendant if he provided a check to the band members or if Defendant attempted to secure the band for the concert. Defendant's answers are not responsive to these RFAs. Defendant must respond by clearly stating "admit" or "deny" in response to these requests.

H. RFA nos. 35 and 111

In response to RFA nos. 35 and 111, Defendant answers "yes and no." Defendant must specify if he is admitting or denying the matters. If Defendant is admitting one part of the statement, but denying another part of the statement, Defendant must clearly state which part of the statement he admits and which part he denies.

I. RFA no. 39

In response to RFA no. 39, which asks Defendant to admit or deny if he contacted Don Felder for the concert, Defendant responded, "I produced both his records I think this question is invalid." This response is insufficient under Rule 36(a)(4). Defendant must state either "admit" or "deny" in response to this RFA. If Defendant cannot admit or deny, Defendant must explain, in detail, why he is unable to admit or deny.

J. RFA nos. 56-57

In response to RFA nos. 56-57, Defendant states, "Thank God!" These responses are neither admissions or denials and do not comply with Rule 36(a)(4). Defendant must respond to these requests by stating either "admit" or "deny." If Defendant cannot admit or deny, Defendant must explain, in detail, why he is unable to admit or deny.

K. RFA nos. 82-83

In response to RFA nos. 82-83, Defendant states that his bankruptcy attorney was supposed to list certain debts in his schedules. This is not responsive to the requests. Defendant must respond to these requests by either admitting or denying the statements. If Defendant cannot admit or deny the statements, Defendant must explain, in detail, why he is unable to admit or deny the statements.

RFA no. 84 asks Defendant to admit that he does not have any documents to support his first affirmative defense from the answer Defendant filed on January 26, 2018 (the "Answer to Complaint") [doc. 10], through which Defendant states that Plaintiff cannot prove its allegations. In response to RFA no. 84, Defendant states, "It needs to be discharged, Forum was the epic cause of the chaos." This is not responsive. If Defendant has any documents showing that Plaintiff cannot prove its allegations, Defendant must respond by stating "deny" and must provide those documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any such documents, Defendant must respond by stating "admit."

M. RFA no. 112

Defendant has not provided any response to RFA no. 112. Defendant must provide a response to this request.

N. RFA nos. 7, 33 and 85-107

With respect to RFA nos. 7, 33 and 85-107, Defendant states he does not understand the requests. The Court will explain the requests to Defendant below, and Defendant must provide responses to the requests after reading the Court's explanations by clearly stating if he admits the statements or denies the statements.

a. RFA no. 7

RFA no. 7 asks Defendant if he signed or otherwise agreed to a document titled "Memorandum of Understanding," through which Defendant agreed to hire performers for the concert. Does Defendant remember signing or agreeing to this document? If so, Defendant must state if he admits to executing the document or denies executing the document.

b. RFA no. 33

If Defendant does know anyone who spoke to these artists about the concert, Defendant must respond by stating "admit." If Defendant does not know anyone who spoke to these artists about the concert, Defendant may respond stating "deny."

c. RFA no. 96

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff cannot prove its allegations from the complaint. If Defendant can explain, in detail, why Defendant believes Plaintiff cannot prove the allegations in the complaint, Defendant may deny RFA no. 96. If Defendant cannot explain why he believes Plaintiff cannot prove the allegations, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 96.

d. RFA nos. 85 and 97

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Defendant has incurred damages from Plaintiff's conduct. What has Plaintiff done to damage Defendant? How much money, if any, does Defendant believe Plaintiff owes Defendant? If Defendant can answer these questions, Defendant may deny RFA no. 97. If Defendant cannot answer these questions, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 97.

As for RFA no. 85, does Defendant have any documents that show that Plaintiff has injured Defendant or that Plaintiff owes Defendant any money? If so, Defendant must deny the RFA and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to the RFA.

e. RFA nos. 86 and 98

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff has waived its claims, meaning that Plaintiff has done something that would prevent Plaintiff from suing Defendant. What does Defendant believe Plaintiff has done that would result in Plaintiff being unable to sue Defendant? If Defendant can answer this question, Defendant may deny RFA no. 98. If Defendant cannot answer this question, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 98.

As for RFA no. 86, does Defendant have any documents that demonstrate that

f. RFA nos. 87 and 99

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff has breached an agreement with Defendant. Defendant also alleges that Plaintiff has engaged in "tortious conduct" and "unclean hands" and that "laches" bars Plaintiff from suing Defendant. Which agreement does Defendant believe Plaintiff breached? Regarding Defendant's allegation that Plaintiff committed "tortious conduct" and that Plaintiff has "unclean hands," what does Defendant believe Plaintiff did that was wrong? As to "laches," does Defendant believe Plaintiff waited too long to sue Defendant? If so, why? If Defendant can answer these questions, Defendant may deny RFA no. 99. If Defendant cannot answer these questions, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 99.

As for RFA no. 87, does Defendant have any documents that demonstrate that Plaintiff has breached an agreement, committed any wrongful act or filed its complaint too late? If so, Defendant must deny RFA no. 87 and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 87.

g. RFA nos. 88 and 100

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff has breached a contract. Which agreement does Defendant believe Plaintiff breached? How did Plaintiff breach this agreement? If Defendant can answer these questions, Defendant may deny RFA no. 100. If Defendant cannot answer these questions, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 100.

As for RFA no. 88, does Defendant have any documents that would show that Plaintiff breached a contract? If so, Defendant must deny RFA no. 88 and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 88.

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff has released Defendant of any liability. In other words, Defendant is asserting that Plaintiff did or said something to excuse Defendant from repaying Plaintiff. What did Plaintiff do or say to excuse Defendant from being liable to Plaintiff? If Defendant can answer this question, Defendant may deny RFA no. 101. If Defendant cannot answer this question, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 101.

As for RFA no. 89, does Defendant have any documents that would show what Plaintiff did or said? If so, Defendant must deny RFA no. 89 and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 89.

i. RFA nos. 90 and 102

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff is as responsible for the allegations in the complaint as Defendant. What does Defendant believe Plaintiff did or said that caused Plaintiff to lose money? If Defendant can answer this question, Defendant may deny RFA no. 102. If Defendant cannot answer this question, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 102.

As for RFA no. 90, does Defendant have any documents that show what Plaintiff did or said that caused any of the allegations from the complaint, such as Plaintiff's loss of money, the concert not going forward or the lack of confirmation to perform from the musical artists? If so, Defendant must deny RFA no. 90 and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 90.

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Defendant fully performed under the parties' agreement. How does Defendant believe he fully performed in accordance with the parties' agreement(s)? If Defendant can answer this question, Defendant may deny RFA no. 104. If Defendant cannot answer this question, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 104.

As for RFA no. 92, does Defendant have any documents that show that Defendant did everything he was supposed to do under the parties' contract(s)? If so, Defendant must deny RFA no. 92 and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 92.

l. RFA nos. 93 and 105

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff did things, or failed to do things, to minimize the amount of money Plaintiff lost. What does Defendant believe Plaintiff should have done differently to reduce the amount of money Plaintiff lost? If Defendant can answer this question, Defendant may deny RFA no. 105. If Defendant cannot answer this question, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 105.

As for RFA no. 93, does Defendant have any documents that indicate what Plaintiff should have done differently to decrease Plaintiff's damages? If so, Defendant must deny RFA no. 93 and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 93.

n. RFA nos. 95 and 107

In the Answer to Complaint, Defendant states that Plaintiff cannot sue Defendant because the complaint is untimely. Given that Plaintiff alleges in the complaint that Plaintiff first sued Defendant on September 6, 2013, that is, within a year of the concert not going forward, why does Defendant believe that Plaintiff's claims are untimely under the listed statutes, which require that complaints be filed between two and four years from the alleged wrongful conduct? If Defendant can answer this question, Defendant may deny RFA no. 107. If Defendant cannot answer this question, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 107.

As for RFA no. 95, does Defendant have any documents showing that Plaintiff's complaint is untimely? If so, Defendant must deny RFA no. 95 and provide the documents to Plaintiff. If Defendant does not have any documents, Defendant must admit to RFA no. 95.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will compel Defendant to respond to each RFA in accordance with the Court's ruling above, no later than 14 days after entry of the order.

Plaintiff must submit an order within seven (7) days.

The proof of service filed by the plaintiff does not reflect service of the summons, notice of this status conference or status conference instructions. If the plaintiff timely served the summons and additional papers on all defendants, the plaintiff must file an amended proof of service attesting to such service.

If the plaintiff has not timely served the summons and the other required papers on all defendants, the plaintiff must request another summons. The plaintiff can obtain another summons from the Court by sending a request letter to Courtroom Services, Attn: Patty Garcia, 21041 Burbank Blvd., Woodland Hills, CA 91367.

The new summons must be served upon all defendants within 7 days of its issuance by the Court, pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004 and Local Bankr. R. 7004-1(b). The plaintiff must attach to the alias summons a copy of the complaint and a copy of Judge Kaufman's Status Conference Instructions.

To demonstrate proper service of the alias summons and the complaint and instructions to be served with that summons, the plaintiff must file a signed proof of

#20.00 Status conference re: complaint to determine dischargeability and in objection to discharge [11 U.S.C. sec 727(a)(4)(A); 523(a)(2)]

Tentative Ruling:

In their joint status report, the parties indicate that they would like to mediate this matter. The parties should be prepared to discuss their availability for mediation, whether they prefer mediating prior to the Court's adjudication of the defendants' motion to dismiss and whether the parties are willing to attend a global mediation with the parties involved in the related adversary proceeding entitled Karimzad v. Sheik, 1:18-ap-01096-VK.

Within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiff must submit an Order Assigning Matter to Mediation Program and Appointing Mediator and Alternate Mediator using Form 702. During the status conference, the parties must inform the Court of their choice of Mediator and Alternate Mediator. The parties should contact their mediator candidates before the status conference to determine if their candidates can accommodate the deadlines set forth below.

Deadline to complete one day of mediation: 12/14/18.

In accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a)(4), within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiff must submit a Scheduling Order.

If any of these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

#22.20 Status Conference and Order to Show cause re remand

fr. 10/3/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The parties should be prepared to discuss their availability for a global mediation with the parties involved in the other adversary proceedings against the defendant/debtor, which appear to arise out of the same operative facts, namely, Albini et al v. Zuckerman [1:18-ap-01081-VK] and Abel v. Zuckerman et al [1:18-ap-01086-VK].

10/3/2018 Tentative:

In light of the joint status report filed by the parties [doc. 25], in which the parties indicate their willingness to participate in the Court's mediation program, the Court will defer ruling on remand in order for the parties to be able to engage in mediation for a reasonable period of time before the Court determines the issue of remand.

Alternatively, if the parties would like to discuss the possibility of a global mediation with the parties involved in the other adversary proceedings against the defendant/debtor, which appear to arise out of the same operative facts, namely, Albini et al v. Zuckerman [1:18-ap-01081-VK] and Abel v. Zuckerman et al [1:18-ap-01086-VK], the Court will continue this status conference to 1:30 p.m. on November 14, 2018.

If the parties in this adversary proceeding will commence mediation regarding solely this action (with the Court assessing that such a decision is well-founded), within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiffs must submit an Order Assigning Matter to Mediation Program and Appointing Mediator and Alternate Mediator using Form 702. During the status conference, the parties must inform

Deadline to complete one day of mediation: 12/21/18.

In accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a)(4), within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiffs must submit a Scheduling Order.

If any of these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

Adv#: 1:10-01354 Asphalt Professionals Inc v. Davis

#23.00 Defendant Darin Davis' motion for attorney's fees

fr. 9/12/18

Docket 228

Tentative Ruling:

After the prior hearing on this matter, the Court continued the hearing for the parties to brief two issues: (A) whether Darin Davis ("Defendant") is barred from collecting attorneys' fees because he was not a party to the subcontract agreement (the "Agreement") containing the attorneys' fees clause; and (B) whether Defendant is barred from collecting attorneys' fees by operation of California Business & Professions Code ("B&P") § 7031.

I. BACKGROUND

The Court will incorporate its statement of background facts from the prior tentative ruling, with the exception that the Court will modify the facts to clarify that the Agreement did not specify which entity was the "Contractor" in the Agreement. As relevant to the supplemental briefing filed by the parties, the Court will briefly restate some relevant facts and add some new relevant facts.

On June 2, 2004, Asphalt Professionals, Inc. ("Plaintiff"), as the subcontractor, and an unidentified contractor (the "Contractor") entered into the Agreement. Declaration of Declaration of Ray B. Bowen, Jr. ("Bowen Declaration") [doc. 244], ¶ 2, Exhibit 3. In the Agreement, T.O. IX, LLC ("T.O.") was identified as the "Owner" and as a third-party beneficiary. Id. In relevant part, the Agreement provides:

PARTIES: This Subcontract Agreement ("Agreement") is between Contractor and Subcontractor. Any references to "Owner" shall refer to T.O. IX, LLC. The Owner is an express third-party beneficiary to this Agreement. Owner has the right to enforce the provisions of this Agreement against Subcontractor. At any time Owner requests information it deems necessary from Subcontractor, Subcontractor agrees to provide such information within three (3) days of Owner's request. In the event Contractor's involvement in the Project terminates for any reason, Subcontractor will, upon Owner's written request, recognize Owner or any person or entity designated by Owner as the successor-in-interest to Contractor under this Agreement.

ATTORNEYS' FEES: In the event that Contractor prevails in any reference proceeding or court action arising out of this Agreement or the enforcement or breach thereof, or in any action brought against Subcontractor by third parties in which Contractor is joined as a party or interpleads, whether the same proceeds to judgment or not, Subcontractor agrees to pay to Contractor reasonable attorneys' fees. In the event that Subcontractor prevails in any reference proceeding or court action arising out of this Agreement or the enforcement or breach thereof, or in any action brought against Contractor by third parties in which Subcontractor is joined as a party or interpleads, whether the same proceeds to judgment or not, Contractor agrees to pay to Subcontractor reasonable attorneys' fees. The parties' covenants set forth in this Paragraph 23 shall survive and be enforceable following termination of this Agreement.

Agreement, ¶¶ 1, 23 (emphasis added).

Plaintiff eventually sued Defendant in state court, asserting claims of breach of contract, foreclosure of a mechanic's lien, quantum meruit and fraud. Request for Judicial Notice ("RJN") [doc. 246], Exhibit A. Throughout its fourth amended complaint filed in the state court (the "FAC"), Plaintiff alleged that, at all times, T.O. was the alter ego of Defendant, among others. Id. Plaintiff also alleged that on "June 2, 2004, [P]laintiff entered into a written contract with defendants T.O., D and S, D & S Development, [Defendant]" and others. FAC, ¶ 24 (emphasis added). Plaintiff alleged that all of these named defendants had breached the Agreement. FAC, ¶¶ 25,

On October 29, 2010, the state court entered a judgment in favor of Plaintiff and against T.O. IX, LLC ("T.O.") on Plaintiff's breach of contract, foreclosure of mechanic's lien and quantum meruit claims. Bowen Declaration, ¶ 3, Exhibit 12. On January 18, 2011, the state court entered an order against T.O. awarding Plaintiff attorneys' fees (the "Fees Order"). RJN, Exhibit D. The state court based its award on the attorneys' fees provision in the Agreement. Id. ("The attorney fee clause and only the attorney fees clause can ultimately render the aggrieved party whole...."). On December 23, 2011, after trial, the state court issued a statement of decision on alter ego liability (the "Alter Ego Judgment"). Bowen Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit 14. In relevant part, after making extensive findings, the state court held:

There is such a unity of interest and ownership that the separateness of defendants T.O. IX, LLC, D and S Homes, Inc., D & S Development, L.L.C., [Defendant]... has ceased;

Adherence to the separate existence of defendants D and S Homes, Inc., D & S Development, L.L.C., [Defendant]... with T.O. IX, LLC, would, under the particular circumstances of this case, sanction a fraud or promote injustice; that is, if the acts are treated as those of T.O. IX, LLC alone, an inequitable result will follow;

Defendants D and S Homes, Inc., D & S Development, L.L.C., [Defendant]... are each the alter ego of defendant T.O. IX, LLC.

The liability of the Interlocutory Judgment After Court Trial entered October 29, 2010 and of the Order Re Attorney Fees entered January 18, 2011 and any other or future order or orders awarding damages, punitive damages, attorneys fees and/or costs to [Plaintiff] against T.O. IX, LLC in this case hereby is and will be extended to defendants D and S Homes, Inc., D & S Development, L.L.C., [Defendant]... jointly and severally, based upon the doctrine of alter ego....

Exhibit 15. In the Alter Ego Appellate Decision, the appellate court noted that:

[Plaintiff] signed the subcontract with T.O. IX but the agreement provides the parties are [Plaintiff], the subcontractor, and a "Contractor" that is not identified. After signing the contract, [Plaintiff] learned that T.O. IX was not the builder. On August 11, 2005, [Defendant], the president of D & S Homes, notified [Plaintiff] that he was terminating the T.O. IX contract. In that letter he referred to that agreement as "our contract," not as T.O. IX's contract.

Alter Ego Appellate Decision, p. 5.

After Defendant filed his chapter 7 petition, Plaintiff filed a complaint requesting nondischargeability of the debts owed to it and denial of Defendant's discharge (the "Adversary Complaint"). In the Adversary Complaint, Plaintiff continued to allege that Defendant was a party to the Agreement. See Adversary Complaint, ¶ 11 ("During 2004, defendant and entities he owned and controlled, knowingly entered into a subcontract agreement with plaintiff...") (emphasis added); see also ¶¶ 12, 19(d). In its prayer for relief, Plaintiff requested attorneys' fees incurred by Plaintiff during the course of the adversary proceeding. Adversary Complaint, p. 11. Plaintiff also asserted that Defendant was a party to the Agreement in both pretrial stipulations filed in this adversary proceeding [docs. 69, p.4, 140, p.4]. In both pretrial stipulations, Plaintiff also continued to assert that T.O. and other entities were alter egos of Defendant [docs. 69, pp. 6-7, 140, pp. 6-7].

On June 18, 2018, the Court entered judgment in favor of Defendant [doc. 221]. Defendant then filed his motion for an award of attorneys' fees (the "Motion") [doc. 228]. After opposition by Plaintiff and a hearing on the Motion, the Court continued the hearing to provide Plaintiff an opportunity to brief issues Plaintiff raised for the first time at the hearing on the Motion. On October 3, 2018, Plaintiff filed its supplemental brief [doc. 244]. Plaintiff argues, for the first time over the course of the eight years of litigation between the parties in this Court, that Defendant is not a party to the Agreement. Plaintiff also asserts that B&P § 7031 bars Defendant's recovery of attorneys' fees. On October 10, 2018, Defendant filed his supplemental brief [doc. 245].

II. ANALYSIS

A. The State Court Held that Defendant Effectively Is a Party to the Agreement

Plaintiff asserts that the state trial and appellate courts found that Defendant was not a party to the Agreement. To support its argument, Plaintiff refers to the appellate court's comment that the Agreement was between Plaintiff and "a 'Contractor' that is not identified." Although the appellate court did note that the Agreement did not identify the "Contractor," neither the appellate court nor the trial court held that Defendant was not a party to the Agreement.

In fact, the trial court implicitly found that Defendant is a party to the Agreement. In its Fees Order, the state trial court awarded Plaintiff attorneys' fees based on the attorneys' fees provision in the Agreement. Subsequently, in its Alter Ego Judgment, the trial court held that Defendant, among others, was liable for the attorneys' fees because Defendant was an alter ego of multiple other entities, including T.O. Given that the state court held that Defendant, among others, is liable for Plaintiff's attorneys' fees pursuant to the Agreement, the state court necessarily found that Defendant, among other entities, qualifies as a party for purposes of the Agreement.

This conclusion is bolstered by the state trial court's entry of the Alter Ego Judgment. Plaintiff argued for, and the state court found, alter ego liability for the purpose of holding Defendant, among others, liable for breach of the Agreement although Defendant, as an individual, is not a signatory to the Agreement.

B. California Law Allows for Recovery of Attorneys' Fees from Nonsignatory Defendants

"In cases involving nonsignatories to a contract with an attorney fee provision, the following rule may be distilled from the applicable cases: A party is entitled to recover its attorney fees pursuant to a contractual provision only when the party would have been liable for the fees of the opposing party if the opposing party had prevailed." Dell Merk, Inc. v. Franzia, 132 Cal.App.4th 443, 451 (Ct. App. 2005). The line of cases allowing recovery of attorneys' fees by nonsignatory defendants against whom plaintiffs sought liability based on the doctrine of alter ego has been developed under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). In Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson, 25 Cal.3d 124 (1979), the Supreme Court of California held that the mandate of reciprocity set forth in Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) ensured that, where a plaintiff sued a nonsignatory defendant to hold the defendant liable on the contract, and the defendant prevailed, the defendant could use an attorneys' fees provision from the signatory parties' agreement and mutuality provided by Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) to recover the defendant's attorneys' fees. Based on Reynolds, nonsignatory defendants have been allowed to recover attorneys' fees in accordance with Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) despite not being a party to the applicable contract and despite the attorneys' fees provisions within the applicable agreements being unilateral, i.e., allowing only the plaintiff to recover its attorneys' fees. See, e.g. Burkhalter Kessler Clement & George LLP v. Hamilton, 19 Cal.App.5th 38 (Ct. App. 2018).

Here, the Court has determined that Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) does not apply to this action; instead, the Court held that Defendant may recover his attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code §§ 1021 and 1032 and the attorneys' fees provision in the Agreement. Nevertheless, the Court may apply the reasoning of Reynolds to this case. The Agreement's attorneys' fees provision states:

In the event that Contractor prevails in any reference proceeding or court action arising out of this Agreement or the enforcement or breach thereof ... Subcontractor agrees to pay to Contractor reasonable attorneys' fees. In the event that Subcontractor prevails in any reference proceeding or court action arising out of this Agreement or the enforcement or breach thereof ... Contractor agrees to pay to Subcontractor reasonable attorneys' fees.

Agreement, ¶ 23. Based on this language, Plaintiff explicitly contracted for reciprocity as to liability for attorneys' fees. Had Plaintiff prevailed on its nondischargeability claim, because of the Alter Ego Judgment, Plaintiff would have been able to collect its award of attorneys' fees from Defendant. In fact, in the Adversary Complaint, Plaintiff requested an award of attorneys' fees; for a nondischargeability claim under § 523(a)(2)(A), Plaintiff's bases to obtain an award of attorneys' fees are the Agreement's attorneys' fees provision and the Alter Ego Judgment. Based on the authorities above, as a prevailing party, Defendant may receive an award of attorneys' fees under the Agreement.

Although Plaintiff now argues that the term "Contractor" is too vague to allow for Defendant's recovery of attorneys' fees, the Agreement explicitly provides T.O. the right to enforce any provision in the Agreement, including the attorneys' fees provision:

This Subcontract Agreement ("Agreement") is between Contractor and Subcontractor. Any references to "Owner" shall refer to T.O. IX, LLC. The Owner is an express third-party beneficiary to this Agreement. Owner has the right to enforce the provisions of this Agreement against Subcontractor.

Agreement, ¶ 1 (emphasis added). In light of this provision, Plaintiff agreed that T.O. would have the right to enforce any provision of the Agreement. Because the state court held that T.O. is an alter ego of Defendant, Defendant also has a right to enforce any provision of the Agreement. As such, Defendant is entitled to an award of attorneys' fees because: (A) Plaintiff contracted for reciprocity; (B) Plaintiff agreed that T.O. has the ability to enforce any provision in the Agreement; (C) the state trial court held, and the state appellate court affirmed, that T.O. is an alter ego of Defendant; and (D) had Plaintiff prevailed, Plaintiff would have been able to recover its attorneys' fees from Defendant.

Plaintiff does not provide any authority to the contrary. The only potentially related case cited by Plaintiff is Webber v. Inland Empire Investments, 74 Cal.App.4th 884 (Ct. App. 1999). However, Webber is inapposite. In Webber, the plaintiff was an assignee of a note and deed of trust encumbering four parcels owned by Forecast Mortgage Corporation ("Forecast"). Webber, 74 Cal.App.4th at 893. Forecast executed the note and deed of trust to finance the purchase of the parcels. Id. To help finance the purchase of the parcels, Forecast also obtained a second loan from Sanwa Bank ("Sanwa") and executed a deed of trust in favor of Sanwa. Id. The deed of trust in favor of Sanwa was recorded prior to the deed of trust in favor of plaintiff, and thus Sanwa's lien was senior to the plaintiff's lien. Id.

Subsequently, Forecast's owner, James P. Previti, transferred title from Forecast to another corporation controlled by Mr. Previti, All Cities Mini-Storage ("All Cities"). Id. Then, Mr. Previti used another corporation he controlled, Inland Empire Investments ("Inland"), to purchase the note from Sanwa. Id. Next, Mr. Previti caused Forecast to default on the note now held by Inland. Id. Finally, Mr. Previti caused Inland to foreclose on the property. Id. The effect of Inland's foreclosure was to eliminate the plaintiff's junior lien. Id. The trial court found that Mr. Previti's actions constituted a "sham foreclosure." Id.

The plaintiff sued Mr. Previti, Inland and other entities. Id., at 894. In relevant part, the plaintiff requested a declaration that his note and deed of trust continued to encumber the subject property by operation of the doctrine of after-acquired title. Id. As part of this argument, the plaintiff alleged that Inland was the alter ego of Forecast and the other defendants. Id. The plaintiff also asserted a cause of action for conspiracy to intentionally interfere with a contractual relationship. Id., at 895.

With respect to the doctrine of after-acquired title, the trial court found that the defendant entities were alter egos of each other. Id., at 897. "Notwithstanding the trial court's alter ego decision on the first cause of action," the trial court allowed the plaintiff to proceed on its conspiracy cause of action "despite the obvious fact that, if there was really only one defendant, Mr. Previti and his wholly owned corporations, there were no independent coconspirators." Id. "As a result of the trial court's decision to allow plaintiff to proceed on a conspiracy theory, no alter ego instructions were given to the jury. Instead, the trial court permitted an amendment to the [conspiracy cause of action] to delete the alter ego allegations which had been incorporated by reference into the [conspiracy cause of action]." Id. (emphasis added). The jury found in favor of the plaintiff and awarded the plaintiff monetary damages. Id., at 894. The trial court then allowed the plaintiff to elect its remedy: the plaintiff could accept a lien against the property based on the court's decision on the doctrine of after-acquired title and alter ego or, as an alternative, the plaintiff could accept the jury's monetary award on the conspiracy cause of action. Id. The plaintiff elected the jury's monetary award. Id.

The defendants appealed. Id., at 897. On appeal, the defendants argued, among other things, that the court's finding of alter ego related to the first cause of action precluded the jury's verdict of conspiracy because, if the defendants were all alter egos of one another, there could not be a conspiracy between different entities. Id., at 897-98. The appellate court framed the issue as follows:

It is apparent that, if the defendants are to be treated as one because they are all owned and controlled by Mr. Previti, the doctrine that a party cannot interfere with its own contract would apply, and there could be no conspiracy to interfere with the contract because there would not be separate parties to the conspiracy. The issue thus becomes whether, as defendants urge, judgment should be entered for defendants as a matter of law. In other words, defendants contend that the actions taken were orchestrated by Mr. Previti to protect his own economic interests in connection with a contract made by his own corporation.

Id., at 898. The appellate court relied in part on Shapoff v. Scull, 222 Cal.App.3d 1457 (Ct. App. 1990), in which case the defendants, including an individual named Christopher Boomis, were found to be alter egos of a development corporation called SERJ Corporation ("SERJ"). Shapoff, 222 Cal.App.3d at 1461-62. Subsequently, a jury returned a verdict that SERJ breached an agreement with the plaintiff as a result of the tortious interference of Mr. Boomis. Id. In a motion for a new trial, the defendants argued that, in light of the alter ego finding, Mr. Boomis could not be liable for interference with a contract because a party cannot interfere with its own contract. Id. In response to the new trial motion, "[t]he trial court... allowed plaintiff to elect between his claims against [Mr.] Boomis, and it deleted the alter ego finding from the judgment." Webber, 74 Cal.App.4th at 899 (citing Shapoff, 222 Cal.App.3d at 1461-62). The appellate court affirmed. Shapoff, 222 Cal.App.3d at 1470-71. Relying on Shapoff, the Webber court found:

Although, at first glance, the trial court's alter ego finding here appears to be inconsistent with the jury's finding that separate corporations conspired to interfere with the contract between Forecast Mortgage and Mr. Webber, we find no fatal inconsistency. In effect, the trial court allowed plaintiff to proceed on an alter ego theory as to the first cause of action, and an alternative conspiracy theory on the seventh cause of action. When some defendants lost on both causes of action, the trial court ordered plaintiff to elect his remedy.

Webber, 74 Cal.App.4th at 900. The Webber court believed this result was consistent with the general equitable principles behind alter ego liability. Id., at 900-01. To restate the equitable principles behind alter ego liability, Webber cited Communist Party v. Valencia, Inc., 35 Cal.App.4th 980 (Ct. App. 1995). In Communist Party, the plaintiff filed a lawsuit asking the court to find that the defendant corporations were alter egos of the plaintiff in an attempt to recover assets of the defendant corporations. Communist Party, 35 Cal.App.4th at 988-89. The appellate court found that the plaintiff, which previously treated the defendant corporations as separate legal entities, could not use the doctrine of alter ego as a fast track to obtaining control over the defendant corporations' assets. Id., at 993-95.

Using some of the general equitable considerations stated in Communist Party, the Webber court held:

Here, defendants are seeking to apply the alter ego doctrine as a sword to preclude liability or, as Mr. Webber puts it, a shield to protect them from conduct which would otherwise be tortious, even though defendants sought to use the separate corporations to eliminate plaintiff's junior lien through foreclosure. The trial court may well have thought that disregard of the corporate entity in this case would lead to an inequitable result, i.e., the rule that a contracting party cannot be liable for interfering with its own contract would become applicable. It therefore presumably found that the second requisite for application of the doctrine was not present; i.e., it did not find that failure to disregard the corporate entity would sanction a fraud or promote injustice. Since the court has considerable equitable discretion, we cannot say that it erred in failing to instruct the jury that the entities were all one entity. This is true even though the first requirement for application of the doctrine, a unity of ownership and interest, was clearly met.

We therefore conclude that since defendant's premise that there was necessarily only one defendant, Mr. Previti and his alter ego corporations, fails, the conclusion that there could be no conspiracy as a matter of law must also fail. Since the trial court was entitled to, and did, instruct the jury on conspiracy liability, the jury was authorized to find that at least two of the corporations conspired with each other to engage in a sham foreclosure to eliminate Mr. Webber's junior lien.

Webber, 74 Cal.App.4th at 901 (emphases added). As such, in Webber, the appellate court blessed the trial court's decision not to proceed with alter ego liability because alter ego liability would lead to an inequitable result, thus failing to satisfy the second element of alter ego liability. Neither the trial court nor the appellate court in Webber held that the plaintiff could avail itself of both the alter ego finding and the jury verdict awarding the plaintiff money on a claim of conspiracy.

The facts here are not analogous to the facts in Webber or Communist Party. Here, the state court found alter ego liability, thereby holding Defendant liable for breach of contract damages and for payment of Plaintiff's related attorneys' fees. Unlike Webber, the state court has not found that alter ego liability would lead to an inequitable result. Furthermore, an appellate court has upheld that finding of alter ego liability.

Because the state court determined that Defendant would be properly treated as an alter ego of T.O., Plaintiff became entitled to recover its breach of contract damages, and related attorneys' fees, from Defendant. As this Court previously noted, Plaintiff's judgment for breach of contract damages and attorneys' fees against Defendant (and others) has been paid in full. Moreover, during the course of this adversary proceeding, Plaintiff continued to refer to Defendant as a party to the Agreement.

Under Webber, it appears plaintiffs are allowed to plead alternative theories, some of which may rely on the doctrine of alter ego and others which require a finding that the defendants are separate and distinct entities, and, if they are successful on all counts, elect the remedy they prefer. If a plaintiff's chosen remedy is based on a claim that would not survive if the trial court found alter ego liability, and the trial court believes it would not be equitable to prevent plaintiff from recovering damages under its chosen theory, the trial court may subsequently find that the second element of alter ego liability is not met.

Webber does not stand for the proposition that plaintiffs who obtain an alter ego determination, and who rely on that determination to impose liability, may subsequently shield themselves from that decision to avoid application of a contractual attorneys' fees provision. On the contrary, Reynolds and its progeny, under comparable circumstances, allow nonsignatory defendants to collect attorneys' fees. See, e.g. Burkhalter Kessler, 19 Cal.App.5th at 46 n.2 ("This case raises an interesting tactical issue: whether a plaintiff should plead an alter ego defendant in the initial complaint (and risk a dismissal with prejudice and possible payment of attorney fees); or should a plaintiff hold off and later seek to amend a prevailing judgment. We take no position on the tactical choice, though we do recollect Ralph Waldo Emerson's cautionary note that: 'When you strike at a king, you must kill him.'").

The Court concludes that there is no equitable basis to bar Defendant's recovery of attorneys' fees, under the Agreement. Once again, Plaintiff has already recovered its breach of contract damages, including attorneys' fees incurred during the state court litigation. Following the payment in full of that award, Plaintiff pursued a claim of nondischargeability under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). To defend against Plaintiff's § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, Defendant incurred his own attorneys' fees and costs. Consequently, when assessing Defendant's right to payment of his attorneys' fees, the Court will not shield Plaintiff from the Alter Ego Judgment, which treats Defendant as a party to the Agreement.

C. Plaintiff is Judicially Estopped from Arguing that Defendant is Not a Party to the Agreement

According to the Supreme Court of the United States—

Where a party assumes a certain position in a legal proceeding, and succeeds in maintaining that position, he may not thereafter, simply because his interests have changed, assume a contrary position, especially if it be to the prejudice of the party who has acquiesced in the position formerly taken by him. This rule, known as judicial estoppel, generally prevents a party from prevailing in one phase of a case on an argument and then relying on a contradictory argument to prevail in another phase.

Although we have not had occasion to discuss the doctrine elaborately, other courts have uniformly recognized that its purpose is to protect the integrity of the judicial process, by prohibiting parties from deliberately changing positions according to the exigencies of the moment.

"The doctrine extends to incompatible statements and positions in different cases." In re Associated Vintage Grp., Inc., 283 B.R. 549, 566 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2002) (citing to Risetto v. Plumbers & Steamfitters Local 343, 94 F.3d 597, 605 (9th Cir. 1996)). Courts consider the following factors when applying the doctrine of judicial estoppel:

First, a party's later position must be clearly inconsistent with its earlier position. Second, courts regularly inquire whether the party has succeeded in persuading a court to accept that party's earlier position, so that judicial acceptance of an inconsistent position in a later proceeding would create the perception that either the first or the second court was misled. Absent success in a prior proceeding, a party's later inconsistent position introduces no risk of inconsistent court determinations, and thus poses little threat to judicial integrity. A third consideration is whether the party seeking to assert an inconsistent position would derive an unfair advantage or impose an unfair detriment on the opposing party if not estopped. In enumerating these factors, we do not establish inflexible prerequisites or an exhaustive formula for determining the applicability of judicial estoppel. Additional considerations may inform the doctrine's application in specific factual contexts.

New Hampshire, 523 U.S. at 750-51 (internal quotations omitted).

Here, Plaintiff repeatedly contended that Defendant is a party to the Agreement and that Defendant is an alter ego of several entities, including T.O. Plaintiff succeeded in persuading the state court of its position: consequently, the state court held Defendant responsible for breach of contract damages arising from the Agreement, and for payment of Plaintiff's attorneys' fees pursuant to the Agreement's applicable provisions. Plaintiff's prior position that Defendant is a party to the Agreement (and consequently liable for breach of contract damages and Plaintiff's related attorneys' fees) is inconsistent with Plaintiff's current position that Defendant is not a party to the Agreement and thus may not receive an award of attorneys' fees, under the Agreement.

Finally, Plaintiff would derive an unfair advantage if Plaintiff were allowed to maintain its inconsistent position. Plaintiff, having obtained a holding that Defendant is liable for breach of the Agreement and for the payment of Plaintiff's attorney's fees (in accordance with the Agreement), may not avoid the consequences of the same contractual provisions when Defendant constitutes the prevailing party (for the reasons discussed in the Court's earlier ruling). As a result, Plaintiff is judicially estopped from arguing that Defendant cannot avail himself of the attorneys' fee provision in the Agreement.

D. B&P § 7031 Does Not Bar Defendant's Recovery of Attorneys' Fees

Pursuant to B&P § 7031—

- (a) Except as provided in subdivision (e), no person engaged in the business or acting in the capacity of a contractor, may bring or maintain any action, or recover in law or equity in any action, in any court of this state for the collection of compensation for the performance of any act or contract where a license is required by this chapter without alleging that he or she was a duly licensed contractor at all times during the performance of that act or contract regardless of the merits of the cause of action brought by the person, except that this prohibition shall not apply to contractors who are each individually licensed under this chapter but who fail to comply with Section 7029.
- (b) Except as provided in subdivision (e), a person who utilizes the services of an unlicensed contractor may bring an action in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state to recover all compensation paid to the unlicensed contractor for performance of any act or contract.

B&P § 7031(a), (b) (emphases added). B&P § 7031 plainly is not applicable to the facts here. Defendant is not attempting to recover compensation for work he performed as a contractor. Defendant is attempting to recover attorneys' fees he has incurred in defending Plaintiff's claim of nondischargeability against Defendant. Moreover, Defendant himself is a licensed contractor.

The single case cited by Plaintiff does not state otherwise. In MW Erectors, Inc. v. Niederhauser Ornamental & Metal Works Co., 36 Cal.4th 412 (2005), a subcontractor sued a contractor for breach of contract for work the subcontractor performed for the contractor, and the contractor used B&P § 7031 as a defense by asserting that the subcontractor was not properly licensed when the subcontractor performed the work. See also Hydrotech Sys., Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark, 52 Cal.3d 988, 992 (1991) (holding that unlicensed contractor cannot receive compensation for its services under B&P § 7031). ### III. CONCLUSION

The Court will adopt its prior tentative ruling, as modified below. The Court will incorporate this tentative ruling into its prior tentative ruling.

Defendant must submit a declaration attaching an itemized statement of the fees incurred during the nondischargeability portion of this matter no later than October 31, 2018. Plaintiff may respond to the declaration only as to the reasonableness of Defendant's incurred fees and costs no later than November 7, 2018. The Court will continue this hearing to 2:30 p.m. on November 21, 2018.

In the event that Subcontractor prevails in any reference proceeding or court action arising out of this Agreement or the enforcement or breach thereof, or in any action brought against Contractor by third parties in which Subcontractor is joined as a party or interpleads, whether the same proceeds to judgment or not, Contractor agrees to pay to Subcontractor reasonable attorneys' fees. The parties' covenants set forth in this Paragraph 23 shall survive and be enforceable following termination of this Agreement.

Agreement, ¶ 23.

On September 29, 2005, after T.O. did not pay Plaintiff for all of Plaintiff's work on a project, Plaintiff sued T.O., Darin Davis ("Defendant") and others in state court (the "State Court Action"). See Court's Decision [doc. 219], p. 7. In the State Court Action, Plaintiff asserted breach of contract, foreclosure on a mechanic's lien, fraud, conspiracy and quantum meruit. Id.

The trial court trifurcated the State Court Action into three trial phases, with the first phase involving Plaintiff's causes of action for breach of contract, foreclosure on a mechanic's lien and quantum meruit. Id. On October 29, 2010, after a bench trial, the state court entered an interlocutory judgment as to the first phase (the "Phase One Judgment"). Id. After entry of the Phase One Judgment, Plaintiff filed a motion for an award of attorneys' fees, and the trial court awarded Plaintiff $1.65 million in attorneys' fees. Id., p. 8. An appellate court subsequently upheld the trial court's award of fees. Id.

The second phase of the State Court Action involved Plaintiff's alter ego claims. Id. On December 23, 2011, the state court issued a statement of decision after phase two of trial (the "Phase Two Decision"). Id. In the Phase Two Decision, the state court found that T.O., among other entities, was an alter ego of Defendant. Id. As a result, the state court held that the liability of the Phase One Judgment and the award of attorneys' fees, as well as any other or future orders awarding damages, punitive damages, attorneys' fees and/or costs to Plaintiff against T.O. would be extended to Defendant, among others. Id. An appellate court also upheld the Phase Two Decision.

On June 26, 2013, Plaintiff filed an Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment (the "Satisfaction of Judgment") in state court. Id. Through the Satisfaction of Judgment and the stipulation attached thereto, Plaintiff acknowledged that the Phase One Judgment and any attorneys' fees awarded to date had been paid in full. Id.

On June 15, 2010, Defendant filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On August 16, 2010, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendant (the "Complaint"), objecting to Defendant's discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2) and (a)(4) and requesting nondischargeability of any debt owed to it pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). In the Complaint, Plaintiff alleged:

Defendant falsely represented that he intended to act as a licensed general contractor for a proposed building project in Thousand Oaks. Defendant also falsely represented that he and various unlicensed entities he owned or controlled were "owner/builders" of the proposed building project, rather than licensed general contractors. From 2003 until 2005, Defendant and the unlicensed entities proceed to construct the subject real property. Defendant knew that, under California law, only a properly licensed general contractor could construct, or contract with other to construct, the subject real property.

In 2004, Defendant and entities he owned and controlled knowingly entered into the Agreement with Plaintiff for labor, materials and services without disclosing that Defendant and the entities he owned and controlled were unlicensed contractors and without disclosing that the construction engineering, surveying, plans and drawings provided to Plaintiff were based on an inaccurate and incomplete 40-year-old "as built" survey. Because of the incomplete and inaccurate information provided to Plaintiff, Plaintiff was unable to construct a portion of the curbs, gutters and public roadways at the subject real property.

Rather than disclose the truth about the survey, Defendant (a) intentionally terminated the Agreement; (b) refused to pay Plaintiff for past due labor, materials and services provided to date; (c) refused to pay Plaintiff the agreed upon amount in the Agreement; (d) engaged the services of other sub-contractors to remove and replace the portion of the curbs, gutters and public roadways that Plaintiff could not construct; and (e) back-charged Plaintiff for an amount in excess of the cost Defendant incurred to construct the improvements.

Had Defendant disclosed that the subject real property was constructed in violation of California law or that the plans provided to Plaintiff were inaccurate or incomplete, Plaintiff would not have entered into the Agreement. Through Defendant's express and implied representations, Defendant was able to deceive Plaintiff into entering into the Agreement with T.O. As a result, Plaintiff requests a nondischargeable judgment against Defendant in the amount of $1 million plus interest accrued on said amount to the date of payment, plus the costs of this proceeding and attorney's fees incurred by Plaintiff in this adversary proceeding.

Complaint, pp. 2-11. Aside from these allegations, the Complaint also included allegations that Defendant did not accurately complete his bankruptcy schedules and statements and that, as a result, Defendant should be denied a discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2) and (a)(4). Complaint, pp. 7-10. On September 17, 2010, Defendant filed an answer to the Complaint (the "Answer") [doc. 3]. In the Answer, Defendant asserted the following affirmative defenses: (a) Failure to State a Claim; (b) Statutes of Limitations; (c) that Plaintiff's own negligent acts or omissions led to any damage suffered by Plaintiff; (d) that third parties caused any damage to Plaintiff; (e) Waiver; (f) Estoppel; (g) Consent; and (h) Laches.

The Court bifurcated this proceeding, such that the Court first heard Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 727. On December 23, 2014, the Court entered judgment in favor of Defendant on Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 727 [doc. 113]. The Court initially stayed the 11 U.S.C. § 523 portion of this adversary proceeding to await conclusion of the State Court Action. On April 19, 2017, nearly seven years after Defendant filed his chapter 7 petition, Plaintiff and Defendant appeared for a status conference. At that time, the Court informed the parties that it would no longer delay prosecution of this adversary proceeding until the State Court Action was resolved.

On August 31, 2017, the parties filed a joint pretrial stipulation (the "JPS") [doc. 140]. In the JPS, the parties agreed that the Court would try the following issues of law:

- (b) Whether or not, as a result of the intentionally false and misleading representations of Defendant, Plaintiff's Claim in the amount of $1,130,951.42 is allowed and nondischargeable.
- (c) Whether Defendant had a legal duty to disclose to Plaintiff that T.O. was not a California licensed general contractor.
- (d) Whether Defendant had a legal duty to disclose to Plaintiff that entities in control of the subject project were not licensed general contractors.
- (e) Whether Defendant had a legal duty to disclose to Plaintiff the age of any plans given to Plaintiff.
- (f) Whether Defendant had a legal duty to disclose whether any plans given to Plaintiff were inaccurate.

MSJ") [doc. 165]. On the same day, Defendant filed a motion for summary judgment ("Defendant's MSJ") [doc. 162]. On February 28, 2018, the Court entered an order granting summary adjudication in favor of Plaintiff only on the following issue: that nondisclosure of T.O.'s status as an unlicensed entity would be material (the "MSJ Order") [doc. 208]. The Court otherwise denied both Plaintiff's MSJ and Defendant's MSJ.

On February 6, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the JPS (the "Pretrial Order") [doc. 203]. In the Pretrial Order, the Court noted that "[i]n addition to determining, based on 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), the nondischargeability of any debt owed by [Defendant] to [Plaintiff], this Court also will determine the amount of any nondischargeable debt payable to [Plaintiff], i.e., any damages arising from fraud." Pretrial Order, p. 2 (emphasis in Pretrial Order).

On April 23 and 24, 2018, the Court held trial on Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). At trial, the Court made several findings regarding the Agreement, including findings regarding how T.O. was characterized in the Agreement, how certain terms were defined, which contractor's license number was included in the Agreement, the nature of oral communications between the parties regarding licensure at the time the parties entered into the Agreement and the review of the as-built survey provided with the Agreement. Court's Decision, pp. 3-5. Plaintiff testified at trial that it would not have entered into the Agreement had Plaintiff known about T.O.'s license status or the age of the as-built survey. Id., p. 17.

On June 13, 2018, the Court issued a decision after trial (the "Court's Decision") [doc. 219]. In the Court's Decision, the Court held that Plaintiff did not establish that Defendant made oral or written representations to Plaintiff regarding T.O.'s license status or the age of the as-built survey before the parties entered into the Agreement. Court's Decision, p. 14. The Court also held that any omission by Defendant regarding the license status of T.O. or the age of the as-built survey was not fraudulent. Id.

On June 29, 2018, Defendant filed a motion requesting attorneys' fees and costs pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and/or Cal. Code of Civ. Proc. ("CCP") §§ 1021 and 1032 (the "Motion") [doc. 228]. ## II. ANALYSIS

In federal courts, there is generally no right to attorney's fees unless authorized by contract or by statute. See Alyeska Pipeline Serv. Co. v. Wilderness Soc'y, 421 U.S. 240, 257, 95 S.Ct. 1612, 1621, 44 L.Ed.2d 141 (1975) ("Other recent cases have also reaffirmed the general rule that, absent statute or enforceable contract, litigants pay their own attorneys' fees."). In Cohen v. de la Cruz, 523 U.S. 213, 218–20, 118 S.Ct. 1212, 1216–17, 140 L.Ed.2d 341 (1998), the Supreme Court of the United States interpreted the discharge exceptions under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4), (a)(6), and (a)(9) to encompass all liability arising on account of a debtor's fraudulent conduct, including attorneys' fees and costs to which the creditors were entitled under state law. As such, "the determinative question for awarding attorney's fees is whether the creditor would be able to recover the fee outside of bankruptcy under state or federal law." In re Hung Tan Pham, 250 B.R. 93, 99 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2000). Here, Defendant cites Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and CCP §§ 1021 and 1032 as the operative state statutes.

A. Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a)

Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a)—

In any action on a contract, where the contract specifically provides that attorney's fees and costs, which are incurred to enforce that contract, shall be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party, then the party who is determined to be the party prevailing on the contract, whether he or she is the party specified in the contract or not, shall be entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs.

"Civil Code § 1717 makes an otherwise unilateral contractual obligation to pay attorney's fees into a reciprocal one in an action on the contract but Civil Code § 1717 is not applicable in a tort action." In re Bic Pho, 2016 WL 1620375, at *3 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Apr. 20, 2016); see also Santisas v. Goodin, 17 Cal.4th 599, 615 (1998)

(finding that § 1717 applies only to fees incurred to litigate contract claims); and In re Deuel, 482 B.R. 323, 328 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 2012) (same).

To obtain fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a), "[t]hree conditions must be met...." In re Penrod, 802 F.3d 1084, 1087 (9th Cir. 2015).

First, the action in which the fees are incurred must be an action "on a contract," a phrase that is liberally construed. Second, the contract must contain a provision stating that attorney's fees incurred to enforce the contract shall be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party. And third, the party seeking fees must be the party who "prevail[ed] on the contract," meaning (with exceptions not relevant here) "the party who recovered a greater relief in the action on the contract." Cal. Civ.Code § 1717(b)(1).

Id., at 1087-88 (internal citation omitted). "Under California law, an action is 'on a contract' when a party seeks to enforce, or avoid enforcement of, the provisions of the contract." Id., at 1088.

Although past interpretations of the phrase "action on a contract" have been murky, two recent decisions by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals shed some light on which disputes fall within the purview of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). In Penrod, prepetition, the debtor and a lender entered into an installment sale contract when the debtor purchased a vehicle. Penrod, 802 F.3d at 1086. The contract granted the lender a security interest in the vehicle. Id. The debtor then filed a chapter 13 petition and, in her proposed chapter 13 plan, bifurcated the lender's claim into a secured claim in the amount of $16,000 and an unsecured claim in the amount of $10,000. Id. The lender objected to the proposed chapter 13 plan, arguing that its entire claim should be treated as secured in accordance with the "hanging paragraph" below 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(9), which prohibits bifurcation of claims that are secured by a "purchase money security interest" in a vehicle. Id. Eventually, the bankruptcy court decided that the lender was entitled to a $19,000 secured claim and a $7,000 unsecured claim. Id., at 1087. After an appeal by the lender, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") affirmed the bankruptcy court's ruling. Id.

The debtor then filed a motion to recover attorneys' fees she incurred opposing the lender's objection to confirmation of her chapter 13 plan. Id. The debtor relied on a provision in the installment sale contract which read, "You will pay our reasonable costs to collect what you owe, including attorney fees, court costs, collection agency fees, and fees paid for other reasonable collection efforts." Id. Pursuant to this language, the debtor argued she was entitled to attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id. The bankruptcy court disagreed, holding that the action was not an action "on a contract" because the action at issue in Penrod turned on a question of federal bankruptcy law. Id. The district court affirmed the bankruptcy court. Id. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals disagreed, explaining that:

[The lender] sought to enforce the provisions of its contract with [the debtor] when it objected to confirmation of her proposed Chapter 13 plan. The plan treated [the lender's] claim as only partially secured, but [the lender] insisted that it was entitled to have its claim treated as fully secured. The only possible source of that asserted right was the contract—in particular, the provision in which [the debtor] granted a security interest in her Taurus to secure "payment of all you owe on this contract." (Had the contract not granted [the lender] a security interest in the car, [the lender] could not have asserted a secured claim for any amount. See 11 U.S.C. § 506(a).) The security interest conveyed by the contract covered not just the funds [the debtor] borrowed to pay for the Taurus, but also the funds she borrowed to refinance the negative equity in the Explorer. The sole issue in the hanging-paragraph litigation was whether this provision of the contract should be enforced according to its terms, or whether its enforceability was limited by bankruptcy law to exclude the negative-equity portion of the loan. See In re Penrod, 611 F.3d at 1159–61 & n. 2. By prevailing in that litigation, [the debtor] obtained a ruling that precluded [the lender] from fully enforcing the terms of the contract.

Id., at 1088. On this analysis, the Court of Appeals believed the objection to the debtor's confirmation of her chapter 13 plan qualified as an "action on a contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id.

The Court of Appeals believed the bankruptcy court's and district court's interpretation of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) was too narrow. Id. Those courts had concluded that Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) "applies only if the party defeats enforcement under non-bankruptcy law" and, because the debtor had prevailed under bankruptcy law, Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) did not apply. Id. The Court of Appeals held that California law did not prescribe any such limitation to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id., at 1089.

After Penrod, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals issued a decision further clarifying the boundaries of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Bos v. Bd. of Trustees, 818 F.3d 486 (9th Cir. 2016). In Bos, the debtor was an employer obligated to make payments to certain employee pension funds administered by the Board of Trustees in accordance with trust agreements. Id., at 488. The debtor failed to make the requirement payments and, as a result, signed a promissory note agreeing to make monthly contributions to the funds and personally guaranteeing the payments. Id. The debtor was unable to make these payments. Id. As such, after the Board of Trustees sued the debtor, an arbitrator ruled the debtor had violated the agreements and a California Superior Court confirmed the arbitration award in a judgment. Id.

Around this time, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition. Id. Subsequently, the Board of Trustees filed an adversary proceeding requesting nondischargeability of the judgment pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4). Id. The bankruptcy court held that the judgment was nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) because the debtor was a fiduciary under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA"). Id., at 489. The district court affirmed. Id. On appeal, the Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the debtor was not a fiduciary under ERISA and that 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) did not apply to the debtor. Id. The debtor then moved to recover attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and, alternatively, under ERISA. Id.

The Court of Appeals first referenced several prior decisions by the BAP and California courts:

The California Supreme Court has explained that "section 1717 applies only to actions that contain at least one contract claim," and that "[i]f an action asserts both contract and tort or other noncontract claims, section 1717 applies only to attorney fees incurred to litigate the contract claims." Santisas, 17 Cal.4th at 615, 71 Cal.Rptr.2d 830, 951 P.2d 399. Consistent with Santisas, we have previously held that a nondischargeability action is "on a contract" within section 1717 if "the bankruptcy court needed to determine the enforceability of the ... agreement to determine dischargeability." In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir.1997).

The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit has held that Santisas and relevant Ninth Circuit cases establish not just a rule of inclusion, but also a rule of exclusion: that "if the bankruptcy court did not need to determine whether the contract was enforceable, then the dischargeability claim is not an action on the contract within the meaning of [California Civil Code] § 1717." In re Davison, 289 B.R. 716, 723 (9th Cir. BAP 2003) (emphasis added).

Id. The court then explicitly adopted the BAP's interpretation of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717, noting that the construction "accords with the common sense meaning of the phrase 'on a contract' and finds ample support in our precedents." Id., at 490. The Bos court then cited three prior decisions by the Court of Appeals that supported the BAP's interpretation above. Id.

First, the Court of Appeals cited In re Johnson, 756 F.2d 738 (9th Cir. 1985), for the proposition that an action is not an action "on a contract" if "the action neither litigated the validity of the contract nor required the bankruptcy court to consider 'the state law governing contractual relationships.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (citing Johnson, 756 F.2d at 740). "More broadly, [the Court of Appeals] instructed that when federal and not state law governs the substantive issues involved in the adversary proceeding, [the court] may not award attorney's fees pursuant to a state statute." Id. (citing Johnson, 756 F.2d at 741).

Next, the court cited In re Fulwiler, 624 F.2d 908 (9th Cir. 1980), where the Court of Appeals had held that a nondischargeability action in bankruptcy was not "on a contract" under an Oregon fee-shifting statute identical to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. "The reason, we later explained, was that 'the bankruptcy court did not adjudicate the validity of the note in determining whether the debt was dischargeable,' and so the note was merely 'collateral to the non-dischargeability proceeding.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (citing In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir. 1997) (citing Fulwiler, 524 F.2d at 909-10)).

Finally, the Court of Appeals referenced In re Hashemi, 104 F.3d 1122 (9th Cir. 1996), where the court relied on Baroff and held that "a creditor's 'dischargeability claim [was] not an action on the contract,' within the meaning of the contract itself, because 'the bankruptcy court did not need to determine the enforceability of the ... agreement to determine dischargeability.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (quoting Hashemi, 104 F.3d at 1126).

Based on these authorities, the Bos court explained:

In light of our precedents, we are persuaded that the action underlying Bos's fee request—the nondischargeability proceeding that began in bankruptcy court—was not an action "on a contract" within the meaning of section 1717. As the parties agree, "[t]here was no 'breach of contract' claim in the Trust Funds' adversary complaint." The nondischargeability proceeding arose entirely under the federal Bankruptcy Code, and in no way required the bankruptcy court to determine whether or to what extent the Trust Agreements or the Note were enforceable against Bos, or whether Bos had violated their terms. Those questions had been answered in arbitration, and confirmed by a State Court; indeed, in the nondischargeability action Bos conceded that such contracts were valid and that he had breached them. The litigation from that point forward asked only whether federal bankruptcy law forbade Bos from discharging the debts everyone agreed he owed to the Funds. Such litigation is collateral to a contract rather than "on a contract," and as a consequence Bos may not use section 1717 to recover the fees he incurred in pursuing it.

Id. The Bos court also found that Penrod did not change the analysis and distinguished Penrod on the basis that, in Penrod, the central question presented to the court was whether the court should enforce a provision in the parties' agreement or whether the debtor could avoid enforcement in accordance with the Bankruptcy Code. Id., at 490-91. In Bos, the nondischargeability issue did not present any issues regarding the validity or enforceability of the subject agreement. Id., at 491.

After Bos, a bankruptcy court within the Ninth Circuit addressed the issue of whether a nondischargeability action under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) may be considered an action "on a contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. In re Zarate, 567 B.R. 176 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2017). In Zarate, creditors initiated an adversary proceeding against the debtors alleging that the debtors "'misrepresented facts, concealed and failed to disclose' material facts in order to induce plaintiffs to enter into the" subject agreement. Id., at 181. The creditors requested damages in the amount of $1.34 million plus prejudgment interest, contractual attorneys' fees and costs. Id. Subsequently, the court entered a stipulated judgment through which the debtors agreed to a nondischargeable judgment in the amount of $831,018.31. Id. The creditors then filed a motion for an award of attorneys' fees based on the parties' contract, which included a provision that stated: "In event suit is brought or an attorney is retained by any party to this Agreement to enforce the terms of this Agreement or to collect any moneys due hereunder, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover reimbursement for reasonable attorneys' fees, court costs, costs of investigation and other related expenses incurred in connection therewith." Id., at 181-83.

The Zarate court first noted that "under established California law, a tort claim does not 'enforce' a contract." Id., at 184 (citing Stout v. Turney, 22 Cal.3d 718, 730 (1978); and Santisas v. Goodin, 17 Cal.4th 599, 615 (1998)). Next, the court found that "the dischargeability of a debt under § 523(a)(2)(A) resolves a tort claim." Id. (citing In re Candland, 90 F.3d 1466, 1470 (9th Cir. 1996)). The court did not find persuasive the plaintiffs' arguments that the nondischargeability action could be interpreted as one "on the contract." Id. The court held that, unlike cases like Penrod, the court did not have to assess the enforceability of the subject agreement in Zarate:

Here, whether the APA or the 2009 Agreement were enforceable was never a question and the interpretation of these agreements was never an issue. Based on the above, this was not an action on a contract. The APA and the 2009 Agreement provided the context out of which this dispute arose, but this was not an action on a contract. Civil Code § 1717 does not provide a basis to award attorney's fees.

Id., at 185. See also In re Fulwiler, 624 F.2d 908 (9th Cir. 1980) (holding that the action was not "on the contract" where the bankruptcy court "did not adjudicate the validity of the note in determining whether the debt was dischargeable" and instead determined "that the debtors obtained the loan evidenced by the note through fraud");

cf. In re Arciniega, 2016 WL 455428 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Feb. 3, 2016) (where the debtor used the subject agreement to support her defense and the bankruptcy court had to interpret a disputed phrase in the agreement in connection with an action under § 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(6), the action was "on a contract"); and In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir. 1997) (finding an action was "on a contract" where "the bankruptcy court needed to determine the enforceability of the settlement agreement to determine dischargeability").

Here, as in Bos, the contract issues were previously decided by the state court, as set forth in the Phase One Judgment. This Court was presented with one issue: whether Defendant committed fraud in connection with the execution of the Agreement. To adjudicate this issue, the Court did not need to assess the validity or enforceability of any provision in the Agreement. Neither Plaintiff nor Defendant disputed any provision in the Agreement during the course of this adversary proceeding; the Complaint focused on representations and omissions allegedly made by Defendant in connection with entering into the Agreement but did not dispute the validity of the Agreement. The Answer also did not raise any affirmative defenses that called into question any provision in the Agreement. As such, this case is more similar to Bos, Zarate and Fulwiler, and is easily distinguishable from the contract enforcement issues presented to the Arciniega and Baroff courts.

Although, unlike Bos, where the state court had liquidated all damages prior to the dischargeability action, Plaintiff did request this Court to liquidate the fraud damages on top of determining dischargeability of the debt, liquidation of damages did not prevent the Zarate court from holding that the action was a tort action, not one "on a contract." In fact, that Plaintiff requested monetary damages as opposed to, for example, rescission of the Agreement strengthens the Court's finding that this action was not an action "on a contract." In Hardisty v. Moore, 2015 WL 6671557 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 2, 2015), the court noted that, under California law, "[f]raud (in the form of intentional misrepresentation) may provide a basis for a remedy in either a tort action or in a contract action." Hardisty, 2015 WL 6671557 at *3 (quoting Star Pac. Invs., Inc. v. Oro Hills Ranch, Inc., 121 Cal.App.3d 447, 461 (Ct. App. 1981)). The court continued:

When a plaintiff contracts in reliance upon the fraud of a defendant, the plaintiff "may elect either the contract remedy, consisting of restitution based on rescission or the tort remedy, by affirming the contract and seeking damages." Id. Thus, "where the plaintiff's claim ... seeks rescission based on fraud, the courts have concluded such claim does sound in contract and permits the award of fees," Super 7 Motel Assocs., 16 Cal.App.4th at 549, 20 Cal.Rptr.2d 193, but where a plaintiff seeks money damages for the fraud, courts have concluded such a claim does not sound in contract and no fee award is permitted, In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 443 (9th Cir.1997). "An action to avoid or rescind an agreement because of fraudulent inducement ... is an action on a contract within the meaning of section 1717." In re Baroff, 105 F.3d at 443 (citing Star Pac. Invs., Inc., 121 Cal.App.3d at 461, 176 Cal.Rptr. 546); see also In re Penrod, — F.3d —, 2015 WL 5730425, at *3 (an action is "on a contract" when a party seeks to "avoid enforcement" of the provisions of the contract); Exxess Electronixx v. Heger Realty Corp., 64 Cal.App.4th 698, 710–11, 75 Cal.Rptr.2d 376 (1998) (an action "that seeks to establish the parties' rights under a contract is an action sounding in contract").

Id. Here, Plaintiff never requested rescission of the Agreement based on fraud. Rather, at all times, Plaintiff requested monetary damages. Given that this Court did not adjudicate any enforcement or validity issues related to the Agreement, and because Plaintiff requested tort damages, this action is not an action "on the contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717.

B. CCP §§ 1021 and 1032

Although Defendant is not entitled to attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717, Defendant is entitled to attorneys' fees through CCP § 1021 based on the language in the Agreement. Pursuant to CCP § 1021—

Except as attorney's fees are specifically provided for by statute, the measure and mode of compensation of attorneys and counselors at law is left to the agreement, express or implied, of the parties; but parties to actions or proceedings are entitled to their costs, as hereinafter provided.

Pursuant to CCP § 1032(b)—

Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, a prevailing party is entitled as a matter of right to recover costs in any action or proceeding.

Under CCP § 1033.5(a), the following items are allowable as costs pursuant to § 1032:

(10) Attorney's fees, when authorized by any of the following:

- (A) Contract.
- (B) Statute.
- (C) Law.

CCP "§ 1032(b) entitles a 'prevailing party' to 'recover costs' as a matter of right 'in any action or proceeding.' Costs may include attorney's fees when authorized by contract, even when the action is not 'on a contract.'" In re Mac-Go Corp., 541 B.R. 706, 715 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2015) (citing CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)).

i. The Language of the Agreement

Here, the relevant provision in the Agreement states: "In the event that Contractor prevails in any reference proceeding or court action arising out of this Agreement or the enforcement or breach thereof...whether the same proceeds to judgment or not, Subcontractor agrees to pay to Contractor reasonable attorneys' fees." Agreement, ¶ 23 (emphasis added). If this language encompasses tort actions as well as contract actions, then Defendant, as the prevailing party (discussed below), is entitled to collect reasonable attorneys' fees from Plaintiff.

Several California courts have held that the phrase "arising out of" is broad enough to encompass both tort and contract actions. In Xuereb v. Marcus & Millichap, Inc., 3 Cal.App.4th 1338, 1341 (Ct. App. 1992), the plaintiffs filed suit against the defendants, alleging negligence, products liability, fraud and misrepresentation and breach of contract. Xuereb, 3 Cal.App.4th at 1341. The allegations in the complaint involved a real estate purchase agreement through which the defendants, a real estate broker and real estate agent, sold real estate to the plaintiffs. Id., at 1340. In relevant part, the plaintiffs alleged that the defendants omitted information or made misstatements prior to the execution of the purchase agreement. Id., at 1343. The purchase agreement included the following attorneys' fees provision: "Attorneys' Fees: If this Agreement gives rise to a lawsuit or other legal proceeding between any of the parties hereto, including Agent, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover actual court costs and reasonable attorneys' fees in addition to any other relief to which such party may be entitled." Id.

Eventually, the action went to trial on the theories of negligence, breach of fiduciary duty, concealment and misrepresentation, but not on breach of contract. Id., at 1341. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs, who then moved for an award of attorneys' fees pursuant to the purchase agreement. Id. The trial court denied the plaintiffs' motion, holding that the plaintiffs were not entitled to attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. Id. The plaintiffs appealed. Id.

On appeal, the California appellate court first noted that Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 did not govern the issue of attorneys' fees because the action was not an action "on a contract" as required by Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. Id., at 1342. Instead, the court found that the relevant statute was CCP § 1021, which allows for an award of attorneys' fees in tort actions if the language in the parties' agreement is broad enough to provide for such an award. Id. In assessing the language of the attorneys' fees provision in the purchase agreement, the court was faced with facts significantly analogous to the facts before the Court:

The critical question, under the language of the parties' attorney fees agreement, is whether respondents' lawsuit arose from the Purchase Agreement. Appellants argue that the phrase "[i]f this Agreement gives rise to a lawsuit or other legal proceeding" (our italics) must be interpreted in a transactional sense; that is, in the sense that the litigation has arisen from the entirety of the circumstances of the real estate transaction of which the Purchase Agreement was the defining statement. Respondents, on the other hand, contend that their dispute with appellants cannot be said to have arisen from the Purchase Agreement, because the alleged actions, omissions, or misstatements with which that dispute was concerned, all occurred prior to the execution of the Purchase Agreement. In short, respondents focus on the chronology of the events in relation to the actual execution of the Purchase Agreement, while appellants more broadly address the entire transaction, of which the Purchase Agreement was the written memorandum.

Id. The court held that the action could properly be regarded "as having arisen from" the purchase agreement even under the defendants' narrower interpretation of the language, because the purchase agreement provided for certain inspections after the signing of the agreement, which inspections were allegedly deficient and partly formed the basis of the plaintiffs' lawsuit against the defendants. Id., at 1343-44. However, the court held that the plaintiffs' broader interpretation of the language was accurate:

In any case, we must apply the rule that words in a contract are to be understood in their usual sense. (Civ. Code, § 1644.) In our opinion, appellants' interpretation more fairly reflects the ordinary and usual sense of the phrase "gives rise to," which the parties agreed to in the Purchase Agreement. In ordinary popular speech, as well as in legal opinions, it is common to use the phrase "arises from" or "arises out of" in a far more general, transactional sense than is suggested by phrases such as "derives from" or "proximately caused by."

Id., at 1344. The Xuereb court also believed this interpretation was strengthened by the circumstances under which the parties entered into the purchase agreement:

Appellants' interpretation is also buttressed by the interpretational principle that a contract must be understood with reference to the circumstances under which it was made and the matter to which it relates. (Civ. Code, § 1647.) The circumstances of the Purchase Agreement and the matter to which it related was a large real property transaction, in which the buyer and the seller made certain reciprocal agreements with respect to the inspection of the premises and a variety of contingencies which were supposed to take place prior to the close of escrow. It was out of these contingencies, or the alleged failure thereof, that the lawsuit arose. The attorney fees provision specifically included the "Agent" among the parties with respect to which disputes could arise that would trigger a right to attorney fees. In light of all these circumstances, we conclude that the phrase "gives rise to" must be interpreted expansively, to encompass acts and omissions occurring in connection with the Purchase Agreement and the entire transaction of which it was the written memorandum.

Several courts post-Xuereb have afforded the same broad interpretation to attorneys' fees provisions if the contract includes language that states attorneys' fees are awarded when an agreement "gives rise to" an action or an action "arises out of" an agreement. For instance, in Lerner v. Ward, 13 Cal.App.4th 155 (Ct. App. 1993), the plaintiffs sued the defendants for falsely representing that the real property they purchased from the defendants could be subdivided. Lerner, 13 Cal.App.4th at 157. The purchase agreement included an attorneys' fees provision awarding attorneys' fees to the prevailing party on any action "arising out of the agreement." Id., at 160. Although the complaint initially included causes of action for breach of contract and reformation, the court held trial only on the plaintiffs' fraud cause of action. Id. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendants, who then moved for an award of attorneys' fees. Id. The trial court denied the motion, holding that the fees were not recoverable in a tort action under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. Id., at 158. The defendants appealed the ruling. Id.

The appellate court agreed that the defendants were not entitled to attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 because the fraud action was not "on a contract." Id., at 159. However, the court found that the defendants were entitled to fees pursuant to CCP § 1021. Citing the reasoning in Xuereb, the court held:

In the instant case, the clause in the contract concerning attorney fees was similar to the clause in the Xuereb case. The clause was not limited merely to an action on the contract, but to any action or proceeding arising out of the agreement. This included any action for fraud arising out of that agreement.

It is true when the Lerner voluntarily dismissed their contract cause of action before trial and proceeded only on a tort theory, they gave up the opportunity to obtain attorney fees pursuant to Civil Code section 1717. They still, however, had the opportunity to obtain attorney fees pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 1021. This is because the tort cause of action arose out of the written agreement. The Lerner alleged and tried to prove that the Ward, through their fraudulent representations, induced the Lerner to enter into an agreement to purchase the property.

Id., at 160.

Notably, the California Supreme Court cited approvingly to Xuereb and Lerner in another action involving a real estate purchase agreement containing the following attorneys' fees provision: "In the event legal action is instituted by the Broker(s), or any party to this agreement, or arising out of the execution of this agreement or the sale, or to collect commissions, the prevailing party shall be entitled to receive from the other party a reasonable attorney fee to be determined by the court in which such action is brought." Santisas v. Goodin, 17 Cal.4th 599, 603 (1998) (emphasis added). The issues in Santisas were different, centering mainly on a "prevailing party" analysis, but the California Supreme Court, referencing Xuereb and Lerner, did note that the language in the agreement was broad enough to cover both contract and tort actions:

On its face, the provision embraces all claims, both tort and breach of contract, in plaintiffs' complaint, because all are claims "arising out of the execution of th[e] agreement or the sale." (See Lerner v. Ward (1993) 13 Cal.App.4th 155, 160–161, 16 Cal.Rptr.2d 486.) Plaintiffs do not argue otherwise. If a contractual attorney fee provision is phrased broadly enough, as this one is, it may support an award of attorney fees to the prevailing party in an action alleging both contract and tort claims: "[P]arties may validly agree that the prevailing party will be awarded attorney fees incurred in any litigation between themselves, whether such litigation sounds in tort or in contract." App. 2013) ("Like provisions referring to any claim 'in connection with' a particular agreement, or to any action 'arising out of' an agreement, an attorney fee provision awarding fees based on the outcome of 'any dispute' encompasses all claims, whether in contract, tort or otherwise.") (emphasis added); and Childers v. Edwards, 48 Cal.App.4th 1544 (1996) (holding that attorneys' fees provision stating that "any legal action, proceeding or arbitration arising out of this agreement" would provide the prevailing party to reasonable attorneys' fees encompasses tort actions) (emphasis added).

Here, like in Lerner, this Court adjudicated Plaintiff's fraud claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Because the Court only tried a tort claim, Defendant is not entitled to attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717, as explained above. However, as in Xuereb and Lerner, the language in the Agreement is broad enough to encompass this action. The parties' Agreement explicitly provides for attorneys' fees in "any reference proceeding or court action arising out of this Agreement." Agreement, ¶ 23 (emphasis added). The "arising out of" language in the Agreement mirrors the language in the attorneys' fees provision in Lerner and is the exact same phrase held by several courts to be broad enough to encompass tort actions.

The crux of Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) was that Defendant made material misrepresentations and omissions on which Plaintiff relied prior to execution of the Agreement. A necessary element of Plaintiff's fraud theory was that Plaintiff would not have entered into the Agreement had Plaintiff been aware of certain facts prior to execution of the Agreement. Both Xuereb and Lerner held that the fraudulent inducement allegations at issue in their cases arose out of the subject agreements. The same is true here; the entirety of Plaintiff's tort action against Defendant rested on the premise that Plaintiff would not have entered into the Agreement had Defendant disclosed certain facts, such as T.O.'s license status and the age of the as-built survey. Plaintiff asserted that Defendant had a duty to disclose these facts in connection with a subcontract agreement.

The Xuereb court's interpretation of the phrase "arising out of" did not depend on the additional circumstances surrounding the execution of the purchase agreement, but the court believed the circumstances "buttressed" the interpretation. Xuereb, 3 Cal.App.4th at 1344. Multiple courts following Xuereb did not engage in any such analysis, instead simply holding that the phrase "arising out of" is broad enough to encompass tort actions involving the subject agreement. See Maynard, 216 Cal.App.4th at 993; Childers, 48 Cal.App.4th at 1548. As in Xuereb, the circumstances here serve to strengthen the Court's interpretation of the attorneys' fees provision in the Agreement.

In Xuereb, the court found that both parties "made certain reciprocal agreements" with respect to the real property transaction to which the purchase agreement related. Id. The court stated that the tort action arose out of these contingencies. Id. As in Xuereb, the circumstances surrounding the Agreement also indicate that Plaintiff's fraud claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) "arose out of" the Agreement. Here, both Plaintiff and Defendant made similar reciprocal agreements in the Agreement regarding the contracting work to be done on the subject property. Plaintiff's fraud claim was based on its contention that Defendant was obligated to disclose the license status of T.O and the age of the surveys on which Plaintiff relied. The Agreement explicitly includes a provision regarding licensing of contractors, Agreement, ¶ 21, as well as a provision providing for Plaintiff's review of "contract documents," which, according to Exhibit A to the Agreement, includes the plans. Agreement, ¶ 3.

It is unclear if Defendant is requesting attorneys' fees related to litigation of Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727. In the Motion, Defendant appears to except fees and costs incurred during the 11 U.S.C. § 727 trial from his request. Motion, p. 6. However, Defendant includes attorneys' fees incurred litigating Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727 in his attached itemization of attorneys' fees. To the extent Defendant is requesting attorneys' fees incurred defending the denial of discharge claims, Plaintiff's claims under § 727 were based on the omission of assets from Defendant's bankruptcy schedules and statements. These allegations were entirely unrelated to the Agreement, and Plaintiff could have brought the claims under 11 U.S.C. § 727 notwithstanding the Agreement. In other words, the denial of discharge claims did not "arise out of" the Agreement, and Defendant is not entitled to attorneys' fees incurred defending the § 727 claims. However, for the reasons set forth above, Defendant is entitled to attorneys' fees incurred defending Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A).

ii. Prevailing Party

Plaintiff also argues that Defendant cannot be a prevailing party because Plaintiff prevailed in state court. Pursuant to CCP § 1032(a)(4)—

"Prevailing party" includes the party with a net monetary recovery, a defendant in whose favor a dismissal is entered, a defendant where neither plaintiff nor defendant obtains any relief, and a defendant as against those plaintiffs who do not recover any relief against that defendant. When any party recovers other than monetary relief and in situations other than as specified, the "prevailing party" shall be as determined by the court, and under those circumstances, the court, in its discretion, may allow costs or not and, if allowed may apportion costs between the parties on the same or adverse sides pursuant to rules adopted under Section 1034.

"Where a party falls squarely within one of these four definitions, a trial court has little discretion in determining the prevailing party, particularly when there is a party with a 'net monetary recovery.'" Mac-Go Corp., 541 B.R. at 715 (citing Goodman v. Lozano, 47 Cal.4th 1327 (2010)). Otherwise, the statute "leaves the determination of the prevailing party to the trial court's discretion." Heimlich v. Shivji, 12 Cal.App.5th 152, 160 (Ct. App. 2017).

"[S]ection 1032(a)(4) defines the party with a 'net monetary recovery' as the 'prevailing party.' The word 'recover' means 'to gain by legal process' or 'to obtain a final legal judgment in one's favor.'" deSaulles v. Cmty. Hosp. of Monterey Peninsula, 62 Cal.4th 1140, 1153 (2016) (citing Goodman v. Lozano, 47 Cal.4th 1327, 1334 (2010)).

Plaintiff asserts that Defendant cannot be the prevailing party because Plaintiff was the prevailing party on the breach of contract action in state court. However, Plaintiff has cited no authority providing that where one party prevails in one action and recovers attorneys' fees based on the parties' contract, the other party is barred from recovering attorneys' fees based on the contract in all future actions. Plaintiff did prevail on its breach of contract action in state court, and the state court awarded Plaintiff attorneys' fees as a result. This Court cannot relitigate the breach of contract action or question the state court's award of attorneys' fees to Plaintiff, nor does this Court attempt any such attack on the state court's judgments and findings.

This nondischargeability action is separate and distinct from the state court action. The state court has not made any findings related to fraud or nondischargeability, such that none of the state court's determinations bind this Court in this proceeding. In this action, Defendant is the prevailing party because Defendant "falls squarely" within one of the "prevailing party" definitions under CCP § 1032(a)(4): Defendant is "a defendant as against those plaintiffs who do not recover any relief against that defendant." Where a party fits a definition provided by CCP § 1032(a)(4), the Court "has little discretion" in deeming that party the prevailing party. Mac-Go Corp., 541 B.R. at 715.

Even if Defendant did not neatly fall into one of the categories under CCP § 1032(a)(4), the Court is given discretion to determine the prevailing party and allow costs as the Court sees fit. CCP § 1032(a)(4); Heimlich, 12 Cal.App.5th at 160. To the extent Plaintiff views the state court action and this action as one action, where Plaintiff prevailed on the breach of contract claims and Defendant on the fraud and nondischargeability claims, the Court would still award Defendant his attorneys' fees and costs incurred defending the § 523(a)(2)(A) claim. Plaintiff already obtained a significant attorneys' fees award of $1.65 million after prevailing on its breach of contract claims. Now that Defendant has prevailed on the nondischargeability claim, and in light of the fact that courts are permitted to "apportion costs between the parties," Defendant is entitled to his share of attorneys' fees under the Agreement. Consequently, Defendant being the prevailing party as to Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), Defendant is entitled to an award of reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.

C. Reasonableness of Fees

Movants bear the burden of proving that the fees sought are reasonable. Center for Biological Diversity v. Cty. of San Bernardino, 188 Cal.App.4th 603, 615 (Ct. App.

2010); In re Atwood, 293 B.R. 227, 233 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2003). Both California state courts and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals customarily assess the reasonableness of attorneys' fees utilizing the "lodestar" approach where the number of hours reasonably expended is multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate. Ketchum v. Moses, 24 Cal.4th 1122, 1131 (2001); In re Eliapo, 468 F.3d 592, 598 (9th Cir. 2006).

"A district court should exclude from the lodestar amount hours that are not reasonably expended because they are 'excessive, redundant, or otherwise unnecessary.'" Van Gerwen v. Guarantee Mut. Life Co., 214 F.3d 1041, 1045 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 434, 103 S.Ct. 1933, 1939-40, 76 L.Ed.2d 40 (1983)). "After computing the lodestar, the court must assess whether additional considerations require adjustment of the figure, such as the novelty or complexity of the issues, the skill and experience of counsel, the quality of representation and the results obtained." PSM Holding, 2015 WL 11652518 at *4.

Although Defendant is a prevailing party entitled to attorneys' fees and costs, those fees and costs must be reasonable. In the Forsley Declaration, Defendant's attorney testifies that Defendant incurred attorneys' fees and costs totaling $53,547.25 "[u]p to the first trial" pertaining to Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 727. Forsley Declaration, ¶ 30. As noted above, Defendant is not entitled to the attorneys' fees and costs incurred defending the denial of discharge claims. As such, the Court will deny this portion of the request.

Mr. Forsley states that Defendant incurred $95,904.42 in fees and $1,062.22 in costs to defend from Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Forsley Declaration, ¶ 34. Mr. Forsley also anticipates incurring $3,400 to file a reply to the Opposition and to appear at the hearing on the Motion. Forsley Declaration, ¶ 35. Mr. Forsley's rate is $425 per hour, which is reasonable for an attorney in Los Angeles with Mr. Forsley's experience. Id.

The itemized fee statements attached by Mr. Forsley include entries related to defending both the § 727 and § 523 claims. Even if the Court were to deduct the $53,547.25 incurred up to December 2014 (when the Court entered judgment on the § 727 claim), subsequent entries include Defendant's work defending the appeal of the § 727 judgment. Moreover, Defendant includes a substantial amount of redacted entries, which render impossible a determination of reasonableness. Defendant should supplement the Motion with a declaration attaching an itemized statement of fees and costs that includes only fees and costs incurred defending the § 523(a)(2)(A) action. The supplemental attachment also should modify the redactions to allow the Court to assess whether the task performed was necessary and if the time spent on the task was reasonable.

D. Plaintiff's Request for Sanctions

In the Opposition, Plaintiff requests sanctions under FRBP 9011 on the basis that Defendant filed the Motion without a proper basis and for an improper purpose, and because Defendant is aware Plaintiff has appealed the Court's Decision. Notwithstanding the fact that Plaintiff's request for sanctions is procedurally improper, see FRBP 9011(c)(1)(A) (requiring a motion under FRBP 9011 be made separately from other motions), the facts here do not warrant an award of sanctions. First, Plaintiff has not sought a stay of the Court's Decision pending appeal. Thus, the appeal does not prevent Defendant from moving for an award of attorneys' fees. Moreover, because the Court is granting Defendant's request for attorneys' fees in part, the Motion was not filed without sufficient grounds or for an improper purpose. Consequently, Plaintiff's request for sanctions is denied.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion in part and award Defendant reasonable attorneys' fees and costs incurred litigating Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Defendant must file and serve a supplemental declaration attaching only the itemized attorneys' fees and costs incurred litigating the 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) claim. Defendant also must include enough information under each entry for the Court to ascertain whether the incurred fees and costs were reasonable. Plaintiff may file a response to the supplemental declaration only as to the reasonableness of the attorneys' fees and costs. Defendant may reply to any response by Plaintiff.

I. BACKGROUND

A. *The Parties' Plan for a Charity Concert

In December 2015, Peace For You Peace For Me (the "Foundation"), a nonprofit organization registered under the laws of Bulgaria, contemplated organizing a charity concert to raise money for and awareness of homeless and displaced children from conflict zones worldwide (the "Charity Concert"). Declaration of Jay Botev ("Botev Declaration") [doc. 41], ¶ 2. The Foundation envisioned the Charity Concert as an all-day, televised concert held in Sofia, Bulgaria on October 1, 2016 and modeled off popular events such as 1985's Live-Aid and 2010's Hope for Haiti Now. Botev Declaration, ¶ 3. Around mid-2016, Krasimir Dachev became involved with the Charity Concert and, through his company, Svilosa AD ("Svilosa"), financially sponsored the Foundation. Botev Declaration, ¶ 2.

In May 2016, an individual named Vee Vee Saint Clair introduced Robin DiMaggio ("Defendant") to the Foundation. Botev Declaration, ¶ 4. At that time, Defendant told Jay Botev, the founded and a board member of the Foundation, that Defendant was a well-known drummer and the "Musical Director of the United Nations." Id. Defendant further represented to Mr. Botev that he had toured and recorded with several music celebrities and emailed pictures of himself with these celebrities. Id.

Defendant informed Mr. Botev that, through these connections, Defendant would be able to procure commitments from numerous celebrities to perform at the Charity Concert. Id. Given that no one at the Foundation was familiar with the American music industry, the Foundation relied on Defendant's representations about deals and negotiations within the industry. Id.

Defendant initially stated that he would work with Bruce Sterling, who operated a company called A.E.I. Entertainment ("AEI"), and Ms. Saint Clair to enlist artists to perform at the Charity Concert. Botev Declaration, ¶ 5. No one at the Foundation ever spoke with Mr. Sterling, and the Foundation did not authorize Defendant to make any payments to Mr. Sterling. Id. Three weeks after their initial meeting, Defendant and the Foundation dropped Mr. Sterling and Ms. Saint Clair from their correspondence. Id. Going forward, the Foundation dealt exclusively with Defendant. Id.

In June 2016, Defendant sent the Foundation an Artist Acquisition Roster (the "Roster"), which included the names of hundreds of well-known musicians worldwide. Botev Declaration, ¶ 6, Exhibit A. Defendant informed the Foundation that it could select any of the musicians listed in the Roster and that Defendant would work to secure their performance at the Charity Concert. Id.

B. The Initial Deposits

On June 7, 2016, the Foundation and Defendant, through his wholly-owned company DiMaggio International Inc. ("DMI"), signed an Engagement Binder through which the Foundation agreed to wire $50,000 to DMI. Botev Declaration, ¶ 7, Exhibit B. The Engagement Binder included a provision that all artist fees paid to DMI would be applied to a different artist or returned if the original artist did not accept the offer to perform. Id.

