Chapter 13

#51.00 Hearing on objection to closing of chapter 13 case
fr. 4/14/20; 5/5/20

Docket 65

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will continue this hearing to July 14, 2020 at 11:00 a.m.

I. BACKGROUND

On November 21, 2014, Nabiollah Morovati (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. In his schedule F, the Debtor listed a nonpriority unsecured claim in favor of Sukari Hayes ("Creditor") in the amount of $17,932.97 [doc. 1]. The Debtor indicated that he incurred this debt on October 17, 2014 and that it was based on an employment wage claim. The Debtor listed the Creditor's address as:

Sukari Hayes
c/o Khashayar Eshragi, Esq.
Los Angeles, CA 90071

The Debtor also listed Creditor at this address in his master mailing list [doc. 1]. In his statement of financial affairs [doc. 1], the Debtor indicated that, within the year preceding the filing of her petition, he was a party to a prepetition nonbankruptcy action between the Debtor and Creditor. The Debtor did not indicate the status or disposition of the nonbankruptcy action.

On November 25, 2014, January 29, 2015 and April 27, 2015, the Debtor served notices of the 11 U.S.C. § 341(a) meeting of creditors and hearing on confirmation of chapter 13 plan, with a copy of the Debtor's chapter 13 plan, on Creditor at the address listed above [docs. 8, 15 and 24]. Creditor did not file an objection to the Debtor's chapter 13 plan. On December 1, 2015, the Court entered an order confirming the Debtor's chapter 13 plan [doc. 50].

Throughout the pendency of the Debtor's bankruptcy case, notices were being sent to Creditor at the address listed above. On November 28, 2018, Creditor filed a notice of change of address stating that her old address was "Khashayar Eshraghi" and her new address is "Sukari M Hayes, 1310 12th Ave., #201, Los Angeles, California 90019" [doc. 59].

On January 17, 2020, the chapter 13 trustee ("Trustee") filed a Notice of Intent to File Trustee's Final Report and Account, Obtain Discharge of Debtor and Close Case ("Notice") [doc. 64]. The Notice provided that if no objection was filed within 30 days after the date of the Notice, the Court would discharge the Debtor. The Notice further provided that any objection must be accompanied by a notice of the hearing on the objection.

On January 28, 2020, Creditor timely filed the Objection [doc. 65]. On February 26, 2020, the Court entered an order setting the Objection for hearing, and requiring Creditor to provide notice of the hearing and deadline to file a response on the Debtor, the Debtor's attorney and the Trustee [doc. 67]. As a result of improper service, and because Creditor is self-represented, the Court continued the hearing several times [docs. 72 and 76]. On April 10, 2010, the Debtor filed a response to the Objection (the "Response") [doc. 71].

In the Objection, Creditor objects to the closing of the Debtor's case because she was "not informed to appear in bankruptcy court in 2015." This assertion is not supported by a declaration.

In the Response, the Debtor states that notice of the Debtor's chapter 13 filing was mailed to Creditor in care of the attorney who represented Creditor and assisted her in obtaining a judgment against the Debtor (the "Judgment"). Accordingly, the Debtor contends that serving Creditor at her attorney's address was proper under the circumstances. In his declaration, the Debtor's attorney states that Creditor's attorney's address was the only valid address for Creditor known to either he or the Debtor.

II. DISCUSSION

Bankruptcy Code]....'" Ellett v. Stanislaus, 506 F.3d 774, 777 (9th Cir. 2007) (quoting 11 U.S.C. § 1328(a)). "[T]he phrase 'provided for' in section 1328(a) simply requires that for a claim to become dischargeable the plan must 'make a provision for' it, i.e., deal with it or refer to it." Id. (quoting Matter of Gregory, 705 F.2d 1118, 1122 (9th Cir. 1983)).

"[A] claim cannot be considered to have been provided for by the plan if a creditor does not receive proper notice of the proceedings." Id. (quoting In re Hairopoulos, 118 F.3d 1240, 1244 (8th Cir. 1997))(emphasis added). "The statutory command for notice embodies a basic principle of justice—that a reasonable opportunity to be heard must precede judicial denial of a party's claimed rights." Id. (quoting City of New York v. New York, N.H. & H.R. Co., 344 U.S. 293, 297, 73 S.Ct. 299, 97 L.Ed. 333 (1953)).