On June 9, 2016, Defendant emailed Mr. Botev, among others, informing the Foundation that he received a "verbal Yes from Mick Jagger" and that Defendant had "sent all the correct calls to bring in the Big boys." Botev Declaration, ¶ 8, Exhibit C. On June 11, 2016, Defendant again emailed Mr. Botev, among others, informing the Foundation that he also received a "verbal Yes" from Earth, Wind & Fire. Botev Declaration, ¶ 8, Exhibit D.

On June 30, 2016, Defendant sent another email to Mr. Botev, informing Mr. Botev that Defendant recently spoke to his manager, business manager, production team and lawyers and that they all came to the conclusion that they would need the remaining balance of $15,000 to move forward with securing artists. Botev Declaration, ¶ 9, Exhibit E. Defendant also warned Mr. Botev that failing to make the $15,000 payment would be "extremely dangerous" for the parties' reputations and that, upon receiving the $15,000 payment, Defendant could "lower the risk factor with [his] people." Id.

On July 7, 2016, Defendant forwarded an email to the Mr. Botev in which the sender, identified only as "J.F.," wrote to Defendant:

Here is who verbally confirmed as per your last email a few hours ago,
J. Depp, SIR Mick Jagger, Rod Stewart, Slash, Bruno Mars, Justin Timberlake,
Please remember these are Verbal Yes but not Contracted as of yet.
Please be careful and make sure you fund before we send out Paper Agreement or All this is for nothing.

Botev Declaration, ¶ 11, Exhibit G. As a result, the Foundation approved wiring approximately $41,000 to DMI's bank account. Botev Declaration, ¶ 10, Exhibit F.

Prior to the transfer of these funds from the Foundation to DMI, DMI's bank account had a balance of $343.40. Declaration of Douglas R. Painter ("Painter Declaration") [docs. 43, 50], ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 272. From June 21, 2016 through July 7, 2016, Plaintiffs deposited a total of $40,844 into DMI's account for the purpose of securing artists for the Charity Concert. Id., pp. 272-75. Soon after each of these deposits, Defendant withdrew the funds from DMI's bank account. Id. Specifically, Plaintiffs deposited, and Defendant withdrew, the following sums:

Date	Deposit/Withdrawal	Amount
June 21, 2016	Deposit	$9,960
June 27, 2016	Deposit	$9,960

Id. From the initial deposit of $40,844, Defendant withdrew a total of $32,226.86. Id. Aside from withdrawing the $32,226.86, Defendant used DMI's debit card to make several purchases at gas stations, groceries and convenience stores, coffee shops, pet stores, hardware stores, restaurants, home furnishing stores, hotels, mobile carrier stores, auto shops and movie ticketing websites. Id.

Soon after withdrawing the funds from DMI's bank account, Defendant made deposits into his personal checking account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, pp.122-26. On June 27, 2016, Defendant deposited $1,200 into his personal checking account and, on the same day, withdrew as cash $391 from his personal account. Id. On July 5, 2016, Defendant deposited another $13,216.47 into his personal checking account and, on the same day, withdrew a total of $7,367.45 in cash. Id. Defendant also made several personal purchases with his personal debit card, including a $1,319.51 telephone payment, several payments at restaurants and gas stations and a $96 charge at TJ Maxx. Id. Defendant also used $3,000 of the funds to pay his Barclays credit card. Id. Defendant used his Barclays credit card to make personal purchases for himself and his ex-wife, Marti Rich. Subsequently, Defendant, through DMI, sent the Foundation an Artist Acquisition Invoice requesting deposits of $100,000 to secure Mick Jagger and $50,000 to secure Earth, Wind & Fire. On July 14, 2016, DMI received a $149,955 deposit from Plaintiffs into its account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 275. Immediately after receiving the $149,955 deposit, Defendant withdrew $155,600 from DMI's account. Id. On the same day, Defendant deposited $155,600 into his personal checking account. Id., p. 126. Upon depositing the $155,600 into his personal account, Defendant immediately made multiple cash withdrawals totaling $62,853.18. Id. On July 15, 2016, the day after the transfer, Defendant made two payments to his Barclays credit card totaling $13,136.23. Id. From July 15, 2016 through July 20, 2016, Defendant continued to withdraw substantial amounts of cash, totaling $38,101.84. Id., pp. 126-28. Defendant also continued to use his personal debit card for several personal expenses, including dining, car expenses, convenience store purchases and shopping at The Home Depot. Id.

The record is devoid of any evidence that Defendant used any of the funds deposited into DMI's account to secure Mick Jagger or Earth, Wind & Fire as performers at the Charity Concert. In fact, according to Chris Andrews, a talent agent employed with Creative Artists Agency ("CAA"), CAA was the "exclusive" talent agency representing Mick Jagger in 2016 and 2017. Declaration of Chris Andrews ("Andrews Declaration") [doc. 44], ¶ 2. On July 28, 2016, Mr. Andrews received an unsolicited email from "industrylevelssubmit@gmail.com" inquiring as to the availability of Mick Jagger to appear at a charity concert in Sofia, Bulgaria on October 1, 2016. Andrews Declaration, ¶ 3. Mr. Andrews did not respond to this solicitation. Id. On August 1, 2016, Mr. Andrews received another email from the same email address asking about Mick Jagger's availability on October 1, 2016. Andrews Declaration, ¶ 4. D. The $53,300 Deposit

In early July 2016, the Foundation arranged a press conference in Sofia, Bulgaria to publicize the Charity Concert. Botev Declaration, ¶ 14; Declaration of Alexander Panev ("Panev Declaration"), ¶ 2. After the press conference, local press reacted with skepticism to the suggestion that the Charity Concert would be ready in time for the October 1, 2016 concert date. Id. After the press conference, Defendant, through DMI, sent the Foundation an invoice (the "Defamation Invoice") requesting $53,300 to pay for "legal defamation PR," "legal attorney fees" and "administrative services." Botev Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit J; Panev Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit CC. The "legal defamation PR" fees referred to "fees for legal defamation [to] secure public relations for damage control due to false Media and public disclosed marketing towards artists that have not legally been acquired by there [sic] agency to perform" at the Charity Concert. Id.

On July 17, 2016, Alexander Panev, an associate and representative of Mr. Dachev, emailed Defendant to discuss the Defamation Invoice. Panev Declaration, ¶ 3, Exhibit DD. In the email, Mr. Panev also instructed Defendant to use the funds already wired to Defendant to finally secure the performances of Mick Jagger and Earth, Wind & Fire. Id. In response, Defendant requested an additional $52,000 and stated that he could not secure Mick Jagger's performance without the additional funds. Id. Defendant also stated: "Let me know if you can't or won't I completely understand I will have to resign from the Venture and make a wire back to you. This is my Teams decision and we will not budge." Id.

On July 18, 2016, Mr. Panev responded to Defendant and informed Defendant that the Foundation had already paid $150,000 to secure Mick Jagger and Earth, Wind & Fire as performers for the Charity Concert. Id. Mr. Panev told Defendant that Defendant could either secure the performers with the money he had or wire back the funds to the Foundation. Id. On the same day, Defendant emailed Mr. Panev and informed him that he would wire back the funds and that the Foundation should hire someone else to help organize the Charity Concert. Id.

Nevertheless, on July 21, 2016, the Foundation approved a wire of $53,300 to DMI. Botev Declaration, ¶ 15, Exhibit K. On July 21, 2016, DMI received $53,300 into its account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 275. Immediately after receiving these funds, Defendant withdrew $53,251 from DMI's account. Id.

On July 21, 2016, Defendant deposited $53,251 into his personal account, along with two deposits of $267.51 and $2,300. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 128. From July 21, 2016 through August 8, 2016, Defendant made cash withdrawals totaling $61,831.69. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, pp. 128-35. Defendant also continued to spend funds on personal expenses, including a $2,732.40 charge described as "Classic Vacations," additional payments to Defendant's Barclays credit card, multiple expenses at Starbucks, a $266 payment to Los Angeles Superior Court's Traffic Department, a $509.03 charge at a restaurant, a $397.20 charge from Delta Airlines, numerous grocery store, convenience store and gas station expenses, a $305.16 charge at GameStop, several charges at chocolatiers and clothing stores and multiple charges at Four Seasons hotels. Id. Defendant also made a $18,358.88 payment to his American Express credit card. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 130.

E. The $750,000 Deposit

Defendant continued to request additional funds from the Foundation and claimed he could secure additional artists. Botev Declaration, ¶ 16. On July 31, 2016, Defendant emailed Mr. Dachev to inform him of additional offers to perform at the Charity Concert. Panev Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit EE. In a series of emails, Defendant informed Mr. Dachev that, with Mr. Dachev's permission, Defendant could "green light" performances from Jennifer Lopez, Robbie Williams, Don Felder, Roger Waters and Pink! Id. In the same series of emails, Defendant also stated he had confirmation that Blondie and the Beach Boys would perform for $250,000 each. Id.

On August 1, 2016, Defendant sent the Foundation a Deal Offer Form requesting a deposit of $750,000 to secure Jennifer Lopez, Robbie Williams, Roger Waters, Don Felder, Christina Aguilera and John Legend. Panev Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit FF. The Deal Offer Form was on a letterhead bearing the name One Talent Agency and did not make any reference to Defendant or DMI. Id. The Deal Offer Form provided that the offer was set to expire on August 2, 2016, one day after the offer date. Id. The Deal Offer Form did not include a provision that the funds furnished by the Foundation would be returned to the Foundation if the artists were unavailable or did not agree to perform at the Charity Concert. Panev Declaration, ¶ 6.

On August 1, 2016, Mr. Panev emailed a letter from Mr. Botev to Defendant, in which Mr. Botev requested changes to the Deal Offer Form. Panev Declaration, ¶ 6, Exhibit GG. Specifically, Mr. Botev requested that the Deal Offer Form provide for One Talent Agency to be liable for their obligations in the Deal Offer Form and that the Deal Offer Form contain a provision that the funds would be returned to the Foundation in case any of the performances did not proceed as planned. Id.

On August 2, 2016, Defendant emailed Mr. Panev and noted that the Deal Offer Form would expire at 5:00 p.m. on August 2, 2016 and, upon expiration, the parties would "lose every artist[]." Panev Declaration, ¶ 7, Exhibit HH. Defendant continued—

He will need a signed copy and proof of wire.

I absolutely do not want to put pressure on you and Kris but making sure every details are met so both sides feel completely comfortable. We are about to make History in Sofia.

Id. Mr. Panev responded to Defendant, informing Defendant that the Foundation would not move forward unless the parties amended the Deal Offer Form to provide for a refund of the money paid by the Foundation in case of cancellation by an artist. Id. Defendant responded by writing, in relevant part—

If an artist does not commit yes 100% the money goes back to Dachev. There is no other way but to make things 100% right at this point.

Id. Defendant then promised to "track the production office down" and have them amend the Deal Offer Form. Id.

On August 3, 2016, Defendant emailed Mr. Dachev and Mr. Panev with the subject line "We are about to lose the deal read below." Panev Declaration, ¶ 8, Exhibit II. The email appeared to be a forward from someone named Neil Epstein from One Talent Agency. Id. In the email, Mr. Epstein wrote—

Id. Subsequently, Defendant emailed Mr. Panev an amended Deal Offer Form (the "Amended Deal Offer") with the following language added—

If the Artist is not available or does not accept your offer, Artist fees will be applied towards another artist(s) or returned if the artist declines or has a cancelation of performance

Panev Declaration, ¶ 9, Exhibit JJ. In his response to the Amended Deal Offer, Mr. Panev informed Defendant that the Amended Deal Offer did not address all of the Foundation's concerns and requesting another amended draft. Id. Defendant agreed to make the changes, but also told Mr. Panev to "[s]end [the] wire so we dont [sic] lose them." Id.

number, address, representatives, bank account and contacts. Panev Declaration, ¶ 10, Exhibit KK. In response, Defendant told Mr. Panev that, if the Foundation decided to pay One Talent Agency directly, the Foundation would incur "33% taxes" on top of the payment and that the Foundation should instead pay DMI. Id.

On August 4, 2016, one day later, Defendant sent a new agreement to Mr. Panev, this time with DMI as the party instead of One Talent Agency (the "DMI Agreement"). Panev Declaration, ¶ 11, Exhibit LL. The DMI Agreement provided for $750,000 to be paid into DMI's escrow account to secure performances by Jennifer Lopez, Roger Waters, John Legend, Christina Aguilera, Robbie Williams and Don Felder. Id. Defendant did not explain to the Foundation why One Talent Agency was removed from the contract or how DMI would take over One Talent Agency's obligations. Panev Declaration, ¶ 11.

On August 4, 2016, Defendant again emailed Mr. Panev asking Mr. Panev to wire money to DMI's account and stating that "time is about to be against" the parties if Defendant does not show proof of payment. Panev Declaration, ¶ 12, Exhibit MM. On August 5, 2016, Defendant emailed Mr. Panev informing him that Defendant was "playing with Fire with management once again" and that the parties were "close to losing the deal." Panev Declaration, ¶ 13, Exhibit NN. In response, the Foundation informed Defendant that they would wire the $750,000 if Defendant explicitly confirmed that he would establish an escrow account upon Defendant's return to Los Angeles on August 10, 2016 and if Defendant would not use the money until it landed in the escrow account. Id. In response, Defendant told the Foundation that he "agree[d] to both terms explicitly." Id. After the Foundation again asked Defendant if he agreed to immediately fulfil the conditions upon his return to Los Angeles, Defendant responded by stating: "I agree 100% Confirmed." Id.

In light of Defendant's agreement, the Foundation sent Defendant an amendment to the DMI Agreement which incorporated the conditions requested by the Foundation (the "DMI Amendment"). Panev Declaration, ¶ 13, Exhibit OO. Defendant responded as follows—

Id. Because of Defendant's representations that the agreements with several artists would be "lost" without the wire and based on Defendant's promise to open an escrow account, on August 5, 2016, the Foundation approved a wire of $750,000 to DMI. Panev Declaration, ¶ 14.

On August 5, 2016, DMI received a $750,000 deposit into its account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 277. Four days later, on August 9, 2016, Defendant withdrew $750,000 from DMI's bank account. Id. On September 12, 2016, after using DMI's debit card to make additional purchases at restaurants, Defendant closed DMI's bank account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 277-79. At the time of closing, DMI had $87 left in its bank account. Id.

On August 9, 2016, the day Defendant withdrew $750,000 from DMI's bank account, Defendant deposited $750,000 into his personal checking account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 135. On the same day, Defendant made a cash withdrawal of $50,000. Id. Throughout the month of August, Defendant continued to make numerous cash withdrawals, totaling $305,790.19. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 135-43.

From the withdrawn $305,790.19, Defendant transferred $150,000 to an account in the name of Dimagic Entertainment ("Dimagic"), a company wholly owned by Defendant. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 280; Painter Declaration, ¶ 22, Exhibit OOO. Defendant formed Dimagic on July 29, 2016, eight days after receiving $53,300 from Plaintiffs and one week before receiving the $750,000 deposit from Plaintiffs. Painter Declaration, ¶ 22, Exhibit OOO. In a Statement of Information filed with California's Secretary of State, Defendant indicated that he is Dimagic's Chief Executive Officer, Secretary and agent for service of process. Id. Defendant did not list any other officers or directors. Id. Defendant's deposit of $150,000 into Dimagic's account appears to be the first deposit into that account after Dimagic's formation. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 280.

In August 2016, in addition to these cash withdrawals, Defendant also initiated an outgoing international wire transfer in the amount of $914.72 and a domestic wire in the amount of $251,370. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, pp. 136, 139. Defendant used the $251,370 to purchase real property located at 23777 Mulholland Highway, #163, Calabasas, California 91302 (the "Mulholland Property") allegedly for his ex-wife, Ms. Rich. Painter Declaration, ¶ 25, Exhibit PPP. In fact, Defendant acknowledged at his deposition that he used the Foundation's money to purchase the Mulholland Property. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 319:2-7.

By this time, Defendant and Ms. Rich had been divorced for approximately four years. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 293:14-18. According to Defendant, he did not have a court ordered or other legal obligation to pay support or alimony to Ms. Rich. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 295:20-23. Nevertheless, Ms. Rich is listed as the buyer of the Mulholland Property. Painter Declaration, ¶ 25, Exhibit PPP. In addition, Defendant made several payments on the Mulholland Property, including to the development on which the Mulholland Property is located and for utilities and taxes. Painter Declaration, ¶¶ 26-28, Exhibits QQQ-SSS.

Aside from the cash withdrawals and the purchase of the Mulholland Property, Defendant also depleted the funds by using his debit card for personal expenses. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, pp. 135-43. In the month of August alone, Defendant made several "big ticket" purchases, such as $3,400 at "Wrap Labs, Inc.," $6,599.28 at Best Buy, $8,639 on automotive expenses, $3,436.53 at Cost Plus, $1,698.44 at John Varvatos, $6,401.22 at Guitar Center and DW Drums, $818.99 at "Psychic Eye Book Shops," $5,252 at "Archstone" and $3,466.08 at VC Defense. Id. Defendant also made over $19,000 in payments to several of his personal credit cards. Id. Defendant further exhausted the funds by spending money at restaurants, bars, clothing stores, liquor stores, coffee shops, airports, pet stores, music stores, grocery stores, hardware stores and jewelry stores. Id. The addition of $750,000 to Defendant's checking account resulted in a balance of $752,697.25 as of August 9, 2016. Id. By the end of August, Defendant had whittled down that sum to $60,896.77. Id.

Defendant continued to spend the funds through September and October of 2016. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, pp. 146-66. During that time, Defendant withdrew a total of $22,304.86 in cash from his account. Id. Defendant also continued to make several debit card purchases, including for dental care, phone bills, home furniture, clothing, hotels, air travel, electronics, restaurants and bars. Id. Starting on September 20, 2016, Defendant began occasionally depositing funds into his checking account. Id. At that time, Defendant deposited $10,000 into his account; it is unclear if Defendant deposited previously withdrawn cash back into the account or if Defendant obtained the funds from a source other than Plaintiffs. Id. Prior to the $10,000 deposit on September 20, 2016, Defendant had a balance of $18,595.94 remaining in his account. Id.

Defendant continued to spend money and occasionally replenish funds. On November 30, 2016, after a deposit of $24,700, the origin of which is unclear, Defendant's account reached a balance of $26,125.31. Id. After that, Defendant slowly drained the account; by June 30, 2017, the last date of banking history available to the Court, the account contained only $147.16.

In November 2016, Defendant made additional deposits into Dimagic's account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 283. After those deposits, which brought Dimagic's balance up to $197,580.79, Defendant began making several withdrawals from Dimagic's account. Id. Beginning in December 2016, Defendant also began using Dimagic's debit card to make personal purchases at restaurants, coffee shops, retail stores, etc. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, pp. 285-86. From January 2017 through the petition date, Defendant continued to withdraw funds from Dimagic's account and use Dimagic's debit card for personal expenses. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, pp. 287-313. On the petition date, Defendant had $68.66 left in Dimagic's account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit GGG, p. 313.

On August 10, 2016, Defendant emailed Mr. Dachev, informing him that "an entire group of managers" felt that the Charity Concert should be postponed to December 1, 2016 "[b]ecause of the [M]ick Jagger incident." Panev Declaration, ¶ 15, Exhibit PP. Defendant continued—

However here are the 2 choices black and white.
We speak we move it to Dec first weekend gives us more time or I get the deposits back and send you moneys back.

The other situation was the Agreement was until aug 3rd and I didnt [sic] get your signature to show them proof until the 4th or 5th.
They dont [sic] operate the same way as they do in Europe for deadlines. For me it didnt [sic] matter but for the brokerage firm they took that as an insult.

Id. In response, Mr. Panev informed Defendant that if it was "impossible to manage [the Charity Concert] as planned," Defendant should inform the Foundation and return the funds to the Foundation. Id. Throughout this email chain, Mr. Panev continued to request that Defendant sign and return the DMI Amendment. Id.

On August 16, 2016, Defendant emailed Mr. Dachev informing him that managers representing Lenny Kravitz, Alicia Keys, Earth, Wind & Fire and Calvin Harris contacted Defendant asking why "idiots from Bulgaria" would prevent the Charity Concert from moving forward in December instead of October. Panev Declaration, ¶ 16, Exhibit QQ. After blaming the Foundation for the deals falling apart, Defendant informed the Foundation that there was nothing else Defendant could do to save the show. Id. In response to this email, the Foundation emailed Defendant stating: "Just for the record: still no Amendment despite... your promise; still no escrow account despite... the agreement and your promise; still no artist engaged despite... your promise and despite all that money we sent you." Id. The Foundation also asked Defendant to "wire all the money back immediately." Id. To this, Defendant emailed the Foundation stating he would wire the money back to the Foundation "[a]s soon as everyone returns the deposits." Id.

the funds deposited into DMI's bank account. Panev Declaration, ¶ 17, Exhibit RR. The next day, Defendant responded to the Foundation as follows—

I just talked to Kris last night and he knows we are keeping the funds until [Wednesday] when [I] have new contracts for June 1st. Please let me know if myself or you are mis communicating [sic]?

Id. Despite Defendant's contention that there were new contracts for June 2017, both Mick Jagger's and Earth, Wind & Fire's talent agents testified that neither artist had been secured for a June 2017 concert. Andrews Declaration, ¶ 5; Steinberg Declaration, ¶ 3.

On September 2, 2016, the Foundation sent another email to Defendant requesting a return of the funds and itemizing the deposits sent to the DMI's bank account. Panev Declaration, ¶ 18, Exhibit SS. On the same day, Defendant responded—

What are you talking about?
The results were in [Wednesday].
And he didn't tell me what he wanted,
I sent deposits to Artists as agrees [sic].
You guys are something else.
Is there that much of a communication break down [sic]?
Or is your English that bad?
And I'm simply not understand [sic] you?

Id. In response, the Foundation informed Defendant that "[i]f [he has] sent the deposits to Artists [he has] done it without Mr. Dachev's consent." Id. To date, Defendant has not returned any of the funds deposited into DMI's bank account. Panev Declaration, ¶ 18.

G. Additional Expenses Incurred by Plaintiffs

In addition to the Foundation's transfer of funds detailed above, the Foundation also paid Defendant $5,000 in travel expenses and $4,000 in cash to fund Defendant's trip to Sofia, Bulgaria. Botev Declaration, ¶¶ 18, 32, Exhibit BB. The Foundation also incurred additional out-of-pocket expenses in preparation for the Charity Concert.

Botev Declaration, ¶ 18. These expenses included: (A) $5,185 to Virgin Records, Ltd./Abbey Road Studios for use of a music studio; (B) $6,675 to Dimiter Marinov, who was hired to be one of the masters of ceremony at the Charity Concert; (C) $2,500 to T-YPO Talent Agency to secure Neve Gachev as one of the masters of ceremony; (D) $2,374 to a composer of a song to be performed at the Charity Concert; (E) $13,822 to Studio Blend for 3D mapping and graphic design for the Charity Concert; (F) $11,519 to Dinacord for scene design, sound engineering, lights and additional logistics for the Charity Concert; (G) $3,643 to Kamen Kamenov for accounting services for the Charity Concert; (H) $83,102 to secure National Levski Stadium as the venue for the Charity Concert; (I) $15,870.08 to The New Act to secure flight tickets for the Charity Concert; (J) $3,800 to the Grand Hotel Sofia for accommodations in connection with the Charity Concert; (K) $671 to the Central Park Hotel for accommodations in connection with the Charity Concert; and (L) $2,142 to Sky Fly for flight tickets for the Charity Concert. Botev Declaration, ¶¶ 18-19, 22-31, Exhibits N-O, R-AA.

In his declaration, Mr. Botev also states that the Foundation paid Ms. Saint Clair $96,030 to secure Bob Geldof, Rick Astley and Matt Lawrence for the Charity Concert as well as for catering and other expenses. Botev Declaration, ¶ 20, Exhibit P. Mr. Botev also testified that the Foundation paid $25,000 to an individual named Krassimir Kourtev, but did not explain how this payment was used in preparation for the Charity Concert. Botev Declaration, ¶ 21, Exhibit Q. The attached invoice to Mr. Kourtev does not provide additional clarification. Id.

H. The State Court Action

Prepetition, Plaintiffs sued Defendant and DMI in state court (the "State Court Action"). SUF, ¶ 25; Painter Declaration, ¶ 1. In connection with the State Court Action, DMI filed a countercomplaint against Plaintiffs and attached purported emails between Mr. Dachev and Defendant (the "State Court Emails"). Painter Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit VV. In the email exchange, Mr. Dachev appears to agree that Defendant should keep the funds wired by Plaintiffs to DMI and to apply the funds towards securing performances for a June concert. Id.

During the State Court Action, Defendant also claimed that he sent $600,000 of Plaintiffs' money to Mr. Sterling. SUF, ¶ 26; Painter Declaration, ¶ 6, Exhibit XX. To support his claim, Defendant produced a receipt for a $600,000 bank check dated July 14, 2016 and made payable to AEI, Mr. Sterling's company. Id. In addition, Defendant produced bank records indicating that, as of July 14, 2016 (just before Defendant alleged he issued a $600,000 check to AEI), DMI had $715,662.41 in its bank account. SUF, ¶ 27; Painter Declaration, ¶ 8, Exhibit ZZ.

Plaintiffs hired a forensic analyst named Bruce Pixley to investigate the State Court Emails and Defendant's banking records. Painter Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit WW. After completing his investigation, Mr. Pixley filed a declaration with the state court in support of a motion for terminating sanctions filed by Plaintiffs against Defendant (the "Pixley Declaration"). Id. In the Pixley Declaration, Mr. Pixley noted several issues with the State Court Emails that led to Mr. Pixley doubting the authenticity of the State Court Emails. Id. Specifically, Mr. Pixley found the following discrepancies:

- A. One of the emails did not contain a space between the month and date of the time stamp despite the other auto-generated time stamps from Defendant's email server having a space between the month and date entries;
- B. The email also included a space between the "date" line and the "to" line, which the other auto-generated emails did not include;
- C. An email allegedly sent by Mr. Dachev included a "date" field using the U.S. style of date designation instead of the Bulgarian style present in other emails from Mr. Dachev;
- D. The purported email from Mr. Dachev contains underlined text, which is not consistent with the other emails drafted from Mr. Dachev.

Id. In addition, Mr. Pixley stated in his declaration that the State Court Emails did not come up in a search of Defendant's email account. Id.

Mr. Pixley and Plaintiffs also investigated Defendant's banking records. SUF, ¶¶ 26-27. After receiving the records, Plaintiffs found a copy of a check bearing the same serial number, date and payee as the $600,000 check purportedly sent to Mr. Sterling. Defendant produced, the actual check reflected a $10,000 payment, not a $600,000 payment. Id. Plaintiffs also obtained DMI's account statement for July 2016. SUF, ¶ 27; Painter Declaration, ¶ 9, Exhibit AAA. Despite Defendant's produced copy of the statement showing $715,662.41 in DMI's account as of July 14, 2016, the account statement produced by the bank reflected an account balance of only $662.41. Id. Additionally, the July 2016 statement did not show a $600,000 withdrawal on July 14, 2016. Id.

I. Defendant's Bankruptcy Case and this Adversary Proceeding

On September 12, 2017, Defendant filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On September 25, 2017, Defendant filed his schedules and statements [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 9]. On November 29, 2017, Plaintiffs filed a complaint against Defendant, requesting denial of Defendant's discharge and nondischargeability of the debt owed to Plaintiffs. In connection with this adversary proceeding, on May 1, 2018, Plaintiffs deposed Defendant about, among other things, Defendant's representations in his petition, schedules and statements. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT.

For instance, in his schedule A/B, Defendant scheduled an interest in DMI, but did not list Dimagic. In response to item 27 of his Statement of Financial Affairs ("SOFA"), which called for Defendant to list any businesses he owned, Defendant listed DMI, but did not make any reference to Dimagic. During his deposition, Defendant testified that Dimagic did not have any assets. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 282:2-5. Defendant also testified that Dimagic was a new entity. Id. As of the petition date, Dimagic had $68.66 in its account. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit GGG, p. 313. However, prior to the petition date, Defendant would deposit substantial amounts of money into Dimagic's account and use the account to pay for personal expenses. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit GGG, 280-325. Moreover, shortly after the petition date, Defendant deposited $21,230.83 into Dimagic's account. Id.

In his schedule A/B, Defendant also scheduled $700 in furniture. In his schedule C, Defendant claimed an exemption in the furniture for the full $700. At his deposition, Defendant indicated that, after the petition date, Defendant gave his furniture to a man named Richard Lambert in order to satisfy a debt owed to Mr. Lambert. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 274-75. Defendant did not list Mr. Lambert as a creditor in his schedule E/F.

In his schedule I, Defendant indicated that he is unemployed and listed "$0.00" in monthly income. In his schedule J, Defendant listed a total of $8,131 per month in expenses. In his SOFA, Defendant indicated that he earned a total of $32,948 in 2015 and 2016, but a total of "$0.00" in 2017 from January until the petition date. During his deposition, Defendant acknowledged that, in 2016, he earned approximately $7,000 in France that he did not report in his SOFA. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 302:16-305:9. Defendant testified that he believed he did not have to report income earned overseas. Id. Defendant also testified that he was paid cash for work he did for the United Nations. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 424:24-429:5.

Nevertheless, Defendant's banking and other records indicated that, on January 5, 2015, Defendant received $56,626.86 in royalties from the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers ("ASCAP") into DMI's account. Painter Declaration, ¶¶ 14-15, Exhibit GGG, p.231, Exhibit HHH. In addition, Defendant's banking records reflect several deposits between 2015 and 2017. Painter Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibits FFF, GGG.

In his SOFA, Defendant also indicated that, within two years before the petition date, Defendant had not given any gifts to third parties with a value of more than $600. However, during his deposition, Defendant testified that he paid Ms. Rich's association fees and other expenses on the Mulholland Property "because she was going through a hardship." Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 319:20-22. Defendant also testified that he gave a friend $1,400 as a gift. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 351:20-352:14.

In his petition, Defendant indicated his address is 5737 Kanan Road, #117, Agoura Hills, California 91301. In his schedule A/B, Defendant indicated that he does not own any real property. Despite Ms. Rich being listed as the buyer on the escrow papers and Defendant's testimony that he was paying homeowners' association fees on behalf of Ms. Rich, Plaintiffs suggest that Defendant may have purchased the Mulholland Property for himself in the name of Ms. Rich and that Defendant is currently living at the Mulholland Property. Plaintiffs base this conclusion in part on the fact that Defendant paid many of the expenses related to the Mulholland Property, including association fees, utilities and taxes. Painter Declaration, ¶¶ 26-28, Exhibits

QQQ-SSS. On some of the checks used to make payments on the Mulholland Property, Defendant included memo lines indicating that the payments were made on behalf of himself. Painter Declaration, ¶ 26, Exhibit QQQ. In addition, a process server attempting to serve Ms. Rich found only Defendant at the Mulholland Property. Declaration of Luis Morato [doc. 46].

Moreover, in response to item 3 of the SOFA, Defendant indicated he had not lived with a spouse in a community property state within eight years of the petition date. Nevertheless, at his deposition, Defendant testified that he had obtained a divorce from Ms. Rich in 2012. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 293:14-18. During his deposition, Defendant also testified that he sold recording equipment on Craigslist for an aggregate price of between $20,000 and $22,000. SUF, ¶ 45; Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 299:4-14. Defendant did not disclose these transfers. Defendant also testified that he kept gear in a storage unit until February or March 2017. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 305:15-307:9. Defendant did not list the storage unit in his SOFA. At his deposition, Defendant also testified that an individual named Mark Romans owed Defendant $2,000 as of the petition date. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 325:21-326:3. Defendant did not include this debt in his schedules.

At his deposition, Defendant testified that Mr. Sterling received between $500,000 and $1 million of Plaintiffs' money. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 111:6-112:10. Defendant also testified that Mr. Sterling was the one who represented that artists such as Mick Jagger had agreed to perform. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 127:11-130:2. Despite this testimony, Defendant's bank records showed a total of $55,000 paid to Mr. Sterling. Painter Declaration, ¶ 12, Exhibit DDD.

Defendant also testified that he never had any discussions with anyone with respect to securing performances from Justin Bieber, Diana Ross, Stevie Wonder, Christina Aguilera, Coldplay, Radiohead, Beyoncé, The Eagles or Don Felder. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 179:25-180:19. Defendant further testified that he was not aware of any artist accepting any deposit related to the Charity Concert. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 206:23-207:3. Finally, Defendant testified that he never had any discussions with attorneys related about the Charity Concert. Painter Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit TT, 91:11-16. Defendant testified that Mr. Sterling communicated with attorneys. Id.

On July 23, 2018, Plaintiffs filed a motion for summary judgment (the "MSJ") [doc. 40]. Through the MSJ, Plaintiffs request nondischargeability of the debt owed to them under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4) (on the bases of embezzlement and defalcation) and (a)(6). Plaintiffs also request denial of Defendant's discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2), (a)(3), (a)(4) and (a)(5). Plaintiffs also request prejudgment interest and punitive damages against Defendant. On July 31, 2018, Defendant filed a response to the MSJ (the "Response") [doc. 52]. In the Response, which is not supported by a declaration under penalty of perjury, Defendant asserts that he paid Mr. Sterling or AEI $55,000 and that Mr. Sterling was the one who "stole" the funds from Plaintiffs. Defendant further states that Plaintiffs also hired other companies to prepare for the Charity Concert, and that the involvement of the other entities is the reason the Charity Concert never happened.

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Motion for Summary Judgment Standard

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 56, applicable to this adversary proceeding under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 7056, the Court shall grant summary judgment if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2509-10, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986); Rule 56; FRBP 7056. "By its very terms, this standard provides that the mere existence of some alleged factual dispute between the parties will not defeat an otherwise properly supported motion for summary judgment; the requirement is that there be no genuine issue of material fact." 477 U.S. at 247-48 (emphasis in original).

As to materiality, the substantive law will identify which facts are material. Only disputes over facts that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will properly preclude the entry of summary judgment. Factual disputes that are irrelevant or unnecessary will not be counted. . . . [S]ummary judgment will not lie if the dispute about a material fact is "genuine," that is, if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party. . . .

Id. at 248–50 (internal citations omitted). Additionally, issues of law are appropriate to be decided in a motion for summary judgment. See Camacho v. Du Sung Corp., 121 F.3d 1315, 1317 (9th Cir. 1997).

The initial burden is on the moving party to show that no genuine issues of material fact exist based on "the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2553, 91 L.Ed. 265 (1986). Once the moving party meets its initial burden, the nonmoving party bearing "the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue" must identify facts beyond what is contained in the pleadings that show genuine issues of fact remain. Id., at 324; see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256 ("Rule 56(e) itself provides that a party opposing a properly supported motion for summary judgment may not rest upon mere allegation or denials of his pleading, but must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.").

The nonmoving party meets this burden through the presentation of "evidentiary materials" listed in Rule 56, such as depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations, stipulations, admissions, and interrogatory answers. Id. To establish a genuine issue, the non-moving party "must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts." Matsushita Electrical Industry Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586, 106 S.Ct. 1348, 1356, 89 L.Ed.2d 538 (1986); see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252 ("The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the [non-moving party's] position will be insufficient."). Rather, the nonmoving party must provide "evidence of such a caliber that 'a fair-minded jury could return a verdict for the [nonmoving party] on the evidence presented.'" U.S. v. Wilson, 881 F.2d 596, 601 (9th Cir. 1989) (quoting Anderson, 477 U.S. at 266).

B. Burden of Proof

The plaintiff's burden of proof in a nondischargeability action under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a) is "the ordinary preponderance-of-the-evidence standard." Grogan v. Garner, 498 U.S. 279, 291, 111 S.Ct. 654, 661, 112 L.Ed.2d 755 (1991). "Proof by the preponderance of the evidence means that it is sufficient to persuade the finder of fact that the proposition is more likely true than not." In re Arnold & Baker Farms, 177

C. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the plaintiff must demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

1. Defendant's Misrepresentations

Here, Plaintiffs have proven by a preponderance of the evidence that Defendant made misrepresentations to Plaintiffs. Prior to the initial deposit of $40,844, Defendant, through emails, informed Plaintiffs that he needed the funds to secure performances by several celebrity performers, including Mick Jagger, Bruno Mars and Justin Timberlake. Defendant represented to Plaintiffs that the parties were in danger of losing the artists and damaging their reputations if Plaintiffs did not immediately wire the funds to Defendant. In addition, Defendant represented to Plaintiffs that he needed $150,000 to secure performances by Mick Jagger and Earth, Wind & Fire. Once again, rather than use the funds to secure these performances, Defendant used the funds on personal expenditures. As to the $750,000, Defendant again informed Plaintiffs that he needed the funds to secure performances from several well-known artists and threatened that several artists would withdraw if Plaintiffs did not pay. Again, Defendant used these funds to fund his lifestyle instead of secure performances by artists.

As to the $53,300, Defendant initially represented that he needed the funds to pay for public relations and legal fees after the Charity Concert received unfavorable local press. Later, Defendant represented that he needed the funds to secure Mick Jagger and Earth, Wind & Fire. Defendant did not use the funds for either of these purposes; instead, Defendant used the money on personal expenses. As such, all of the above constitute misrepresentations, and Plaintiffs have met their burden of proving the first element of § 523(a)(2)(A).

2. Knowledge of Falsity and Intent to Deceive

A promise made without a present intent to perform satisfies § 523(a)(2)(A). In re Rubin, 875 F.2d 755, 759 (9th Cir. 1989); In re Barrack, 217 B.R. 598, 606 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1998). "In addition, where the promisor knew or should have known of his prospective inability to perform, the promise can be found to be fraudulent." In re Tran, 301 B.R. 576, 582 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2003) (citing Barrack, 217 B.R. at 606). "[A] statement made with reckless indifference to the truth is sufficient to satisfy the requirement of a fraudulent representation by the plaintiff." Id. (citing In re Anastas, 94 F.3d 1280, 1286 (9th Cir. 1996); and In re Ettell, 188 F.3d 1141, 1145 n.4 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999).

Because intent is difficult to prove through direct evidence, it "may be established by circumstantial evidence, or by inferences drawn from a course of conduct. Therefore, in determining whether the debtor had no intention to perform, a court may look to all the surrounding facts and circumstances." In re Barrack, 217 B.R. 598, 607 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1998); see also In re Eashai, 87 F.3d 1082, 1087 (9th Cir. 1996) ("[A] court may infer the existence of the debtor's intent... if the facts and circumstances of a particular case present a picture of deceptive conduct by the debtor."). requirement for a fraudulent misrepresentation is established by showing either actual knowledge of the falsity of a statement, or reckless disregard for its truth." In re Gertsch, 237 B.R. 160, 167 (9th Cir. 1999) (internal quotation omitted).

Plaintiffs met their burden of proving that Defendant made the misrepresentations above with knowledge of the falsity of the statements and with an intent to deceive Plaintiffs. At the very least, Defendant acted with reckless indifference to the truth of his statements. There is substantial circumstantial evidence demonstrating that Defendant represented to Plaintiffs that he would secure several artists for the Charity Concert while knowing he would not use the funds for that purpose and intending to deceive Plaintiffs to fund Defendant's lifestyle.

First, as to the initial deposit of $40,844, Defendant represented to Plaintiffs that he had received a "verbal yes" from both Mick Jagger and Earth, Wind & Fire to perform at the Charity Concert. In response to Defendant's representations that he had secured both artists, Plaintiffs wired two payments of $9,960 to Defendant. Within a week of the first deposit and on the same day as the second deposit, Defendant withdrew the funds from DMI's account and began depositing the funds into his personal account for personal use. Defendant then began pressuring Plaintiffs to wire the rest of the $40,844 to Defendant by informing them that failing to pay would be "extremely dangerous" and that their reputations would be damaged. Instead of using the funds to secure artists, Defendant again withdrew the funds or used DMI's or his personal debit cards to make personal purchases using the cards.

As to the $150,000 deposit, Defendant sent Plaintiffs an Artist Acquisition Invoice promising to return the funds or apply the funds to a different artist if Mick Jagger or Earth, Wind & Fire did not perform. Immediately upon receiving the funds from Plaintiffs, Defendant transferred the $150,000 into his personal account and, on the very same day, withdrew $62,853.18 in cash. The next day, Defendant used $13,136.23 to pay his personal credit card, and, within the next six days, Defendant withdrew another $38,101.84. Defendant then used the remaining funds on personal expenses. Again, in light of the declarations filed by these artists' talent agents, Defendant never used the funds to secure Mick Jagger or Earth, Wind & Fire. Instead, Defendant rapidly depleted the funds by paying his personal expenses or converting the funds into cash.

Regarding the $53,300, Defendant first informed Plaintiffs that he needed the funds to cover defamation and legal fees. Defendant represented in one of his emails that he was worried about defamation because some of the artists "have not legally been acquired... to perform." Botev Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit J, Panev Declaration, ¶ 2, Exhibit CC. After Plaintiffs emailed Defendant about the invoice, Defendant then changed his story and stated he needed the funds to secure Mick Jagger and Earth, Wind & Fire as performers. Defendant threatened to quit if Plaintiffs did not furnish the funds. Immediately after Plaintiffs wired the funds to Defendant, Defendant withdrew the funds and deposited the funds into his personal account. Defendant then withdrew the funds in cash and continued to spend the funds on himself.

To receive the final $750,000 from Plaintiffs, Defendant again created a false sense of urgency. Defendant promised to secure several well-known artists, including Jennifer Lopez, Roger Waters and John Legend, but informed Plaintiffs that the deal would expire unless Plaintiffs wired $750,000 by the next day. Defendant initially sent Plaintiffs an invoice by an entity called One Talent Agency. However, when Plaintiffs asked Defendant questions about One Talent Agency, such as the entity's registration number or account information, Defendant sent Plaintiffs an invoice from DMI instead.

To apply additional pressure on Plaintiffs, Defendant continued to represent to Plaintiffs that they would "lose every artist" if Plaintiffs did not wire the funds. Defendant also promised that, if an artist did not commit, Plaintiffs would receive a refund. After Plaintiffs insisted on certain changes to the agreement, Defendant forwarded to Plaintiffs an email purporting to be from a man named Neil Epstein, in which the author informed Plaintiffs that their requests were unusual and that the artists would "pass on this event" if they did not receive the money. After numerous emails from Defendant, in which Defendant repeatedly told Plaintiffs they were about to lose all of the artists, and after Defendant agreed to place the funds in an escrow account and refund the money if artists did not commit, Plaintiffs wired the $750,000 to Defendant. At his deposition, Defendant testified that he never communicated with many of the artists named in Defendant's emails to Plaintiffs.

Despite Defendant's statements about the urgency of the deal, Defendant kept the $750,000 in DMI's account for four days. On August 9, 2016, Defendant transferred the entire $750,000 into his personal account. Throughout the month of August, Defendant withdrew a total of $305,790.19 in cash, used $251,370 to purchase the Mulholland Property and depleted significant sums by spending thousands of dollars on expensive personal purchases, such as clothing, dining and electronics. Eventually, Defendant depleted all of Plaintiffs' funds by withdrawing the funds as cash or spending the funds on Defendant's lifestyle. To date, Defendant has not repaid Plaintiffs any of the funds.

Although Defendant's actions at the time he made the representations establish that Defendant knew the representations were false and that Defendant intended to deceive Plaintiffs, Defendant's subsequent actions also bolster the Court's finding that Defendant possessed fraudulent intent at the time he induced Plaintiffs to transfer the funds. For example, after Plaintiffs requested a refund, Defendant falsely informed Plaintiffs that Mr. Dachev had allowed Defendant to keep the funds for a concert in June 2017. Later, in state court, Defendant produced an email, purportedly from Mr. Dachev, stating that Defendant could keep the funds. Plaintiffs' expert in state court believed the email was a forgery.

Defendant also attempted to blame Mr. Sterling for taking Plaintiffs' funds. To support his argument, Plaintiff produced a check in the amount of $600,000 allegedly issued to Mr. Sterling. However, Defendant's bank records demonstrated that the check was actually in the amount of $10,000. In state court, Defendant also produced a bank statement reflecting a balance of $715,662.41 in DMI's account as of July 14, 2016. The actual bank statement from that time period reflected a balance of $662.41.

Moreover, Defendant repeatedly changed the artists he promised he would secure for the Charity Concert. Initially, Defendant promised Mick Jagger, Earth, Wind & Fire, Rod Stewart, "J. Depp," Slash, Bruno Mars and Justin Timberlake. Later, Defendant informed Plaintiffs he would be able to secure Jennifer Lopez, Robbie Williams, Roger Waters, Don Felder, Christina Aguilera and John Legend. Defendant also mentioned Blondie and the Beach Boys. Finally, after asking Plaintiffs to move the Charity Concert to December 2016, Defendant told Plaintiffs he had communicated with managers for Lenny Kravitz, Alicia Keys and Calvin Harris. Nevertheless, at his deposition, Defendant acknowledged that he had never communicated with any of these artists or their representatives and that, as far as he knew, none of the artists retained any deposits of funds. In light of the substantial circumstantial evidence above, the Court finds Defendant knew that his representations to Plaintiffs were false and that Defendant intended to deceive Plaintiffs.

3. Justifiable Reliance

Plaintiffs also have met their burden of proving that Plaintiffs justifiably relied on Defendant's statements. Plaintiffs are based in Bulgaria and relied on Defendant's knowledge of the American music industry. Moreover, on several occasions, Defendant forwarded to Plaintiffs emails from purported third parties stressing that Plaintiffs' funds were necessary to proceed with securing performances for the Charity Concert. Defendant held himself out as someone with numerous and meaningful connections in the music industry. As a result, Plaintiffs' reliance was justifiable.

4. Damages Proximately Caused by Reliance

Plaintiffs also proved, by a preponderance of the evidence, that their damages (the extent of which is discussed below) were proximately caused by their reliance on Defendant's statements and conduct. Defendant's transferred funds and incurred costs in reliance on Defendant's assurance that he would secure performances for the Charity Concert. Defendant did not secure any such performances, and, as a result, Plaintiffs were injured in the amounts discussed below.

D. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement, or larceny."

1. Embezzlement

"Federal law and not state law controls the definition of embezzlement for purposes of section 523(a)(4)." In re Wada, 210 B.R. 572, 576 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997).

"Embezzlement is defined as 'the fraudulent appropriation of property by a person to whom such property has been [e]ntrusted or into whose hands it has lawfully come.'" Id. (quoting Moore v. United States, 160 U.S. 268, 269, 16 S.Ct. 294, 295, 40 L.Ed. 422 (1895)).

First, the funds were rightfully in the possession of Defendant, a nonowner of the funds. In In re Wada, 210 B.R. 572 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997), the creditor hired the debtor, doing business as Uniglobe Carriage Travel, to arrange travel for the creditor. Wada, 210 B.R. at 574. To secure travel accommodations, the creditor advanced a total of $119,400 to the debtor with the expectation that, if the creditor canceled travel plans, the creditor would receive a refund. Id. After the creditor canceled an upcoming trip, the debtor admitted she had kept part of the advanced funds for her personal use. Id.

Subsequently, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition and the creditor moved for dischargeability of the debt owed to it under the embezzlement prong of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4). Id., at 575. In its analysis on appeal, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") found that the first element of embezzlement was present in Wada. Id., at 576-77. Specifically, the BAP held that the debtor was a "nonowner" of the funds:

Here, it is undisputed that the funds transferred to the Debtor within her role as travel agent did not contain compensation for her services. The Debtor had no contractual right to any part of the funds. Her only role was to act as a conduit of the funds; to apply them exclusively for the arrangement of travel accommodations. Money received by travel agents to be paid to travel providers is not income.

[T]he fact the Debtor had lawful possession of the funds and wide discretion to dispose of the funds on behalf of the Appellant is insufficient to confer ownership of the funds to the Debtor. The funds given to the Debtor were not authorized to be used for anything other than travel arrangements. The funds were not a gift, nor did they contain compensation for the Debtor's services. The Debtor took the funds and put them to a use not intended by the Appellant.

Id. (internal citation omitted).

As in Wada, Defendant was a "nonowner" of the funds. Defendant did not have a contractual right to the funds, and Plaintiffs did not furnish the funds to Defendant as compensation for his services. Instead, as established through the string of emails between the parties, Defendant's role was to "act as a conduit of the funds," as in Wada, by using the funds to secure performances for the Charity Concert or, in the case of the $53,300 transferred to Defendant, to pay for public relations and legal costs associated with promotion of the Charity Concert. Wada, 210 B.R. at 576-77. Plaintiffs did not authorize Defendant's use of the funds for any other use. As such, upon the transfer of the funds to Defendant, Defendant was rightfully in possession of the funds but continued to be a "nonowner" acting as a conduit between Plaintiffs and third parties, such as artists, lawyers and publicists, who were intended to be the final recipients of the funds. Consequently, the first element of embezzlement is satisfied.

b. Nonowner's Misappropriation of Property to Use Other Than That for Which it was Entrusted Plaintiffs also demonstrated that Defendant misappropriated the funds to a use other than that for which it was entrusted. Once again, the communications between the parties establish that Plaintiffs provided the funds to Defendant for two reasons: (A) as to the $53,300, for Defendant to pay legal and public relations fees to address unfavorable local press about the Charity Concert; and (B) as to the rest of the funds, to secure artists to perform at the Charity Concert. Defendant's banking records establish that Defendant did not use the funds for either of these purposes. Instead, upon transfer of the funds from DMI's account to his personal account, Defendant either depleted the funds through multiple cash withdrawals or spent the funds on a variety of personal expenses.

Despite responding to the MSJ, Defendant has not proffered any evidence that he spent any of the $53,300 on public relations or legal fees or that he spent any of the remaining funds on securing artists for the Charity Concert. In fact, the evidence shows the opposite. After receiving the first infusion of funds from Plaintiffs, in the amount of $40,844, Defendant immediately withdrew $32,226.86. Defendant spent the portion he did not withdraw on purchases at gas stations, grocery stores, coffee shops, pet stores, restaurants and other retail establishments. As to the $32,226.86, Defendant deposited part of these funds into his personal account, from which Defendant withdrew additional funds in cash and spent the remainder of the funds on personal expenses, including telephone payments and clothing.

Plaintiffs then provided Defendant approximately $150,000 for the sole purpose of securing Mick Jagger and Earth, Wind & Fire. Agents for both artists provided testimony that neither Defendant nor Mr. Sterling ever negotiated for either artist's performance at the Charity Concert in Sofia, Bulgaria. Once again, upon receiving the funds from Plaintiffs, Defendant immediately withdrew $155,600 from DMI's account and deposited the funds into his personal account. Defendant then made multiple cash withdrawals, paid off his personal credit card and spent the remaining funds on personal expenses.

As to the $53,300 deposited by Plaintiffs, Defendant informed Plaintiffs he would use the funds for "legal defamation PR," "legal attorney fees" and "administrative services." Botev Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibit J. Instead, Defendant moved the funds from DMI's account to his personal account and then, within two and a half weeks of receiving the $53,300, withdrew a total of $61,831.69 as cash. Defendant continued to use any remaining funds in his account on personal expenses.

The final $750,000 Plaintiffs sent to Defendant was to be used to secure performances by multiple artists. However, Defendant acknowledged at this deposition that he never actually communicated to many of these named artists or their representatives. Defendant also immediately transferred the $750,000 to his personal account and withdrew a total of $305,790.19 in cash throughout the month of August 2016. From these funds, Defendant deposited $150,000 into Dimagic's account, which he then used for personal expenses. Defendant also used $251,370 of the $750,000 to purchase the Mulholland Property allegedly for Ms. Rich. From August 2016 until October 2016, Defendant expended substantial sums on personal purchases, both lavish and ordinary. By September 2016, Defendant had closed out DMI's account with an $87 balance. By June 2017, Defendant whittled down the funds in his personal account to $147.16 and, as of the petition date, Defendant had used all but $68.66 from Dimagic's account.

The only argument offered by Defendant in response to misappropriation is that Defendant issued checks totaling $55,000 to Mr. Sterling or AEI. However, to the extent the payments to Mr. Sterling or AEI were made using Plaintiffs' funds (it is unclear from which account Defendant issued the checks), Plaintiffs did not authorize any transfers to either Mr. Sterling or AEI. Moreover, there is no indication whatsoever that Defendant transferred the funds to Mr. Sterling or AEI for the purpose of securing performances for the Charity Concert or paying public relations or attorneys' fees in response to the press conference promoting the Charity Concert. Because Defendant only had authority to use the funds within the parameters drawn by Plaintiffs, and Plaintiffs never authorized a transfer of funds to Mr. Sterling or AEI, any transfer of Plaintiffs' funds to Mr. Sterling or AEI was a misappropriation of the funds. Further, Defendant's additional arguments that other companies were responsible for preparing for the Charity Concert is irrelevant to whether Defendant misappropriated the funds entrusted to him. In light of the above, the second element of embezzlement is also satisfied.

c. Circumstances Indicating Fraud

For the reasons stated above, Defendant acted with fraudulent intent. However, even if the Court found that Plaintiffs had not satisfied the elements of § 523(a)(2)(A), Plaintiffs have demonstrated that there were "circumstances indicating fraud" for purposes of embezzlement.

Courts within the Ninth Circuit appear to disagree on whether fraudulent intent is required as to this element and, if so, what kind of fraudulent intent satisfies this element. See In re Wolf, 577 B.R. 327, 344-45 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2017) ("[I]t appears to be unsettled whether fraudulent intent is required for this section. The Ninth Circuit has made 'no determination concerning whether federal law requires a finding of fraudulent intent for larceny....'" (quoting In re Ormsby, 591 F.3d 1199, 1205-06 (9th Cir. 2010)); see also In re Leverton, 2014 WL 3724162, at *3 (Bankr. D. Ariz. Jul. 25, 2014) ("Courts in the Ninth Circuit disagree whether misrepresentation is required to establish 'circumstances indicating fraud' under § 523(a)(4).").

the United States' decision in Husky Int'l Elecs., Inc. v. Ritz, 136 S.Ct. 1581, 194 L.Ed.2d 655 (2016), found that "circumstances indicating fraud" for purposes of embezzlement is "not synonymous" with an "intent to defraud" as required by § 523(a)(2)(A):

Debtor primarily asserts error because the state court did not make an explicit finding of fraud. We acknowledge this point but find it inapposite. The finding required for a determination of § 523(a)(4) embezzlement is that Debtor's actions indicated fraud. Such a determination is not synonymous with an intent to defraud as required under § 523(a)(2)(A). And even if it were, § 523(a)(2)(A) does not necessarily require a misrepresentation as Debtor argues. Recently in Husky Int'l Elecs., Inc. v. Ritz, 136 S. Ct. 1581 (2016), the United States Supreme Court clarified that misrepresentation is not an element of actual fraud under § 523(a)(2)(A). That is, actual fraud may include a wider array of misconduct. The record here sufficiently establishes misconduct that falls within the broader definition of actual fraud and even more plainly meets the § 523(a)(4) requirement of indicia of fraud.

Other courts appear to agree that, unlike § 523(a)(2)(A), the intent to defraud need not be present at the time of the misrepresentation or for the purpose of inducing the creditor to furnish funds. For instance, several courts have held that a debtor's subsequent concealment of misappropriated funds satisfies the "circumstances indicating fraud" element of embezzlement. See In re Hatch, 465 B.R. 479, 487 (Bankr. W.D. Mich. 2012) ("Because embezzlement, by definition, involves a situation in which the debtor initially has lawful possession of the property at issue, it is not necessary for a creditor to prove that a debtor's misrepresentations induced it to part with property. Rather, the creditor needs only to prove misappropriation and 'circumstances indicating fraud,' such as circumstances suggesting that the debtor intended to conceal the misappropriation.").

In Wada, the BAP noted that, after the debtor misappropriated the creditor's funds, the debtor "informed [the creditor] that she was unable to refund approximately $84,000.00 of the forwarded funds because she had incurred non-refundable deposits." Wada, 210 B.R. at 577. However, "when faced with discovery of the false statement, the Debtor admitted the deposits had never been made." Id. The BAP held that these facts were sufficient to qualify as "circumstances indicating fraud." Id.

In Wolf, the bankruptcy court held that the plaintiff had not proven its claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) because the representations at issue "were not shown to be false at the time they were made." Wolf, 577 B.R. at 343. However, the court found that the plaintiff had proven its claim of embezzlement and shown "circumstances indicating fraud" based on the following:

If intent is required, the evidence here easily supports Defendant's fraudulent intent. As detailed earlier, the Defendant admitted not paying for all of the diamonds he received and tried to blame others or valuation issues. The circumstances surrounding how Wolf managed the books and records of his business suggest that he did not want the business dealings to be easily traced. In particular, the regular destruction of the cash books and the inability to account for individual missing stones despite each stone being accompanied by a memo suggests a willful disregard for sound bookkeeping that could only inure to Defendant's benefit. Defendant's ever-changing narrative regarding the reasons for missing diamonds and his conduct in replacing the hard drive of a computer after learning that Paz was seeking access to the data it contained also show that he fraudulently and willfully took Plaintiff's diamonds for himself. The third element of embezzlement is satisfied.

Id., at 345. As such, in Wolf, although the bankruptcy court did not find that the debtor fraudulently induced the creditor to give the debtor diamonds for purposes of § 523(a)(2)(A), the debtor's subsequent behavior after the debtor misappropriated the diamonds satisfied the "circumstances indicating fraud" element. See also In re Kaplan, 2016 WL 1321138, at *13 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2016) (relying on Wada and finding that the debtor's lies regarding what the debtor did with the creditor's funds satisfied the "circumstances indicating fraud" element of embezzlement).

Moreover, "courts have held that a debtor's intent to pay back the money she or he does not own, does not negate the intent to defraud" for purposes of embezzlement. In re Halsam, 2016 WL 4441228, at *3 (Bankr. D. Ariz. Aug. 22, 2016) (collecting cases); see also In re Bevilacqua, 53 B.R. 331, 334 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1985) (holding that, although the debtor intended to use the funds only temporarily, the plaintiff was deprived of his property and demonstrated embezzlement for purposes of section 523(a)(4)); and Matter of Shuler, 21 B.R. 643, 644 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1982) ("The fact that the intent is to deprive the rightful owner of the funds only temporarily and not permanently ... does not eliminate the element of intent.").

Here, Plaintiffs also met their burden of proving that there existed circumstances indicating fraud surrounding Defendant's misappropriation of funds. First, like in cases above, Defendant actively concealed his misappropriation of funds. After Plaintiffs sued Defendant, Defendant claimed he had sent $600,000 of Plaintiffs' funds to Mr. Sterling for use to secure artists and produced a receipt for a bank check dated July 14, 2016. However, after Plaintiffs subpoenaed Defendant's bank records, they discovered that the check was for a transfer of $10,000, not $600,000. Based on Defendant's banking records, Defendant has given Mr. Sterling and/or AEI a total of $55,000. As noted above, Defendant continues to blame Mr. Sterling for the disappearance of Plaintiffs' funds.

In addition, Defendant produced a bank statement in state court showing that DMI had $715,662.41 in its bank account as of July 14, 2016. Defendant's actual bank records reflected a balance of only $662.41. Further, Plaintiffs' expert from state court believed that Defendant forged emails purporting to show that Mr. Dachev consented to Defendant keeping Plaintiffs' funds to secure performances for a June 2017 concert.

Moreover, Defendant repeatedly pressured Plaintiffs to send Defendant money by creating a false sense of urgency. Prior to many of the deposits from Plaintiffs, Defendant would name several well-known musical artists from whom Defendant had allegedly received verbal confirmations and concurrently state that the artists would be unavailable if Plaintiffs did not immediately provide the funds. For instance, prior to the initial transfer of $40,844, Defendant forwarded an email allegedly written by a "J.F." informing Plaintiffs that he had "verbally confirmed" that "J. Depp, SIR Mick Jagger, Rod Stewart, Slash, Bruno Mars [and] Justin Timberlake" would be available but that, if Plaintiffs did not immediately transfer the requested money, "[a]ll this is for nothing." Botev Declaration, ¶ 11, Exhibit G. Defendant also told Plaintiffs that failing to provide the funds to Defendant would be "extremely dangerous" to their reputations. Botev Declaration, ¶ 9, Exhibit E. Despite Defendant's noted urgency, upon receiving the $40,844, Defendant immediately withdrew the funds as cash or spent the funds on Defendant's own personal expenses.

Prior to receiving the $750,000 deposit which Defendant represented he would use to secure performances from Jennifer Lopez, Robbie Williams, Don Felder, Roger Waters and Pink!, Defendant sent Plaintiffs a Deal Offer Form set to expire one day later. Panev Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit FF. Once again, through several emails to Plaintiffs, Defendant repeatedly threatened that all the artists would withdraw if Plaintiffs did not immediately wire the $750,000 requested by Defendant. Instead of using the $750,000 to secure artists, Defendant either withdrew the funds as cash or spent the funds on his own expenses. Evidently, there was no actual emergency need for funds for the purpose of securing artists.

Aside from Defendant's emails regarding the urgent need for funds, Defendant also resisted providing information about One Talent Agency to Plaintiffs after Defendant sent Plaintiffs a Deal Offer Form using One Talent Agency's letterhead. Plaintiffs requested information about One Talent Agency's registration number, address, representatives, bank accounts and contacts. Instead of providing this information to Plaintiffs, Defendant informed Plaintiffs that, if Plaintiffs paid One Talent Agency directly, they would incur significant taxes. Defendant then sent Plaintiffs a different agreement using DMI's letterhead and instructed Plaintiffs to wire the $750,000 into DMI's account. When Plaintiffs asked Defendant to place the funds in an escrow account they could monitor, Defendant stalled, continued to pressure Plaintiffs under the threat of losing artists and, despite reassuring Plaintiffs that he would create an escrow account, never did. Instead, Defendant withdrew all of the funds as cash or spent the funds on his own personal expenses.

Moreover, although Defendant initially represented to Plaintiffs that he needed $53,300 to cover public relations costs and legal fees, Defendant later told Mr. Panev that he could not secure performances from Mick Jagger or Earth, Wind & Fire without the transfer of $53,300. When Mr. Panev informed Defendant that Plaintiffs had already paid approximately $150,000 to secure these performances, Defendant threatened to resign.

Eventually, Defendant emailed Plaintiffs informing them that "an entire group of managers" wanted to postpone the Charity Concert to December 1, 2016. Panev Declaration, ¶ 15, Exhibit PP. When Plaintiffs asked Defendant to return their funds, Defendant emailed Plaintiffs blaming Plaintiffs for the delay. Panev Declaration, ¶ 16, Exhibit QQ. In that email, Defendant told Plaintiffs that managers representing Lenny Kravitz, Alicia Keys and Calvin Harris were concerned about the Charity Concert, despite the fact that Defendant had never previously represented that he was attempting to secure any of these acts for the Charity Concert.

Initially, Defendant told Plaintiffs he would wire back the funds once artists returned deposits to Defendant. After additional requests from Plaintiffs, Defendant informed Mr. Panev that he had received confirmation from Mr. Dachev that Defendant could keep the funds to secure performances for the Charity Concert, which Defendant now represented would take place in June 2017. During all of the above communications with Plaintiffs, Defendant was converting Plaintiffs' funds into cash or spending Plaintiffs' funds on personal expenses. To date, Defendant has never returned any of the funds to Plaintiffs.

Finally, Defendant's spending dramatically increased after June 2016, when Plaintiffs made the initial deposit into DMI's account, and Defendant began spending large sums on personal goods and services. Defendant's banking records demonstrate that Defendant lived large on the misappropriated funds; Defendant spent significant sums on fine dining, expensive clothing, travel, at psychic stores and on several other personal goods and services. In light of these facts, there are several circumstances indicating fraud, and Plaintiffs have met their burden of demonstrating that Defendant embezzled funds within the meaning of § 523(a)(4).

2. Defalcation

A debt is nondischargeable for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity "where (1) an express trust existed, (2) the debt was caused by fraud or defalcation, and (3) the debtor acted as a fiduciary to the creditor at the time the debt was created." In re Niles, 106 F.3d 1456, 1459 (9th Cir. 1997).

question of federal law. Ragsdale v. Haller, 780 F.2d 794, 795 (9th Cir. 1986); see also In re Cantrell, 269 B.R. 413, 420 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001) ("The definition of 'fiduciary capacity' under § 523(a)(4) is governed by federal law."). In the context of dischargeability, the fiduciary relationship must arise from an express or technical trust that was imposed before and without reference to the wrongdoing that caused the debt. Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796. Under § 523(a)(4), the "scope of the term 'fiduciary capacity' is a question of federal law," but "the Ninth Circuit has considered state law to ascertain whether the requisite trust relationship exists." In re Honkanen, 446 B.R. 373, 379 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011); Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796.

"A trust under California law may be formed by express agreement, by statute, or by case law." Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420. An express trust under California law requires the following five elements: (1) present intent to create a trust; (2) a trustee; (3) trust property; (4) a proper legal purpose; and (5) a beneficiary. Honkanen, at 379 fn. 6 (citing Cal. Prob. Code §§ 15201–15205). A technical trust under California law is one "arising from the relation of attorney, executor, or guardian, and not to debts due by a bankrupt in the character of an agent, factor, commission merchant, and the like." Id., at n.7 (quoting Royal Indemnity Co. v. Sherman, 269 P.2d 123, 125 (Cal. Ct. App. 1954)). Additionally, "[t]rusts arising as remedial devices to breaches of implied or express contracts—such as resulting or constructive trusts—are excluded, while statutory trusts that bear the hallmarks of an express trust are not." Id. (citing In re Pedrazzini, 644 F.2d 756, 759 (9th Cir. 1981)).

Plaintiffs have not met their burden of demonstrating that an express, technical or statutory trust existed prior to the misappropriation of funds. Plaintiffs argue that Defendant's promise to create an escrow account was sufficient to create an express trust despite the fact that Defendant never created an escrow account or placed the $750,000 therein. Plaintiffs rely on In re Nassbridges, 434 B.R. 573 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2010). In Nassbridges, the bankruptcy court found that the debtor, an investment broker, owed a fiduciary duty to the plaintiffs because of the "great repose of confidence between a client and a more sophisticated investment broker, and there was a trust res." Nassbridges, 343 B.R. at 587-88. After an appeal of the bankruptcy court's decision in Nassbridges, the BAP found that "a technical trust relationship, at minimum, existed between [the debtor] and [the plaintiffs]...." In re Nassbridges, 2011 WL 3244396, at *14 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Chapter 7

Here, Plaintiffs have neither shown that Defendant held a "more sophisticated" position, such as that of an investment broker, or that an express, statutory or technical trust existed between the parties prior to Defendant's embezzlement of the funds. As a result, Plaintiff has not met its burden of demonstrating defalcation for purposes of § 523(a)(4).

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity."

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S.Ct. 974, 977 (1998). Debts "arising from recklessly or negligently inflicted injuries do not fall within the compass of § 523(a)(6)." Id., 523 U.S. at 64. It suffices, however, if the debtor knew that harm to the creditor was "substantially certain." In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1145–46 (9th Cir. 2002); In re Jercich, 238 F.3d 1202, 1208 (9th Cir. 2001) ("[T]he willful injury requirement of § 523(a)(6) is met when it is shown either that the debtor had a subjective motive to inflict the injury or that the debtor believed that injury was substantially certain to occur as a result of his conduct.") (emphasis in Jercich).

Under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Maliciousness requires (1) a wrongful act; (2) done intentionally; (3) which necessarily causes injury; (4) without just cause or excuse. Id., at 1147. Maliciousness does not require "personal hatred, spite, or will-will." In re Bammer, 131 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 1997).

Plaintiffs offer only the following analysis with respect to § 523(a)(6)—

Here, the record is clear that DiMaggio acted willfully and maliciously. As shown at length, DiMaggio repeatedly lied about why he needed Plaintiffs' money, what he was going to do with it and what he actually did with it, all in an effort to extract more money from the Foundation.

MSJ, p. 29. To the extent this language implies that Plaintiffs are relying on Defendant's embezzlement as the "wrongful act" under § 523(a)(6), the Court notes that courts have found that embezzlement may serve as the "wrongful act" for § 523(a)(6). See Wolf, 577 B.R. at 346 (collecting cases and finding that the debtor's embezzlement may serve as the tort basis for the plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(6)). As such, the Court will find that Defendant committed a "wrongful act."

However, Plaintiffs not having offered any analysis regarding whether the wrongful act was "done intentionally," "necessarily causes injury," or was committed "without just cause or excuse," the Court will not find that Defendant acted maliciously at this time. In addition, Plaintiffs have not offered any analysis or evidence that Defendant acted with an intent to injure Plaintiffs, as opposed to with an intent to commit the act in question. Thus, at this time, the Court also will not find that Defendant acted willfully.

Section 727(a)(2)(A)-(B) provides that a court shall grant a debtor a discharge unless "the debtor, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor or an officer of the estate charged with custody of property ... has transferred, removed, destroyed, mutilated, or concealed ... (A) property of the debtor, within one year before the date of the filing of the petition; or (B) property of the estate, after the date of the filing of the petition."

"Two elements comprise an objection to discharge under § 727(a)(2)(A): 1) a disposition of property, such as transfer or concealment, and 2) a subjective intent on the debtor's part to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor...." In re Beauchamp, 236 B.R. 727, 732 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). Intent may be inferred from the actions of the debtor. In re Devers, 759 F.2d 751, 753-54 (9th Cir. 1985). The necessary intent under § 727(a)(2) "may be established by circumstantial evidence, or by inferences drawn from a course of conduct." In re Adeeb, 787 F.2d 1339, 1343 (9th Cir.1986) (quoting Devers, 759 F.2d at 753-54).

"The standard for denial of discharge under § 727(a)(2)(B) is the same as § 727(a)(2)(A), but the disposition must be of estate property occurring after the petition date." In re Miller, 2015 WL 3750830, at *3 (Bankr. Plaintiffs assert that the Court should deny Defendant's discharge because Defendant allegedly concealed: (A) $1.5 million "in income," (B) his interest in Dimagic; (C) the sale of recording equipment and payments to storage units; and (D) some kind of interest or arrangement with respect to the Mulholland Property and Defendant's payments and gifts to his ex-wife. Plaintiffs also contend that Defendant transferred his furniture postpetition.

As to Defendant's "1.5 million in income," Plaintiffs have not separated the amounts Defendant embezzled from any income actually earned by Defendant. As explained above, embezzled money does not qualify as earned income. Wada, 210 B.R. at 576-77. For purposes of § 727(a)(2), the limited window is either one year prior to the petition date or postpetition. During the entirety of that time, Defendant was depositing embezzled funds into his accounts. As such, Plaintiffs have not demonstrated that, within the time frame set forth by § 727(a)(2), Defendant concealed actual "income."

With respect to Defendant's interest in Dimagic, it appears Dimagic was active both pre- and postpetition. However, Plaintiffs have not demonstrated that Defendant failed to schedule Dimagic with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors of the estate. The same is true for the sale of the recording equipment and the payments for storage. Plaintiffs did not demonstrate that Defendant failed to schedule these transfers with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors of the estate.

As to the transfer of furniture, Defendant claimed the furniture as exempt and no party in interest timely objected to Defendant's claim of exemption in the furniture. As such, Plaintiffs did not demonstrate that Defendant transferred the furniture with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors of the estate.

Finally, as concerns the Mulholland Property, the purchase of the Mulholland Property was prior to one year preceding the petition date. As for the payments Defendant made on the Mulholland Property, such as taxes and utilities, Plaintiffs did not meet their burden of proving that Defendant failed to schedule these transfers with intent to hinder, delay or defraud. Consequently, Plaintiffs have not met their burden of proof under § 727(a)(2).

Section 727(a)(3) places an affirmative duty on the debtor to keep and preserve records accurately documenting his or her business and personal affairs. See In re Caneva, 550 F.3d 755, 762 (9th Cir. 2008). Requiring accurate documentation "removes the risk to creditors of 'the withholding or concealment of assets by the bankrupt under cover of a chaotic or incomplete set of books or records.'" Id. (quoting Burchett v. Myers, 202 F.2d 920, 926 (9th Cir. 1953)). We strictly construe this exception to discharge in favor of the debtor's fresh start. Id.

To succeed on its objection to discharge under § 727(a)(3), Plaintiffs must show "(1) that [Defendant] failed to maintain and preserve adequate records, and (2) that such failure rendered it impossible to ascertain [Defendant's] financial condition and material business transactions." In re Cox, 41 F.3d 1294, 1296 (9th Cir. 1994) (quoting Meridian Bank v. Alten, 958 F.2d 1226, 1232 (3d Cir. 1992)). Generally, records are sufficient if they allow the court and creditors to trace the debtor's financial dealings. In re Ridley, 115 B.R. 731, 733 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1990).

As to their claim under § 727(a)(3), Plaintiffs assert that Defendant did not keep records of his income, such as ASCAP royalties, earnings from France, payments made towards the Mulholland House or records regarding DMI or Dimagic. However, Plaintiffs have not shown that they attempted to obtain such records from Defendant, or that the failure of Defendant to maintain such records has made it impossible for Plaintiffs to ascertain Defendant's financial condition. In light of the extensive banking and corporate records provided to the Court, Plaintiffs were able to subpoena Defendant's pertinent financial records from third parties.

Plaintiffs also assert that Defendant did not document certain transactions, such as the money owed to Defendant by Mr. Romans or income Defendant may have received from the United Nations. However, once again, Plaintiffs did not demonstrate that they attempted to obtain such records from Defendant or that Defendant had any such records. At his deposition, Defendant testified that he was paid cash for the work he did for the United Nations. There is no evidence that Defendant kept records of money owed to him by Mr. Romans.

Finally, Plaintiffs mention Defendant's attempts in state court to alter his financial records and present a false financial picture. However, Defendant did not alter his records in connection with his bankruptcy case, and Plaintiffs were able to obtain a comprehensive picture of Defendant's finances by issuing subpoenas to third parties. The Court will not enter summary judgment as to Plaintiffs' claim under § 727(a)(3).

Section 727(a)(4)(A) denies a discharge to a debtor who "knowingly and fraudulently" made a false oath or account in the course of the bankruptcy proceedings. To bring a successful § 727(a)(4)(A) claim for false oath, the plaintiff must show: (1) the debtor made a false oath in connection with the case; (2) the oath related to a material fact; (3) the oath was made knowingly; and (4) the oath was made fraudulently. In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 62 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). "[A] false oath may involve a false statement or omission in the debtor's schedules." In re Roberts, 331 B.R. 876, 882 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005), aff'd and remanded on other grounds, 241 F. App'x 420 (9th Cir. 2007).

"A fact is material if it bears a relationship to the debtor's business transactions or estate, or concerns the discovery of assets, business dealings, or the existence and disposition of the debtor's property." In re Retz, 606 F.3d 1189, 1198 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting Khalil, 379 B.R. at 173). "A debtor acts knowingly if he or she acts deliberately and consciously." Retz, 606 F.3d at 1198 (quoting Khalil, 379 B.R. at 173) (internal quotation omitted).

The fraud provision of § 727(a)(4) is similar to common law fraud, which the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has described as follows:

The creditor must show that (1) the debtor made the representations; (2) that at the time he knew they were false; (3) that he made them with the intention and purpose of deceiving the creditors; (4) that the creditors relied on such representations; (5) that the creditors sustained loss and damage as the proximate result of the representations having been made.

Roberts, 331 B.R. at 884. Intent must usually be established by circumstantial evidence or inferences drawn from the debtor's course of conduct. Khalil, 379 B.R. at 174 (circumstances might include multiple omissions or failure to clear up omissions). reckless disregard for the truth sufficient to support a finding of fraudulent intent" under § 727(a)(4). Stamat v. Neary, 635 F.3d 974, 982 (7th Cir. 2011).

As to § 727(a)(4), Plaintiffs assert that Defendant omitted or made a false oath about: (A) his earnings and income; (B) his ownership of Dimagic; (C) money owed to Defendant by Mr. Romans; (D) property kept in storage; and (E) certain transfers to third parties. Plaintiffs also assert that Defendant falsely testified at his deposition that he paid Mr. Sterling $500,000 to $1 million and that Dimagic was a new entity.

Regarding Defendant's earnings and income, the Court finds that Defendant made a false oath as to Defendant's earnings in 2015. The record demonstrates that Defendant received $56,626.86 from ASCAP in 2015. Nevertheless, in his SOFA, Defendant stated that he earned a combined total of $32,948 in 2015 and 2016. As such, Defendant made a false oath about his earnings in his SOFA. In addition, the false oath was material because the information has bearing on the size of Defendant's estate. As to the other deposits in account, the deposits either originated from embezzled funds or Plaintiffs have not demonstrated the origin of the funds. Thus, at this time, the Court does not find that Defendant falsely stated that he did not "earn" the rest of the deposits.

The Court also finds that Defendant omitted his ownership interest in Dimagic. Defendant should have listed Dimagic in his schedule A/B and his SOFA. The omission of Dimagic also was material because, as evidenced by Dimagic's corporate account records, Dimagic held significant funds before and after the petition date. However, the Court does not find that Defendant made a false oath as his testimony that Dimagic was a new entity. Given that Defendant formed Dimagic in 2016, Defendant's statement that Dimagic was a new entity is vague and not necessarily false.

Defendant also should have scheduled the money owed to Defendant by Mr. Romans and listed the $1,400 gift to his friend. These omissions were material because the information could have led to the discovery of assets and a recovery of the funds into the estate. Moreover, Defendant should have included in his schedules and statements information about the payments Defendant made to Ms. Rich and/or on the Mulholland Property. These omissions also were material as the information could have led to the discovery of assets or the recovery of the Mulholland Property, or of payments made on behalf of Ms. Rich, into the estate.

Further, Defendant's testimony that he paid Mr. Sterling or AEI between $500,000 and $1 million was a false oath. The record demonstrates that Defendant paid Mr. Sterling and/or AEI a total of $55,000. Defendant has not otherwise demonstrated that he actually paid Mr. Sterling or AEI more than the $55,000 reflected in the checks to Mr. Sterling and/or AEI. In addition, this false oath was material because it pertains to Defendant's total liability to Plaintiffs and, as a result, may have an impact on the size of Defendant's estate.

Finally, Defendant omitted information about Defendant's storage unit. However, Plaintiffs have not shown that these omissions were material. There is no indication that inclusion of the information could have led to the discovery of additional assets.

As to all of the above, Plaintiffs have not provided any analysis regarding whether the false oaths or omissions were made "knowingly" and "fraudulently." As a result, the Court will reserve the issue of intent for trial.

I. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5), a debtor's discharge will be denied if "the debtor has failed to explain satisfactorily, before determination of denial of discharge under this paragraph, any loss of assets or deficiency of assets to meet the debtor's liabilities." Under § 727(a)(5), the objecting party must demonstrate that:

- (1) debtor at one time, not too remote from the bankruptcy petition date, owned identifiable assets; (2) on the date the bankruptcy petition was filed or order of relief granted, the debtor no longer owned the assets; and (3) the bankruptcy pleadings or statement of affairs do not reflect an adequate explanation for the disposition of the assets.

Plaintiffs assert that Defendant's discharge should be denied because Defendant has not satisfactorily explained the disappearance of assets Defendant bought prior to the petition date, such as electronics, recording equipment, etc. However, Plaintiffs have not specified which assets Defendant possessed prior to the petition date. Instead, Plaintiffs vaguely refer to "electronics, furniture, and recording equipment." MSJ, p. 35. As such, the Court also will not enter judgment on Plaintiffs' claim under § 727(a)(5).

J. Damages

In light of the fact that the Court will enter judgment in favor of Plaintiffs on Plaintiffs' claim of fraud under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), the Court will award Plaintiffs their actual and consequential damages. See Cohen v. de la Cruz, 523 U.S. 213, 118 S.Ct. 1212, 140 L.Ed.2d 341 (1998). The record demonstrates that Plaintiffs suffered actual damages, by transferring funds to Defendant, in the amount of $994,144. Plaintiffs also suffered consequential damages by incurring costs in reliance on Defendant in the amount of $160,303.08. The Court will not award Plaintiffs their requested consequential damages arising from payments made to Ms. Saint Clair to secure additional artists, as these payments do not appear to have arisen from Defendant's conduct, or for payments made to Mr. Kourtev, because Plaintiffs do not specify why they paid Mr. Kourtev $25,000.

The Court also will award Plaintiffs prejudgment interest at the federal interest rate. "An award of prejudgment interest in a § 523 proceeding in which the creditor prevails ensures the creditor is made whole and has a full recovery." In re Del Valle, 577 B.R. 789, 810 (Bankr C.D. Cal. 2017) (citing Cohen, 523 U.S. at 222–23). "Such an award lies within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court." Id. "Awards of prejudgment interest are governed by considerations of fairness and are awarded when it is necessary to make the wronged party whole." Purcell v. United States, 1 F.3d 932, 942-43 (9th Cir. 1993). "The federal prejudgment interest rate applies to actions brought under federal statute, such as bankruptcy proceedings, unless the equities of the case require a different rate." Banks v. Gill Distribution Centers, Inc., 263 F.3d 862, 871 (9th Cir. 2001). "Under federal law the rate of prejudgment interest is the Treasury Bill rate as defined in 28 U.S.C. § 1961 unless the district court finds on substantial evidence that a different prejudgment interest rate is appropriate." United States v. Gordon, 393 F.3d 1044, 1063 n.12 (9th Cir. 2004).

The Court, in its discretion, declines to apply a rate other than the federal interest rate. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1941, as of August 26, 2016, the week preceding the September 2, 2016 date of demand, the federal rate was 0.62%. Applying the 0.62% federal interest rate on the allowed principal of $1,154,447.08 yields $7,157.57. The Court will award Plaintiffs $7,157.57 in prejudgment interest.

The Court will not award punitive damages at this time. Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 3294(a), punitive damages may be allowed "[i]n an action for the breach of an obligation not arising from contract, where it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant has been guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice...." (emphasis added). Here, although the Court found that Plaintiffs' claim of fraud is supported by a preponderance of the evidence, the Court has not found clear and convincing evidence of fraud. At this time, without having held trial, the Court will not award punitive damages under the clear and convincing standard required by Cal. Civ. Code § 3294(a).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will enter a judgment in favor of Plaintiffs on Plaintiffs' claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and Plaintiffs' claim of embezzlement under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4). The Court also will award Plaintiffs $994,144 in actual damages, $160,303.08 in consequential damages and $7,157.57 in prejudgment interest, for a total award of $1,161,604.65.

The Court also finds that Plaintiffs have met their burden of proving that Defendants made the following false oaths, and that the false oaths were material, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4): (A) Defendant made a false oath about his earnings from 2015; (B) Defendant omitted his interest in Dimagic; (C) Defendant omitted a claim against Mr. Romans; (D) Defendant omitted a gift of $1,400 to a friend; (E) Defendant omitted payments made to Ms. Rich and/or on the Mulholland Property; and (F) Defendant made a false oath regarding the amount of money transferred to Mr. Sterling and/or AEI. The Court further finds that Defendant omitted information about a storage unit he used in 2017, but that the omission was not material. The Court otherwise denies the MSJ as to Plaintiffs' claim under § 727(a)(4).

The Court denies the MSJ as to Plaintiffs' claims under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(6) and 727(a)(2), (a)(3) and (a)(5). The Court also denies the MSJ as to Plaintiffs' claim of defalcation under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4). Finally, the Court denies Plaintiffs' request

#25.00 Defendant's motion to dismiss complaint to determine dischargeability of debt pursuant to 11 U.S.C. sec 523(a)(2)(A)

Docket      4

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will grant the motion with leave to amend.

I. BACKGROUND

On May 4, 2018, Robert Edward Zuckerman ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On July 20, 2018, Edward P. Albini, et al. ("Plaintiffs") filed a complaint against Defendant (the "Complaint"), seeking nondischargeability of the debt owed to them pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A).

On October 5, 2016, the Sonoma County Superior Court tried an action by Plaintiffs against Defendant for intentional misrepresentation, concealment (fraud), promises without intent to perform, conspiracy to defraud and elder abuse (the "State Court Action"). On October 6, 2016, the state court entered a total judgment against Defendant in the amount of $14,545,001.00, "taking into account special damages, prejudgment interest, allowable elder abuse damages for the designated elders and punitive damages." (the "Judgment") [doc. 1, Exh. 1].

The state court found that Defendant "fraudulently obtained $6,435,000.00 in loans from plaintiffs...with no intent whatsoever to use the money in the Malibu land development project as [Defendant] represented in writing." Judgment, p. 7. Moreover, "no part of plaintiffs' collective $6,435,000.00 loan was ever used in any manner for this Malibu land development project." Id. The state court took judicial notice of "the numerous discovery motions by plaintiffs against [Defendant], who repeatedly engaged in discovery abuse and steadfastly refused to provide plaintiffs with documentation regarding where their $6,435,000.00 loan went." Judgment, p. 11.

The state court further found that Defendant "was the central figure in charge of this fraudulent land development scheme...that severely damaged the plaintiffs herein." Judgment, p. 7-8. Finally, the state court found that Defendant "never had an intention to repay plaintiffs any part of their $6,435,000.00 collective loan." Judgment, p. 11.