"Courts have found that generally 'mailing a notice to a party's last-known address is "reasonably calculated" to provide actual notice.'" In re Hernandez, No. 2:12-BK-47099-RK, 2017 WL 6033409, at *5 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. Dec. 5, 2017) (quoting In re Freedom Communications Holdings, Inc., 472 B.R. 257, 262 (Bankr. D. Del. 2012)). However, "[i]t is not enough merely to rely on one's own knowledge of a creditor's address." In re Fauchier, 71 B.R. 212, 215 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1987).

In order for a debt to be duly listed, the debtor must state the name and address of the creditor. . . . The burden is on the debtors to use reasonable diligence in completing their schedules and lists. . . . If a creditor proves that an address is incorrect, the debtor must justify the inaccuracy in preparing his schedules. . . . An incorrect or careless omission is not enough.

Id. (citations omitted). See also In re Haga, 131 B.R. 320, 327 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1991) (noting that "the debtor has the burden to show that the creditor ... had notice or actual knowledge of the case in time to file a proof of claim and request for a determination of dischargeability").

Here, the issue is whether the Debtor provided proper notice of his bankruptcy case to Creditor by serving Creditor care of her state court counsel. In the Reply, the Debtor contends that Creditor's state court counsel had a duty to provide notice to his client of all matters affecting her case, including the judgment she obtained against the Debtor. However, case law states otherwise.

"An attorney who has represented a creditor in state court proceedings does not, by virtue of that relationship alone, represent the creditor with respect to that same debt in a federal bankruptcy proceeding. Fauchier, 71 B.R at 215 (collecting cases). "[O]rdinarily, an attorney-client relationship is terminated once representation is completed." In re Perle, 725 F.3d 1023, 1027 (9th Cir. 2013) (quoting Damron v. Herzog, 67 F.3d 211, 213 (9th Cir.1995)). "And, generally speaking, a lawyer's authority to represent a client ends 'because the lawyer has completed the contemplated services.'" Id. (quoting Restatement (Third) of the Law Governing Lawyers § 31 (2000)). Further, "[a]n attorney owes limited duties to a former client, and keeping the former client apprised of the status of ongoing litigation does not appear to be one of them."

Nevertheless, there are instances when an attorney's knowledge may be imputed to the attorney's client. If the creditor's attorney was actively representing the creditor to enforce claims against the debtor, at the time that notice of the bankruptcy was given to that attorney, the creditor's attorney's knowledge of a debtor's bankruptcy proceeding may be imputed to the creditor. See, e.g., Perle, 725 F.3d at 1027; Lompa v. Price, 871 F.2d 97 (9th Cir. 1989); Maldonado v. Ramirez, 757 F.2d 48, 51 (3d Cir. 1985); Hernandez, 2017 WL 6033409, at *4; Musacco v. Walden, No. CIV 13-1053 MV/KBM, 2016 WL 9777182, at *4 (D.N.M. June 17, 2016). Although Price, Perle, and Hernandez are in the context of chapter 7 cases, they are instructive. See Ellett, 506 F.3d at 778.

In Price, prepetition, the debtor and creditor were engaged in a contract dispute in state court. Price, 871 F.2d at 97. Prior to the state court suit being resolved, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition. Id. The debtor did not list the creditor in his schedules or statements. Id. However, approximately two months prior to the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint, the debtor's counsel sent the creditor's counsel a notice that the state court lawsuit would be stayed because of the debtor's bankruptcy case. Id. at 97-98. The notice did not contain any deadline dates. Id. at 98. After the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint passed, the creditor filed a motion to file a late complaint. Id. The bankruptcy court granted the motion, and the debtor appealed to the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the Ninth Circuit ("BAP"). Id. The BAP reversed the bankruptcy court's ruling, and held that notice to the creditor's counsel constituted notice to the creditor. Id. The creditor appealed to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the BAP's ruling. Id. at 99. In doing so, the Court of Appeals stated:

Counsel for the [the creditor] in the present appeal was given actual notice of the bankruptcy proceedings in time to file a complaint, or at least to file a timely motion for an extension of time. At that time he was pursuing the same claim in state court that [the creditor] now seeks to have declared nondischargeable. We hold that under these circumstances notice to counsel constituted notice to [the creditor]. See Maldonado v. Ramirez, 37 B.R. 219, 221 (D.V.I.1984) (notice to a creditor's attorney of a bankruptcy filing is usually sufficient if the attorney received knowledge of it while representing his client in enforcing a claim against the bankrupt) (citing 3 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 523.15(5)(c) (15th ed. 1983)), rev'd on other grounds, 757 F.2d 48, 51 (3d Cir.1985) (agreeing with premise, but finding the evidence insufficient to indicate that counsel was enforcing the claim for the client when notice was received); In re Fulton, 3 B.R. 600, 603-04 (Bankr.E.D.Mich.1980) (attorney who represents client in action affected by bankruptcy proceeding is impliedly authorized to receive notice on client's behalf regarding the action).