On March 3, 2017, the state court entered an amended judgment against Defendant (the "Amended Judgment") [doc. 1, Exh. 3]. The state court did not alter any of its relevant findings in the Amended Judgment, but added to the total $14,545,001.01 judgment "$565,375.00 in allowable attorney's fees... and $24,719.95 in allowable costs for a total of $15,135.096.00 nunc pro tunc as of October 5, 2016." Id. In the Amended Judgment, the state court noted, in relevant part:

On October 5, 2016, at 8:30 a.m., in Department 18 of the Sonoma County Superior Court before the Honorable Rene Chouteau, plaintiffs herein appeared for trial against the remaining defendant Robert E. Zuckerman.

Appearing at this trial was Edward McCutchan of Sunderland | McCutchan, LLP, attorney for the remaining plaintiffs in this action. Appearing for defendant, Robert Zuckerman, was Raul Garcia of Garcia & Reed, LLP.

Defendant, Robert Zuckerman's motion in limine number 1 to dismiss this action under CCP sections 583.310 and 538.360(a) was first heard and denied. ...

After the court rendered its decision denying Robert Zuckerman's motion in limine number 1 to dismiss this action, his attorney Raul Garcia stated on the record that he was withdrawing as Robert Zuckerman's attorney of record in this action and left the courtroom never to return. Defendant, Robert E. Zuckerman did not appear for trial despite plaintiffs' filed notices to appear in lieu of subpoena (initial and amended) dated September 21, 2016 where Robert Zuckerman's financial records as to net worth were requested.

Amended Judgment, pp. 4-5 (emphasis added).

II. DISCUSSION

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted); citing, inter alia, Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 547, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007); and Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009)).

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Malice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged...." *Neubronner v. Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, Plaintiffs must prove by a preponderance of the evidence the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or

1. Misrepresentations with Knowledge of Falsity and Intent to Deceive

Representations made without an intent to perform satisfy the first three requirements of § 523(a)(2)(A). In re Rubin, 875 F.2d 755, 759 (9th Cir. 1989). A promise can also be considered fraudulent when the promisor knew or should have known of his inability to perform. In re Barrack, 217 B.R. 598, 606 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1998). A promise to perform in the future is not a false representation or false pretense unless the debtor did not have an intent to perform at the time he made the representation. Matter of Bercier, 934 F.2d 689, 691-92 (5th Cir. 1991) ("A mere promise to be executed in the future is not sufficient to make a debt nondischargeable, even though there is no excuse for the subsequent breach.") (citations omitted).

2. Justifiable Reliance

To satisfy the reliance requirement of § 523(a)(2)(A), a plaintiff must show "justifiable" reliance, not "reasonable reliance." Field v. Mans, 516 U.S. 59, 74-75 (1995). Justifiable reliance takes into account the "qualities and characteristics of the particular plaintiff, and the circumstances of the particular case, rather than of the application of a community standard of conduct to all cases." Id. at 71. Thus, a plaintiff does not have a duty to investigate, and because fraudulent misrepresentation is an intentional tort, a plaintiff's contributory negligence does not bar recovery. Id. at 70, 75-77; see also Eashai, at 1090 ("[N]egligence in failing to discover an intentional misrepresentation" does not defeat justifiable reliance.) However, "justifiable reliance does not exist where a creditor ignores red flags" that show up before extending (citations omitted).

3. Proximate Causation/Damages

Section 523(a)(2)(A) requires that the damage to the creditor be proximately caused by the debtor's fraud. In re Sabban, 600 F.3d 1219, 1223 (9th Cir. 2010) (explaining that the debtor will not receive a discharge of debts "resulting from" or "traceable" to fraud). Consequently, the debtor may be liable for a loss to the creditor resulting from the fraud, even if it exceeds the value obtained by the debtor. See, e.g., Cohen v. De La Cruz, 523 U.S. 213, 218, 124 (1998) (for example, damages may include punitive damages and attorney's fees and costs).

4. Discussion

Plaintiffs attached the Amended Judgment as an exhibit to the Complaint. As such, for purposes of a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the Court may consider the Complaint and Amended Judgment in determining whether dismissal is proper.

Plaintiffs allege that Defendant committed fraud and rely on the Amended Judgment to satisfy the elements of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Because Plaintiffs are alleging fraud, the Complaint must also meet the heightened pleading standard in Rule 9(b).

Regarding the first element of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), the state court found that Defendant made the following false misrepresentations: (1) Defendant purposefully overvalued the security for Plaintiffs' initial loans; and (2) the Malibu property could not be developed as represented by Defendant. Amended Judgment, p. 11. As such, Plaintiffs have alleged sufficient facts to satisfy the first element.

Regarding the third element of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), the state court found that Defendant "never had an intention to repay plaintiffs any part of their $6,435,000.00 collective loan." Judgment, p. 11. Pursuant to Rule 9(b), intent may be alleged generally. As such, Plaintiffs have alleged sufficient facts to satisfy the third element.

Regarding the fifth element of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), the state court found that Defendant "was the central figure in charge of this fraudulent land development scheme...that severely damaged the plaintiffs herein." Amended Judgment, p. 8. As such, Plaintiffs have alleged sufficient facts to satisfy the fifth element.

However, regarding the second and fourth elements, the Amended Judgment states a broad legal conclusion that Defendant "wrongfully engaged in fraudulent conduct including elder abuse." Amended Judgment, p. 11. In determining a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the Court does not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Thus, the conclusory allegations of law in the Amended Judgment are insufficient to defeat the Motion. Plaintiffs need to allege sufficient factual allegations to meet the elements of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and the requirements of Rule 9(b).

The Amended Judgment is vague on factual allegations relating to: (1) the circumstances constituting fraud; and (2) whether each and all Plaintiffs justifiably relied on Defendant's statements or conduct. See Rule 9(b). The factual allegations in the Complaint also are insufficient to meet these elements. Thus, in the Complaint and the attachments thereto, Plaintiffs have not alleged enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and satisfies Rule 9(b).

C. Collateral Estoppel

"A bankruptcy court may rely on the issue preclusive effect of an existing state court judgment .... In so doing, the bankruptcy court must apply the forum state's law of issue preclusion." In re Plyam, 2015 WL 2124780, at *3 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. May 5, 2015); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1738 (federal courts must give "full faith and credit" to state court judgments).

"The party asserting preclusion bears the burden of establishing the threshold requirements." In re Harmon, 250 F.3d 1240, 1245 (9th Cir. 2001). "This means providing 'a record sufficient to reveal the controlling facts and pinpoint the exact issues litigated in the prior action.'" Plyam, at *3 (quoting In re Kelly, 182 B.R. 255, 258 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1995), aff'd, 100 F.3d 110 (9th Cir. 1996)). "Any reasonable doubt as to what was decided by a prior judgment should be resolved against allowing the [issue preclusive] effect." Kelly, at 258.

The requirements for issue preclusion in California are:

- (1) the issue sought to be precluded from relitigation is identical to that decided in a former proceeding;
- (2) the issue was actually litigated in the former proceeding;
- (3) the issue was necessarily decided in the former proceeding;
- (4) the decision in the former proceeding is final and on the merits; and
- (5) the party against whom preclusion is sought was the same as, or in privity with, the party to the former proceeding.

In re Harmon, 250 F.3d at 1245 (citing to Lucido v. Superior Court, 51 Cal. 3d 335, 341 (1990)).

"California further places an additional limitation on issue preclusion: courts may give preclusive effect to a judgment 'only if application of preclusion furthers the public policies underlying the doctrine.'" Plyam, at *3 (quoting Harmon, at 1245). "Many jurisdictions require, as a threshold requirement to the application of collateral estoppel, a showing that a party against whom collateral estoppel is being asserted had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue. Under California law, the presence or absence of a full and fair opportunity to litigate usually is relevant not to the threshold inquiry, but rather to the public policy inquiry." Id.

In the Opposition, Plaintiffs argue that the doctrine of collateral estoppel bars all defenses of Defendant to the Complaint. At this stage, the Court need not determine whether collateral estoppel applies. On a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the Court assesses the sufficiency of the allegations in the complaint to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. The Court's review is limited to the contents of the complaint and the attached exhibits. As discussed above, the Complaint and the attachments thereto do not contain sufficient allegations in regards to the circumstances constituting fraud and Plaintiffs' justifiable reliance.

In the Motion, Defendant argues that it would be inequitable and highly prejudicial to apply the doctrine of collateral estoppel under the specific facts of the case. Defendant asserts two reasons for this argument: (1) the Amended Judgment is allegedly void on its face because he did not have proper notice of the trial; and (2) he was allegedly abandoned by his attorney at the outset of trial.

Regarding Defendant's first argument, for purposes of this Motion, the Court need not determine whether the Amended Judgment is void on its face for lack of proper notice. In determining the Motion, the Court must accept factual allegations in the Complaint and the attachments thereto as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to Plaintiffs. As such, the Court must accept the factual allegations in the Amended Judgment as true. Thus, the Court need not reach a determination on whether the Amended Judgment is void, for purposes of this Motion.

Regarding Defendant's second argument, because the trial proceeded with neither Defendant nor his attorney present, it may be that Defendant did not have a full and fair opportunity to litigate the fraud issue. The Motion alleges that Defendant was "abandoned" by his attorney at the outset of trial "with no notice to [Defendant] of what was happening, and no opportunity for [Defendant] to request a continuance or attempt to obtain new counsel." Motion, p. 10. Defendant did not provide the Court with a declaration attesting to this allegation.

D. Dismissed Plaintiffs

Defendant argues that the Court should dismiss the Complaint with prejudice as to twenty of the forty-five Plaintiffs. Defendant asserts that twenty Plaintiffs were either previously dismissed from the State Court Action or have assigned their state law fraud claims against Defendant, and therefore, lack standing to pursue nondischargeability of the claim in this Court. However, even if Plaintiffs were dismissed from the State Court Action, that does not necessarily prohibit them from asserting a claim in this case. As such, at this time, the Court will not dismiss the Complaint with prejudice as to any Plaintiffs.

E. Leave to Amend

Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson,

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to the entered Order Confirming Liquidating Plan of ColorFX, Inc. Presented by The Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors [doc. 199], the Post-Confirmation Committee did not timely file a status report explaining what progress has been made toward consummation of the confirmed plan of reorganization, and the belatedly filed Post Confirmation Status Conference Report (the "Post-Confirmation Status Report") [doc. 223] is not supported by evidence.

Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 3020-1(b) provides that a postconfirmation status report must include:

- (1) A schedule listing for each debt and each class of claims: the total amount required to be paid under the plan; the amount required to be paid as of the date of the report; the amount actually paid as of the date of the report; and the deficiency, if any, in required payments;
- (2) A schedule of any and all postconfirmation tax liabilities that have accrued or come due and a detailed explanation of payments thereon;
- (3) Projections as to the reorganized debtor's, postconfirmation trustee's, or other responsible party's continuing ability to comply with the terms of the plan;
- (4) An estimate of the date for plan consummation and application for final decree; and
- (5) Any other pertinent information needed to explain the progress toward completion of the confirmed plan.

#8.00 Second amended disclosure statement hearing in support of second amended plan of reorganization

fr. 6/14/18; 9/13/18

Docket 95

Tentative Ruling:

On September 13, 2018, JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. ("Chase") filed a stipulation between Chase and the debtors regarding treatment of Chase's claim under the debtors' proposed chapter 11 plan (the "Stipulation") [doc. 87]. On September 17, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 90]. On October 11, 2018, the debtors filed a second amended chapter 11 plan [doc. 96] and related disclosure statement [doc. 95] and incorporated the terms of the Stipulation.

Having reviewed the Stipulation, the second amended chapter 11 plan and the second amended disclosure statement, it appears that the debtors' liquidation analysis is accurate, and the Court will approve the debtors' disclosure statement as containing adequate information.

Proposed dates and deadlines regarding "Individual Debtors' Second Amended Chapter 11 Plan of Reorganization" (the "Plan")

fr. 9/20/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Prior to the initial status conference, held on September 20, 2018, the Court issued a tentative ruling to dismiss this case based on, among other things, the debtor's history of filings and dismissals and the debtor's failure to file a status report. The debtor's principal appeared at the initial status conference and requested a continuance. At that time, the Court instructed the debtor to file an application for an order approving employment of counsel, a disclosure of compensation of the debtor's attorney and a status report no later than October 9, 2018.

The debtor has not timely filed any of these documents. In light of the debtor's continued failure to comply with the Court's requirements, the Court will adopt its prior tentative ruling, below, and dismiss the debtor's case with a 180-day bar.

9/20/2018 Tentative:

On January 22, 2014, Rudex Broadcasting Limited Corp. ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition (the "First Case") [1:14-bk-10311-VK]. Debtor was represented by Michael D. Kwasigroch. On February 21, 2014, the Court entered an order dismissing the First Case for failure to file schedules and statements timely [1:14-bk-10311-VK, doc. 11].

On May 7, 2015, Debtor filed another voluntary chapter 11 petition (the "Second Case") [1:15-bk-11603-MT]. Debtor was again represented by Mr. Kwasigroch. On July 23, 2015, the Court entered an order dismissing the Second Case for Debtor's failure to provide required information to the U.S. Trustee [1:15-bk-11603-MT, doc. 16].

On July 18, 2018, Debtor filed a third voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating Debtor's current bankruptcy case (the "Third Case"). Debtor once again is represented by Mr. Kwasigroch. On August 16, 2018, the Court entered an order [doc. 27] setting an initial status conference and requiring Debtor to file a status report, supported by evidence, no later than September 6, 2018. Contrary to the Court's order, Debtor has not filed a status report.

In addition, on August 21, 2018, creditor Luis Crescitelli filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay (the "RFS Motion") [doc. 33]. Through the RFS Motion, Mr. Crescitelli sought to pursue his nonbankruptcy rights to obtain possession of property which Debtor leased pursuant to a month-to-month tenancy. Debtor did not oppose the RFS Motion. On September 12, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the RFS Motion. Debtor did not appear. On September 13, 2018, the Court entered an order granting the RFS Motion [doc. 39].

In light of Debtor's repetitive chapter 11 filings, and its repetitive failure to comply with its obligations as a debtor and debtor in possession, the Court will dismiss this case with a 180-day bar pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 349(a). The Court will retain jurisdiction regarding matters arising under 11 U.S.C. §§ 110, 329 or 362 and to award any appropriate judgment in favor of the United States Trustee.

The Court will prepare the order.

Judge:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will enter judgment against Noor Norris and in favor of Hely Norris. Appearances on October 24, 2018 are excused.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 18, 2011, Noor Norris ("Noor") and Hely Norris ("Hely" and together with Noor, "Defendants") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. [FN1]. Nancy J. Zamora was appointed chapter 7 trustee ("Plaintiff"). On December 9, 2011, the Court converted Defendants' case to one under chapter 11 [1:11-bk-18591-VK ("Bankruptcy Case"), doc. 32].

On November 19, 2014, the Court converted Defendants' case back to a chapter 7 case because Defendants' disclosure statement did not have adequate information as required to solicit acceptances or rejections of Defendants' fourth amended chapter 11 plan, and Defendants failed to confirm a chapter 11 plan by the deadline previously set by the Court [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 291]. On November 20, 2014, Plaintiff was re-appointed chapter 7 trustee [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 293]. The deadline by which to file an objection to Defendants' discharge was February 6, 2015. [FN2].

The section 341(a) meeting of creditors was initially held on August 22, 2011 (the "August 2011 Meeting") [Joint Pretrial Stipulation ("JPS"), doc. 27, 3:11]. The meeting of creditors was continued several times. Defendants appeared and testified at the meeting of creditors on August 22, 2011, September 30, 2011 (the "September 2011 Meeting"), January 12, 2015 (the "January 2015 Meeting"), June 5, 2015 (Hely only) and July 24, 2015 (Noor only) (collectively, the "Meetings of Creditors"). Id. On April 30, 2016, Plaintiff concluded the Meetings of Creditors. Id.

A. Defendants' Disclosures in 2011

1. Defendants' Initial Schedules

On July 29, 2011, Defendants filed their original schedules and statement of financial affairs ("Initial Schedules" or "Initial SOFA") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 14]. In their Initial Schedule A, Defendants claimed they owned the following real properties: (1) a residence located at 20359 Via Sansovino, with a fair market value of $9,000,000.00 (the "Via Sansovino Property"); (2) a rental property located at 19812 Ahwanee Lane, with a fair market value of $520,000.00 (the "Ahwanee Lane Property"); (3) a second rental property located at 1546 E. Kettering, with a fair market value of $120,000.00 (the "Kettering Property"); and (4) a commercial property located at 2101 W. Avenue J, with a fair market value of $640,000.00 (the "Avenue J Property"). Doc. 14, p. 12. Defendants did not list an interest in any other real property. Id.

In their Initial Schedule B, Defendants claimed they owned "stocks" valued at $2,500.00. Id. at 14. Defendants did not list an interest in any incorporated or unincorporated businesses, partnerships or joint ventures. Id. Defendants also did not list an interest in any equipment or inventory. Id. at 15.

In their Initial Schedule I, Defendants stated that Noor was self-employed for ten years as a "Property Manager," and Hely was self-employed for ten years as an "Independent Contractor." Id. at 26. Defendants indicated that their combined average monthly income was $1,287.50 from the "operation of business or profession or farm." Id. Defendants did not list any income from real properties. Id.

In their Initial SOFA, Defendants claimed that the only business in which they held an interest during the six years immediately preceding the petition was Dubai Auto Sales Defendants listed their income from the operation of a business for 2010 as $33,000.00 and for 2009 as $11,592.00. Id.

2. The August 2011 Meeting

At the August 2011 Meeting, Noor testified that Dubai Auto was his dealership, which closed on January 25, 2011. JPS, 5:22. When questioned whether Dubai Auto still retained ownership of any vehicles, Noor responded in the negative. Id. at 5:23. Noor further testified there was $2,000.00-$3,000.00 in receivables due and owing to Dubai Auto. Id. at 5:22.

Noor also testified that he currently worked for and had worked for American Eagle Oil Company ("American Eagle Oil"), a corporation, as a supervisor, for fourteen to fifteen years. Id. at 6:28. He testified that he received a commission of $4,000.00 to $6,000.00 a month from American Eagle Oil. Id.

Although the timing is unclear, Plaintiff testified she later discovered that Noor founded "American Eagle Oil, which he launched in the United Arab Emirates in 1999 and expanded across the Middle East." [Trial Declaration of Nancy Zamora ("Zamora Decl."), doc. 31, ¶ 42]. After investigation, Plaintiff learned "that American Eagle Oil is an ongoing brand used by [Defendants'] other entity Afghan American, LLC" ("Afghan American"), which continues to distribute and market oil in the Middle East. Id. at ¶ 44.

3. Defendants' First Amended Schedules and SOFA

On September 28, 2011, Defendants filed their first set of amended schedules and amended statement of financial affairs ("First Amended Schedules" or "First Amended SOFA") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 21]. Contrary to their Initial Schedule A, in their First Amended Schedule A, Defendants stated that the only real property in which they held an interest was the residence located at 20359 Via Sansovino, with a fair market value of $900,000.00. any other real property. Id.

In their First Amended Schedule B, Defendants stated that they owned a community interest in Dubai Auto, with a fair market value of $2,300.00. Id. at 7. Defendants did not list an interest in any other incorporated or unincorporated businesses, partnerships or joint ventures. Id. Consistent with their representations in their Initial SOFA, in their First Amended SOFA, Defendants represented that the only business in which they held an interest during the six years immediately preceding the petition was Dubai Auto. Id. at 16.

Despite Noor's conflicting testimony at the August 2011 Meeting, Defendants still represented on their First Amended Schedule I that Noor was self-employed for ten years as a "Property Manager," and Hely was self-employed for ten years as an "Independent Contractor for Econo Lube." Id. at 11. Defendants continued to represent that their combined average monthly income was $1,287.50. Id. In their First Amended SOFA, Defendants drastically increased their income from the operation of a business for 2011 from $7,785.00 in their Initial SOFA to $91,500.00. Id. at 12.

4. The September 2011 Meeting

At the September 2011 Meeting, Noor testified that he was a shareholder in Norris Group, AFG ("Norris Group"). JPS, 6:31. Plaintiff asked if Defendants had listed their interest in Norris Group on their Schedule B. Id. Noor responded, "I really don't know." Id. Noor stated, "I'm a shareholder...To me there is nothing to do with the corporations because it's a personal bankruptcy." Id.

Counsel for creditor Sima Shidfar also asked Noor, "What is West East Coast Trading, LLC?" Id. at 6:32; Zamora Decl, ¶ 36. Noor testified that West East Coast Trading, LLC ("WECT – California") was the dba for the Norris Group. JPS, 6:32. Defendants never amended their schedules to include the Norris Group dba WECT – California. Id.

On January 14, 2012, Defendants further amended their schedules and statement of financial affairs ("Second Amended Schedules" or "Second Amended SOFA") [Bankruptcy Case, docs. 46 and 47]. In their Second Amended Schedule A, Defendants claimed they owned the following real properties: (1) the Via Sansovino Property, with a fair market value of $995,000.00; (2) the Ahwanee Lane Property, with a fair market value of $520,000.00; (3) the Kettering Property, with a fair market value of $100,000.00; (4) the Avenue J Property, with a fair market value of $640,000.00; and (5) vacant land located in Lancaster, California, with a fair market value of $10,000.00. Doc. 47, p. 2. Defendants did not list an interest in any other real property. Id.

In their Second Amended Schedule B, in response to item 2 (checking, savings or other financial accounts), Defendants disclosed for the first time ownership in an "E-Trade, Brokerage Account" and an account with "MFGlobal Finance," with an aggregate value of $4,700.00. Id. at 3. In their Second Amended Schedule C, they claimed exemptions for the entire aggregate value. Id. at 6. Defendants also increased the fair market value of their ownership interest in Dubai Auto, from $2,300.00 to $60,000.00. Id. at 3. As the basis for this increase in value and in contrast to the Noor's testimony at the August 2011 Meeting, Defendants stated that Dubai Auto had "inventory in Dubai" that "diminished in value with the economy." Id.

Also in their Second Amended Schedule B, Defendants disclosed for the first time a 49% ownership interest in West & East Coast Trading, Inc. ("WECT"), with a value of $0.00. Id. Defendants stated that WECT owned 75% of a hotel building in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, which was "underwater based on liens." Id. at p. 3-4. Defendants represented that WECT had "been losing money or breaking even since inception in 2004." Id. [FN3].

In their Second Amended Schedule B, Defendants also first disclosed a 50% ownership interest in West & East Coast Trading, LLC – Afghanistan Branch ("WECT – Afghanistan") and a 49% ownership interest in West & East Coast Trading, LLC – Dubai, United Arab Emirates ("WECT – Dubai"). Doc. 47, p. 4.

Defendants indicated that the current value of their ownership interest in WECT – Afghanistan was $0.00 and in WECT – Dubai was $1,000.00. Id.

In their Second Amended Schedule I, contrary to their previous representations, Defendants disclosed that, as of the petition date, Noor was self-employed for twenty-five years in "oil and fuel services" and Hely was employed for seventeen years an "Office Clerk-Ind. Contractor" at Econo-Lube & Tune. Id. at 8. Defendants further stated that their combined average monthly income was $24,468.61 (much higher than the $1,287.50 monthly income disclosed in their Initial and First Amended Schedule I), including $14,050.00 in income from the following real properties: (1) the Ahwanee Lane Property; (2) the Kettering Property; and (3) the Avenue J Property. Id.

In their Second Amended SOFA, Defendants disclosed for the first time that the businesses in which they held an interest during the six years immediately preceding the petition date were not only Dubai Auto, but also WECT from 1999 to present, WECT – Dubai from 2000 to present and WECT – Afghanistan from July 11, 2010 to present. Id. at 14-15.

Unlike their Initial SOFA and First Amended SOFA, Defendants stated that in 2011 their income from the operation of a business was $40,000.00 (an increase from their Initial SOFA and a decrease from their First Amended SOFA). Id. at 11. Defendants listed their income in 2010 from the operation of a business as $48,000.00 and for 2009 as $22,540.00. Id. Defendants also disclosed for the first time that their income from gross rents was $64,589.00 in 2011, $118,428.00 in 2010 and $191,568.00 in 2009. Id.

C. Sale of Estate Assets in 2013

On March 16, 2012, PREF WB Acquisitions, LLC ("PREF") filed a Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay Under 11 U.S.C. § 362 with respect to the Avenue J Property (the "RFS Motion") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 73]. On April 26, 2012, the Court entered an order granting the RFS Motion and terminating the automatic stay with regard to the Avenue J Property [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 89].

On November 19, 2012, Defendants filed a Motion to Dismiss Case; or in the Alternative, to Approve the Sale of Equipment, Lease of Property and Authority to Refinance Property (the "Sale Motion") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 130]. In the Sale Motion, Defendants stated that the Avenue J Property was an automotive repair facility (Econo Lube & Tune) currently owned by them. Id. at p. 3. Hely's brother was allegedly operating the business and fell behind on his rent payments to Defendants. Id. at 4.

PREF scheduled a foreclosure sale of the Avenue J Property for November 21, 2012. Id. In order to avoid the foreclosure sale, Defendants found a buyer to purchase the garage equipment in the Avenue J Property for $120,000.00 and to lease the property for $5,500.00 per month. Id. Defendants also entered into a refinance agreement with PREF. Id. at 5.

As part of the refinance agreement, Defendants were to make a $420,000.00 mortgage payment immediately upon approval of the Sale Motion. Id. In the Sale Motion, Defendants stated that the $120,000.00 proceeds from the sale of the garage equipment would be used to partially fund the $420,000.00 mortgage payment. Id. at 6. On January 3, 2013, the Court entered an order granting the Sale Motion in part [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 142].

D. Defendants' Disclosures in 2015

1. Defendants' Third Amended Schedules

On January 10, 2015, following the reconversion of the bankruptcy case to chapter 7, Defendants filed a further amended Schedule B and further amended Schedule C ("Third Amended Schedules") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 306]. In their Third Amended Schedule B, Defendants stated that their ownership interest in Dubai Auto had a fair market value of $0.00, rather than the $60,000.00 previously represented. Doc. 306, p. 2. Defendants noted that Dubai Auto had "inventory in Dubai that has diminished in value with the economy." Id. Defendants stated that storage fees had not been paid since 2012 and that there was likely no equity after the storage fees. Id.

2. The January 2015 Meeting

At the January 2015 Meeting, Noor testified that all Defendants' assets were listed in the Schedules, as amended. JPS, 9:50. He also testified that WECT (first disclosed in Defendants' Second Amended Schedule B) owned a hotel building and that he owned a 50% interest in two units in a high-rise condominium project (the "Two Condo Units"), which were separate from that hotel building. Id. Noor testified that there was a "little bit" of debt against the Two Condo Units. Id.

Noor further testified that he was currently employed by WECT – Afghanistan in connection with oil and gas contracts with the United States Army. Id. at 9:51a. When asked for a copy of the contract with the United States Army, Noor testified that there was no contract for 2015 and the last valid contract expired on July 1, 2013. Id. at 9:51b. He testified that the agreement with the United States government gave WECT – Afghanistan the right to bid for the work along with multiple other contractors. Id.

At the January 2015 Meeting, Plaintiff made a request for Defendants to produce documents and information regarding: (1) the value of WECT's hotel building and any debt against it; (2) tax returns for WECT, WECT – Afghanistan and WECT – Dubai; (3) the vehicles owned by Dubai Auto; and (4) an inventory and valuation of Defendants' jewelry. Id. at 10:54. From March 2015 through July 2015, Plaintiff sent numerous emails to Defendants' counsel reiterating her request for the documents, as well as requesting additional documentation. Id. at 10-12. For the most part, Plaintiff's requests for documents were ignored. Zamora Decl., ¶¶ 58-76. On July 20, 2015, Defendants sent Plaintiff some of the documents requested; some of the documents, including those related to the hotel building, were written in Arabic. JPS, 12:72.

Defendants pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 2004 (the "Rule 2004 Motion") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 456]. On September 6, 2016, the Court entered an order granting the Rule 2004 Motion [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 462]. On September 20, 2016, the Trustee examined both Debtors separately (the "Rule 2004 Exams"). JPS, 3:11.

In response to documents requested by the Rule 2004 Motion, Defendants provided, among other things, a copy of an investment contract related to the Two Condo Units (the "Condo Contract"), which Noor had first disclosed during the January 2015 Meeting. JPS, 13:75; Trial Exhs. 42 and 43.

During Noor's Rule 2004 Exam, he testified that, before August 2011, Defendants had invested $1,098,903.94 in six condominium units prior to construction (the "Six Condo Units"), rather than only the Two Condo Units he disclosed in January 2015. Id. at 13:76. He further testified that the Condo Contract entitled him to a return of 80% of his investment, because the Six Condo Units were not completed by the end of December 2009 (the "Contract Right"). Id.; Trial Exh. 42. Defendants did not disclose the Contract Right on their schedules, any amendments thereto or during the Meetings of Creditors. JPS, 13:77.

Noor also testified that he demanded the return of his money under the Contract Right as recently as January 2014. Id. at 13:78. The bankruptcy estate would have been entitled to the return of approximately $880,000.00. Id.

F. Plaintiff's Discovery of an Undisclosed Estate Asset

On September 5, 2017, Plaintiff discovered that Noor holds an approximately 33% ownership interest in real property located at 19823 Mariposa Pines Way, Northridge, California 91326 (the "Mariposa Pines Property"). Zamora Decl., ¶ 89; Trial Exh. 23. Plaintiff further discovered that Noor held this interest as of the petition date. Id.

as her sole and separate property and Noor Norris, a single man. JPS, 13:79. Because the August 2007 grant deed does not reflect percentage ownership interests attributable to Rahim M. Safdari, Fatima Giti Safdari and Noor Norris, each individual is presumed to hold an undivided 1/3 interest in the Mariposa Pines Property. Id. at 14:80. The Mariposa Pines Property has a fair market value of $885,000.00. Id. at 14:81.

On September 25, 2017, Defendants' counsel produced a document entitled "Strictly Private and Confidential Agreement Dated 11/21/2002," in which Noor and Rahim M. Safdari purportedly agreed, among other things: "for purposes of obtaining a loan on the [Mariposa Pines Property], Mr. Norris has agreed to co-sign loan documents with Mr. Safdari in order to provide the financial backing necessary to complete the loan." JPS, 14:83. On June 13, 2007, Noor executed a Subordination Agreement related to the Mariposa Pines Property. Zamora Decl., ¶ 91; Trial Exh. 26. In July 2007, Noor executed a deed of trust to the Mariposa Pines Property, in favor of Washington Mutual Bank; that deed of trust was recorded on August 2, 2007. Zamora Decl., ¶ 91; Trial Exh. 27.

G. The Adversary Proceeding

On April 6, 2017, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendants, initiating this adversary proceeding. Plaintiff requested revocation of Defendants' discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 727(d)(1) and (d)(2). On November 28, 2017, Plaintiff filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 24].

On January 10, 2018, the parties filed the JPS [doc. 27]. In the JPS, the parties agreed that the Court would try Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. §§ 727(d)(1) and (d)(2). On January 25, 2018, the Court entered an order setting dates and deadlines for trial and approving the JPS [doc. 28].

On May 29, 2018, Plaintiff filed her trial brief ("Plaintiff's Trial Brief") [doc. 30]. On the same day, Plaintiff filed her declaration in lieu of live direct testimony [doc. 31] and an amended exhibit list [doc. 32].

On June 5, 2018, Defendants filed their trial brief ("Defendants' Trial Brief") [doc. 35]. On the same day, Defendants filed the declaration of Noor Norris in lieu of live direct testimony [doc. 33]. On June 12, 2018, Plaintiff filed a reply to Defendants' Trial Brief [doc. 38].

On September 26, 2018, the Court held trial on Plaintiff's claims. In the FAC and Plaintiff's Trial Brief, Plaintiff asserts the Court should revoke Defendants' discharge based on the following inaccuracies and omissions:

- (1) Defendants' schedules did not list the Two Condo Units. These were not disclosed until the January 2015 Meeting. At the Rule 2004 Exam, Plaintiff discovered that Defendants failed to disclose an additional four units, revealing that the statements made in Defendants' schedules and the Meetings of Creditors were perjurious. Doc. 24, 20:95a.
- (2) Defendants' schedules and amendments thereto and testimony at the Meetings of Creditors did not disclose the Contract Right. Id. at 20:95b.
- (3) Defendants' bankruptcy schedules and all amendments did not list Defendants' interests in American Eagle Oil or WECT – California. Despite multiple amendments to Defendants' schedules, Defendants have not amended their schedules to include their interests in these entities. Id. at 20:95c.
- (4) Defendants' schedules and amendments thereto and testimony at the Meetings of Creditors did not disclose Noor's ownership interest in the Mariposa Pines Property. Id. at 20:95d.

In Defendants' Trial Brief, Defendants argue as follows:

- (1) Defendants hired the wrong lawyer to file their initial schedules. Id. at 1:21-22.
- (2) Every asset Plaintiff could liquidate was disclosed in either Defendants' schedules or in Noor's testimony. Id. at 1:28-2:1-2.

II. LEGAL STANDARDS FOR REVOCATION OF DISCHARGE

A. 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)(1)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)—

"On request of a trustee, a creditor, or the United States trustee, and after notice and a hearing, the court shall revoke a discharge granted under subsection (a) of this section if—

- (1) such discharge was obtained through the fraud of the debtor, and the requesting party did not know of such fraud until after the granting of such discharge...."

See also In re Guadarrama, 284 B.R. 463, 469 (C.D. Cal. 2002). "[R]evocation is an extraordinary remedy." In re Bowman, 173 B.R. 922, 924 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994). Consequently, "[§] 727's [revocation] of discharge is construed liberally in favor of the debtor and strictly against those objecting to discharge." Guadarrama, 284 B.R. at 469 (quoting In re Adeeb, 787 F.2d 1339, 1342 (9th Cir. 1986)).

1. Discharge Obtained Through Fraud

With respect to the issue of fraud, "the plaintiff must prove that the debtor committed fraud in fact. The fraud must be proven in the procurement of the discharge and sufficient grounds must have existed which would have prevented the discharge." Bowman, 172 B.R. at 925 (internal citations omitted).

Chapter 7

A showing that the debtor's fraud would have resulted in a denial of discharge under § 727(a) is sufficient to satisfy the fraud component of § 727(d)(1). See, e.g. Jones v. U.S. Trustee, 736 F.3d 897, 900 (9th Cir. 2013) (holding that "a material fraud, which would have resulted in the denial of a Chapter 7 discharge had it been known at the time of such discharge, can justify subsequent revocation of that discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)(1)"); Guadarrama, 284 B.R. at 469 ("to secure revocation of [debtor's] discharge, the Trustee was required to show that the fraud in which [debtor] engaged would have caused the bankruptcy court to deny her a discharge under § 727(a)(4)(A) had it been known at the time.")

2. Awareness of Fraud Prior to Discharge

"The party seeking revocation bears the burden of proving that they did not know of the alleged fraud until after the discharge was granted. . . . [F]ailure to carry this burden is fatal to the party's case." In re Shepard, 2011 WL 1045081, at *4 (Bankr. D. Md. March 16, 2011)(internal citation and quotation marks omitted); see also Mid-Tech Consulting, Inc. v. Swendra, 938 F.2d 885, 888 (8th Cir. 1991)("[D]ismissal of a § 727(d)(1) revocation action is proper where, before discharge, the creditor knows facts such that he or she is put on notice of possible fraud.")

"If a creditor or any other party which might object to a debtor's discharge has knowledge of a possible fraud, the burden is on the objecting party to diligently investigate any possible fraudulent conduct before discharge. If the party decides to wait until after discharge, that party risks dismissal of its § 727(d)(1) action." Bowman, 172 B.R. at 925; see also Guadarrama, 284 B.R. at 477 ("Discovery of fraud for purposes of § 727(d) occurs when one 'obtains actual knowledge of the facts giving rise to the action or notice of the facts, which in the exercise of reasonable diligence, would have led to actual knowledge.'" (quoting Kahn v. Kohlberg, Kravis, Roberts & Co., 970 F.2d 1030, 1042 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 506 U.S. 986, 113 S.Ct. 494, 121 L.Ed.2d 432 (1992))). But see In re Dietz, 914 F.2d 161, 164 (9th Cir. 1990) (affirming bankruptcy court's revocation of discharge; "[a]lthough the [chapter 7 trustee] became aware" within the 60-day period for objecting to discharge of debts

[S]ufficient evidence supported the finding that [the trustee] learned of the critical fact - Dietz's unauthorized use of estate funds - after the effective date of discharge.")

B. Application of 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)(A)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)(A), the court shall not grant a debtor a discharge if "the debtor knowingly and fraudulently, in or in connection with the case—made a false oath or account." 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)(A). "[A] false oath may involve a false statement or omission in the debtor's schedules." In re Roberts, 331 B.R. 876, 882 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005). "The fundamental purpose of § 727(a)(4)(A) is to insure that the trustee and creditors have accurate information without having to conduct costly investigations." In re Retz, 606 F.3d 1189, 1196 (9th Cir. 2010) (internal quotations and citation omitted).

To prevail on a claim under § 727(a)(4)(A), the plaintiff must show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that: (1) the debtor made a false oath in connection with the case; (2) the oath related to a material fact; (3) the oath was made knowingly; and (4) the oath was made fraudulently. Id., at 1197.

1. Materiality

"A false statement is material if it bears a relationship to the debtor's business transactions or estate, or concerns the discovery of assets, business dealings, or the existence and disposition of the debtor's property." In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 62 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999); see also Guadarrama, 284 B.R. at 473 ("A false statement or omission is material if it concerns information that would aid in understanding the debtor's financial affairs.") 2. Knowingly and Fraudulently

"A debtor acts knowingly if he or she acts deliberately and consciously." Retz, 606 F.3d at 1198 (internal quotation marks omitted). To demonstrate fraudulent intent, a plaintiff has "the burden of showing that: (1) [defendant] made the representations [e.g., a false statement or omission in bankruptcy schedules]; (2) . . . at the time he knew they were false; [and] (3) . . . he made them with the intention and purpose of deceiving the creditors." Id., at 1198-99 (emphasis in original; internal quotations omitted).

"Intent is usually proven by circumstantial evidence or by inferences drawn from the debtor's conduct." Id., at 1199. "[M]ultiple omissions of material assets or information may well support an inference of fraud if the nature of the assets or transactions suggests that the debtor was aware of them at the time of preparing the schedules and that there was something about the assets or transactions which, because of their size or nature, a debtor might want to conceal." In re Coombs, 193 B.R. 557, 565-66 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1996). #### A. 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)(1)

1. Revocation Based on Defendants’ Disclosures Before the Deadline to File an Objection to Defendants’ Discharge

In the FAC, Plaintiff argues that Defendants’ discharge should be revoked under § 727(d)(1) based on the following grounds: (1) the Two Condo Units were not disclosed until the January 2015 Meeting; (2) Defendants’ lack of disclosure in their schedules and testimony at the Meetings of Creditors; and (3) Defendants’ schedules and all amendments thereto did not list their interest in Norris Group dba WECT –

California. Under § 727(d)(1), Plaintiff must show that she was unaware of the alleged fraud in time to take action to preclude Defendants' receipt of a discharge.

On November 20, 2014, Plaintiff was re-appointed chapter 7 trustee. The deadline by which to file an objection to Defendants' discharge was February 6, 2015. Plaintiff had two months before the deadline to object to Defendants' discharge. Because the following omissions became apparent before that deadline, they cannot be used as grounds for revoking Defendants' discharge:

- Defendants did not list any equipment on their Initial Schedules or subsequent amendments, yet sold $120,000.00 worth of equipment during their chapter 11 case.
- In their Initial Schedules and First Amended Schedules, Defendants excluded $14,050.00 in income from real property.
- At the August 2011 Meeting, when questioned whether Dubai Auto still retained ownership of any vehicles, Noor responded in the negative. However, in their Second Amended Schedules, Defendants increased the fair market value of their ownership interest in Dubai Auto, apparently based on Dubai Auto's ownership of inventory and accounts receivable.
- Contrary to Defendants' representations in their Initial Schedules, that their combined salary was $1,287.50 per month and that Noor was employed for ten years as a "Property Manager," at the August 2011 Meeting, Noor testified that he had worked for fourteen to fifteen years at American Eagle Oil as a supervisor and that he received a commission of $4,000.00 to $6,000.00 a month.
- In their First Amended Schedule I (filed in September 2011), Defendants continued to present the inaccurate descriptions of their combined salary and Noor's alleged employment as a "Property Manager."

- At the September 2011 Meeting, Noor testified that he was a shareholder of Norris Group. Defendants never amended their schedules or SOFA to include their interest in the Norris Group dba WECT – California.

Plaintiff learned of Defendants’ alleged interest in Norris Group dba WECT – California at the September 2011 Meeting. Plaintiff learned of Defendants’ interest in the Two Condo Units at the January 2015 Meeting. Both of these meetings were before the deadline. As such, Plaintiff cannot show that she was unaware of Defendants’ interests in Norris Group dba WECT – California and the Two Condo Units in time to take action to preclude Defendants’ receipt of a discharge.

Defendants may have made false oaths on their schedules and in their testimony at the Meetings of Creditors. However, Plaintiff was sufficiently aware of the flaws in Defendants’ representations in time to file an objection to discharge. Plaintiff was aware of all three amendments to Defendants’ schedules before the deadline to object to discharge. Further, based on Defendants’ testimony at the August 2011 Meeting, the September 2011 Meeting and the January 2015 Meeting, Plaintiff knew that Defendants’ schedules were inaccurate. As such, Plaintiff had knowledge of a possible fraud before the deadline to object to Defendants’ discharge.

Plaintiff had the burden to investigate any fraudulent conduct diligently before the deadline to object to discharge. As such, evidence of false oaths that became apparent before the deadline cannot be used as grounds for revoking Defendants’ discharge. The Court will not revoke either Defendants’ discharge under § 727(d)(1) based on Defendants’ disclosures and testimony that occurred before the deadline to file an objection to their discharge.

Plaintiff has proven, by a preponderance of the evidence, that Noor obtained his discharge through fraud. As noted above, a showing that Noor would be denied a discharge under § 727(a)(4)(A) is sufficient to show that Noor obtained his discharge through fraud. Jones, 736 F.3d at 900.

At the January 2015 Meeting, Noor testified that all Defendants' assets were listed in their schedules as amended. However, the Mariposa Pines Property, the Six Condo Units and the Contract Right were not listed in their schedules. Noor omitted his interest in the Mariposa Pines Property, the Six Condo Units and the Contract Right from his Initial Schedules and SOFA, his First Amended Schedules and SOFA, his Second Amended Schedules and SOFA and his Third Amended Schedules. These omissions are material because they relate to Noor's "business transactions or estate, or...the discovery of assets, business dealings, or the existence and disposition of [Noor's] property." Wills, 243 B.R. at 62.

In In re Khalil, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the Ninth Circuit affirmed the bankruptcy court's judgment denying a debtor's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)(A). 379 B.R. 163 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007), aff'd, 578 F.3d 1167 (9th Cir. 2009). "The bankruptcy court found that [d]ebtor made numerous, substantial, and conscious omissions from his bankruptcy schedules and statement of financial affairs, that [d]ebtor's explanations were not persuasive, that he chose not to correct these inaccuracies when he had the opportunity, and that he had the requisite intent to deceive." Id. at 177. The debtor in Khalil omitted from his schedules and statement of financial affairs several prepetition transfers involving his family members and the family members were not listed as creditors or co-debtors. Id. at 167. Similarly, Noor has made numerous, substantial and conscious omissions from his schedules and SOFAs, which are discussed below. Noor has also failed to correct the inaccuracies when he has had the opportunity.

Noor's omission of the Mariposa Pines Property appears to be knowing and fraudulent. On June 13, 2007, Noor executed a Subordination Agreement related to the Mariposa Pines Property. On August 2, 2007, a deed of trust to the Mariposa Pines Property executed by Noor was recorded. Further, a grant deed dated August 3, 2007, recorded in the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office, reflects that Noor has a significant interest in the Mariposa Pines Property. Defendants' Initial Schedules and any subsequent amendments do not include Noor's interest in the Mariposa Pines Property, and Noor never disclosed his interest in the Mariposa Pines Property during any of the Meetings of Creditors or the Rule 2004 Exam. Moreover, Plaintiff had no knowledge of the Mariposa Pines Property before the deadline to object to Defendants' discharge. Zamora Decl., ¶ 89.

The Court finds that Noor also knowingly and fraudulently omitted the Six Condo Units and Contract Right from his schedules and SOFAs. Noor did not disclose his interest in the Two Condo Units until the January 2015 Meeting, i.e. four years after Defendants filed their bankruptcy petition, after Defendants amended their schedules and SOFA three times and testified at two meetings of creditors.

Defendants never amended their schedules to include the Six Condo Units or disclosed them during any of the Meetings of Creditors. Further, Noor knew of his interest in the Contract Right; he asked for a return of his monies in 2014 (three years after Defendants filed their petition), but did not disclose it to Plaintiff any time before the deadline to object to his discharge. Like his nondisclosure of the Mariposa Pines Property, Noor's nondisclosure of the Six Condo Units and the Contract Right was knowing and fraudulent. [FN4] [FN5]. Moreover, Plaintiff had no knowledge of the Six Condo Units and the Contract Right before the deadline to object to Defendants' discharge. Zamora Decl., ¶¶ 81-88.

In the Defendants' Trial Brief, Defendants assert the following defenses: (1) their first lawyer was incompetent; (2) they did not omit any assets that Plaintiff can liquidate; and (3) Noor traveled to Afghanistan to generate income to pay Defendants' creditors.

When erroneous information in their schedules should be evident, debtors may not hide behind their reliance on counsel. Retz, 606 F.3d at 1199. In contrast to their current contention, during their first § 341(a) meeting of creditors, Defendants affirmed under oath that they had read their petition, schedules and statements before they signed them, were personally familiar with the information which they contained and that this information was true and correct. Lodged Transcript for the August 2011 Meeting, p. 4.

Further, Defendants retained their current lawyer a few months into their bankruptcy case. On October 28, 2011, Defendants filed a Substitution of Attorney naming their current counsel as attorney of record [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 25]. After that date, Defendants filed amended schedules twice more. Defendants signed those amended schedules under penalty of perjury, but still failed to provide a full and accurate disclosure of their assets.

"[D]ebtors have an absolute duty to report whatever interests they hold in property, even if they believe their assets are worthless or are unavailable to the bankruptcy estate." Yonikus, 974 F.2d at 904. Whether or not Plaintiff can liquidate Defendants' interests in the Mariposa Pines Property and the Contract Right, Defendants had a duty to report those interests to Plaintiff. Noor failed to meet that duty by never disclosing these assets in Defendants' Initial Schedules and subsequent amendments or during the Meetings of Creditors.

Noor's efforts in Afghanistan, which generated postpetition income, do not negate the Court's finding of fraud. Noor's postpetition employment and the proceeds generated from his employment do not signify that he made full and accurate representations about his prepetition assets. Having provided misleading and incomplete testimony during the Meetings of Creditors, having filed incomplete and misleading schedules and statements and having omitted material assets, Noor made false oaths.

For the foregoing reasons, because Noor knowingly and fraudulently made false oaths related to material facts in his schedules and SOFA concerning his interest in the Mariposa Pines Property, the Six Condo Units and the Contract Right, the Court finds that Noor obtained his discharge through fraud and that his discharge is appropriately revoked pursuant to § 727(d)(1).

Plaintiff has not met her burden of proof in regards to Hely. Plaintiff has not shown that Hely obtained a discharge through fraud.

Hely is not on the title to the Mariposa Pines Property. Trial Exh. 23. Nor is Hely a party on the Condo Contract. Trial Exh. 42. Further, Noor alone requested that funds be paid for his purchase of the Six Condo Units (Trial Exh. 44) and alone sought a return of the investment. Plaintiff did not call Hely as a witness to establish that Hely knew of Noor's interest in the Mariposa Pines Property, the Six Condo Units or the Contract Right. Moreover, none of the exhibits presented regarding the Mariposa Pines Property or the Condo Contract show that Hely was involved or even aware of those transactions. As such, Plaintiff has not shown that Hely knowingly omitted these assets from Defendants' schedules and SOFA with the purpose and intention of deceiving Defendants' creditors.

Plaintiff argues that Hely should not be afforded any separate discharge because "Hely's participation in the active concealment of assets in the case renders her disqualified from receiving a discharge in her own right." Plaintiff's Trial Brief, p. 4, FN2. Plaintiff cites In re Covino, 241 B.R. 673, 688 (Bank. D. Idaho 1999), for the proposition that "a debtor who sees an indirect benefit from a fraud in which he/she participates is sufficient to prevent the debtor from receiving the benefit of discharge." Plaintiff's Trial Brief, p. 4, FN2.

In Covino, the debtors ran a paintball business prior to filing their bankruptcy petition. Covino, 241 B.R. at 680. Postpetition, the debtors "executed a bill of sale, in their personal names, conveying the paintball business assets" to a third party. Id. at 683. The bill of sale averred that both the debtors owned the property sold. Id. The debtors used the proceeds from the sale to pay obligations owed by them. Id.

The court in Covino explained that "[t]he Plaintiff bears the burden of proof, Rule 4005, and must establish all requisite elements of the cause of action by a standard of preponderance of the evidence." Id. at 677. "Once a prima facie case has been established, the Defendants must support the bona fides of the alleged transactions and their version of events." Id. at 678. The court found that the plaintiff in Covino presented a prima facie case, and it was then up to the debtors to present evidence or explanation to show that they lacked knowledge of the improper conduct.

Covino is distinguishable from this case. In Covino, the plaintiff was able to establish a prima facie case because both debtors signed the bill of sale and the bill of sale averred that both debtors owned the property sold. Here, Plaintiff has not established a prima facie case with regard to Hely. Plaintiff presented no evidence that Hely participated in the acquisition or encumbrance of the Mariposa Pines Property. Plaintiff similarly presented no evidence that Hely participated in the purchase of the Six Condo Units or demand for a refund of the investment under the Contract Right. Moreover, Plaintiff has not shown that Hely received an indirect benefit. Plaintiff presented no evidence that the Six Condo Units produced income for Defendants or that Defendants ever received a refund of their investment under the Contract Right.

Plaintiff states that "Hely's testimony waivers back and forth several times in the 341(a) meetings and the rule 2004 exam - stating multiple times that she either did not know about the financial affairs of her family, or alternatively , that she in fact did read, understand, and sign all of the relevant bankruptcy schedules, and was the bookkeeper for one of the Debtors' tenant's businesses." Plaintiff's Trial Brief, p. 4, FN2. Even if Hely read, understood and signed all relevant bankruptcy schedules and was the bookkeeper for one of Defendants' tenant's businesses, that does not show that Hely had knowledge of the Mariposa Pines Property, the Six Condo Units or the Contract Right, and Plaintiff has not shown that Hely received an indirect benefit from a fraud in which she participated. Therefore, the Court will not revoke Hely's discharge under § 727(d)(1).

Regarding the first element of § 727(d)(2), Plaintiff has not shown that Defendants failed to report to her any pertinent acquisitions of property subsequent to the filing of their petition. In Plaintiff's Trial Brief, Plaintiff argues that the Court should revoke Defendants' discharge pursuant to § 727(d)(2) based on the following grounds: (1) the Six Condo Units; and (2) the Contract Right.

Prepetition Defendants invested $1,098,903.94 in Six Condo Units. The Condo Contract entitled Defendants to a return of 80% of the investment if the units were not completed on time. The units were to be completed at the end of December 2009.

Trial Exh. 42. Defendants did not file their petition until July 2011. As such, Defendants' interest in the Six Condo Units and the Contract Right was prepetition.

Plaintiff cites Chen v. Shoenmann, 476 F. App'x 657, 658 (9th Cir. 2011). However, Shoenmann is distinguishable from this case. In Shoenmann, the debtor received postpetition payments on account of a prepetition loan. Here, Plaintiff did not provide evidence that Defendants ever received any postpetition return based on the Contract Right. Consequently, the Court will not revoke either Defendants' discharge under § 727(d)(2).

IV. CONCLUSION

The Court will enter judgment against Noor Norris and in favor of Hely Norris.

Plaintiff must submit the judgment within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. The Court may take judicial notice of the bankruptcy and adversary proceeding dockets.
2. An order of discharge has not actually been entered yet. However, when a trustee discovers fraud perpetrated by the debtor before a discharge is entered, but after the objection-bar date has run, an action must be brought under 11 U.S.C. § 727(d) as opposed to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a). 3. It later became apparent that, as of the petition date, Defendants held an 18.3% ownership in WECT. JPS, 7:36. On January 19, 2017, Plaintiff sold Defendants' interest in WECT for $425,000.00 [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 498].
4. Regarding American Eagle Oil, in their Second Amended Schedules (filed January 2012), Defendants disclosed their interest in WECT. In response to documents requested by the Rule 2004 Motion, Defendants stated that American Eagle Oil is a dba of WECT. Trial Exh. 45, p. 2. The evidence presented by Plaintiff at trial does not contradict this representation. Trial Exhs. 30 and 31. As such, Plaintiff has not shown that Defendants' omission of "American Eagle Oil" from their Schedules and SOFA was done with fraudulent intent.
5. Regarding Afghan American, Plaintiff presented evidence which shows that Afghan American was formed in 2014. Trial Exh. 21. This was three years after Defendants filed their bankruptcy petition. Schedules and the statement of financial affairs concern assets as of the petition date. In re Coombs, 193 B.R. 557, 565 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1996) (citing In re Bailey, 147 B.R. 157, 162-63 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1992)) ("Debtors...have an affirmative duty to disclose on their schedules of assets whatever ownership interest they hold in any property, inclusive of all legal and equitable interest in said property, as of the commencement of a bankruptcy case." (emphasis added). Consequently, Defendants' nondisclosure of an interest in Afghan American in their schedules and SOFA do not call for revocation of their discharge.

PETER GEZOUKIAN
DEBTOR

Docket 11

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(2).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to obtain possession of the property.

Grant movant's request to annul the automatic stay.

"Many courts have focused on two factors in determining whether cause exists to grant [retroactive] relief from the stay: (1) whether the creditor was aware of the bankruptcy petition; and (2) whether the debtor engaged in unreasonable or inequitable conduct, or prejudice would result to the creditor." In re National Environmental Waste Corp., 129 F.3d 1052, 1055 (9th Cir. 1997). "[T]his court, similar to others, balances the equities in order to determine whether retroactive annulment is justified." Id.

With respect to the debtor's conduct, the debtor did not include movant in her master mailing list. The debtor did not provide notice to movant of the filing of the case until August 22, 2018. The debtor acted unreasonably and inequitably by not providing timely notice of the commencement of the case to movant. Further, the debtor has failed to make her monthly rent payment since August 1, 2018. Consequently, retroactive relief from the automatic stay is appropriately granted here.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

DANNY PAVEHZADEH

Docket 23

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will continue the hearing until January 16, 2019 at 9:30 a.m.

I. BACKGROUND

On August 10, 2017, Danny Pavehzadeh ("Movant") filed a complaint against Shahn timer Ebrahimi ("Ebrahimi") in the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles (the "State Court"), alleging breach of contract, breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing and fraud (the "State Court Action") [doc. 23, Exh. 1]. Movant's claims stem from several alleged loans that he made to Ebrahimi in 2014, totaling $417,000.00, and Ebrahimi's alleged failure to repay Movant. Id. On February 28, 2018, the State Court set a final status conference for September 28, 2018, and a jury trial for October 9, 2018. Id., Exh. 3.

On March 20, 2018, Ebrahimi filed a cross-complaint against Movant and added Maryam Hadizadeh ("Debtor") as a cross-defendant, alleging fraud, intentional infliction of emotional distress and negligence (the "Cross-Complaint"). Id., Exh. 2. In the Cross-Complaint, Ebrahimi claims that Movant and Debtor told him they were giving him various sums of money to invest in an operating business, however, they were actually in a conspiracy to hide and transfer illicit money obtained through Medicare fraud.

On July 28, 2018, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On August 3, 2018, Debtor filed a notice of automatic stay in the State Court Action. Id., Exh. 4. On

August 31, 2018, the State Court issued a minute order staying the final status conference and the jury trial, and set a status conference regarding the status of Debtor's bankruptcy case for November 28, 2018. Id., Exh. 5.

Debtor and Movant also have a pending marital dissolution proceeding before a California family law court. The family law court has not divided community property assets between the parties [Declaration of Todd A. Frealy, doc. 28, Exh. A].

On October 5, 2018, Movant filed a Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay Under 11 U.S.C. § 362 (the "Motion") [doc. 23]. On October 17, 2018, the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Trustee's Opposition") [doc. 28]. Also on October 17, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion [doc. 29]. On October 24, 2018, Movant filed a reply to the Trustee's Opposition and the Debtor's Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 31].

The deadline to file a proof of claim was October 9, 2018. Ebrahimi did not file a claim in Debtor's case. The deadline to object to discharge is November 6, 2018. As of this hearing, Ebrahimi has not filed an objection to Debtor's discharge.

II. DISCUSSION

Section 362(d)(1) permits lifting of the automatic stay to continue pending litigation against a debtor in a nonbankruptcy forum. See Christensen v. Tucson Estates, Inc. (In re Tucson Estates, Inc.), 912 F.2d 1162, 1166 (9th Cir. 1990). In so determining, "the bankruptcy court should base its decision on the hardships imposed on the parties with an eye towards the overall goals of the Bankruptcy Code." In re C & S Grain Company, Inc., 47 F.3d 233, 238 (7th Cir. 1995) (emphasis added).

Factors that courts have used to determine whether to lift the automatic stay to allow litigation to proceed in a non-bankruptcy forum include:

- (1) Whether the relief will result in a partial or complete resolution of the issues.

- (2) The lack of any connection with or interference with the bankruptcy case.
- (3) Whether the foreign proceeding involves the debtor as a fiduciary.
- (4) Whether a specialized tribunal has been established to hear the particular cause of action and that tribunal has the expertise to hear such cases.
- (5) Whether the debtor's insurance carrier has assumed full financial responsibility for defending the litigation.
- (6) Whether the action essentially involves third parties, and the debtor functions only as a bailee or conduit for the goods or proceeds in question.
- (7) Whether litigation in another forum would prejudice the interests of other creditors, the creditors' committee and other interested parties.
- (8) Whether the judgment claim arising from the foreign action is subject to equitable subordination under Section 510(c).
- (9) Whether movant's success in the foreign proceeding would result in a judicial lien avoidable by the debtor under Section 522(f).
- (10) The interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties.
- (11) Whether the foreign proceedings have progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial.
- (12) The impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt."

In re Curtis, 40 B.R. 795, 799–800 (Bankr. D. Utah 1984) (citations omitted); see also In re Sonnax Industries, Inc., 99 B.R. 591 (D. Vt. 1989), aff'd, 907 F.2d 1280 (2d Cir. 1990) (listing factors). When applied to the pending Motion and case, the Curtis factors do not appear to support relief from the automatic stay at this time.

1. Whether the relief will result in a partial or complete resolution of the issues

This factor does not weigh in favor of relief, because, as articulated in the Trustee's Opposition, allowing the State Court Action to proceed in the State Court would not allow immediate and complete resolution of the dispute between Movant, Ebrahimi and Debtor. At issue in the State Court Action is whether funds given to Ebrahimi constituted a loan or an investment.

In his Reply, Movant argues that the funds given to Ebrahimi were his separate property; however, the funds given to Ebrahimi may have been community property. In that case, the bankruptcy estate may have an interest in the subject of the State Court Action. This Court would have exclusive jurisdiction to administer such assets.

In the Trustee's Opposition, the Trustee argues that Movant should not be permitted to proceed with litigation in the State Court Action until the Trustee has an opportunity to investigate the nature of the bankruptcy estate's interest, if any, in the property that is the subject of the State Court Action. The Court agrees with the Trustee.

2. The lack of any connection with or interference with the bankruptcy case

In the Trustee's Opposition, the Trustee correctly argues that there is potentially a connection with the bankruptcy estate because the estate may have an interest in the property that is the subject of the State Court Action. Allowing Movant to proceed with the State Court Action could interfere with the bankruptcy estate and the Trustee's administration of estate property.

3. Whether the foreign proceeding involves the debtor as a fiduciary

It is unclear whether Debtor had a fiduciary duty to Ebrahimi, and whether the conduct alleged in the Cross-Complaint would violate a fiduciary duty, if one was created.

4. Whether a specialized tribunal has been established to hear the particular cause of action and that tribunal has the expertise to hear such cases

There is no specialized tribunal that has been established to hear the particular causes of action in the State Court Action and Cross-Complaint. This Court has sufficient expertise to hear a breach of contract action and a fraud action. This Court has exclusive jurisdiction to hear any timely filed action regarding the dischargeability of any claim of Ebrahimi against Debtor.

5. *Whether the debtor's insurance carrier has assumed full financial responsibility for defending the litigation

It does not appear that Debtor has insurance coverage for Ebrahimi's claims.

6. *Whether the action essentially involves third parties, and the debtor functions only as a bailee or conduit for the goods or proceeds in question

This factor is not applicable.

7. *Whether litigation in another forum would prejudice the interests of other creditors, the creditors' committee and other interested parties

No such prejudice is evident.

This factor is not applicable.

9. *Whether movant's success in the foreign proceeding would result in a judicial lien avoidable by the debtor under Section 522(f).

This factor is not applicable.

10. *The interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties

If Debtor does not have a community interest in the subject of the State Court action, which has yet to be determined, and Ebrahimi does not timely file a complaint to determine the dischargeability of any claim of Ebrahimi against Debtor, the Court would lift the automatic stay in order for Movant and Ebrahimi to litigate their claims against each other.

11. Whether the foreign proceedings have progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial

Although the State Court set a date for trial, Movant has not addressed whether the case has progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial.

12. The impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt"

With respect to Ebrahimi's claims, this Court has exclusive jurisdiction to hear any timely filed action regarding the dischargeability of any claim of Ebrahimi against Debtor. It has yet to be seen whether Ebrahimi will file such an action. Moreover, it has yet to be determined whether Debtor has a community interest in the State Court Action. As such, at this time, the Court cannot determine the impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt."

III. CONCLUSION

In light of the Trustee's Opposition and the Curtis factors, the Court will continue this hearing until January 9, 2019 at 9:30 a.m. to allow the Trustee to conduct an investigation. Following that investigation, the Trustee must file and serve any supplement to the Trustee's Opposition no later than January 2, 2019. Movant must file and serve any supplement to Movant's reply no later than January 9, 2019.

from: 5/16/18; 6/20/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The untimely joint pretrial stipulation (the "JPS") filed by the parties on October 26, 2018 does not comply with Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 7016-1(b)(2), as specified below.

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(C), the parties do not clearly set forth the issues of law to be litigated at trial. The plaintiff's complaint asserts a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), and the language in the JPS appears to reassert that claim.

In paragraph 41 of the JPS, the parties indicate that the plaintiff intends to request denial of the defendant's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3). However, the plaintiff has not moved to file an amended complaint. Moreover, because the defendant has already received his discharge, the plaintiff is limited to requesting revocation of the defendant's discharge under one of the grounds set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 727(d); any claim for denial of the defendant's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a) is time barred.

In addition, the parties' exhibit list does not comply with LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(D). The parties do not specify which party is offering which exhibit. Moreover, the parties do not provide an adequate description of each exhibit, which must include information sufficient for identification. For example, the parties do not provide sufficient information for exhibit nos. 24-26 and 28. Have the parties exchanged exhibits they intend to offer at trial?

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(E), the parties have not specified which witness is being offered by which party. The parties also do not provide a summary of the proposed testimony by each witness.

The parties list certain doctors in their witness list; do the parties intend to call any of these doctors as expert witnesses? If so, have the parties exchanged narrative statements of the qualifications of the experts? Have the parties exchanged expert reports in accordance with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(a)(2)?

In the paragraph listing their witnesses, the parties state that their witnesses "include, but are not limited to" the listed witnesses. The parties must provide a complete list of witnesses. Any witness not listed in the parties' witness list will not be permitted to testify at trial.

Concurrently with submitting their amended joint pretrial stipulation, the parties also must submit a joint witness schedule indicating on which day of trial, and at which time, each witness will testify and estimating the duration of each witness's testimony.

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(F), the parties have not specified if there are any other matters that may affect trial, such as anticipated motions in limine, motions to withdraw reference or other pretrial motions. Moreover, contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(G), the parties have not indicated if discovery is complete and, contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(H), the parties have not indicated if they are ready for trial.

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(I), the parties have not provided an estimate of the length of trial. The parties also do not include the language from LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(J) in the JPS.

Finally, the parties have not updated the Court regarding the Court-ordered mediation the parties were required to attend by August 31, 2018 [doc. 19]. Did the parties attend mediation? The parties must be prepared to discuss these issues.

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On January 9, 2018, Lost Coast Ranch, Inc. ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David Seror was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In its schedule A/B, Debtor listed a fee simple interest in real property located at 26000 Mattole Road, Petrolia, California 95558 (the "Petrolia Property") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 8]. Debtor valued the Petrolia Property at $10 million. On July 27, 2018, Ocean Ranch LPFN, LLC ("Plaintiff") filed claim no. 5-1 against Debtor's estate, asserting an unsecured claim in the amount of $385,495.91.

On August 1, 2018, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Debtor and Joseph Flores Beauchamp, Debtor's principal (together with Debtor, "Defendants"), in state court (the "Complaint"), initiating state court case no. BC716331 (the "State Court Action"). Report of State Court Proceedings ("Report") [doc. 6], Exhibit 2. Through the Complaint, Plaintiff asserts causes of action for fraudulent misrepresentation, fraudulent concealment, promissory fraud and unjust enrichment. Report, Exhibit 2. Specifically, the Complaint alleges:

Around late 2017, Plaintiff began negotiating with Defendants to purchase the Petrolia Property. During those negotiations, Mr. Beauchamp represented to Plaintiff that Defendants had the authority to sell the Petrolia Property and transfer title to Plaintiff. In reality, Mr. Beauchamp was filing a series of fraudulent bankruptcy cases to avoid his and Debtor's obligations, and to defraud Plaintiff into paying nearly $400,000 as a deposit on the Petrolia Property, which Mr. Beauchamp used for his personal benefit.

To prevent a foreclosure sale of the Petrolia Property, Mr. Beauchamp caused Debtor to file its current bankruptcy case. Neither Mr. Beauchamp nor anyone else informed Plaintiff or its representatives of Debtor's bankruptcy case. Instead, Mr. Beauchamp and Debtor continued to fraudulently negotiate for the sale of the Petrolia Property despite Debtor's bankruptcy filing. On August 22, 2018, Plaintiff and Defendants entered into a residential purchase agreement for the purchase of the Petrolia Property. Mr. Beauchamp convinced Plaintiff to pay a portion of the deposit for the Petrolia Property, in the amount of $385,495.91, directly to Wells Fargo. Mr. Beauchamp represented that his personal residence was fully cross-collateralized with the Petrolia Property and that there was substantial equity in his personal residence. Mr. Beauchamp further represented that the amount paid to Wells Fargo would be credited towards the purchase price of the Petrolia Property.

Relying on Mr. Beauchamp's representations, Plaintiff wired Wells Fargo $385,495.91. However, Plaintiff never received title to the Petrolia Property because the Petrolia Property was subject to the control of the Trustee. In light of Debtor's chapter 7 case, Debtor did not have authority to sell the Petrolia Property. Defendants refuse to return Plaintiff's funds.

Subsequently, when Defendants learned that Plaintiff and the Trustee were working towards entering into a lease agreement in connection with the Petrolia Property, Defendants interfered with Plaintiff's use of the Petrolia Property, such as by falsely telling the Trustee that the Petrolia Property could not be occupied because of dangers on the premises.

Complaint, pp. 2-6. As a result of these allegations, Plaintiff requests a judgment against Defendants for general and compensatory damages, punitive damages, attorneys' fees and costs and pre- and post-judgment interest. Complaint, pp. 10-11. Plaintiff also requests a jury trial.

On September 6, 2018, the Trustee removed the State Court Action to this Court. On September 10, 2018, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause re: Remand (the

On October 17, 2018, the Trustee filed a response to the OSC and opposed remand of this action (the "Opposition") [doc. 7]. Plaintiff has not filed a response to the Opposition or the OSC and has not timely filed a status report.

II. DISCUSSION

In the Opposition, the Trustee requests dismissal of the State Court Action. The Court will not dismiss the State Court Action for lack of prosecution at this time. However, if the Trustee files a motion to dismiss the State Court Action, the Court will entertain a motion to dismiss as to the estate and/or Debtor.

The Trustee should be prepared to discuss the timing for the Trustee to file such a motion to dismiss. Pending the Court's determination of a motion to dismiss the estate and/or Debtor, the Court would stay the adversary proceeding as to Mr. Beauchamp.

If and after a motion to dismiss the estate and/or Debtor is granted, without leave to amend, the Court may remand the State Court Action for Plaintiff to prosecute that action against Mr. Beauchamp.

I. BACKGROUND

On February 13, 2018, Jorge Alberto Romero II ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On May 15, 2018, Carlos Acevedo ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint against Defendant, requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to him pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). On July 10, 2018, Defendant filed an answer to the complaint [doc. 8].

On July 20, 2018, Plaintiff filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 14]. In relevant part, the FAC includes the following allegations:

In July 2007, Defendant and his father, Jorge Romero Sr., advertised two investment companies: Jorge Romero Investment ("JRI") and Global Capital Investments ("Global"). Defendant acted as the president of JRI and Global. Defendant advertised his companies to friends and acquaintances and promised an 8.33% monthly interest for any investments made with the companies. According to Defendant, the lucrative monthly interest was possible because of recently discovered gold in Africa.

On March 1, 2008, Plaintiff signed a contract with Defendant for the sum of $100,000. Defendant deposited part of the $100,000 into an account bearing Defendant's signature. In September 2008, Defendant sent a letter to Plaintiff stating that all of his assets had been frozen by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"), and that his companies were under investigation for certain transactions. Nevertheless, Defendant assured Plaintiff that the assets were secured and would be returned to investors "very soon."

In May 2009, Plaintiff contacted the SEC to inquire about the status of the frozen assets. The SEC informed Plaintiff that it had never intervened with Global Capital and did not know of any individual with Defendant's name. After Plaintiff contacted Defendant and his father about the SEC's response, Defendant and Mr. Romero cut off all contact with Plaintiff.

Plaintiff then filed a complaint with the Los Angeles Superior Court, suing Defendant, Mr. Romero, Global Capital and JRI for fraud and breach of contract. During the state court action, Plaintiff discovered that the California Corporation Commissioner uncovered that Mr. Romero had engaged in a Ponzi Scheme. The state court found Defendant and Mr. Romero liable for breach of contract and fraud and awarded Plaintiff $100,000.

Defendant wrote the letter knowing that the information therein was false and with the sole purpose to mislead Plaintiff. At the state court trial, Mr. Romero was unable to show what happened to Plaintiff's funds. Defendant is attempting to avoid liability by filing for bankruptcy protection.

FAC, pp. 2-5. To the FAC, Plaintiff attached an investment agreement between Plaintiff and Global Capital, which appears to be signed by Defendant, a number of checks issued by Plaintiff to Global Capital and a letter from Defendant, on behalf of Global Capital, to Plaintiff regarding the SEC's purported investigation of Global Capital. FAC, Exhibits A-C. Plaintiff also attached his state court complaint against Defendant, among others (the "State Court Complaint"). FAC, Exhibit D. As concerns the fraud allegations against Defendant, the State Court Complaint includes the following allegations:

On February 23, 2008, Defendant, on his own behalf and on behalf of Global Capital, induced Plaintiff into investing with Defendant based on Defendant's representation that Defendant had specific knowledge of outstanding opportunities for a guaranteed high rate of return on Plaintiff's money. This misrepresentation was a material fact and was essential to Plaintiff regarding his decision to enter into the investment agreement. If Plaintiff had known the truth, as opposed to the misrepresentations made by Defendant, Plaintiff would not have entered into the agreement.

At the time the defendants made the false representations to Plaintiff, they knew the representations were false and never intended to pay Plaintiff the promised returns. The knowingly false statements were solely intended to induce Plaintiff to enter into the agreement. Plaintiff justifiably relied on the representations of the defendants because the defendants were in a position of knowledge as investment advisors. As a direct result of the false statements made by the defendants, Plaintiff signed the agreements and gave money to the defendants. The knowingly false statements of Defendant and others were intended to cause injury to Plaintiff.

State Court Complaint, pp. 6-7. The State Court Complaint includes separate allegations against Mr. Romero. State Court Complaint, p. 6. As to Mr. Romero, Plaintiff alleged that Mr. Romero induced Plaintiff to invest into JRI; Plaintiff's allegations against Defendant state that Defendant induced Plaintiff to invest into Global Capital. Id.

Plaintiff also attached a tentative decision by the state court on the State Court Complaint (the "Tentative Decision") and an abstract of judgment in favor of Plaintiff. FAC, Exhibits F-G. In the Tentative Decision, issued on August 23, 2010, the state court noted that Defendant did not answer the State Court Complaint. FAC, Exhibit F, p. 4. As to fraud, the state court held that Mr. Romero "is the only person who made the misrepresentations." Id., p. 6. The state court then made additional findings as to Mr. Romero alone, and held that judgment would be entered against Mr. Romero in the amount of $110,000. Id., pp. 6-7. It is unclear from the record if the Tentative Decision was memorialized in a final judgment.

On August 22, 2018, Defendant filed a motion to strike the FAC or, in the alternative, dismiss the FAC (the "Motion") [doc. 19]. In the Motion, Defendant contends that Plaintiff did not seek leave of Court to file the FAC. Defendant also asserts that the FAC fails to state a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). On October 24, 2018, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion [doc. 28].

II. ANALYSIS

A. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 15(a)

Pursuant to Rule 15(a)—

(1) Amending as a Matter of Course. A party may amend its pleading once as a matter of course within:

(A) 21 days after serving it; or

(B) if the pleading is one to which a responsive pleading is required, 21 days after service of a responsive pleading or 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier.

(emphasis added). Here, Plaintiff filed the FAC 10 days after Defendant filed his answer. As such, in accordance with Rule 15(a)(1)(B), Plaintiff did not need leave of Court to file the FAC.

B. Rule 12(b)(6)

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party.

Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted); citing, inter alia, Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 547, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007); and Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009)).

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986). "A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Pursuant to Rule 9(b), "[i]n alleging fraud or mistake, a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake. Malice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged..." *Neubronner v. Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the plaintiff must demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

Here, the FAC includes sufficient allegations to state a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A). The State Court Complaint, which is incorporated into the FAC, includes specific allegations of fraud against Defendant. In the State Court Complaint, Plaintiff alleged fraud related to two different companies: JRI and Global Capital. As to JRI, Plaintiff alleged that Mr. Romero induced Plaintiff to invest with JRI. However, as to Global Capital, Plaintiff specifically alleged in the State Court Complaint that Defendant induced Plaintiff to invest with Global Capital. As to Defendant, Plaintiff alleged in the State Court Complaint that Defendant made misrepresentations to Plaintiff regarding the returns Plaintiff would receive from Global Capital, thereby inducing Plaintiff to invest in Global Capital. Plaintiff also alleged that Defendant made the misrepresentations with the knowledge that the representations were false. In addition, Plaintiff alleges that he justifiably relied on Defendant's representations and that, as a result of the misrepresentations, Plaintiff was injured.

Although Plaintiff does not specifically allege that Defendant "intended to deceive" Plaintiff, the remaining allegations sufficiently allege an intent to deceive. For instance, Plaintiff alleged that, through his "knowingly false statements," Defendant: (A) never intended to provide Plaintiff any returns; (B) intended to cause injury to Plaintiff; and (C) intended to deprive Plaintiff of Plaintiff's property. Taken together, the allegations in the FAC and the State Court Complaint, which is incorporated into the FAC, are sufficient to state a plausible claim under § 523(a)(2)(A).

The Tentative Decision, also incorporated into the FAC, contradicts Plaintiff's allegations that Defendant made misrepresentations because, in the Tentative Decision, the state court noted that "[Mr. Romero] is the only person who made the misrepresentations." Tentative Decision, p. 6. In the Tentative Decision, the state court differentiated between Defendant, referenced as "Jorge Romero II," and Mr. Romero, referenced as "Jorge Romero." Id., p. 4. As such, the findings in the Tentative Decision appear to relate to Mr. Romero, not Defendant. However, tentative rulings do not have any preclusive effect, and it is unclear from the record if the state court adopted the Tentative Decision as its final ruling. A requirement for application of issue preclusion is that there is a "decision on the issue [that] is final and... on the merits." S. Sutter, LLC v. LJ Sutter Partners, L.P., 193 Cal.App.4th 634, 663 (Ct. App. 2011). "For purposes of issue preclusion, 'final judgment' includes any prior adjudication of an issue in another action that is determined to be sufficiently firm to be accorded conclusive effect." Id. (internal quotations omitted).

A prior adjudication of an issue in another action may be deemed "sufficiently firm" to be accorded preclusive effect based on the following factors: (1) whether the decision was not avowedly tentative; (2) whether the parties were fully heard; (3) whether the court supported its decision with a reasoned opinion; and (4) whether the decision was subject to an appeal.

Border Bus. Park, Inc. v. City of San Diego, 142 Cal.App.4th 1538, 1565 (Ct. App. 2006) (emphasis added). In light of the above, the Tentative Decision is insufficient to determine whether the state court's findings are preclusive. As such, without issue preclusion as a barrier, to cure the contradictory allegations contained in the Tentative Decision, Plaintiff only has to omit the Tentative Decision as an attachment to the FAC. Because Plaintiff is pro se, and for the sake of judicial economy, the Court will strike the Tentative Decision from the FAC.

Finally, contrary to the paragraphs 11 and 12 in the FAC, the state court did not indicate in the Tentative Decision that Defendant stood trial, and the Tentative Decision did not include any findings as to Defendant. As such, paragraphs 11 and 12 appear to misstate the findings in the Tentative Decision. However, these seemingly inaccurate allegations do not defeat Plaintiff's allegations under § 523(a)(2)(A), and the Court will strike paragraphs 11 and 12 on the basis that the paragraphs misstate the state court's findings in the Tentative Decision.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion. Plaintiff must file an answer to the FAC no later than November 14, 2018.

The Court will prepare the order.

David Gottlieb, Chapter 7 Trustee

Ervin cohen & Jessup LLP, Attorneys for Trustee

Docket 59

Tentative Ruling:

David K. Gottlieb, chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $2,550.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $20.31, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis.

Ervin Cohen & Jessup LLP (“ECJ”), counsel to chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $9,521.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $846.63, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. ECJ is authorized to collect $8,886.00 in fees and $846.63 in expenses. The Court will not approve $1,375.00 in fees for the reasons below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor’s estate; or (II) necessary to the

In accordance with the foregoing, the Court will not approve the following estimated time for appearance at the hearing on the final fee application, because such appearances are waived:

Description	Time	Fee
APPEARANCE AT HEARING ON FINAL FEE APPLICATION	2.5	$1,375.00

The chapter 7 trustee must submit the order within seven (7) days of the hearing.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by the chapter 7 trustee or his/her professionals is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and the relevant applicant(s) will be so notified.

fr. 10/18/18; 10/25/18

Docket 161

Tentative Ruling:

No later than November 8, 2018, pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 2016-(a)(1)(J), Foley & Lardner LLP ("Applicant") must file a client declaration regarding its fee application, or a statement regarding steps taken to obtain such declaration if none is forthcoming. Provided that such declaration is timely filed, the Court will approve fees and expenses as follows:

Applicant, general counsel to David K. Gottlieb, chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $6,646.50 and reimbursement of expenses of $10.70, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, on an interim basis. Applicant may collect 80% of the approved fees and 100% of the approved expenses at this time. The Court has not awarded $3,810.00 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 328(b) provides that an attorney may not receive compensation for the performance of any trustee's duties that are generally performed by a trustee without the assistance of an attorney. In re Garcia, 335 B.R. 717, 725 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2005) (holding that bankruptcy court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to compensate chapter 7 trustee's counsel for services rendered in connection with the sale of property of the estate and for preparing routine employment applications).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

In Garcia, the Ninth Circuit Bankruptcy Appellate Panel (the "BAP") upheld the bankruptcy court's refusal to approve fees for the following services performed by the trustee's counsel with respect to the debtors' real property: "negotiating with the debtors' attorney regarding the sale of the equity to the debtors; [and] reviewing the title report." Garcia, 335 B.R. at 726.

With respect to its holding, the BAP explained that "a case trustee may only employ professionals for tasks that require special expertise beyond that expected of an ordinary trustee. Routine negotiations regarding the sale of real property are properly within the trustee's province. . . . Employment of counsel to assist in the sale did not give counsel a free rein to step into the trustee's shoes and undertake efforts statutorily assigned to the trustee." Id. at 727.

Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2016-2(e)(2) provides a "nonexclusive list of services that the court deems 'trustee services.'" This list includes, among other activities: conduct 11 U.S.C. § 341(a) examination; routine investigation regarding location and status of assets; turnover or inspection of documents; recruit and contract appraisers, brokers, and professionals; routine collection of accounts receivable; routine documentation of notice of abandonment; prepare motions to abandon or destroy books and records; routine claims review and objection; monitor litigation; answer routine creditor correspondence and phone calls; review and comment on professional fee applications; and additional routine work necessary for administration of the estate.

In Garcia, the BAP upheld the bankruptcy court’s refusal to approve fees for preparation of employment applications, observing that “absent a showing by applicant to the contrary, routine employment applications remain a trustee duty.” Garcia, 335 B.R. at 726. With respect to its holding, the BAP explained “a case trustee may only employ professionals for tasks that require special expertise beyond that expected of an ordinary trustee.” Id. at 727.

In accordance with Garcia and LBR 2016-2(f), the Court does not approve the fees billed for the services identified below. It appears that these fees are for services that are duplicative of those that could and should be performed by the chapter 7 trustee, as a trustee.

#1.40 Application for payment of interim fees and expenses of Berkeley Research Group, LLC Accountant period: 11/1/2016 to 8/15/2018

fr. 10/18/18; 10/25/18

Docket 151

Tentative Ruling:

Berkeley Research Group, LLC ("BRG"), accountant to chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $12,091.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $13.16, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, on an interim basis. Applicant may collect 80% of the approved fees and 100% of the approved expenses at this time. The Court has not awarded $126.00 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 328(b) provides that an attorney may not receive compensation for the performance of any trustee's duties that are generally performed by a trustee without the assistance of an attorney. In re Garcia, 335 B.R. 717, 725 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2005) (holding that bankruptcy court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to compensate chapter 7 trustee's counsel for services rendered in connection with the sale of property of the estate and for preparing routine employment applications).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor’s estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

In addition, secretarial/clerical work is noncompensable under 11 U.S.C. § 330. See In re Schneider, 2008 WL 4447092, *11 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2008) (court disallowed billing for services including: monitoring and reviewing the docket; electronically distributing documents; preparing services packages, serving pleadings, updating service lists and preparing proofs of service; and e-filing and uploading pleadings); In re Ness, 2007 WL 1302611, *1 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. April 27, 2007) (data entry noncompensable as secretarial in nature); In re Dimas, 357 B.R. 563, 577 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2006) ("Services that are clerical in nature are not properly chargeable to the bankruptcy estate. They are not in the nature of professional services and must be absorbed by the applicant’s firm as an overhead expense. Fees for services that are purely clerical, ministerial, or administrative should be disallowed.").

Accordingly, the Court will disallow the following fees as noncompensable secretarial work:

Category	Date	Timekeeper	Rate	Time	Fee	Description
Tax Returns - 2016	6/29/17	Evelyn Perry	$160.00	0.40	$64.00	Sent assembled tax returns to the trustee for filing
Fee Application and Bill Preparation	11/30/16	Rowen Dizon	$155.00	0.40	$62.00	Processed court filing.

The trustee must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by BRG is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and BRG will be so notified.

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to the Court's order extending the deadline for the debtor to file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement to October 17, 2018 [doc. 51], the debtor has not timely filed a proposed chapter 11 plan or related disclosure statement. Moreover, contrary to the Court's instructions from the prior status conference, the debtor did not timely file a status report explaining why the debtor has not timely filed a proposed chapter 11 plan or related disclosure statement. In addition, the debtor did not timely file a monthly operating report for September 2018.

Assuming the debtor becomes current with her monthly operating reports, and if the debtor's main barrier to reorganization is the debtor's inability to obtain a loan modification, the Court will provide an opportunity for the debtor to participate in the Loan Modification Management Pilot Program ("LMM"). The LMM forms and procedures may be found on the Court's website at www.cacb.uscourts.gov/loan-modification-management-pilot-program

If the debtor chooses to participate, the Court will set a deadline by which the debtor must file a Motion to Commence LMM using Form LMM 4001-1.6.MOTION.COMMENCE and otherwise must comply with the procedures outlined on the Court's website. Alternatively, the debtor must file a chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement. If the debtor does neither, the Court will not provide any further extensions and will dismiss this case.

I. BACKGROUND

On October 30, 2014, Peter Brook ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On November 14, 2014, Debtor files his schedules and statements [doc. 10]. In his schedule A, Debtor listed real property located at 946 Hyperion Avenue, Los Angeles, California 90029 (the "Property").

On October 5, 2016, Debtor filed a chapter 11 plan (the "Plan") [doc. 143] and related disclosure statement (the "Disclosure Statement") [doc. 144]. In relevant part, the Plan provides:

Discharge. Debtor shall receive a discharge of debts to the extent and at the time provided in § 1141(d), whether or not a party in interest has filed a proof of claim or interest, or accepts this Plan, unless the court orders otherwise.