In Perle, among the debtor's outstanding debts was an arbitration award to the creditor. Perle, 725 F.3d at 1025. The award was made three years prior to the debtor filing his petition. Id. During the arbitration proceedings, the creditor was represented by counsel, Russo. Id. At the time of the debtor filing his petition, Russo did not represent the creditor with regard to enforcement or collection of the arbitration award, but did represent the creditor on other matters. Id. at 1025-26. During the debtor's bankruptcy case, Russo, on behalf of a different client, filed a nondischargeability complaint against the debtor. Id. at 1026. Russo never informed the creditor of the debtor's bankruptcy filing. Id. Four years after he received a discharge, the creditor filed a motion to reopen the debtor's case to challenge dischargeability of the arbitration award. Id. The bankruptcy court granted the motion, and the arbitration award was found to be nondischargeable. Id. The debtor appealed, arguing, among other things, that even though the arbitration award is of the type that is nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(3) and (a)(6), that the creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the debtor's bankruptcy case by virtue of Russo's knowledge. Id.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals declined to impute Russo's knowledge of the debtor's bankruptcy filing to the creditor. In doing so, the Court of Appeals stated:

Here, the "contemplated services" that Russo performed for [the creditor] consisted of handling the arbitration. Once the arbitration ended, Russo no longer represented [the creditor] with respect to it. He did continue to handle other unrelated matters for [the creditor] but this is of little significance considering that a lawyer's representation of a client is subject-matter specific.

Additionally, Russo learned of [the debtor's] bankruptcy on behalf of a different client, Corsair, who was contesting the dischargeability of its own debt. This distinguishes [the debtor's] case from two cases on which he relies, Lompa v. Price (In re: Price), 871 F.2d 97 (9th Cir.1989) and In re Linzer, 264 B.R. 243 (Bankr.E.D.N.Y.2001). In both of those cases, the lawyer who received notice of the debtor's bankruptcy was still representing the creditor in relation to the debt that was owed. Here, in contrast, Russo received notice of [the debtor's] bankruptcy as Corsair's counsel, not as [the creditor's].

Perle, 725 F.3d at 1027–28 (emphasis added).

In Hernandez, the debtor listed two addresses, both of which were incorrect, for the creditors in his schedules. Hernandez, 2017 WL 6033409, at *3. One of the addresses was the creditors' attorney. Id. The debtor contended that service to the creditors at their attorney's address was proper. Id. at *4. The bankruptcy court disagreed, stating:

Unlike the situation in Lompa v. Price and In re Price, notice to Creditors' attorney did not constitute proper notice here where (1) there is no evidence that shows the attorney was actively representing the creditors to enforce claims against the debtor at the time that notice of the bankruptcy was given to the attorney, and (2) the notice to Creditors at the Attorney Address did not actually list the attorney's name and relationship to Creditors.

Debtor has not shown by clear and convincing evidence that Creditors' former attorney was enforcing a claim against the Debtor at the time notice was sent to attorney. Although Creditors state in their declaration that "[the Attorney Address] belongs to David Greenberg, who was Creditors' counsel at the time," Declaration of Jaime Farias, ECF 42 at 7, ¶ 3, this statement as well as the other evidence in this case do not demonstrate that Mr. Greenberg was representing Creditors in an action against Debtor at that time Mr. Greenberg allegedly received notice of the bankruptcy case. Indeed, the evidence in the record suggests the opposite: that the Creditors did not have any pending litigation claims against Debtor at the time notice of the bankruptcy case was sent out to the attorney. Declaration of Jaime Farias, ECF 42 at 7–8, ¶¶ 3–4. Mr. Farias's testimony that "[h]ad we been given proper notice of Debtor's bankruptcy, we would have commenced an adversary proceeding against the Debtor for non-dischargeability based on fraud and willful malicious injury by the Debtor" makes sense and is credible, a further indication that they did not have prior actual notice of Debtor's bankruptcy case.

Id. (emphasis in original).

Here, at this point, neither party has presented enough evidence for the Court to determine whether Creditor received sufficient notice for the Debtor's chapter 13 plan to have provided for the Creditor's claim. Creditor has not provided evidence of when she received notice of the Debtor's bankruptcy case, and how she became aware of the Debtor's bankruptcy case. In 2018, Creditor filed a notice of change of address - so she certainly was aware of the Debtor's bankruptcy case by then. Creditor also has not provided evidence of whether the attorney who assisted her, in obtaining the Judgment, had stopped representing her, for the collection of the Judgment, by the date that the Debtor mailed notices regarding the bankruptcy case to that attorney.

Similar to Hernandez, the Debtor has not provided evidence that Creditor's attorney was actively representing Creditor, with respect to collection of the Judgment, when notice of the bankruptcy case was sent to the attorney. Nor has the Debtor provided evidence that serving Creditor at her attorney's address was proper under the circumstances. See In re Schicke, 290 B.R. 792, 805 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. 2003), aff'd, 97 F. App'x 249 (10th Cir. 2004) (concluding that service to former attorney's address was proper when corporation changed its name, and the corporation's address did not appear in any documents in the state court action between the parties). Although the Debtor's attorney contends this was the only valid address known to him or the Debtor, because the Judgment is for a wage claim, presumably, the Debtor would have been in possession of personnel records which would contain Creditor's personal address. Consequently, the Debtor has not yet provided a sufficient explanation of why he did not serve Creditor at her last known address.

Before the Court can determine whether the Creditor received sufficient notice, such that the chapter 13 plan provides for the claim, the parties must submit supplemental briefs and evidence, including declarations signed under penalty of perjury.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will continue this hearing to July 14, 2020 at 11:00 a.m. By June 30, 2020, the parties must submit supplemental briefs and evidence regarding the issues discussed above.

Chapter 13

#58.00 Hearing re Novastar, LLC's objection to confirmation of debtor's second amended 13 Plan

fr. 3/10/20

Docket 63

Tentative Ruling:

Prior to the confirmation hearing on March 10, 2020, the Court posted a tentative ruling indicating its intention to dismiss this case because it was not filed in good faith. The debtor's attorney appeared at the hearing and requested a continuance to file a response. The Court continued the hearing to June 9, 2020, and ordered the debtor to file a response regarding her good faith by May 26, 2020. The debtor did not timely file such a response.

The debtor also was ordered to file an amended plan and an amended schedule G, which disclosed the lease on her real property located in Redondo Beach, California. As of June 3, 2020, the debtor has not filed either of those documents.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth in the Court's tentative ruling from March 10, 2020, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a), 349 and 1307(c), the Court will dismiss this case with a two-year bar to refiling.

The Court will prepare the order.

Tentative Ruling from March 10, 2020

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a), 349 and 1307(c), the Court may dismiss this case with a two-year bar to refiling.

Chapter 13

On March 24, 2019, Jan Bidasha (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. In her petition [doc. 1], the Debtor represents that she lives at 17438 Kinzie, Northridge, California (the "Northridge Property"). In her statement of financial affairs ("SOFA") [doc. 35], the Debtor represents that she has lived at the Northridge Property during the three years prior to filing her chapter 13 petition.

In her schedule A/B [doc. 27], the Debtor indicates that she owns real property located at 2750 Artesia Blvd., #460, Redondo Beach, California (the "Redondo Beach Property"). In her schedule D [doc. 29], the Debtor listed two claims secured by the Redondo Beach Property, one in favor of Bank of America and the other in favor of Novastar, LLC ("Novastar"). In the Debtor's second amended chapter 13 plan [doc. 58], the Debtor represents that Novastar holds a third deed of trust against the Redondo Beach Property. However, in the Debtor's schedules, the second lienholder against the Redondo Beach Property is not disclosed.

In her schedule I [doc. 33], the Debtor represents that she receives $5,515.34 in income per month, which includes $1,600.00 from rental income. However, in her schedule G [doc. 31], the Debtor did not identify any unexpired leases.

In her schedule J [doc. 34], the Debtor represents that her monthly expenses total $5,289.93. This includes a $3,200 monthly expense for a "live in caretaker." Because of the Debtor's claimed expenses, the Debtor represents that her net monthly income is $225.41.

B. State Court Litigation

In 2014, the Debtor filed a state court lawsuit against Novastar and other defendants [doc. 63, Exh. 1]. After Novastar prevailed in that lawsuit, the state court awarded Novastar attorneys' fees and costs. Id.