Pursuant to § 1141(d)(5), Debtor will not be discharged from any debts unless and until (1) Debtor completed all payments "under" the Plan and obtains an order of the court granting a discharge (§ 1141(d)(5) (A)&(C)) – for purposes of this Plan payments that extend beyond the Plan Term stated in Exhibit A are not considered payments "under" the Plan (e.g., if the Plan Term is 5 years then Debtor will be eligible for a discharge under this clause if 5 years of payments are made, but the debtor will remain obligated on obligations that extend beyond the Plan Term, such as a 30-year mortgage); (2) the court grants a limited

Plan, IV.A. Exhibit A of the Plan does not provide a "Plan Term;" rather, Exhibit A includes different plan terms for different claims. Plan, Exhibit A. As to Class 2A, which contains Deutsche Bank's secured claim against the Property, the term is listed as 480 months, i.e., 40 years. As to the remaining classes, the term is listed as 60 months. Id. The Disclosure Statement also notes that Exhibit A to the Plan defines the "Plan Term." Disclosure Statement, p. 2. On February 15, 2017, the Court entered an order confirming the Plan [doc. 160].

On October 11, 2018, Debtor filed a motion for entry of discharge and final decree (the "Motion") [doc. 214]. Concurrently, Debtor filed a motion to avoid a lien against the Property (the "Motion to Avoid Lien") [doc. 215]. In the Motion to Avoid Lien, Debtor represents that he is in the process of selling the Property

Under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 3022, "[a]fter an estate is fully administered in a chapter 11 reorganization case, the court, on its own motion or on a motion of a party in interest, shall enter a final decree closing the case."

The Committee Notes to the 1991 amendments to FRBP 3022 help provide an understanding of what is meant by "fully administered:"

Entry of a final decree closing a chapter 11 case should not be delayed solely because the payments required by the plan have not been completed. Factors that the court should consider in determining whether the estate has been fully administered include (1) whether the order confirming the plan has become final, (2) whether deposits required by the plan have been distributed, (3) whether the property proposed by the plan to be transferred has been transferred, (4) whether the debtor or the successor of the debtor under the plan has assumed the business or the management of the property dealt with by the plan, (5) whether payments under the plan have commenced, and (6) whether all motions, contested matters, and adversary proceedings have been finally resolved.

The court should not keep the case open only because of the possibility that the court's jurisdiction may be invoked in the future. A final decree closing the case after the estate is fully administered does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to enforce or interpret its own orders and does not prevent the court from reopening the case for cause pursuant to § 350(b) of the Code. For example, on motion of a party in interest, the court may reopen the case to revoke an order of confirmation procured by fraud under § 1144 of the Code. If the plan or confirmation order provides that the case shall remain open until a certain date or event because of the likelihood that the court's jurisdiction may be required for specific purposes prior thereto, the case should remain open until that date or event.

See also In re Ground Systems, Inc., 213 B.R. 1016, 1019 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997).

Under 11 U.S.C. § 1141(d)(5), in a case in which the debtor is an individual—

- (A) unless after notice and a hearing the court orders otherwise for cause, confirmation of the plan does not discharge any debt provided for in the plan until the court grants a discharge on completion of all payments under the plan;

Here, upon entry of an order on the Motion to Avoid Lien, Debtor's case will be fully administered, and there will be no outstanding matters. As such, Debtor's case is subject to a final decree.

However, as to entry of discharge, despite Debtor's contention that he has made all plan payments, Debtor has not satisfied all of the requirements for discharge under the Plan. In accordance with the Plan, Debtor is deemed to have completed plan payments if Debtor makes all payments with the "Plan Term." The only definitions of "Plan Term" in the Plan are in Exhibit A, where Debtor defined the "term" as 40 years as to Deutsche Bank, and as five years as to the remaining classes. Debtor has not made payments to Deutsche Bank equivalent to the amounts to be paid in either five years or 40 years. As such, whether the term is five years or 40 years, Debtor has not completed the payments to Deutsche Bank.

In the Motion to Avoid Lien, Debtor states that he is in the process of selling the Property. If Deutsche Bank's claim is satisfied through that sale, Debtor may properly move for entry of discharge. At this time, the Motion is premature because Debtor has not demonstrated that he has made at least five years worth of payments to Deutsche Bank.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion as to entry of a discharge and grant the Motion as to entry of a final decree.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Docket 15

I. BACKGROUND

On June 19, 2018, Momentum Development, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. In its schedule E/F, Debtor listed a claim in favor of DCA Drilling & Construction, Inc. ("DCA") in the amount of $200,000.

On September 25, 2018, DCA filed a motion to examine Debtor pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("Rule") 2004 (the "Motion") [doc. 15]. In the Motion, DCA requests a Rule 2004 examination to investigate alleged transfers made by Debtor to another entity. On September 28, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 16], asserting that DCA would not have standing to recover any such transfers on behalf of the estate. On October 25, 2018, DCA filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 19]. In the Reply, DCA again states that its purpose for requesting a Rule 2004 examination is to investigate potential transfers from Debtor to another entity. DCA also notes that any such investigation may aid the chapter 7 trustee.

(b) Scope of examination

The examination of an entity under this rule or of the debtor under § 343 of the Code may relate only to the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or to the debtor's right to a discharge. In a family farmer's debt adjustment case under chapter 12, an individual's debt adjustment case under chapter 13, or a reorganization case under chapter 11 of the Code, other than for the reorganization of a railroad, the examination may also relate to the operation of any business and the desirability of its continuance, the source of any money or property acquired or to be acquired by the debtor for purposes of consummating a plan and the consideration given or offered therefor, and any other matter relevant to the case or to the formulation of a plan.

"Rule 2004 is the basic discovery device in bankruptcy cases. It allows broad examination relating to 'the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or to the debtor's right to discharge.'" In re Mastro, 585 B.R. 587, 596-97 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2018) (citing In re Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. 823, 829 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2011)). "As the Rule's text makes clear, the scope of a Rule 2004 examination is 'unfettered and broad'; the rule essentially permits a 'fishing expedition.'" Id., at 597 (citing Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. at 829). However, "Rule 2004 is not without its limits." Id.

"When a party seeks to conduct a 2004 examination, and the party to be examined objects, the former must show that it has 'good cause' to conduct the examination." Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. at 829. "Generally, good cause is shown if the Rule 2004 examination is necessary to establish the claim of the party seeking the examination, or if denial of such request would cause the examiner undue hardship or injustice." Id. (internal quotation omitted). "Once the examiner establishes the existence of 'good cause,' the burden shifts back to the objecting party to show that examination would be oppressive or burdensome." Id. "The opportunity for such an examination is available to 'any party in interest,' Fed. and requires a sufficient cause." In re J & R Trucking, Inc., 431 B.R. 818, 821 (Bankr. N.D. Ind. 2010).

For instance, in Mastro, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") found that the chapter 7 trustee could issue a consent directive in connection with a Rule 2004 motion because such a request is tied into the chapter 7 trustee's statutory investigative duties under 11 U.S.C. § 704. Mastro, 585 B.R. at 597. The BAP stated:

[W]e stop short of a determination that Rule 2004, in isolation, would justify issuance of a consent directive to anyone other than a chapter 7 trustee. But where, as here, it enables the financial affairs investigation required by the Code, it is firmly tethered to the Trustee's § 704 statutory duties. Thus, issuance of a consent directive in connection with a Rule 2004 examination request is entirely consistent with the broad inquiry into a debtor's financial affairs authorized by the Code.

Id. Unlike Mastro, here, DCA does not have a statutory duty to investigate transfers from Debtor to third parties, and, even if DCA does uncover any such transfers, does not have the authority to avoid and recover such transfers for the benefit of the estate. That authority lies with the chapter 7 trustee. See 11 U.S.C. § 547-550.

J & R Trucking is particularly instructive in this case. There, creditors moved to conduct a Rule 2004 examination for three reasons: (A) "to determine whether there are any other trades or businesses which were under common control with the debtor on the date it withdrew from [a] pension fund and, therefore, which might be liable for the debtor's obligations to that fund;" (B) "to determine if [another entity] might be liable, as a successor to the debtor, for the debtor's obligations to" the creditors; and (C) to obtain "information concerning transfers made prior to the petition, which might be recoverable by the trustee." J & R Trucking, 431 B.R. at 819-20. In assessing whether creditors could obtain this information through a Rule 2004 examination, the J & R Trucking court, like the BAP in Mastro, discussed the broad use of Rule 2004 examinations by chapter 7 trustees tasked with investigating debtors:

The broad scope of a 2004 examination arises out of its purpose. Particularly in chapter 7 cases, such as the ones before the court, it is an investigatory device trustees can use in order to quickly gather the information they need to do their job properly. See, Dinubilo, 177 B.R. at 940; In re Bennett Funding Group, Inc., 203 B.R. 24, 28 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1996); In re Valley Forge Plaza Associates, 109 B.R. 669, 674 (Bankr. E.D. Pa. 1990); Wilcher, 56 B.R. at 433-34; In re Good Hope Refineries, Inc., 9 B.R. 421, 423 (Bankr. Mass. 1981). That job, of course, is to investigate the debtor, and the assets of and claims against the bankruptcy estate, turn the assets into cash and distribute those funds to creditors, all as expeditiously as possible. 11 U.S.C. § 704. Ideally, those with knowledge of such things will voluntarily cooperate with the trustee and give the trustee access to the information they have concerning the debtor's affairs. Unfortunately, that is not always the case, and so Rule 2004 provides a vehicle by which the trustee can compel that "cooperation." It allows the trustee to do the necessary investigatory work without the need for initiating formal litigation which would trigger the traditional discovery tools. Indeed, one purpose for such an examination is to give the trustee the information needed to determine whether litigation should be filed.

Id., at 821-22. The J & R Trucking court then held that the same reasoning did not apply to creditors:

In assessing the propriety of a request for a 2004 examination, its purpose as an investigatory device arising out of the needs of the trustee should be kept in mind, and where a proposed examination goes beyond that purpose it should be carefully scrutinized. Here, both motions, although couched in the rule's language of matters affecting the administration of the estate and investigating the conduct of the debtor, exceed those boundaries. Remember, these are chapter 7 cases and it is the trustee's the duty to investigate the debtor's affairs and the rights of the bankruptcy estate. To the extent the movants seek to discover avoidable transfers, they are intruding upon the trustee's duties and taking those duties upon themselves. While the court may understand their curiosity, there is nothing the movants could do with that information once they got it. They could not act upon it, or seek to recover any such transfers; the trustee has the exclusive right to do so. Matter of Perkins, 902 F.2d 1254, 1258 (7th Cir. 1990) (If a third party tries to prosecute a cause of action belonging to the trustee, the action should be dismissed.). So, in that sense, their examination can serve no real purpose.

Id., at 822. The court concluded that, if the creditors "genuinely want to help the trustee, should the trustee desire that assistance, they must do so directly, acting for, at the behest of, and in the name of the trustee, and not indirectly, in a manner that treats the trustee as simply an incidental beneficiary of an endeavor actually undertaken for someone else." Id.; see also In re E. W. Resort Dev. V, L.P., L.L.L.P., 2014 WL 4537500, at *8 (Bankr. D. Del. Sept. 12, 2014) (denying a creditor's motion for Rule 2004 examination because recovery beyond the moving creditor's allowed claim was impossible and an examination by the moving creditor "would be futile").

Here, as in J & R Trucking, DCA seeks to examine Debtor to investigate any transfers made by Debtor to third parties. For the reasons set forth by the J & R Trucking court, the chapter 7 trustee is tasked with the investigation, avoidance and recovery of transfers. As such, without the chapter 7 trustee explicitly requesting DCA's assistance, DCA does not have a purpose for the 2004 examination; even if DCA uncovers transfers from Debtor to a third party, DCA cannot use that information to avoid the transfers or recover the transfers for the benefit of the estate.

After Debtor filed an objection to the Motion, the burden shifted to DCA to show "good cause" for the examination. Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. at 829. In both the Motion and the Reply, DCA's sole articulated purpose for conducting a Rule 2004 examination is to investigate Debtor's relationship with a different entity and any transfers made to that entity. As noted by Subpoena Duces Tecum, "[g]enerally, good cause is shown if the Rule 2004 examination is necessary to establish the claim of the party seeking the examination, or if denial of such request would cause the examiner undue hardship or injustice." Id. Here, DCA has not stated that it needs to examine Debtor to establish its claim against the estate, and DCA has not articulated any undue hardship or injustice it may suffer as a result of denial of the Motion. Instead, DCA seeks an examination to investigate alleged transfers from Debtor to another entity, which is a duty assigned by statute to the chapter 7 trustee. Under J & R Trucking, a creditor's attempt to assume the chapter 7 trustee's duties through a Rule 2004 examination is inappropriate without the chapter 7 trustee's explicit consent.

Shirin Ataie-Tabrizi ("Debtor") and her former husband were married on September 23, 1984, and separated on December 15, 2010 [doc. 19]. On November 22, 2011, Debtor and her former husband executed a marital settlement agreement (the "Agreement"). Id. On January 23, 2012, the Los Angeles Superior Court entered a judgment for dissolution of marriage on the terms set forth in the Agreement. Id. The Agreement divided the couples' community property and community debts. Id. The Agreement provides in relevant part,

Each hereby transfer and quitclaims to the other any and all interest in any property in possession of the other, and agrees that whatever property the other may possess is now the sole and separate property of the other.

Agreement, ¶ 6.C.

On March 13, 2013, Habib Bondakdarzadeh ("Creditor") filed a complaint against Debtor and her former husband in the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles, alleging fraud, among other things, based on conduct that occurred during Debtor's marriage (the "State Court Action"). Id. On May 11, 2017, the state court entered a default judgment in the State Court Action against Debtor and her former husband in the amount of $325,000.00 (the "Judgment") [doc., Exh. 1].

After the Judgment was entered, Debtor alone filed a motion to vacate the Judgment and to set a new trial date (the "Motion to Vacate") [Declaration of Habib Bonakdarzadeh, ("Bonakdarzadeh Decl."), doc. 25, ¶ 2]. The state court granted the

On April 9, 2018, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. On April 17, 2018, Creditor filed proof of claim no. 1 (the "Claim") for $425,000.00 based on the Judgment [Claim 1, p. 2]. Creditor attached a supplement to the Claim which computed the Claim as follows: (1) $325,000.00 per the Judgment against Debtor's former husband; (2) $32,500.00 based on interest at 10% from April 1, 2017 through April 8, 2018; and (3) $100,000.00 for attorneys' fees and costs incurred in the State Court Action (estimate).

On April 23, 2018, Debtor filed a chapter 13 plan (the "Plan") [doc. 10]. On June 1, 2018, Creditor filed an objection to confirmation of the Plan (the "Objection") [doc. 18]. On June 1, 2018, Debtor filed a response to the Objection (the "Response") [doc. 19].

On July 25, 2018, Creditor filed a supplemental brief in support of the Objection [doc. 25]. On September 24, 2018, Debtor filed a supplemental Response [doc. 30]. On October 12, 2018, Creditor filed a second supplemental brief in support of the Objection [doc. 31].

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 101(7)—

The term "community claim" means claim that arose before the commencement of the case concerning the debtor for which property of the kind specified in section 541\(a\)\(2\) of this title is liable, whether or not there is any such property at the time of the commencement of the case.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(2)—

(a) The commencement of a case under section 301, 302, or 303 of this title creates an estate. Such estate is comprised of all the following property, wherever located and by whomever held:

(2) All interests of the debtor and the debtor's spouse in community property as of the commencement of the case that is--

(A) under the sole, equal, or joint management and control of the debtor; or

(B) liable for an allowable claim against the debtor, or for both an allowable claim against the debtor and an allowable claim against the debtor's spouse, to the extent that such interest is so liable.

Construing §§ 101(7) and 541(a)(2) together, a community claim, for bankruptcy purposes, is a prepetition claim for which community property of the debtor and the debtor's spouse is liable, whether or not such claim has proceeded to a judgment or otherwise is liquidated on the petition date. In re Kimmel, 378 B.R. 630, 635 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007), aff'd, 302 F. Chapter 13

Pursuant to Cal. Fam. Code § 910—

(a) Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, the community estate is liable for a debt incurred by either spouse before or during marriage, regardless of which spouse has the management and control of the property and regardless of whether one or both spouses are parties to the debt or to a judgment for the debt.

(b) "During marriage" for purposes of this section does not include the period after the date of separation, as defined in Section 70, and before a judgment of dissolution of marriage or legal separation of the parties.

Pursuant to Cal. Fam. Code § 1000(a)—

A married person is not liable for any injury or damage caused by the other spouse except in cases where the married person would be liable therefor if the marriage did not exist.

Here, Creditor argues that Debtor is ineligible for chapter 13 relief pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 109(e) because she has more than $394,725.00 of noncontingent, liquidated, unsecured debts. Creditor contends that the Judgment is a community liability of Debtor and her former husband because the parties were married when the debt arose. Creditor argues that both spouses are equally liable for debts and liabilities of either spouse incurred during marriage. As such, Creditor contends that Debtor is equally liable for the Judgment.

Creditor may be correct that the Judgment is a community debt because the conduct giving rise to the Judgment allegedly occurred while Debtor was married to her former spouse. However, pursuant to Cal. Fam. Code §§ 910 and 1000, only the community estate is liable for community debts. As such, the Judgment cannot be satisfied from Debtor’s separate property.

"Under California law, the event which terminates liability of community property for community debts as well as debts of the other spouse is division of the community property, not dissolution of the status of the marriage." In re Miller, 167 B.R. 202, 208

(Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1994). "The judgment of dissolution of marriage merely restores the parties to the state of unmarried persons." Id.; Cal.Fam.Code Section 2300. "The dissolution of status has no effect on the liability of community property for community debts." Miller, 167 B.R. at 208. "It is division of community property which cuts off this liability." Id. "Upon division of community property, the community property received by spouse "A" ceases to be liable for a debt incurred by spouse "B" before or during marriage, unless the debt incurred by spouse "B" was assigned to spouse "A" as part of the division of the property." Id.; Cal.Fam.Code Section 916(a)(2).

The separate property owned by a married person at the time of the division and the property received by the person in the division is not liable for a debt incurred by the person's spouse before or during marriage, and the person is not personally liable for the debt, unless the debt was assigned for payment by the person in the division of the property. Nothing in this paragraph affects the liability of property for the satisfaction of a lien on the property.

Under Cal. Fam. Code § 916(a)(2), the community's liability for community debts as well as debts of the other spouse terminates at division of property. The separate property owned by a married person at the time of the division and the property received by the person in the division is not liable for a debt incurred by the person's spouse before or during marriage, and the person is not personally liable for the debt, unless the debt was assigned for payment by the person in the division of the property.

Here, on January 23, 2012, the community estate's liability for community debts terminated when the state court entered a judgment for dissolution of marriage because the judgment also divided the community property according to the terms of the Agreement. Under the Agreement, the property received by each spouse was their sole and separate property. The Judgment was entered five years after the community estate's liability for community debts terminated. As such, the "community estate" cannot be liable for the Judgment, as it did not exist. Further, Debtor is not personally liable for the Judgment because she was not assigned payment of the Judgment under the Agreement.

Thus, Creditor does not have a "community claim" as defined under § 101(7). The Judgment is not enforceable against the community estate because the community estate's liability for community debts terminated in 2012. Further, Debtor had no community property at the time of filing the petition that would be liable for the Judgment. See Kimmel, 378 B.R. at 635. Creditor also does not have a claim against Debtor for the Judgment because Debtor is not personally liable for the Judgment. Creditor does not have a right to payment of the Judgment from Debtor. As such, Creditor does not hold a claim against the bankruptcy estate as defined in § 101(5)(A).

Because Debtor has no liability for the Judgment and it is not a claim as defined in § 101(5)(A), it is not debt for purposes of § 109(e). As such, Debtor is under the applicable debt limit in § 109(e) to qualify for chapter 13 relief.

Even if the Court found that Creditor has a community claim against Debtor, Debtor would still be under the applicable debt limit in § 109(e) to qualify for chapter 13 relief. Debtor contends that Creditor has deliberately inflated his claim in order to dismiss Debtor's case. Debtor correctly points out there is no indication in the Judgment that Creditor was awarded attorneys' fees. In order for attorneys' fees to be considered liquidated under § 109(e) they must have been awarded as part of the prepetition judgment. See In re Wenberg, 94 B.R. 631 (Bankr. 9th Cir. 1988). Once the $100,000 attorneys' fees are taken out of the Claim, Debtor's total claims are below the debt limits for either secured or unsecured debts. Thus, Debtor is eligible for chapter 13 relief.

Tentative Ruling:

Overrule objection to confirmation.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 12, 2018, Cindy Karina Monterroso ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. On July 26, 2018, Debtor filed a chapter 13 plan (the "Plan") [doc. 11]. Also on July 26, 2018, Debtor filed her schedules and statement of financial affairs [doc. 14].

On her Schedule A/B, debtor lists real property located at 14501 Tupper Street, Unit # 28, Panorama City, CA 91402 (the "Property"), with a fair market value of $0.00. Id. In response to "other information you wish to add about this item," Debtor states, "Debtor's mother's residence; Debtor on title for estate planning purposes only – she has not [sic] ownership interest." Id. Debtor's mother, Irma E. Monterroso ("Irma"), owns the Property free and clear of any liens and mortgages. Declaration of Cindy Karina Monterroso ("Debtor Decl."), doc. 23, ¶ 3; Declaration of Irma E. Monterroso ("Irma Decl."), doc. 23, ¶ 4.

On October 15, 2013, Irma deeded the Property to herself and Debtor as joint tenants. Debtor Decl., ¶ 4; Irma Decl., ¶ 6. Irma states that she transferred the Property as an estate planning tool in order to bequeath the Property to Debtor at Irma's death and to avoid probate. Debtor Decl., ¶ 4; Irma Decl., ¶ 6. Debtor was also concerned about bad actors taking advantage of an elderly widow without English or legal understanding with sole possession of clear title in the Property. Debtor Decl., ¶ 4. Debtor and Irma both state that they both understood that Debtor's role on the title was strictly as a trustee who would ensure that title could not pass without her approval, and as a means of avoiding probate at Irma's passing. payments and maintenance and upkeep on the Property. Irma Decl., ¶ 5; Debtor Decl., ¶ 5. Debtor has never lived at the Property, never paid any bills or expenses related to the Property and never contributed to the maintenance or upkeep on the Property in any manner. Debtor Decl., ¶ 5a-c. Debtor states that she did not seek to remove herself from title to the property before filing her petition because she did not want to give the appearance that she was attempting to fraudulently transfer the Property out of her name. Debtor Decl., ¶ 7.

On August 21, 2018, the chapter 13 trustee (the "Trustee") filed an objection to confirmation of the Plan (the "Objection") [doc. 19]. In the Objection, the Trustee disputed Debtor's valuation of the Property and requested that Debtor file a brief with the Court if Debtor was claiming that the Property is not Debtor's property. On September 12, 2018, Debtor filed a brief in support of the confirmation of the Plan (the "Response") [doc. 23]. In the Response, Debtor argues that she only holds bare legal title to the Property in a resulting trust in favor of Irma.

On October 23, 2018, the Trustee filed a reply to the Response (the "Reply") [doc. 28]. In the Reply, the Trustee argues that a resulting trust does not exist in this case because transfers between a parent and child are presumed to be a gift and because Debtor has a beneficial interest and an equitable interest in the Property. The Trustee further argues that even if the Court finds that a resulting trust does exist, Debtor still has a legal and equitable interest in the Property according to Ninth Circuit case law.

II. DISCUSSION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(1), property of a debtor's estate includes "all legal or equitable interests of the debtor in property." "However, it does not include 'any power that the debtor may exercise solely for the benefit' of another, 11 U.S.C. § 541(b)(1), nor does it include '[p]roperty in which the debtor holds ... only legal title and not an equitable interest.' 11 U.S.C. § 541(d)." In re Unicom Computer Corp., 13 F.3d 321, 324 (9th Cir. 1994). Debtor argues she holds legal title to the Property in a resulting trust in favor of Irma. To prevail on her claim, Debtor must show by clear and convincing evidence that Irma paid for the Property and that Irma did not intend to give Debtor a beneficial interest in the Property when Debtor’s name was placed on record title. See Cecconi, 366 B.R. at 115.

The question is whether by allowing Debtor’s name on the record title to the Property, Irma intended to gift Debtor a beneficial interest in the Property or whether Irma intended to retain the full beneficial interest for herself. See id. at 120. Because Irma, the purchaser of the Property, transferred an interest to her child, there is a rebuttable presumption that Irma intended to gift an interest in the Property to Debtor. Debtor can rebut that presumption by presenting sufficient evidence.

Debtor has shown the existence of a resulting trust by clear and convincing evidence. Debtor and Irma both credibly testified in their respective declarations that neither Debtor nor Irma intended for Debtor to hold any beneficial interest in the Property. See Cecconi, 366 B.R. at 121. Debtor and Irma both state that they both understood that Debtor’s role on the title was strictly as a trustee who would ensure that title could not pass without her approval, and as a means of avoiding probate at Irma’s passing. Debtor credibly testified that it was her understanding that she has no ownership claim to the Property. See id. Debtor has never lived at the Property, never paid any bills or expenses related to the Property and never contributed to the maintenance or upkeep on the Property in any manner. Further, Debtor presented evidence that Irma pays the related expenses and bills associated with the Property, including the homeowner’s insurance on the Property (Exh. B-C), the property taxes on the Property (Exh. D), the utilities on the Property (Exh. E) and the monthly homeowner’s association payments (Exh. F). Finally, Debtor and Irma both credibly testified that the only reason for the transfer was for estate planning purposes.

The Trustee did not present any contradictory evidence. See Chaleunrath, 2006 WL 6810921, at *5. Further, the Trustee did not present evidence that Debtor and Irma’s conduct changed after the transfer of the Property. See In re Stewart, 368 B.R. 445, 454–55 (Bankr. E.D. Pa. 2007). Even though Debtor did not establish the exact amount of consideration Irma paid, that is not relevant when the Court is not faced with an allocation issue. See id. As such, Debtor has met her burden of proving by clear and convincing evidence that a resulting trust exists.

Thus, Debtor holds only bare legal title to the Property. Because Debtor holds only bare legal title, the Property is not property of the bankruptcy estate under 11 U.S.C. § 541. The Court will overrule the Objection.

The Trustee argues that there is no resulting trust because Debtor has a beneficial interest in the Property. The Trustee claims because Debtor will receive the Property when Irma passes, that Irma intended Debtor to have a beneficial interest. However, the case law does not support the Trustee’s position. In Stewart [FN1] an analogous case to this one, the debtor’s mother transferred ownership of her property to the debtor for estate planning purposes. 368 B.R. at 447. The court found that the debtor held the property in a resulting trust in favor of his mother. 368 B.R. at 454-55. In Cecconi, the trustee made a similar argument to the Trustee in this case, and the court rejected the argument. Among other cases, the court cited Jones v. Kelley, 121 Cal.App.2d 130 (1953).

In Jones a husband and wife intentionally took title in joint tenancy even though the property was purchased with the wife's separate assets. The wife testified that it was the understanding of her and her husband that the property was taken in joint tenancy so that if either spouse predeceased the other, the surviving spouse would hold full ownership of the property. One week before his death, the husband quitclaimed his joint tenancy interest to his daughter from a previous marriage. In an action to quiet title, the wife was awarded a resulting trust on the finding that the joint tenancy was held with the intent and agreement that the property would be held for the survivor of the husband and wife. The Kelley court noted that:

The form of an instrument under which a husband and wife hold title is not conclusive as to the status of the property ... When there is an oral or written agreement as to ownership of the property, or where such an understanding may be inferred from the conduct and declarations of the spouses the terms of the deed are not controlling.

Kelley, 121 Cal.App.2d at 134. In Kelley, the testimony of the wife amply sustained her burden of proving a resulting trust by clear and convincing evidence. Id. Similarly, in Rowland v. Clark, 91 Cal.App.2d 880 (1949), the court found there was a resulting trust in favor of a grandmother during her lifetime where the grandmother paid the consideration for the property but took title in the name of herself and her granddaughter as joint tenants with intent to retain a life estate.

The Trustee also argues that under Ninth Circuit case law, Debtor has a legal and equitable interest in the Property. The Trustee cites In re Neuton, 922 F.2d 1379, 1381-82 (9th Cir. 1990) and In re Dias, 37 Bankr. 584, 586-87 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1984), for the proposition that a beneficial interest in a trust is an equitable interest under 11 U.S.C. § 541 despite the fact that at the time of filing it was contingent. However, the cases the Trustee cites are inapposite. In Neuton, the debtor held an interest in spendthrift trust as the beneficiary. In Dias, the debtor held an interest in her grandparent's inter vivos trust as one of the beneficiaries. Here, Debtor is not the beneficiary of the resulting trust. Debtor holds legal title to the Property as trustee for the benefit of Irma. Further, the case law is clear that property a debtor holds subject to a resulting trust does not become part of the debtor's bankruptcy estate.

III. CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, the Court will overrule the Objection.

FOOTNOTES

1. Although this is a Pennsylvania case, the burden of proof, the legal standard and the gift presumption are analogous to California law.

#25.00 Chapter 13 confirmation hearing

Docket 0

Tentative Ruling:

In order to evaluate thoroughly the issues raised in the Objection to Confirmation of Second Amended Chapter 13 Plan (the "Objection") [doc. 84], filed on October 30, 2018 by Trinity Financial Services LLC, and the debtor's reply to the Objection [doc. 86], filed on November 2, 2018 (as well as the prior briefing filed), if the debtor is current on his senior deed of trust and plan payments, the Court intends to continue this confirmation hearing to December 11, 2018 at 9:30 a.m.

At the plan confirmation hearing to be held on November 6, 2018, the Court will not take oral argument on Trinity's objections to confirmation, and the parties are excused from making appearances for that purpose.

#60.00 Show cause hearing why debtor's counsel should not be sanctioned for failure to appear at hearing on trustee's motion to dismiss

Tentative Ruling:

On August 9, 2018, the chapter 13 trustee (the "Trustee") filed a motion to dismiss the case of Indira LaRoda ("Debtor") for failure to make plan payments ("Motion to Dismiss") [doc. 81]. On August 23, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion to Dismiss [doc. 82]. The initial hearing on the Motion to Dismiss was set for September 18, 2018. Response, ¶ 9.

On October 9, 2018, the Court held a continued hearing on the Motion to Dismiss. Debtor's counsel did not appear. On October 9, 2018, the Court issued the OSC [doc. 84], on the grounds that Debtor's counsel failed to appear at the hearing on the Motion to Dismiss as required by Local Bankruptcy Rule 3015-1(u)(1). Debtor's counsel was ordered to explain his failure to appear and file and serve on Debtor a written response to the OSC no later than October 23, 2018.

On October 23, 2018, Debtor's counsel timely filed his response ("Response") [doc. 87]. In his Response, Debtor's counsel stated that he failed to appear at the hearing because he mistakenly thought the hearing was off calendar. Response, ¶ 12.

If Debtor's counsel or an appearance attorney appears at the continued Motion to Dismiss hearing on September 18, 2018 at 11:00 a.m., then the Court may discharge the OSC. However, if no appearance is made at the continued Motion to Dismiss hearing, the Court may impose sanctions on Debtor's counsel.

#61.00 Show cause hearing why debtors' counsel should not be sanctioned for failure to appear at confirmation hearing

Docket 42

Tentative Ruling:

On September 19, 2018, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause Why Debtors' Counsel Should Not be Sanctioned for Failure to Appear at Confirmation Hearing (the "OSC") [doc. 42], on the grounds that the debtors' counsel failed to appear at the confirmation hearing as required by LBR 3015-1(d). The debtors' counsel was ordered to explain his failure to appear and file and serve on the debtors a written response to the OSC no later than October 23, 2018.

The debtor's counsel timely filed a response. However, contrary to the OSC, the debtors' counsel did not serve his response on the debtors. If the debtors' counsel or an appearance attorney appears at the continued confirmation hearing on November 6, 2018 at 9:30 a.m., then the Court may discharge the OSC. However, if no appearance is made at the continued confirmation hearing, the Court may impose sanctions on the debtors' counsel.

JEWEL CITY DEVELOPMENT

Docket 8

Tentative Ruling:

Although the hearing date and time were included, movant failed to provide an opposition deadline in the notice of the motion.

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to obtain possession of the property.

The order is binding and effective in any bankruptcy case commenced by or against the debtor for a period of 180 days, so that no further automatic stay shall arise in that case as to the property.

Deny request for relief under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(4). Section 362(d)(4) appears to be inapplicable. The movant is the owner of the property, not a creditor whose claim is secured by an interest in the property, as specified in the statute.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Any other request for relief is denied.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Docket 61

Tentative Ruling:

Although the debtor filed a response to the motion, the response is not supported by evidence. On March 1, 2017, the Court entered an order confirming the debtor's chapter 13 plan [doc. 33]. According to the terms of the plan, the debtor surrendered the property to the movant [doc. 33, p. 7]. Further, the debtor is delinquent 28 postpetition payments, for a total postpetition delinquency of $85,158.46. Accordingly, the Court will grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

The co-debtor stay of 11 U.S.C. § 1201(a) and § 1301(a) is terminated, modified or annulled as to the co-debtor, on the same terms and conditions as to the debtor.

The Court will not waive the 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3).

#11.00 Pretrial conference re complaint to determine non-dischargeability of debt
fr. 4/4/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(e), the plaintiff did not file and serve a declaration regarding the plaintiff's efforts to contact the defendant and the defendant's alleged non-cooperation.

In the plaintiff's unilateral pretrial statement [doc. 40], the plaintiff states that it is ready for trial. However, the plaintiff also states that the plaintiff intends to file a motion to compel the defendant to appear for a deposition and respond to the plaintiff's other discovery requests. Moreover, the plaintiff also states it intends to file a motion in limine to exclude evidence and testimony the defendant did not produce during discovery and a motion to strike the defendant's answer.

Does the plaintiff intend: (1) to move to compel the defendant to produce discovery and/or appear for deposition; or (2) to proceed at this time with a motion to exclude defendant's testimony and evidence and/or to strike defendant's answer?

fr. 2/14/18; 5/16/18; 6/20/18, 9/12/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(b)(2)(J), the parties did not include the following language in their joint pretrial stipulation (the "JPS") [doc. 32]: "The foregoing admissions have been made by the parties, and the parties have specified the foregoing issues of fact and law remaining to be litigated. Therefore, this order supersedes the pleadings and governs the course of trial of this cause, unless modified to prevent manifest injustice." The Court will add this language to its order approving the JPS.

The Court also will strike paragraph 16 of the admitted facts in the JPS. The Court denied the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment based on a number of reasons set forth in the Court's written ruling on that motion [doc. 22], and not simply because the Court "wanted to hear live testimony on intent."

In addition, although the complaint did not include a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), the parties state in the JPS that § 523(a)(6) is an issue of law to be adjudicated at trial. Does the defendant agree to the inclusion of § 523(a)(6) as a claim to be tried?

Other than the issues noted above, the Court will approve the JPS. The parties should be prepared to address the following:

The Court intends to set this matter for trial at 9:30 a.m. on January 28, 2019.

TRIAL BRIEFS:

The Court will request pretrial briefs from the parties on the following issues:

United States Bankruptcy Court
Central District of California
San Fernando Valley
Judge Victoria Kaufman, Presiding
Courtroom 301 Calendar

Wednesday, November 7, 2018

Hearing Room 301

(A) The application of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and, if approved, § 523(a)(6), to the facts;

(B) Whether the Court should apply California or Texas law on exemplary damages; and

(C) If the plaintiff is entitled to an award of exemplary damages, whether the Court is bound by the state court's calculation of exemplary damages.

The plaintiff's trial brief must be filed and served 28 days before trial.

The defendant's trial brief must be filed and served 21 days before trial.

Any reply brief by the plaintiff must be filed and served 14 days before trial.

WITNESS TESTIMONY:

Testimony of witnesses must be presented live at trial pursuant to the Federal Rules of Evidence. Each party will be responsible for securing the timely appearance of his/her/their non-party witnesses.

Seven (7) days before trial, the parties also must file a joint witness schedule setting forth the time and date (e.g., which day and a.m. or p.m.) for the cross-examination of each witness.

The Court will NOT consider the testimony of any witnesses who were not identified on a party's witness list, and will not consider the testimony of any witness which is not relevant to the issues of fact and law for trial.

EXHIBITS:

All trial exhibits must be numbered and marked as required by Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 9070-1(a). If deposition testimony is to be offered as part of the evidence, the offering party must comply with LBR 7030-1.

Chapter 7

The Court will NOT consider any exhibit that was not identified on a party's exhibit list, and will not consider any exhibit which is not relevant to the issues of fact and law for trial.

One week prior to trial, each party must deliver to the chambers of Judge Victoria S. Kaufman the original and two copies of a notebook containing all of that party's trial exhibits, or the parties may deliver a joint exhibit notebook.

The Court will issue an order incorporating its trial procedures, the related deadlines and the trial dates.

Docket      1

Tentative Ruling:

The plaintiff did not timely serve the summons on the defendant. In his proof of service, the plaintiff indicates that he served the defendant with the summons and complaint on September 25, 2018. However, the summons expired on September 18, 2018.

The plaintiff must request another summons from the Court. The plaintiff can obtain another summons from the Court by sending a request letter to Courtroom Services, Attn: Patty Garcia, 21041 Burbank Blvd., Woodland Hills, CA 91367.

The summons must be served upon the defendant within 7 days of its issuance by the Court, pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004(e) and Local Bankr. R. 7004-1(b). The plaintiff must attach the summons a copy of the complaint and a copy of Judge Kaufman's Status Conference Instructions.

To demonstrate proper service of the summons and the complaint and instructions to be served with that summons, the plaintiff must file a signed proof of service indicating that the summons and the documents to be served with that summons were timely served on the defendant. October 3, 2018 at 1:30 p.m

If the plaintiff can obtain another summons from the Court by November 28, 2018, the status conference will be continued to February 6, 2018 at 1:30 p.m.

#18.00 Motion for discovery orders re: interrogatories

Docket 617

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

A. Debtor's Bankruptcy Case and Claim of Exemption

On February 7, 2011, Kevan Harry Gilman ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On February 21, 2011, Debtor filed his schedule C, in which he claimed an exemption in the real property located at 6553 Varna Avenue, Van Nuys, California 91401 (the "Property") in the amount of $137,000 [doc. 12].

On June 24, 2011, Tammy R. Phillips and Tammy R. Phillips, a Prof. Law Corp. ("Creditors") filed an objection to Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption [doc. 27]. On June 25, 2011, Creditors filed an amended objection to Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption [doc. 30]. On August 11, 2011, after Debtor failed to respond, the Court entered an order sustaining Creditors' objection to Debtor's homestead exemption [doc. 37].

On August 4, 2011, Debtor filed an amended schedule C, claiming a homestead exemption in the amount of $104,000 [doc. 35]. On July 17, 2012, Creditors filed a renewed motion objecting to Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption (the "Objection") [doc. 73]. In the Objection, Creditors argued that: (A) On August 7, 2012, the Court held a hearing on the Objection. At that time, the Court issued a ruling overruling the Objection, except as to Debtor's claim of an enhanced homestead exemption [doc. 84]. On September 5, 2012, the Court held a status conference on the Objection and set a discovery cutoff date of December 31, 2012.

B. Creditors' Extensive Discovery

Subsequently, Creditors filed several discovery motions in connection with the Objection as well as a different objection to Debtor's claim of an exemption in alleged retirement accounts. Specifically, on July 27, 2013, Creditors filed a motion for terminating sanctions based on Debtor's alleged failure to comply with a prior order to compel discovery (the "Motion for Terminating Sanctions") [doc. 154]. In their reply to Debtor's opposition to the Motion for Terminating Sanctions, Creditors filed exhibits containing over 200 pages of documents which Debtor had produced in response to Creditors' discovery requests [docs. 175, 176]. As such, the Court denied the Motion for Terminating Sanctions [doc. 186].

On October 11, 2013, Creditors filed additional discovery motions, including: (A) a motion to compel responses to a deposition question asking Debtor to identify the banks in which Debtor currently has accounts [doc. 187]; (B) a motion renewing Creditors' request for terminating sanctions [doc. 189]; and (C) another motion renewing Creditors' request for terminating sanctions [doc. 192]. On December 4, 2013, Creditors filed additional discovery motions, including a motion to compel further responses to interrogatories [doc. 205] and a motion to compel further responses for document production [doc. 206]. On December 11, 2013, Creditors filed a motion to deem certain responses to requests for admission insufficient and requested sanctions against Debtor [doc. 208].

On December 26, 2013, the Court issued the Order to Show Cause Why the Court Should Not (1) Limit Discovery Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(2)(C) and/or (2) Deny Creditors' Motion to Compel Deposition Response, Two Terminating Sanctions Motions, Motion to Compel Interrogatory Responses, Motion to Compel Document Production, and Motion to Compel RFA Responses (the "Discovery OSC") [doc. 211]. In the Discovery OSC, the Court, relying on Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 26(b)(2)(C) and case authority, asked Creditors to show cause why further discovery was warranted. The Court noted that "there is evidence that the outstanding discovery sought from Debtor is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative" and that "Creditors have bombarded Debtor with excessive, overlapping discovery methods and numerous discovery motions." Discovery OSC, p. 5. The Court found:

Regarding Creditors' opportunity to obtain the information by discovery, Creditors have had well over one year to conduct discovery regarding the Objection. While there have been delays in discovery production (for which the Court has extended the discovery cutoffs), Creditors now appear to have received ample discovery to prosecute the Objection.

Lastly, the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefits, considering the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues at stake in the action, and the importance of the discovery in resolving these issues.

Discovery OSC, pp. 5-6.

Although the Court adjudicated Debtor's entitlement to a general homestead exemption on August 7, 2012, and much of the discovery related to Debtor's entitlement to a disability enhancement to his homestead exemption and to Debtor's claim of an exemption in alleged retirement accounts, Creditors' discovery requests included broad requests for, among other things, Debtor's banking information. In addition, concurrently with the litigation surrounding Debtor's claims of exemption, Creditors filed a complaint against Debtor requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to Creditors and objecting to Debtor's discharge (the "Adversary Proceeding") [1:11-ap-01389-VK]. In connection with their numerous claims in the Adversary Proceeding, including allegations regarding Debtor's concealment or transfer of property of the estate, Creditors conducted extensive discovery. Although the Court initially set a discovery cutoff date of December 15, 2011, the Court thrice granted Creditors' request to continue the discovery cutoff date [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 60, 90, 132], eventually extending the discovery cutoff date to November 18, 2012. After the expiration of the discovery deadline, Creditors moved to file a supplemental complaint against Debtor [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 270], which the Court granted [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 286]. On February 18, 2015, Creditors moved to amend their supplemental complaint [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 393], which the Court again granted [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 420]. Creditors' amended supplemental complaint included allegations that Debtor did not disclose that the Property was in escrow as of the petition date [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 415].

In light of Creditors' supplemental and amended supplemental complaints, the Court set a new discovery cutoff date of June 1, 2015 [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 384].

Eventually, the Court entered a judgment denying Debtor his discharge based on Debtor's postpetition transfers of funds from accounts belonging to the estate [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 671].

C. The Court's Ruling on Debtor's Exemptions and Subsequent Appeals

On January 6, 2015, the Court entered an order overruling the Objection, except as to Creditors' objection to Debtor's claim of a disability enhancement to Debtor's homestead exemption (the "Homestead Exemption Order") [doc. 315]. The Court subsequently held an evidentiary hearing regarding Debtor's claim of a disability enhancement, after which time the Court sustained Creditors' objection to Debtor's claim of a disability enhancement. On January 20, 2015, Creditors filed a motion for new trial and/or a motion to vacate the Homestead Exemption Order (the "Motion for New Trial") [doc. 321]. On March 18, 2015, the Court held a hearing on the Motion for New Trial. On April 10, 2015, the Court entered an order denying the Motion for New Trial [doc. 368].

On April 1, 2015, Creditors appealed the Homestead Exemption Order [doc. 361]. On February 22, 2016, the district court affirmed the Homestead Exemption Order [doc. 495]. On August 22, 2016, Creditors appealed the district court's ruling to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals [doc. 496]. On April 13, 2018, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals issued its opinion (the "Opinion"). In re Gilman, 887 F.3d 956 (9th Cir. 2018). In the Opinion, the Court of Appeals stated that the only issues remaining for adjudication on remand are: (A) whether Debtor intended to reside at the Property; and (B) whether California equitable law could be used to deny Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption (the "Issues on Remand"). Id., at 966.

D. Post-Remand History

On June 27, 2018, the parties appeared for a status conference after remand. In a ruling after that status conference (the "Discovery Ruling") [doc. 600], the Court reiterated that the Court would only entertain the Issues on Remand. The Court explicitly stated:

In light of the Court of Appeals' decision, the only issues remaining for adjudication on remand are: (A) whether the debtor intended to reside at the subject property; and (B) whether any California equitable law could be used to deny the debtor's exemption. As a result, the Court will entertain arguments only about these narrow issues. Any attempt by a party to relitigate issues that have already been decided by the Court of Appeals may subject that party to sanctions in accordance with Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9011.

As a courtesy to the parties, and despite the years of extensive discovery preceding the remand, the Court allowed the parties to propound additional discovery, but limited such discovery to the narrow Issues on Remand. The Court set a discovery cutoff date of September 14, 2018. Subsequently, the Court twice continued the discovery cutoff date [docs. 612, 613], landing on a final discovery cutoff date of September 28, 2018.

E. The Discovery Motion

On July 16, 2018, Creditors served a first set of interrogatories, consisting of a single interrogatory, on Debtor ("First Interrogatory"). Declaration of Charles Jakob ("Jakob Declaration") [doc. 621], ¶ 2. Concurrently with the First Interrogatory, Creditors served requests for admission ("RFAs") and requests for production of documents (the "RFPs"). Id. On August 3, 2018, Creditors served a second set of interrogatories, consisting of four interrogatories, on Debtor (the "Second Interrogatories"). Jakob Declaration, ¶ 3.

On August 17, 2018, Debtor mailed responses to the First Interrogatory and to the RFAs. Declaration of Mark Ellis ("Interrogatory Ellis Declaration") [doc. 620], ¶ 2; Declaration of Rosanne Estrella [doc. 620], ¶¶ 2-3, Exhibits 1-2. Debtor mailed his responses to 7144 Fair Oaks Boulevard, Suite 3A, Carmichael, California 95608 (the "Carmichael Address"). Id. Creditors list the Carmichael Address as their business address on their filings and sign off their emails with the Carmichael Address. See, e.g. Jakob Declaration, ¶¶ 6, 9, Exhibits 3, 6.

On August 22, 2018, Creditors' counsel emailed Debtor's counsel, stating that Creditors had not received Debtor's responses to Creditors' first set of discovery requests. Jakob Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit 1. On August 24, 2018, Debtor's counsel emailed Creditors' counsel, asserting that Debtor timely served Creditors at the Carmichael Address. Jakob Declaration, ¶ 7, Exhibit 4. Nevertheless, Debtor attached his responses to the First Interrogatory and the RFAs to the August 24, 2018 email. Id.

On August 28, 2018, Debtor served his responses to the Second Interrogatories as well as to the RFAs from Creditors' first set of discovery requests. Interrogatory Ellis Declaration, ¶ 4; Declaration of Jennifer E. Mueller ("Mueller Declaration") [doc. 620], ¶¶ 2-4, Exhibits 3-5. Debtor mailed his responses to the Carmichael Address. Id. Debtor acknowledges that his responses to the RFAs were not timely, stating that one of Debtor's attorneys fell ill around the time the responses to the RFAs came due. Interrogatory Ellis Declaration, ¶ 5. Because his responses were untimely, Debtor served his responses to the RFAs without objection. Id.

On September 5, 2018, Debtor served Creditors with an amended response to the First Interrogatory, clarifying an error from Debtor's first response. Interrogatory Ellis Declaration, ¶ 7; Mueller Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit 6. Debtor served Creditors at the Carmichael Address. Id. On September 21, 2018, Debtor served Creditors with an amended response to the RFAs at the Carmichael Address. Interrogatory Ellis Declaration, ¶ 6; Mueller Declaration, ¶ 8.

On September 28, 2018, Creditors filed the Motion for Discovery Orders re: Interrogatories (the "Discovery Motion") [doc. 617]. Creditors request further responses to the First Interrogatory and the Second Interrogatories and request sanctions based on responses which Creditors contend were untimely. On October 3, 2018, Debtor filed a response to the Discovery Motion [doc. 620]. On October 25, 2018, Creditors filed an objection to Debtor's response [doc. 630].

F. The Objection to Subpoenas

On August 17, 2018, Creditors served subpoenas on JPMorgan Chase Bank, Wells Fargo Bank and Bank of America (collectively, the "Subpoenas"). Declaration of Mark E. Ellis ("Subpoena Ellis Declaration") [doc. 604], ¶¶ 3-5, Exhibits 2-4. In attachments to the Subpoenas, Creditors requested all documents related to Debtor's accounts with those banks, as well as all documents related to loans, Certificates of Deposit, retirement accounts, customer correspondence, checks, wire transfers, teller tapes and credit cards for the period between May 3, 2015 and August 17, 2018. Id.

Creditors also requested all of the documents specified above related to accounts in the name of Kwei-Shiang Gilman, Debtor's ex-wife, for the period between the petition date and August 17, 2018. Id.

On August 30, 2018, 13 days after Creditors' service of the Subpoenas and prior to the deadline for the banks to respond, Debtor served objections to the Subpoenas on the recipient banks and on Creditors. Subpoena Ellis Declaration, ¶¶ 6-9, Exhibits 5-9. Debtor's letter to Creditors also included a request for Creditors to withdraw the Subpoenas. Subpoena Ellis Declaration, ¶ 9, Exhibit 8. On September 2, 2018, Creditors responded to Debtor's letter and refused to withdraw the Subpoenas. Subpoena Ellis Declaration, ¶ 10, Exhibit 9.

On September 11, 2018, Debtor filed a motion to quash the Subpoenas, or, in the alternative, for a protective order pursuant to Rule 26(c) (the "Objection to Subpoenas") [doc. 604]. On September 12, 2018, Creditors filed a motion to strike the Objection to Subpoenas (the "Motion to Strike") [doc. 608], asserting that the Objection to Subpoenas was filed in the wrong court. On October 25, 2018, Creditors filed an opposition to the Objection to Subpoenas (the "Opposition") [doc. 629]. In the Opposition, Creditors assert that: (A) Debtor does not have standing to move to quash the Subpoenas; (B) the Objection to Subpoenas was filed in the wrong Court; (C) the Objection to Subpoenas is untimely; and (D) Debtor is not entitled to a protective order.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Compliance with Local Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026-1(c)

Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 7026-1(c)(1):

Unless excused from complying with this rule by order of the court for good cause shown, a party must seek to resolve any dispute arising under FRBP 7026-7037 or FRBP 2004 in accordance with this rule.

LBR 7026-1(c)(2) requires the following:

Prior to the filing of any motion relating to discovery, counsel for the parties must meet in person or by telephone in a good faith effort to resolve a recovery dispute. It is the responsibility of counsel for the moving party to arrange the conference. Unless altered by agreement of the parties or by order of the court for cause shown, counsel for the opposing party must meet with the counsel for the moving party within 7 days of service upon counsel of a letter requesting such meeting and specifying the terms of the discovery order to be sought.

In light of the parties' history and inability to resolve discovery disputes without input from the Court, the Court will not require compliance with LBR 7026-1.

B. The Objection to Subpoenas

i. Standing

Creditors first assert that Debtor does not have standing to move to quash the Subpoenas. Pursuant to Rule 45(d)(3)—

(A) When Required. On timely motion, the court for the district where compliance is required must quash or modify a subpoena that:

- (i) fails to allow a reasonable time to comply;
- (ii) requires a person to comply beyond the geographical limits in Rule 45(c);
- (iii) requires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, if no exception or waiver applies; or
- (iv) subjects a person to undue burden.

(B) When Permitted. To protect a person subject to or affected by a subpoena, the court for the district where compliance is required may, on motion, quash or modify the subpoena if it requires:

- (i) disclosing a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information; or

- (ii) disclosing an unretained expert's opinion or information that does not describe specific occurrences in dispute and results from the expert's study that was not requested by a party.

There appears to be no binding authority from the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court of the United States regarding whether a party has standing to move to quash a subpoena issued to a non-party. See Terteryan v. Nissan Motor Acceptance Corp., 2017 WL 3576844, at *2 (C.D. Cal. July 5, 2017) ("The Ninth Circuit has yet to address the question of whether a party has standing to bring a motion to quash.").

Courts within the Ninth Circuit have taken different approaches to the issue of standing. Most courts appear to take the view that "a party lacks standing under [Rule] 45(c)(3) to challenge a subpoena issued to a nonparty unless the party claims a personal right or privilege with respect to the documents requested in the subpoena," but "has standing under Rule 26(c) to seek a protective order regarding subpoenas issued to non-parties which seek irrelevant information." In re REMEC, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2008 WL 2282647, at *1 (S.D. Cal. May 30, 2008) (emphasis added); see also Eric v. Van Cleave, 2017 WL 553276, at *6 (W.D. Wash. Feb. 10, 2017); Clair v. Schlachter, 2016 WL 2984107, at *5 (E.D. Cal. May 23, 2016); and F.T.C. v. AMG Servs., Inc., 291 F.R.D. 544, 552-53 (D. Nev. 2013) (holding that a party may bring a motion for protective order under Rule 26(c) to quash non-party subpoenas).

Another court held that, although subpoenas were issued to nonparties, there was good cause to allow the defendant to move to quash nonparty subpoenas because the subpoenas included requests that was irrelevant and overbroad. Moon v. SCP Pool Corp., 232 F.R.D. 633, 636-38 (C.D. Cal. 2005). Another court found that the standing conferred on a party by operation of Rule 26(c) serves to furnish standing on a party moving to quash a subpoena under Rule 45. Firetrace USA, LLC v. Jesciard, 2008 WL 5146691, at *1-2 (D. Ariz. Dec. 8, 2008). Finally, at least one court held that, even if a party does not have standing to object to a nonparty subpoena, courts may sua sponte assess the relevance of the information sought via the nonparty subpoenas. Rodriguez v. El Toro Med. Inv'rs Ltd. P'ship, 2017 WL 2495171, at *2 (C.D. Cal. May 11, 2017).

Courts outside the Ninth Circuit also have taken different approaches to the issue of standing in this context. For instance, one court found that, although parties have limited standing under Rule 45, courts may assess a motion to quash under Rule 45 as a motion for a protective order under Rule 26(c), under which Rule parties do have standing. Auto-Owners Ins. Co. v. Southeast Floating Docks, Inc., 231 F.R.D. 426, 429 (M.D. Fla. 2005) ("As parties, Defendants clearly have standing to move for a protective order if the subpoenas seek irrelevant information."); see also Washington v. Thurgood Marshall Acad., 230 F.R.D. 18, 22 (D.D.C. 2005) (construing motion to quash under Rule 45 as motion for protective order under Rule 26). Other courts have found that parties may object to subpoenas issued to a party's bank based on the party's "personal right" in their financial records. See, e.g. In re Capuccio, 558 B.R. 930, 933 (Bankr. W.D. Okla. 2016).

Because the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has held that "there is no privilege between a bank and a depositor," Reiserer v. United States, 479 F.3d 1160, 1165 (9th Cir. 2007), it is unclear if the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals would find that Debtor has any personal right in his bank records that would give him standing to move to quash the Subpoenas under Rule 45(d). However, given that numerous decisions within and outside this circuit provide that parties have standing to object to subpoenas pursuant to Rule 26(c), the Court need not reach the question of standing under Rule 45(d). As aptly stated by one court:

Although the relief obtained by Seagate in its motion for a protective order is similar to the relief that could have been obtained by the individuals and entities named in the subpoenas had they brought motions to quash under Rule 45, courts have recognized an important distinction between requests to quash a subpoena and motions for protective orders requesting the court to control discovery more generally under Rules 16 and 26. The mere fact that subpoenas are the type of discovery at issue does not limit parties and the court to the relief provided for in Rule 45. ...Where a party, such as Seagate, contends that subpoena requests are irrelevant, cumulative, and burdensome, they are not simply asserting the rights of the third party, but their own right to reasonable discovery and efficient disposition of the case. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 1. ("These rules ... should be construed and administered to secure the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding."). Furthermore, unlike undue burden, which is a fact potentially best known to the party receiving the subpoena, Seagate, as a party to the present litigation, is the only entity as between itself and third parties with the appropriate knowledge to assert an objection based on relevance or cumulative discovery. Therefore, where a party does not seek to quash a subpoena under Rule 45(c) "the issue is not one of privity between a party and the subpoenaed third-person, but is one of case management under Rules 16 and 26." Marvin Lumber, 177 F.R.D. at 444. Because the Court finds that Seagate is entitled, as a party to the litigation, to limit irrelevant and cumulative discovery, the Court concludes that the Magistrate Judge did not err in finding that Seagate had standing to bring its motion for a protective order.

Shukh v. Seagate Tech., LLC, 295 F.R.D. 228, 236–37 (D. Minn. 2013).

Here, Debtor has moved for a protective order under Rule 26(c), and based on the authorities above, Debtor has standing to object to the Subpoenas under Rule 26, including on the basis that the Subpoenas are irrelevant. Rule 26(c)(1) ("A party or any person from whom discovery is sought may move for a protective order in the court where the action is pending....") (emphasis added). Because Debtor, as a party, is the "only entity... with the appropriate knowledge to assert an objection based on relevance" and to request that the "court... control discovery... under Rules 16 and 26," Shukh, 295 F.R.D. at 236-37, this standing extends to Debtor's objections to the Subpoenas that request Ms. Gilman's banking records as well as Debtor's own banking records.

ii. Debtor Properly Filed the Objection to Subpoenas Before this Court

Creditors also assert that Debtor should have filed the Objection to Subpoenas in the Eastern District of California. Even if the Debtor's request to quash the Subpoenas should have been filed elsewhere, Debtor's request for a protective order is properly filed before this Court. Pursuant to Rule 26(c)(1), "[a] party... may move for a protective order in the court where the action is pending...." (emphasis added). The Objection which gave rise to the Subpoenas is pending before this Court, and this Court is the only court that can entertain Debtor's request for a protective order under Rule 26(c). Because the Motion to Strike is based on Creditors' argument that Debtor improperly filed the Objection to Subpoenas before this Court, the Court will deny the Motion to Strike.

iii. The Request for a Protective Order is Timely

Creditors argue that Debtor's objection to the Subpoenas is untimely. Once again, even if the request to quash the Subpoenas is untimely under Rule 45, the request for a protective order is timely under Rule 26(c). Rule 26(c) does not prescribe a deadline by which a party must file a motion for protective order. Most of the cases cited by Creditors do not discuss Rule 26(c). The only binding authority cited by Creditors is Burlington Northern & Sante Fe Ry. Co. v. U.S. Dist. Court for Dist. of Mont., 408 F.3d 1142, 1149 n.3 (9th Cir. 2005). There, in a footnote, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals mentioned that "at the outset of discovery or, at the latest, before Rule 34's 30-day time limit has expired, [parties] may either secure an appropriate agreement or stipulation from the relevant litigants or, failing that, apply for a discovery or protective order." Burlington Northern, 408 F.3d at 1149 n.3. To the extent the Court of Appeals intended to set a 30-day deadline to file a motion for protective order, Debtor's Objection to Subpoenas is timely. Creditors served their subpoenas on August 17, 2018 and Debtor filed the Objection to Subpoenas on September 11, 2018, within the 30-day period.

Creditors insist that the language from Burlington imposes a requirement to file a motion for protective order prior to the time set for responding to a subpoena. In other words, Creditors argue that Debtor should have filed a Rule 26(c) motion prior to Creditors' arbitrary 24-day deadline set forth in the Subpoenas. However, in Burlington, the Court of Appeals did not discuss subpoenas at all; the Court of Appeals instead suggested that Rule 34's 30-day deadline may govern motions for protective orders. The Court of Appeals did not hold that parties are bound by random deadlines set by an opposing party.

The Court also is not persuaded by the out-of-circuit authority cited by Creditors. In In re Coordinated Pretrial Proceedings in Petroleum Prod. Antitrust Litig., 669 F.2d 620 (10th Cir. 1982), the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals briefly mentioned in a footnote that "a motion under [Rule] 26(c) for protection from a subpoena is timely filed if made before the date set for production." Petroleum Products, 669 F.2d at 622 n.2. As authority for this proposition, the court cited United States v. IBM Corp., 70 F.R.D. 700, 701 (S.D.N.Y. 1976). In IBM Corp., a district court from the Southern District of New York stated that "motions under Rule 26(c) must be served before the date set for production." IBM Corp., 70 F.R.D. at 701. The IBM Corp. court based its comment on a 1970 edition of a treatise. 8 C. Wright & A. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 2032 (1970). The current edition of the same treatise states that:

Prior to 1970 the protective order rule required that an application for an order be made "seasonably." This requirement was not included when the protective order provisions were moved to Rule 26(c), but the courts still consider the timeliness of a motion and look to all of the circumstances in determining whether the motion is timely. At least with regard to depositions, the order should ordinarily be obtained before the date set for the discovery, and failure to move at that time has been held to preclude objection later, but such stringency should not be applied if there was no opportunity to move for a protective order.

8 C. Wright & A. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 2032 (2018) (emphasis added). As such, the treatise currently discusses timeliness with respect to depositions, but not as to other requests for discovery, such as the requests for production at issue here.

In any event, courts within this circuit have not imposed any such requirement. See, e.g. Solis v. Tomco Auto Products, Inc., 2012 WL 12878752, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Sep. 20, 2012) (finding that Rule 26(c) "does not contain a deadline," "[t]he cases do not explicitly require a party to file a motion for protective order before the deadline for serving a written response to discovery" and noting that the court "is not inclined to adopt a requirement that is not found in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or local rules, and that would routinely require the filing of ex parte applications"). Courts in other circuit also have declined to read a strict timing requirement into the language of Rule 26(c). For example, in Dorsett v. Cty. of Nassau, 800 F.Supp.2d 453, 460 (E.D.N.Y. 2011), aff'd 730 F.3d 156 (2d Cir. 2013), the court noted that some courts have held that parties waive their right to file a motion for protective order after documents have already been produced. Dorsett, 800 F.Supp.3d at 460. Nevertheless, the court did not find any authority that required that outcome, and elected to resolve the timeliness dispute "based on the core definition of waiver, which is 'an intentional relinquishment or abandonment of a known right or privilege.'" Id., at 460-61 (quoting Doe v. Marsh, 105 F.3d 106, 111 (2d Cir. 1997)).

The Court declines to follow the out-of-circuit authority referenced by Creditors. To the extent the doctrine of waiver is applicable to a Rule 26(c) motion, Debtor did not waive his right to file a motion for protective order. Within 13 days of service of the Subpoenas and prior to the date set for production, Debtor faxed letters to each bank objecting to the Subpoenas. Within 13 days and prior to the date set for production, Debtor also emailed his objection to the Subpoenas to Creditors. Although Debtor did not file the Objection to Subpoenas with the Court prior to the deadline created by Creditors, in light of the fact that Debtor quickly sent objections to the Subpoenas to Creditors and the banks, Debtor did not waive his right to move for a protective order, and the Court will not impose a deadline that is neither found in Rule 26(c) nor mandated by binding authority.

iv. Relevance

Having disposed of Creditors' procedural arguments, the Court may address the merits of Debtor's request for a protective order under Rule 26(c). Pursuant to Rule 26(b)(1)—

Unless otherwise limited by court order, the scope of discovery is as follows: Parties may obtain discovery regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense and proportional to the needs of the case, considering the importance of the issues at stake in the action, the amount in controversy, the parties' relative access to relevant information, the parties' resources, the importance of the discovery in resolving the issues, and whether the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit. Information within this scope of discovery need not be admissible in evidence to be discoverable.

(emphasis added). "Relevant information for purposes of discovery is information reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence." Survivor

Media, Inc. v. Survivor Prods., 406 F.3d 625, 635 (9th Cir. 2005) (internal quotation omitted). "District courts have broad discretion in determining relevancy for discovery purposes." Id.

Here, the Subpoenas do not request documents that are reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence on the narrow Issues on Remand. Regarding the Subpoenas related to Debtor's bank accounts, the Subpoenas request documents for the period between May 3, 2015 and August 17, 2018. Given that the Issues on Remand are whether Debtor intended to reside at the Property as of the petition date and whether California equitable law may bar Debtor from claiming a homestead exemption as of the petition date, no reasonable calculation leads to the conclusion that Debtor's banking records between May 2015 and August 2018 will lead to relevant, admissible evidence regarding the Issues on Remand. Similarly, Creditors have not articulated how any information from Ms. Gilman's separate banking records will lead to admissible evidence relevant to the Issues on Remand.

From their filings, Creditors appear to set forth two arguments. First, Creditors assert that, if records show that Debtor took postpetition rent from property of the estate, any amounts withdrawn by Debtor will be offset against Debtor's homestead exemption. Creditors ignore the binding decision in Law v. Siegel, 571 U.S. 415, 134 S.Ct. 1188, 188 L.Ed.2d 146 (2014), wherein the Supreme Court of the United States explicitly held that the bankruptcy court could not hold Debtor's exempt property liable for Debtor's misconduct during his bankruptcy case.

Creditors argue that California law on the doctrine of equitable estoppel allows for such an offset against Debtor's homestead exemption. Although Siegel left room for application of state law to bar Debtor's claims of exemption under state law, Creditors have not articulated how the doctrine of equitable estoppel could possibly be applied to bar Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption based on any alleged postpetition withdrawals of funds by Debtor. Under California law, a party requesting application of equitable estoppel must show: "(a) a representation or concealment of material facts (b) made with knowledge, actual or virtual, of the facts (c) to a party ignorant, actually and permissibly, of the truth (d) with the intention, actual or virtual, that the ignorant party act on it, and (e) that party was induced to act on it." Behnke v. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co., 196 Cal.App.4th 1443, 1462 (Ct. App. 2011). What representation or concealment related to his claim of a homestead exemption did Debtor make that induced Creditors to act? How would Debtor's banking records, dated years after the petition date, or Ms. Gilman's separate banking records, lead to admissible evidence regarding Debtor's representations or omissions related to his claim of a general homestead exemption on the petition date? How were Creditors "induced to act" based on any such representations or omissions? To the extent Debtor made omissions about postpetition rental funds, why would such an omission give rise to any equitable action involving the separate and unrelated matter of Debtor's homestead exemption claim?

Creditors' alternative argument seems to be that the banking records may reveal postpetition transfers of property of the estate which may trigger additional action against Debtor. To the extent Debtor took possession of rental funds belonging to the estate, Creditors' avenue of relief would be to move for denial of Debtor's discharge. The Court already has denied Debtor his discharge. Because this is a chapter 7 case, Creditors do not have standing to recover any postpetition transfers on behalf of the estate. That standing lies with the chapter 7 trustee. See 11 U.S.C. §§ 544-550. Given that the banking records requested by Creditors cannot lead to admissible evidence regarding Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption and Creditors do not have standing to recover any such transfers on behalf of the estate, the banking records are not within the scope of discovery under Rule 26(b)(1).

Even if the information requested by the Subpoenas could be deemed relevant under Rule 26(b)(1), the Court explicitly informed the parties that the Court will only entertain the narrow Issues on Remand. Because Rule 26(b)(1) defers to limits on discovery set by the trial court, the Court also finds that the Court's Discovery Ruling served to further limit the type of discovery the parties could pursue on remand. As noted above, Creditors have conducted extensive discovery spanning years in connection with this bankruptcy case and the Adversary Proceeding. The Court previously granted multiple requests by Creditors to continue the discovery cutoff date; for instance, after the Court allowed Creditors to supplement their complaint in the Adversary Proceeding to include allegations regarding the Property being in escrow and additional allegations regarding postpetition transfers by Debtor, the Court set a new discovery cutoff date to allow Creditors to obtain additional discovery. The discovery cutoff dates in this case and the Adversary Proceeding expired long before the remand of this matter. Neither the Court of Appeals nor the district court mandated that the Court reopen discovery for either party. Rather, as a courtesy to the parties, the Court allowed a brief discovery period for Creditors to obtain any missing information related to the narrow Issues on Remand, e.g., to take Debtor's deposition regarding his intent to reside at the Property, as of the petition date. Creditors' discovery requests have exceeded the scope of discovery both under Rule 26(b)(1) and under the Court's instructions to the parties. The information in the Subpoenas being outside the scope of discovery under Rule 26(b)(1) and this Court's Discovery Ruling, the Court will enter a protective order barring the banks from responding to the Subpoenas.

C. The Discovery Motion

Through the Discovery Motion, Creditors assert that Debtor's responses to the First Set were untimely and that Debtor must provide further responses to the Second Interrogatories. As to whether Debtor's responses were timely, Debtor acknowledges that his responses to the RFPs were untimely, but it appears those documents were produced to Creditors prior to Creditors' filing of the Discovery Motion. With respect to Debtor's responses to the First Interrogatory and the RFAs, Creditors' assertion that Debtor did not timely respond is disingenuous. Prior to Creditors' filing of the Motion, Debtor attached his responses to the First Interrogatory and the RFAs to an email to Creditors' counsel. The proof of service attached to those responses indicated that Debtor had timely served his responses on Creditors at the Carmichael Address. Given that Creditors' pleadings are captioned with the Carmichael Address and Creditors' counsel signed off on the parties' discovery communications with the Carmichael Address, Debtor's mailing of his responses to that address was reasonable.

In any event, by August 24, 2018, Debtor had emailed his responses to First Interrogatory and the RFAs, and it is unclear what further relief Creditors request as to these responses. To the extent Creditors request sanctions based on untimely responses, the record demonstrates that Debtor timely responded to the First Interrogatory and the RFAs, and there is no basis for sanctions as to these responses. As to the RFPs, because Debtor sent the documents to Creditors without objection prior to Creditors' filing of the Motion, the Motion was unnecessary as a tool to compel production. As such, sanctions also are not warranted as to the RFPs.

Creditors also assert that Debtor's responses to the First Interrogatory and the Second Interrogatories are insufficient. As discussed below, the Court disagrees.

i. Second Interrogatories Nos. 2 and 3

Through these interrogatories, Creditors request that Debtor "[i]dentify (by year, month, and amount...) all payments [Debtor] received after [the petition date] as rent for the use or occupancy of [the Property]" as well as "of the property located at 9010 Corbin Avenue, Suite 16, Northridge, California." Debtor objected to these interrogatories as being outside the scope of discovery on remand. Through these interrogatories, Creditors attempt to obtain some of the same information they are requesting from the banks through the Subpoenas. For the reasons set forth above, these requests are outside the scope of discovery under Rule 26(b)(1) and beyond the scope of discovery allowed by the Court on remand.

ii. First Interrogatory and Second Interrogatories Nos. 4 and 5

Through these interrogatories, Creditors ask Debtor to state facts that support his claim that he intended to reside at the Property as of the petition date and that he is entitled to claim a homestead exemption despite the Property being in escrow on the petition date. Debtor responded to these interrogatories by stating that he intended to reside at the Property before, during and after the petition date, and has continuously resided at the Property since 2003 (Debtor later amended the responses to state he has continuously resided at the Property since 1997). It is unclear what further responses Creditors request; Creditors asked Debtor to provide the basis for his claim of a homestead exemption, and Debtor responded accordingly. Debtor need not supplement his responses to these interrogatories.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant Debtor's request for a protective order as to the Subpoenas. Because the Court is granting the Objection to Subpoenas, the Court will deny the Motion to Strike. The Court will deny the Discovery Motion and any request for sanctions contained therein.

Debtor must submit proposed orders within seven (7) days.

Docket 6

Tentative Ruling:

Given the debtor's projected negative net operating income, the Court has concerns about the debtor's ability either: (1) to pay Greenberg & Bass LLP ("G&B") 80% of each monthly invoice, apparently for an indefinite period of time, without obtaining specific Court approval prior thereto, or (2) to fund an additional $65,000 retainer to G&B. If sufficient funds are available, the Court is more inclined to approve the funding of the postpetition retainer.

Counsel should be prepared to discuss the debtor's ability to do so, and the timing.

#4.00 Status conference re chapter 11 case

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The parties should address the following:

Deadline for debtor(s) and/or debtor(s) in possession to file proposed plan and related disclosure statement: January 11, 2019.

Continued chapter 11 case status conference to be held at 1:00 p.m. on January 24, 2019.

The debtor(s) in possession or any appointed chapter 11 trustee must file a status report, to be served on the debtor's(s') 20 largest unsecured creditors, all secured creditors, and the United States Trustee, no later than 14 days before the continued status conference. The status report must be supported by evidence in the form of declarations and supporting documents.

The Court will prepare the order setting the deadlines for the debtor(s) and/or debtor(s) in possession to file a proposed plan and related disclosure statement.

9/20/2018 Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On August 20, 2009, Mehdy Gharachehdaghy and Mahnaz Aalam ("Debtors") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. In their schedule A [doc. 13], Debtors claimed an interest in real property located at 18747 Wells Drive, Tarzana, California (the "Property") and valued the Property at $1,700,000. Debtors did not claim an exemption in the Property in their schedule C. In their schedule D, Debtors listed two encumbrances against the Property: (A) a first priority deed of trust in favor of EMC Mortgage ("EMC") in the amount of $1,600,000; and (B) a second priority deed of trust in favor of GMAC Mortgage ("GMAC") in the amount of $246,397.

Debtors did not include the Law Offices of Moghadami & Sadig (the "Law Offices") in their schedules and did not provide notice of the bankruptcy case to the Law Offices. On December 3, 2009, the chapter 7 trustee filed the Notice of Possible Dividend and Order Fixing Time to File Claims (the "Notice of Assets") [doc. 28] and set a claims bar date of March 8, 2010. The chapter 7 trustee did not provide notice of the claims bar date to the Law Offices.

On February 8, 2010, Debtors received their discharge [doc. 36]. On December 9, 2011, Debtors' bankruptcy case was closed. On June 4, 2018, Debtors filed a motion to reopen their bankruptcy case (the "Motion to Reopen") [doc. 74]. On June 26, 2018, the Court entered an order granting the Motion to Reopen [doc. 76].

On July 25, 2018, Debtors filed a motion to avoid the Law Offices' lien under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) (the "Motion") [doc. 78]. On August 8, 2018, the Law Offices filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 79], asserting that Debtors did not provide enough evidence of the amounts owed to EMC and GMAC as of the petition date and that the debt owed to the Law Offices is nondischargeable, such that the Law Offices would be able to record another abstract of judgment even if Debtors avoid their lien. On August 23, 2018, the Court entered an order setting the Motion for hearing (the "Hearing Order") [doc. 80]. In the Hearing Order, the Court instructed Debtors to file and serve written notice of the hearing on the Law Offices no later than September 6, 2018. The Court also instructed Debtors to file and serve any response to the Opposition by September 13, 2018.

On August 30, 2018, Debtors timely filed a notice of the hearing [doc. 83]. On September 13, 2018, Debtors filed an amended schedule C [doc. 84], claiming a $1.00 exemption in the Property. On the same day, Debtors filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 85], attaching an appraisal valuing the Property, as of the petition date, at $1,600,000.

II. ANALYSIS

First, Debtors do not include evidence of the amount owed to EMC or GMAC as of the petition date. The Court will cannot properly assess the equity in the Property until Debtors provide evidence of the loan balances as of the petition date. The Court will continue this hearing for Debtors to supplement the Motion with this information.

If Debtors provide the required evidence, the Court notes that Debtors may avoid a lien that is based on a nondischargeable debt. Debtors apparently did not provide notice to the Law Offices of Debtors' bankruptcy case. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §

523(a)(3), a discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt—

- (3) neither listed nor scheduled under section 521(a)(1) of this title, with the name, if known to the debtor, of the creditor to whom such debt is owed, in time to permit—
  - (A) if such debt is not of a kind specified in paragraph (2), (4), or (6) of this subsection, timely filing of a proof of claim, unless such creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the case in time for such timely filing; or
  - (B) if such debt is of a kind specified in paragraph (2), (4), or (6) of this subsection, timely filing of a proof of claim and timely request for a determination of dischargeability of such debt under one of such paragraphs, unless such creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the case in time for such timely filing and request....

Here, Debtors acknowledge that they did not provide notice of their bankruptcy case to the Law Offices. Based on the record before the Court, it appears the Law Offices did not receive notice of the bankruptcy prior to March 8, 2010, the claims bar date. The record also does not demonstrate that the Law Offices had actual knowledge of Debtors' bankruptcy filing.

Assuming the debt owed to the Law Offices is nondischargeable, despite the Law Offices' contention, the Court still may avoid the lien. See In re Farr, 278 B.R. 171 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2002) (citing Walters v. U.S. Nat'l Bank in Johnstown, 879 F.2d 95 (3d Cir. 1989) (finding that "Walters is consistent with most case law holding that liens resulting from nondischargeable debts are avoidable under § 522(f) if they impair the debtor's exemption."); and In re Hunnicutt, 457 B.R. 464-65 (Bankr. D.S.C. 2011) ("Courts have routinely held that the avoidability of a lien is not affected by the dischargeability of the underlying debt.") (collecting cases).

To the extent Debtors have claimed a valid exemption (the deadline to object to Debtors' exemption has not yet expired), even the Law Offices' presumably nondischargeable debt may be avoided if it impairs Debtors' exemption. The Law Offices next assert that, even if their lien is avoided, because the debt owed to the Law

Offices is nondischargeable, the Law Offices will be able to obtain another lien against the Property. However, neither party discusses the application of 11 U.S.C. § 522(c). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 522(c)—

Unless the case is dismissed, property exempted under this section is not liable during or after the case for any debt of the debtor that arose, or that is determined under section 502 of this title as if such debt had arisen, before the commencement of the case, except—

- (1) a debt of a kind specified in paragraph (1) or (5) of section 523(a) (in which case, notwithstanding any provision of applicable nonbankruptcy law to the contrary, such property shall be liable for a debt of a kind specified in such paragraph);
- (2) a debt secured by a lien that is—
  - (A)
    - (i) not avoided under subsection (f) or (g) of this section or under section 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, or 724(a) of this title; and
    - (ii) not void under section 506(d) of this title; or
  - (B) a tax lien, notice of which is properly filed;
- (3) a debt of a kind specified in section 523(a)(4) or 523(a)(6) of this title owed by an institution-affiliated party of an insured depository institution to a Federal depository institutions regulatory agency acting in its capacity as conservator, receiver, or liquidating agent for such institution; or
- (4) a debt in connection with fraud in the obtaining or providing of any scholarship, grant, loan, tuition, discount, award, or other financial assistance for purposes of financing an education at an institution of higher education (as that term is defined in section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001)).

petition and claimed an exemption in his residence. Farr, 278 B.R. at 173. Subsequently, a creditor obtained a nondischargeability judgment against the debtor under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Id. After the debtor received his discharge, the creditor recorded an abstract of judgment, creating a lien against the debtor's residence. Id., at 174. The creditor then sought authority by the bankruptcy court to enforce its lien through a sale of the residence. Id.

The bankruptcy court denied the motion, holding that § 522(c) "protected [the debtor's] entire residence from a lien for the type of nondischargeable debt held by" the creditor. Id. Despite the bankruptcy court's ruling, the judicial lien was not released and remained of record. Id. Later, the debtor sought to sell his residence and, because the lien remained attached to the residence, the debtor moved to hold the creditor in contempt for refusing to voluntarily release its lien. Id. The creditor argued that there was nonexempt equity in the residence and that its lien properly attached to the nonexempt equity. Id. The bankruptcy court disagreed, again holding that § 522(c) protected the debtor's entire residence. Id. The creditor appealed. Id.

On appeal, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") first discussed the application of § 522(c) in general:

Section 523, which is incorporated in part by § 522(c), provides an exception from discharge for certain types of debts. Section 522(c) then specifies certain nondischargeable debts which may be pursued against a debtor's exempted property. These include debts for taxes (§ 523(a)(1)), alimony, maintenance or support (§ 523(a)(5)), debts of the type described in § 523(a)(4) and (a)(6) owed to federal depositories, or debts in connection with educational financial assistance fraud.

The legislative history of this section also shows that it was enacted to insulate exempt property from any nondischargeable prepetition debts which are not listed as exceptions. See S.Rep. No. 95-989, at 76 (1978), reprinted in 1978 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5787, 5862; H.R.Rep. No. 95-595, at 361 (1977), reprinted in 1978 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5963, 6317.

Section 522(c)(2) further denies a debtor's exemption for valid liens, such as tax liens and liens that have not been avoided in bankruptcy.

The rule of Long v. Bullard, 117 U.S. 617, 620–21, 6 S.Ct. 917, 29 L.Ed. 1004 (1886), that unchallenged liens pass through bankruptcy unaffected, was codified in § 522(c) to uphold the enforcement of valid liens on both exempt and nonexempt property. H.R.Rep. No. 95–595, supra, at 361. A lien creditor, whose lien has not been avoided in bankruptcy, is generally free to pursue its in rem remedies under state law, subject to the provisions of the automatic stay in § 362(a). Johnson v. Home State Bank, 501 U.S. 78, 82–84, 111 S.Ct. 2150, 115 L.Ed.2d 66 (1991).

Thus, § 522(c) performs both a protective function, by preserving the exemption if nondischargeable claims other than those specifically excepted by § 522(c) are sought to be enforced against exempt property, and a limiting function, by denying the exemption protections for certain kinds of nondischargeable claims and unavoided liens.

Id., at 176–77. The BAP disagreed with the bankruptcy court’s holding that the creditor’s lien could not attach to the nonexempt equity in the debtor’s residence, noting that “[i]n this case, ‘property exempted’ in § 522(c) means only the $100,000 homestead exemption allowed by California exemption law.” Id., at 177. Because there was nonexempt equity in the debtor’s residence, and the lien could not be avoided under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f), the BAP held that the creditor’s lien could attach to the nonexempt equity under 11 U.S.C. § 522(c)(2). Id., at 177-81.

After Farr, a bankruptcy court within this circuit considered similar facts. See In re Feathers, 2015 WL 1598087 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2015). In Feathers, the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) had a pending action against the debtor at the time the debtor filed his chapter 7 petition. Id., at *1. Postpetition, the district court entered judgment in favor of the SEC and, subsequently, the SEC obtained a judgment of nondischargeability under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(19). Id.

After the debtor received his discharge and the debtor’s case was closed, the SEC recorded an abstract of judgment, thereby attaching a judicial lien to the debtor’s real property. Id. The debtor then reopened his bankruptcy case and moved for avoidance of the SEC’s lien. Id. The bankruptcy court held that the debtor could avoid the lien despite the fact that the judicial lien was recorded postpetition. Id., at *1-2. its assessment, the court found:

Reviewed in the context of § 522 as a whole, other provisions "set forth limitations as to when exemptions may or may not trump a creditor's claim or lien rights, but they focus on the nature and timing of the claim, rather than the time when the lien affixed." Id. The general rule is that exempt property will not be liable for pre-petition debts but § 522(c) sets forth four exceptions. None of these exceptions apply to the SEC's claim. Further, the fact that Congress created certain exceptions, implies that only those exceptions and no others were intended.

Id., at *2. After holding that the timing of the lien attachment was not relevant to the question before the court, the court held that the SEC's lien could be avoided under § 522(f):

The plain language of Bankruptcy Code § 522(c) makes clear that property exempted during a bankruptcy case may not be required to satisfy debts that arose prior to the bankruptcy case: "Unless the case is dismissed, property exempted under this section is not liable during or after the case for any debt of the debtor that arose, or that is determined under section 502 of this title as if such debt had arisen, before the commencement of the case." The Code Section then lists four exceptions to the general rule. One of the exceptions is for a debt secured by a lien that is not avoided pursuant to § 522(f). As the SEC's judgment lien may be avoided, this exception does not apply, and Feathers is entitled to his homestead exemption.

This case is similar to Feathers. Here, the debt which gave rise to the lien is a prepetition debt. The Law Offices recorded an abstract of judgment after Debtors' discharge. Subsequently, Debtors seek to avoid the lien on the basis that the lien impairs their homestead exemption. Although the debt owed to the Law Offices may be nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(3), the lien against the Property may still be avoided under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). Moreover, under 11 U.S.C. § 522(c), the lien may not attach to the exempt portion of the Property, either "during or after the case." 11 U.S.C. § 522(c) (emphasis added). If Debtors provide sufficient evidence that there is no nonexempt equity in the Property and if Debtors have a valid claim of exemption in the Property, then the Court may avoid the Law Offices' lien, and the Law Offices will not be able to record another abstract of judgment against the Property for a repetition debt.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will continue the hearing on the Motion to 2:00 p.m. on November 8, 2018. No later than October 18, 2018, Debtors must file and serve a supplemental declaration with evidence of the amounts owed to EMC and GMAC as of the petition date. No later than October 25, 2018, the Law Offices may file and serve a response to the supplemental declaration.

Tentative Ruling:

At the last hearing, the Court expressed concerns regarding the feasibility of the debtor's proposed chapter 11 plan and whether that plan pays the entire claim of the objecting creditor. The Court continued the hearing in order for the parties to address those issues with supplemental evidence. As of November 5, 2018, the debtor has not provided the Court with any supplemental evidence.

Ruling from 8/16/18

Because of the Court's concerns regarding the feasibility of the debtor's proposed chapter 11 plan and whether that plan pays the entire claim of the objecting creditor, in order for the parties to address those issues with supplemental evidence, the Court will continue this hearing.