Subsequently, Novastar filed a state court action against the Debtor, among others [doc. 46, Exh. 1]. In that state court complaint (the "Complaint"), Novastar represents that in 2014, the Debtor executed a promissory note in the principal amount of $90,000, with 12.90% interest, with all principal and unpaid interest due on the maturity date of May 1, 2015. This note is secured by a deed of trust on the Redondo Beach Property.

Novastar alleges that the Debtor represented in the loan documents that she did not live in the Redondo Beach Property and that Novastar would hold a second deed of trust. Novastar further represents that is discovered, after the loan was made, that the Debtor was living in the Redondo Beach Property and that Novastar's lien is subordinate to a second lien against the Redondo Beach Property, in favor of the City of Redondo Beach.

Additionally, Novastar claims that the Debtor used the proceeds of its loan to purchase real property located at 11227 Collett Avenue, Granada Hills, California (the "Granada Hills Property"). Novastar also alleges that the debtor transferred the Granada Hills Property to her son-in-law for insufficient consideration. In the Complaint, Novastar seeks an equitable lien against the Granada Hills Property.

On June 24, 2019, Novastar filed a motion for relief from stay to proceed with that state court action (the "RFS Motion") [doc. 46]. In July 2019, the Court granted relief from stay for that litigation to proceed [doc. 51].

C. Proofs of Claim

On May 29, 2019, Novastar filed proof of claim 4-1 (the "Claim"), asserting a claim secured by the Redondo Beach Property in the amount of $516,711.90. According to the Claim, Novastar's note matured in 2015, which was prepetition. The Claim consists of the principal balance of the note, interest and attorneys' fees.

On March 2, 2020, the debtor filed an objection to the Claim (the "Objection") [doc. 74]. Even though the Court previously granted relief from stay for the state court litigation to proceed, the Objection concerns the same litigation. The hearing on the Objection is set for April 14, 2020.

Three other creditors have filed proofs of claim in the Debtor's case. The Franchise Tax Board and Verizon filed unsecured claims in the amounts of $1,020.71 and $764.08, respectively [Claims 1-1 and 2-1]. Bank of America, N.A. filed a secured claim against the Redondo Beach Property, based on a first deed of trust, in the amount of $133,043.95 [Claim 3-1].

D. Chapter 13 Plan and the Debtor's Dilatory Conduct

To date, the Court has held four plan confirmation hearings, i.e., on June 11, 2019, September 10, 2019, November 12, 2019 and February 11, 2020. Because the debtor failed to provide proper notice and to provide required documentation to the chapter 13 trustee, the Court continued each of these hearings.

In the Debtor's second amended chapter 13 plan (the "Plan") [doc. 58], the Debtor proposes to pay $225.00 per month for 36 months. Plan payments are allocated to the Debtor's attorneys' fees, the Franchise Tax Board's claim, arrears to Bank of America, N.A., as the first deed of trust holder, and fees of the chapter 13 trustee. The Plan does not provide for any payments to be made to Novastar, or to the other small unsecured creditor. The chapter 13 trustee and Novastar have filed objections to confirmation of the Plan.

II. DISCUSSION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1307(c):

[O]n request of a party in interest or the United States trustee and after notice and a hearing, the court may convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 of this title, or may dismiss a case under this chapter, whichever is in the best interests of creditors and the estate, for cause. . . .

11 U.S.C. § 1307(c). In deciding whether a chapter 13 case should be dismissed or converted, courts apply a two-step analysis. "First, it must be determined that there is 'cause' to act. Second, once a determination of 'cause' has been made, a choice must be made between conversion and dismissal based on the 'best interests of the creditors and the estate.'" Nelson v Meyer (In re Nelson), 343 B.R. 671, 675 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2006).

In addition to the enumerated causes listed in § 1307(c), a chapter 13 case filed in bad faith may be dismissed for cause under 11 U.S.C. § 1307(c). In re Leavitt, 171 F.3d 1219, 1224–25 (9th Cir. 1999); In re Eisen, 14 F3d 469, 470 (9th Cir. 1994). Bad faith is determined by evaluating the totality of circumstances, including the following factors: (1) whether the debtor misrepresented facts in his petition or plan, unfairly manipulated the Bankruptcy Code, or otherwise filed his chapter 13 petition or plan in an inequitable manner; (2) the debtor's history of filings and dismissals; (3) whether the debtor only intended to defeat state court litigation; (4) whether egregious behavior is present. See In re Leavitt, 171 F.3d 1219, 1224 (9th Cir. 1999).