Feasibility

"The debtor carries the burden of proving that a Chapter 11 plan complies with the statutory requirements for confirmation under §§ 1129(a) & (b)." In re Arnold & Baker Farms, 177 B.R. 648, 654 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 1994), aff'd, 85 F.3d 1415 (9th Cir. 1996). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(5), a chapter 11 plan must provide adequate means for the plan's implementation. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(11), a court can confirm a plan only if "[c]onfirmation of the plan is not likely to be followed by the liquidation, or the need for further financial reorganization, of the debtor or any successor to the debtor under the plan, unless such liquidation or reorganization is proposed in the plan."

The debtor states that he will fund his First Amended Chapter 11 Plan of Reorganization (the "Plan") from his regular employment income, his consulting income, distributions/dividends from Master Strategic Group, Inc., his spouse's regular and consulting income, funds in the DIP account, and contributions from his brother. (Brief, doc. 162, at p. 21.) The debtor's average monthly income, as stated in his last six monthly operating reports, is $15,079.17. The debtor's brother is projected to contribute $14,700 per month. (Declaration of Dr. Paul A. Nassif, doc. 162, at p. 40.) The debtor's average monthly income, plus his brother's projected contribution, totals $29,779.17. This amount is less than the $33,211 projected monthly income stated in the cash flow projections attached to the First Amended Disclosure Statement. (Doc. 113, Exh. B.) This amount is also less than the $33,101 in projected monthly expenses. (Id.)

In addition, pursuant to the Stipulation By Christopher Sabin Nassif and 2005 Residential Trust 3-1 By Wilmington Savings Fund Society, FSB, d/b/a Christiana Trust As Trustee [doc. 144] and corresponding order [doc. 146], the debtor proposes to pay $1,000 per month to class 4 general unsecured creditors. This $1,000 monthly payment is greater than the $150 monthly payment stated in the cash flow projections. Thus, the debtor's monthly expenses are $850 more than stated in his projections.

Because of these discrepancies, it does not appear that the debtor will have sufficient income to fund the Plan.

Bank of New York Mellon's Objection

Class 1 of the Plan consists of the impaired secured claim of Bank of New York Mellon/Nationstar ("BNYM"), the first priority lienholder against the debtor's residence. According to its filed proof of claim, BNYM holds a secured claim in the amount of $3,251,939.39, including prepetition arrears of $631,191. In his July 2018 monthly operating report, the debtor indicates that he has not made 13 postpetition payments to BNYM.

In the Plan, the debtor states his intent to file an adversary proceeding against BNYM, on the grounds that the debtor's loan modification never posted to his account upon its transfer from Bank of America to Nationstar. Under the Plan, the debtor will make contractual monthly mortgage payments of $10,686, plus $7,515 per month for 84 months to cure the prepetition arrearages.

On April 13, 2018, BNYM filed an objection to the Plan [doc. 133]. BNYM objects on the following grounds:

- The Plan improperly seeks to modify the right of a claim secured only by the debtor's principal residence, in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(5);
- If the debtor seeks to cure a default under § 1124, the cure must be completed by the Effective Date of the Plan;
- The debtor's calculation of contractual arrears does not address any post-petition arrears;
- The cure term of 84 months amounts to a de facto modification of BNYM's claim, and is neither fair nor equitable; and
- BNYM's treatment is unfair discrimination in violation of § 1123(a)(4).

The Court will overrule BNYM's objection as to § 1123(a)(4). Section 1123(a)(4) provides that a plan shall "provide the same treatment for each claim or interest of a particular class, unless the holder of a particular claim or interest agrees to a less favorable treatment of such particular claim or interest[.]. BNYM holds the only claim in class 1. As such, the Plan does not discriminate against BNYM's claim in favor of other class 1 claims.

The Court will overrule BNYM's objection as to § 1123(b)(5). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(5), a chapter 11 plan may "modify the rights of holders of secured claims, other than a claim secured only by a security interest in real property that is the debtor's principal residence[.]" BNYM argues that the debtor's treatment of its claim violates § 1123(b)(5). However, "cure" and "modification" are not the same. See In re Lenington, 288 B.R. 802, 805 (Bankr. C.D. Ill. 2003). Here, the debtor is not proposing to modify the terms of BNYM's mortgage. The debtor proposes to pay postpetition, contractual monthly payments pursuant to the terms of the mortgage. In addition, the debtor proposes to "cure" any arrearages by paying an additional monthly amount to BNYM over an 84-month term. As the Lenington court held, "individual Chapter 11 debtors are permitted to cure a prepetition residential mortgage arrearage in installment payments, through the Chapter 11 plan, while remaining current on their postpetition payments." Lenington, 288 B.R. at 806. As for the 84-month cure term, BNYM has not provided any authority holding that such a cure term is per se unreasonable.

The Court will sustain BNYM's objection as to the amount of postpetition arrearages owed. BNYM is correct that the debtor has not addressed any postpetition arrearages in the Plan.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1124, a class is impaired under a plan unless the plan:

(1) leaves unaltered the legal, equitable, and contractual rights to which such claim or interest entitles the holder of such claim or interest; or

(2) notwithstanding any contractual provision or applicable law that entitles the holder of such claim or interest to demand or receive accelerated payment of such claim or interest after the occurrence of a default—

1993). Enhancing a creditor's rights constitutes "impairment." In re L & J Anaheim Assocs., 995 F.2d 940, 943 (9th Cir. 1993). Under § 1124(2), an individual debtor may reinstate a residential mortgage and "cure" a prepetition arrearage in installment payments under a reorganization plan. "Where a Chapter 11 plan provides for the cure of a default, reinstatement of the original terms of the loan, compensation for damages, and does not otherwise alter the rights of the mortgagee, the claim of the mortgagee is unimpaired[.]" Lennington, 288 B.R. at 804. Such cure amount is determined by nonbankruptcy law. 11 U.S.C. § 1123(d).

BNYM argues that any cure under § 1124 must be completed by the effective date of a chapter 11 plan. BNYM is partially correct. The cases cited by BNYM hold that a cure under § 1124 must be completed by the effective date of the plan if the class is to be deemed "unimpaired" under the plan. In In re Tri-Growth Ctr. City, Ltd., 136 B.R. 848, 852 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1992), the court held "that the cure required by § 1124 must be completed by the effective date of the plan if the default rate of interest is annulled." In other words, if the full cure amount is not paid on the effective date, the claim remains impaired and is entitled to be paid any default rate of interest under the terms of the loan. In In re Schatz, 426 B.R. 24, 28 (Bankr. D.N.H. 2009), the court held that a debtor could "'cure' and 'reinstate' [a creditor's] loans under § 1123(d) over the life of the plan, but [creditor] is entitled to the default interest rate on its claim for the prepetition arrearage and is entitled to prepetition attorneys' fees, expenses, and costs related to the loans." The court in In re Jones, 32 B.R. 951, 960 (Bankr. D. Utah 1983), held that "[c]ure and compensation required by Section 1124(2) must be completed by the effective date of the plan if impairment is to be avoided."

Here, the Plan does not seek to treat BNYM's claim as unimpaired. In fact, the Plan explicitly states that class 1 is impaired and that it voted against the Plan.

Accordingly, under the terms of the Plan, it does not appear that the arrearages must be paid in full on the effective date of the Plan. However, pursuant to the authority cited by BNYM, it appears that the debtor's treatment of the class 1 prepetition arrearages does not sufficiently account for any default interest rate, prepetition attorneys' fees, expenses, or costs related to BNYM's loan.

I. BACKGROUND

On March 19, 2018, Charles Hung Ngo ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David K. Gottlieb was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

Prior to this case, Debtor filed two bankruptcy cases: (A) a chapter 7 case filed on November 21, 2012, which closed after completion [1:12-bk-20239-MT]; and (B) another chapter 7 case filed on November 23, 2016 that was dismissed based on Debtor's failure to file schedules and statements [1:16-bk-13355-VK].

In his schedule A/B, Debtor listed real property located at 10329 Glade Avenue, Chatsworth, California 91311 (the "Property") and valued the Property at $420,000. In his schedule C, Debtor claimed a $90,000 homestead exemption in the Property. In his schedule D, Debtor listed a secured claim encumbering the Property in favor of Bank of America in the amount of $330,000. As such, by Debtor's calculation, the Property did not have any nonexempt equity.

Debtor also scheduled a Bank of America checking account containing $3,000 (the "Funds"). Under section 28 of his schedule A/B, Debtor indicated that there are no tax refunds owed to Debtor. Despite this representation, in 2018, Debtor filed his 2016 tax return, anticipating a $4,134 tax refund owed to Debtor (the "Tax Refund"). Declaration of David K. Gottlieb ("Gottlieb Declaration") [doc. 41], ¶ 6, Exhibit D.

In his schedule I, Debtor indicated he received $2,190 in monthly take-home pay. Although Debtor indicated that he is married in his Statement of Financial Affairs, Debtor did not list any income for a non-filing spouse in his schedule I. In his schedule J, Debtor indicated he incurs $3,764 per month in expenses. As a result, Debtor scheduled a deficiency, after paying monthly expenses, of ($1,574).

On June 4, 2018, the Trustee held a § 341(a) meeting of creditors. Gottlieb Declaration [doc. 41], ¶ 8. At that time, the Trustee requested that Debtor provide the Trustee with a copy of the deed of trust against the Property, a copy of a current loan statement and proof of current insurance. Id. The Trustee also requested that Debtor turn over the Funds and the Tax Refund to the estate. Id. To date, Debtor has not turned over the requested documents about the Property, the Funds or the Tax Refund; Debtor also has failed to provide the Trustee with a copy of his 2016 state tax return. Gottlieb Declaration, ¶¶ 7, 8.

On June 22, 2018, Debtor filed a motion to dismiss his bankruptcy case (the "Motion to Dismiss") [doc. 12]. In connection with the Motion to Dismiss, Debtor provided a declaration in which Debtor stated that he "was out of work for months" and recently had surgery. Debtor also represented that, because of his physical ailments, Debtor's job was threatened. As stated by Debtor, "I am physically weak and my job is threatened. My supervisor has been very unpleasant due to my inability to engage in the normal routine work I have engaged in the past." Debtor asserted that he was facing financial and medical hardship that would place Debtor in a financial predicament.

On June 28, 2018, the Trustee filed a motion for turnover of property (the "Motion for Turnover") [doc. 18]. In the Motion for Turnover, the Trustee requested an order compelling Debtor to turn over the Funds and the Tax Refund. Debtor opposed the Motion for Turnover [doc. 24], asking the Court to dismiss his case or, in the alternative, allow Debtor to convert his case to a chapter 13 case. On July 19, 2018, the Court held hearings on the Motion to Dismiss and the Motion for Turnover. The Court denied the Motion to Dismiss [doc. 30], but continued the Motion for Turnover to assess Debtor's request for conversion of his case.

On July 31, 2018, Debtor filed a motion to convert this case from a chapter 7 to a chapter 13 case (the "Motion") [doc. 36]. On August 14, 2018, the Trustee filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 41]. In the Opposition, the Trustee asserts that Debtor is requesting conversion to keep the Property from the reach of his creditors, and that Debtor does not have any disposable income with which to fund a

On October 19, 2018, Debtor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 54]. In the Reply, Debtor contends that his gross income has increased to $5,900 per month and that his spouse owns a salon and earns approximately $2,500 per month in net income, as a manicurist. Debtor also states that his brother-in-law has agreed to help fund a chapter 13 plan. The Reply does not include a declaration by Debtor's spouse or his brother-in-law, or any documentary evidence regarding their alleged incomes. In contrast to the lower value in Debtor's schedules, Debtor now acknowledges that the Property is valued between $519,421 and $710,197 and has considerable nonexempt equity.

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 706(a) & (d)—

(a) The debtor may convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 11, 12, or 13 of this title at any time, if the case has not been converted under section 1112, 1208, or 1307 of this title. Any waiver of the right to convert a case under this subsection is unenforceable.

...

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, a case may not be converted to a case under another chapter of this title unless the debtor may be a debtor under such chapter.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 109(e)— than $1,184,200<sup>1</sup>, or an individual with regular income and such individual's spouse, except a stockbroker or a commodity broker, that owe, on the date of the filing of the petition, noncontingent, liquidated, unsecured debts that aggregate less than $394,725<sup>1</sup> and noncontingent, liquidated, secured debts of less than $1,184,200<sup>1</sup> may be a debtor under chapter 13 of this title.

The right to convert under this section is not absolute. In Marrama v. Citizens Bank of Mass., 549 U.S. 365, 127 S.Ct. 1105, 166 L.Ed.2d 956 (2007), the Supreme Court of the United States determined that a debtor forfeits his right to convert to chapter 13 under § 706(a) if the debtor engages in bad faith conduct that would warrant dismissal or reconversion of a chapter 13 case. In Marrama, the debtor, Robert Marrama, made misleading or inaccurate statements in his chapter 7 schedules, and engaged in fraudulent transfers prepetition with the intent of shielding his valuable property from creditors. Id., at 368. After the chapter 7 trustee informed Mr. Marrama of his intent to recover the fraudulently transferred property for the benefit of the estate, Mr. Marrama moved to convert his case to a chapter 13 case. Id., at 368-69. The chapter 7 trustee objected to the conversion based on Mr. Marrama's bad faith attempts to conceal the transferred property. Id., at 369. Mr. Marrama argued he had an absolute right to convert to chapter 13 under 11 U.S.C. § 706(a). Id.

The Supreme Court first determined there was no absolute right to conversion because of § 706(d), which requires a debtor be eligible to be a debtor under the chapter to which he wishes to convert. Id., at 372. The Supreme Court then looked to the reasons why a debtor may not qualify to be debtor under chapter 13, such as 11 U.S.C. § 109(e) (which sets forth the Code's requirements for being a chapter 13 debtor) or, more importantly, for "cause," under § 1307(c) (which sets forth the standards for dismissal or conversion under chapter 13). Id. The Marrama court noted that, under § 1307(c), bad faith conduct may constitute "cause" warranting dismissal or conversion. Id., at 373. Thus, a debtor's bad faith conduct could be grounds to deny a motion for conversion under § 706. Id.

To determine whether a case was filed in bad faith under § 1307(c), bankruptcy courts must review the totality of the circumstances. In re Ellsworth, 455 B.R. 904, 917 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011). Bankruptcy courts consider the following factors:

1. Whether the debtor misrepresented facts in his petition or plan, unfairly manipulated the Code, or otherwise filed his petition or plan in an inequitable manner;

2. The debtor's history of filing and dismissals;
3. Whether the debtor intended to defeat state court litigation; and
4. Whether egregious behavior is present.

In re Leavitt, 171 F.3d 1219, 1224 (9th Cir. 1999).

Here, Debtor's bad faith conduct constitutes "cause" that would warrant dismissal of a chapter 13 case. In his schedule A/B, Debtor undervalued the Property and represented that the Property did not have any nonexempt equity. After the Trustee requested documentation regarding the Property and turnover of the Funds and the Tax Refund, Debtor did not comply with the Trustee's request for turnover; instead, Debtor moved for dismissal of his case.

In schedule E/F, Debtor identifies $55,000 in aggregate unsecured nonpriority claims. In his schedule I, Debtor represented that he receives $4,320 in monthly income, which results in $2,190 in monthly net income; Debtor did not schedule any income received by his spouse. In the Motion to Dismiss, Debtor asserted that he was facing financial hardship because of recent health issues and that he had been out of work for months. Now, in connection with his request for conversion of this case, Debtor contends his monthly income has increased to $5,900 per month. Moreover, despite failing to state any income generated by his spouse in his schedule I, and reporting a monthly deficit in his schedule J, Debtor now represents that his wife owns a salon and generates approximately $2,500 per month. Finally, Debtor now concedes that the Property has sufficient nonexempt equity for creditors to be paid in full.

In light of these facts, Debtor's conduct amounts to bad faith as contemplated by Marrama. Debtor misrepresented the value of the Property, his income and his ability to fund a chapter 13 plan in his schedules (or he now is exaggerating his ability to fund a chapter 13 plan), and he resisted the Trustee's request for turnover of any documentation related to the Property. Rather than comply with the Trustee's request for turnover of the Funds and Tax Refund, Debtor attempted to dismiss his case, representing that Debtor is ill and facing financial hardship. When the Court denied the Motion to Dismiss, Debtor changed his narrative. Currently, Debtor represents that he and his spouse generate significant monthly income, which is sufficient to fund a chapter 13 plan. Debtor appears to be making contradictory statements to obtain conversion of his case, which would prevent a sale of the Property and obviate Debtor's obligation to turn over the Funds and the Tax Refund to the Trustee. Moreover, Debtor's revision of critical facts regarding his financial stability, his income, and his spouse's income has resulted in the loss of his credibility. Given Debtor's bad faith conduct, the Court will deny the Motion.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Tentative Ruling from June 20, 2018

Deny relief from the automatic stay.

In order to provide additional time for the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") to determine whether he would proceed with the state court litigation, and for the parties to explore mediation of their dispute, the Court continued the prior hearing on this matter. The parties were instructed to file a status report no later than June 6, 2018.

On June 6, 2018, movant filed a unilateral status report [doc. 142]. Movant states that on April 26, 2018, the state court sustained movant's demurrer and gave the Trustee 10 days to file an amended complaint. As of the date of the status report, movant states that the Trustee has not done so. Movant further states that the state court set a trial date for the debtor's affirmative claims for February 19, 2019.

The unilateral status report is not supported by declaration or other evidence. If the statements in the unilateral status report are correct, it appears that the Trustee does not intend to pursue the debtor's claims against Movant in state court.

Even if mandatory abstention applies to the parties' state court litigation, mandatory abstention alone does not necessarily establish "cause" for relief from the automatic stay under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1). In Benedor Corp. v. Conejo Enterprises, Inc. (In re Conejo Enterprises, Inc.), 96 F.3d 346 (9th Cir. 1996), a chapter 11 debtor removed a creditor's state court breach of contract action against the debtor to bankruptcy court. The creditor moved for abstention, remand, and relief from the automatic stay, which the bankruptcy court denied. The district court reversed the bankruptcy court, holding that because mandatory abstention applied, there was cause for relief from the automatic stay. With respect to cause for relief from the automatic stay, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the decision of the district court:

"[A] finding that mandatory abstention applies to the underlying state action does not preclude denial of relief from § 362's automatic stay. . . . [Section] 362(b) provides explicit exceptions to § 362(a)'s automatic stay. Pending state actions that are determined to be non-core proceedings are not listed among the explicit exemptions. Therefore, it is clear that Congress did not intend to provide an exception to the automatic stay for non-core pending state actions which are subject to mandatory abstention. In fact, Congress has made it clear that it intended just the opposite by providing that a decision to abstain under § 1334(c)(2) "shall not be construed to limit the applicability of the stay provided for by [§ 362] . . . ." 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2)[.]

Id. at 352. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals found that the bankruptcy court had reasonably considered the following grounds in denying relief from stay: whether the creditor would file a proof of claim in the debtor's case, or waive its right to payment from the bankruptcy estate, and that judicial economy would be promoted by limiting duplicative litigation. As the Court of Appeals noted:

[t]he filing of a proof of claim by [creditor] must also be considered in determining whether cause exists for lifting the automatic stay. In holding that the automatic stay must be lifted, the district court ignored the filing of the proof of claim, instead focusing on its finding that the state court action was not within the bankruptcy court's core jurisdiction. We hold that the district court erred in doing so.

The allowance and disallowance of claims against the estate is a core proceeding. 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(B). Once [creditor] filed its proof of claim, it subjected its claim to the core jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court. It was within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court to

Here, on October 6, 2017, movant filed proof of claim 6-1 in the debtor's bankruptcy case. The filing of this proof of claim subjects movant's claim to the core jurisdiction of this Court, subject to payment under the Bankruptcy Code's distribution scheme along with other filed claims. Pursuant to Conejo Enterprises, this Court is within its sound discretion to deny movant's request for relief from the automatic stay, for the reason set forth in the Court's prior tentative ruling.

I. BACKGROUND

Kandy Kiss of California, Inc. (the "Debtor") is a California corporation that was in the business of design, product development, wholesale manufacture, and sale of apparel to large retailers. IDFIX, Inc. ("Movant") produced fabric and garments for the Debtor.

In 2015, the Debtor and Movant had a dispute over certain garments that Movant produced for the Debtor. The Debtor refused to pay for the alleged nonconforming garments, which cost a total of $2,462,097.88 [doc. 137, Exh. A]. On July 14, 2016, the Debtor filed in state court a complaint against Movant and three other defendants, alleging breach of contract, breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, conversion, open book account, account stated, unjust enrichment, and fraudulent concealment (the "State Court Action") [doc. 137, Exh A]. On December 1, 2016, Movant filed a cross-complaint against the Debtor and three other cross-defendants, alleging breach of contract, breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, conversion, open book account, account stated, unjust enrichment, and fraudulent concealment (the "Cross-Complaint") [doc. 137, Exh A].

On February 14, 2017, an involuntary petition was filed against the Debtor. The State Court Action was stayed pursuant to the automatic stay. On September 19, 2017, the order for relief was entered in the Debtor's case [doc. 63].

On March 15, 2018, Movant filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay to proceed with the Cross-Complaint against the Debtor in the State Court Action (the "Motion") [doc. 137]. In the Motion, Movant argues that the Court must abstain from hearing the State Court Action because mandatory abstention under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c) constitutes cause for lifting the automatic stay. Movant also argues that relief from the automatic stay is proper using the multi-factor test from In re Sonnax Indus., Inc., 99 B.R. 591 (D. Vt. 1989), aff'd, 907 F.2d 1280 (2d Cir. 1990).

On April 4, 2018, the chapter 7 trustee ("Trustee") filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 139]. On April 11, 2018, Movant filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 140].

II. DISCUSSION

A. Mandatory Abstention

28 U.S.C § 1334(c)(2) provides:

Upon timely motion of a party in a proceeding based upon a State law claim or State law cause of action, related to a case under title 11 but not arising under title 11 or arising in a case under title 11, with respect to which an action could not have been commenced in a court of the United States absent jurisdiction under this section, the district court shall abstain from hearing such proceeding if an action is commenced, and can be timely adjudicated, in a State forum of appropriate jurisdiction.

Mandatory abstention under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) requires that the following seven elements be met:

(1) A timely motion; (2) a purely state law question; (3) a non-core proceeding § 157(c)(1); (4) a lack of independent federal jurisdiction absent the petition under Title 11; (5) that an action is commenced in a state court; (6) the state court action may be timely adjudicated; (7) a state forum of appropriate jurisdiction exists.

In re Gen. Carriers Corp., 258 B.R. 181, 189 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2001).

For the Court to be required to abstain, all seven elements of mandatory abstention must be present. Here the Motion was timely filed and there is no independent basis for federal jurisdiction outside of Title 11 of the United States Code as the Cross-Complaint alleges purely state law questions. Although the State Court Action may have an effect on future distribution to creditors, the Cross-Complaint does not otherwise raise any bankruptcy issues or impede the Trustee's administration of the case. Moreover, the State Court Action was commenced in state court and the state court has jurisdiction over the State Court Action.

However, it is unclear whether the state court can timely adjudicate the State Court Action. Compare In re Eastport Associates, 935 F.2d 1071, 1078-79 (9th Cir. 1991) (holding that the state court could not timely adjudicate the matter where parties would have to start litigation over in state court); and In re Smith, 389 B.R. 902, 921 n. 18 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2008) (noting that "there can be no timely adjudication" where the bankruptcy court can hear the matter before the state court); with Bowen Corp. v. Sec. Pac. Bank Idaho, F.S.B., 150 B.R. 777, 784 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1993) (finding the state court could adjudicate the matter much more quickly because a motion for summary judgment had already been filed and was pending before the action was removed to federal court). "[T]he party moving for abstention will bear the burden of demonstrating that a state court action can be timely adjudicated." In re First All. Mortgage Co., 269 B.R. 449, 455 (C.D. Cal. 2001). There is no trial set in the State Court Action and few resources have been expended in preparation for a trial in the State Court Action [doc. 140]. The parties would need to prosecute the State Court Action from start to finish because it was stayed in the early stages of litigation. Movant has not provided any evidence that the State Court Action can be timely adjudicated. On the other hand, if necessary, this Court could estimate Movant's claim sooner than the state court would be able to fully adjudicate the State Court Action and liquidate Movant's claim. Accordingly, it does not appear that all elements for mandatory abstention have been met.

B. Relief from the Automatic Stay

Section 362(d)(1) permits lifting of the automatic stay to continue pending litigation against a debtor in a nonbankruptcy forum. See Christensen v. Tucson Estates, Inc. (In re Tucson Estates, Inc.), 912 F.2d 1162, 1166 (9th Cir. 1990). In so determining,

"the bankruptcy court should base its decision on the hardships imposed on the parties with an eye towards the overall goals of the Bankruptcy Code." In re C & S Grain Co., Inc., 47 F.3d 233, 238 (7th Cir. 1995) (emphasis added).

Factors that courts have used to determine whether to lift the automatic stay to allow litigation to proceed in a non-bankruptcy forum include:

- (1) Whether the relief will result in a partial or complete resolution of the issues.
- (2) The lack of any connection with or interference with the bankruptcy case.
- (3) Whether the foreign proceeding involves the debtor as a fiduciary.
- (4) Whether a specialized tribunal has been established to hear the particular cause of action and that tribunal has the expertise to hear such cases.
- (5) Whether the debtor's insurance carrier has assumed full financial responsibility for defending the litigation.
- (6) Whether the action essentially involves third parties, and the debtor functions only as a bailee or conduit for the goods or proceeds in question.
- (7) Whether litigation in another forum would prejudice the interests of other creditors, the creditors' committee and other interested parties.
- (8) Whether the judgment claim arising from the foreign action is subject to equitable subordination under Section 510(c).
- (9) Whether movant's success in the foreign proceeding would result in a judicial lien avoidable by the debtor under Section 522(f).
- (10) The interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties.
- (11) Whether the foreign proceedings have progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial.
- (12) The impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt."

In re Curtis, 40 B.R. 795, 799–800 (Bankr. D. Utah 1984) (citations omitted); see also Sonnax, 907 F.2d at 1286 (listing factors). When applied to the pending Motion and case, the Sonnax factors do not appear to support relief from the automatic stay.

Chapter 7

This factor weighs against lifting the automatic stay. Allowing the State Court Action to proceed in state court would not allow immediate and complete resolution of the dispute between Movant and the Debtor. The state court can adjudicate the claims and cross-claims between the parties; however, Movant would still need to file a proof of claim in the Debtor's bankruptcy case in order to receive a distribution from the Trustee.

The lack of any connection with or interference with the bankruptcy case

This factor weighs against lifting the automatic stay. Although the State Court Action may have an effect on future distribution to creditors, the Cross-Complaint does not otherwise deal with any bankruptcy issues. However, if the Trustee were required to litigate the State Court Action in a different forum, such litigation may impede the Trustee's administration of the case.

Whether the foreign proceeding involves the debtor as a fiduciary

The State Court Action does not involve the Debtor's conduct as a fiduciary.

Whether a specialized tribunal has been established to hear the particular cause of action and that tribunal has the expertise to hear such cases

The Trustee contends that Movant has not met its burden to show that extraordinary circumstances exist for deviating from the well-established bankruptcy claims resolution process. The Court agrees.

Whether the debtor's insurance carrier has assumed full financial responsibility for defending the litigation

It is unclear whether the Debtor's insurance carrier, if any, has paid for costs of defending the State Court Action.

Whether litigation in another forum would prejudice the interests of other creditors, the creditors' committee and other interested parties

Movant argues there is no prejudice because all creditors will get paid a pro-rata share. However, the cost of liquidating Movant's claim in the State Court Action, potentially without any reason for doing so, may decrease the amount of funds available for unsecured creditors. This factor weighs against lifting the automatic stay.

Whether the judgment claim arising from the foreign action is subject to equitable subordination under Section 510(c)

At this time, it does not appear that any resulting judgment that Movant may obtain in the State Court Action would be subject to equitable subordination.

The interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties

This factor weighs in favor of lifting the automatic stay. The Debtor is one of four cross-defendants in the State Court Action. If the Court lifted the automatic stay, it would minimize potentially duplicative litigation in two different forums.

Whether the foreign proceedings have progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial

This factor weighs against lifting the automatic stay, because the State Court Action has not progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial. The State Court Action was stayed at the early stages of litigation. The parties have not expended significant resources in the State Court Action that would go to waste if the Court denies the Motion.

The impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt."

Entry of judgment in the State Court Action would prejudice the Debtor. However, the Court can prohibit any enforcement of the judgment against the Debtor or the Debtor's estate during the pendency of its bankruptcy case. Still, lifting the stay does not appear warranted here because the State Court Action is at a very early stage, and allowing the parties to litigate the State Court Action may impede the administration of the Debtor's estate.

Movant contends that the Court lifting the automatic stay will ensure a level playing field because the Trustee is currently free to prosecute the State Court Action, but Movant is prevented from doing so by the automatic stay. However, the Trustee has not determined whether he will prosecute any of the Debtor's affirmative claims.

Chapter 7

Because the Trustee is not presently prosecuting the State Court Action, there is no need at this time for the Court to level the playing field. Accordingly, the "balance of the hurt" weighs against lifting the automatic stay.

III. CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, Movant has not shown that mandatory abstention under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) applies to the State Court Action. In addition, the Sonnax factors weigh against lifting the automatic stay. Movant has not shown sufficient cause under 11 U.S.C § 362(d)(1) to warrant relief from the automatic stay to proceed with the nonbankruptcy action against the Debtor.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, Movant may proceed against the non-debtor defendants in the nonbankruptcy action. Movant also retains the right to file a proof of claim under 11 U.S.C. § 501 in the Debtor's bankruptcy case.

The Trustee must submit the order within seven (7) days.

There is cause to grant relief from the automatic stay under 11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d)(1) and (d)(4). Kaliston Jose Nader (the "Debtor") filed an opposition [doc. 51] to the motion which does not include a declaration signed under penalty of perjury.

Movant is the beneficiary of a trust deed encumbering the real property at issue, located at 17272 Simonds Street, Granada Hills, California 91344 (the "Property"). As of the filing of its motion, movant held a secured claim in the amount of $785,628.12. Norio Hara ("Hara") is the identified borrower on movant's trust deed and promissory note [doc. 47, Exhs. A and C]. Movant states in the motion that fifty-four payments have come due and were not paid, totaling $116,168.22 in arrears.

On May 2, 2007, movant recorded a notice of default against the Property. On August 6, 2007, movant recorded a notice of sale with a Trustee Sale date of August 23, 2007.

On September 12, 2007, an unauthorized grant deed was recorded in the Los Angeles County Recorder's office whereby Hara, a married man, transferred his interest in the Property, as a gift for no consideration, to the Debtor, a single man, and Ramil V. Palafox, a married man as his sole and separate property, as joint tenants [doc. 47, Exh. D].

On April 28, 2010, the Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, case no. 1:10-bk-14973-AA (the "First Bankruptcy Case"). The Debtor listed the Property as a rental property. On June 8, 2012, the Court dismissed the First Bankruptcy Case because the Debtor failed to make his plan payments [doc. 47, Exh. I].

On July 18, 2012, Hara filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, case no. 1:12-bk-16467-MT ("Hara's Bankruptcy Case"). Hara listed the Property as the residence address. On August 17, 2012, the Court dismissed Hara's Bankruptcy Case because he failed to file schedules, statements and a plan [doc. 47, Exh. J].

On March 8, 2013, the Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition, case no. 2:13-bk-16070-TD (the "Second Bankruptcy Case"). The Debtor listed the Property as his residence address. On May 16, 2013, the Court dismissed the Second Bankruptcy Case for failure to appear at the § 341(a) meeting of creditors [doc. Exh. I].

On May 30, 2013, the Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition, case no. 2:13-bk-24138-TD (the "Third Bankruptcy Case"). The Debtor listed the Property as his residence address. On September 3, 2018, the Debtor received a discharge in the Third Bankruptcy Case [doc. 47, Exh. I].

On February 21, 2014, Hara obtained a loan modification for the loan secured by the Property [doc. 47, Exh. F]. On January 27, 2016, movant recorded a notice of default against the Property. On April 27, 2018, movant recorded a notice of sale with a Trustee Sale date of May 22, 2018, which was postponed to June 26, 2018.

Four days before the foreclosure sale, on June 22, 2018, the Debtor filed the pending case and listed the Property as his primary residence [doc. 1]. On his Schedule A/B, the Debtor states that he shares 50% ownership of the Property with his ex-business partner Ramil. V. Palafox. The Debtor further indicates that Hara is the original borrower for the secured debt.

11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(4) provides:

On request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant relief from the stay provided under subsection (a) of this section, such as by terminating, annulling, modifying, or conditioning such stay—in such real property, if the court finds that the filing of the petition was part of a scheme to delay, hinder, or defraud creditors that involved either—

(A) transfer of all or part ownership of, or other interest in, such real property without the consent of the secured creditor or court approval; or

(B) multiple bankruptcy filings affecting such real property.

If recorded in compliance with applicable State laws governing notices of interests or liens in real property, an order entered under paragraph (4) shall be binding in any other case under this title purporting to affect such real property filed not later than 2 years after the date of the entry of such order by the court, except that a debtor in a subsequent case under this title may move for relief from such order based upon changed circumstances or for good cause shown, after notice and a hearing. Any Federal, State, or local governmental unit that accepts notices of interests or liens in real property shall accept any certified copy of an order described in this subsection for indexing and recording."

The Court concludes that the Debtor's filing of the petition in this chapter 11 case was part of a scheme to delay, hinder, or defraud creditors. Hara was previously approved for a loan modification agreement, and did not make required payments under the terms of that agreement. In his opposition, the Debtor does not address his ability to pay movant's claim, secured by Debtor's residence.

In addition to the foregoing, the multiple bankruptcy filings by the Debtor and Hara, the dismissal of three prior bankruptcy cases affecting the Property and the Debtor's ongoing failure to make deed of trust payments, justify relief from the automatic stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and the provision of in rem relief pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(4).

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

- NONE LISTED -

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7041, the plaintiffs did not file a notice of their intent to dismiss their claims under 11 U.S.C. § 727 in the debtor's bankruptcy case. The plaintiffs must file the notice of their intent to dismiss these claims and serve the notice on the U.S. Trustee, the chapter 7 trustee and all creditors of the estate. The notice must provide that, if a party in interest elects to substitute into this action, the party in interest must file a notice of substitution no later than December 5, 2018.

In their motion to dismiss [doc. 70], the plaintiffs indicate that the Court denied the debtor's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4). This is inaccurate; although the plaintiffs proved that the defendant made certain material false oaths, the Court held that the plaintiff did not meet their burden as to the intent elements under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4). The Court also held that it would adjudicate these elements at trial.

As such, the Court has not denied the debtor his discharge. Rather, the Court partially adjudicated certain elements from the plaintiffs' denial of discharge claims, under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4). Consequently, the notice filed by the plaintiffs may not represent that the Court has denied the debtor his discharge, to date.

The Court will continue this status conference to 1:30 p.m. on December 12, 2018.

Judge:

The Court will enter judgment in favor of Martina Silas ("Plaintiff"). Appearances should not be made.

I. BACKGROUND

A. The Metrocolor Action

On September 21, 1995, Plaintiff, on behalf of the Law Offices of Silas & Bissell (the "Law Offices"), and Ross C. Gunnell, entered into the Contract for Professional Services (the "Retainer Agreement"), through which the Law Offices agreed to represent Mr. Gunnell in an action against Metrocolor Laboratories, Inc. ("Metrocolor"), Eastman Kodak Company ("Kodak") and Van Waters & Rogers, Inc. ("VWR"), among others (the "Metrocolor Action"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 4 [FN1].

The Retainer Agreement provided that Mr. Gunnell was responsible for reimbursing the Law Offices for the costs and expenses incurred by the Law Offices in connection with the prosecution of the Metrocolor Action. Id. Through the Retainer Agreement, Mr. Gunnell also agreed that he would reimburse the Law Offices' costs and expenses from any recovery or distribution to Mr. Gunnell. Id. Mr. Gunnell agreed to a "net recovery" after deduction of such costs and expenses. Id. In addition, through the Retainer Agreement, Mr. Gunnell gave Plaintiff power of attorney to sign settlement checks payable to Mr. Gunnell and settlement agreements on behalf of Mr. Gunnell. Id.

The Metrocolor Action arose from Mr. Gunnell's employment with Metrocolor and other defendant entities between February 1989 and June 1989 (the "Employment Period") [FN2]. Defendant's Exhibit A. In the operative complaint filed in the Metrocolor Action (the "Metrocolor Complaint"), Mr. Gunnell alleged that Metrocolor concealed that a cleaning substance Mr. Gunnell used in connection with his employment was toxic. Defendant's Exhibit A; Declaration of Martina A. Silas ("Silas Declaration") [doc. 98], ¶ 7. Mr. Gunnell alleged that his superiors at Metrocolor told him that the substance was safe to use, and as a result, Mr. Gunnell developed cognitive, respiratory and psychological symptoms. Id. Based on these allegations, Defendant asserted several causes of action against Metrocolor and the other defendants, including negligence, strict product liability, intentional infliction of emotional distress, civil conspiracy, battery, negligent misrepresentation and fraud. Defendant's Exhibit A.

B. Settlement with Kodak and VWR

Prior to trial in the Metrocolor Action, Mr. Gunnell and other plaintiffs settled with two of the defendants, Kodak and VWR. Silas Declaration, ¶ 9; Plaintiff's Exhibits 8, 10. As a result of the settlement, in February 1999, Kodak issued a $27,500 check to Mr. Gunnell, and VWR issued a $13,000 check to Mr. Gunnell (the "VWR Check"). Plaintiff's Exhibits 9, 11. Both checks included endorsements in the back of the check bearing signatures in Mr. Gunnell's and Plaintiff's names. Id. As relevant to this action, VWR issued the VWR Check "to the order of" both Plaintiff and Mr. Gunnell. Plaintiff's Exhibit 11.

The settlement agreement with VWR was memorialized in a written agreement and mutual release (the "VWR Agreement"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 10. The VWR Agreement included a signature next to Mr. Gunnell's name, as well as signatures by three other plaintiffs. Id. Mr. Gunnell's signature also appeared in an appendix to the VWR Agreement, in which VWR agreed to pay Mr. Gunnell $13,000 [FN3]. The VWR Agreement also included an all-purpose acknowledgement signed by a notary public. Id. In the all-purpose acknowledgement, the notary public stated that Mr. Gunnell personally appeared to sign the VWR Agreement. Id. The all-purpose acknowledgment included an optional section, which called for a description of the document that was signed, that the notary public left blank. Id.

By the time Mr. Gunnell settled with Kodak and VWR, Plaintiff had incurred costs totaling $163,865.25 in connection with her representation of Mr. Gunnell in the Metrocolor Action. Silas Declaration, ¶ 65; Plaintiff's Exhibit 13. Under the Retainer Agreement, which provided that Plaintiff would be reimbursed for costs prior to any distribution to Mr. Gunnell, the aggregate $40,500 paid by Kodak and VWR was to be applied towards the $163,865.25 in incurred costs. Nevertheless, Plaintiff issued Mr. Gunnell a $2,500 check from the VWR settlement funds. Silas Declaration, ¶ 66; Plaintiff's Exhibit 12. The check, which explicitly references VWR, includes an endorsement bearing a signature in Mr. Gunnell's name. Plaintiff's Exhibit 12.

C. California Labor Code § 3602

The Metrocolor Action proceeded to trial against Metrocolor. Silas Declaration, ¶ 10. As the Metrocolor Action involved an action brought by employees against an employer, and included claims that the employees were injured during the course of their employment, the plaintiffs' right of recovery would normally be governed by California's Workers' Compensation Act (the "WCA"). California Labor Code §§ 3600 et al. However, California sets forth several exceptions to the exclusive remedy provisions of the WCA. The parties' dispute involves two of those exceptions: California Labor Code § 3602(b)(1) and (b)(2).

Pursuant to California Labor Code § 3602(b)(1), the WCA's exclusive remedy provision does not apply "[w]here the employee's injury or death is proximately caused by a willful physical assault by the employer" (the "Willful Assault Exception") (emphasis added).

Under California Labor Code § 3602(b)(2), the exclusive remedy provision of the WCA does not apply "[w]here the employee's injury is aggravated by the employer's fraudulent concealment of the existence of the injury and its connection with the employment, in which case the employer's liability shall be limited to those damages proximately caused by the aggravation" (the "Fraudulent Concealment Exception") (emphasis added).

In the Metrocolor Complaint, Mr. Gunnell alleged that, because the exposure to the toxic chemicals constituted a battery, the Willful Assault Exception applied to Mr. Gunnell's case. Defendant's Exhibit A. Mr. Gunnell also alleged that, because Mr. Gunnell's employers concealed the danger of the chemicals with which Mr. Gunnell worked, thereby aggravating Mr. Gunnell's injuries, the Fraudulent Concealment Exception also applied to except Mr. Gunnell's case from the WCA. Id.

D. The Metrocolor Trial

Prior to trial, Mr. Gunnell testified in a deposition that, during the Employment Period, Mr. Gunnell did not develop any rashes on his body. Plaintiff's Exhibit 26. Mr. Gunnell also testified that, during that time, he did not have any memory of seeking medical treatment or reporting any injuries to Metrocolor. Id.

Shortly before trial, the parties discovered a medical claim form filed by Mr. Gunnell with the Motion Picture Health & Welfare Fund (the "Fund") during the Employment Period (the "Claim Form"), in which Mr. Gunnell stated that he sustained skin irritation and cracking on his hands. Silas Declaration, ¶ 117; Plaintiff's Exhibit 19. In the Claim Form, Mr. Gunnell indicated that he did not submit his claim to Metrocolor because he had "a reaction that wasn't extremely unusual." Id. In addition, Mr. Gunnell acknowledged in the Claim Form that his injury was aggravated by his work. Id. Moreover, Mr. Gunnell sought treatment from a non-Metrocolor doctor. Silas Declaration, ¶ 117. The Claim Form, which bears the Fund's name, does not include any mention that the Claim Form was forwarded to Metrocolor. Plaintiff's Exhibit 19.

During Plaintiff's representation of Mr. Gunnell, Mr. Gunnell never stated to Plaintiff, or testified in any proceeding, that Mr. Gunnell reported his chapped hands to Metrocolor or showed his chapped hands to anyone at Metrocolor. Silas Declaration, ¶ 123. The record is similarly devoid of any evidence that Mr. Gunnell reported his chapped hands to Metrocolor during the Employment Period.

Given these facts, the Fraudulent Concealment Exception did not apply to Mr. Gunnell's case: (A) Metrocolor did not have any knowledge of any injury to Mr. Gunnell during the Employment Period; (B) Mr. Gunnell knew about the injury and its connection to his employment; (C) Metrocolor did not conceal medical information from Mr. Gunnell; and (D) there was no evidence of a connection between the chapped hands and the later-manifested cognitive, emotional and respiratory injuries on which Mr. Gunnell's claims were based. Consequently, Plaintiff could not make a valid argument as to the Fraudulent Concealment Exception.

In any case, at the close of evidence, the trial court granted a motion for nonsuit as to all causes of action except for battery. Silas Declaration, ¶ 107. As such, the only cause of action submitted to the jury was battery, and Plaintiff could not make arguments before the jury outside the parameters of Mr. Gunnell's battery cause of action.

Plaintiff did, however, continue to argue that the Willful Assault Exception allowed Mr. Gunnell to pursue his battery claim against Metrocolor. Plaintiff believed that the issue of whether a "willful physical assault" included the act of deceiving an employee into working with potentially dangerous substances was an issue of first impression in California. Silas Declaration, ¶ 106. At the time, Plaintiff had relied on a Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision holding that such an act could constitute battery under Oregon law. Id.

After trial, a jury entered verdict in favor of Mr. Gunnell on Mr. Gunnell's battery cause of action, awarding Mr. Gunnell $1,650,000 in general damages and $5,000,000 in punitive damages. Silas Declaration, ¶ 10. The award was based on injuries consisting of cognitive injury, anxiety and panic attacks, personality, mood and temper problems and respiratory problems. Plaintiff's Exhibit 62. As to those injuries, Mr. Gunnell alleged that they did not begin to manifest until 1991, after he left Metrocolor. Defendant's Exhibit A. Subsequently, Metrocolor moved for a judgment notwithstanding a verdict on the basis that the Willful Assault Exception did not apply to Mr. Gunnell's case. Id. The trial court granted Metrocolor's motion to vacate the verdict (the "JNV Ruling"), finding that Gunnell's case was not factually distinguishable from a California Supreme Court decision, Johns-Manville Prod. Corp. v. Superior Court, 27 Cal.3d 465, 469 (1980), and that, pursuant to Johns-Manville, the WCA provided the exclusive remedy to Mr. Gunnell. Defendant's Exhibit B [FN4].

Mr. Gunnell appealed the JNV Ruling. Silas Declaration, ¶ 12. The appellate court agreed with the trial court that Johns-Manville applied to Mr. Gunnell's case and that the WCA provided the exclusive remedy to Mr. Gunnell. Gunnell v. Metrocolor Labs., Inc., 92 Cal.App.4th 710, 714, 719-20 (Ct. App. 2001). The appellate court also held that the Willful Assault Exception did not exempt Mr. Gunnell from the WCA because Metrocolor did not commit criminal battery involving the use of force or violence against Mr. Gunnell. Id., at 725-28. As such, the appellate court upheld the JNV Ruling, and the California Supreme Court denied review of the appellate opinion. Silas Declaration, ¶¶ 12-13.

E. The Malpractice Action against Plaintiff

On December 10, 2002, Mr. Gunnell, in propria persona, filed a legal malpractice complaint against Plaintiff and the Law Offices based on Plaintiff's representation of Mr. Gunnell in the Metrocolor Action (the "Malpractice Action"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 1; Silas Declaration, ¶ 13. On June 13, 2003, Mr. Gunnell, in propria person, filed a first amended complaint in the Malpractice Action (the "Malpractice FAC"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 2.

In the Malpractice FAC, Mr. Gunnell alleged that Plaintiff "negligently and carelessly

While Mr. Gunnell represented himself, the trial court adjudicated certain motions filed by Plaintiff and the Law Offices, including Plaintiff's law partner, Olivia Bissell. Plaintiff's Exhibit 5. By October 16, 2003, the trial court had ruled on all of the motions filed by the Malpractice Action defendants during Mr. Gunnell's pro per representation. Id.

i. Defendant's Substitution into the Malpractice Action

On October 29, 2003, James Ellis Arden ("Defendant") substituted into the Malpractice Action as Mr. Gunnell's attorney. Plaintiff's Exhibit 3. At the time Defendant substituted into the Malpractice Action, Defendant had over 15 years of experience as an attorney. Silas Declaration, ¶ 30; Plaintiff's Exhibit 23. In his website, Defendant holds himself out as an expert in "attorney ethics, duties and client relations." Plaintiff's Exhibit 24. Defendant also represents that he is a member of the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers. Id. The website advertises that Defendant offers "[h]elp for clients with lawyer problems, and lawyers with client problems." Id. Previously, Defendant has testified that he has been working on legal ethics issues since the beginning of his legal career. April 14, 2011 Deposition Transcript, 78:23-26. According to Defendant, he had worked on a "good number" of malpractice claim cases. Declaration of James Ellis Arden ("Arden Declaration") [doc. 101], ¶ 52.

Despite Defendant's experience in the field of legal ethics, Defendant testified that he did not understand that he certified the pleadings he filed on behalf of Mr. Gunnell. However, Defendant acknowledged that he was familiar with California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 128.7 at the time he substituted into the Malpractice Action. CCP § 128.7(b) provides, in relevant part:

By presenting to the court, whether by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating, a pleading, petition, written notice of motion, or other similar paper, an attorney or unrepresented party is certifying that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances, all of the following conditions are met:

- (1) It is not being presented primarily for an improper purpose, such as to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in the cost of litigation.
- (2) The claims, defenses, and other legal contentions therein are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law.
- (3) The allegations and other factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery.
- (4) The denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief.

Defendant also testified that he believes attorneys have ethical duties to investigate claims before asserting misconduct. Defendant also acknowledged that allegations that an attorney misappropriated funds or did not disclose a settlement to a client are serious accusations against attorneys.

Upon substituting into a case, Defendant's general practice was to review all proceedings and all pleadings filed in the action. Arden Declaration, ¶ 8. As noted above, at the time Defendant substituted into the Malpractice Action, there were no pending motions on the docket. Plaintiff's Exhibit 5; Silas Declaration, ¶¶ 17-18. After Defendant's date of substitution, in October 2003, there was no significant activity related to the Malpractice Action until Mr. Gunnell's deposition in February 2004, discussed below. Plaintiff's Exhibits 5, 7. Nevertheless, according to Defendant, at the time he substituted into the Malpractice Action, Defendant had to master a large amount of material, and Mr. Gunnell needed an attorney "quickly" because of "an unusually large amount of law and motion activity...." Arden Declaration, ¶¶ 6, 10.

ii. The Misappropriation and Settlement Disclosure Claims

Defendant read the Malpractice FAC, which was the operative pleading at the time Defendant substituted into the Malpractice Action. As noted above, Mr. Gunnell alleged in the Malpractice FAC that Plaintiff had not disclosed the VWR Agreement to Mr. Gunnell and that Plaintiff misappropriated the VWR settlement funds.

On February 13, 2004, Plaintiff deposed Mr. Gunnell in connection with the Malpractice Action (the "Malpractice Deposition"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 7. Defendant attended the Malpractice Deposition as Mr. Gunnell's attorney. Id. During this deposition, Barry Z. Brodsky, Plaintiff's attorney, presented documents that Defendant claimed he had not previously seen. Arden Declaration, ¶ 61. These documents included the settlement checks bearing what appeared to be Mr. Gunnell's signature and the signed VWR Agreement. Id. In addition, Defendant obtained a copy of the Retainer Agreement authenticated by Mr. Gunnell. Plaintiff's Exhibit 7, 77:2-17.

At the Malpractice Deposition, Mr. Gunnell testified that Plaintiff never told him about the settlement with VWR and that he did not sign any of the VWR settlement checks, implying that someone forged his signature. Plaintiff's Exhibit 7, 65:4-17, 74:2-76:1. Mr. Gunnell also testified that he never signed the VWR Agreement despite the VWR Agreement including the all-purpose acknowledgment signed by a notary public; in fact, Mr. Gunnell stated that, if a notary was involved, the notary was a fraud. Id., 76:3-20. Mr. Gunnell further testified that any other witnesses who may testify that they observed Mr. Gunnell signing the VWR Agreement would be lying. Id., 114:14-22.

After attending this deposition and observing the documents related to the VWR settlement, Defendant believed Mr. Gunnell's allegations about misappropriation were inaccurate. Plaintiff's Exhibit 17, ¶ 15 ("The documents I saw during [Mr.] Gunnell's deposition suggested his allegations about misappropriation were inaccurate."). According to Defendant, after the Malpractice Deposition, Defendant believed Mr. Gunnell had signed both the VWR Agreement and the VWR Check. As a result, Defendant spoke with Mr. Brodsky and agreed with Mr. Brodsky that the VWR documents would "make it very difficult for [Mr.] Gunnell to prove misappropriation." Id., ¶ 16. According to Defendant, the misappropriation claims were "immaterial" to Mr. Gunnell's malpractice claim. Id.

At trial, Defendant testified that: (A) he spoke to Mr. Gunnell about withdrawing the misappropriation claims; (B) Mr. Gunnell agreed that the misappropriation allegations should be withdrawn; and (C) after the Malpractice Deposition, Defendant informed Mr. Brodsky that they would no longer pursue the misappropriation claims. Previously, Defendant had testified that he could not concede the misappropriation claims because it would have been malpractice to agree that Mr. Gunnell did not have a misappropriation claim. April 22, 2011 Transcript, 583:2-18.

On March 23, 2004, Defendant served on Plaintiff's counsel a written statutory settlement demand, requesting $949,999 from Plaintiff to settle the Malpractice Action. Plaintiff's Exhibit 15. Plaintiff did not accept the settlement offer.

Defendant asserts he did not pursue the misappropriation claim after the Malpractice Deposition. Arden Declaration, ¶ 69. According to Defendant, he believed the "main" violation by Plaintiff was Plaintiff's pleading strategy during the Metrocolor Action, i.e., that Plaintiff did not argue the Fraudulent Concealment Exception before the jury or on appeal. Arden Declaration, ¶ 38. Defendant testified that he "paid little attention to the misappropriation claim." Arden Declaration, ¶ 39. Although Defendant acknowledges Plaintiff asserts the misappropriation claim was a "major issue because it concerned her professional license and reputation," Defendant was "focused on the malpractice claim" and "never considered that [the] misappropriation allegations could have affected [Plaintiff's] license or reputation." Arden Declaration, ¶¶ 39-40.

However, on May 12, 2004, approximately three months after Mr. Gunnell's deposition, Defendant, on behalf of Mr. Gunnell, filed a second amended complaint against Plaintiff (the "Malpractice SAC"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 16. The Malpractice SAC included allegations that Plaintiff had "fail[ed] to advise [Mr. Gunnell] of settlement proposals and offers" and had "misappropriate[ed] settlement funds." Id., ¶ 9.

The Malpractice SAC included a request for punitive damages that the trial court had previously stricken. Given the trial court's ruling, Plaintiff demanded that Defendant remove the language from the Malpractice SAC. As a result, on June 3, 2004, Defendant signed a stipulation to strike the request for punitive damages from the Malpractice SAC (the "Stipulation to Strike"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 18

Defendant has offered various explanations regarding why he did not delete the misappropriation allegations from the Malpractice SAC. In his trial declaration, Defendant testified that, because the trial court had previously overruled Plaintiff's demurrer of the Malpractice FAC, Defendant did not want to change any allegations against Plaintiff, in case Plaintiff decided to file another demurrer. Arden Declaration, ¶ 47. According to Defendant, had he deleted the misappropriation allegations, Plaintiff would have filed another demurrer. Arden Declaration, ¶ 70. However, at trial, Defendant testified that he "didn't think about" the misappropriation allegations when he filed the Malpractice SAC and that he "wished he had" removed the allegations to avoid the current litigation. According to Defendant, failing to remove the allegations "was a mistake."

Defendant also represented that he did not know of any procedure to withdraw allegations from a complaint. As such, Defendant contends he believed his alleged conversation with Mr. Brodsky was sufficient to inform Plaintiff that Defendant would not be pursuing the misappropriation and settlement conduct claims, despite the inclusion of misappropriation allegations in the Malpractice SAC.

On July 9, 2004, Plaintiff filed a motion for summary judgment in the Malpractice Action (the "Malpractice MSJ"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 29. In the Malpractice MSJ, Plaintiff asserted that Mr. Gunnell's claim of misappropriation was meritless and frivolous, and that Plaintiff's presentation of notarized documents defeated any allegations that Plaintiff entered into an unauthorized settlement or misappropriated funds. Id. Plaintiff attached a declaration from the notary who signed the VWR Agreement. Id. Plaintiff also attached a declaration in which Plaintiff testified that she was "outraged" over Mr. Gunnell's and Defendant's repeated assertion that Plaintiff had misappropriated funds or failed to obtain Mr. Gunnell's consent to settle with VWR. Plaintiff's Exhibit 29, p. 39.

On July 29, 2004, after Plaintiff filed the Malpractice MSJ, Defendant, on behalf of Mr. Gunnell, filed a third amended complaint in the Malpractice Action (the "Malpractice TAC"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 25. Once again, the pleading included allegations that Plaintiff failed to advise Mr. Gunnell of settlement proposals and that Plaintiff misappropriated settlement funds. Id., ¶ 9.

On September 10, 2004, Defendant, on behalf of Mr. Gunnell, filed an opposition to the Malpractice MSJ (the "Opposition to Malpractice MSJ"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 19. Defendant signed the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ. Id. In the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ, Defendant made several arguments regarding the misappropriation and settlement claims:

That defendants' breaches of those duties caused [Mr. Gunnell] significant damage is set forth in Paragraphs 11 and 12 of the complaint: "Had Defendants exercised proper care and skill... [Mr. Gunnell] would have received the settlement proceeds he was entitled to receive...."

As proof that [Mr. Gunnell] validly authorized a settlement between himself... and [VWR], defendants offer a declaration from Alexander D. Mack, who claims he remembers witnessing [Mr. Gunnell] sign a settlement release and who attaches copies of identical acknowledgment for each of the four individuals, all dated February 26, 1999. None of the acknowledgments reflect the notary's personal knowledge of any signer, and the Description of Attached Document section of each acknowledgment is blank.

Conspicuously absent is any proper proof of defendants' supposed facts. The notary's declaration, and the photocopies attached thereto, have no probative value.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 19 (emphasis added). Defendant also included a declaration by Mr. Gunnell in support of the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ, in which Mr. Gunnell stated that Plaintiff never obtained Mr. Gunnell's consent to enter into the VWR Agreement. Id. Moreover, in evidentiary objections to the evidence offered by Plaintiff in the Malpractice MSJ, Defendant objected to the declaration of the notary public who notarized the VWR Agreement. Plaintiff's Exhibit 21.

Prior to the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ, Defendant had never asserted that the misappropriation and settlement conduct claims were based on a lack of informed written consent. In fact, as noted above, Mr. Gunnell's testimony from the Malpractice Deposition indicated that the claims were based on forgery of settlement documents and misappropriation of funds. For the first time during course of the Malpractice Action, Defendant argued that Plaintiff misappropriated funds and failed to disclose the VWR Agreement because Plaintiff represented multiple plaintiffs in the Metrocolor Action and allegedly did not obtain each client's informed written consent prior to settlement. Plaintiff's Exhibit 19.

However, Defendant also included, in a separate section, his arguments regarding purported issues with the notary public's acknowledgment attached to the VWR Agreement. Id. According to Defendant, the all-purpose acknowledgment signed by the notary public and attached to the VWR Agreement was insufficient to prove that Defendant had signed the VWR Agreement. Id.

Defendant also filed a separate statement of facts in opposition to the Malpractice MSJ (the "Malpractice Opposed Facts"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 20. In the Malpractice Opposed Facts, Defendant, on behalf of Mr. Gunnell, disputed the following statements:

Plaintiff's Statement of Fact	Mr. Gunnell's Response
[Mr.] Gunnell approved the settlement and release of [VWR] and signed the release in front of a notary public.	Disputed. [Plaintiff] did not obtain [Mr. Gunnell's] informed or written consent to the settlement and release of [VWR], nor did he sign the release as alleged; [Plaintiff's] claimed evidence of [Mr. Gunnell's] signing is not competent.
[Plaintiff] did not misappropriate any of the [VWR] settlement proceeds. Pursuant to the retainer agreement between [Mr. Gunnell] and [Plaintiff], the settlement funds were properly applied to outstanding costs.	Disputed. [Plaintiff] did not obtain [Mr. Gunnell's] informed or written consent to the settlement and release of [VWR], nor did [Plaintiff] obtain his informed written consent to keep his funds as payment of costs without ever delivering the same to him. The fee agreement does not provide that [Plaintiff] could pay [herself] out of monies received for [Mr. Gunnell's] benefit; nor could it.

Id. (emphasis added).

In her statement of facts, Plaintiff had stated that she advised Mr. Gunnell of all settlement offers and did not take any action with respect to those settlement offers without Mr. Gunnell's knowledge and consent. Id. In response, Defendant stated: "Disputed, as to [Plaintiff's] failure to obtain [Mr. Gunnell's] informed and written consent. has] no such proof." Id.

Defendant again offered multiple explanations regarding why he opposed Plaintiff's request for summary judgment on the misappropriation claims, although he acknowledged that the claims were undermined by the evidence. First, Defendant testified that he "did not argue [that Plaintiff] had misappropriated monies or acted improperly in connection with the settlement" and that, by the time Defendant prepared the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ, the misappropriation issue was a "dead issue." Arden Declaration, ¶ 81. Alternatively, Defendant testified that he only raised the misappropriation issues in the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ because Plaintiff raised the issue first when she requested summary judgment in her favor on those claims. According to Defendant, he had dropped the misappropriation and settlement misconduct claims, but Plaintiff revived those claims by filing the Malpractice MSJ. According to Defendant, he was now arguing that Plaintiff had failed to provide Mr. Gunnell informed written consent.

However, the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ included the argument that the notarization was invalid. Moreover, the Malpractice Opposed Facts included the assertions that Mr. Gunnell did not sign the release, and that Plaintiff's "claimed evidence of [Mr. Gunnell's] signing is not competent." Plaintiff's Exhibit 19.

Defendant also testified that he did not really argue misappropriation or settlement misconduct because his objections to the Malpractice MSJ were "evidentiary in nature." Arden Declaration, ¶ 81. Next, Defendant characterized his arguments regarding misappropriation and settlement misconduct as "minor" and "unimportant surplusage," which Defendant did not focus on and did not intend to pursue. Arden Declaration, ¶¶ 43, 68-69.

However, Defendant had previously testified that he would have breached a fiduciary duty to Mr. Gunnell if he did not oppose Plaintiff's arguments regarding misappropriation and settlement misconduct. April 22, 2011 Transcript ("April 22 Transcript"), 583:2-18. Defendant then testified that "you can't concede anything to the other side." Id. In addition, Defendant had previously testified that the misappropriation and ethical misconduct allegations were serious, and that attorneys pursuing such claims should investigate the allegations. January 14, 2011 Deposition Transcript, 17:4-19:5.

Defendant knew that the misappropriation claim "was probably incorrect." Arden Declaration, ¶¶ 40, 42. Between the Malpractice Deposition and September 10, 2004, when Defendant filed the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ, Defendant did not attempt to depose any of the witnesses who observed Mr. Gunnell sign the VWR documents, and did not attempt to depose the notary public who signed the all-purpose acknowledgment attached to the VWR Agreement. Silas Declaration, ¶ 78. Defendant also did not attempt to depose Plaintiff prior to filing the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ. Id.

iii. The Fraudulent Concealment Exception Allegations

In the Malpractice Action, Mr. Gunnell also contended that Plaintiff committed malpractice by failing to argue the Fraudulent Concealment Exception before the jury or during the Metrocolor appeal. As noted above, to prove that the Fraudulent Concealment Exception applies, an employee must show that "the employee's injury is aggravated by the employer's fraudulent concealment of the existence of the injury and its connection with the employment...." California Labor Code § 3602(b)(2) (emphasis added). Under the Fraudulent Concealment Exception, "the employer's liability [is] limited to those damages proximately caused by the aggravation." Id.

In the Malpractice SAC and Malpractice TAC, both of which Defendant filed on behalf of Mr. Gunnell, Mr. Gunnell alleged that Plaintiff committed malpractice by failing to plead "all available causes of action," including the Fraudulent Concealment Exception. Plaintiff's Exhibits 16, 25. According to Defendant, Plaintiff committed malpractice by failing to argue a theory that was alleged in the Metrocolor Complaint; Defendant contends that Plaintiff had a duty to argue every exception included in the Metrocolor Complaint. Arden Declaration, ¶ 30; Plaintiff's Exhibit 19.

According to Defendant, Plaintiff could have made a case for application of the Fraudulent Concealment Exception. Defendant based this argument in part on the Claim Form. Plaintiff's Exhibit 19. Prior to the Malpractice Deposition, which took place in February 2004, Mr. Gunnell showed Defendant the Claim Form. Arden Declaration, ¶ 48. Without having any evidence that Mr. Gunnell suffered internal organ damage during the Employment Period, Defendant testified that he believed the Claim Form demonstrated that Mr. Gunnell's hand chapping was a symptom of internal organ poisoning, and that Mr. Gunnell's employer knew about the poisoning because the employer had taken steps to keep Mr. Gunnell from seeing warning labels related to the cleaning substance. Arden Declaration, ¶ 50.

As noted above, the Claim Form was not filed with Metrocolor, and there is nothing in the Claim Form indicating that Mr. Gunnell informed Metrocolor about his chapped hands. In addition, the Claim Form reflected that Mr. Gunnell knew his chapped hands were caused and aggravated by his work with the cleaning substance.

During the Malpractice Deposition, Mr. Gunnell testified, in Defendant's presence, that he did not have any illnesses in 1989, the year that Mr. Gunnell worked at Metrocolor. Plaintiff's Exhibit 6, 87:2-8. Mr. Gunnell also testified that, during his employment, he sought medical treatment for his chapped hands. Id., 90:24-91:18. Mr. Gunnell did not seek medical treatment from Metrocolor; according to Mr. Gunnell, his health insurance was through his union. Id., 80:17-21. As in the Metrocolor Action, Mr. Gunnell testified that, at the time he experienced the hand chapping, he believed the cleaning substance he used in connection with his employment was to blame. Id., 92:3-17.

At the Malpractice Deposition, Mr. Gunnell testified for the first time that he reported his chapped hands to a supervisor during his employment with Metrocolor. Id., 99:10-20. According to Mr. Gunnell, he subsequently asked a supervisor to identify the cleaning substance, and the supervisor identified the substance as "TSP." Id., 92:18-94:13; 99:21-100:1.

Despite the new testimony, Mr. Gunnell testified, as he had done during the Metrocolor Action, that he did not seek medical care from Metrocolor during the Employment Period and did not have a physical exam during his time with Metrocolor. Plaintiff's Exhibit 6, 121:1-11; 129:22-130:5. In addition, Mr. Gunnell acknowledged that he never sent any medical records related to his chapped hands to Metrocolor. Id., 130:6-12. In any event, Mr. Gunnell testified that the doctor prescribed a cream for the chapping, and eventually the chapping "got better." 100:25-101:1; 105:17-19.

Defendant acknowledged that, during Plaintiff's representation of Mr. Gunnell, Mr. Gunnell never testified that he reported any symptoms to Metrocolor and that nothing in the record from the Metrocolor Action showed that Mr. Gunnell reported an injury to his supervisor. Defendant also acknowledged that the first time Mr. Gunnell testified that he showed his supervisor his chapped hands was during the Malpractice Action, which Mr. Gunnell initiated after the conclusion of the Metrocolor appeal.

Plaintiff testified that she could not pursue the Fraudulent Concealment Exception because Mr. Gunnell's sworn testimony from the Metrocolor Action established that: (A) the employer did not have any knowledge of any actual injury to Mr. Gunnell during his employment; (B) as to his chapped hands, which was the only injury about which Mr. Gunnell was aware during his employment, Mr. Gunnell was aware of the injury's connection to his employment; (C) the employer did not conceal any medical information from Mr. Gunnell; and (D) there was no evidence of any connection between Mr. Gunnell's chapped hands and the later-manifested alleged cognitive, emotional and respiratory injuries on which the Metrocolor Complaint and the jury verdict were based. Silas Declaration, ¶ 122. Because the injuries that formed the basis of the Metrocolor Complaint did not manifest until 1991, years after Mr. Gunnell left his employment, Plaintiff testified she could not have argued that Metrocolor concealed the as-yet-nonexistent injuries from Mr. Gunnell.

Notwithstanding Mr. Gunnell's deposition testimony, Defendant continued to argue that Plaintiff should have pursued the Fraudulent Concealment Exception. After the Malpractice Deposition, Defendant filed two amended complaints and opposed the Malpractice MSJ. In all of those filings, Defendant insisted that Plaintiff should have argued the Fraudulent Concealment Exception. The trial court set a discovery cutoff date of October 18, 2004 and a trial date of November 16, 2004. Despite those scheduled events, Defendant did not attempt to obtain discovery validating his theory.

During the 11 months before the hearing on the Malpractice MSJ, Defendant did not attempt to depose Plaintiff. Defendant also did not attempt to obtain discovery about whether Mr. Gunnell was injured during his employment with Metrocolor; for instance, Defendant did not contact any of Mr. Gunnell's treating physicians, did not talk to any of the experts retained during the Metrocolor Action and did not consult the trial transcripts.

In the Malpractice MSJ, Plaintiff cited several cases regarding the Fraudulent Concealment Exception. Plaintiff's Exhibit 29. For instance, citing Jensen v. Amgen Inc., 105 Cal.App.4th 1322, 1326 (Ct. App. 2003), Plaintiff quoted the following language:

Summary judgment was properly granted in this case because Amgen did not conceal the existence of Jensen's injury. Jensen herself knew of her symptoms before anyone at Amgen did. "It is not enough ... to rely on evidence from which a trier of fact might conclude [that the employer] should have known of [the employee's] injuries before they were reported; only evidence of actual knowledge would raise an issue of fact precluding the grant of summary judgment."

Plaintiff's Exhibit 29, p. 20. Citing Hughes Aircraft Co. v. Superior Court, 44 Cal.App.4th 1790, 1795-97 (Ct. App. 1996), Plaintiff also quoted the following:

Section 3602, subdivision (b)(2) does not impose liability on an employer for injuries resulting from either the failure to provide a safe work environment or from failure to warn of unsafe premises. (See § 4553.) Hughes's alleged prior knowledge of the safety of its workplace is insufficient by itself to establish liability. The statute permits an employee to recover damages for aggravation to work-related injuries only when the employer has concealed both the existence of the injury and its work relationship. Section 3602, subdivision (b)(2) is inapt here because there is no evidence to support a finding Hughes knew about the injuries before being told by plaintiffs.

Applying the above principles to our facts, we conclude the trial court erred in denying the motion for summary judgment. Contrary to the court's statement, Hughes's prior knowledge of its unsafe work environment and the potential risks to its employees, even if it could be proven, would be insufficient to establish section 3602, subdivision (b) (2) liability. The first consideration is whether there are triable issues of fact concerning Hughes's actual prior knowledge of plaintiffs' injuries. Only if the answer is yes would the court consider whether the employer concealed those injuries and their relationship to the work environment from plaintiffs. It is not enough for plaintiffs to rely on evidence from which a trier of fact might conclude Hughes should have known of plaintiffs' injuries before they were reported; only evidence of actual knowledge would raise an issue of fact precluding the grant of summary judgment. Because the plaintiffs failed to establish any triable issues regarding Hughes's actual prior knowledge of their injuries, the trial court had no choice but to grant the summary judgment motion.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 29, pp. 21-22 (emphasis in Hughes). Citing Ashdown v. Ameron Internat. Corp., 83 Cal.App.4th 868, 880 (Ct. App. 2000), Plaintiff quoted:

An employer's actual knowledge of the existence of an employee's injury connected with the employment is a necessary prerequisite to establishing a claim against the employer for fraudulent concealment under section 3602, subdivision (b)(2). Clearly, an employer cannot be charged with concealing something of which it has no knowledge. In addition, the injured employee or his or her representatives must present evidence showing that the employer actively prevented the employee from receiving treatment for his or her employment-related injury or disease, or otherwise "aggravated" the injury or disease in some way.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 29, p. 22.

Defendant did not address any of these authorities in the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ. Plaintiff's Exhibit 19. Nevertheless, Defendant continued to assert that the Fraudulent Concealment Exception could have applied. Id. Defendant asserted that Mr. Gunnell sought medical treatment while he was employed by Metrocolor, and that Metrocolor concealed the dangers of the cleaning substance with which Mr. Gunnell worked. Id. However, Defendant did not provide any evidence that Plaintiff knew, during the Malpractice Action, that Mr. Gunnell reported any injuries to Metrocolor during the Employment Period. Id. Moreover, Defendant did not address the fact that Mr. Gunnell acknowledged in the Claim Form that his chapped hands, the only reported injury suffered by Mr. Gunnell during the Employment Period, were caused by his work at Metrocolor. Id.

iv. The Malpractice Judgment and Appeal

On September 23, 2004, the trial court held a hearing on the Malpractice MSJ. Plaintiff's Exhibit 32. At the hearing, Defendant again asserted that the Fraudulent Concealment Exception applied to Mr. Gunnell's case. Id., p. 9. As to misappropriation and settlement conduct, Defendant again argued that the notary's declaration was "incompetent evidence." Id., p. 13.

Eventually, the trial court entered an order granting the Malpractice MSJ (the "Malpractice Order"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 33. In the Malpractice Order, the trial court found:

[Mr. Gunnell] fails to establish that his employer had actual knowledge of his initial injury, i.e. chapped hands, as it was [Mr. Gunnell] who reported his chapped hands to his employer. [Mr. Gunnell] fails to submit any admissible evidence that [Mr. Gunnell] has liver, brain, kidney, respiratory tract or central nervous system damage, and [Mr. Gunnell's] expert found that no such damage exists. [Mr. Gunnell] in his deposition states that his initial injury was his chapped hands, and he knew his chapped hands were caused by the cleaning solution he was using at work.

Further, as to [Mr. Gunnell's] alleged brain damage, there is no evidence and no conceivable way that [Mr. Gunnell's] employer could have been apprised of this damage. [Mr. Gunnell] has failed to submit any evidence of the employer's actual knowledge as required by Labor Code section 3602(b)(2) and thus, summary judgment is proper.

There is no triable issue of material fact as to any other allegation of malpractice set forth in the complaint. [Mr. Gunnell] endorsed the settlement check in front of a notary and turned the check over to Defendants. [Mr. Gunnell] has not submitted any evidence to establish that (1) Defendants were not entitled to the settlement funds or, (2) that Defendants failed to obtain [Mr. Gunnell's] informed consent under California Rules of Professional Conduct 3-310 and 4-100.

Defendant did not speak to any of Mr. Gunnell's physicians; there was no evidence showing Mr. Gunnell sustained "internal injuries" or that he sustained an initial injury concealed by Metrocolor, and aggravated by that alleged concealment. Defendant appealed the Malpractice Judgment. Arden Declaration, ¶ 83. Although Defendant appears to have abandoned the misappropriation and settlement arguments, Defendant continued to assert that Plaintiff committed by malpractice by failing to argue the Fraudulent Concealment Exception. On January 27, 2006, the appellate court issued a decision affirming the Malpractice Order (the "Malpractice Appellate Opinion"). Gunnell v. Silas, 2006 WL 204610 (Ct. App. Jan. 27, 2016). In the Malpractice Appellate Opinion, the appellate court stressed that the Fraudulent Concealment Exception "applies when an employer conceals from an employee a work-related injury." Id., at *2 (emphasis in the Malpractice Appellate Opinion). The appellate court found:

Appellant contends the trial court's analysis here rejecting fraudulent concealment overemphasized his awareness of the cleaning solvent having irritated his hands, while ignoring his ignorance of his more significant internal injuries. ... We note, however, that even if appellant's initial injury was internal, the fraudulent concealment exception applies only if Metrocolor actually knew, instead of merely should have known, about those injuries and concealed them from him. Appellant presents no evidence Metrocolor actually knew of his internal injuries, let alone concealed them from him.

Appellant contends respondents' hearsay and personal opinion was the only evidence they offered that fraudulent concealment did not apply. Arguing respondents' personal views did not settle the matter, he asserts respondents' reason for abandoning fraudulent concealment was a triable issue. Appellant cites no authority, however, that respondents' subjective reasons for abandoning the theory were relevant. Pretrial discovery can uncover facts that undercut a legal theory. The most reasonable inference from the late-discovered insurance forms tying the cleaning solution to appellant's skin problems is that respondents jettisoned the fraudulent concealment theory because the facts did not support it. Indeed, continuing to pursue a claim after a party discovers facts defeating the claim can constitute malicious prosecution. But regardless of respondents' subjective reasons for not pursuing fraudulent concealment at trial, appellant's malpractice claim against respondents fails the objective principle of proving a case-within-a-case.

Id., at *3 (internal citations omitted). In light of the above, the appellate court affirmed the trial court's holding that Plaintiff did not commit malpractice when she did not argue the Fraudulent Concealment Exception.

F. The Malicious Prosecution Action

On January 15, 2008, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendant, asserting claims for malicious prosecution and abuse of process (the "Malicious Prosecution Action"). Plaintiff's Exhibit 35. In April 2011, the state court held trial in the Malicious Prosecution Action before a jury. Plaintiff's Exhibit 41. On June 13, 2011, the state court entered a judgment in favor of Plaintiff based on the jury's verdict (the "Malicious Prosecution Judgment"). Id. The jury awarded Plaintiff a total of $300,756.79 in damages with interest thereon at a rate of 10% per annum. Id.

Defendant appealed the Malicious Prosecution Judgment. Silas v. Arden, 213 Cal.App.4th 75 (Ct. App. 2012). The appellate court affirmed the Malicious Prosecution Judgment, holding that Defendant asserted the Fraudulent Concealment Exception despite knowing that Mr. Gunnell was aware of his condition and its cause, and Mr. Gunnell had never informed Plaintiff during the Metrocolor Action that Mr. Gunnell spoke to a supervisor about his condition [FN5]. Id., at 91-92. As to misappropriation, the appellate court found that Defendant continued to prosecute the misappropriation claim by including it in Mr. Gunnell's amended complaints after being confronted with documents that defeated the claim. Id.

nondischargeability of the debt owed to her under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6).

On September 27, 2013, Plaintiff filed a motion for summary judgment (the "MSJ") [doc. 12], asserting that the Malicious Prosecution Judgment and the Malicious Prosecution Appellate Opinion established a claim under § 523(a)(6). This Court agreed; on April 4, 2014, the Court entered an order granting the MSJ and a judgment in favor of Plaintiff (the "Judgment") [docs. 40, 41].

Defendant appealed the Judgment to the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP"). On July 2, 2015, the BAP issues its opinion (the "BAP Opinion"). In re Arden, 2015 WL 4068962 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Jul. 2, 2015). In relevant part, the BAP found:

Comparing the elements of the California intentional tort of malicious prosecution with the requirements to establish a willful and malicious injury excepted from the debtor's discharge under § 523(a)(6), we have no quarrel with the bankruptcy court's conclusion that the "malicious" element was established, but although we acknowledge that it is a very close question, we disagree that the "willful" standard was necessarily met. We thus conclude that the bankruptcy court erred in granting summary judgment in Ms. Silas' favor based on the issue preclusive effects of the state court judgment with respect to the § 523(a)(6) "willful injury" element.

Id., at *10 (emphasis added). As to "willfulness," the BAP held that the jury instructions and verdict did not establish willful conduct:

The state court judgment did not necessarily include findings of willfulness within the meaning of § 523(a)(6). The instructions to the jury did not ask specifically that the jury find that the debtor continued the legal malpractice action against Ms. Silas with a subjective intent to harm her. Rather, the jury instructions asked the jury to determine whether the debtor "acted primarily for a purpose other than succeeding on the merits of the claim." The additional jury instructions did not require the jury to specify this purpose. Moreover, the verdict form merely repeated this instruction in the form of a question, to which the jury answered "yes."

Id., at *11. As such, the BAP vacated and remanded the Judgment. Id., at *12.

Plaintiff appealed the BAP Opinion to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. In re Arden, 693 F. App'x 596 (9th Cir. 2017). The Court of Appeals noted that the BAP vacated the Judgment "and remand[ed] the case to the bankruptcy court to determine whether [Defendant's] malicious prosecution of [Plaintiff] was "willful" for 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) purposes." Id., at 597 (emphasis added). However, the Court of Appeals held that, in light of its recent decision in In re Gugliuzza, 852 F.3d 884 (9th Cir. 2017), the Court of Appeals did not have jurisdiction over the appeal because the BAP Opinion "left the ultimate question of whether the judgment debt is nondischargeable open and unresolved." Id.

Upon remand, the parties filed a joint pretrial stipulation (the "JPS") [doc. 90]. On February 9, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the JPS (the "Pretrial Order") [doc. 96]. In the Pretrial Order, the Court stated that "the Court will not try the issue of whether [Defendant] acted 'maliciously' under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), as that element of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) was preclusively determined prepetition." Pretrial Order, p. 2. The Court also instructed the parties to file declarations in lieu of direct testimony. Pretrial Order, p. 3.

On April 3, 2018, Plaintiff filed the Silas Declaration [doc. 98]. On April 10, 2018, Defendant filed the Arden Declaration [doc. 101]. The parties filed evidentiary objections to the declarations, and the Court issued rulings on the evidentiary objections at trial [docs. 119, 120]. From May 23, 2018 to May 25, 2018, and on July 30, 2018, the Court held trial on this matter.

After trial, the Court instructed the parties to file post-trial briefs summarizing the evidence and setting forth their arguments. The parties timely filed their post-trial briefs [docs. 130, 134, 135].

B. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6)

C. The BAP's Mandate

As noted above, in the BAP Opinion, the BAP agreed that the Malicious Prosecution Judgment established the element of "maliciousness" under § 523(a)(6). The BAP remanded this matter for the Court to determine only the "willful" element under § 523(a)(6). Nevertheless, Defendant asserts that this Court must adjudicate both elements of § 523(a)(6).

"Under the 'rule of mandate,' the trial court must adhere to the appellate court's decision." In re de Jong, 588 B.R. 879, 899 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2018) (citing Stacy v. Colvin, 825 F.3d 563, 567-68 (9th Cir. 2016)). "The rule of mandate is similar to, but broader than, the law of the case doctrine. The rule provides that any district court that has received the mandate of an appellate court cannot vary or examine that mandate for any purpose other than executing it." Stacy, 825 F.3d at 567-68 (internal citations and quotations omitted). The trial court "commits jurisdictional error if it takes actions that contradict the mandate." Id., at 568 (internal citations and quotations omitted).

Similar to the rule of mandate, "[t]he law of the case doctrine generally prohibits a court from considering an issue that has already been decided by that same court or a higher court in the same case." Stacy, 825 F.3d at 567. "The doctrine is concerned primarily with efficiency, and should not be applied when the evidence on remand is substantially different, when the controlling law has changed, or when applying the doctrine would be unjust." Id. "Because the doctrine is designed to prevent relitigation of issues that already have been decided, the burden lies with the party opposed to the application of the doctrine to demonstrate a substantial difference in the evidence, a change in controlling law, or that application of the doctrine is unjust." In re Charleston Assocs., LLC, 2018 WL 4006298, at *11 (Bankr. D. Nev. Jul. 24, 2018). "A district court's discretionary decision to apply the law of the case doctrine is reviewed for abuse of discretion." Stacy, 825 F.3d at 567.

Here, the BAP agreed that the Malicious Prosecution Judgment satisfied the element of "maliciousness" under § 523(a)(6). In the BAP Opinion, the BAP remanded this matter for the Court to make findings regarding whether Defendant's conduct was "willful." The Court of Appeals agreed, noting that the BAP vacated the Judgment "and remand[ed] the case to the bankruptcy court to determine whether [Defendant's] malicious prosecution of [Plaintiff] was "willful" for 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) purposes." Arden, 693 F. App'x at 597 (emphasis added).

Even if the mandate is not clear, however, the law of the case doctrine provides that, unless there is new evidence, the controlling law has changed or applying the doctrine would be unjust, this Court may not reconsider the issue of whether the Malicious Prosecution Judgment established the element of maliciousness. Defendant has not presented any new evidence that would change the analysis, there is no new controlling law and applying the doctrine is not unjust in this case. The issue of maliciousness was assessed by the BAP, and the BAP held that they "have no quarrel with [this Court's] conclusion that the 'malicious' element was established." Arden, 2015 WL 4068962 at * 10. As such, the law of the case doctrine applies to the element of maliciousness.

Under both the rule of mandate and the law of the case doctrine, this Court does not have the power to reconsider the "maliciousness" issue upon remand. Even if the Court did have the power to reconsider the issue, however, the Court would again find that the Malicious Prosecution Judgment established the element of maliciousness, for the reasons set forth in the Judgment.

D. Willfulness

The BAP set forth the applicable legal standard in the BAP Opinion:

Section 523(a)(6) excepts from discharge debts arising from a debtor's willful and malicious injury to another person. Barboza v. New Form, Inc. (In re Barboza), 545 F.3d 702, 706 (9th Cir. 2008). We must analyze the willful and malice requirements separately, Carillo v. Su (In re Su), 290 F.3d 1140, 1146–47 (2002), and we must determine that both have been met, Ormsby v. First Am. Title Co. of Nev. (In re Ormsby), 591 F.3d 1199, 1206 (9th Cir. 2010).

"A 'willful' injury is a deliberate or intentional injury, not merely a deliberate or intentional act that leads to injury." Barboza, 545 F.3d at 706, quoting Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61 (1998). To satisfy the willfulness requirement, it must be shown that the debtor either had "a subjective intent to harm or a subjective belief that harm is substantially certain." Su, 290 F.3d at 1144. When determining the debtor's intent under § 523(a)(6), there is a presumption that the debtor knows the natural consequences of his actions. Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1206.

Arden, 2015 WL 4068962, at *8. "In addition to what a debtor may admit to knowing, the bankruptcy court may consider circumstantial evidence that tends to establish what the debtor must have actually known when taking the injury-producing action." Su, 290 F.3d at 1146.

For example, in Ormsby, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held there was "willful" conduct where the debtor "was necessarily aware that his use of [the plaintiff's trade secrets] without paying for them had an economic value." Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1207. Moreover, in In re Jercich, 238 F.3d 1202 (9th Cir. 2001), the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the "willfulness" requirement of § 523(a)(6) was satisfied where there were findings that the debtor "knew he owed the wages to [the plaintiff] and that injury to [the plaintiff] was substantially certain to occur if the wages were not paid... yet chose not to pay and instead used the money for his own personal benefit."

Jercich, 238 F.3d at 1208-09.

Here, Plaintiff has established, by a preponderance of the evidence, that Defendant's conduct was willful, i.e., that Defendant had a subjective intent to harm Plaintiff or, at the least, a subjective belief that harm to Plaintiff was substantially certain. As noted by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, Defendant is charged with the knowledge of the natural consequences of his actions. Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1206.