Here, there is cause to dismiss the Debtor's case; it appears that that the Debtor did not file this case in good faith, and that this is a two-party dispute, between the Debtor and Novastar. Rather than going forward with the pending litigation in state court, which has the expertise to hear that litigation, and before which trial was set, the Debtor filed her chapter 13 petition. Subsequently, the Debtor has dragged this case out, on the basis of a chapter 13 plan that pays nothing to Novastar. In light of the foregoing, it appears that dismissal of this chapter 13 case is in the best interest of creditors and the estate.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a), 349 and 1307(c), the Court may dismiss this case with a two-year bar to refile.

#4.00 Debtor's opposition to declaration of Specialized Loan Servicing, LLC
Re: default under adequate protection order; request for entry of order granting relief from stay

Docket 62

Tentative Ruling:

On January 29, 2015, the debtor filed a chapter 13 petition. On September 27, 2019, The Bank of America National Association ("Creditor") filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay as to the real property located at 9749 Quakertown Avenue, Chatsworth, California 91311 (the "Property") [doc. 48]. On December 3, 2019, Creditor and the debtor filed a stipulation for adequate protection as to the Property (the "Stipulation") [doc. 54]. On the same day, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 56].

Under the terms of the Stipulation, the debtor must make regular monthly deed of trust payments in the amount of $2,798.22 commencing on December 1, 2019 ("Deed of Trust Payments"). The debtor also must cure the postpetition arrears of $14,432.32 in equal monthly installments of $2,405.39 each commencing on December 15, 2019 and continuing through April 15, 2020, and by paying a lump sum in the amount of $2,405.37 by May 15, 2020 ("Arrears Payments").

On April 27, 2020, Creditor filed a Declaration re: Default Under Adequate Protection Order (the "Default Declaration") [doc. 62]. In the Default Declaration, Creditor alleges that the debtor failed to make Deed of Trust Payments for February 2020, March 2020 and April 2020 and Arrears Payments for February 2020 and March 2020, totaling $13,205.44. In the Default Declaration, Creditor attached a notice of default letter addressed to the debtor's counsel and the debtor and the post Stipulation payment history.

On May 6, 2020, the debtor filed an opposition to the Default Declaration (the "Opposition") [doc. 64]. In the Opposition, the debtor claims that she had cured the delinquency before the Default Declaration was filed with the Court and that she is current with Creditor. The debtor also disputes Creditor's accounting of her payments.

The debtor attached two types of proof of payment in support of her position. The first type is in the form of images of checks showing that the debtor made the following payments: (a) $8,001.83 in January 2020 [Exh. B]; (b) $10,407.22 in March 2020 [Exh. C]; and (c) $2,405.39 in April 2020 [Exh. D]. The second type is in the form of images showing proof of delivery by the mail carriers of the checks [Exhs. B, C and D].

Pursuant to the Stipulation, from December 1, 2019 to April 1, 2020, the debtor should have made payments to Creditor in the aggregate amount of $23,612.66. Based on the debtor's evidence in the Opposition, the debtor has made payments to Creditor in the aggregate amount of $20,814.44. Accordingly, the debtor is deficient on payments under the Stipulation in the amount of $2,798.22, or one Deed of Trust Payment.

On May 27, 2020, Creditor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 69]. In the Reply, Creditor states that the payments reflected in the images of the checks for January 2020 and April 2020 were received and credited, but Creditor's records do not show the March 2020 payment being applied to the account. Even if Creditor receives the check written in March 2020, the debtor apparently still would be missing one Deed of Trust Payment.

Deadline to complete one day of mediation: 10/15/20.

Deadline to file pretrial motions: 10/30/20.

Deadline to complete and submit pretrial stipulation in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1: 11/25/20.

Pretrial: 12/9/20 at 1:30 p.m.

In accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a)(3), within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiff must submit a Scheduling Order.

If any of these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

#0.10 Application for second interim compensation for David A Tilem, debtor's attorney

fr. 4/30/20; 6/4/20;

Docket 236

Tentative Ruling:

Applicant, counsel to the debtor and debtor in possession – approve fees in the amount of $173,175.00 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $2,337.72, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, for the period between December 1, 2018 through March 21, 2020, on an interim basis. For the reasons stated below, the Court will not approve $3,395 in fees.