Defendant prosecuted the Malpractice Action on grounds Defendant knew were patently meritless and tried to keep the Malpractice Action alive long enough to leverage Plaintiff to make a settlement offer. Defendant knew that, during the Malpractice Action, Plaintiff did not have any evidence that Mr. Gunnell reported any injuries to Metrocolor during the Employment Period. Because of the Claim Form, Defendant also knew that Mr. Gunnell was aware his chapped hands were caused by his work at Metrocolor. As such, Defendant knew that the Fraudulent Concealment Exception could not have applied to Mr. Gunnell's case.

Moreover, Defendant could not have believed that he could try a case involving the existence, aggravation and causation of an injury without a single medical witness or expert. Defendant also could not have believed that he could introduce into evidence and rely on Mr. Gunnell's new testimony regarding reporting his alleged injury to a supervisor at Metrocolor. Mr. Gunnell admitted Plaintiff was unaware of that alleged conversation during her representation of Mr. Gunnell.

In addition to the baseless arguments regarding the Fraudulent Concealment Exception, the evidence establishes that Defendant kept the misappropriation allegations in the suit because the presence of those serious allegations of misconduct would make it more likely that Plaintiff, if the Malpractice MSJ on those allegations were denied, might settle with Mr. Gunnell to avoid the embarrassment and risk of

Mr. Gunnell testifying in open court to a jury that Plaintiff had concealed a settlement and stolen the proceeds. Those allegations put more leverage and pressure on Plaintiff to want to avoid trial.

Defendant's explanations regarding why he failed to dismiss the misappropriation allegations are not credible. Defendant declared that he did not care about the misappropriation allegations, because they purportedly did not involve enough money to bother litigating. If this was true, why did Defendant not delete the two lines of misappropriation allegations from the pleadings, or state in the Opposition to Malpractice MSJ that Mr. Gunnell was not pursuing those allegations? Contrary to this testimony, Defendant also represented that he worried Plaintiff may file a demurrer if he removed the allegations and that, despite having previously signed the Stipulation to Strike, Defendant did not know how to remove allegations from a pleading.

The Court also does not find Defendant's testimony regarding his decision to oppose the Malpractice MSJ credible. Defendant testified that he believed the misappropriation arguments were "minor" and that the arguments were only "evidentiary" in nature, but that he believed he would breach a fiduciary duty to Mr. Gunnell if he did not oppose the Malpractice MSJ based on the misappropriation allegations.

The most likely reason Defendant failed to dismiss the allegations was because they were part of his attempted shakedown of a monetary settlement from Plaintiff. If Defendant intended to try the Malpractice Action, or had any reasonable belief he could prevail, he would have done the work and spent the funds to prepare the case for trial. Instead, Defendant did not attempt to obtain any evidentiary support, prior to the discovery cutoff set by the trial court, for either the misappropriation allegations or Defendant's contention that Metrocolor knew about any of Mr. Gunnell's injuries during the Employment Period.

The only way for Defendant to accomplish his stated goal of obtaining a recovery for Mr. Gunnell was to obtain money from Plaintiff for which she was not liable.

Chapter 7

Accusing a practicing attorney of concealing settlement, forging a signature and stealing the money in the court in which she practices, knowing the allegations are not true, evinces a specific intent to harm. Accusing an attorney of "dropping" a theory she did not drop, while Defendant knew the theory was patently inapplicable and that the testimony on which Defendant relied was not available to Plaintiff during the Malpractice Action, in the hope of shaking down the attorney for money, also demonstrates a specific intent to harm. As in Ormsby and Jercich, Defendant's pursuit of the Malpractice Action, when that arguments related to that action were meritless, was certain to cause Plaintiff inconvenience and monetary loss. In light of the above, Plaintiff has proven, by a preponderance of the evidence, that Defendant willfully injured Plaintiff through his pursuit of the Malpractice Action.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will enter judgment in favor of Plaintiff.

Plaintiff must submit a proposed judgment no later than seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. The Court may take judicial notice of the bankruptcy and adversary proceeding dockets. Unless this decision references a document from these dockets or an exhibit, the facts are derived from testimony provided at trial.

2. The parties are unclear about which entities employed Mr. Gunnell between February 1989 and June 1989. For ease of reference, the Court will refer to Metrocolor as Mr. Gunnell's employer, although Mr. Gunnell may have had additional or different employers during this time period.

3. The other plaintiffs received varying amounts to settle their claims, as set forth in Appendices B-D of the VWR Agreement.

4. In Johns-Manville, the California Supreme Court explained:

In the present case, plaintiff alleges that defendant fraudulently concealed from him, and from doctors retained to treat him, as well as from the state, that he was suffering from a disease caused by ingestion of asbestos, thereby preventing him from receiving treatment for the disease and inducing him to continue to work under hazardous conditions. These allegations are sufficient to state a cause of action for aggravation of the disease, as distinct from the hazards of the employment which caused him to contract the disease.

We conclude the policy of exclusivity of workers' compensation as a remedy for injuries in the employment would not be seriously undermined by holding defendant liable for the aggravation of this plaintiff's injuries, since we cannot believe that many employers will aggravate the effects of an industrial injury by not only deliberately concealing its existence but also its connection with the employment.

Johns-Manville, 27 Cal.3d at 477-78.

5. The Court includes information about the Malicious Prosecution Judgment and the appeal therefrom as a recounting of procedural history. The Court is not relying on any of the findings of fact or law from these decisions as concerns this Court's analysis of the "willfulness" element of 11 U.S.C. §

#2.00 First and final application by Resnik Hayes Moradi LLP, general bankruptcy counsel for the debtors, for allowance of fees and reimbursement of costs for the period April 18, 2017 through August 20, 2018

Docket 149

Tentative Ruling:

Resnik Hayes Moradi LLP ("Applicant") general counsel to debtors in possession – approve fees of $67,214.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $1,866.00, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. The Court has not awarded $675.00 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

In addition, secretarial/clerical work is noncompensable under 11 U.S.C. § 330. See In re Schneider, 2008 WL 4447092, *11 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2008) (court

#7.10 First interim application for allowance of fees and costs filed by Marshack Hayes LLP as general counsel

Docket 58

Tentative Ruling:

Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 2016-(a)(1)(J), Marshack Hays LLP ("Marshack") must file a client declaration regarding its fee application, or a statement regarding steps taken to obtain such declaration if none is forthcoming. Provided that such declaration is timely filed, the Court will approve fees and expenses as follows:

Marshack, general counsel to David K. Gottlieb, chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $23,804.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $1,085.71, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, on an interim basis. Marshack may collect 80% of the approved fees and 100% of the approved expenses at this time. The Court has not awarded $3,659.00 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 328(b) provides that an attorney may not receive compensation for the performance of any trustee's duties that are generally performed by a trustee without the assistance of an attorney. In re Garcia, 335 B.R. 717, 725 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2005) (holding that bankruptcy court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to compensate chapter 7 trustee's counsel for services rendered in connection with the sale of property of the estate and for preparing routine employment applications).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor’s estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2016-2(e)(2) provides a "nonexclusive list of services that the court deems ‘trustee services.’" This list includes, among other activities: conduct 11 U.S.C. § 341(a) examination; routine investigation regarding location and status of assets; turnover or inspection of documents; recruit and contract appraisers, brokers, and professionals; routine collection of accounts receivable; routine documentation of notice of abandonment; prepare motions to abandon or destroy books and records; routine claims review and objection; monitor litigation; answer routine creditor correspondence and phone calls; review and comment on professional fee applications; and additional routine work necessary for administration of the estate.

In Garcia, the Ninth Circuit Bankruptcy Appellate Panel (the "BAP") upheld the bankruptcy court’s refusal to approve fees for preparation of employment applications, observing that “absent a showing by applicant to the contrary, routine employment applications remain a trustee duty.” Garcia, 335 B.R. at 726. With respect to its holding, the BAP explained “a case trustee may only employ professionals for tasks that require special expertise beyond that expected of an ordinary trustee.” Id. at 727.

In accordance with Garcia and LBR 2016-2(f), the Court does not approve the fees billed for the services identified below. It appears that these fees are for services that are duplicative of those that could and should be performed by the chapter 7 trustee, as a trustee.

Contrary to the Court's ruling on August 16, 2018, the debtor did not timely file a status report supported by evidence in the form of declarations and supporting documents.

The debtor must provide more specific information about the status of his ongoing litigation with the Regents of the University of California. Has a trial or arbitration date been set? Is discovery ongoing? Have the parties participated in mediation?

The debtor filed his chapter 11 petition nearly one year ago. Irrespective of whether or not that litigation has concluded, the Court does not intend to provide another extension of the current deadline, i.e., January 15, 2019, for the debtor to file a chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement. T

If the debtor has not filed a chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement by that deadline, his failure to do so will constitute cause to convert the case to chapter 7 or to dismiss the case, with a 180-day bar.

Ruling from 8/16/18

Having reviewed the Case Status Conference Report [doc. 57] filed by the debtor, the Court will continue this status conference to November 15, 2018 at 1:00 p.m. The debtor must file a status report, to be served on the debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors, all secured creditors, and the United States Trustee, no later than 14 days before the continued status conference. The status report must be supported by evidence in the form of declarations and supporting documents.

#16.00 Confirmation hearing re chapter 11 plan of reorganization

Docket 50

Tentative Ruling:

On September 24, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the use of the debtor's disclosure statement to solicit acceptances and rejections of the debtor's chapter 11 plan [doc. 63]. On October 1, 2018, the debtor and Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. ("Wells Fargo") entered into a stipulation regarding the treatment of Wells Fargo's claim under the debtor's chapter 11 plan (the "Stipulation") [doc. 65]. On October 3, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 68].

The Stipulation increases the debtor's monthly plan payment to Wells Fargo from $2,775.00 to $2,975.52. It also requires the debtor to make a lump sum payment of $12,000.00 to Wells Fargo on November 30, 2018.

In light of the Stipulation, the Court will continue this hearing to November 29, 2018 at 2:00 p.m. In order for the Court to assess whether the debtor's chapter 11 plan complies with 11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(11), no later than November 26, 2018, the debtor must file an updated income and expense projection for six-months following the confirmation of the plan of reorganization, which reflects the debtor's actual income and expenses, as set forth in the debtor's last six monthly operating reports.

The updated income and expense projection must include the increased monthly payments to Wells Fargo, as well as any other plan payments.

#18.00 Motion for turnover of property of the estate

fr. 7/19/18; 9/13/18(stip)

Docket 18

Tentative Ruling:

In his opposition to the debtor's motion to convert the case [doc. 41], the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") represented that the sale of the debtor's residence will enable the Trustee to pay all of the claims against the estate in full. Given that 11 U.S.C. § 542(a) requires turnover of assets "unless such property is of inconsequential value or benefit to the estate," the Court will not require turnover of the debtor's tax refunds or the cash in the debtor's checking account at this time. 11 U.S.C. § 542(a) (emphasis added).

The Court will continue this hearing to 2:00 p.m. on February 21, 2019, at which time the Court will assess if the sale of the debtor's residence will generate sufficient funds to pay all claims against the estate in full.

Appearances on November 15, 2018 are excused.

MONA SOLEIMANI AND DANNY PAVEHZADEH

fr. 10/10/18; 10/17/18

Docket 15

Tentative Ruling:

On October 29, 2018, the Court entered an order assigning this matter to the mediation program [doc. 33]. What is the status of the parties' participation in mediation?

Tentative Ruling From 10/10/18

Apparently, the validity of the quitclaim deed at issue is being challenged, and that dispute is pending before the state court. What is the status of the movants' preparation to try this matter in state court? Would it be possible for this Court to adjudicate that issue in or before December 2018?

If this Court grants relief from the automatic stay for the state court to determine only this issue, i.e., the validity of the quitclaim deed, why can't the chapter 7 trustee represent and litigate the interest of the debtor's bankruptcy estate in the real property (if any) in the state court?

In light of the expense of litigating this issue, are the movants and the chapter 7 trustee willing to participate in the Court's mediation program, in an attempt to resolve this dispute consensually?

#13.00 Defendant Darin Davis' motion for attorney's fees

fr. 9/12/18; 10/17/18

Docket 228

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will award Darin Davis ("Defendant") $91,390.92 in attorneys' fees and $956.87 in costs. The Court will issue a decision incorporating the Court's prior rulings on this matter.

I. BACKGROUND

On October 17, 2018, the Court held a continued hearing on Defendant Darin Davis' Motion for Attorney's Fees (the "Motion") [doc. 228]. After issuing a ruling on the merits, the Court continued the hearing on the Motion for Defendant's counsel, Alan W. Forsley, to file a declaration detailing the fees and costs incurred in connection with defending the 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) portion of this adversary proceeding.

On October 31, 2018, Mr. Forsley filed the Supplemental Declaration of Alan W. Forsley in Support of Defendant Darin Davis' Motion for Attorney's Fees (the "Forsley Declaration") [doc. 251]. On November 14, 2018, Asphalt Professionals, Inc. ("Plaintiff") filed a response to the Forsley Declaration [doc. 252].

II. ANALYSIS

Movants bear the burden of proving that the fees sought are reasonable. Center for Biological Diversity v. Cty. of San Bernardino, 188 Cal.App.4th 603, 615 (Ct. App. 2010); In re Atwood, 293 B.R. 227, 233 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2003). Both California state courts and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals customarily assess the reasonableness of attorneys' fees utilizing the "lodestar" approach where the number of hours reasonably expended is multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate. Ketchum v. Moses, 24 Cal.4th 1122, 1131 (2001); In re Eliapo, 468 F.3d 592, 598 (9th Cir. 2006).

"A district court should exclude from the lodestar amount hours that are not reasonably expended because they are 'excessive, redundant, or otherwise unnecessary.'" Van Gerwen v. Guarantee Mut. Life Co., 214 F.3d 1041, 1045 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 434, 103 S.Ct. 1933, 1939-40, 76 L.Ed.2d 40 (1983)). "After computing the lodestar, the court must assess whether additional considerations require adjustment of the figure, such as the novelty or complexity of the issues, the skill and experience of counsel, the quality of representation and the results obtained." PSM Holding, 2015 WL 11652518 at *4.

Here, the Court already found in a prior ruling that Mr. Forsley's hourly rate of $425 per hour is reasonable. That Mr. Forsley's hourly rate increased during the course of this litigation to correspond with applicable market rates is not a reason to deny Defendant's request for attorneys' fees. As such, the sole issue left with respect to this matter is whether the fees requested by Defendant are reasonable.

Pursuant to the Court's instructions, Mr. Forsley attempted to reduce his request by deducting amounts billed in connection with the denial of discharge portion of this adversary proceeding and related to other actions. Mr. Forsley deducted $71,386 from his total incurred fees of $200,451.37 for a current request of $129,065.37, and deducted $720.27 from his total incurred costs of $2,221.81 for a current request of $1,501.74.

However, by the Court's calculation, the itemized fee and cost statement entitles Defendant to a total of $91,390.92 in fees and $956.87 in costs. First, the Court deducted any redacted items from the total calculation. Next, many of the itemized statements included tasks that were lumped with unrelated matters, such as state court matters (pp. 5-6, 50), matters related to different clients (p. 6, 11/10/10), litigation against the chapter 7 trustee, such as opposing sales in Defendant's main bankruptcy case (pp. 44 [4/17/14], 74-75, 89) or the unrelated Bustamante matters (pp. 17, 28, 31, 34, 55, 100). To the extent Mr. Forsley lumped disallowed tasks with other tasks, without specifying how much time was spent on each individual task, the Court disallowed the entry in its entirety. If Mr. Forsley specified the amount of time spent on each task, i.e., in parentheses, the Court deducted only the disallowed tasks and included the allowed tasks in its calculation of allowed fees.

The Court also deducted time spent on the motion to quash the deposition of Joshua Levy (pp. 13-24), because the Court ordered Mr. Levy to appear for his deposition. As such, the Court will not award fees incurred in connection with Defendant's attempt to prevent Plaintiff's deposition of Mr. Levy. The Court also did not award any fees incurred in connection with Mr. Forsley's motion to withdraw from representing Defendant (pp. 89, 91-92), or related to a motion to dismiss that Defendant did not file (pp. 42, 48-49). Finally, the Court did not include any fees incurred in connection with any appellate matters (pp. 28, 74-75).

As for costs, many of the entries did not specify for which matter Defendant incurred costs. Where the Court reduced fees in connection with an invoice, and the costs may have been related to matters unrelated to the 11 U.S.C. § 523 litigation, the Court did not award costs. In light of the above, the Court will allow Defendant to recover $91,390.92 in fees and $956.87 in costs.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will award Defendant $91,390.92 in attorneys' fees and $956.87 in costs. The Court will prepare an order and issue a decision incorporating its prior rulings and the analysis above.

Docket 4

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 9, 2018, Asif Sheikh and Sajida Sheikh ("Defendants") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On August 14, 2018, Molouk Karimzad ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint against Defendants (the "Complaint"), requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to him pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and objecting to Defendants' discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4). In relevant part, the Complaint includes the following allegations:

Plaintiff was a dependent adult for purposes of the California Elder Abuse Law at the time of the relevant events. Defendants approached Plaintiff and asked her to loan them money in exchange for a proposed interest rate. Defendants prepared the loan documents and assured Plaintiff she would be paid. When Defendants sought the loan from Plaintiff, they brought with them one of Plaintiff's trusted friends and convinced Plaintiff that Defendant also had obtained a loan that Defendants repaid from Plaintiff's friend.

On November 9, 2012, Plaintiff and Defendants entered into a written agreement whereby Plaintiff loaned $50,000 to Defendants at an interest rate of 12% per annum, with interest only payments of $500 per month from December 2012 through May 9, 2013. The agreement called for payment of the principal debt in full on or before June 9,

On December 18, 2012, Plaintiff and Defendants entered into another written agreement whereby Plaintiff loaned another $50,000 to Defendants at an interest rate of 12% per annum, with interest only payments of $500 per month from December 2012 through December 2013. This agreement called for payment of the principal debt in full on or before December 2013.

On February 13, 2013, Plaintiff and Defendants entered into a third agreement whereby Plaintiff loaned Defendants $25,000 at an interest rate of 24% per annum, with interest only payments of $500 per month from July 2013 through November 2013. The agreement called for payment of the principal debt in full on or before December 10, 2013.

Defendants provided "final repayment checks" of $50,000 for the first two agreements. However, while Defendants initially paid interest payments, they thereafter did not abide by the agreements. In October 2014, Plaintiff notified Defendants of their default and demanded payment. Defendants instructed Plaintiff not to cash their prepayment checks and promised they would resume paying interest.

Defendants also represented to Plaintiff that they were going to sell their business, a Fatburger franchise (the "Fatburger"). Defendants told Plaintiff that, when the Fatburger sold, Defendants would pay Plaintiff in full. Based on Defendants' representations, Plaintiff agreed to modifying the agreements. From October 2014 through February 2017, Defendants continued to indicate that once the Fatburger sold they would pay off the loans in full.

Defendants concealed from Plaintiff that they had many other loans they were obligated to repay from the sale of the Fatburger. In February 2017, Plaintiff learned that Defendants sold the Fatburger, but intentionally did not notify Plaintiff of the sale. Plaintiff was never paid from the proceeds of the sale.

Defendants engaged in a pattern of conduct seeking elderly people for money to finance their business projects and extravagant lifestyles. On June 27, 2017, Plaintiff filed a lawsuit against Defendants in state court, asserting causes of action for breach of contract, intentional misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation and elder abuse.

In addition, Defendants failed to schedule their interest in Black Diamond Food Group 1, LLC and Black Diamond Food Group 2, LLC. The omission was a deliberate omission of a material matter constituting a false oath, and Defendants failed to disclose these assets with the intent to mislead creditors and the trustee as to Defendants' true financial condition, or with reckless disregard for the truth.

Complaint, pp. 2-7.

On September 6, 2018, Defendants filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "Motion") [doc. 4]. In the Motion, Defendants assert that Plaintiff did not sufficiently plead causation. Defendants also request that the Court strike paragraphs 7, 23-27 and 46-51 as immaterial or scandalous. In addition, Defendants attached a declaration by Mr. Sheikh (the "Sheikh Declaration") and several exhibits. On November 2, 2018, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 9], asserting that Plaintiff has sufficiently alleged a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A). Plaintiff also requests that the Court strike the Sheikh Declaration, on the basis that the Sheikh Declaration is extrinsic evidence that is improper for consideration in a motion under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6). On November 13, 2018, Defendants filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 13], requesting that the Court consider the Sheikh Declaration and treat the Motion as a motion for summary judgment.

A. Rule 12(b)(6)

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986). "A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged..." *Neubronner v. Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the plaintiff must demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

For purposes of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), "[t]he alleged misrepresentation must have occurred at the inception of the debt as an inducement for the debt." In re Lee, 536

B.R. 848, 855 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2015) (citing In re Boyajian, 367 B.R. 138, 147 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007), aff'd, 564 F.3d 1088 (9th Cir. 2009)). As explained by the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP"):

For purposes of § 523(a)(2), however, the timing of the fraud and the elements to prove fraud focus on the time when the lender ... made the extension of credit to the Debtor. In other words, the assignee of the Agreement ... steps into the shoes of its assignor ..., and the inquiry of whether a creditor justifiably relied on Debtor's alleged misrepresentations is focused on the moment in time when that creditor extended the funds to Debtor. See McClellan v. Cantrell, 217 F.3d 890, 896 (7th Cir. 2000) (Ripple, Circuit Judge, concurring) (noting Congress' use of "obtained by" in § 523(a)(2) "clearly indicates that fraudulent conduct occurred at the inception of the debt, i.e. the debtor committed a fraudulent act to induce the creditor to part with his money or property.").

Here, Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) is based on the allegation that Defendants convinced Plaintiff not to collect on the defaulted debt, such as by cashing prepayment checks, by representing to Plaintiff that they would repay the loans from the sale of the Fatburger. Plaintiff further alleges that Defendants concealed that they were obligated to pay other entities from the sale prior to paying Plaintiff and did not notify Plaintiff of the sale. The alleged representations occurred after Plaintiff had made the loans to Defendants. As a result, the alleged representations could not have been used to induce Plaintiff to extend credit.

However, Plaintiff may be able to allege a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) based on forbearance if Plaintiff is able to amend the Complaint to sufficiently allege damages proximately caused by the alleged representations that induced Plaintiff to forbear. "A creditor's decision to forbear is not actionable under § 523(a)(2)(A) unless the debtor induced the forbearance by making a false representation," In re Paddock, 533 B.R. 798, 806 (Bankr. D. Mont. 2015) (citing In re Daniell, 2013 WL 5933657, at *9-10 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Nov. 6, 2013)), or by false pretenses or actual fraud, including fraudulent concealment. In re Escoto, 2015 WL 2343461, at *6-8 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. May 15, 2015); see also Husky Int'l Elecs, Inc. v. Ritz, 136 S.Ct. 1581, 194 L.Ed.2d 655 (2016).

"[I]n order to prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim based on the creditor's forbearance, the creditor must prove, among other things, that at the time of the forbearance, 'it had valuable collection remedies.'" Id. (quoting In re Kim, 163 B.R. 157, 161 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994), aff'd and adopted, 62 F.3d 1511 (9th Cir. 1995)); see also In re Siriani, 967 F.2d 302, 305 (9th Cir. 1992) (same holding under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(B)).

"The creditor also must prove that 'those remedies lost value' during the time of forbearance. In short, the creditor proves proximate causation and damages only to the extent it shows that its remedies lost value during the forbearance period." Id. (quoting Kim, 163 B.R. at 161).

For example, in Escoto, the debtor obtained a loan by the creditor to fund litigation against a third party. Escoto, 2015 WL 2343461 at *1. The note was due on demand, on settlement of the litigation against the third party or within three years of its execution, whichever came earlier. Id. The debtor settled with the third party, but, despite numerous interactions with the creditor, did not disclose the settlement to the creditor. Id. Instead, the debtor asked for an extension of time to repay the loan, and the creditor agreed to an extension of time. Id., at *2.

Subsequently, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition and the creditor learned about the settlements. Id. The creditor filed a complaint requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to it under § 523(a)(2)(A). Id. After trial, the bankruptcy court held that the creditor failed to establish that the debtor possessed valuable collection remedies at the time of the extension agreement, and that those remedies lost value during the renewal period. Id., at *3. On appeal, the BAP affirmed the bankruptcy court's holding, noting that:

Identifying funds to which [the debtor] may have had access is insufficient. Siriani requires a creditor to demonstrate the existence of valuable collection remedies at a specific point in time. By simply pointing to evidence of certain funds, [the creditor] did not necessarily place these funds in [the debtor's] possession at the time the extension agreement was entered into or during the extension period.

A second defect with [the creditor's] argument is that placing assets or funds in [the debtor's] possession at the relevant time does not end the proximate cause analysis. In addition to identifying the existence of remedies, Siriani requires a creditor to show a reduction in the value of such remedies during a specific period of time. Assuming [the debtor] possessed funds or available assets at the requisite point in time, [the creditor] did not present any evidence that these funds or assets were dissipated during the extension period.

Id., at *5-6. The BAP also held, however, that the bankruptcy court erred by limiting its analysis to the time after the creditor agreed to an extension of time for repayment. Id., at *6-7. The BAP, relying on a First Circuit Court of Appeals decision, stated:

[The creditor's] final argument calls into question the timing of [the debtor's] fraudulent conduct as determined by the bankruptcy court. According to [the creditor], [the debtor's] failure to disclose the settlements fraudulently induced [the creditor] to effectively forbear from immediately demanding repayment of the loan and that this forbearance amounted to an extension of credit. Because the forbearance predates the extension agreement, [the creditor] submits that the bankruptcy court should have applied the proximate cause analysis beginning on the date of settlement, rather than focusing solely on the date [the creditor] voluntarily agreed to extend the loan. [The creditor] posits that such an analysis would have satisfied the Siriani requirements since [the debtor's] fraudulent omissions and depletion of the settlement proceeds allegedly denied [the creditor] the opportunity to collect from those monies.

This Panel agrees with the First Circuit's reasoning and considers it appropriate to apply the First Circuit's holding to the facts of this case. [The debtor's] settlement of the construction defect litigation triggered [the creditor's] right to immediate repayment of [the debtor's] debt. [The debtor's] concealment deprived [the creditor] of the ability to exercise that right, and [the debtor] thereby effectively procured a forbearance. The fact that [the debtor] obtained the forbearance without [the creditor's] knowledge serves to further illustrate the surreptitious nature of the fraud. [The debtor] should not be permitted to benefit from an overly narrow definition of the term "extension" that is disconnected from the statute that informs its meaning. As the First Circuit stated in Field v. Mans, "[i]t is no great leap to say that fraudulent concealment and frustration of [the creditor's] acceleration right was tantamount to an 'extension' ... of the existing credit." Id. Thus, the Panel concludes that [the debtor's] concealment of the settlement(s) resulted in an extension of credit for purposes of § 523(a)(2).

Similarly, in In re Licursi, 573 B.R. 786 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2017), Alliance Bank ("Alliance") and Spectrum Glass & Aluminum ("Spectrum Aluminum") entered into a business loan agreement, whereby Alliance loaned Spectrum Aluminum, an entity owned by one of the debtors, $393,892. Licursi, 573 B.R. at 790. On the same day, the debtors executed a commercial guaranty of the loan agreement. Id. Alliance also obtained a security interest in Spectrum Aluminum's collateral. Id., at 790-91.

Subsequently, California Bank & Trust ("CB&T") acquired Alliance's assets. Id., at 791. Spectrum Aluminum then defaulted under the terms of the loan agreement. Id. As a result, CB&T filed a complaint against Spectrum Aluminum and the debtors. Id. The debtors then dissolved Spectrum Aluminum, created a new entity called Spectrum Glass & Mirror ("Spectrum Mirror") and transferred all of Spectrum Aluminum's assets to Spectrum Mirror. Id., at 791-92. As part of the transfer, Spectrum Mirror paid approximately $25,715 for the assets by paying some of Spectrum Aluminum's creditors. Id., at 792. The debtors concealed this information from CB&T. Id., at 792-93. The debtors also continued to send communications to CB&T on behalf of Spectrum Aluminum, giving the impression that Spectrum Aluminum was still doing business. Id., at 793. Upon learning about the existence of Spectrum Mirror, CB&T filed a complaint against Spectrum Mirror and demanded that Spectrum Mirror deliver its collateral to CB&T to satisfy the debt owed to CB&T by the debtors and Spectrum Aluminum. Id., at 795.

After the debtors filed a chapter 7 petition, CB&T filed a complaint requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed it pursuant to, among other subsections, § 523(a)(2)(A). Id. According to CB&T, the debtors' misrepresentations regarding Spectrum Aluminum and the transfer of its assets to Spectrum Mirror caused CB&T to sustain significant losses, including costs of litigation to pursue its claims against Spectrum Aluminum and Spectrum Mirror. Id. In assessing CB&T's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A), the bankruptcy court held:

Section 523(a)(2)(A) renders nondischargeable a debt for money "to the extent obtained by" misrepresentation, fraudulent omission, or deceptive conduct. The operative phrase here is "to the extent obtained by." This certainly applies when the prescribed conduct occurred before the debtor receives the money. Hopper v. Lewis (In re Lewis), 551 B.R. 41, 48 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2016). But it also applies if the action of the creditor is to forebear in its collection of the debt. This, too, can be seen as an extension of credit. Field v. Mans, 157 F.3d 35 (1st Cir. 1998).

The Court must look to the text of Section 523(a)(2)(A) as the starting point for analysis and for the basis of this decision. Field v. Mans, 157 F.3d 35, 43 (1st Cir. 1998); citing Shawmut Bank, N.A. v. Goodrich (In re Goodrich), 999 F.2d 22, 24 (1st Cir. 1993). In Mans, the First Circuit looked at the meaning of the word "extension" in Section 523(a)(2)(A). The First Circuit found that the word "extension" has at least two meanings. The meaning that the First Circuit found acceptable and relevant to the Mans case is a meaning this Court finds relevant to the instant case. The First Circuit noted that an extension may be an "increase in length of time" or "an agreement on or concession of additional time (as for meeting an overdue debt or fulfilling a legal formality)." Id.

Here the Court finds that Defendants failed to (1) inform CB & T of the Asset Purchase Agreement between Spectrum Aluminum and Spectrum Mirror in February 2010; (2) inform CB & T of the transfer of the Spectrum Aluminum assets to Spectrum Mirror in April 2010; and (3) inform CB & T that Spectrum Aluminum was no longer operating in July 2010. This caused CB & T to delay exercising its rights under the Loan Agreement. This constitutes an extension of credit since—but for Defendants' failure to fully disclose and their misrepresentations—CB & T could have withdrawn the credit previously extended, terminated the agreement and may also have sought recourse from Spectrum Mirror sooner rather than waiting until October 2013. Beyond that, CB & T could have demanded that the $25,000+ paid by Spectrum Mirror be paid to CB & T rather than to the unsecured creditors of Spectrum Aluminum, thus reducing the outstanding balance on its loan.

Id., at 799-800.

Here, Plaintiff has alleged that Defendants made misrepresentations when they informed Plaintiff that they would repay Plaintiff through the Fatburger sale if Plaintiff agreed not to pursue collection because of Defendants' default, such as by cashing the alleged prepayment checks. Plaintiff also alleged that she relied on Defendants' representations regarding the sale and did not take further action to collect from Defendants. However, Plaintiff has not alleged any damages proximately caused by the forbearance. To sufficiently allege a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) on a theory of forbearance, Plaintiff must allege that she had valuable collection remedies at the time of forbearance, and that those remedies lost value during the time of forbearance. The Complaint does not include any such allegations. Consequently, the Court will dismiss Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) with leave to amend.

C. Rule 12(f)

Pursuant to Rule 12(f), "[t]he court may strike from a pleading an insufficient defense or any redundant, immaterial, impertinent, or scandalous matter." Here, Defendants request the Court strike paragraphs 7, 23-27 and 46-51 (paragraphs 23-27 and 46-51 are identical). As to paragraph 7, Defendants assert that the allegation is immaterial to the Complaint. However, Plaintiff's age may be relevant to her reliance on Defendants for purposes of § 523(a)(2)(A). As to paragraphs 23-27 and 46-51, Defendants argue that the paragraphs are immaterial and defamatory. However, these allegations pertain to Defendants' motive and pattern, and may be relevant to Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A).

D. Rule 12(d)

Defendants request that the Court treat the Motion as a motion for summary judgment pursuant to Rule 12(d). Pursuant to Rule 12(d)—

If, on a motion under Rule 12(b)(6) or 12(c), matters outside the pleadings are presented to and not excluded by the court, the motion must be treated as one for summary judgment under Rule 56. All parties must be given a reasonable opportunity to present all the material that is pertinent to the motion.

Courts have discretion not to convert Rule 12(b)(6) motions to motions for summary judgment. Hamilton Materials, Inc. v. Dow Chem. Corp., 494 F.3d 1203, 1207 (9th Cir. 2007); see also Yakima Valley Mem'l Hosp. v. Washington State Dep't of Health, 654 F.3d 919, 925 n.6 (9th Cir. 2011). If a court decides to consider matters outside the pleadings, the court "must notify the parties before taking such action, in order to provide the parties a fair opportunity to present material relevant to summary judgment." In re Mortg. Elec. Registration Sys., Inc., 754 F.3d 772, 781 (9th Cir. 2014).

The Court will not convert the Motion to a motion for summary judgment. First, the extrinsic evidence offered by Defendants does not warrant judgment in favor of either party at this time. There remain genuine issues of material fact as to each of the elements under § 523(a)(2)(A). Next, even if the Court decided to treat the Motion as a motion for summary judgment, the Court would have to provide Plaintiff an opportunity to rebut Defendants' evidence and provide her own evidence. Rather than require the parties to expend time and resources litigating a motion for summary judgment at this time, the Court will allow Plaintiff an opportunity to amend the Complaint so the Court may first assess if Plaintiff is able to state a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A). Because the Court will not consider the extrinsic evidence at this time, the Court will strike the Sheikh Declaration.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) with leave to amend. If Plaintiff elects to amend the Complaint, the Court will deny Defendants' request to strike the allegations. If Plaintiff decides not to amend the Complaint, the Court will strike the allegations specified by Defendants. The Court denies Defendants' request to convert the Motion to a motion for summary judgment.

Defendants must submit an order within seven (7) days. If Plaintiff elects to amend the Complaint, Plaintiff must file an amended complaint within 14 days of entry of an order on the Motion. If Plaintiff does not amend the Complaint, Defendants must file and serve a response to the Complaint within 21 days of entry of the order on the Motion.

On June 9, 2018, Atif Sheikh and Naureen Sheikh ("Defendants") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On August 14, 2018, Molouk Karimzad ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint against Defendants (the "Complaint"), requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to him pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and objecting to Defendants' discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4). In relevant part, the Complaint includes the following allegations:

Plaintiff was a dependent adult for purposes of the California Elder Abuse Law at the time of the relevant events. Defendants approached Plaintiff and asked her to loan them money in exchange for a proposed interest rate. Defendants prepared the loan documents and assured Plaintiff she would be paid. When Defendants sought the loan from Plaintiff, they brought with them one of Plaintiff's trusted friends and convinced Plaintiff that Defendant also had obtained a loan that Defendants repaid from Plaintiff's friend.

On November 9, 2012, Plaintiff and Defendants entered into a written agreement whereby Plaintiff loaned $50,000 to Defendants at an interest rate of 12% per annum, with interest only payments of $500 per month from December 2012 through May 9, 2013. The agreement called for payment of the principal debt in full on or before June 9, 2013.

On December 18, 2012, Plaintiff and Defendants entered into another written agreement whereby Plaintiff loaned another $50,000 to Defendants at an interest rate of 12% per annum, with interest only payments of $500 per month from December 2012 through December 2013. This agreement called for payment of the principal debt in full on or before December 2013.

On February 13, 2013, Plaintiff and Defendants entered into a third agreement whereby Plaintiff loaned Defendants $25,000 at an interest rate of 24% per annum, with interest only payments of $500 per month from July 2013 through November 2013. The agreement called for payment of the principal debt in full on or before December 10, 2013.

Defendants provided "final repayment checks" of $50,000 for the first two agreements. However, while Defendants initially paid interest payments, they thereafter did not abide by the agreements. In October 2014, Plaintiff notified Defendants of their default and demanded payment. Defendants instructed Plaintiff not to cash their prepayment checks and promised they would resume paying interest.

Defendants also represented to Plaintiff that they were going to sell their business, a Fatburger franchise (the "Fatburger"). Defendants told Plaintiff that, when the Fatburger sold, Defendants would pay Plaintiff in full. Based on Defendants' representations, Plaintiff agreed to modifying the agreements. From October 2014 through February 2017, Defendants continued to indicate that once the Fatburger sold they would pay off the loans in full.

Defendants concealed from Plaintiff that they had many other loans they were obligated to repay from the sale of the Fatburger. In February 2017, Plaintiff learned that Defendants sold the Fatburger, but intentionally did not notify Plaintiff of the sale. Plaintiff was never paid from the proceeds of the sale.

Defendants engaged in a pattern of conduct seeking elderly people for money to finance their business projects and extravagant lifestyles. On June 27, 2017, Plaintiff filed a lawsuit against Defendants in state court, asserting causes of action for breach of contract, intentional misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation and elder abuse.

In addition, Defendants failed to schedule their interest in Black Diamond Food Group 1, LLC and Black Diamond Food Group 2, LLC. The omission was a deliberate omission of a material matter constituting a false oath, and Defendants failed to disclose these assets with the intent to mislead creditors and the trustee as to Defendants' true financial condition, or with reckless disregard for the truth.

Complaint, pp. 2-7.

On September 6, 2018, Defendants filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "Motion") [doc. 4]. In the Motion, Defendants assert that Plaintiff did not sufficiently plead causation. Defendants also request that the Court strike paragraphs 7, 23-27 and 46-51 as immaterial or scandalous. In addition, Defendants attached a declaration by Mr. Sheikh (the "Sheikh Declaration") and several exhibits. On November 2, 2018, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 9], asserting that Plaintiff has sufficiently alleged a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A). Plaintiff also requests that the Court strike the Sheikh Declaration, on the basis that the Sheikh Declaration is extrinsic evidence that is improper for consideration in a motion under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6). On November 13, 2018, Defendants filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 13], requesting that the Court consider the Sheikh Declaration and treat the Motion as a motion for summary judgment.

A. Rule 12(b)(6)

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party.

Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

B. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the plaintiff must demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

For purposes of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), "[t]he alleged misrepresentation must have occurred at the inception of the debt as an inducement for the debt." In re Lee, 536 B.R. 848, 855 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2015) (citing In re Boyajian, 367 B.R. 138, 147

(B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007), aff'd, 564 F.3d 1088 (9th Cir. 2009)). As explained by the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP"):

For purposes of § 523(a)(2), however, the timing of the fraud and the elements to prove fraud focus on the time when the lender ... made the extension of credit to the Debtor. In other words, the assignee of the Agreement ... steps into the shoes of its assignor ..., and the inquiry of whether a creditor justifiably relied on Debtor's alleged misrepresentations is focused on the moment in time when that creditor extended the funds to Debtor. See McClellan v. Cantrell, 217 F.3d 890, 896 (7th Cir. 2000) (Ripple, Circuit Judge, concurring) (noting Congress' use of "obtained by" in § 523(a)(2) "clearly indicates that fraudulent conduct occurred at the inception of the debt, i.e. the debtor committed a fraudulent act to induce the creditor to part with his money or property.").

Here, Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) is based on the allegation that Defendants convinced Plaintiff not to collect on the defaulted debt, such as by cashing prepayment checks, by representing to Plaintiff that they would repay the loans from the sale of the Fatburger. Plaintiff further alleges that Defendants concealed that they were obligated to pay other entities from the sale prior to paying Plaintiff and did not notify Plaintiff of the sale. The alleged representations occurred after Plaintiff had made the loans to Defendants. As a result, the alleged representations could not have been used to induce Plaintiff to extend credit.

However, Plaintiff may be able to allege a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) based on forbearance if Plaintiff is able to amend the Complaint to sufficiently allege damages proximately caused by the alleged representations that induced Plaintiff to forbear. "A creditor's decision to forbear is not actionable under § 523(a)(2)(A) unless the debtor induced the forbearance by making a false representation," In re Paddock, 533 B.R. 798, 806 (Bankr. D. "[I]n order to prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim based on the creditor's forbearance, the creditor must prove, among other things, that at the time of the forbearance, 'it had valuable collection remedies.'" Id. (quoting In re Kim, 163 B.R. 157, 161 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994), aff'd and adopted, 62 F.3d 1511 (9th Cir. 1995)); see also In re Siriani, 967 F.2d 302, 305 (9th Cir. 1992) (same holding under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(B)). "The creditor also must prove that 'those remedies lost value' during the time of forbearance. In short, the creditor proves proximate causation and damages only to the extent it shows that its remedies lost value during the forbearance period." Id. (quoting Kim, 163 B.R. at 161).

For example, in Escoto, the debtor obtained a loan by the creditor to fund litigation against a third party. Escoto, 2015 WL 2343461 at *1. The note was due on demand, on settlement of the litigation against the third party or within three years of its execution, whichever came earlier. Id. The debtor settled with the third party, but, despite numerous interactions with the creditor, did not disclose the settlement to the creditor. Id. Instead, the debtor asked for an extension of time to repay the loan, and the creditor agreed to an extension of time. Id., at *2.

Subsequently, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition and the creditor learned about the settlements. Id. The creditor filed a complaint requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to it under § 523(a)(2)(A). Id. After trial, the bankruptcy court held that the creditor failed to establish that the debtor possessed valuable collection remedies at the time of the extension agreement, and that those remedies lost value during the renewal period. Id., at *3. On appeal, the BAP affirmed the bankruptcy court's holding, noting that:

Identifying funds to which [the debtor] may have had access is insufficient. Siriani requires a creditor to demonstrate the existence of valuable collection remedies at a specific point in time. By simply pointing to evidence of certain funds, [the creditor] did not necessarily place these funds in [the debtor's] possession at the time the extension agreement was entered into or during the extension period.

A second defect with [the creditor's] argument is that placing assets or funds in [the debtor's] possession at the relevant time does not end the proximate cause analysis. In addition to identifying the existence of remedies, Siriani requires a creditor to show a reduction in the value of such remedies during a specific period of time. Assuming [the debtor] possessed funds or available assets at the requisite point in time, [the creditor] did not present any evidence that these funds or assets were dissipated during the extension period.

Id., at *5-6. The BAP also held, however, that the bankruptcy court erred by limiting its analysis to the time after the creditor agreed to an extension of time for repayment. Id., at *6-7. The BAP, relying on a First Circuit Court of Appeals decision, stated:

[The creditor's] final argument calls into question the timing of [the debtor's] fraudulent conduct as determined by the bankruptcy court. According to [the creditor], [the debtor's] failure to disclose the settlements fraudulently induced [the creditor] to effectively forbear from immediately demanding repayment of the loan and that this forbearance amounted to an extension of credit. Because the forbearance predates the extension agreement, [the creditor] submits that the bankruptcy court should have applied the proximate cause analysis beginning on the date of settlement, rather than focusing solely on the date [the creditor] voluntarily agreed to extend the loan. [The creditor] posits that such an analysis would have satisfied the Siriani requirements since [the debtor's] fraudulent omissions and depletion of the settlement proceeds allegedly denied [the creditor] the opportunity to collect from those monies.

This Panel agrees with the First Circuit's reasoning and considers it appropriate to apply the First Circuit's holding to the facts of this case. [The debtor's] settlement of the construction defect litigation triggered [the creditor's] right to immediate repayment of [the debtor's] debt. [The debtor's] concealment deprived [the creditor] of the ability to exercise that right, and [the debtor] thereby effectively procured a forbearance. The fact that [the debtor] obtained the forbearance without [the creditor's] knowledge serves to further illustrate the surreptitious nature of the fraud. [The debtor] should not be permitted to benefit from an overly narrow definition of the term "extension" that is disconnected from the statute that informs its meaning. As the First Circuit stated in Field v. Mans, "[i]t is no great leap to say that fraudulent concealment and frustration of [the creditor's] acceleration right was tantamount to an 'extension' ... of the existing credit." Id. Thus, the Panel concludes that [the debtor's] concealment of the settlement(s) resulted in an extension of credit for purposes of § 523(a)(2).

Similarly, in In re Licursi, 573 B.R. 786 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2017), Alliance Bank ("Alliance") and Spectrum Glass & Aluminum ("Spectrum Aluminum") entered into a business loan agreement, whereby Alliance loaned Spectrum Aluminum, an entity owned by one of the debtors, $393,892. Licursi, 573 B.R. at 790. On the same day, the debtors executed a commercial guaranty of the loan agreement. Id. Alliance also obtained a security interest in Spectrum Aluminum's collateral. Id., at 790-91.

Subsequently, California Bank & Trust ("CB&T") acquired Alliance's assets. Id., at 791. Spectrum Aluminum then defaulted under the terms of the loan agreement. Id. As a result, CB&T filed a complaint against Spectrum Aluminum and the debtors. Id. The debtors then dissolved Spectrum Aluminum, created a new entity called Spectrum Glass & Mirror ("Spectrum Mirror") and transferred all of Spectrum Aluminum's assets to Spectrum Mirror. Id., at 791-92. As part of the transfer, Spectrum Mirror paid approximately $25,715 for the assets by paying some of Spectrum Aluminum's creditors. Id., at 792. The debtors concealed this information from CB&T. Id., at 792-93. The debtors also continued to send communications to CB&T on behalf of Spectrum Aluminum, giving the impression that Spectrum Aluminum was still doing business. Id., at 793. Upon learning about the existence of Spectrum Mirror, CB&T filed a complaint against Spectrum Mirror and demanded that Spectrum Mirror deliver its collateral to CB&T to satisfy the debt owed to CB&T by the debtors and Spectrum Aluminum. Id., at 795.

After the debtors filed a chapter 7 petition, CB&T filed a complaint requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed it pursuant to, among other subsections, § 523(a)(2)(A). Id. According to CB&T, the debtors' misrepresentations regarding Spectrum Aluminum and the transfer of its assets to Spectrum Mirror caused CB&T to sustain significant losses, including costs of litigation to pursue its claims against Spectrum Aluminum and Spectrum Mirror. Id. In assessing CB&T's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A), the bankruptcy court held:

Section 523(a)(2)(A) renders nondischargeable a debt for money "to the extent obtained by" misrepresentation, fraudulent omission, or deceptive conduct. The operative phrase here is "to the extent obtained by." This certainly applies when the prescribed conduct occurred before the debtor receives the money. Hopper v. Lewis (In re Lewis), 551 B.R. 41, 48 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2016). But it also applies if the action of the creditor is to forebear in its collection of the debt. This, too, can be seen as an extension of credit. Field v. Mans, 157 F.3d 35 (1st Cir. 1998).

The Court must look to the text of Section 523(a)(2)(A) as the starting point for analysis and for the basis of this decision. Field v. Mans, 157 F.3d 35, 43 (1st Cir. 1998); citing Shawmut Bank, N.A. v. Goodrich (In re Goodrich), 999 F.2d 22, 24 (1st Cir. 1993). In Mans, the First Circuit looked at the meaning of the word "extension" in Section 523(a)(2)(A). The First Circuit found that the word "extension" has at least two meanings. The meaning that the First Circuit found acceptable and relevant to the Mans case is a meaning this Court finds relevant to the instant case. The First Circuit noted that an extension may be an "increase in length of time" or "an agreement on or concession of additional time (as for meeting an overdue debt or fulfilling a legal formality)." Id.

Here the Court finds that Defendants failed to (1) inform CB & T of the Asset Purchase Agreement between Spectrum Aluminum and Spectrum Mirror in February 2010; (2) inform CB & T of the transfer of the Spectrum Aluminum assets to Spectrum Mirror in April 2010; and (3) inform CB & T that Spectrum Aluminum was no longer operating in July 2010. This caused CB & T to delay exercising its rights under the Loan Agreement. This constitutes an extension of credit since—but for Defendants' failure to fully disclose and their misrepresentations—CB & T could have withdrawn the credit previously extended, terminated the agreement and may also have sought recourse from Spectrum Mirror sooner rather than waiting until October 2013. Beyond that, CB & T could have demanded that the $25,000+ paid by Spectrum Mirror be paid to CB & T rather than to the unsecured creditors of Spectrum Aluminum, thus reducing the outstanding balance on its loan.

Id., at 799-800.

Here, Plaintiff has alleged that Defendants made misrepresentations when they informed Plaintiff that they would repay Plaintiff through the Fatburger sale if Plaintiff agreed not to pursue collection because of Defendants' default, such as by cashing the alleged prepayment checks. Plaintiff also alleged that she relied on Defendants' representations regarding the sale and did not take further action to collect from Defendants. However, Plaintiff has not alleged any damages proximately caused by the forbearance. To sufficiently allege a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) on a theory of forbearance, Plaintiff must allege that she had valuable collection remedies at the time of forbearance, and that those remedies lost value during the time of forbearance. The Complaint does not include any such allegations. Consequently, the Court will dismiss Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) with leave to amend.

C. Rule 12(f)

Pursuant to Rule 12(f), "[t]he court may strike from a pleading an insufficient defense or any redundant, immaterial, impertinent, or scandalous matter." Here, Defendants request the Court strike paragraphs 7, 23-27 and 46-51 (paragraphs 23-27 and 46-51 are identical). As to paragraph 7, Defendants assert that the allegation is immaterial to the Complaint. However, Plaintiff's age may be relevant to her reliance on Defendants for purposes of § 523(a)(2)(A). As to paragraphs 23-27 and 46-51, Defendants argue that the paragraphs are immaterial and defamatory. However, these allegations pertain to Defendants' motive and pattern, and may be relevant to

If Plaintiff elects to amend the Complaint, the Court will not strike these allegations from a future amended complaint. If Plaintiff elects to proceed only as to Plaintiff's claim under § 727(a)(4), the Court will strike the allegations as immaterial to Plaintiff's denial of discharge claim.

D. Rule 12(d)

Defendants request that the Court treat the Motion as a motion for summary judgment pursuant to Rule 12(d). Pursuant to Rule 12(d)—

If, on a motion under Rule 12(b)(6) or 12(c), matters outside the pleadings are presented to and not excluded by the court, the motion must be treated as one for summary judgment under Rule 56. All parties must be given a reasonable opportunity to present all the material that is pertinent to the motion.

Courts have discretion not to convert Rule 12(b)(6) motions to motions for summary judgment. Hamilton Materials, Inc. v. Dow Chem. Corp., 494 F.3d 1203, 1207 (9th Cir. 2007); see also Yakima Valley Mem'l Hosp. v. Washington State Dep't of Health, 654 F.3d 919, 925 n.6 (9th Cir. 2011). If a court decides to consider matters outside the pleadings, the court "must notify the parties before taking such action, in order to provide the parties a fair opportunity to present material relevant to summary judgment." In re Mortg. Elec. Registration Sys., Inc., 754 F.3d 772, 781 (9th Cir. 2014).

The Court will not convert the Motion to a motion for summary judgment. First, the extrinsic evidence offered by Defendants does not warrant judgment in favor of either party at this time. There remain genuine issues of material fact as to each of the elements under § 523(a)(2)(A). Next, even if the Court decided to treat the Motion as a motion for summary judgment, the Court would have to provide Plaintiff an opportunity to rebut Defendants' evidence and provide her own evidence. Rather than require the parties to expend time and resources litigating a motion for summary judgment at this time, the Court will allow Plaintiff an opportunity to amend the Complaint so the Court may first assess if Plaintiff is able to state a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A). Because the Court will not consider the extrinsic evidence at this time, the Court will strike the Sheikh Declaration.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) with leave to amend. If Plaintiff elects to amend the Complaint, the Court will deny Defendants' request to strike the allegations. If Plaintiff decides not to amend the Complaint, the Court will strike the allegations specified by Defendants. The Court denies Defendants' request to convert the Motion to a motion for summary judgment.

Defendants must submit an order within seven (7) days. If Plaintiff elects to amend the Complaint, Plaintiff must file an amended complaint within 14 days of entry of an order on the Motion. If Plaintiff does not amend the Complaint, Defendants must file a response to the Complaint within 21 days of entry of the order on the Motion.

On October 29, 2018, the Court entered an order assigning this matter to the mediation program [doc. 33]. What is the status of the parties' participation in mediation?

Tentative Ruling From 10/10/18

Apparently, the validity of the quitclaim deed at issue is being challenged, and that dispute is pending before the state court. What is the status of the movants' preparation to try this matter in state court? Would it be possible for this Court to adjudicate that issue in or before December 2018?

If this Court grants relief from the automatic stay for the state court to determine only this issue, i.e., the validity of the quitclaim deed, why can't the chapter 7 trustee represent and litigate the interest of the debtor's bankruptcy estate in the real property (if any) in the state court?

In light of the expense of litigating this issue, are the movants and the chapter 7 trustee willing to participate in the Court's mediation program, in an attempt to resolve this dispute consensually?

#1.00 Motion for award of attorneys' fees

fr. 11/14/18

Docket 300

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will deny the motion.

I. BACKGROUND

Gerson Fox is a real estate investor who funded investments proposed by Michael Kamen, his longtime business associate. [FN1]. These investments took the form of several single entity limited liability companies or limited partnerships (collectively, the "SPEs"). At least some of the SPEs had ownership interest in commercial real properties. Mr. Fox would fund the SPEs by providing funds from his personal accounts. Mr. Kamen's property management company Mika Realty Group, LLC ("Mika"), oversaw the real properties owned by the SPEs.

One of the SPEs was Broadway/Workman, LLC ("Broadway"), which owned a CVS drugstore-anchored retail property. On November 30, 2006, Mika and Broadway entered into a property management agreement (the "Agreement") [doc. 302, Exh. A]. The Agreement was signed only by Mr. Kamen on behalf of both parties. Id. In relevant part, the Agreement provides:

9. Attorneys' Fees. Should either party employ attorneys to enforce any of the provisions hereof, the party against whom any final judgment is entered agrees to pay the prevailing party all reasonable costs, charges and expenses, including attorneys' fees, expended or incurred in connection therewith.

Agreement, ¶ 9 (emphasis added).

In the summer of 2006, Mr. Kamen and Mr. Fox offered, and Ernest Charles Barreca ("Defendant") accepted, the position of chief operating officer of Mika. As COO of Mika, Defendant's responsibilities included the day-to-day operation of all aspects of Mika, including overseeing the property management, ongoing development activities, property maintenance, financing obligations, and reviewing and presenting potential acquisition opportunities to Mr. Kamen, who would then decide whether to bring the opportunities to Mr. Fox.

On October 1, 2006, Defendant began working at Mika. At some point between October 2006 and March 2011, Defendant became the chief executive officer of Mika. Defendant's job duties did not change at Mika after he became CEO.

On October 28, 2011, many of the SPEs sued Defendant and others in the Superior Court of California, alleging numerous causes of action, including fraud, conversion, breach of fiduciary duty, and aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duty (the "October 2011 Case"). On October 30, 2013, the Superior Court dismissed the October 2011 Case against Defendant with prejudice.

On April 18, 2013, Mr. Fox and Gertrude Fox (together, "Plaintiffs") sued in Superior Court, asserting fifteen causes of action (the "April 2013 Case"). On July 8, 2014, the state court entered default judgment against Defendant and in favor of Plaintiffs in the April 2013 Case (the "Default Judgment"). On August 26, 2014, Defendant filed a motion to vacate the Default Judgment (the "Motion to Vacate"), which the Superior Court denied on grounds that it lacked jurisdiction to hear the Motion to Vacate. On May 10, 2018, the California Court of Appeal reversed the Superior Court and remanded the proceeding, directing the Superior Court to rule on the merits of the Motion to Vacate.

On February 13, 2015, Defendant filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition, commencing case no. 1:15-bk-10466-VK. On February 23, 2015, Defendant filed his schedules [1:15-bk-10466-VK, doc. 10]. In his Schedule F, Defendant listed an unsecured nonpriority claim for $7,958,612.00 owed to Gerson Fox, which Defendant indicated stemmed from a lawsuit.

On May 15, 2015, Plaintiffs filed a complaint against Defendant, requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to them under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(4) and (a)(6), commencing the adversary proceeding. On July 27, 2015, Plaintiffs filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 12], which is the operative complaint, and added claims under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(2)(B). In the FAC, Plaintiffs included a prayer for relief for reasonable attorneys' fees. Id., at 37. The Plaintiffs did not identify a contractual or statutory basis for this relief.

On February 5, 2018, the parties filed their joint pretrial stipulation (the "JPS") [doc. 145]. Throughout the JPS, Defendant argued that he was merely an employee of Mika, which was owned and operated by Mr. Kamen and Mr. Fox. Id., at 2-74. He also contended that Mika was not a party to the adversary proceeding. Id. The JPS does not make any reference to the attorney's fees provision in the Agreement.

On May 29-June 1, 2018 and June 4, 2018, the Court held trial in this matter. For the reasons set forth in the trial ruling [doc. 291], on August 29, 2018, the Court entered judgment in favor of Defendant under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(2)(B), (a)(4), and (a)(6) [doc. 292].

On September 12, 2018, Defendant filed a motion requesting attorneys' fees and costs pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and/or Cal. Code of Civ. Proc. ("CCP") §§ 1021 and 1032 (the "Motion") [doc. 300]. On October 31, 2018, Plaintiffs filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 313]. On November 7, 2018, Defendant filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 318].

II. DISCUSSION

In federal courts, there generally is no right to attorneys' fees unless authorized by contract or by statute. See Alyeska Pipeline Serv. Co. v. Wilderness Soc'y, 421 U.S. 240, 257, 95 S.Ct. 1612, 1621, 44 L.Ed.2d 141 (1975) ("Other recent cases have also reaffirmed the general rule that, absent statute or enforceable contract, litigants pay their own attorneys' fees."). In Cohen v. de la Cruz, 523 U.S. 213, 218–20, 118 S.Ct. 1212, 1216–17, 140 L.Ed.2d 341 (1998), the Supreme Court of the United States interpreted the discharge exceptions under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4), (a)(6), and (a)(9) to encompass all liability arising on account of a debtor's fraudulent conduct, including attorneys' fees and costs to which the creditors were entitled under state law. As such, "the determinative question for awarding attorneys' fees is whether the creditor would be able to recover the fee outside of bankruptcy under state or federal law." In re Hung Tan Pham, 250 B.R. 93, 99 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2000). Here, Defendant cites Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and CCP § 1032 as the operative state statutes.

In any action on a contract, where the contract specifically provides that attorney's fees and costs, which are incurred to enforce that contract, shall be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party, then the party who is determined to be the party prevailing on the contract, whether he or she is the party specified in the contract or not, shall be entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs.

"Civil Code § 1717 makes an otherwise unilateral contractual obligation to pay attorney's fees into a reciprocal one in an action on the contract but Civil Code § 1717 is not applicable in a tort action." In re Bic Pho, 2016 WL 1620375, at *3 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Apr. 20, 2016); see also Santisas v. Goodin, 17 Cal.4th 599, 615 (1998) (holding that § 1717 applies only to fees incurred to litigate contract claims); and In re Deuel, 482 B.R. 323, 328 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 2012) (same).

To obtain fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a), "[t]hree conditions must be met...." In re Penrod, 802 F.3d 1084, 1087 (9th Cir. 2015).

First, the action in which the fees are incurred must be an action "on a contract," a phrase that is liberally construed. Second, the contract must contain a provision stating that attorney's fees incurred to enforce the contract shall be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party. And third, the party seeking fees must be the party who "prevail[ed] on the contract," meaning (with exceptions not relevant here) "the party who recovered a greater relief in the action on the contract." Cal. Civ.Code § 1717(b)(1).

Id., at 1087-88 (internal citation omitted). "Under California law, an action is 'on a contract' when a party seeks to enforce, or avoid enforcement of, the provisions of the contract." Id., at 1088.

1. California Law Does Not Allow for Recovery of Attorneys' Fees when Neither Party was a Signatory on the Contract ensures that, where a plaintiff sues a nonsignatory defendant to hold the defendant liable on the contract, and the defendant prevails, the defendant may use an attorneys' fees provision from the signatory parties' agreement, and mutuality provided by Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a), to recover the defendant's attorneys' fees. Based on Reynolds, in accordance with Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a), nonsignatory defendants have been allowed to recover attorneys' fees, despite not being a party to the applicable contract. See, e.g. Burkhalter Kessler Clement & George LLP v. Hamilton, 19 Cal.App.5th 38 (Ct. App. 2018).

Here, this line of cases is not applicable; Plaintiffs were not signatories to the Agreement. The Agreement was entered into between Mika and Broadway, and signed on both parties' behalf by Mr. Kamen. Defendant cites no authority that allows an award of attorneys' fees, pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717, without either party being a signatory to the contract. Here, if Plaintiffs were the prevailing party, Plaintiffs would not have been entitled to attorneys' fees under the Agreement. As such, the Agreement cannot be a basis for an award of attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717.

2. *This Action was Not an "Action on the Contract"

In the Motion, Defendant argues that although Plaintiffs and Defendant were not signatories to the Agreement, Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 provides that attorneys' fees are still recoverable if the action is based on the contract. Defendant contends that this action was an "action on the contract" because Plaintiffs were suing on the Agreement, i.e. claiming breach of fiduciary duty by and through Defendant's position with Mika as its COO.

Although past interpretations of the phrase "action on a contract" have been murky, two recent decisions by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals shed some light on which disputes fall within the purview of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). In Penrod, prepetition, the debtor and a lender entered into an installment sale contract when the debtor purchased a vehicle. Penrod, 802 F.3d at 1086. The contract granted the lender a security interest in the vehicle. Id. The debtor then filed a chapter 13 petition and, in her proposed chapter 13 plan, bifurcated the lender's claim into a secured claim in the amount of $16,000 and an unsecured claim in the amount of $10,000. Id. The lender objected to the proposed chapter 13 plan, arguing that its entire claim should be treated as secured in accordance with the "hanging paragraph" below 11 U.S.C. §

1325(a)(9), which prohibits bifurcation of claims that are secured by a "purchase money security interest" in a vehicle. Id. Eventually, the bankruptcy court decided that the lender was limited to a $19,000 secured claim and a $7,000 unsecured claim. Id., at 1087. After an appeal by the lender, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") affirmed the bankruptcy court's ruling. Id.

The debtor then filed a motion to recover attorneys' fees she incurred opposing the lender's objection to confirmation. Id. The debtor relied on a provision in the installment sale contract which read, "You will pay our reasonable costs to collect what you owe, including attorney fees, court costs, collection agency fees, and fees paid for other reasonable collection efforts." Id. Pursuant to this language, the debtor argued she was entitled to attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id.

The bankruptcy court held that the action was not an action "on a contract" because the dispute turned on a question of federal bankruptcy law. Id. The district court affirmed the bankruptcy court. Id.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals disagreed, explaining that:

[The lender] sought to enforce the provisions of its contract with [the debtor] when it objected to confirmation of her proposed Chapter 13 plan. The plan treated [the lender's] claim as only partially secured, but [the lender] insisted that it was entitled to have its claim treated as fully secured. The only possible source of that asserted right was the contract—in particular, the provision in which [the debtor] granted a security interest in her Taurus to secure "payment of all you owe on this contract." (Had the contract not granted [the lender] a security interest in the car, [the lender] could not have asserted a secured claim for any amount. See 11 U.S.C. § 506(a).) The security interest conveyed by the contract covered not just the funds [the debtor] borrowed to pay for the Taurus, but also the funds she borrowed to refinance the negative equity in the Explorer. The sole issue in the hanging-paragraph litigation was whether this provision of the contract should be enforced according to its terms, or whether its enforceability was limited by bankruptcy law to exclude the negative-equity portion of the loan. See In re Penrod, 611 F.3d at 1159–61 & n. 2. By prevailing in that litigation, [the debtor] obtained a ruling that precluded [the lender] from fully enforcing the terms of the contract.

Id., at 1088. On this analysis, the Court of Appeals held the objection to the debtor's confirmation of her chapter 13 plan qualified as an "action on a contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id.

The Court of Appeals decided that the bankruptcy court and district court's interpretation of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) was too narrow. Id. Those courts had concluded that Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) "applies only if the party defeats enforcement under non-bankruptcy law." Id. The Court of Appeals held that California law did not prescribe any such limitation to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id., at 1089.

After Penrod, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals issued a decision further clarifying the boundaries of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Bos v. Bd. of Trustees, 818 F.3d 486 (9th Cir. 2016). In Bos, the debtor was an employer obligated to make payments to certain employee pension funds administered by the Board of Trustees in accordance with trust agreements. Id., at 488. After the debtor failed to make the requirement payments, the debtor signed a promissory note agreeing to make monthly contributions to the funds. Id. The debtor was unable to make these payments. Id. As such, after the Board of Trustees sued the debtor, an arbitrator ruled the debtor had violated the agreements. A California state court confirmed the arbitration award in a judgment. Id.

Around this time, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition. Id. Subsequently, the Board of Trustees filed an adversary proceeding requesting nondischargeability of the judgment pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4). Id. The bankruptcy court held that the judgment was nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) because the debtor was a fiduciary under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA"). Id., at 489. The district court affirmed. Id. On appeal, the Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the debtor was not a fiduciary under ERISA and that 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) did not apply to the debtor. Id. The debtor then moved to recover attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and, alternatively, under ERISA. Id.

The Court of Appeals first referenced several prior decisions by the BAP and California courts:

The California Supreme Court has explained that "section 1717 applies only to actions that contain at least one contract claim," and that "[i]f an action asserts both contract and tort or other noncontract claims, section 1717 applies only to attorney fees incurred to litigate the contract claims." Santisas, 17 Cal.4th at 615, 71 Cal.Rptr.2d 830, 951 P.2d 399. Consistent with Santisas, we have previously held that a nondischargeability action is "on a contract" within section 1717 if "the bankruptcy court needed to determine the enforceability of the ... agreement to determine dischargeability." In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir.1997).

The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit has held that Santisas and relevant Ninth Circuit cases establish not just a rule of inclusion, but also a rule of exclusion: that "if the bankruptcy court did not need to determine whether the contract was enforceable, then the dischargeability claim is not an action on the contract within the meaning of [California Civil Code] § 1717." In re Davison, 289 B.R. 716, 723 (9th Cir. BAP 2003) (emphasis added).

Id. The Court of Appeals then adopted the BAP's interpretation of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. Id., at 490. The Bos court then cited three prior decisions by the Court of Appeals that supported the BAP's interpretation above. Id.

First, the Court of Appeals cited In re Johnson, 756 F.2d 738 (9th Cir. 1985), for the proposition that an action is not an action "on a contract" if "the action neither litigated the validity of the contract nor required the bankruptcy court to consider 'the state law governing contractual relationships.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (citing Johnson, 756 F.2d at 740). "More broadly, [the Court of Appeals] instructed that when federal and not state law governs the substantive issues involved in the adversary proceeding, [the court] may not award attorney's fees pursuant to a state statute." Id. (citing Johnson, 756 F.2d at 741).

Next, the Court of Appeals cited In re Fulwiler, 624 F.2d 908 (9th Cir. 1980), in which the Court of Appeals held that a nondischargeability action in bankruptcy was not "on a contract" under an Oregon fee-shifting statute identical to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. "The reason, we later explained, was that 'the bankruptcy court did not adjudicate the validity of the note in determining whether the debt was dischargeable,' and so the note was merely 'collateral to the non-dischargeability proceeding.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (citing In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir. 1997) (citing

Finally, the Court of Appeals referenced In re Hashemi, 104 F.3d 1122 (9th Cir. 1996), where the court relied on Baroff and held that "a creditor's 'dischargeability claim [was] not an action on the contract,' within the meaning of the contract itself, because 'the bankruptcy court did not need to determine the enforceability of the ... agreement to determine dischargeability.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (quoting Hashemi, 104 F.3d at 1126).

Based on these authorities, the Bos court explained:

In light of our precedents, we are persuaded that the action underlying Bos's fee request—the nondischargeability proceeding that began in bankruptcy court—was not an action "on a contract" within the meaning of section 1717. As the parties agree, "[t]here was no 'breach of contract' claim in the Trust Funds' adversary complaint." The nondischargeability proceeding arose entirely under the federal Bankruptcy Code, and in no way required the bankruptcy court to determine whether or to what extent the Trust Agreements or the Note were enforceable against Bos, or whether Bos had violated their terms. Those questions had been answered in arbitration, and confirmed by a State Court; indeed, in the nondischargeability action Bos conceded that such contracts were valid and that he had breached them. The litigation from that point forward asked only whether federal bankruptcy law forbade Bos from discharging the debts everyone agreed he owed to the Funds. Such litigation is collateral to a contract rather than "on a contract," and as a consequence Bos may not use section 1717 to recover the fees he incurred in pursuing it.

Id. The Bos court distinguished Penrod on the basis that, in Penrod, the central question presented to the court was whether the court should enforce a provision in the parties' agreement or whether the debtor could avoid enforcement in accordance with the Bankruptcy Code. Id., at 490-91. In Bos, the nondischargeability issue did not present any issues regarding the validity or enforceability of the subject agreement. Id., at 491.

After Bos, a bankruptcy court within the Ninth Circuit addressed the issue of whether a nondischargeability action under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) may be considered an action "on a contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. In re Zarate, 567 B.R. 176 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2017). In Zarate, creditors initiated an adversary proceeding against the debtors alleging that the debtors "'misrepresented facts, concealed and failed to disclose' material facts in order to induce plaintiffs to enter into the" subject agreement. Id., at 181. The creditors requested damages in the amount of $1.34 million plus prejudgment interest, contractual attorneys' fees and costs. Id. Subsequently, the court entered a stipulated judgment through which the debtors agreed to a nondischargeable judgment in the amount of $831,018.31. Id. The creditors then filed a motion for an award of attorneys' fees based on the parties' contract, which included a provision that stated: "In event suit is brought or an attorney is retained by any party to this Agreement to enforce the terms of this Agreement or to collect any moneys due hereunder, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover reimbursement for reasonable attorneys' fees, court costs, costs of investigation and other related expenses incurred in connection therewith." Id., at 181-83.

The Zarate court first noted that "under established California law, a tort claim does not 'enforce' a contract." Id., at 184 (citing Stout v. Turney, 22 Cal.3d 718, 730 (1978); and Santisas v. Goodin, 17 Cal.4th 599, 615 (1998)). Next, the court found that "the dischargeability of a debt under § 523(a)(2)(A) resolves a tort claim." Id. (citing In re Candland, 90 F.3d 1466, 1470 (9th Cir. 1996)). The court did not find persuasive the plaintiffs' arguments that the nondischargeability action could be interpreted as one "on the contract." Id. The court held that, unlike Penrod, the court did not have to assess the enforceability of the subject agreement in Zarate:

Here, whether the APA or the 2009 Agreement were enforceable was never a question and the interpretation of these agreements was never an issue. Based on the above, this was not an action on a contract. The APA and the 2009 Agreement provided the context out of which this dispute arose, but this was not an action on a contract. Civil Code § 1717 does not provide a basis to award attorney's fees.

Id., at 185. See also In re Fulwiler, 624 F.2d 908 (9th Cir. 1980) (holding that the action was not "on the contract" where the bankruptcy court "did not adjudicate the validity of the note in determining whether the debt was dischargeable" and instead determined "that the debtors obtained the loan evidenced by the note through fraud"); cf. In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir. 1997) (finding an action was "on a contract" where "the bankruptcy court needed to determine the enforceability of the settlement agreement to determine dischargeability"); and In re Arciniega, 2016 WL 455428 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Feb. 3, 2016) (where the debtor used the subject agreement to support her defense and the bankruptcy court had to interpret a disputed phrase in the agreement in connection with an action under § 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(6), the action was "on a contract").

Here, even if Plaintiffs and Defendant were parties to the Agreement, the action was not an "action on the contract." "California courts have consistently held that breach of fiduciary duty and fraud claims, although arising out of and related to a contractual relationship, are actions sounding in tort and, therefore, are not actions "on a contract" within the meaning of § 1717." In re Quinones, No. 12-46834, 2015 WL 9412851, at *16 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Dec. 18, 2015); see also In re Charalambous, No. ADV 11-02796-RK, 2013 WL 3369299, at *6 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. July 3, 2013); In re Wank, No. 1:12-AP-01156-MT, 2015 WL 2330294, at *3-4 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. May 14, 2015); Smith v. Home Loan Funding, Inc., 192 Cal.App.4th 1331, 1337 (2011); Loube v. Loube, 64 Cal.App.4th 421, 430 (1998).

Further, to adjudicate Plaintiffs' claims, the Court did not need to assess the validity or enforceability of any provision in the Agreement. Neither Plaintiffs nor Defendant disputed any provision in the Agreement during the course of this adversary proceeding. As such, this case is more similar to Bos, Zarate and Fulwiler, and is easily distinguishable from the contract enforcement issues presented to the Arciniega and Baroff courts. Given that this Court did not adjudicate any enforcement or validity issues related to the Agreement, and because Plaintiffs requested tort damages, this action is not an action "on the contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. Thus, Defendant is not entitled to an award of attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717.

B. CCP §§ 1021 and 1032

Defendant also is not entitled to attorneys' fees pursuant to CCP § 1021. Pursuant to CCP § 1021—

Except as attorney's fees are specifically provided for by statute, the measure and mode of compensation of attorneys and counselors at law is left to the agreement, express or implied, of the parties; but parties to actions or proceedings are entitled to their costs, as hereinafter provided.

Pursuant to CCP § 1032(b)—

Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, a prevailing party is entitled as a matter of right to recover costs in any action or proceeding.

Under CCP § 1033.5(a), the following items are allowable as costs pursuant to § 1032:

(10) Attorney's fees, when authorized by any of the following:

(A) Contract.

(B) Statute.

(C) Law.

CCP "§ 1032(b) entitles a 'prevailing party' to 'recover costs' as a matter of right 'in any action or proceeding.' Costs may include attorney's fees when authorized by contract, even when the action is not 'on a contract.'" In re Mac-Go Corp., 541 B.R. 706, 715 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2015) (citing CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)).

"California courts have uniformly ruled, CCP § 1021 and Cal. Code Civ. P. § 1032 are the only bases for awards of attorney's fees in tort disputes when provided by agreement of the parties." In re Charalambous, 2013 WL 3369299 at *6 (citing Xuereb v. Marcus & Millichap, Inc., 3 Cal.App. 4th 1338, 1342 (1992)) (emphasis added). The relevant provision in the Agreement states: "Should either party employ attorneys to enforce any of the provisions hereof, the party against whom any final judgment is entered agrees to pay the prevailing party all reasonable costs, charges and expenses, including attorneys' fees, expended or incurred in connection therewith." Agreement, ¶ 9 (emphasis added). The attorneys' fees provision in the Agreement specifically limits enforcement of the provision to the parties to the Agreement. The Agreement was entered into between two non-parties to this adversary proceeding. As discussed above, Plaintiffs and Defendant are not parties to the Agreement. As such, there is no agreement between Plaintiffs and Defendant that would create a basis for an award of attorneys' fees pursuant to CCP § 1021.

Further, even if Plaintiffs and Defendant were parties to the Agreement, the language of the Agreement is not broad enough to cover tort claims. The attorneys' fees provision in the Agreement does not have the same breadth as those in other California cases where attorneys' fees were awarded for noncontract claims under CCP § 1021. For example, the Supreme Court of California found that an agreement covered tort claims when it provided for "litigation arising out of the execution." Santisas, 17 Cal. 4th at 608. Similarly, the California Third District Appellate Court found that an agreement covered tort claims when it provided for "any dispute under this Agreement." Thompson v. Miller, 112 Cal. App. 4th 327, 337 (2003). The California Second District Appellate Court found that an agreement covered tort claims when it provided for claims "relating to the contract." Moallem, 25 Cal.App.4th at 1830–31. Further, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals found that an agreement covered tort claims when it provided for "any suit" or other proceeding with respect to the "subject matter or enforcement" of the agreement. 3250 Wilshire Blvd. Bldg. v. W.R. Grace & Co., 990 F.2d 487, 489 (9th Cir. 1993). None of these terms are present in the Agreement.

The attorneys' fees provision in the Agreement only covers fees "to enforce any of the provisions hereof." This language is similar to the language of the agreement at issue in Exxess Electronixx v. Heger Realty Corp., 64 Cal. App. 4th 698 (1998). In Exxess, the plaintiff sued the defendant for declaratory relief, constructive fraud, breach of fiduciary duty and equitable relief. Id., at 702. The agreement in Exxess provided in relevant part: "If any Party or Broker brings an action or proceeding to enforce the terms hereof or declare rights hereunder, the Prevailing Party (as hereafter defined) or Broker in any such proceeding, action, or appeal thereon, shall be entitled to reasonable attorney's fees...." Id., at 702–03. The court found that the plaintiff's claims for constructive fraud and breach of fiduciary duty were not brought to "enforce the terms" of the lease. Id., at 709–10. The court stated that "tort claims do not 'enforce' a contract." Id.

Other California courts have applied the same reasoning as the court in Exxess. See, e.g., McKenzie v. Kaiser-Aetna, 55 Cal.App.3d 84, 89 (1976) ("... an action for negligent misrepresentation is not an action to enforce the provisions of a contract"); DeMirjian v. Ideal Heating Corp., 91 Cal.App.2d 905, 909-910 (1949) (lease authorizing award of attorneys' fees in an action "to enforce Lessor's rights hereunder"

" does not include tort claims); Xuereb v. Marcus & Millichap, Inc., 3 Cal.App.4th 1338, 1342-1343 (1992) (attorneys' fees not permitted on tort claims under contractual provision authorizing fees in an action to interpret or enforce the contract).

As in Exxess, the language in the Agreement encompasses only contract claims. Plaintiffs' claims in this adversary proceeding were tort claims. As such, an award of attorneys' fees cannot be sustained on the theory that tort claims were brought to "enforce the provisions" of the Agreement. See Exxess, 64 Cal. App. 4th at 709–10. Thus, Defendant is not entitled to an award of attorneys' fees pursuant to CCP § 1021.

C. Equitable Estoppel

In the Motion, Defendant argues that Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 has been interpreted by courts to award attorneys' fees in the absence of a contract between the parties under the equitable doctrine of estoppel. Defendant cites to International Billing Services, Inc. v. Emigh, 84 Cal. App. 4th 1175 (2000), in support of this proposition.

In International Billing, the plaintiff sued six defendants based on a claimed breach of trade secrecy. 84 Cal. App. 4th at 1178–79. Three of the defendants were formerly employed by the plaintiff and signed confidentiality agreements in connection with their employment. Id. The complaint filed by the plaintiff included in its prayer a request for attorneys' fees incurred in connection with the action, and the plaintiff attached copies of the confidentiality agreement signed by the three defendants to the complaint. Id., at 1180. The plaintiff consistently maintained in the trial court that attorneys' fees were authorized by a provision in the confidentiality agreement, including concluding its trial brief by requesting an award of fees based on the language in the confidentiality agreement. Id., at 1184–86. The trial court found for the defendants and in postjudgment proceedings, awarded the three defendants attorneys' fees. Id. The plaintiff appealed the award of attorneys' fees. Id., at 1178–79.

On appeal, the plaintiff argued, among other things, that the confidentiality agreement did not provide for a fees award. Id., at 1181. The plaintiff contended that the provision in the confidentiality agreement was not an attorneys' fees clause (as plaintiff argued in the trial court), but rather it was an indemnity clause. Id., at 1182–83. The appellate court held, in part, that the plaintiff was estopped from denying that the confidentiality agreement contained an attorneys' fees clause because the plaintiff's prayer for relief sought attorneys' fees, the plaintiff attached the confidentiality agreement to the complaint and the plaintiff consistently maintained that the provision in the agreement was an attorneys' fees clause. Id., at 1186. The appellate court limited its holding to situations where a party brings a breach of contract action and the contract contains some provision which the party asserts operates as a fees provision. Id., at 1187.

International Billing is inapposite. Defendant is correct that Plaintiffs included in their prayer for relief a request for attorneys' fees. However, Plaintiffs never claimed during this adversary proceeding that the Agreement was the basis for the request for attorneys' fees. Plaintiffs did not attach the Agreement to the FAC. Nor did Plaintiffs bring a breach of contract action based on the Agreement.

In the Motion, Defendant argues that the court in International Billing recognized a defendant's right to recover fees based solely on plaintiff seeking them in the complaint. Defendant contends that the FAC explicitly sought attorneys' fees, and like the court in International Billing, this Court should award Defendant attorneys' fees on equitable grounds. As discussed above, the court in International Billing did not award the three defendants attorneys' fees based solely on the plaintiff seeking them in the complaint.

Further, the same appellate court that decided International Billing subsequently decided M. Perez Co. v. Base Camp Condominiums Assn. No. One, 111 Cal. App. 4th 456 (2003). In M. Perez Co., the court stated that International Billing sweeps too broadly, and it declined to follow the holding. 111 Cal. App. 4th at 465. The court went on to state that the problem with International Billing is that it assumes the underlying litigation is over the validity of the contract in general or the attorney fee provision in particular. Id., at 467–68. The court explained that where the underlying litigation is not over the validity of the contract or the attorney fee provision, the rationale in International Billing disappears. Id. The court clarified that "[i]n truth the party must still prove that the contract allows attorney fees. The mere allegation is not enough." Id., at 468–69. The court concluded in relevant part, there is no sound policy or legal basis for the broad rule adopted by this court in International Billing Services. That rule would instead violate the very policy considerations it purports to serve. We agree with the many state court decisions refusing to apply estoppel against a losing party who sought attorney fees under circumstances where that party would not have been entitled to such fees had it prevailed.

Id., at 470. Likewise, other courts have rejected an estoppel theory because "mere allegation of a contractual right to attorney fees is not sufficient to create an estoppel where [a party] would not actually have been entitled to attorney fees under the contract if [it] had prevailed." Myers Bldg. Indus., Ltd. v. Interface Tech., Inc., 13 Cal. App. 4th 949, 963 n.12 (1993), as modified on denial of reh'g (Mar. 26, 1993) (emphasis in original); see also Alhambra Redevelopment Agency v. Transamerica Financial Services, 212 Cal.App.3d 1370, 1381 (1989); Leach v. Home Savings & Loan Assn., 185 Cal.App.3d 1295, 1304-1307 (1986).

Accordingly, even though Plaintiffs included a prayer for attorneys' fees in the FAC, that alone is insufficient to award Defendant attorneys' fees based on estoppel. As discussed above, if Plaintiffs would have prevailed, Plaintiffs would not be entitled to an award of attorneys' fees. As such, there is no basis to award Defendant attorneys' fees based on estoppel.

D. Reasonableness of Defendant's Attorneys' Fees

Because Defendant is not entitled to an award of attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 or CCP § 1021, the Court will not discuss the reasonableness of Defendant's attorney's fees.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court will deny the Motion.

Plaintiffs must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#2.00 First interim application for allowance of fees and costs filed by Marshack Hayes LLP as general counsel

fr. 11/15/18

Tentative Ruling:

Marshack Hays LLP (“Marshack”), general counsel to David K. Gottlieb, chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $19,225.50 and reimbursement of expenses of $589.93, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, on an interim basis. Marshack may collect 80% of the approved fees and 100% of the approved expenses at this time. The Court has not awarded $2,011.50 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 328(b) provides that an attorney may not receive compensation for the performance of any trustee’s duties that are generally performed by a trustee without the assistance of an attorney. In re Garcia, 335 B.R. 717, 725 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2005) (holding that bankruptcy court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to compensate chapter 7 trustee’s counsel for services rendered in connection with the sale of property of the estate and for preparing routine employment applications).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor’s estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2016-2(e)(2) provides a "nonexclusive list of services that the court deems ‘trustee services.’" This list includes, among other activities: conduct 11 U.S.C. § 341(a) examination; routine investigation regarding location and status of assets; turnover or inspection of documents; recruit and contract appraisers, brokers, and professionals; routine collection of accounts receivable; routine documentation of notice of abandonment; prepare motions to abandon or destroy books and records; routine claims review and objection; monitor litigation; answer routine creditor correspondence and phone calls; review and comment on professional fee applications; and additional routine work necessary for administration of the estate.

In Garcia, the Ninth Circuit Bankruptcy Appellate Panel (the "BAP") upheld the bankruptcy court’s refusal to approve fees for preparation of employment applications, observing that “absent a showing by applicant to the contrary, routine employment applications remain a trustee duty.” Garcia, 335 B.R. at 726. With respect to its holding, the BAP explained “a case trustee may only employ professionals for tasks that require special expertise beyond that expected of an ordinary trustee.” Id. at 727.

In accordance with Garcia and LBR 2016-2(f), the Court does not approve the fees billed for the services identified below. It appears that these fees are for services that are duplicative of those that could and should be performed by the chapter 7 trustee, as a trustee.

fr. 11/15/18

Docket 346

Tentative Ruling:

Levene, Neale, Bender, Yoo & Brill L.L.P ("Applicant"), general counsel to Nancy Hoffmeier Zamora, chapter 11 trustee – approve fees of $206,332.61 and reimbursement of expenses of $12,237.78, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330. The Court has not awarded $53,427.89 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this case, "the court shall not allow compensation for— (i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

In light of the above, the Court reduced the following fees, in the amounts indicated, as excessive:

#6.00 First and final application for compensation and reimbursement of expenses of Grobstein Teeple, LLP as accountants for the Chapter 11 Trustee

fr. 11/15/18

Docket 351

Tentative Ruling:

Grobstein Teeple, LLP ("Applicant") accountants to the chapter 11 trustee – approve fees of $84,026 and reimbursement of expenses of $202.26, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. The Court has not awarded $19,903 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this case, "the court shall not allow compensation for— (i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

In light of the above, the Court reduced the following fees by 50% as excessive:

Regarding Mr. Grobstein's attendance at the meeting on February 14, 2018, the Court did not award fees for Mr. Grobstein's attendance because one of Applicant's other professionals also attended the same meeting. The Court awarded Applicant $2,006 in fees for Ms. Wright's attendance at that meeting.

In addition, secretarial/clerical work is noncompensable under 11 U.S.C. § 330. See In re Schneider, 2008 WL 4447092, *11 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2008) (court disallowed billing for services including: monitoring and reviewing the docket; electronically distributing documents; preparing services packages, serving pleadings, updating service lists and preparing proofs of service; and e-filing and uploading pleadings); In re Ness, 2007 WL 1302611, *1 (Bankr. #8.00 Motion to require Schuller & Schuller to pay attorneys fees and costs

fr. 10/18/18(stip); 11/1/18

Docket 160

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will grant the motion in part and deny the motion in part.

I. BACKGROUND

In December 2006, Deborah Lois Adri ("Debtor") retained Schuller & Schuller ("Schuller") to represent her in a state court case (the "State Court Case") [Declaration of Deborah Adri ("Adri Decl."), doc. 161, ¶3]. Debtor and Schuller entered into a written attorney-client fee agreement (the "Agreement") [Adri Decl., Exh. A]. In relevant part, the Agreement provides:

9. BILLING STATEMENTS AND PAYMENT. The prevailing party in any litigation, arbitration or proceeding arising out of, or relating to, this Agreement to and the attorney-client relationship between Client and Schuller, must be awarded all actual attorneys' fees and cost it incurred, as well as the enforcement of any judgment or award rendered thereon.

19. MEDIATION. If a dispute arises out of, or relates to, any aspect of this Agreement, breach thereof, or the attorney client relationship between Client and Schuller, and if the dispute cannot be settled through negotiation, Schuller and Client agree to submit their dispute or disagreement to mediation with a retired judge or attorney before resorting to and filing of any claims, lawsuits or the like in court, arbitration or fee dispute program.

On May 6, 2008, Schuller's representation of Debtor in the State Court Case was terminated by a substitution of attorney that was filed with the state court [doc. 123, Exh. 2]. On May 12, 2008, Schuller mailed a letter to Debtor demanding that she pay its alleged outstanding invoice (the "May 12 Letter") [doc. 123, Exh. 3].

Schuller alleges that it continued to send monthly billing statements to Debtor each month from May 31, 2008 through January 31, 2018 [doc. 143, Exh. D; Declaration of Henri R. Schuller ("Schuller Decl."), doc. 143, ¶ 9; Declaration of Denise Denney-Garrett ("Denney-Garrett Decl."), doc. 143]. Further, each month Schuller added interest to the original obligation pursuant to the terms of the contract between the parties, which is reflected in the monthly billing statements [doc. 143, Exhs. A & D].

On February 16, 2018, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In her original schedule E/F, Debtor listed a $331,651.00 debt owed to Schuller for attorney fees. Debtor indicated that the debt is disputed [doc. 1, p. 34].

On March 29, 2018, the first § 341(a) meeting of creditors took place. Prior to the meeting, Schuller made a demand for documents related to Debtor's interest in real property owned directly by Debtor or by any holding entity. On May 3, 2018, a continued § 341(a) meeting was held. Debtor's counsel did not produce the documents requested by Schuller, but instead produced a tax transcript [Declaration of Shai Oved, ¶ 2].

On May 4, 2018, Schuller's counsel filed an application for Rule 2004 examination of Debtor (the "2004 Application") [doc. 68]. Schuller's stated basis for the 2004 Application was to determine: (1) whether Schuller's claims against Debtor for over $300,000.00 were nondischargeable for fraud and intentional torts under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6); (2) whether Debtor should be barred from discharge for making a false oath, bad faith, fraud, concealing assets, failure to explain the loss of financial records or providing false and incomplete information on her bankruptcy petition; and (3) the value of Debtor's assets [doc. 68]. On May 9, 2018, Debtor objected to the 2004 Application. In her objection, the Debtor agreed to produce certain documents, but disputed the scope and relevance of other document requests.

On May 11, 2018, Debtor filed a motion for a protective order (the "Protective Order Motion") [doc. 76]. On May 13, 2018, Schuller filed a response to the Protective Order Motion [doc. 84]. On June 14, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the Protective Order Motion. The Court continued the hearing on the Protective Order Motion to July 19, 2018, to allow the parties to file a stipulation pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7026-1(c)(3), addressing the disputed document production categories.

On May 24, 2018, Schuller filed a Motion to Extend Time in Which to File a Complaint Under § 523 and/or to Deny a Discharge (the "Motion to Extend Time") [doc. 93]. On June 7, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion to Extend Time [doc. 103]. On July 3, 2018, the Court entered an order granting the Motion to Extend Time (the "Order Extending Time") [doc. 120]. The Order Extending Time provided that Schuller's deadline to file such complaint was August 20, 2018.

On July 13, 2018, Schuller filed proof of claim no. 9 (the "Claim") for services performed, fees/costs advanced and finance charges [Claim 9, p. 2]. On July 17, 2018, Debtor filed an objection to the Claim (the "Objection") [doc. 123] on the basis that the statute of limitations bars the Claim. On July 19, 2018, the Court continued the hearing on the Protective Order Motion to August 23, 2018, to coincide with the hearing on the Objection.

On July 26, 2018, Debtor's counsel filed a First Interim Application of Law Offices of Robert M. Yaspan for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses Incurred as Counsel to Debtor and Debtor-in-Possession (the "Fee Application") [doc. 136]. In the Fee Application, Debtor's counsel requested payment of fees for services provided in connection with the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion, the Motion to Extend Time and the Objection.

On August 23, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the Protective Order Motion and the Objection. On September 4, 2018, the Court entered an order denying the 2004 Application because Schuller did not have standing and denying the Protective Order Motion as moot [doc. 155]. Also on September 4, 2018, the Court entered an order sustaining the Objection and disallowing the Claim in its entirety [doc. 156]. The Court found, in part, that the Claim was time barred by the statute of limitations [doc. 148].

On September 18, 2018, Debtor filed a Motion to Require Schuller & Schuller to Pay Attorneys' Fees and Costs (the "Motion") [doc. 160]. In the Motion, Debtor asks the Court to enter an order requiring Schuller to pay attorneys' fees and costs that were incurred in connection with the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion, the Order Extending Time and the Objection pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and CCP §§ 1021 and 1032. On September 20, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the Fee Application.

On October 18, 2018, Schuller filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition")

II. DISCUSSION

In federal courts, there is generally no right to attorneys' fees unless authorized by contract or by statute. See Alyeska Pipeline Serv. Co. v. Wilderness Soc'y, 421 U.S. 240, 257, 95 S.Ct. 1612, 1621, 44 L.Ed.2d 141 (1975) ("Other recent cases have also reaffirmed the general rule that, absent statute or enforceable contract, litigants pay their own attorneys' fees."). In Cohen v. de la Cruz, 523 U.S. 213, 218–20, 118 S.Ct. 1212, 1216–17, 140 L.Ed.2d 341 (1998), the Supreme Court of the United States interpreted the discharge exceptions under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4), (a)(6), and (a)(9) to encompass all liability arising on account of a debtor's fraudulent conduct, including attorneys' fees and costs to which the creditors were entitled under state law. As such, "the determinative question for awarding attorneys' fees is whether the creditor would be able to recover the fee outside of bankruptcy under state or federal law." In re Hung Tan Pham, 250 B.R. 93, 99 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2000). Here, Debtor cites Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and CCP § 1032 as the operative state statutes.

A. Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a)

Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a)—

In any action on a contract, where the contract specifically provides that attorneys' fees and costs, which are incurred to enforce that contract, shall be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party, then the party who is determined to be the party prevailing on the contract, whether he or she is the party specified in the contract or not, shall be entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees in addition to other costs.

"Civil Code § 1717 makes an otherwise unilateral contractual obligation to pay attorneys' fees into a reciprocal one in an action on the contract but Civil Code § 1717 is not applicable in a tort action." In re Bic Pho, 2016 WL 1620375, at *3 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Apr. 20, 2016); see also Santisas v. Goodin, 17 Cal.4th 599, 615 (1998) (finding that § 1717 applies only to fees incurred to litigate contract claims); and In re Deuel, 482 B.R. 323, 328 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 2012) (same).

To obtain fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a), "[t]hree conditions must be met...." In re Penrod, 802 F.3d 1084, 1087 (9th Cir. 2015).

First, the action in which the fees are incurred must be an action "on a contract," a phrase that is liberally construed. Second, the contract must contain a provision stating that attorneys' fees incurred to enforce the contract shall be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party. And third, the party seeking fees must be the party who "prevail[ed] on the contract," meaning (with exceptions not relevant here) "the party who recovered a greater relief in the action on the contract." Cal. Civ.Code § 1717(b)(1).

Id., at 1087-88 (internal citation omitted). "Under California law, an action is 'on a contract' when a party seeks to enforce, or avoid enforcement of, the provisions of the contract." Id., at 1088.

Although past interpretations of the phrase "action on a contract" have been murky, two recent decisions by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals shed some light on which disputes fall within the purview of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). In Penrod, prepetition, the debtor and a lender entered into an installment sale contract when the debtor purchased a vehicle. Penrod, 802 F.3d at 1086. The contract granted the lender a security interest in the vehicle. Id. The debtor then filed a chapter 13 petition and, in her proposed chapter 13 plan, bifurcated the lender's claim into a secured claim in the amount of $16,000 and an unsecured claim in the amount of $10,000. Id. The lender objected to the proposed chapter 13 plan, arguing that its entire claim should be treated as secured in accordance with the "hanging paragraph" below 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(9), which prohibits bifurcation of claims that are secured by a "purchase money security interest" in a vehicle. Id. Eventually, the bankruptcy court decided that the lender was limited to a $19,000 secured claim and a $7,000 unsecured claim. Id., at 1087. After an appeal by the lender, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") affirmed the bankruptcy court's ruling. Id.

The debtor then filed a motion to recover attorneys' fees she incurred opposing the lender's objection to confirmation. Id. The debtor relied on a provision in the installment sale contract which read, "You will pay our reasonable costs to collect what you owe, including attorney fees, court costs, collection agency fees, and fees paid for other reasonable collection efforts." Id. Pursuant to this language, the debtor argued she was entitled to attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id. The bankruptcy court disagreed, holding that the action was not an action "on a contract" because the action at issue in Penrod turned on a question of federal bankruptcy law. Id. The district court affirmed the bankruptcy court. Id.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals disagreed, explaining that:

[The lender] sought to enforce the provisions of its contract with [the debtor] when it objected to confirmation of her proposed Chapter 13 plan. The plan treated [the lender's] claim as only partially secured, but [the lender] insisted that it was entitled to have its claim treated as fully secured. The only possible source of that asserted right was the contract—in particular, the provision in which [the debtor] granted a security interest in her Taurus to secure "payment of all you owe on this contract." (Had the contract not granted [the lender] a security interest in the car, [the lender] could not have asserted a secured claim for any amount. See 11 U.S.C. § 506(a).) The security interest conveyed by the contract covered not just the funds [the debtor] borrowed to pay for the Taurus, but also the funds she borrowed to refinance the negative equity in the Explorer. The sole issue in the hanging-paragraph litigation was whether this provision of the contract should be enforced according to its terms, or whether its enforceability was limited by bankruptcy law to exclude the negative-equity portion of the loan. See In re Penrod, 611 F.3d at 1159–61 & n. 2. By prevailing in that litigation, [the debtor] obtained a ruling that precluded [the lender] from fully enforcing the terms of the contract.

Id., at 1088. On this analysis, the Court of Appeals believed the objection to the debtor's confirmation of her chapter 13 plan qualified as an "action on a contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id.

The Court of Appeals decided that the bankruptcy court's and district court's interpretation of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) was too narrow. Id. Those courts had concluded that Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) "applies only if the party defeats enforcement under non-bankruptcy law" and, because the debtor had prevailed under bankruptcy law, Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a) did not apply. Id. The Court of Appeals held that California law did not prescribe any such limitation to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Id., at 1089.

After Penrod, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals issued a decision further clarifying the boundaries of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a). Bos v. Bd. of Trustees, 818 F.3d 486 (9th Cir. 2016). In Bos, the debtor was an employer obligated to make payments to certain employee pension funds administered by the Board of Trustees in accordance with trust agreements. Id., at 488. The debtor failed to make the requirement payments and, as a result, signed a promissory note agreeing to make monthly contributions to the funds. Id. The debtor was unable to make these payments. Id. As such, after the Board of Trustees sued the debtor, an arbitrator ruled the debtor had violated the agreement, and a California state court confirmed the arbitration award in a judgment. Id.

Around this time, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition. Id. Subsequently, the Board of Trustees filed an adversary proceeding requesting nondischargeability of the judgment pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4). Id. The bankruptcy court held that the judgment was nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) because the debtor was a fiduciary under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA"). Id., at 489. The district court affirmed. Id. On appeal, the Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the debtor was not a fiduciary under ERISA and that 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) did not apply to the debtor. Id. The debtor then moved to recover attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 and, alternatively, under ERISA. Id.

The Court of Appeals first referenced several prior decisions by the BAP and California courts:

The California Supreme Court has explained that "section 1717 applies only to actions that contain at least one contract claim," and that "[i]f an action asserts both contract and tort or other noncontract claims, section 1717 applies only to attorney fees incurred to litigate the contract claims." Santisas, 17 Cal.4th at 615, 71 Cal.Rptr.2d 830, 951 P.2d 399. Consistent with Santisas, we have previously held that a nondischargeability action is "on a contract" within section 1717 if "the bankruptcy court needed to determine the enforceability of the ... agreement to determine dischargeability." In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir.1997).

The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit has held that Santisas and relevant Ninth Circuit cases establish not just a rule of inclusion, but also a rule of exclusion: that "if the bankruptcy court did not need to determine whether the contract was enforceable, then the dischargeability claim is not an action on the contract within the meaning of [California Civil Code] § 1717." In re Davison, 289 B.R. 716, 723 (9th Cir. BAP 2003) (emphasis added).

Id. The Court of Appeals then explicitly adopted the BAP's interpretation of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717, noting that the construction "accords with the common sense meaning of the phrase 'on a contract' and finds ample support in our precedents." Id., at 490. The Bos court then cited three prior decisions by the Court of Appeals that supported the BAP's interpretation above. Id.

First, the Court of Appeals cited In re Johnson, 756 F.2d 738 (9th Cir. 1985), for the proposition that an action is not an action "on a contract" if "the action neither litigated the validity of the contract nor required the bankruptcy court to consider 'the state law governing contractual relationships.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (citing Johnson, 756 F.2d at 740). "More broadly, [the Court of Appeals] instructed that when federal and not state law governs the substantive issues involved in the adversary proceeding, [the court] may not award attorneys' fees pursuant to a state statute." Id. (citing Johnson, 756 F.2d at 741).

Next, the Court of Appeals cited In re Fulwiler, 624 F.2d 908 (9th Cir. 1980), in which the Court of Appeals had held that a nondischargeability action in bankruptcy was not "on a contract" under an Oregon fee-shifting statute identical to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. "The reason, we later explained, was that 'the bankruptcy court did not adjudicate the validity of the note in determining whether the debt was dischargeable,' and so the note was merely 'collateral to the non-dischargeability proceeding.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (citing In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir. 1997) (citing Fulwiler, 524 F.2d at 909-10)).

Finally, the Court of Appeals referenced In re Hashemi, 104 F.3d 1122 (9th Cir. 1996), in which the Court of Appeals relied on Baroff and held that "a creditor's 'dischargeability claim [was] not an action on the contract,' within the meaning of the contract itself, because 'the bankruptcy court did not need to determine the enforceability of the ... agreement to determine dischargeability.'" Bos, 818 F.3d at 490 (quoting Hashemi, 104 F.3d at 1126).

Based on these authorities, the Bos court explained:

In light of our precedents, we are persuaded that the action underlying Bos's fee request—the nondischargeability proceeding that began in bankruptcy court—was not an action "on a contract" within the meaning of section 1717. As the parties agree, "[t]here was no 'breach of contract' claim in the Trust Funds' adversary complaint." The nondischargeability proceeding arose entirely under the federal Bankruptcy Code, and in no way required the bankruptcy court to determine whether or to what extent the Trust Agreements or the Note were enforceable against Bos, or whether Bos had violated their terms. Those questions had been answered in arbitration, and confirmed by a State Court; indeed, in the nondischargeability action Bos conceded that such contracts were valid and that he had breached them. The litigation from that point forward asked only whether federal bankruptcy law forbade Bos from discharging the debts everyone agreed he owed to the Funds. Such litigation is collateral to a contract rather than "on a contract," and as a consequence Bos may not use section 1717 to recover the fees he incurred in pursuing it.

Id. The Bos court distinguished Penrod on the basis that, in Penrod, the central question presented to the court was whether the court should enforce a provision in the parties' agreement or whether the debtor could avoid enforcement in accordance with the Bankruptcy Code. Id., at 490-91. In Bos, the nondischargeability issue did not present any issues regarding the validity or enforceability of the subject agreement. Id., at 491.

After Bos, a bankruptcy court within the Ninth Circuit addressed the issue of whether a nondischargeability action under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) may be considered an action "on a contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. In re Zarate, 567 B.R. 176 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2017). In Zarate, creditors initiated an adversary proceeding against the debtors alleging that the debtors "'misrepresented facts, concealed and failed to disclose' material facts in order to induce plaintiffs to enter into the" subject agreement. Id., at 181. The creditors requested damages in the amount of $1.34 million plus prejudgment interest, contractual attorneys' fees and costs. Id. Subsequently, the court entered a stipulated judgment through which the debtors agreed to a nondischargeable judgment in the amount of $831,018.31. Id. The creditors then filed a motion for an award of attorneys' fees based on the parties' contract, which included a provision that stated: "In event suit is brought or an attorney is retained by any party to this Agreement to enforce the terms of this Agreement or to collect any moneys due hereunder, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover reimbursement for reasonable attorneys' fees, court costs, costs of investigation and other related expenses incurred in connection therewith." Id., at 181-83.

The Zarate court first noted that "under established California law, a tort claim does not 'enforce' a contract." Id., at 184 (citing Stout v. Turney, 22 Cal.3d 718, 730 (1978); and Santisas v. Goodin, 17 Cal.4th 599, 615 (1998)). Next, the court found that "the dischargeability of a debt under § 523(a)(2)(A) resolves a tort claim." Id. (citing In re Candland, 90 F.3d 1466, 1470 (9th Cir. 1996)). The court did not find persuasive the plaintiffs' arguments that the nondischargeability action could be interpreted as one "on the contract." Id. The court held that, unlike Penrod, the court did not have to assess the enforceability of the subject agreement in Zarate:

Here, whether the APA or the 2009 Agreement were enforceable was never a question and the interpretation of these agreements was never an issue. Based on the above, this was not an action on a contract. The APA and the 2009 Agreement provided the context out of which this dispute arose, but this was not an action on a contract. Civil Code § 1717 does not provide a basis to award attorneys' fees.

Id., at 185. See also In re Fulwiler, 624 F.2d 908 (9th Cir. 1980) (holding that the action was not "on the contract" where the bankruptcy court "did not adjudicate the validity of the note in determining whether the debt was dischargeable" and instead determined "that the debtors obtained the loan evidenced by the note through fraud"); cf. In re Baroff, 105 F.3d 439, 442 (9th Cir. 1997) (finding an action was "on a contract" where "the bankruptcy court needed to determine the enforceability of the settlement agreement to determine dischargeability"); and In re Arciniega, 2016 WL 455428 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Feb. 3, 2016) (where the debtor used the subject agreement to support her defense and the bankruptcy court had to interpret a disputed phrase in the agreement in connection with an action under § 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(6), the action was "on a contract").

Extend Time

The 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Order Extending Time were not actions "on the contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. In determining whether to grant the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Motion to Extend Time, the Court did not need to determine the validity or enforceability of the Agreement. See Bos, 818 F.3d at 490-91. Nor did the Court need to consider California law governing contractual relationships. Id. As such, the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Order Extending Time were not actions "on the contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717.

2. The Claim and Objection

i. The Objection is an Action "On the Contract"

The Objection is an action "on the contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. See In re McGaw Prop. Mgmt., Inc., 133 B.R. 227, 227–28 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1991); In re Dowent Family LLC, No. 2:13-BK-12977-RK, 2018 WL 3468986, at *5 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. Cal. 2013). "[C]laims litigation in bankruptcy is civil litigation." Brand Affinity Techs., Inc., 2016 WL 8309669, at *5. "The filing of a proof of claim is analogous to filing a complaint in the bankruptcy case." In re Brosio, 505 B.R. 903, 912 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2014). "And a claim objection by the debtor is analogous to an answer." Id.

Although litigation of the Claim and the Objection was to determine whether Schuller held an allowable claim against Debtor's bankruptcy estate, the dispute was an action "on the contract." Schuller by filing the Claim, based on the contract, was seeking to enforce the Agreement and recover damages for breach of the Agreement from Debtor's bankruptcy estate and Debtor, by filing the Objection, disputed Schuller's claim or right to enforce the Agreement. In determining whether to sustain the Objection, the Court had to determine the enforceability of the Agreement against Debtor. As such, the litigation of the Objection was an action "on the contract" for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717.

In the Opposition, Schuller argues that the Claim was not based on the Agreement, but rather on an account stated. However, the Court has already determined that the gravamen of Schuller's claim was breach of contract [doc. 148]. Schuller further argues that to the extent any services were related to a contract, they were not determined on the merits, but rather based on the statute of limitations, a procedural mechanism, which is not on the contract. Schuller cites Midland Funding, LLC v. Johnson, 137 S. Ct. 1407 (2017) for this proposition.

In Midland Funding, LLC the creditor filed a proof of claim in the debtor's chapter 13 bankruptcy case, asserting that the debtor owed the creditor credit-card debt and noting that the last time that any charge appeared on the debtor's account was more than ten years ago. Id. at 1408. The relevant statute of limitations under Alabama law is six years. Id. at 1408-09. The debtor objected to the claim and the bankruptcy court disallowed it. Id. at 1409. The debtor then brought a lawsuit against the creditor seeking actual damages, statutory damages, attorneys' fees and costs for a violation of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1692k (the "FDCPA"). Id. at 1411. The debtor claimed that the creditor filing of a proof of claim on an obviously time-barred debt was "false," "deceptive," "misleading," "unconscionable" and "unfair" within the meaning of the FDCPA, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1692e, 1692f. Id. 1409. The Supreme Court of the United States held that "filing (in a Chapter 13 bankruptcy proceeding) a proof of claim that is obviously time barred is not a false, deceptive, misleading, unfair, or unconscionable debt collection practice within the meaning of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act." Id. at 1415-16.

Midland Funding, LLC is distinguishable from this case. Midland Funding, LLC involved attorneys' fees under the FDCPA. The FDCPA allows for an award of reasonable attorneys' fees in a successful action for a violation of its provisions. In order to find a violation of its provisions, the debt collection practice must be false, deceptive, misleading, unfair or unconscionable. In contrast, Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 contains no such prerequisite before awarding attorneys' fees. Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717(a), the three conditions that must be met are: (1) the action in which the fees are incurred must be an action "on a contract;" (2) the contract must contain a provision stating that attorneys' fees incurred to enforce the contract shall be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party; and (3) the party seeking fees must be the party who prevailed on the contract. Penrod, 802 F.3d at 1087-88.

Finally, "a party is entitled to attorney fees under section 1717 'even when the party prevails on grounds the contract is inapplicable, invalid, unenforceable or nonexistent, if the other party would have been entitled to attorneys' fees had it prevailed.'" Hsu v.

Abbara, 9 Cal. 4th 863, 870, 891 P.2d 804 (1995) (citing *Bovard v. American Horse Enterprises, Inc.*, 201 Cal.App.3d 832, 842 (1988)). Moreover, several courts have found that dismissal of an action based on the expiration of the statute of limitations is treated as a dismissal on the merits for purposes of awarding attorneys' fees under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717. St. Julien v. Bank of Am., No. CV142410FMOMRWX, 2016 WL 9211677, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 31, 2016); see also Yenidunya Invs., Ltd. v. Dovebid, Inc., 2011 WL 5080175, *1 & *3 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (defendants were prevailing party under Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 on the grounds that plaintiff's claim was time-barred). As such, litigation of the Claim and the Objection was an action "on the contract" for purposes of Ca. Civ. Code § 1717.

ii. *There is an Attorneys' Fees Provision in the Agreement

Regarding the second condition of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717, paragraph 9 of the Agreement contains a provision stating that attorneys' fees incurred during any litigation, arbitration or proceeding arising out of, or relating to the Agreement must be awarded to the prevailing party. The provision in the Agreement is sufficient to satisfy the second condition of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717.

In the Opposition, Schuller argues mediation was a condition precedent to seeking attorneys' fees under the Agreement. Schuller contends that paragraph 19 of the Agreement creates a condition precedent, and that Debtor did not satisfy the condition precedent to allow an award of attorneys' fees. However, nowhere in paragraph 19 of the Agreement does it state that mediation is a condition precedent to the award of attorneys' fees under paragraph 9. Further, any requirement of mediation was waived when Schuller filed the 2004 Application and the Claim without first seeking mediation.

iii. *Debtor is the Prevailing Party

Regarding the third condition of Cal. Civ. Code § 1717, "in deciding whether there is a 'party prevailing on the contract,' the trial court is to compare the relief awarded on the contract claim or claims with the parties' demands on those same claims and their litigation objectives as disclosed by the pleadings, trial briefs, opening statements, and similar sources." Hsu v. Abbara, 9 Cal. 4th 863, 876 (1995). "The prevailing party determination is to be made only upon final resolution of the contract claims and only by 'a comparison of the extent to which each party ha[s] succeeded and failed to succeed in its contentions.'" Id. (citing Bank of Idaho v. Pine Avenue Associates, 137 Cal.App.3d 5, 15 (1982)).

"In determining litigation success, courts should respect substance rather than form, and to this extent should be guided by 'equitable considerations.'" (emphasis in original) Id. at 877. "For example, a party who is denied direct relief on a claim may nonetheless be found to be a prevailing party if it is clear that the party has otherwise achieved its main litigation objective." Id. "But when one party obtains a 'simple, unqualified win' on the single contract claim presented by the action, the trial court may not invoke equitable considerations unrelated to litigation success, such as the parties' behavior during settlement negotiations or discovery proceedings, except as expressly authorized by statute." Id.

"When a defendant obtains a simple, unqualified victory by defeating the only contract claim in the action, section 1717 entitles the successful defendant to recover reasonable attorney fees incurred in defense of that claim if the contract contained a provision for attorney fees." Id. at 877. "The trial court has no discretion to deny attorney fees to the defendant in this situation by finding that there was no party prevailing on the contract." Id.

Here, Debtor is the prevailing party. Debtor's litigation objective was to defeat the Claim. The determination of the allowance of the Claim was a final resolution of the only contract claim in the action. Further, sustaining the Objection was an unqualified victory by Debtor because the Court's decision was purely good news for Debtor and bad for Schuller. Debtor obtained all relief requested on the only contract claim in the action. Thus, Debtor must be regarded as the prevailing party. As such, Debtor is entitled to attorneys' fees pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code § 1717 for services provided in connection with the Claim and the Objection.

B. CCP §§ 1021 and 1032

Under CCP § 1033.5(a), the following items are allowable as costs pursuant to § 1032:

(10) Attorneys' fees, when authorized by any of the following:

i. The Language of the Agreement

Here, the relevant provision in the Agreement states: "The prevailing party in any litigation, arbitration or proceeding arising out of, or relating to, this Agreement...must be awarded all actual attorney's fees and cost it incurred." Agreement, ¶ 9 (emphasis added). Several California courts have held that the phrase "arising out of" is broad enough to encompass both tort and contract actions. *See Santisas v. 1544 (1996) (holding that attorneys' fees provision stating that "any legal action, proceeding or arbitration arising out of this agreement" would provide the prevailing party to reasonable attorneys' fees encompasses tort actions) (emphasis added); Lerner v. Ward, 13 Cal.App.4th 155 (Ct. App. 1993); Xuereb v. Marcus & Millichap, Inc., 3 Cal.App.4th 1338, 1341 (Ct. App. 1992).

Here, as in Xuereb and Lerner, the language in the Agreement is broad enough to encompass a nondischargeability action based on fraud. The Agreement explicitly provides for attorneys' fees in "any litigation, arbitration or proceeding arising out of this Agreement." Agreement, ¶ 9 (emphasis added). The "arising out of" language in the Agreement mirrors the language in the attorneys' fees provision in Lerner and is the exact same phrase held by several courts to be broad enough to encompass tort actions.

However, Schuller never filed a nondischargeability action against Debtor. Schuller only filed the 2004 Application and the Motion to Extend Time. According to the language in the Agreement, attorneys' fees must be awarded for any litigation, arbitration or proceeding. The 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Motion to Extend Time are clearly not arbitration. As discussed below, the 2004 Application and the Motion to Extend Time are similarly not considered litigation, but rather prelitigation.

"Rule 2004 is the basic discovery device in bankruptcy cases." In re Mastro, 585 B.R. 587, 596–97 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2018). "It allows broad examination relating to 'the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or to the debtor's right to a discharge.'" Id.; Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2004(b). "As an investigatory tool, its nature is inquisitory rather than accusatory, although information discovered by its employment may presage litigation." In re Symington, 209 B.R. 678, 683–84 (Bankr. D. Md. 1997).

"A Rule 2004 examination is undertaken prelitigation, that is, before the filing of a lawsuit or motion, whereas discovery in the context of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is pretrial, that is, after the filing of a complaint or motion, but before a hearing on dispositive motions or trial on the merits." Id.; see also In re Dinubilo, 177 B.R. 932, 941 (E.D. obviously requires the pendency of a bankruptcy case." Symington, 209 B.R. at 683–84. As such, a Rule 2004 examination "is independent of a complaint or contested matter." Id. "Once a contested matter is pending, discovery requests are granted under Rule 9014, which invokes the procedural safeguards of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure." Dinubilo, 177 B.R. at 941; see also In re French, 145 B.R. 991, 992 \(Bankr.D.S.D.1992\) ("If a contested matter or adversary proceeding is pending, Rule 2004 should not be used, but rather, the various discovery provisions of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure should apply.").

As discussed above, the 2004 Application is considered prelitigation as it is just an investigatory tool that allows examination into the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor. Similarly, the Protective Order Motion, which was filed in response to the 2004 Application, is also prelitigation. Moreover, the Motion to Extend Time is also a prelitigation motion because in the motion, Schuller requested more time to file a nondischargeability action against Debtor. No such nondischargeability action was ever filed by Schuller. As such, the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Motion to Extend are not considered litigation, but rather prelitigation.

ii. Prevailing Party

Even if the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Motion to Extend Time were proceedings under the Agreement, Debtor is not the prevailing party on any of those motions. Pursuant to CCP § 1032(a)(4)—

"Prevailing party" includes the party with a net monetary recovery, a defendant in whose favor a dismissal is entered, a defendant where neither plaintiff nor defendant obtains any relief, and a defendant as against those plaintiffs who do not recover any relief against that defendant. When any party recovers other than monetary relief and in situations other than as specified, the "prevailing party" shall be as determined by the court, and under those circumstances, the court, in its discretion, may allow costs or not and, if allowed may apportion costs between the parties on the same or adverse sides pursuant to rules adopted under Section 1034.

"Where a party falls squarely within one of these four definitions, a trial court has little discretion in determining the prevailing party, particularly when there is a party with a 'net monetary recovery.'" Mac-Go Corp., 541 B.R. at 715 (citing Goodman v.

Lozano, 47 Cal.4th 1327 (2010)). Otherwise, the statute "leaves the determination of the prevailing party to the trial court's discretion." Heimlich v. Shivji, 12 Cal.App.5th 152, 160 (Ct. App. 2017).

"[S]ection 1032(a)(4) defines the party with a 'net monetary recovery' as the 'prevailing party.' The word 'recover' means 'to gain by legal process' or 'to obtain a final legal judgment in one's favor.'" deSaulles v. Cmty. Hosp. of Monterey Peninsula, 62 Cal.4th 1140, 1153 (2016) (citing Goodman v. Lozano, 47 Cal.4th 1327, 1334 (2010)).

Regarding the 2004 Application and the Protective Order Motion, Debtor does not fall squarely within one of the four definitions under CCP § 1032(a)(4). Although the court can deny or grant a Rule 2004 application, there is not a winner or loser as with most litigation because a Rule 2004 examination is merely an investigatory tool and occurs before litigation. Further, the Court did not decide the 2004 Application and the Protective Order Motion on the merits, but rather denied them as moot as a result of lack of standing. Consequently, the determination of the prevailing party is left to this Court's discretion. The Court finds that neither party prevailed on the 2004 Application nor the Protective Order Motion.

Regarding the Motion to Extend Time, the Court granted the Motion in favor of Schuller. As such, Debtor cannot be the prevailing party under CCP § 1032(a)(4) on that motion. Thus, Debtor is not entitled to attorneys' fees for services provided in connection with the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Motion to Extend Time.

C. Reasonableness of Fees

Debtor bears the burden of proving that the fees sought are reasonable. Center for Biological Diversity v. Cty. of San Bernardino, 188 Cal.App.4th 603, 615 (Ct. App. 2010); In re Atwood, 293 B.R. 227, 233 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2003). Both California state courts and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals customarily assess the reasonableness of attorneys' fees utilizing the "lodestar" approach where the number of hours reasonably expended is multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate. Ketchum v. Moses, 24 Cal.4th 1122, 1131 (2001); In re Eliapo, 468 F.3d 592, 598 (9th Cir. 2006).

"A district court should exclude from the lodestar amount hours that are not reasonably expended because they are 'excessive, redundant, or otherwise unnecessary.'" Van Gerwen v. Guarantee Mut. Life Co., 214 F.3d 1041, 1045 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 434, 103 S.Ct. 1933, 1939-40, 76 L.Ed.2d 40 (1983)). "After computing the lodestar, the court must assess whether additional considerations require adjustment of the figure, such as the novelty or complexity of the issues, the skill and experience of counsel, the quality of representation and the results obtained." PSM Holding, 2015 WL 11652518 at *4.

Although Debtor is a prevailing party entitled to attorneys' fees and costs for services in connection with the Claim and the Objection, those fees and costs must be reasonable. In the Declaration of Robert M. Yaspan (the "Yaspan Decl.") [doc. 162], Debtor's attorney testifies that Debtor incurred attorneys' fees and costs totaling $20,378.00 for services in connection with the Claim, the Objection and the Motion. Yaspan Decl., ¶¶ 10-11. Mr. Yaspan states that Debtor incurred $14,215.00 in fees to prosecute the Objection and $6,163.00 in fees to prosecute the Motion. Yaspan Decl., ¶¶ 10-11. Mr. Yaspan also anticipates incurring $1,535.00 to file a reply to the Opposition and to appear at the hearing on the Motion. Yaspan Decl., ¶ 19. Mr. Yaspan's rate is $595.00 per hour. Yaspan Decl., ¶ 12. This is reasonable for an attorney in Los Angeles with Mr. Yaspan's experience. Further, the Court has already reviewed Mr. Yaspan's billing records in connection with the Fee Application. The Court reviewed the fees incurred for services relating to the Claim and the Objection through July 24, 2018, and found that the fees were reasonable. The remaining fees relating to the Claim, the Objection and the Motion (Yaspan Decl., Exh. B) appear reasonable.

D. Schuller's Request for Setoff/Recoupment

In the Opposition, Schuller argues that it is entitled to utilize its claim as a setoff. Schuller contends that while setoff under 11 U.S.C. § 553 typically applies to mutual prepetition claims, recoupment provides that prepetition claims may be equitably setoff against postpetition claims.

"Setoff allows adjustments of mutual debts arising out of separate transactions between the parties." In re Harmon, 188 B.R. 421, 425 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1995). "To invoke setoff, § 553 requires that each of the mutual debts arise before commencement of the case." Id. Further, setoff is limited to the by the provisions in 11 U.S.C. § 553, including that setoff is not applicable when the "claim by such creditor against debtor has been disallowed." 11 U.S.C. § 553(a)(1). Here, Debtor's claim for attorneys' fees arose postpetition and Schuller's claim was disallowed. As such, setoff is not applicable.

"Equitable recoupment is a common law doctrine that is not expressly recognized in the Bankruptcy Code, but is preserved through judicial decisions." In re Process Am., Inc., 588 B.R. 82, 105 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2018). "Recoupment 'is the setting up of a demand arising from the same transaction as the plaintiff's claim or cause of action, strictly for the purpose of abatement or reduction of such claim.'" Id. (quoting Newbery Corp. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 95 F.3d 1392, 1399 (9th Cir.1996) (quoting 4 Collier on Bankruptcy, ¶ 553.03, at 553–15 (15th ed.1995)) (emphasis in original). "It involves 'netting out debt,' and is allowed 'because it would be inequitable not to allow the defendant to recoup those payments against the debtor's subsequent claim.'" Id. (quoting Newbery, 95 F.3d at 1401). "In recoupment, the respective claims may arise either before or after the commencement of the bankruptcy case, but they must arise out of the same transaction." Id.

However, a party's "substantive right to setoff and recoupment under § 553 is governed by California law." In re Adams, No. 8:09-BK-12450-TA, 2018 WL 3748816, at *9 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Aug. 7, 2018). "California law clearly recognizes the right to setoff, setting forth procedures for setoff in Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70, and a defense of equitable recoupment is a species of setoff." Id.

Pursuant to Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70—

Where cross-demands for money have existed between persons at any point in time when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations, and an action is thereafter commenced by one such person, the other person may assert in the answer the defense of payment in that the two demands are compensated so far as they equal each other, notwithstanding that an independent action asserting the person's claim would at the time of filing the answer be barred by the statute of limitations. If the cross-demand would otherwise be barred by the statute of limitations, the relief accorded under this section shall not exceed the value of the relief granted to the other party. The defense provided by this section is not available if the cross-demand is barred for failure to assert it in a prior action under Section 426.30. Neither person can be deprived of the benefits of this section by the assignment or death of the other. For the purposes of this section, a money judgment is a "demand for money" and, as applied to a money judgment, the demand is barred by the statute of limitations when enforcement of the judgment is barred under Chapter 3 (commencing with Section 683.010) of Division 1 of Title 9.

Here, the Court found that the Claim was barred by the statute of limitations. Moreover, Debtor's demand for attorneys' fees arises from a separate transaction as the Claim. Debtor's claim for attorney's fees arose more than ten years after Schuller had been terminated. While the Motion is related to the Agreement for purposes of the attorneys' fees provision in paragraph 9 of the Agreement, the right to an attorneys' fees award did not arise from the same transaction as the breach of contract alleged in the Claim. See, e.g., In re University Medical Center, 973 F.2d 1065, 1081 (3rd Cir. 1992)(holding that recoupment not appropriate when debts at issue did not arise out of single integrated transaction). As such, recoupment does not apply in this case.

E. Alleged Forgery of Moshe Adri's Signature on the Agreement

In the Opposition, Schuller argues that subsequent to the filing of the Motion, Schuller was notified that Debtor forged her ex-husband's signature on the addendum to the Agreement rendering it voidable. See also Declaration of Moshe Adri, doc. 177. However, the original Agreement was for representation of Debtor only [doc. 143-3, Exh. 1]. The addendum to the Agreement only altered the identification of the parties to the Agreement in that Moshe Adri was added as a party to the Agreement. Further, Debtor disputes that she forged her ex-husband's signature on the addendum to the Agreement. Declaration of Deborah Adri, doc. 182.

Even if Debtor forged Moshe Adri's signature on the addendum to the Agreement, that would not make the Agreement voidable as between Debtor and Schuller. Schuller has not alleged that Debtor's signature on the agreement is forged. As such, based on the evidence before the Court at this time, it appears that the attorneys' fee provision in the Agreement is valid and enforceable as between Debtor and Schuller.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion as to fees and costs incurred in connection with the 2004 Application, the Protective Order Motion and the Motion to Extend Time. The Court will grant the Motion as to fees and costs incurred in connection with the Claim, the Objection and the Motion in the amount of $20,378.00.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 19, 2018, Momentum Development, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. In its schedule E/F, Debtor listed a claim in favor of DCA Drilling & Construction, Inc. ("DCA") in the amount of $200,000.

On September 25, 2018, DCA filed a motion to examine Debtor pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("Rule") 2004 (the "Motion") [doc. 15]. In the Motion, DCA requests a Rule 2004 examination to investigate alleged transfers made by Debtor to another entity. On September 28, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 16], asserting that DCA would not have standing to recover any such transfers on behalf of the estate. On October 25, 2018, DCA filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 19]. In the Reply, DCA again states that its purpose for requesting a Rule 2004 examination is to investigate potential transfers from Debtor to another entity. DCA also notes that any such investigation may aid the chapter 7 trustee.

(a) Examination on motion

On motion of any party in interest, the court may order the examination of any entity.

(b) Scope of examination

The examination of an entity under this rule or of the debtor under § 343 of the Code may relate only to the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or to the debtor's right to a discharge. In a family farmer's debt adjustment case under chapter 12, an individual's debt adjustment case under chapter 13, or a reorganization case under chapter 11 of the Code, other than for the reorganization of a railroad, the examination may also relate to the operation of any business and the desirability of its continuance, the source of any money or property acquired or to be acquired by the debtor for purposes of consummating a plan and the consideration given or offered therefor, and any other matter relevant to the case or to the formulation of a plan.

"Rule 2004 is the basic discovery device in bankruptcy cases. It allows broad examination relating to 'the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or to the debtor's right to discharge.'" In re Mastro, 585 B.R. 587, 596-97 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2018) (citing In re Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. 823, 829 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2011)). "As the Rule's text makes clear, the scope of a Rule 2004 examination is 'unfettered and broad'; the rule essentially permits a 'fishing expedition.'" Id., at 597 (citing Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. at 829). However, "Rule 2004 is not without its limits." Id.

"When a party seeks to conduct a 2004 examination, and the party to be examined objects, the former must show that it has 'good cause' to conduct the examination." Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. at 829. "Generally, good cause is shown if the Rule 2004 examination is necessary to establish the claim of the party seeking the examination, or if denial of such request would cause the examiner undue hardship or injustice." Id. (internal quotation omitted). "Once the examiner establishes the existence of ‘good cause,’ the burden shifts back to the objecting party to show that examination would be oppressive or burdensome." Id. "The opportunity for such an examination is available to ‘any party in interest,’ Fed. R. Bankr.P. Rule 2004(a), but whether or not the court allows the examination is a matter committed to its discretion and requires a sufficient cause." In re J & R Trucking, Inc., 431 B.R. 818, 821 (Bankr. N.D. Ind. 2010).

For instance, in Mastro, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") found that the chapter 7 trustee could issue a consent directive in connection with a Rule 2004 motion because such a request is tied into the chapter 7 trustee’s statutory investigative duties under 11 U.S.C. § 704. Mastro, 585 B.R. at 597. The BAP stated:

[W]e stop short of a determination that Rule 2004, in isolation, would justify issuance of a consent directive to anyone other than a chapter 7 trustee. But where, as here, it enables the financial affairs investigation required by the Code, it is firmly tethered to the Trustee's § 704 statutory duties. Thus, issuance of a consent directive in connection with a Rule 2004 examination request is entirely consistent with the broad inquiry into a debtor's financial affairs authorized by the Code.

Id. Unlike Mastro, here, DCA does not have a statutory duty to investigate transfers from Debtor to third parties, and, even if DCA does uncover any such transfers, does not have the authority to avoid and recover such transfers for the benefit of the estate. That authority lies with the chapter 7 trustee. See 11 U.S.C. § 547-550.

J & R Trucking is particularly instructive in this case. There, creditors moved to conduct a Rule 2004 examination for three reasons: (A) "to determine whether there are any other trades or businesses which were under common control with the debtor on the date it withdrew from [a] pension fund and, therefore, which might be liable for the debtor’s obligations to that fund;" (B) "to determine if [another entity] might be liable, as a successor to the debtor, for the debtor’s obligations to" the creditors; and (C) to obtain "information concerning transfers made prior to the petition, which might be recoverable by the trustee." J & R Trucking, 431 B.R. at 819-20. In assessing whether creditors could obtain this information through a Rule 2004 examination, the J & R Trucking court, like the BAP in Mastro, discussed the broad use of Rule 2004 examinations by chapter 7 trustees tasked with investigating debtors:

The broad scope of a 2004 examination arises out of its purpose. Particularly in chapter 7 cases, such as the ones before the court, it is an investigatory device trustees can use in order to quickly gather the information they need to do their job properly. See, Dinubilo, 177 B.R. at 940; In re Bennett Funding Group, Inc., 203 B.R. 24, 28 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1996); In re Valley Forge Plaza Associates, 109 B.R. 669, 674 (Bankr. E.D. Pa. 1990); Wilcher, 56 B.R. at 433–34; In re Good Hope Refineries, Inc., 9 B.R. 421, 423 (Bankr. Mass. 1981). That job, of course, is to investigate the debtor, and the assets of and claims against the bankruptcy estate, turn the assets into cash and distribute those funds to creditors, all as expeditiously as possible. 11 U.S.C. § 704. Ideally, those with knowledge of such things will voluntarily cooperate with the trustee and give the trustee access to the information they have concerning the debtor's affairs. Unfortunately, that is not always the case, and so Rule 2004 provides a vehicle by which the trustee can compel that "cooperation." It allows the trustee to do the necessary investigatory work without the need for initiating formal litigation which would trigger the traditional discovery tools. Indeed, one purpose for such an examination is to give the trustee the information needed to determine whether litigation should be filed.

Id., at 821-22. The J & R Trucking court then held that the same reasoning did not apply to creditors:

In assessing the propriety of a request for a 2004 examination, its purpose as an investigatory device arising out of the needs of the trustee should be kept in mind, and where a proposed examination goes beyond that purpose it should be carefully scrutinized. Here, both motions, although couched in the rule's language of matters affecting the administration of the estate and investigating the conduct of the debtor, exceed those boundaries. Remember, these are chapter 7 cases and it is the trustee's the duty to investigate the debtor's affairs and the rights of the bankruptcy estate. To the extent the movants seek to discover avoidable transfers, they are intruding upon the trustee's duties and taking those duties upon themselves. While the court may understand their curiosity, there is nothing the movants could do with that information once they got it. They could not act upon it, or seek to recover any such transfers; the trustee has the exclusive right to do so. Matter of Perkins, 902 F.2d 1254, 1258 (7th Cir. 1990) (If a third party tries to prosecute a cause of action belonging to the trustee, the action should be dismissed.). So, in that sense, their examination can serve no real purpose.

Id., at 822. The court concluded that, if the creditors "genuinely want to help the trustee, should the trustee desire that assistance, they must do so directly, acting for, at the behest of, and in the name of the trustee, and not indirectly, in a manner that treats the trustee as simply an incidental beneficiary of an endeavor actually undertaken for someone else." Id.; see also In re E. W. Resort Dev. V, L.P., L.L.L.P., 2014 WL 4537500, at *8 (Bankr. D. Del. Sept. 12, 2014) (denying a creditor's motion for Rule 2004 examination because recovery beyond the moving creditor's allowed claim was impossible and an examination by the moving creditor "would be futile").

Here, as in J & R Trucking, DCA seeks to examine Debtor to investigate any transfers made by Debtor to third parties. For the reasons set forth by the J & R Trucking court, the chapter 7 trustee is tasked with the investigation, avoidance and recovery of transfers. As such, without the chapter 7 trustee explicitly requesting DCA's assistance, DCA does not have a purpose for the 2004 examination; even if DCA uncovers transfers from Debtor to a third party, DCA cannot use that information to avoid the transfers or recover the transfers for the benefit of the estate.

After Debtor filed an objection to the Motion, the burden shifted to DCA to show "good cause" for the examination. Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. at 829. In both the Motion and the Reply, DCA's sole articulated purpose for conducting a Rule 2004 examination is to investigate Debtor's relationship with a different entity and any transfers made to that entity. As noted by Subpoena Duces Tecum, "[g]enerally, good cause is shown if the Rule 2004 examination is necessary to establish the claim of the party seeking the examination, or if denial of such request would cause the examiner undue hardship or injustice." Id. Here, DCA has not stated that it needs to examine Debtor to establish its claim against the estate, and DCA has not articulated any undue hardship or injustice it may suffer as a result of denial of the Motion. Instead, DCA seeks an examination to investigate alleged transfers from Debtor to another entity, which is a duty assigned by statute to the chapter 7 trustee. Under J & R Trucking, a creditor's attempt to assume the chapter 7 trustee's duties through a Rule 2004 examination is inappropriate without the chapter 7 trustee's explicit consent. Consequently, the Court will deny the Motion.

Tentative Ruling:

Keeping in mind that the "ASAI Receivable" is a finite sum of money, it appears that the debtor has not demonstrated the existence of adequate protection for its proposed, ongoing use of the monthly payments made by "ASAI."

Concerning the employment of special litigation counsel, at this point in the litigation with ASAI (several years following the filing of the Complaint against ASAI, and with a trial set in May 2019), the Court is not inclined to approve employment that requires payment of a $6,000 monthly flat fee. As noted in a Declaration of Nasrollah Gashtili, signed on October 31, 2018, proposed special litigation counsel has "prepared for trial already" and "is thoroughly familiar with the facts and law relevant to the case."

On the other hand, providing a higher contingency fee to proposed special litigation counsel, in lieu of providing a monthly flat fee postpetition, may be appropriate.

#11.00 Confirmation hearing re chapter 11 plan of reorganization

fr. 11/15/18

Docket 50

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will confirm the debtor's chapter 11 plan dated July 31, 2018 [doc. 50], as amended by a stipulation filed on October 1, 2018 [doc. 65] and the Declaration of Eduardo Jacinto [doc. 77] (i.e. general unsecured creditors in class 6(b) will be paid 100% of their claims in full on the Effective Date).

No later than February 28, 2019, the debtor must file a status report explaining what progress has been made toward consummation of the confirmed plan of reorganization. The initial report must be served on the United States trustee and the secured creditors. The status report must comply with the provisions of Local Bankruptcy Rule 3020-1(b) AND BE SUPPORTED BY EVIDENCE. A postconfirmation status conference will be held on March 14, 2019 at 1:00 p.m.

The debtor must submit a plan confirmation order within seven (7) days.

Ruling from 11/15/2018

On September 24, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the use of the debtor's disclosure statement to solicit acceptances and rejections of the debtor's chapter 11 plan [doc. 63]. On October 1, 2018, the debtor and Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. ("Wells Fargo") entered into a stipulation regarding the treatment of Wells Fargo's claim under the debtor's chapter 11 plan (the "Stipulation") [doc. 65]. On October 3, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 68].

The Stipulation increases the debtor's monthly plan payment to Wells Fargo from $2,775.00 to $2,975.52. It also requires the debtor to make a lump sum payment of $12,000.00 to Wells Fargo on November 30, 2018.

Chapter 11

In light of the Stipulation, the Court will continue this hearing to November 29, 2018 at 2:00 p.m. In order for the Court to assess whether the debtor's chapter 11 plan complies with 11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(11), no later than November 26, 2018, the debtor must file an updated income and expense projection for six-months following the confirmation of the plan of reorganization, which reflects the debtor's actual income and expenses, as set forth in the debtor's last six monthly operating reports.

The updated income and expense projection must include the increased monthly payments to Wells Fargo, as well as any other plan payments.

#4.00 Second amended disclosure statement hearing

fr. 7/19/18

Docket 81

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to the Court's instructions from the prior hearing on the debtors' original disclosure statement, the debtors did not include monthly projections in their disclosure statement. Moreover, the amounts listed in the debtors' projected income and expenses do not match the amounts the debtors propose to pay in their amended chapter 11 plan. For instance, in their amended chapter 11 plan, the debtors indicate their monthly mortgage payment is $4,531.72. However, in the projections, the debtors list their monthly mortgage and dues as $4,088.29. In addition, in their projections, the debtors list monthly plan payments of $2,543, but it is unclear how the debtors calculated this number.

Further, the debtors indicate in the attachments to the disclosure statement that the Emery Lane property is worth $950,000 (an increase in value from the value shown in their Schedule D). However, on page 5 of the disclosure statement, they state that the Emery Lane property is worth $890,000.

What was the list price of the Emery Lane property, during which time the debtors were unable to sell that property?

The debtors must provide detailed information about their efforts to sell that property, e.g., the list price(s), the period of time related to each list price, the number of open houses and showings of the property that have occurred, and the details of any offers to purchase received, including the date of the offer and the amount.

The Court questions why, if the value of the Emery Lane property (the debtors' residence) has increased since the petition date, the value of the Whitley Avenue property (the debtors' rental condominium, in Avalon) has not increased since that date.

fr. 12/21/17; 1/11/18; 5/24/18; 6/7/18; 7/19/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will set a deadline of April 1, 2019 for the debtors to confirm a chapter 11 plan.

Although the debtors' case has been pending since November 7, 2017, the debtors have not yet obtained Court approval of a disclosure statement. The debtors acknowledge that, as a result of substantial equity in their two real properties, they must pay all creditors in full. However, they also note that they have not sold their residence, which was listed for sale months ago, and that their second amended chapter 11 plan faces feasibility issues. To avoid further unnecessary delay in the payment of creditors, if the debtors do not confirm a chapter 11 plan by April 1, 2019, the Court may appoint a chapter 11 trustee or convert this case to a case under chapter 7.

The Court will prepare an order setting that deadline for the debtors to confirm a chapter 11 plan.

Bureaus Investment Group Portfolio No 15, LLC

Docket 74

Tentative Ruling:

Sustain.

I. BACKGROUND

On February 16, 2016, Salvador Nevarez ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. Nancy J. Zamora was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In Debtor's schedule E/F, Debtor listed several debts owed to Capital One: (A) a $3,418 owed as to the account ending with the digits 9593; (B) a $2,213 debt owed as to the account ending with the digits 5838; and (C) a $3,582 debt owed as to the account ending with the digits 8023. Debtor did not schedule a debt owed to Bureaus Investment Group Portfolio No 15 LLC ("Bureaus").

On May 2, 2016, Bureaus filed proof of claim no. 1-1 in the amount of $3,920.26. In the proof of claim, Bureaus indicated that it acquired the claim from Capital One. Bureaus also indicated that the last four digits of the account it acquired are 3719. To the proof of claim, Bureaus attached a Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 3001(c)(2)(A) statement, again indicating that it acquired the debt from Capital One. Bureaus did not otherwise provide documentation evidencing a transfer of a debt owed by Debtor from Capital One to Bureaus.

On October 26, 2018, the Trustee filed an objection to Bureaus' claim (the "Objection") [doc. 74]. In the Objection, the Trustee asserts that Bureaus does not have standing to seek payment from the estate because there is no evidence that Capital One assigned one of Debtor's accounts to Bureaus. Bureaus has not timely filed a response to the Objection.

11 U.S.C. § 502(a) provides that a proof of claim is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest objects. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f) provides that a proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the rules constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim. See also Local Bankruptcy Rule 3007-1(c) ("an objection to claim must be supported by admissible evidence sufficient to overcome the evidentiary effect of a properly documented proof of claim").

"To defeat the claim, the objector must come forward with sufficient evidence and show facts tending to defeat the claim by probative force equal to that of the allegations of the proofs of claim themselves." Lundell v. Anchor Const. Specialists, Inc., 223 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2000) (internal citation omitted). "If the objector produces sufficient evidence to negate one or more of the sworn facts in the proof of claim, the burden reverts to the claimant to prove the validity of the claim by a preponderance of the evidence. The ultimate burden of persuasion remains at all times upon the claimant." Id. (internal citations omitted); In re Laptops Etc. Corp., 164 B.R. 506, 522 (Bankr. D. Md. 1993) (burden shifts to claimant, who has ultimate burden of persuasion as to validity of its claim, only "upon objection to the claim coupled with the admission of probative evidence which tends to sufficiently rebut the prima facie validity of the claim"); see also In re Campbell, 336 B.R. 430, 436 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005) ("[o]bjections without substance are inadequate to disallow claims, even if those claims lack the documentation required by Rule 3001(c).").

Here, the Trustee asserts that there is no evidence that Bureaus has standing to obtain payment from the estate. Because the Trustee is objecting on the basis of standing, the Trustee is correct that cases like Campbell, supra, do not apply to this case. In Campbell, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") held that:

We emphasize, as we did in Heath, that a creditor who files a proof of claim that lacks sufficient support under Rule 3001(c) and (f) does so at its own risk. That proof of claim will lack prima facie validity, so any objection that raises a legal or factual ground to disallow the claim will likely prevail absent an adequate response by the creditor. Moreover, a creditor's lack of adequate response to a debtor's formal or informal inquiries "in itself may raise an evidentiary basis to object to the unsupported aspects of the claim, or even a basis for evidentiary sanctions, thereby coming within Section 502(b)'s grounds to disallow the claim." Heath, 331 B.R. at 437 (citations omitted).

Campbell, 336 B.R. at 436 (citing In re Heath, 331 B.R. 424 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005)). In other words, although a lack of documentation alone is insufficient to disallow a claim, if the objecting party raises a substantive issue under 11 U.S.C. § 502(b), the claimant's failure to respond or provide sufficient evidence may lead to disallowance of the claim. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(1), the Court may disallow claim if "such claim is unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law for a reason other than because such claim is contingent or unmatured."

The Trustee asserts that the claim is unenforceable against the estate because Bureaus has not demonstrated that Capital One assigned one of Debtor's accounts to Bureaus. In addition, Debtor did not schedule Bureaus as a creditor, and because the account number included in Bureaus' proof of claim is different from the account numbers listed in Debtor's schedules, it is unclear from Debtor's schedules if Bureaus inherited one of the accounts listed by Debtor. Because Bureaus did not respond to the Objection with a transfer or assignment agreement between Capital One and Bureaus, there is no evidence that Bureaus has a claim against the estate, and the Court should disallow the claim pursuant to § 502(b)(1).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will sustain the Objection.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

#10.10 Motion for FRBP 2004 examination of debtor Deborah Adri

Docket 201

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will grant the motion in part as set forth herein.

On February 16, 2018, Deborah Lois Adri ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In her schedule E/F, Debtor listed a disputed nonpriority unsecured claim in favor of Moshe Adri ("Creditor") in the amount of $1,353,835.48. Debtor indicated that the basis of Creditor's claim was an arbitration award and attorneys' fees.

On November 19, 2018, Creditor filed a Motion for FRBP Rule 2004 Examination of Debtor Deborah Adri (the "Motion") [doc. 201]. On November 20, 2018, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 204]. On November 29, 2018, Creditor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 207].

Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("Rule") 2004 states—

(a) Examination on motion

On motion of any party in interest, the court may order the examination of any entity.

(b) Scope of examination

The examination of an entity under this rule or of the debtor under § 343 of the Code may relate only to the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or to the debtor's right to a discharge. In a family farmer's debt adjustment case under chapter 12, an individual's debt adjustment case under chapter 13, or a reorganization case under chapter 11 of the Code, other than for the reorganization of a railroad, the examination may also relate to the operation of any business and the desirability of its

"Rule 2004 is the basic discovery device in bankruptcy cases. It allows broad examination relating to 'the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or to the debtor's right to discharge.'" In re Mastro, 585 B.R. 587, 596-97 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2018) (citing In re Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. 823, 829 (Bankr. However, "Rule 2004 is not without its limits." Id.

"When a party seeks to conduct a 2004 examination, and the party to be examined objects, the former must show that it has 'good cause' to conduct the examination." Subpoena Duces Tecum, 461 B.R. at 829. "Generally, good cause is shown if the Rule 2004 examination is necessary to establish the claim of the party seeking the examination, or if denial of such request would cause the examiner undue hardship or injustice." Id. (internal quotation omitted). "Once the examiner establishes the existence of 'good cause,' the burden shifts back to the objecting party to show that examination would be oppressive or burdensome." Id. "The opportunity for such an examination is available to 'any party in interest,' Fed. "Courts have imposed limits on the use of Rule 2004 examinations where the purpose of the examination is to abuse or harass, or under the well recognized rule that once an adversary proceeding or contested matter is commenced, discovery should be pursued under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and not by Rule 2004." Id.; *see also 2435 Plainfield Ave., Inc. v. that this limitation does not apply to parties not affected by, and issues not raised in, pending adversary proceedings).

Here, Creditor, a party in interest, is seeking the Rule 2004 examination in order to establish sufficient facts to support a denial of discharge under §§ 1141(d)(2), (d)(3) and § 727(a). As such, Creditor has shown good cause for the Rule 2004 examination. Further, the purpose of the Rule 2004 examination does not appear to be to abuse or harass Debtor, and there is no pending adversary proceeding or contested matter between Creditor and Debtor.

Thus, the burden shifts back to Debtor to show that the examination would be oppressive or burdensome. Creditor attached emails to the Motion showing his attempt to meet and confer with Debtor before filing the Motion [doc. 201, Exhs. 11-17]. In the November 16, 2018, email from Mr. Yaspan to Mr. Forsley [doc. 201, Exh. 15], Debtor states that she is willing to produce the documents that she has in her possession. However, Debtor states that she is not willing re-produce documents that were produced to Creditor during the recent arbitration. The Court finds that it would be burdensome for Debtor to re-produce documents that Creditor already has in his possession. Debtor did not submit evidence to the Court regarding which documents were already produced to Creditor.

In the Motion, Creditor also requests that the Court approve subpoenas to nine different third parties to produce documents [doc. 201, Exh. 18]. Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2004-1—

(a) Conference Required. Prior to filing a motion for examination or for production of documents under FRBP 2004, the moving party must attempt to confer (in person or telephonically) with the entity to be examined, or its counsel, to arrange for a mutually agreeable date, time, place, and scope of an examination or production.

(b) Motion. A motion for examination under FRBP 2004 must be filed stating the name, place of residence, and the place of employment of the entity to be examined, if known. The motion must include a declaration of counsel stating whether the required conference was held and the efforts made to obtain an agreeable date, time, place, and scope of an examination or production. LBR 2004-1 (emphasis added). Reading LBR 2004-1 as a whole, it requires the movant to file and serve a separate Rule 2004 motion on each entity which must produce documents. Creditor has not complied with LBR 2004-1. If Creditor is requesting that each of the nine entities listed in the Motion produce documents, Creditor must file and serve a separate Rule 2004 motion on each entity. Further, Creditor has not complied with LBR 2004-1(a). Creditor did not attempt to confer with each of the nine entities to arrange for a mutually agreeable date, time, place, and scope of an examination or production.

The Court will grant the Motion in regard to a Rule 2004 examination of Debtor. However, Debtor is not required to re-produce documents that were produced to Creditor during the recent arbitration. Regarding Creditor's document production request from Debtor, no later than December 20, 2018, Debtor must file a declaration identifying the responsive documents that were previously produced to Creditor during the arbitration. The parties should be prepared to discuss a possible date, time and place for the Rule 2004 examination.

from: 3/29/18; 4/12/18; 11/15/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

On November 15, 2018, the debtor filed a chapter 11 plan (the "Plan") and proposed related disclosure statement [docs. 196, 197]. The Court intends to set a hearing on the adequacy of the debtor's proposed disclosure statement on February 21, 2019 at 1:00 p.m.

In accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 3017-1, no later than January 10, 2019, the debtor must provide notice of the hearing, the ability of creditors to receive, on request, copies of the plan and related proposed disclosure statement, and the deadline to file any objections to the proposed disclosure statement.

In reviewing the debtor's monthly operating reports, the Court has noticed that the debtor is not properly completing Section II - regarding the status of payments to secured creditors, lessors and other parties to executory contracts, Section III - regarding tax liabilities, and Section VI - regarding United States Trustee quarterly fees. Further, in her October 2018 monthly operating report, the debtor did not properly complete Section XI.

In the status report filed on November 1, 2018 [doc. 187], the debtor states that "[h]er chief business activity at this time consists of the purchase of motor vehicles primarily from wholesale auction houses and then placing them for resale at a used-car dealership known as 'Ride on Autos'" [doc. 187, p. 1]. The debtor purchases "the vehicles and Ride-on-Autos sells the vehicles on consignment." Declaration of Deborah Adri, doc. 204, ¶ 4. "Title to the vehicles are in [the debtor's] name until sold, and not in Ride-on-Auto's name." Id.

To the extent that any vehicles have been sold, in her monthly operating reports, the debtor is not accurately reporting her tax liabilities.

#26.00 Chapter 13 confirmation hearing

Docket 82

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will sustain the creditor's objection to confirmation in part, and overrule that objection to confirmation in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On December 29, 2017, Mark Efrem Rosenberg (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. On January 11, 2018, the Debtor filed a chapter 13 plan (the "Plan") [doc. 11]. On the same day, the Debtor filed his schedules and statement of financial affairs [doc. 10].

A. The Debtor's Current Monthly Income

On his Form 122C-1, Debtor indicated that his current monthly income is below the median family income for his state and size of household [doc. 10]. Debtor reported that his income was $101,300.28, while the median family income for his state and size of household is $106,244.00.

The Debtor has a 35% interest in Arcade & Party Rental by GEMS ("GEMS"), which is organized as a chapter S corporation [doc. 64, Declaration of Mark Efrem Rosenberg, ¶ 11a]. Regarding his compensation from GEMS, the Debtor states in relevant part, 12a. I am paid fixed [sic] salary of $2,500.00 per month and a fixed draw of $3,500.00 per month. At the end of the year, we determine whether or not there is net income that is available to distribute to the owners, and if so, how much to distribute.

Doc. 64, Declaration of Mark Efrem Rosenberg, ¶¶ 12a-12b. (emphasis in original).

The Debtor reported $108,098.00 in income ($107,848.00 adjusted gross income) on his 2017 federal tax return, which included his and his non-filing spouse's income [doc. 79]. In 2017 the Debtor reported income from GEMS of $81,628.00; that income included his salary and his owner's draw [doc. 93, Declaration of Mark Efrem Rosenberg, ¶ 3]. According to the Debtor, although he reported $81,628.00, his gross take home income never exceeded $72,000.00 i.e. $6,000.00 per month consisting of his salary and owner's draw; the difference of $9,628.00 represents the amount of his unrealized share of GEMS 2017 profits that the Debtor left in the business for operational purposes. Id., at ¶¶ 5-6. The Debtor represents that at no time in 2015, 2016 or 2017, did he ever receive any additional ownership draw over and above his stated salary of $6,000.00 per month, and he does not anticipate receiving any additional ownership draw above his salary in 2018. Id., at ¶¶ 7-8.

B. The Debtor's Schedules

On September 13, 2018, the Debtor filed an amended Schedule J [doc. 76]. October 25, 2018, the Debtor filed an amended Schedule I ("Amended Schedule I") and a second amended Schedule J ("Second Amended Schedule J") [doc. 81]. In his Amended Schedule I, the Debtor states that his non-filing spouse is a teacher, whose income is $2,232.91 per month. The Debtor also represents that his in-laws will contribute $250.00 per month in income.

In his Second Amended Schedule J, the Debtor states that he has four children, ages 5, 11, 14 and 16. The Debtor represents that he spends an aggregate of $1,414.58 per month for tuition for three children at Jewish religious school. The Debtor further indicates that he spends $491.66 per month to send his 5 year-old child to Yeshiva Katana, a religious pre-school, day care provider [doc. 79, p. 8].

In his Second Amended Schedule J, the Debtor scheduled an expense for clothing, laundry and dry cleaning of $75.00 per month for six people. The Debtor stated his family's food expense at $1,250.00 per month. The chapter 13 trustee has a standard no-look food allowance of $250.00 per person per month [see doc. 79, Declaration of Mark Efrem Rosenberg, ¶ 12c.]. For a family of six, that would equal $1,500.00 per

i. The Debtor's Charitable Contributions and Religious Donations

The Debtor scheduled $621.00 per month in charitable contributions and religious donations. The Debtor's charitable expenses consist of two membership fees totaling $6,800.00, and a banquet fee, the charitable component of which is $650.00, for a total charitable expense of $7,450.00 for 2018-2019. [doc. 79]. The Debtor's 16 year-old child attends Emek Hebrew Academy, which charges a $4,800.00 synagogue membership fee for the 2018-2019 school year [doc. 79, Exh. 2]. The Debtor's 14 year-old attends Ner Aryeh high school, which charges a $2,000.00 synagogue membership fee for the 2018-2019 school year. Id. The Debtor's 11 year-old attends Bais Yaakov School for Girls, which does not charge a membership fee but does charge a banquet fee of $750.00 for the 2018-2019 school year, as a fund raiser for the school. Id. The cost for food at the banquet is $50.00 per plate. The Debtor and his spouse both attend the banquet. The Debtor claimed only the non-meal portion of the banquet fee as a charitable expense.

ii. The Debtor's Religious School Tuition Expense

In his Second Amended Schedule J, the Debtor states that he spends $1,414.58 per month in tuition for his 16 year-old, his 14 year-old and his 11 year-old children to attend Jewish religious school. The Debtor filed a declaration of Rabbi Eliezer Eidlitz regarding the importance of Jewish day school education for preserving Judaism [doc. 77].

C. The Debtor's Chapter 13 Plan

Between February 2018 and July 2018, the chapter 13 trustee (the "Trustee") filed several objections to the Plan [docs. 25, 29, 32, 43 and 52]. Trinity Financial Services, LLC ("Creditor") also filed several objections to the Plan [docs. 26 and 39].

On February 28, 2018, Creditor filed a proof of claim for a secured debt in the amount of $129,194.10 based on a deed of trust against the Debtor's residence [Claim 2-1]. On January 25, 2018, the Debtor filed a motion to avoid Creditor's lien [doc. 18]. On March 15, 2018, the Court entered an order granting the Debtor's motion to avoid Creditor's lien [doc. 33]. The Court found that the value of the residence was $740,000.00. The first lien on the residence was $817,358.63. Accordingly, the entire amount of Creditor's $129,194.10 claim was deemed unsecured.

On August 1, 2018, the Debtor filed an amended chapter 13 plan (the "First Amended Plan") [doc. 62]. The First Amended Plan proposed to pay nonpriority unsecured creditors 17.9% of their total claims, and proposed a plan length of 60 months.

On October 25, 2018, the Debtor filed a second amended chapter 13 plan (the "Second Amended Plan") [doc. 82]. The Second Amended Plan proposes to pay $1,049.31 in arrears to the holder of the first deed of trust on the Debtor's residence, nonpriority unsecured creditors 23% of their total claims, and proposes a plan length of 60 months. The Debtor was able to increase the percentage to nonpriority unsecured creditors because of the $250.00 per month contribution from the Debtor's in-laws [doc. 86, Declaration of Richard Mark Garber, ¶¶ 3-5]. Creditor is the only nonpriority unsecured creditors to be paid through the Second Amended Plan; there are no other such creditors.

On October 30, 2018, Creditor filed an objection to the Second Amended Plan (the "Creditor's Second Objection") [doc. 84]. On November 2, 2018, the Debtor filed a reply to the Creditor's Second Objection (the "Debtor's Second Reply") [doc. 86]. On November 21, 2018, Creditor filed the declaration of Rafael R. Garcia-Salgado in support of the Creditor's Second Objection [doc. 92]. On November 27, 2018, the Debtor filed another reply [doc. 93]. On December 4, 2018, Creditor filed a response in support of the Creditor's Second Objection (the "Creditor's Response") [doc. 94]. Finally, on December 5, 2018, the Debtor filed a sur-reply [doc. 95].

If the current monthly income of the debtor and the debtor's spouse combined, when multiplied by 12, is less than—

- (A) in the case of a debtor in a household of 1 person, the median family income of the applicable State for 1 earner;
- (B) in the case of a debtor in a household of 2, 3, or 4 individuals, the highest median family income of the applicable State for a family of the same number or fewer individuals; or
- (C) in the case of a debtor in a household exceeding 4 individuals, the highest median family income of the applicable State for a family of 4 or fewer individuals, plus $525 1 per month for each individual in excess of 4,

In the Creditor's Second Objection, Creditor objects to the Debtor's means calculation test because it does not take into account any year-end distribution of income derived during the six-month period preceding the bankruptcy filing, or of income derived during that six-month period but left in GEMS. Creditor's position is that under § 101(10A), current monthly income is defined as the average monthly income the debtor receives derived during the six-month period preceding the bankruptcy filing. The timing of the actual receipt is not subject to the temporal qualification of being during the six-month period preceding the bankruptcy filing. Creditor cites In re Bernard, 397 B.R. 605, 607 (Bankr. W. D. Mich. 2008) and In re Robrock, 430 B.R. 197, 204 (Bankr. D. Minn. 2010), in support of this position.

In Bernard, the United States Trustee filed a motion to dismiss the debtors' chapter 7 case pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 707(b)(1)-(2). 397 B.R. at 606-07. The United States Trustee asserted that the debtors underreported their current monthly income by, among other things, failing to include one paycheck that was received outside the applicable six-month period, but was for compensation for work performed within the period. Id. The court noted that the definition of current monthly income under § 101(10A) is not restricted to income the debtor derives and receives during the applicable six-month period. Id. The court then looked at the meaning of derived. Id. In relevant part, the court noted, Giving "derived" its ordinary meaning, namely "formed or developed out of something else," Webster's Third International Dictionary, the Court concludes that CMI includes income that resulted from employment during the relevant six month period even though the Debtor received the actual paycheck for that work after the end of the six month period. Income derived from employment prior to the beginning of the six month period but actually received during the six month period should not be included.

Id. The court held that the income has to have been derived during the applicable six-month period, but the timing of its actual receipt is irrelevant. Id.

Robrock also dealt with a motion to dismiss the debtor's chapter 7 case brought by the United States Trustee pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 707(b)(1)-(2). 430 B.R. at 199-200. Among other things, the court discussed that in calculating the debtor's current monthly income, the calculation should include the income the debtor accrued during the applicable six-month period, not just the income that was disbursed to the debtor.

Id. at 204. In relevant part the court noted,

The statutory definition does require receipt by the debtor for inclusion of particular income in the calculus; but, the fact of receipt is only the threshold. Under the statutory language, includable income is fixed by a modifying participle—the amount of income “derived” during the six months is the input for the averaging process, regardless of the date of receipt. The statutory concept is logically understood as “income that resulted from employment during the relevant six month period even though the Debtor received the actual paycheck for that work after the end of the six month period.” In re Bernard, 397 B.R. 605, 607 (Bankr.D.Mass.2008) (emphasis added).

Id. The court held that the income has to have been derived during the applicable six-month period, but can be received after. Id. Although Bernard and Robrock may be used for their persuasive value, they are out of circuit cases that are not binding on this Court.

However, there is case law in the Ninth Circuit. In re Katz, 451 B.R. 512 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2011), also dealt with a motion to dismiss the debtor’s chapter 7 case brought by the United States Trustee pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 707(b)(1), (b)(2), (b)(3)(B), and (b)(3)(A). 451 B.R. at 513–14. The debtor was a physician and his compensation included, among other things, a quarterly bonus, based on the debtor’s performance and the hospital’s productivity, paid two quarters in arrears. Id. The debtor had received a quarterly bonus regularly in the past, and there was no evidence to suggest the bonus would not continue in the future. Id. The debtor offered no evidence of declining hospital profitability or any indication of declining performance on his part. Id.

During the applicable six-month period the debtor received two quarterly bonuses as compensation for work performed before the six-month period. Id. Two days after the debtor’s means test period, the debtor received a third quarterly bonus. Id. The court held that current monthly income consists of income received during the applicable six-month period, regardless of when it was earned or when the services that led to the income were performed. Id. at 516–17. In relevant part, the court noted,

In the court's view, the statute also includes income “derived” during the applicable CMI period even if “earned” by debtor's services performed two quarters earlier. According to the Merriam–Webster online dictionary, “derive” is defined as “to take, receive, or obtain especially from a specified source.” Whether income is included in CMI should be determined by when Katz received funds, not when the funds were earned. In light of the absence of controlling authority on this issue, it is the court's interpretation that the term “derived” in § 101(10A) provides no additional limiting criterion in order for “income received” during the prescribed 6–month period to be included in the calculation of CMI.

Id. The court stated that the two quarterly bonuses received during the six-month period were included in the debtor’s current monthly income calculation, but the third bonus that was received after the applicable period was not included. Id.

Creditor argues that Katz is not controlling. Creditor is correct that Katz is not controlling. However, Bernard and Robrock are similarly not controlling. Although Katz is not controlling, the analysis in the opinion is persuasive to this Court.

The conclusions of other courts that have considered the intended meaning of the term “derived” under § 101(10A) have been inconsistent. See Miller v. United States Trustee (In re Miller), 519 B.R. 819 (10th Cir. BAP 2014) (income must only be received, regardless of when earned); In re Norenberg, 554 B.R. 480, 488 (Bankr. D. Arnoux. In Norenberg, a creditor filed a motion to dismiss the debtor’s chapter 7 case for abuse, asserting, among other things, that the debtor’s non-filing spouse’s royalty check (received two days after the applicable six-month period and used for family expenses) should be included in the debtor’s current monthly income. 554 B.R. at 483-84. The debtor’s non-filing spouse held an interest in a family owned entity, and received periodic royalty income, usually in November or December. Id. at 483. The court noted that the creditor failed to establish that the royalty check was derived from the applicable six-month period. Id. at 488. The court held that income derived after the six-month period, but before the petition date, may be omitted from the debtor’s current monthly income under § 101(10A). Id. at 488. The royalty check was not included in the debtor’s current monthly income. Id. at 488-89.

In Arnoux, the United States Trustee filed a motion for partial summary judgment to dismiss the debtor’s chapter 7 petition for abuse. 442 B.R. at 770. The issue was whether income received outside the applicable period, yet derived from that period, should be included in the debtor’s current monthly income. Id. at 770-71. The court held that the definition of “current monthly income” requires that the income be both “received” and “derived” during the statutory six-month period. Id. at 776. The debtor’s income that was derived from the applicable six-month period, but was not received during that period, was not included in the calculation. Id.

After a review of the cases, the weight of the authority supports the position that to be included in the debtor’s current monthly income under § 101(10A), the income must have been received during the applicable six-month period. Here, even if the Debtor had received a year-end distribution for 2017 from GEMS, it would not have been received until after the applicable period. As such, it would not be included in the Debtor’s current monthly income calculation.

Regarding the income left in GEMS and not distributed to the shareholders, additional income of a business is irrelevant for assessing the Debtor’s plan, if that income is not made available to cover household expenses. See In re Roman, Case No. 11-01415 BR, 2011 WL 5593143 (Bankr. D.P.R. Nov. 16, 2011). The Debtor contends that his share of GEMS’ 2017 profits was left in GEMS for operational purposes. Creditor has not submitted contrary evidence.

In the Creditor’s Response, Creditor argues that because the net profit of GEMS was derived over the entire twelve months of 2017, the fact that it was paid to the Debtor in multiple forms—draw, distributed net income and undistributed net income—is immaterial and it all counts as income, one half of which was derived during the six-month applicable period and should be included in the Debtor’s current monthly income calculation. However, the Court cannot conclude that the Debtor’s undistributed share of GEMS 2017 profits was derived during the six-month applicable period. As such, the Court will overrule the Creditor’s Second Objection on this point.

2. 11 U.S.C. § 1325(b)(1)

"As previously noted, § 1325 provides that if a trustee or an unsecured creditor objects to a Chapter 13 debtor's plan, a bankruptcy court may not approve the plan unless it provides for the full repayment of unsecured claims or ‘provides that all of the debtor's projected disposable income to be received’ over the duration of the plan ‘will be applied to make payments’ in accordance with the terms of the plan.”

Hamilton v. Lanning, 560 U.S. 505, 509–10 (2010); 11 U.S.C. § 1325(b)(1).

“Disposable income is determined by taking the current monthly income of the debtor and subtracting ‘amounts reasonably necessary to be expended’ for the debtor's maintenance and support, charitable contributions, and business expenses.” In re Schuldt, 527 B.R. 278, 280–82 (Bankr. W.D. Mich. 2015); 11 U.S.C. § 1325(b)(2).

“Nonetheless, adjustments may be made to this calculation based on known or virtually certain changes in circumstances, given the backward-looking nature of the current monthly income calculation.” Schuldt, 527 B.R. at 280–82; Hamilton v. Lanning, 560 U.S. at 524. “[W]hen a bankruptcy court calculates a debtor's projected disposable income, the court may account for changes in the debtor's income or expenses that are known or virtually certain at the time of confirmation.” Hamilton, 560 U.S. at 524. “Inclusion of these payments is consistent with the congressional goal of “ensur[ing] that debtors who can pay creditors do pay them.” Ransom v. FIA Card Servs., N.A., 562 U.S. 61 (2011).

Creditor objects to confirmation of the Debtor’s Second Amended Plan because it does not commit all disposable income to the plan. In determining whether the Second Amended Plan commits all the Debtor’s projected disposable income, the Court may take into account changes in the Debtor’s income that are known or virtually certain at the time of confirmation.

In In re Foster, the debtors received annual bonuses as part of an incentive plan from their employers. No. 05-50448 HCD, 2006 WL 2621080, at *1 (Bankr. N.D. Ind. Sept. 11, 2006). Although from year to year the amount of the bonus differed, the debtors stated that they believed they would continue to receive the bonuses during the five-year period of their chapter 13 plan. Id. The debtors' current monthly income calculation did not include any portion of the annual bonuses that was received before the applicable six-month period. Id. Similarly, their proposed chapter 13 plan did not incorporate the annual bonuses. Id.

The court evaluated the debtors' past and current financial status to determine their projected disposable income. Id. at *8. In relevant part the court noted,

That financial status includes regularly received annual bonuses. The court realizes that the bonus received in February 2005 was outside the 6-month period reported in the debtors' CMI. Judge Keith Lundin, in his Chapter 13 bankruptcy treatise, discusses the possible distorting effect of the 6-month window for CMI calculations:

Because it is based on an average, CMI can be dramatically affected by the timing of the Chapter 13 petition. Filing before a debtor receives a large commission or vacation pay or waiting a few months after the debtor has lost a well-paying job will materially change the CMI calculation. That CMI indicates the debtor has substantial (average) monthly income to pay unsecured creditors through a Chapter 13 plan may distort the reality that for many months during the typical year, the debtor has little or no income after living expenses. Keith M. Lundin, 5 Chapter 13 Bankruptcy, 3d Edition § 468.1 at 468-5 (2000 & Supp.2006).

Persuaded by Judge Lundin's erudite observations of § 101(10A)(B), this court finds similarities between his examples and the regularly received bonuses that were not paid within 6 months before the debtors' petition. Those bonuses were deposited in the debtors' bank account and may well have been used to pay the debtors' household expenses. At least, there is no evidence that they were not used for payments of the debtors' household expenses.

Accordingly, the court determines that a proper calculation of "all of the debtor's projected disposable income to be received in the applicable commitment period” must include the debtors' past and current financial status. It finds that the debtors failed to commit to the plan all the annual bonuses they regularly received in the past and anticipated for the future. Consequently, the court sustains the Trustee's objection pursuant to § 1325(b)(1)(B).

Foster, 2006 WL 2621080, at *8.

In In re Coverstone, the chapter 13 trustee objected to confirmation of the debtors' proposed chapter 13 plan because it failed to commit all the debtors' projected disposable income to the plan. 461 B.R. 629, 631 (Bankr. D. Idaho 2011). Postpetition, the debtors' adult daughter, who lived with the debtors, obtained employment and started contributing to some of the household expenses. Id. at 632. The trustee argued that under Lanning the daughter's contribution was a known or virtually certain circumstance. Id. at 634. The court noted in relevant part, Britney's regular contributions to household expenses would be considered income for purposes of calculating Debtors' CMI had they been made during the six-month look-back period. While Britney began regularly paying for household expenses only after Debtors filed their petition, thus excluding those payments from the statutory definition of CMI, her contributions to household expense may nonetheless be accounted for by this Court in determining Debtors' “projected” disposable income under the “forward-looking” approach articulated in Lanning. Under Lanning, “when a bankruptcy court calculates a debtor's projected disposable income, the court may account for changes in the debtor's income or expenses that are known or virtually certain at the time of confirmation.” Lanning, — U.S. at —, 130 S.Ct. at 2478. Because Britney's contributions to household expenses would have been included in CMI had they occurred during the six-month look-back period, and because they constitute a change in Debtors' income known at the time of the hearing on confirmation, they can be considered when calculating Debtors' projected disposable income.

Id. at 635. The court held that because the debtors' plan failed to account for the payments made by their adult daughter, the plan failed to commit all their available income. Id. The court sustained the trustee's objection. Id.

Here, the Debtor states that he did not receive a year-end distribution from GEMS. Moreover, the Debtor states that he did not receive a year-end distribution from GEMS for 2015, 2016 or 2017, and does not anticipate receiving a year end distribution for 2018. Creditor has not submitted any evidence to the contrary. As such, there are no known or virtually certain changes in the Debtor's income at the time of confirmation for the Court to take into account.

Creditor is basing its argument on the fact that the Debtor's income on his 2017 federal tax returns includes the Debtor's 35% share of the profits that were left in GEMS for operational purposes. However, shareholders of an S corporation are required to report on their individual federal income tax return and pay federal income taxes on their pro rata shares of the S corporation's taxable income, whether or not such income is distributed to the shareholder. 26 U.S.C. § 1366(a)(1)(A); 26 C.F.R. § 1.1366-1(a), Income Tax Regs. As such, the Debtor was required to report his pro rata share of GEMS taxable income, whether or not the income was distributed to the Debtor.