Given that this case may be converted to one under chapter 7, and that most of the debtor's liquid assets constitute cash collateral, which is unlikely to be regenerated, Applicant may not collect any of the approved fees or approved expenses, pending further order of the Court.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the

On December 18, 2018, Applicant billed 3.40 hours at his "overtime" rate of $687.50 per hour to prepare the second cash collateral motion. Given that Applicant apparently had sufficient time to prepare the motion, including during the following day, and that the bulk of the analysis for the motion did not turn on the specific projections, the Court finds the overtime rate excessive. The Court will allow fees for these services at Applicant's regular hourly rate of $550.

Chapter 13

#3.00 Application for compensation for Stephen L Burton, debtor's attorney

Docket 58

Tentative Ruling:

Deny in part and grant in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On February 6, 2020, Lloyd Weintraub ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On February 21, 2020, Debtor filed a Disclosure of Compensation of Attorney for Debtor(s) (the "Disclosure") [doc. 18]. According to the Disclosure, Debtor paid his attorney, Stephen L. Burton, $14,000.00 for services rendered or to be rendered on behalf of Debtor in contemplation of or in connection with the bankruptcy case.

On February 26, 2020, the United States Trustee ("UST") filed a motion to dismiss or convert Debtor's case (the "Motion to Convert") [doc. 23]. The Motion to Convert was based on Debtor's noncompliance with the UST requirements.

On March 11, 2020, Debtor and the UST filed a stipulation to convert Debtor's case to one under chapter 13, which resolved the Motion to Convert [doc. 30]. On March 19, 2020, the Court entered an order approving that stipulation and converting Debtor's case to one under chapter 13 [doc. 32].

On April 13, 2020, the UST filed a Motion to Disgorge Compensation Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 329 (the "Motion for Sanctions") [doc. 43]. The Motion for Sanctions is based on Mr. Burton's failure to perform the services that he agreed to perform, and Mr. Burton's failure to file an employment application.

On May 18, 2020, Mr. Burton filed a Motion in Individual Chapter 11 Case for Order Authorizing Debtor in Possession to Employ General Counsel (the "Employment Motion") [doc. 57]. In the Employment Motion, Mr. Burton requests approval of nunc pro tunc employment as of the petition date.

On May 18, 2020, Mr. Burton also filed an Application for Payment of Final Fees and/or Expenses (the "Application") [doc. 58]. In the Application, Mr. Burton requests that the Court approve $7,945 in fees and reimbursement of $1,728 in expenses for the period between January 28, 2019 through March 19, 2020, which is the date of conversion of the case to chapter 13. $1,365 of the amount billed is for postpetition services; the remainder is for prepetition services, which began in January 2019.

On May 28, 2020, Mr. Burton and the UST filed a stipulation resolving the Motion for Sanctions (the "Stipulation") [doc. 64]. On June 2, 2020, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 72]. Pursuant to the Stipulation, Mr. Burton will withdraw the Employment Motion, reduce his request for compensation by $682.00, file a rights and responsibilities agreement for his representation of Debtor in his chapter 13 case, represent Debtor in his chapter 13 case for $3,500 and refund Debtor $3,227 and file a declaration attesting to the refund within thirty days of the entry of the order approving the Stipulation.

On June 4, 2020, Mr. Burton filed a Rights and Responsibilities Agreement Between Debtor and Attorney for Debtor in a Chapter 13 Case ("RARA") [doc. 73]. Pursuant to the RARA, Mr. Burton agreed to provide the identified responsibilities in the RARA, in the chapter 13 case, for $3,500.

II. DISCUSSION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 329(a)—

- (a) Any attorney representing a debtor in a case under this title, or in connection with such a case, whether or not such attorney applies for compensation under this title, shall file with the court a statement of the compensation paid or agreed to be paid, if such payment or agreement was made after one year before the date of the filing of the petition, for services rendered or to be rendered in contemplation of or in connection with the case by such attorney, and the source of such compensation.

- (b) If such compensation exceeds the reasonable value of any such services, the court may cancel any such agreement, or order the return

- (1) the estate, if the property transferred—
 - (A) would have been property of the estate; or
 - (B) was to be paid by or on behalf of the debtor under a plan under chapter 11, 12, or 13 of this title; or

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3)—

In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to an examiner, trustee under chapter 11, or professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent, and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—

- (A) the time spent on such services;
- (B) the rates charged for such services;
- (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title;
- (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed;

Under Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2014-1(b)(1)(E)—

A timely application for employment is a prerequisite to compensation from the estate. Therefore, an application for the employment of counsel for a debtor in possession should be filed as promptly as possible after the commencement of the case, and an application for employment of any other professional person should be filed as promptly as possible after such person

(emphasis added).