As stated above, additional income of a business is irrelevant for the assessment of a debtor's plan, if that income is not made available to cover household expenses. See In re Roman, 2011 WL 5593143. [FN1]. The Debtor filed a sworn declaration stating that $9,628.00, which represents his pro rata share of GEMS taxable income, was left in GEMS for operational purposes. As such, it appears that this income reported on the Debtor's 2017 federal tax return was not available to cover the Debtor's household expenses. Unlike Foster and Coverstone, the Debtor has not failed to commit to the Second Amended Plan all relevant income regularly received in the past and anticipated for the future.

In the Creditor’s Second Objection, Creditor argues that the Debtor is expending 24.9% of his and wife’s net monthly income on his children’s religious schools, which is more than the statutory limit. Creditor contends that the Debtor cannot "sneak" in religious school payments using the charitable contributions category [doc. 87, p. 7]. In the Debtor’s Second Reply, the Debtor argues that the Jewish schools that his children attend charge each family with children enrolled a mandatory membership fee. Debtor contends that this is separate from the tuition fee.

Here, the Debtor scheduled $621.00 per month in charitable contributions and religious donations. The Debtor’s three charitable expenses consist of two membership fees totaling $6,800.00, and a banquet fee, the charitable component of which is $650.00, for a total charitable expense of $7,450.00 for 2018-2019. According to the Internal Revenue Service, membership dues in a synagogue are considered payment for an intangible religious benefit and may be claimed as a tax deduction as a charitable contribution [See doc. 79, Exh. 3; see also Declaration of Mark Efreem Rosenberg, doc. 79, ¶ 10]. Regarding the third standard, the Debtor may claim a charitable expense of up to 15% of his gross income. The Debtor reported $108,098.00 in gross income ($107,848.00 adjusted gross income) on his 2017 federal tax return. Thus, the Debtor would be entitled to spend $16,214.70 per year on charitable contributions and religious donations. As such, the Debtor's charitable contribution each month is appropriate and within the statutory limit. The Court will overrule the Creditor's Second Objection on this point.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 707(b)(2)(A)(ii)(IV),

[T]he debtor's monthly expenses may include the actual expenses for each dependent child less than 18 years of age, not to exceed $1,925 per year per child, to attend a private or public elementary or secondary school if the debtor provides documentation of such expenses and a detailed explanation of why such expenses are reasonable and necessary, and why such expenses are not already accounted for in the National Standards, Local Standards, or Other Necessary Expenses referred to in subclause (I).

"Generally, private school tuition is not a reasonably necessary expense." Id.; see also Webb, 262 B.R. at 690; Univest-Coppell Village, Ltd. v. Nelson, 204 B.R. 497 (E.D.Tex.1996). expense for a devout, Orthodox Jewish family. The Debtor contends that a Jewish education is not a preference; it is an imperative for the preservation of traditional rabbinic Judaism for future generations. Debtor further argues that he has made other sacrifices so that he can afford religious school tuition for his children.

There is no binding precedent in the Ninth Circuit regarding whether parochial school tuition is a reasonably necessary expense. In In re Cleary, 357 B.R. 369 (Bankr. Ct. S.C. 2006), the court examined this issue and in relevant part noted,

Prior to the enactment of BAPCPA the courts were split on the subject of reasonableness of private school tuition as a deduction from income to arrive at disposable income. The majority of cases reject private school tuition as a reasonably necessary expense; at least in the absence of educational necessity or special needs. Earlier decisions expressed the “view that a debtor's creditors should not pay tuition for the debtor's children.” In re McNulty, 142 B.R. 106 (Bankr.D.N.J.1992); See also In re Jones, 55 B.R. 462 (Bankr.D.Minn.1985) (Expressing the view, no longer held in many circles, that the public education was of high quality.). The fulcrum was to balance “creditor's rights against the appropriate basic needs of the debtors and their dependents.” Watson[, 403 F.3d] at 8.

The public policy notion that private school tuition is a luxury expense for the purposes of calculating available income under either the chapter 7 means test or for the disposable income analysis in confirming a chapter 13 plan is swept aside by BAPCPA. An allowable expense is that for “each dependent child less than 18 years of age, not to exceed [$1,925.00] per year per child, to attend a private or public elementary or secondary school if the debtor provides documentation of such expenses and a detailed explanation of why such expenses are reasonably necessary, and why such expenses are not already accounted for in the National Standards, Local Standards, or Other Necessary Expenses referred to in subclause (I).” § 707(b)(2)(A)(ii)(IV). For some purposes at least, Congress has set forth the public policy that private school tuition can be a reasonable and necessary expense.

Cleary, 357 B.R. at 373. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 707(b)(2)(A)(ii)(IV), the Debtor is entitled to spend $1,925.00 annually for each of his three older children to attend a parochial school. That would be $481.25 per month. The Debtor is spending

$1,414.58 per month. Thus, the Court needs to determine whether the remaining $933.33 is a reasonably necessary expense.

In Cleary, the court found that the debtor was not limited to the expense ceiling for private school tuition. 357 B.R. at 374. The court stated,

The Debtor and his family have shown long term enrollment at parochial schools. All of the children attend private school, save one—who plans to return to private school next year. The Debtor's wife attended private school. The Debtor and his wife have strongly held religious convictions. The Debtor's wife would not work outside the home (and did not do so for many years) except to provide additional income to pay for private school tuition. In fact, Mrs. Cleary's pay check is reduced by the amount of tuition for the couple's children who attend the elementary school where she works. The family's sacrifice of other basic expenses to fund private school tuition is noteworthy and, in this case, the deciding factor for the Court in approving the necessity and reasonableness of the expense for private school tuition. See In re Grawey, 2001 WL 34076376 (Bankr.C.D.Ill.2001)(private school tuition and belt-tightening in the context of the dischargeability of student loans—sacrifices other basic necessities such as health care insurance). Debtor, if his testimony and schedules are truthful, could file a chapter 7 petition and it is very likely that he would lose no assets to administration for creditors. He is curing a small arrearage on his home loan through the chapter 13 plan, but the amount is de minimis. Debtor is giving up furniture secured by purchase money loans. For these reasons the Court finds that private school tuition is a reasonable and necessary expense of the debtor.

Here, the Debtor has demonstrated long-term commitment to educating his children at parochial schools and deeply held religious convictions. The Debtor filed a declaration of Rabbi Eliezer Eidlitz regarding the importance of Jewish day school education for preserving Judaism [doc. 77]. Further, the Debtor has compensated by eliminating other reasonably necessary expenses. The Debtor has scheduled an expense for clothing, laundry and dry cleaning of only $75.00 per month for six people. The Debtor has stated his family's food expense, at $1,250.00, even though he could claim more. The Debtor has scheduled medical and dental expenses of $0.00 and a health insurance expense of $0.00 per month for six people. The Debtor has claimed an expense for entertainment of only $75.00 per month, a small emergency allocation of only $100.00 per month and $0.00 per month for home repair allocation. Further, the Debtor has increased the distribution to unsecured creditors by putting forward a 60-month plan and receiving contributions from his family to increase his income [doc. 86, Exh. 5]. The Second Amended Plan provides a 23% distribution to unsecured creditors.

In examining the totality of the circumstances, it appears that the Debtor has made a good faith effort to maximize repayment to creditors, and parochial school tuition is a reasonably necessary expense of the Debtor.

Although the Court will not limit the Debtor's expenses for private school to the statutory limit in 11 U.S.C. § 707(b)(2)(A)(ii)(IV), the entire $933.33 is not a reasonably necessary expense. The Debtor is paying more for parochial school than the debtors in any of the cases cited by the Debtor. The Court recognizes that the Debtor has spent less in some areas in order to afford parochial school education. The Trustee has a standard no-look food allowance of $250.00 per person per month [see doc. 79, Declaration of Mark Efrem Rosenberg, ¶ 12c.]. For a family of six, that would equal $1,500.00 per month. That is $250.00 more than the Debtor scheduled as an expense for food. Further, a reasonable budget for a family of six for clothing, laundry and dry cleaning would be $175.00 per month, which is $100.00 more than the Debtor scheduled as an expense. Accordingly, the Court finds that $350.00 of the $933.33 overage is reasonable and necessary, and the Debtor must commit an additional $583.33 in disposable income to the Second Amended Plan. The Court will sustain the Creditor's Second Objection in part on this point.

However, as the Debtor's children age, the amount of disposable income that the Debtor will need to commit to his chapter 13 plan will change. For example, the Debtor's 16 year-old child will graduate from high school in two years, and the Debtor will no longer qualify for the parochial school tuition expense, as to that child.

III. CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, the Court will sustain the Creditor's Second Objection in part regarding the Debtor's parochial school expense, and overrule the Creditor's Second Objection on all other points.

FOOTNOTES

1. As a shareholder of an S corporation, the Debtor may have more control over distributions from GEMS than the typical employee does as to distributions from their employer. If there were evidence that GEMS regularly made year-end distributions to the Debtor in the past, and in 2017 the Debtor apparently had left the distribution in GEMS in order to lower his current monthly income, the Court could take that into account in assessing whether the chapter 13 plan was proposed in good faith under 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(3). However, here, there is no evidence that the Debtor personally used a year-end distribution previously or will do so during the plan term.

Docket 32

Tentative Ruling:

On November 7, 2018, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause Why Debtor's Counsel Should Not be Sanctioned for Failure to Appear at Confirmation Hearing (the "OSC") [doc. 32], on the grounds that the debtor's counsel failed to appear at the confirmation hearing as required by LBR 3015-1(d). The debtor's counsel was ordered to explain his failure to appear and file and serve on the debtor a written response to the OSC no later than November 27, 2018.

The debtor's counsel timely filed a response. However, contrary to the OSC, the debtor's counsel did not serve his response on the debtor. If the debtor's counsel or an appearance attorney appears at the continued confirmation hearing on December 11, 2018 at 9:30 a.m., then the Court may discharge the OSC. However, if no appearance is made at the continued confirmation hearing, the Court may impose sanctions on the debtor's counsel.

#4.00 Motion for relief from stay [PP]

HONDA LEASE TRUST
DEBTOR

Docket 10

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(2).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to repossess and sell the property.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Docket 9

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(4).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

If recorded in compliance with applicable state laws governing notices of interests or liens in real property, the order is binding in any other case under this title purporting to affect the property filed not later than 2 years after the date of the entry of the order by the court, except that a debtor in a subsequent case under this title may move for relief from the order based upon changed circumstances or for good cause shown, after notice and hearing.

The co-debtor stay of 11 U.S.C. § 1201(a) and § 1301(a) is terminated, modified or annulled as to the co-debtor, on the same terms and conditions as to the debtor.

Any other request for relief is denied.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Tentative Ruling:

During the prior status conference, the Court instructed the plaintiff to file a notice of dismissal in the debtor's bankruptcy case no later than November 21, 2018. The plaintiffs did not file their notice of dismissal until November 28, 2018. Consequently, the 14-day notice period will expire on December 12, 2018, the date of this status conference.

To assess if a party in interest substitutes into this action prior to the expiration of the 14-day deadline, the Court will continue this status conference to 1:30 p.m. on December 19, 2018.

Appearances on December 12, 2018 are excused.

#10.00 Pretrial conference re: complaint of Avigdor Kessler from: 5/16/18; 6/20/18; 10/31/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to the Court's instructions from the prior pretrial conference, the parties did not file an amended joint pretrial stipulation curing the deficiencies from their prior joint pretrial stipulation. In addition, the plaintiff did not submit a scheduling order or file a unilateral pretrial statement explaining why the parties did not timely file an amended joint pretrial stipulation.

The Court intends to issue an Order to Show Cause why this adversary proceeding should not be dismissed for failure to prosecute.

10/31/2018 Tentative:

The untimely joint pretrial stipulation (the "JPS") filed by the parties on October 26, 2018 does not comply with Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 7016-1(b)(2), as specified below.

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(C), the parties do not clearly set forth the issues of law to be litigated at trial. The plaintiff's complaint asserts a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), and the language in the JPS appears to reassert that claim.

In paragraph 41 of the JPS, the parties indicate that the plaintiff intends to request denial of the defendant's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3). However, the plaintiff has not moved to file an amended complaint. Moreover, because the defendant has already received his discharge, the plaintiff is limited to requesting revocation of the defendant's discharge under one of the grounds set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 727(d); any claim for denial of the defendant's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a) is time barred.

In addition, the parties' exhibit list does not comply with LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(D). The parties do not specify which party is offering which exhibit. Moreover, the parties do not provide an adequate description of each exhibit, which must include information sufficient for identification. For example, the parties do not provide sufficient information for exhibit nos. 24-26 and 28. Have the parties exchanged exhibits they intend to offer at trial?

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(E), the parties have not specified which witness is being offered by which party. The parties also do not provide a summary of the proposed testimony by each witness.

The parties list certain doctors in their witness list; do the parties intend to call any of these doctors as expert witnesses? If so, have the parties exchanged narrative statements of the qualifications of the experts? Have the parties exchanged expert reports in accordance with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(a)(2)?

In the paragraph listing their witnesses, the parties state that their witnesses "include, but are not limited to" the listed witnesses. The parties must provide a complete list of witnesses. Any witness not listed in the parties' witness list will not be permitted to testify at trial.

Concurrently with submitting their amended joint pretrial stipulation, the parties also must submit a joint witness schedule indicating on which day of trial, and at which time, each witness will testify and estimating the duration of each witness's testimony.

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(F), the parties have not specified if there are any other matters that may affect trial, such as anticipated motions in limine, motions to withdraw reference or other pretrial motions. Moreover, contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(G), the parties have not indicated if discovery is complete and, contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(H), the parties have not indicated if they are ready for trial.

Contrary to LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(I), the parties have not provided an estimate of the length of trial. The parties also do not include the language from LBR 7016-1(b)(2)(J) in the JPS.

Adv#: 1:18-01105 QUEEN et al v. Anderson

#12.00 Order to show cause why defendant's answer should not be stricken for failure to prosecute

Docket 0

Tentative Ruling:

On November 7, 2018, the Court held a status conference. The defendant did not appear. In addition, the defendant did not meet and confer with the plaintiffs in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 7026-1 and did not participate in the filing of a joint status report in accordance with LBR 7016-1(a).

As a result, on November 8, 2018, the Court issued the Order to Show Cause Why Defendant's Answer Should Not be Stricken for Failure to Prosecute (the "OSC") [doc. 9]. In the OSC, the Court instructed the defendant to file a response to the OSC no later than November 28, 2018.

The defendant did not timely file a response to the OSC and did not otherwise file any updates in preparation for the continued status conference. Consequently, the Court will strike the defendant's answer [doc. 6], and the plaintiff may proceed by way of default judgment.

The Court will prepare the order striking the defendant's answer.

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

In light of the fact that the Court will strike the defendant's answer, the plaintiffs may proceed to entry of default and default judgment.

To obtain entry of default, the plaintiffs must submit Local Bankruptcy Rule Form F 7055-1.1.Req.Enter.Default, "Request for Clerk to Enter Default Under LBR 7055-1(a)."

If the plaintiffs will be pursuing a default judgment pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7055-1(b), the plaintiffs must serve a motion for default judgment (if such service is required pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7055, Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2) and/or Local Bankruptcy Rule 7055-1(b)(1)(D)) and must file that motion by February 1, 2019.

If the plaintiffs will be seeking to recover attorneys' fees, the plaintiffs must demonstrate that the award of attorneys' fees complies with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7055-1(b)(4).

I. BACKGROUND

On June 30, 2017, Steven Mark Rosenberg ("Plaintiff") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On November 27, 2017, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Deutsche Bank National Trust Company ("Deutsche Bank"), Ocwen Loan Servicing, Inc. ("Ocwen"), Alliance Bancorp, Inc., Alliance Bancorp Estate Trustee Charles A. Stanziale, Jr., MERS Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. ("MERS"), One West Bank and CIT Bank, N.A. The complaint alleges claims asserting a violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(a), violation of Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 3001(c)(2)(B) and (C), fraudulent concealment, violation of 18 U.S.C. § 157 and requesting declaratory relief. At all times during the course of this adversary proceeding, Plaintiff has represented himself.

On January 23, 2018, Plaintiff voluntarily dismissed CIT Bank, N.A. and Alliance Bancorp, Inc. as defendants, leaving Deutsche Bank, MERS and OCwen (collectively, "Defendants") [doc. 13]. On February 13, 2018, Ocwen and MERS filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings (the "Motion for Judgment") [doc. 16]. In the Motion for Judgment, Ocwen and MERS argued that: (A) any forgery, cancellation or rescission claims are time barred; (B) Plaintiff's claim for violation of § 524(a)(2) failed because a discharge does not void a creditors' in rem rights; (C) Plaintiff's claim for violation of FRBP 3001(c)(2)(B) failed because a creditor's right to foreclose passes through a bankruptcy case; (D) Plaintiff's fraud claims are time barred; and (E) Plaintiff lacks standing to pursue the fraud claims.

On March 9, 2018, Deutsche Bank filed a joinder in the Motion for Judgment and the RJN [doc. 24]. On March 21, 2018, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition to Judgment") [doc. 30]. In the Opposition to Judgment, Plaintiff argued that: (A) his claims are not time barred because the adversary proceeding was a continuation of a previously filed probate action; (B) equitable tolling applies to allow Plaintiff to proceed with his claims; (C) that Plaintiff has standing because Plaintiff "is an affected party;" and (D) that Plaintiff has otherwise stated claims for relief against Defendants.

On May 2, 2018, the Court held a hearing on the Motion for Judgment. Plaintiff and Defendants appeared at the hearing as noted on the record and presented oral argument. In advance of the hearing, the Court prepared a tentative ruling granting the Motion for Judgment, which the Court subsequently adopted as its final ruling (the "Ruling") [doc. 41]. In the Ruling, the Court held: (A) Plaintiff's claims are time barred and equitable tolling does not apply; (B) Defendants did not violate 11 U.S.C. § 524(a); (C) that FRBP 3001(c)(2) does not give rise to a cause of action, and that, in any event, liens survive bankruptcy whether or not a creditor files a proof of claim; (D) that Plaintiff lacks standing to pursue his fraudulent concealment claims regarding Defendants' assignments because California law provided only for post-foreclosure standing, and Plaintiff had not asserted any pre-foreclosure damages; (E) that this Court did not have jurisdiction to prosecute Defendants for bankruptcy fraud; and (F) that there was no basis for declaratory relief.

On May 14, 2018, the Court entered the Judgment Following Defendants' Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings [doc. 50]. On June 7, 2018, the Court entered an Amended Judgment Following Defendants' Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings (the "Judgment") [doc. 56].

On June 11, 2018, Plaintiff filed a motion to alter or amend the Judgment (the "Motion to Alter") [doc. 58], seeking reconsideration of the Judgment. In the Motion to Alter, Plaintiff stated that he sought relief from the Judgment pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 59(e), as applied to bankruptcy cases by FRBP 9023. In the Motion to Alter, Plaintiff once again asserted that equitable tolling applies to this proceeding and that Plaintiff has standing to challenge assignments. This time, Plaintiff added the argument that Plaintiff has standing under Rule 17 because Plaintiff filed the adversary proceeding in his capacity as an administrator of his father's probate estate. In accordance with this Court's self-scheduling procedures, which prohibits self-scheduling of motions for reconsideration, Plaintiff did not set the Motion to Alter for hearing. In addition, Defendants did not file an opposition to the Motion.

Instead, on September 7, 2018, Deutsche Bank filed a motion to sanction Plaintiff under FRBP 9011 (the "Motion") [doc. 61]. In the Motion, Deutsche Bank requested non-monetary sanctions in the form of striking the Motion to Alter and monetary sanctions in the amount of $6,350 incurred filing the Motion. On September 14, 2018, Ocwen and MERS filed a joinder to the Motion [doc. 68], requesting non-monetary sanctions in the form of striking the Motion to Alter. On November 20, 2018, Plaintiff filed two responses to the Motion (collectively, the "Response") [docs. 72, 73], arguing that he filed the Motion to Alter because he believed the Court committed a clear error of law and requesting leniency as a pro se party. On November 21, 2018, the Court entered an order denying the Motion to Alter [doc. 74].

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to FRBP 9011(b)—

By presenting to the court (whether by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating) a petition, pleading, written motion, or other paper, an attorney or unrepresented party is certifying that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances, --

- (1) it is not being presented for any improper purpose, such as to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in the cost of litigation;
- (2) the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions therein are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law;
- (3) the allegations and other factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery; and

- (4) the denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief.

Pursuant to FRBP 9011(c)—

If, after notice and a reasonable opportunity to respond, the court determines that subdivision (b) has been violated, the court may, subject to the conditions stated below, impose an appropriate sanction upon the attorneys, law firms, or parties that have violated subdivision (b) or are responsible for the violation.

- (1) How initiated

- (A) By Motion

A motion for sanctions under this rule shall be made separately from other motions or requests and shall describe the specific conduct alleged to violate subdivision (b). It shall be served as provided in Rule 7004. The motion for sanctions may not be filed with or presented to the court unless, within 21 days after service of the motion (or such other period as the court may prescribe), the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation, or denial is not withdrawn or appropriately corrected, except that this limitation shall not apply if the conduct alleged is the filing of a petition in violation of subdivision (b). If warranted, the court may award to the party prevailing on the motion the reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in presenting or opposing the motion. Absent exceptional circumstances, a law firm shall be held jointly responsible for violations committed by its partners, associates, and employees.

- (2) Nature of sanction; limitations

A sanction imposed for violation of this rule shall be limited to what is sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated. Subject to the limitations in subparagraphs (A) and (B), the sanction may consist of, or include, directives of a nonmonetary nature, an order to pay a penalty into court, or, if imposed on motion and warranted for effective deterrence, an order directing payment to the movant of some or all of the reasonable attorneys' fees and other expenses incurred as a direct result of the violation.

(A) Monetary sanctions may not be awarded against a represented party for a violation of subdivision (b)(2).

(B) Monetary sanctions may not be awarded on the court's initiative unless the court issues its order to show cause before a voluntary dismissal or settlement of the claims made by or against the party which is, or whose attorneys are, to be sanctioned.

"An award of sanctions for a violation of FRBP 9011 or its counterpart in the FRCP, Rule 11, is an exceptionally serious matter, and is reserved for those rare situations in which a claim or defense is asserted without any evidentiary support or legal basis, or for improper purposes, such as to harass or delay an opponent, or cause undue expense." In re Quinones, 543 B.R. 638, 646 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2015). "We accord the district court's determination whether to impose sanctions deference, because 'the district court is better situated than the court of appeals to marshal the pertinent facts and apply [the law].'" Air Separation, Inc. v. Underwriters at Lloyd's of London, 45 F.3d 288, 291 (9th Cir. 1995) (quoting Cooter & Gell v. Hartmarx Corp., 496 U.S. 384, 402-03 (1990)).

The Motion is based on two grounds: first, that Plaintiff did not set the Motion to Alter for hearing and, second, that Plaintiff's arguments in the Motion to Alter are meritless and that Plaintiff did not have an applicable basis under Rule 59(e) to move to alter or amend the Judgment. Regarding the first basis, the Court's self-calendaring procedures, located on the Court's website, explicitly state that parties may not self-calendar calendar motions for reconsideration. In this case, the Court declined to set the Motion to Alter for hearing and elected to rule on the Motion to Alter without hearing. As such, the Court deciding not to set the Motion to Alter for hearing is not a basis to sanction Plaintiff.

As to the second basis, Defendants assert that Plaintiff's arguments in the Motion to Alter were meritless because Defendant did not have grounds to move for relief under Rule 59(e). To obtain relief under Rule 59(e), the moving party must show that the court "(1) is presented with newly discovered evidence, (2) committed clear error or the initial decision was manifestly unjust, or (3) if there is an intervening change in controlling law." School Dist. No. 1J, Multnomah County, Or. v. ACandS, Inc., 5 F.3d 1255, 1263 (9th Cir. 1993) (internal citation omitted).

The Court also will not sanction Plaintiff on this basis. Here, Plaintiff did not argue that there was new evidence or an intervening change in law. Rather, Plaintiff believed the Court committed clear error and that the Judgment will result in manifest injustice. To this end, although Plaintiff repeated many of the arguments he made in the Opposition to Judgment in the Motion to Alter, Plaintiff did present new arguments regarding standing, i.e., that Plaintiff has standing under Rule 17 as an administrator of his father's estate. Plaintiff could have presented these arguments in the Opposition to Judgment. Nevertheless, given that Plaintiff is pro se and this is the first motion to reconsideration filed by Plaintiff in this adversary proceeding and Plaintiff's bankruptcy case, Plaintiff may have believed he could present the argument in a motion under Rule 59(e). Further, given that the Court had not previously addressed whether Plaintiff would have standing as an administrator of his father's estate, Plaintiff's arguments under Rule 17 are not so frivolous as to trigger a violation of FRBP 9011(b).

Moreover, sanctions are not warranted under FRBP 9011(c)(2), which states that "[a] sanction imposed for violation of this rule shall be limited to what is sufficient to deter repetition of such conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated." Because the Court has already entered judgment in this adversary proceeding and ruled on the Motion to Alter, and because this is Plaintiff's first request for reconsideration, the Court does not find that sanctions are required as a deterrent at this time.

In addition, Defendants did not incur any attorneys' fees or costs responding to the Motion to Alter because Defendants did not oppose that motion. Deutsche Bank was not required to file this Motion, as this Motion was not responsive to the Motion to Alter. In addition, the Court elected to rule on the Motion to Alter without setting the Motion to Alter for hearing. As such, Defendants also did not incur fees or costs appearing at a hearing on the Motion to Alter. Consequently, the Court does not need to impose monetary sanctions to reimburse Defendants for any fees or costs incurred responding to the Motion to Alter. Moreover, Defendants' request for non-monetary sanctions is moot; the Court entered an order on the Motion to Alter rather than striking the pleading.

The Court notes that, although some leniency is afforded to pro se litigants, pro se parties are not immune from sanctions as Plaintiff contends in the Response. See Rule 11 Advisory Comm. Notes ("Although the standard is the same for unrepresented parties, who are obliged themselves to sign the pleadings, the court has sufficient discretion to take account of the special circumstances that often arise in pro se situations."); see also In re Marsch, 36 F.3d 825, 829 (9th Cir. 1994) ("Because FRCP 11 and Bankruptcy Rule 9011 use virtually identical language, we often rely on cases interpreting the former when construing the latter."). The Court will take into account Plaintiff's pro se status, but Plaintiff cannot use his pro se status as a shield should Plaintiff make repetitive or frivolous arguments in the future.

At this time, because Plaintiff is pro se, the Motion to Alter is Plaintiff's first motion under Rule 59(e) in this adversary proceeding, Defendants did not incur any fees or costs responding to the Motion to Alter or appearing at a hearing on the Motion to Alter and the Court already ruled on the Motion to Alter, the Court will not impose sanctions against Plaintiff.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion.

The Court will prepare the order.

#14.20 Plaintiff's motion for default judgment

fr. 12/5/18

Docket 60

Tentative Ruling:

Continue for the plaintiff to offer supplemental evidence in support of its claims.

I. BACKGROUND

On September 12, 2017, Robin DiMaggio ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. In his schedule E/F [doc. 9], Defendant listed a debt in the amount of $20,000 in favor of Forum Entertainment Group, Inc. ("Plaintiff") based on breach of contract. In his schedule H, Defendant listed DiMaggio International, Inc. ("DMI") as a codebtor.

In his schedule I, Defendant indicated that he is unemployed and listed $0 in monthly income. In his Statement of Financial Affairs ("SOFA"), Defendant indicated that he received $0 in income in 2017. Defendant also indicated that he received $20,636 in income in 2016 and $12,312 in income in 2015.

On December 19, 2017, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendant (the "Complaint"), requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to it pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4) and (a)(6) and objecting to Defendant's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2), (a)(3), (a)(4) and (a)(5). In relevant part, the Complaint alleged:

In early February 2012, Plaintiff decided to organize a for-profit music concert and feature a lineup of South Korean and American music artists (the "Concert"). To organize the Concert, Plaintiff's Chief Executive Officer, Calvin Lau, approached his friend, Steve Yu. Around April 2012, Mr. Yu introduced Plaintiff to Defendant, the principal of DMI. DMI is an alter ego of Defendant.

Defendant represented to Plaintiff that he had all of the entertainment industry contacts necessary to secure talent and produce the Concert; Defendant also represented to Plaintiff that he could personally secure the performances of Will.I.Am and Pitbull. On top of these oral representations, Defendant included these misrepresentations on his website. In May 2012, Defendant presented Plaintiff with a budget sheet that unequivocally stated his ability to secure the musical performances of Will.I.Am and Pitbull, among other discounted rates for production of the Concert.

After receiving the budget sheet and relying on Defendant's representations, Plaintiff entered into an oral agreement to retain DMI's services to secure various performances, including Will.I.Am, Pitbull, The Michael Jackson Band, Don Felder and Miri Ben Ari for the Concert. Throughout the summer of 2012, Defendant provided assurances via emails, in addition to oral confirmations, which Plaintiff relied on to its detriment.

Based on the representations, on May 5, 2012, Plaintiff gave Defendant $50,000, to be paid to DMI, to secure Will.I.Am as a performer. In addition, on May 8, 2012, Plaintiff gave Defendant another $50,000, to be paid to DMI, to secure Pitbull as a performer. In June 2012, Plaintiff followed up with Defendant to determine the status of securing the performances. Defendant represented to Plaintiff that he had given the $100,000 to the artists and was waiting for confirmation.

Defendant then requested additional funds to secure the performance of The Michael Jackson Band. On June 11, 2012, Plaintiff gave DMI a cashier's check in the amount of $18,000 to be used as a security deposit to secure The Michael Jackson Band for the Concert. On June 29, 2012, relying on Defendant's representation that Will.I.Am and Pitbull had been paid and would be confirmed, Plaintiff made a down payment in the amount of $15,000 to The Greek Theater to secure a location for the Concert.

On July 2, 2012, Defendant requested that Plaintiff provide an additional $13,000 to secure sound engineers for the Concert. Again, Plaintiff inquired about the status of Will.I.Am and Pitbull, and Defendant informed Plaintiff that the deposits had been paid and that confirmations were on their way. Relying on Defendant's representation, Plaintiff gave DMI an additional $13,000 to be paid to sound engineers. On July 17, 2012, Defendant represented to Plaintiff that DMI needed an advance on its brokering fees for the Concert. Plaintiff again questioned Defendant about Will.I.Am and Pitbull, and Defendant again represented confirmations were on the way; as such, Plaintiff gave DMI $15,000.

From July 18, 2012 to July 29, 2012, Plaintiff repeatedly tried to contact Defendant regarding the status of confirmations regarding Will.I.Am and Pitbull. However, Defendant became non-responsive and refused to communicate with Plaintiff. Defendant did not inform Plaintiff of his failure to secure the performances of Will.I.Am and Pitbull.

When Plaintiff was able to regain contact with Defendant, Plaintiff again requested confirmations that Will.I.Am and Pitbull would perform. At this time, Defendant admitted to Plaintiff that he could not secure the the artists' performances; that he had never paid the respective $50,000 deposits to Will.I.Am and Pitbull; that Defendant has instead placed the $100,000 deposit money for Will.I.Am and Pitbull into his own personal bank account; and that Defendant could not return the $100,000 because his personal account had been frozen due to his pending divorce.

However, Defendant still represented that he could assist with the Concert; Defendant informed Plaintiff that the Concert should move forward with The Michael Jackson Band and others that had been verbally represented to be confirmed to perform. As such, on October 16, 2012, Plaintiff placed a secondary deposit with The Greek Theater in the amount of $123,890 to lock the venue for the Concert on

Because Defendant knew he could not return Plaintiff's deposits, Defendant suggested to Plaintiff that Plaintiff also plan a second concert showcasing Don Felder, Miri Ben Ari, The Michael Jackson Band and others. Defendant agreed to assist Plaintiff in securing artist performances for the second concert. As such, in October 2012, Plaintiff made additional payments to DMI, including: (A) on October 9, 2012, a $5,000 cashier's check for DMI to secure Don Felder; (B) on October 10, 2012, a $7,500 cashier's check for DMI to secure Miri Ben Ari; and (C) on October 15, 2012, a $5,000 cashier's check for a brokering service fee advance to DMI.

Knowing that Plaintiff was desperate to push forward with the Concert, Defendant convinced Plaintiff to pay Defendant $7,000 for DMI to use to promote the Concert on a radio station. Based on Defendant's representations, in October 2012, Plaintiff also expended an additional $60,000 on marketing, artist performance fees and costs related to travel, lodging and management of Korean artists slated to perform.

On October 25, 2012, two days before the Concert, Plaintiff realized the Concert could not go forward and, having no other choice, canceled the Concert. None of the performances for which Plaintiff paid DMI took place. From October 2012 until the present, Plaintiff has repeatedly asked Defendant to return the monies paid for artist deposits and/or brokering fees. Defendant has not returned any of the funds to Plaintiff. From April 2012 to October 2012, Plaintiff spent a total of $661,000 to put on the Concert, and suffered damages in excess of $2 million based on the Concert being canceled.

In addition, after filing his chapter 7 petition, Defendant failed to list certain assets in his petition. For instance, in his schedule F, Defendant listed that the debt he owed Plaintiff was only $20,000. In addition, in his SOFA, Defendant did not list any income received from DMI in the last three years. Even if Defendant does not consider the funds converted from Plaintiff as "income," Defendant did not include the money in his SOFA as property he is holding for another entity.

Complaint, pp. 2-8. Below its 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) claim, where Plaintiff alleged that Defendant converted Plaintiff's funds with willful and malicious intent, Plaintiff alleges:

Defendant engaged in willful and malicious conduct as well as in the conversion of Plaintiff's assets. Between May 2012 and October 2012, Defendant, while acting as an agent and fiduciary to Plaintiff, made certain representations to Plaintiff about his ability to secure certain musical talent for the Concert which Defendant knew Plaintiff would rely on and would secure him monetary payments. Defendant provided budget sheets, told Plaintiff payments would be paid to musical talents, sound engineers and for brokering fees, when in reality Defendant knew the information to be false and knew his intentional conduct would cause injury to Plaintiff.

During these months, Plaintiff incurred at least $660,000 in direct damages from Defendant's willful and malicious acts and representations. Defendant took the funds for his own personal gain without disclosure when they were earmarked for third parties. As a direct and proximate result of the above, Plaintiff suffered damages in an amount in excess of $2 million. Defendant acted willfully, maliciously and with deliberate intent to deceive Plaintiff.

Complaint, p. 11. Plaintiff also attached several emails between Defendant and Plaintiff's representatives to the Complaint, which emails have not been authenticated by a party with personal knowledge.

On August 22, 2018, the Court held a pretrial conference. Defendant did not appear. As a result, on August 28, 2018, the Court entered an Order to Show Cause why Defendant's answer should not be stricken based on his failure to appear (the "OSC") [doc. 49]. On October 17, 2018, Defendant appeared at the hearing on the OSC. At that time, Defendant agreed to the striking of his answer and entry of default against him. Consequently, the Court instructed Plaintiff to file a motion for default judgment to prove up its claims against Defendant.

On October 31, 2018, Plaintiff filed the Motion [doc. 60]. To the Motion, Plaintiff attached the Declaration of Sanaz Sarah Berliani (the "Bereliani Declaration"). In the Bereliani Declaration, Ms. Bereliani repeats the allegations in the Complaint as to Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523. Bereliani Declaration, ¶¶ 4-36.

As to its claims under § 727(a)(2) and (a)(4), Plaintiff asserts that Defendant's discharge should be denied because: (A) Defendant understated the amount of debt owed to Plaintiff by listing a debt for $20,000 in his schedule E/F; (B) Defendant did not include the misappropriated funds in his schedules or statements; (C) Defendant did not list $24,000-$32,000 in yearly income from the Canadian association "SESAC" in his schedules or statements; and (D) Defendant did not schedule his ex-wife as a co-debtor in his schedule H. As to its claim under § 727(a)(3), Plaintiff asserts that Defendant's failure to produce discovery to Plaintiff should bar Defendant from obtaining a discharge. Finally, as to its claim under § 727(a)(5), Plaintiff contends that Defendant has failed to account for the funds Plaintiff furnished to Defendant.

II. ANALYSIS

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("FRCP") 55, incorporated by Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7055, governs default judgments. FRCP 55(b)(2) provides as follows:

(b) Judgment. Judgment by default may be entered as follows...

...(2) By the Court. In all other cases the party entitled to a judgment by default shall apply to the court therefor; but no judgment by default shall be entered against an infant or incompetent person unless represented in the action by a general guardian, committee, conservator, or other such representative who has appeared therein. If the party against whom judgment by default is sought has appeared in the action, the party (or, if appearing by representative, the party's representative) shall be served with written notice of the application for judgment at least 3 days prior to the hearing on such application. If, in order to enable the court to enter judgment or to carry it into effect, it is necessary to take an account or to determine the amount of damages or to establish the truth of any averment by evidence or to make an investigation of any other matter, the court may conduct such hearings or order such references as it deems necessary and proper and shall accord a right of trial by jury to the parties when and as required by any statute of the United States.

"Our starting point is the general rule that default judgments are ordinarily disfavored." Eitel v. McCool, 782 F.2d 1470, 1472 (9th Cir. 1986). But, "[c]ourts have inherent equitable powers to dismiss actions or enter default judgments for failure to prosecute, contempt of court, or abusive litigation practices." Televideo Systems, Inc. v. Heidenthal, 826 F.2d 915, 916 (9th Cir. 1987). "The bankruptcy court has broad discretion to grant a default judgment; the plaintiff is not entitled to such judgment as a matter of right." In re McGee, 359 B.R. 764, 771 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006). "The trial court's 'broad discretion' over entry of default judgment includes the discretion to require the plaintiff to prove its case with competent, admissible evidence, to assess matters in accordance with substantial justice, and to make reasonable inferences against the plaintiff." Id., at 775.

"[A] default establishes the well-pleaded allegations of a complaint unless they are . . . contrary to facts judicially noticed or to uncontroverted material in the file." Facts that are not well pled include allegations that are "made indefinite or erroneous by other allegations in the same complaint, . . . allegations which are contrary to the facts of which the court will take judicial notice, or which are not susceptible to proof by legitimate evidence, or which are contrary to the uncontroverted material in the file of the case." It follows that a default judgment that is based solely on the pleadings may only be granted upon well-pled factual allegations, and only for relief for which a sufficient basis is asserted in a complaint.

Id., at 772. Further, even if the Court takes the plaintiff's facts as true, "the facts alleged in the complaint may be insufficient to establish liability." Id., at 771.

"The factors to be considered for entry of a default judgment include (1) the possibility of prejudice to the plaintiff, (2) the merits of the plaintiff's substantive claim, (3) the sufficiency of the complaint, (4) the sum of money at stake in the action, (5) the possibility of a dispute concerning material facts, (6) whether the default was due to excusable neglect, and (7) the strong policy underlying the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure favoring decisions on the merits." McGee, at 771 (Eitel v. McCool, 782 F.2d at 1471-72); see also Truong Giang Corp. v. Twinstar Tea Corp., 2007 WL 1545173 (N.D. Cal. 2007). However, "Rule 55 gives the court considerable leeway as to what it may require as a prerequisite to the entry of a default judgment." Televideo Systems, 826 F.2d at 917.

A. Possibility of Prejudice to the Plaintiff

Here, given Defendant's lack of cooperation and the Court's striking of Defendant's answer, a default judgment is likely the only avenue to judgment left for Plaintiff. As such, if Plaintiff does not obtain a default judgment, Plaintiff will suffer prejudice.

B. Merits of the Plaintiffs' Substantive Claims

Plaintiff requests default judgment as to seven claims: nondischargeability of its debt under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4) and (a)(6) and objection to discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2), (a)(3), (a)(4) and (a)(5).

1. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A)

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, a plaintiff must prove by a preponderance of the evidence the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and

(5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

In re Weinberg, 410 B.R. 19, 35 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009) (citing In re Slyman, 234 F.3d 1081, 1085 (9th Cir. 2000)).

The only evidence in support of Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) is the Bereliani Declaration. As Ms. Bereliani does not have personal knowledge of the events that transpired between Plaintiff and Defendant, the Bereliani Declaration cannot be used to prove up Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A). In addition, although Plaintiff may rely on the allegations in the Complaint to prove intent, Plaintiff does not allege that Defendant acted with knowledge of the falsity of his statements or with intent to deceive at the time he incurred the debt. Plaintiff does allege that Defendant "acted... with deliberate intent to deceive Plaintiff" under Plaintiff's § 523(a)(6) claim, but does not specify if Defendant acted with intent to deceive at the time Defendant made the alleged misrepresentations to Plaintiff. As such, the allegations do not establish intent for purposes of § 523(a)(2)(A).

As to intent, even if Plaintiff offers a declaration by a percipient witness, that witness likely cannot testify as to Defendant's intent. As such, to obtain relief under § 523(a)(2)(A), Plaintiff would have to move to file an amended complaint.

Finally, the Complaint does not include sufficient allegations regarding whether Defendant's actions caused cancellation of the Concert. The Complaint includes allegations that other artists were set to perform (such as The Michael Jackson Band and unnamed Korean artists), and Don Felder and Miri Ben Ari were allegedly set to perform for a second concert. As such, it is not clear why the Concert did not go forward with the other performers. Under FRCP 9(b), which requires specific allegations related to fraud, the allegations are insufficient to establish causation. Consequently, Plaintiff has not proven up its claim under § 523(a)(2)(A).

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement, or larceny."

Chapter 7

i. Fraud or Defalcation While Acting in a Fiduciary Capacity

A debt is nondischargeable for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity "where (1) an express trust existed, (2) the debt was caused by fraud or defalcation, and (3) the debtor acted as a fiduciary to the creditor at the time the debt was created." In re Niles, 106 F.3d 1456, 1459 (9th Cir. 1997).

Whether a relationship is a fiduciary one within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) is a question of federal law. Ragsdale v. Haller, 780 F.2d 794, 795 (9th Cir. 1986); see also In re Cantrell, 269 B.R. 413, 420 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001) ("The definition of 'fiduciary capacity' under § 523(a)(4) is governed by federal law."). In the context of dischargeability, the fiduciary relationship must arise from an express or technical trust that was imposed before and without reference to the wrongdoing that caused the debt. Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796. Under § 523(a)(4), the "scope of the term 'fiduciary capacity' is a question of federal law," but "the Ninth Circuit has considered state law to ascertain whether the requisite trust relationship exists." In re Honkanen, 446 B.R. 373, 379 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011); Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796.

"A trust under California law may be formed by express agreement, by statute, or by case law." Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420. An express trust under California law requires the following five elements: (1) present intent to create a trust; (2) a trustee; (3) trust property; (4) a proper legal purpose; and (5) a beneficiary. Honkanen, at 379 fn. 6 (citing Cal. Prob. Code §§ 15201–15205). A technical trust under California law is one "arising from the relation of attorney, executor, or guardian, and not to debts due by a bankrupt in the character of an agent, factor, commission merchant, and the like." Id., at fn. 7 (quoting Royal Indemnity Co. v. Sherman, 269 P.2d 123, 125 (Cal. Ct. App. 1954)). Additionally, "[t]rusts arising as remedial devices to breaches of implied or express contracts—such as resulting or constructive trusts—are excluded, while statutory trusts that bear the hallmarks of an express trust are not." Id. (citing In re Pedrazzini, 644 F.2d 756, 759 (9th Cir. 1981)).

Here, Plaintiff has not alleged that an express, statutory or technical trust existed prior to the events alleged in the Complaint. In In re Kelley, 2008 WL 8013409, at *7 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. Jul. 15, 2008), on which Plaintiff relies, the court found that a fiduciary relationship existed between the debtor (a real estate broker) and the creditor

(a client) by operation of California Business & Professions Code § 10145, which creates a statutory trust when clients deposit funds with real estate brokers. Plaintiff has not established that such a statutory trust exists in this case.

ii. Embezzlement

"Federal law and not state law controls the definition of embezzlement for purposes of section 523(a)(4)." In re Wada, 210 B.R. 572, 576 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997).

"Embezzlement is defined as 'the fraudulent appropriation of property by a person to whom such property has been [e]ntrusted or into whose hands it has lawfully come.'" Id. (quoting Moore v. United States, 160 U.S. 268, 269, 16 S.Ct. 294, 295, 40 L.Ed. 422 (1895)).

"Embezzlement" within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) requires three elements: (1) property rightfully in the possession of a nonowner, (2) the nonowner's misappropriation of the property to a use other than that for which it was entrusted, and (3) circumstances indicating fraud. In re Littleton, 942 F.2d 551, 555 (9th Cir. 1991). For purposes of embezzlement, a fiduciary relationship is not required. Id., at 555.

Once again, the only evidence in support of Plaintiff's § 523(a)(4) claim is the Bereliani Declaration, and Ms. Bereliani does not have personal knowledge of the events that form the basis of Plaintiff's § 523(a)(4) claim. In addition, although the Complaint includes allegations that Defendant misappropriated the $100,000 given to Defendant for the purpose of securing Will.I.Am and Pitbull (and incurred certain damages as a result of the misappropriation), the Complaint does not include allegations regarding what Defendant did with the funds that were earmarked to secure Don Felder and Miri Ben Ari as performers. For example, Plaintiff does not allege that Defendant did not use the funds to attempt to secure these performers. As such, the Complaint does not establish misappropriation as to the $17,500 Plaintiff gave to Defendant to secure Don Felder and Miri Ben Ari. A future supplemental declaration by an appropriate witness should include such information.

With respect to "circumstances indicating fraud," because the Complaint does not include intent allegations under § 523(a)(2)(A), Plaintiff has not established fraud itself. However, Plaintiff need not show actual fraud to show "circumstances indicating fraud." In a relatively recent unpublished decision, the BAP, relying on the Supreme Court of the United States' decision in Husky Int'l Elecs., Inc. v. Ritz, 136 S.Ct. 1581, 194 L.Ed.2d 655 (2016), found that "circumstances indicating fraud" for purposes of embezzlement is "not synonymous" with an "intent to defraud" as required by § 523(a)(2)(A):

Debtor primarily asserts error because the state court did not make an explicit finding of fraud. We acknowledge this point but find it inapposite. The finding required for a determination of § 523(a)(4) embezzlement is that Debtor's actions indicated fraud. Such a determination is not synonymous with an intent to defraud as required under § 523(a)(2)(A). And even if it were, § 523(a)(2)(A) does not necessarily require a misrepresentation as Debtor argues. Recently in Husky Int'l Elecs., Inc. v. Ritz, 136 S. Ct. 1581 (2016), the United States Supreme Court clarified that misrepresentation is not an element of actual fraud under § 523(a)(2)(A). That is, actual fraud may include a wider array of misconduct. The record here sufficiently establishes misconduct that falls within the broader definition of actual fraud and even more plainly meets the § 523(a)(4) requirement of indicia of fraud.

Other courts appear to agree that, unlike § 523(a)(2)(A), the intent to defraud need not be present at the time of the misrepresentation or for the purpose of inducing the creditor to furnish funds. For instance, several courts have held that a debtor's subsequent concealment of misappropriated funds satisfies the "circumstances indicating fraud" element of embezzlement. See In re Hatch, 465 B.R. 479, 487 (Bankr. W.D. Mich. 2012) ("Because embezzlement, by definition, involves a situation in which the debtor initially has lawful possession of the property at issue, it is not necessary for a creditor to prove that a debtor's misrepresentations induced it to part with property. Rather, the creditor needs only to prove misappropriation and 'circumstances indicating fraud,' such as circumstances suggesting that the debtor intended to conceal the misappropriation.").

Here, Plaintiff does allege in the Complaint that Defendant concealed the misappropriation. In paragraphs 14 through 20, Plaintiff alleges that it repeatedly asked Defendant about whether Will.I.Am and Pitbull had sent confirmations, and Defendant repeatedly represented that the artists had been paid and that Defendant was awaiting final confirmation. Because Plaintiff alleges that Defendant continued to conceal the misappropriation, the Complaint includes sufficient allegations as to "circumstances indicating fraud." As such, if an appropriate witness provides a declaration substantiating these allegations, Plaintiff will likely be able to show "circumstances indicating fraud."

3. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6)

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity."

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S.Ct. 974, 977 (1998). Thus, debts "arising from recklessly or negligently inflicted injuries do not fall within the compass of § 523(a)(6)." Id., 523 U.S. at 64. It suffices, however, if the debtor knew that harm to the creditor was "substantially certain." In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1145-46 (9th Cir. 2002); In re Jercich, 238 F.3d 1202, 1208 (9th Cir. 2001) ("the willful injury requirement of § 523(a)(6) is met when it is shown either that debtor had subjective motive to inflict injury or that the debtor believed that injury was substantially certain to occur as a result of his conduct") (emphasis in original).

Under § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Maliciousness requires (1) a wrongful act; (2) done intentionally; (3) which necessarily causes injury; (4) without just cause or excuse. Id., at 1147. Maliciousness does not require "personal hatred, spite, or will-will." In re Bammer, 131 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 1997).

Here, the Complaint does include allegations that Defendant acted "willfully" and "maliciously" in allegedly converting Plaintiff's funds. However, Plaintiff bases its claim under § 523(a)(6) on conversion, and the Complaint does not sufficiently establish conversion.

Under California law, "[t]o maintain a conversion action, '[a plaintiff] must show that she was entitled to immediate possession at the time of conversion.'" In re Bailey, 197 F.3d 997, 1000 (9th Cir. 1999) (quoting Bastanchury v. Times-Mirror Co., 68 Cal.App.2d 217, 236 (Ct. App. 1945)). Here, Plaintiff was not entitled to immediate possession of the funds at the time Defendant misappropriated the funds; rather, the funds were to be paid to artists to secure their performances. As such, the Complaint does not establish conversion.

Section 727(a)(2)(A)-(B) provides that a court shall grant a debtor a discharge unless "the debtor, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor or an officer of the estate charged with custody of property ... has transferred, removed, destroyed, mutilated, or concealed ... (A) property of the debtor, within one year before the date of the filing of the petition; or (B) property of the estate, after the date of the filing of the petition."

"Two elements comprise an objection to discharge under § 727(a)(2)(A): 1) a disposition of property, such as transfer or concealment, and 2) a subjective intent on the debtor's part to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor...." In re Beauchamp, 236 B.R. 727, 732 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). Intent may be inferred from the actions of the debtor. In re Devers, 759 F.2d 751, 753-54 (9th Cir. 1985). The necessary intent under § 727(a)(2) "may be established by circumstantial evidence, or by inferences drawn from a course of conduct." In re Adeb, 787 F.2d 1339, 1343 (9th Cir.1986) (quoting Devers, 759 F.2d at 753-54).

"The standard for denial of discharge under § 727(a)(2)(B) is the same as § 727(a)(2)(A), but the disposition must be of estate property occurring after the petition date." In re Miller, 2015 WL 3750830, at *3 (Bankr. Plaintiff asserts that Defendant's discharge should be denied based on the following acts of concealment: (A) Defendant understated the amount of debt owed to Plaintiff by listing a debt for $20,000 in his schedule E/F; (B) Defendant did not include the misappropriated funds in his schedules or statements; (C) Defendant did not list $24,000-$32,000 in yearly income from the Canadian association "SESAC" in his schedules or statements; and (D) Defendant did not schedule his ex-wife as a co-

debtor in his schedule H.

Chapter 7

As to Defendant listing a $20,000 debt owed to Plaintiff as opposed to a larger sum, understating a debt does not constitute concealment of property. This type of inaccuracy in a debtor's schedules is better addressed by 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4), discussed below. The same is true regarding scheduling of Defendant's ex-wife as a co-debtor.

Regarding the funds taken from Plaintiff, misappropriated funds would not qualify as property of Defendant or property of the estate, and, as a result, would not come within the purview of § 727(a)(2)(A) or (B). Embezzled money does not qualify as earned income. See, e.g. In re Wada, 210 B.R. 572, 576-77 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997).

To the extent Defendant did not disclose income from SESAC in his schedules or statements, such a failure to disclose would qualify as concealment for purposes of § 727(a)(2)(A) and (B). However, Plaintiff has offered no evidence that Defendant in fact received any income from SESAC during the relevant time periods prescribed by § 727(a)(2)(A) and (B). Although the Complaint sufficiently alleges the intent element of these statutes, i.e., that Defendant acted within intent to hinder, delay or defraud, and Plaintiff need not offer further evidence of intent, Plaintiff should supplement the Motion with evidence that Defendant received income from SESAC.

Section 727(a)(3) places an affirmative duty on the debtor to keep and preserve records accurately documenting his or her business and personal affairs. See In re Caneva, 550 F.3d 755, 762 (9th Cir. 2008). Requiring accurate documentation "removes the risk to creditors of 'the withholding or concealment of assets by the bankrupt under cover of a chaotic or incomplete set of books or records.'" Id. (quoting Burchett v. Myers, 202 F.2d 920, 926 (9th Cir. 1953)). We strictly construe this exception to discharge in favor of the debtor's fresh start. Id.

To succeed on its objection to discharge under § 727(a)(3), Plaintiffs must show "(1) that [Defendant] failed to maintain and preserve adequate records, and (2) that such failure rendered it impossible to ascertain [Defendant's] financial condition and material business transactions." In re Cox, 41 F.3d 1294, 1296 (9th Cir. 1994) (quoting Meridian Bank v. Alten, 958 F.2d 1226, 1232 (3d Cir. 1992)). Generally, records are sufficient if they allow the court and creditors to trace the debtor's financial dealings. In re Ridley, 115 B.R. 731, 733 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1990).

Here, Plaintiff's claim under § 727(a)(3) is based on Defendant's failure to produce discovery. That Defendant did not cooperate with Plaintiff does not translate to Defendant failed to maintain or preserve those records. In addition, there is no evidence that Defendant "rendered it impossible" to ascertain Defendant's financial condition. Although Defendant may have failed to produce documents to Plaintiff, Plaintiff could have subpoenaed Defendant's banks to gather information about Defendant's financial picture. As such, Plaintiff has not established a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3).

Section 727(a)(4)(A) denies a discharge to a debtor who "knowingly and fraudulently" made a false oath or account in the course of the bankruptcy proceedings. To bring a successful § 727(a)(4)(A) claim for false oath, the plaintiff must show: (1) the debtor made a false oath in connection with the case; (2) the oath related to a material fact; (3) the oath was made knowingly; and (4) the oath was made fraudulently. In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 62 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). "[A] false oath may involve a false statement or omission in the debtor's schedules." In re Roberts, 331 B.R. 876, 882 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005), aff'd and remanded on other grounds, 241 F. App'x 420 (9th Cir. 2007).

"A fact is material if it bears a relationship to the debtor's business transactions or estate, or concerns the discovery of assets, business dealings, or the existence and disposition of the debtor's property." In re Retz, 606 F.3d 1189, 1198 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting Khalil, 379 B.R. at 173). "A debtor acts knowingly if he or she acts deliberately and consciously." Retz, 606 F.3d at 1198 (quoting Khalil, 379 B.R. at 173) (internal quotation omitted).

The fraud provision of § 727(a)(4) is similar to common law fraud, which the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has described as follows:

The creditor must show that (1) the debtor made the representations;
(2) that at the time he knew they were false; (3) that he made them with the intention and purpose of deceiving the creditors; (4) that the creditors relied on such representations; (5) that the creditors sustained loss and damage as the proximate result of the representations having been made.

Roberts, 331 B.R. at 884. Intent must usually be established by circumstantial evidence or inferences drawn from the debtor's course of conduct. Khalil, 379 B.R. at 174 (circumstances might include multiple omissions or failure to clear up omissions). "[T]he cumulative effect of false statements may, when taken together, evidence a reckless disregard for the truth sufficient to support a finding of fraudulent intent" under § 727(a)(4). Stamat v. Neary, 635 F.3d 974, 982 (7th Cir. 2011).

As with § 727(a)(2), Plaintiff asserts that Defendant's discharge should be denied based on the following: (A) Defendant understated the amount of debt owed to Plaintiff by listing a debt for $20,000 in his schedule E/F; (B) Defendant did not include the misappropriated funds in his schedules or statements; (C) Defendant did not list income from the Canadian association "SESAC" in his schedules or statements; and (D) Defendant did not schedule his ex-wife as a co-debtor in his schedule H.

Here, there is no admissible declaration regarding the amount of funds allegedly misappropriated by Defendant. However, if Plaintiff were to supplement the Motion with an admissible declaration by someone with personal knowledge, and if that declaration substantiated the Complaint's allegations regarding the amount of misappropriated funds, that amount would be significantly greater than the $20,000 debt listed by Defendant in his schedule E/F. As such, upon receipt of an admissible declaration, Plaintiff would be able to show that Defendant made a false oath. In addition, the false oath would be material because it would bear a relationship to Defendant's estate; by understating his liabilities, Defendant did not provide the trustee, the Court and creditors with an accurate picture of his estate.

As to the alleged income from SESAC, once again, Plaintiff has not provided evidence that Defendant received such income, or when Defendant received the alleged income. If Defendant was receiving income from SESAC as of the petition date or within the three years preceding the petition date, then Defendant made a false oath when he stated in his schedules and SOFA that he received no income in 2017.

In addition, the false oath would be material because it bears a relationship to assets of Defendant's estate.

In the Complaint, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant made false oaths and omissions "knowingly" and "fraudulently." As such, if Plaintiff provides sufficient evidence of the false oaths, Plaintiff may be able to obtain default judgment under § 727(a)(4).

Regarding Plaintiff's allegation that Defendant did not include the funds furnished by Plaintiff as income, as noted above, misappropriated funds do not qualify as "income." In addition, Plaintiff has not explained why the omission of Defendant's ex-wife as a codebtor is a material omission. Consequently, Plaintiff has not established a claim under § 727(a)(4) as to these omissions.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5), a debtor's discharge will be denied if "the debtor has failed to explain satisfactorily, before determination of denial of discharge under this paragraph, any loss of assets or deficiency of assets to meet the debtor's liabilities." Under § 727(a)(5), the objecting party must demonstrate that:

- (1) debtor at one time, not too remote from the bankruptcy petition date, owned identifiable assets; (2) on the date the bankruptcy petition was filed or order of relief granted, the debtor no longer owned the assets; and (3) the bankruptcy pleadings or statement of affairs do not reflect an adequate explanation for the disposition of the assets.

Here, Plaintiff bases its claim under § 727(a)(5) on the fact that Defendant has not accounted for the funds Plaintiff gave to DMI. However, under § 727(a)(5), courts may deny a debtor's discharge if the debtor has failed to satisfactorily explain a loss of assets. Because Plaintiff is alleging that Defendant embezzled the funds provided by Plaintiff, the embezzled funds would not be "assets" of the bankruptcy estate. As such, Plaintiff has not established a claim under § 727(a)(5).

"The second and third [Eitel] factors, taken together, require that [Plaintiffs] assert a claim upon which [they] may recover." In re Sharma, 2013 WL 1987351, at *10 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. May 14, 2013), aff'd, 607 F. App'x 713 (9th Cir. 2015), citing IO Group, 708 F.Supp.2d 989, 997 (N.D. Cal. 2010). "For default judgment based solely on the complaint, without the benefit of a prove-up hearing, the facts in the complaint must go beyond being well-pled; they must support the ultimate determination of liability." Sharma, 2013 WL 1987351 at *10.

For the reasons stated above, the Complaint did not sufficiently allege claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) or (a)(6), or under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3) or (a)(5). The Complaint does make sufficient allegations as to embezzlement under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) (but not as to fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity) and as to the omission of certain assets or liabilities under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2) and (a)(4).

D. The Sum of Money at Stake in the Action

Under this factor, "the court must consider the amount of money at stake in relation to the seriousness of Defendant's conduct." PepsiCo, Inc. v. Cal. Security Cans, 238 F.Supp.2d 1172, 1176 (C.D. Cal. 2002). In the Complaint, Plaintiff requests damages in excess of $2 million.

E. Possibility of Dispute

"The fifth Eitel factor considers the possibility of dispute as to any material facts in the case." Elektra Entertainment Group, Inc., et al., 2004 WL 783123, *4 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2004). "The general rule of law is that upon default the factual allegations of the complaint, except those relating to the amount of damages, will be taken as true." TeleVideo Systems, at 917-918 (quoting Geddes v. United Financial Group, 559 F.2d 557, 560 (9th Cir.1977)).

Here, Defendant agreed to the striking of his answer and to Plaintiff proceeding by way of default judgment. As such, there is not a significant possibility of dispute.

Cal. Feb. 13, 2004) (citing Mullane v. Central Hanover Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306 (1950)).

Because this is a situation where Defendant's answer was stricken, and Defendant is aware that default judgment may be entered against him, the general due process concerns are not present here.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will continue this hearing to 1:30 p.m. on February 6, 2019. No later than January 23, 2019, Plaintiff must file a supplemental declaration by a witness with personal knowledge as to Plaintiff's claims under § 523. If the supplemental declaration cures the deficiencies outlined above, the Court may enter default judgment under § 523. As to Plaintiff's claims under § 727(a)(2) and (a)(4), if Plaintiff provides evidence of income received by SESAC within the relevant time periods, and if Plaintiff proves that Defendant misappropriated a sum greater than $20,000, the Court also may enter default judgment under § 727(a)(2) and (a)(4).

Docket 56

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will dismiss this case with a 180-day bar pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 1112(b)(4)(E), (F) and (J). The Court also will sanction Dana Douglas $250.00.

I. BACKGROUND

On February 21, 2018, Cheryl Placencia ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. Previously, Debtor had filed six other bankruptcy cases, including chapter 11 cases Debtor filed in 2016 (the "2016 Case") [1:16-bk-12629-VK] and in 2017 (the "2017 Case") [1:17-bk-11847-VK]. The Court dismissed the 2016 Case based on Debtor's inability to explain distributions listed in her monthly operating reports [1:16-bk-12629-VK, docs. 37, 46]. The Court dismissed the 2017 Case based on Debtor's failure to provide evidence of insurance coverage for her vehicles and failure to file monthly operating reports [1:17-bk-11847-VK, docs. 48, 57].

In Debtor's schedule A/B, Debtor listed an interest in real property located at 11922 Louise Avenue, Granada Hills, CA 91344 (the "Property") and valued the Property at $950,000. In her schedule C, Debtor claimed an exemption in the Property in the amount of $100. In her schedule D, Debtor listed a $1,350,000 deed of trust against the Property in favor of Nationstar Mortgage. In her schedule A/B, Debtor also listed personal property valued at $50,378. In her schedule C, Debtor claimed as exempt $26,578 of her personal property. In her schedule D, Debtor listed $6,195 in encumbrances against her personal property.

During the pendency of the 2017 Case, Dana M. Douglas represented Debtor as Debtor's general bankruptcy counsel. Ms. Douglas also is Debtor's general bankruptcy counsel in Debtor's current bankruptcy case.

On May 16, 2018, the Court entered an order setting September 17, 2018 as the deadline for Debtor to file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement [doc. 41]. On September 24, 2018, Debtor belatedly moved to extend the deadline for Debtor to file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement (the "Motion to Extend") [doc. 50]. In a status report [doc. 49] filed concurrently with the Motion to Extend, Debtor stated that she is attempting to obtain a consensual loan modification with her mortgage lender.

On September 26, 2018, the Court entered an order extending the deadline for Debtor to file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement to October 27, 2018 [doc. 51]. On October 4, 2018, the Court issued a ruling continuing the status conference to November 1, 2018 and instructing Debtor that, if Debtor does not timely file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement by October 17, 2018, Debtor must file a status report no later than October 18, 2018.

Debtor did not timely file a proposed chapter 11 plan or related disclosure statement. In addition, Debtor did not file a chapter 11 case status conference report prior to the continued status conference.

On November 1, 2018, the Court held a continued status conference. Debtor appeared. At that time, the Court informed Debtor that the Court would provide Debtor an opportunity to participate in the Court's Loan Modification Management Pilot Program ("LMM"). The Court noted in a ruling that, if Debtor did not timely comply with LMM procedure or, in the alternative, file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure, the Court would not provide any further extensions and would dismiss this case.

On November 6, 2018, the Court issued the OSC [doc. 56]. In the OSC, the Court ordered Debtor to file a Motion to Commence LMM and a status report no later than December 6, 2018. The Court also ordered that, if Debtor elected not to proceed via the LMM, that Debtor must file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement no later than December 6, 2018. The Court stated that, "if Debtor does not comply timely with this Order to Show Cause, the Court may dismiss this case with a 180-day bar and may impose a sanction of $250 against Ms. Douglas in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 105(a) and the Court's inherent authority." OSC, p. 3.

Chapter 11

As of December 10, 2018, Debtor has not filed a Motion to Commence LMM, a status report or a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement. In addition, Debtor has not timely filed a monthly operating report for October 2018.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b)—

(b) (1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, subsection (c) of this section, and section 1104(a)(3), on request of a party in interest, and after notice and a hearing, absent unusual circumstances specifically identified by the court that establish that the requested conversion or dismissal is not in the best interests of creditors and the estate, the court shall convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter, whichever is in the best interests of creditors and the estate, if the movant establishes cause. . . .

(2) The court may not convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter if the court finds and specifically identifies unusual circumstances establishing that converting or dismissing the case is not in the best interests of creditors and the estate, and the debtor or any other party in interest establishes that -

(A) there is a reasonable likelihood that a plan will be confirmed . . . within a reasonable period of time; and

(B) the grounds for converting or dismissing the case include an act or omission of the debtor other than under paragraph 4(A) -

(i) for which there exists a reasonable justification for the act or omission; and

(ii) that will be cured within a reasonable period of time fixed by the court.

...

(4) For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘cause’ includes . . .

...

(E) failure to comply with an order of the court;

(F) unexcused failure to satisfy timely any filing or reporting requirement established by this title or by any rule applicable to a case under this chapter;

(J) failure to file a disclosure statement, or to file or confirm a plan, within the time fixed by this title or by order of the court....

11 U.S.C. § 1112(b). Motions to dismiss under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) require a two-step analysis. "First, it must be determined that there is ‘cause’ to act. Second, once a determination of ‘cause’ has been made, a choice must be made between conversion and dismissal based on the ‘best interests of the creditors and the estate.’" In re Nelson, 343 B.R. 671, 675 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006).

Here, Debtor did not timely file a Motion to Commence LMM and did not timely file a status report as ordered by the Court in the OSC. In the alternative, Debtor did not timely file a proposed chapter 11 plan or related disclosure statement. Debtor also did not timely file the monthly operating report for October 2018. As such, there is cause to dismiss this case.

Although there is some equity in Debtor’s personal property, in the amount of $17,605, any cost of liquidation of such personal property, along with administrative claims against the estate, would not leave any funds for distribution to creditors. Consequently, dismissal is in the best interest of creditors in this case. Because this is Debtor's third bankruptcy filing in three years, and seventh bankruptcy filing overall, the Court will dismiss this case with a 180-day bar to refile a bankruptcy petition.

The Court also will sanction Ms. Douglas, Debtor's general bankruptcy attorney, for failing to comply with the OSC. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 105(a), the Court "may issue any order, process, or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out provisions of this title," and take "any action or mak[e] any determination necessary or appropriate to enforce or implement court orders or rules, or to prevent an abuse of process."

Here, Ms. Douglas has not complied with any of the deadlines set by the Court despite the Court providing Ms. Douglas several opportunities to do so. At the last status conference and in the OSC, the Court warned Ms. Douglas that another failure to comply with an order of this Court may result in sanctions in the amount of $250. Nevertheless, Ms. Douglas has not timely filed any of the required documents with the Court. Consequently, the Court will sanction Ms. Douglas $250.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss this case with a 180-day bar. The Court also will sanction Ms. Douglas $250, to be paid to the Clerk of the Court within 14 days of entry of the order dismissing this case.

The Court will prepare the order.

Tentative Ruling:

See calendar no. 4.

11/1/2018 Tentative:

Contrary to the Court's order extending the deadline for the debtor to file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement to October 17, 2018 [doc. 51], the debtor has not timely filed a proposed chapter 11 plan or related disclosure statement. Moreover, contrary to the Court's instructions from the prior status conference, the debtor did not timely file a status report explaining why the debtor has not timely filed a proposed chapter 11 plan or related disclosure statement. In addition, the debtor did not timely file a monthly operating report for September 2018.

Assuming the debtor becomes current with her monthly operating reports, and if the debtor's main barrier to reorganization is the debtor's inability to obtain a loan modification, the Court will provide an opportunity for the debtor to participate in the Loan Modification Management Pilot Program ("LMM"). The LMM forms and procedures may be found on the Court's website at www.cacb.uscourts.gov/loan-modification-management-pilot-program

If the debtor chooses to participate, the Court will set a deadline by which the debtor must file a Motion to Commence LMM using Form LMM 4001-1.6.MOTION.COMMENCE and otherwise must comply with the procedures outlined on the Court's website. Alternatively, the debtor must file a chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement. If the debtor does neither, the Court will not provide any further extensions and will dismiss this case.

fr. 10/10/18; 10/17/18; 11/21/18; 11/17/18

Docket 15

Tentative Ruling:

At the previous hearing on the motion, the parties expressed that they were close to a settlement. What is the status of the parties' participation in settlement discussions?

The Court instructed the movants' attorney to file a declaration by December 12, 2018, regarding when the state court could again try the issue (because the previously-set, December 7 trial date was not workable, for the chapter 7 trustee). Although the movants' attorney did not file a declaration, movants' reply brief represents that the state court has set the trial for February 21, 2018 [doc. 58, p. 2].

On December 13, 2018, the chapter 7 trustee filed an application to employ Goldie Schon as special litigation counsel [doc. 59]. Ms. Schon is a Certified Family Law Specialist and has "over 19 years of experience in all aspects of family law related matters." Doc. 59, Declaration of Goldie Schon. Ms. Schon states that her firm has "handled hundreds of divorce cases and routinely handle[s] complex divorce litigation, including, but not limited to, divorce cases involving substantial and complex issues that exist in this case." Doc. 59, Exh. 1.

On December 5, 2018, the chapter 7 trustee filed a supplemental opposition to the motion (the "Supplemental Opposition") [doc 50]. In the Supplemental Opposition, the chapter 7 trustee argues that the debtor and Danny Pavehzadeh (who also refers to himself as Houshang Pavehzadeh) have a 50% community property interest in the real property at issue and that granting relief from stay would interfere with the Court's exclusive jurisdiction.

However, that misses the point of the relief from stay motion, i.e. to adjudicate the nature of the interests of the debtor and Danny Pavehzadeh in the real property, as of the petition date, i.e., July 28, 2018. This is an issue of California - not bankruptcy - law. The character and percentage of all interests in the real property at issue, as of the petition date, must be assessed, e.g., in order to allocate and distribute properly any proceeds from the sale of the property in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 726(c).

Section 362(d)(1) permits lifting of the automatic stay to continue pending litigation against a debtor in a nonbankruptcy forum. See Christensen v. Tucson Estates, Inc. (In re Tucson Estates, Inc.), 912 F.2d 1162, 1166 (9th Cir. 1990). In so determining, "the bankruptcy court should base its decision on the hardships imposed on the parties with an eye towards the overall goals of the Bankruptcy Code." In re C & S Grain Company, Inc., 47 F.3d 233, 238 (7th Cir. 1995) (emphasis added).

Factors that courts have used to determine whether to lift the automatic stay to allow litigation to proceed in a non-bankruptcy forum include:

- (1) Whether the relief will result in a partial or complete resolution of the issues.
- (2) The lack of any connection with or interference with the bankruptcy case.
- (3) Whether the foreign proceeding involves the debtor as a fiduciary.
- (4) Whether a specialized tribunal has been established to hear the particular cause of action and that tribunal has the expertise to hear such cases.
- (5) Whether the debtor's insurance carrier has assumed full financial responsibility for defending the litigation.
- (6) Whether the action essentially involves third parties, and the debtor functions only as a bailee or conduit for the goods or proceeds in question.
- (7) Whether litigation in another forum would prejudice the interests of other creditors, the creditors' committee and other interested parties.
- (8) Whether the judgment claim arising from the foreign action is subject to equitable subordination under Section 510(c).
- (9) Whether movant's success in the foreign proceeding would result in a judicial lien avoidable by the debtor under Section 522(f).
- (10) The interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties.

- (11) Whether the foreign proceedings have progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial.
- (12) The impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt."

In re Curtis, 40 B.R. 795, 799–800 (Bankr. D. Utah 1984) (citations omitted); see also In re Sonnax Industries, Inc., 99 B.R. 591 (D. Vt. 1989), aff'd, 907 F.2d 1280 (2d Cir. 1990) (listing factors).

Having assessed the relevant factors, there is cause to grant the motion to enable the state court to adjudicate the validity of the quitclaim deed and the characterization of the interests of the debtor and Danny Pavehzadeh in the property, as of the petition date. When applied to the pending Motion, the following factors under Curtis support granting relief from the automatic stay, for this specific purpose: (1) there is a specialized tribunal i.e. the family law court, that is particularly qualified to assess the character of the parties' interests in the real property, under family law and other state law; (2) the action involves third parties; (3) the litigation in the state court would not prejudice the interests of other creditors; (4) the interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties; (5) the foreign proceeding has progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial; and (6) the impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt" on the estate.

#7.00 Motion for relief from stay [RP]

WILMINGTON TRUST, N.A.
VS
DEBTOR

Docket 19

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(4).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

If recorded in compliance with applicable state laws governing notices of interests or liens in real property, the order is binding in any other case under this title purporting to affect the property filed not later than 2 years after the date of the entry of the order by the court, except that a debtor in a subsequent case under this title may move for relief from the order based upon changed circumstances or for good cause shown, after notice and hearing.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

The First Bankruptcy Case

On October 10, 2017, the debtor filed a prior chapter 13 petition [case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK]. In her prior schedules, the debtor disclosed monthly income in the amount of $4,173.00 and monthly expenses in the amount of $2,979.00, leaving net monthly income of $1,194.00. (Case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK, doc. 20, at p. 3.) The debtor stated that she was employed in landscaping for one year.

On December 20, 2017, the Court entered an order confirming the debtor's amended chapter 13 plan. (Case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK, doc. 24.) In her prior plan, the debtor's plan payment was $853.00 per month for 3 months, then $1,190.58 per month for 29 months, then $1,392.85 per month for 28 months. (Case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK, doc. 18.) Through her chapter 13 plan payments, among other things, the debtor intended to cure prepetition deed of trust arrearages in the amount of $42,000.00.

On April 4, 2018, the debtor filed a motion to modify or suspend plan payments because the debtor stated that she was experiencing a short term financial hardship (the "Motion to Modify"). (Case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK, doc. 31.) On July 19, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Motion to Modify. (Case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK, doc. 35.)

On June 11, 2018, the chapter 13 trustee (the "Trustee") filed a motion to dismiss for failure to make plan payments (the "Motion to Dismiss"). (Case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK, doc. 34.) The debtor did not oppose the Motion to Dismiss. On November 13, 2018, the Court entered an order dismissing the chapter 13 case for failure to make plan payments. (Case no. 1:17-bk-12718-VK, doc. 45.)

The Pending Bankruptcy Case

On November 19, 2018, the debtor filed the pending chapter 13 case. On November 27, 2018, the debtor filed a motion to continue the automatic stay as to all creditors (the "Motion to Continue Stay") [doc. 12]. In the Motion to Continue Stay, the debtor states that she experienced a temporary financial hardship when her contributor income stopped. The debtor states that she has started working a second job in order to make her chapter 13 plan payments. The debtor did not serve the Motion to Continue on all creditors. [FN1].

In her pending case, the debtor's Schedules I and J indicate monthly income of $3,547.00 and monthly expenses of $2,899.00, leaving net monthly income of $675.00. (Doc.14, at pp. 25–28.) Although the Motion to Continue represents that the debtor is working two jobs, the debtor indicated on her Schedule I that she is not employed. (Doc.14, at pp. 25.)

In her chapter 13 plan, the debtor proposes a monthly payment of $675.00 per month for months 1 through 6, then $986.66 per month for months 7 through 60. (Doc. 17, at p. 2.)

Although the debtor's plan filed in her prior chapter 13 case set forth higher deed of trust arrear, the debtor's current chapter 13 plan proposes to cure deed of trust arrear in the lesser amount of $30,000.00. Moreover, on December 10, 2018, the secured creditor JPMC Specialty Mortgage LLC filed an objection to confirmation, contending that the arrear owed are in the amount of $45,327.64 [doc. 20].

Discussion

Under 11 U.S.C. § 362(c)(3), in order to extend the automatic stay in a case filed within one year of another case which was pending within the same year but was dismissed, the debtor must show that the present case was filed in good faith as to the creditors to be stayed. Under 11 U.S.C. 362(c)(3)(C)(i)(III), a case is presumptively filed not in good faith if there has not been a substantial change in the financial or personal affairs of the debtor since the dismissal of the next most previous case, or any other reason to conclude that the later case will be concluded with a chapter 7 discharge, or a confirmed chapter 11 or 13 plan that will be fully performed.

Notwithstanding the assertions in the Motion to Continue Stay and the lack of an opposition to her motion, the debtor has not provided at this time clear and convincing evidence that her financial affairs have improved since her prior case, such that the pending chapter 13 case will result in a confirmed plan that will be fully performed. The debtor has made inconsistent statements regarding her employment. Further, the debtor has provided no evidence that she has sufficient net monthly income to fund the step-up in her proposed chapter 13 plan. Finally, even if the debtor has sufficient monthly income to fund the plan, it appears that the plan does not cure all arrears on the debtor's primary residence.

In light of the foregoing, the Court will grant the motion on an interim basis up to the date of the continued hearing. No later than December 27, 2018, the debtor must file and serve notice of the continued hearing on all creditors in accordance with Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004(b)(3) and (h). The debtor must timely pay: (1) her December 2018 and January 2019 deed of trust payments in the amount of $1,474.00 (as stated in her current Schedule J) as to the real property located at 7107 Cozycroft Avenue, Winnetka, California 91306; and (2) her December 2018 plan payment in the amount of $675.00 to the chapter 13 trustee. No later than January 17, 2018, the debtor must file a declaration to demonstrate that she timely made her required post-petition deed of trust and chapter 13 plan payments.

FOOTNOTES

1. The debtor attached a proof of service to the Motion to Continue. However, with the exception of Midland Funding, the entities served do not appear on the debtor's list of creditors or in her Schedules D and E/F. Further, the debtor did not serve secured creditors Chase Mtg and Santandar dba Chrysler Capital.

#11.00 Opposition to declaration re default under adequate protection

Docket 78

Tentative Ruling:

On March 18, 2015, the debtors filed a chapter 13 petition. On January 22, 2018, the Bank of New York Mellon ("Creditor") filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay as to the real property located at 9341 Farralone Avenue, Chatsworth Area, Los Angeles 91311 (the "Property") [doc. 48]. On February 12, 2018, Creditor and the debtors filed a stipulation for adequate protection as to the Property (the "Stipulation") [doc. 51]. On February 14, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 53].

Under the terms of the Stipulation, the debtors must make regular monthly deed of trust payments in the amount of $4,753.79 commencing on March 1, 2018 ("Deed of Trust Payments"). The debtors also must cure the postpetition arrears in nine equal monthly installments of $1,465.29 each commencing on March 15, 2018 and continuing through November 15, 2018, and by paying a lump sum in the amount of $4,753.79 by February 14, 2018 ("Arrears Payments").

On November 16, 2018, Creditor filed a Declaration re: Default Under Adequate Protection Order (the "Default Declaration") [doc. 76]. In the Default Declaration, Creditor alleges that the debtors failed to make their Deed of Trust Payments and Arrears Payments for August 2018, September 2018 and October 2018; Creditor also includes a notice of default letter addressed to the debtors' counsel and the debtors.

On November 23, 2018, the debtors filed an opposition to the Default Declaration (the "Opposition") [doc. 78]. In the Opposition, although the Stipulation provides that the debtors would be given notice and 14 days to cure any arrears, the debtors represent that no notice of default was provided to the debtors or the debtors' counsel. The debtors also dispute Creditor's accounting of their payments. The debtors attached two types of proof of payment in support of their position.

The first type is in the form of redacted bank statements, which show that the debtors made the following payments:

Month	Deed of Trust Payments	Arrears Payments
February 2018	N/A	$4,753.79
March 2018	$4,753.79	$1,465.29
April 2018	$4,753.59	$1,465.29
May 2018	$4,791.33	None
June 2018	$4,791.33	None
July 2018	$9,582.66 [FN1]	None
August 2018	None	None
September 2018	None	None
October 2018	$4,791.33	None

The second type of proof of payment is in the form of images of either checks or carbon copies of checks for Arrears Payments for May 2018, June 2018, July 2018, August 2018 and October 2018 (the "Checks"). Some of the Checks are illegible; neither the payee nor the amount can be determined. The debtors acknowledge that Creditor did not cash the Checks. The debtors further state that they mistakenly did not make their September 2018 Deed of Trust Payment and Arrears Payment.

The debtors include an image of a check written on November 23, 2018, in the amount of $7,328.95; this check is intended to replace the never-cashed Checks and to pay the September 2018 Arrears Payment. This amount would cure arrears for five Arrears Payments. However, the debtors are missing six Arrears Payments.

On December 12, 2018, Creditor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 80]. In the Reply, Creditor states that the payments reflected in the redacted bank statements were received and credited, and that the discrepancy lies solely with the Checks. If Creditor receives and cashes the check written on November 23, 2018, the

#12.00 Pretrial conference re: remand

from: 6/13/18; 6/17/18; 10/10/18, 11/7/18

Docket 577

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(b)(2)(E), the debtor did not provide a concise summary of the subject of each witness's testimony. In addition, although the debtor may cross-examine any witness called by the creditors, the debtor cannot call any witness that is not listed on the debtor's witness list. As such, if the debtor intends to call any of the creditors' witnesses, the debtor must list those witnesses on his witness list. Prior to this continued pretrial conference, the debtor should file an amended witness list and include a summary of each witness's testimony. The debtor also must add any additional witnesses he intends to use at trial (with a concise summary of the testimony of each witness).

Regarding any exhibits that are pleadings or orders, the Court may take judicial notice of the pleadings and orders. As to the debtor's deposition excerpts, the debtor may be entitled to use those at trial, to the extent that use is in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7030-1(b).

The Court will not otherwise rule on the creditors' evidentiary objections to the debtor's exhibits at this time. The Court will assess evidentiary objections to exhibits as the exhibits are introduced at trial. The Court also will assess any evidentiary objections to testimony by witnesses, including Shirlee L. Bliss, who is listed as a witness for both parties, at trial.

As noted during the prior pretrial conference, no later than January 21, 2019, the parties must file a joint witness schedule setting forth the time and date (e.g., which day and a.m. or p.m.) for the testimony and cross-examination of each witness. No later than January 7, 2019, the creditors must file and serve their trial brief. No later than January 14, 2019, the debtor must file and serve his trial brief. No later than January 21, 2019, the creditors must file and serve any reply brief.

The Court will strike the defendant's answer pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 16(f)(1)(A) and (C) and 37(b)(2)(A)(iii), based on the defendant's failure to participate in drafting a joint pretrial stipulation, failure to file any documents in preparation for the pretrial conference and failure to appear at the pretrial conference. The defendant also has not responded to the plaintiff's motion for default judgment.

The Court also will direct the entry of default against the defendant and grant the plaintiff's motion for default judgment pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Movant will be awarded a judgment for the principal amount of $1,550,260.53.

Movant must submit an order striking the Answer and directing entry of default against the defendant within seven (7) days. Within seven (7) days after entry of that order, movant must submit the Default Judgment, using Local Bankruptcy Form F 7055.1.2.DEFAULT.JMT.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Adv#: 1:18-01102 Ocean Ranch LPFN, LLC v. Lost Coast Ranch, Inc. et al

#17.00 Status conference re notice of removal and order to show cause re remand

fr. 10/31/18

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

In light of the plaintiff's opposition to the motion to dismiss [doc. 17], the Court will not dismiss this adversary proceeding for failure to prosecute at this time. However, contrary to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a) and the Court's Order to Show Cause [doc. 3], the plaintiff still has not filed a status report.

As such, the Court may continue the motion to dismiss and the status conference to 1:30 p.m. on January 23, 2019. No later than January 9, 2019, the parties must file a joint status report. If the plaintiff does not timely file a status report in accordance with the Local Bankruptcy Rules, and take other appropriate action with respect to this removed adversary proceeding, the Court may dismiss this adversary proceeding for failure to prosecute.

Although the plaintiff asserts that defendant Joseph Flores Beauchamp has been effectively served, it is unclear if the plaintiff timely served the summons issued by the state court on Mr. Beauchamp. If Mr. Beauchamp has not been effectively served to date, as concerns the complaint at issue, this Court may not have personal jurisdiction as to the plaintiff's claims against Mr. Beauchamp.

The plaintiff has filed a proof of claim against the debtor's estate. Given that the parties may litigate the liability of the estate (if any) in that context, will the plaintiff and the chapter 7 trustee stipulate to remanding this adversary proceeding as to defendant Joseph Flores Beauchamp?

#2.00 Debtor's motion for entry of order authorizing sale of real property located at 23311 Park Soldi, Calabasas, California free and clear of certain liens, claims and interests

Docket 98

Tentative Ruling:

The Court intends to continue the hearing in order for the objecting lienholder to file a responsive brief addressing the debtor's ability to sell the real property at issue, when the lienholder has not consented to the proposed sale of the property free and clear of its lien and the sale proceeds will be insufficient to pay that lien in full.