"[A] bankruptcy court has broad and inherent authority to deny any and all compensation when an attorney fails to meet the requirements of [§§ 327, 329, 330, 331]." In re Lewis, 113 F.3d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1997).

Here, Mr. Burton did not timely file an employment application during the pendency of Debtor's chapter 11 case, and pursuant to the Stipulation, Mr. Burton has withdrawn his request for nunc pro tunc employment. Pursuant to LBR 2014-1(b)(1) (E), a timely application for employment is a prerequisite to the applicant receiving compensation from the estate. Because Mr. Burton was never employed as debtor in possession counsel, the Court will not approve any request for compensation for services provided during the course of Debtor's chapter 11 case.

Based on statements made in the Employment Motion and in the Declaration of Stephen L. Burton, it appears that Debtor may have been an appropriate candidate for a chapter 11 case; before the case was converted to one under chapter 13, Mr. Burton did take some steps to assist Debtor with fulfilling his duties as a chapter 11 debtor in possession. Consequently, the Court will authorize the reimbursement of expenses that were incurred in connection with the chapter 11 case, including payment of the chapter 11 petition filing fee, in the amount of $1,717.00.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court will deny the Motion in part and grant the Motion in part, i.e., with respect to the reimbursement of chapter 11 case expenses.

The Court will prepare the order.

1. Settlement agreement between chapter 7 Trustee and defendants resolving the adversary proceeding; and
 2. Settlement agreement between chapter 7 trustee and Bell Trustee regarding trademark

Docket 157

Tentative Ruling:

On May 18, 2020, the chapter 7 trustee in this case (the "Trustee") filed a motion for approval of two settlement agreements (the "Agreements") [doc. 157]. The objecting creditors assert that they need further clarification regarding the impact of the Agreements on their rights, especially vis-à-vis a discharge injunction. However, the Trustee is selling the estate's interest in the subject trademark "as-is, where-is with no warranty." As such, the sale of the estate's interest in the subject trademark will not whatever rights the objecting creditors may have, regarding the future use of the trademark.

In addition, an analysis of the impact of the discharge injunction on the objecting creditors' rights regarding any future use of the estate's interest in the trademark is not before this Court, and the Trustee does not have an obligation to provide such a legal analysis to the objecting creditors.

Nevertheless, the Court will allow the objecting creditors to bid on the estate's interest in the trademark (such bid will not have any impact on the interest in the trademark held by the bankruptcy estate of Burton C. Bell, which the objecting creditors may pursue in the United States Bankruptcy Court, Middle District of Pennsylvania). The Court notes that the Agreements not only involve a payment into the estate by the debtor, but a waiver of the debtor's exemptions in certain assets of the estate. As such, if the objecting creditors choose to outbid the debtor, they must bear in mind the total benefit to the estate via the Agreements, including the waiver of the debtor's exemptions.

If the objecting creditors would like to place a bid on this estate's interest in the trademark, "as-is, where-is with no warranty," the Court will continue this hearing to 2:00 p.m. on July 2, 2020. No later than June 25, 2020, the objecting creditors must file and serve a notice that they have placed a bid, including the amount of the bid, and provide a sufficient deposit of the bid to the Trustee.

If the objecting creditors timely bid on this estate's interest in the trademark, "as-is, where-is with no warranty," and provide the related deposit, the Court will reassess whether to grant the Motion. If the objecting creditors do not timely do so, the Court likely will grant the Motion. The Court notes that effectuation of the Agreements is contingent on approval of the agreement between the Trustee and the estate of Mr. Bell by the United States Bankruptcy Court, Middle District of Pennsylvania.

#6.00 Order to show cause why this case should not be converted to one under chapter 7

Docket 217

Tentative Ruling:

It appears that there may be additional cause to convert or dismiss this case, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b)(4)(I) and (b)(4)(P).

Because the debtor did not provide for timely payment of postpetition payroll taxes, the debtor and the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") entered into a stipulation requiring the debtor to pay, among other things, the IRS's administrative claim (the "Stipulation") [doc. 173].

In July 2019, pursuant to the Stipulation and the related Order, to satisfy this administrative tax expense, the debtor was to pay $6,491.92 to the IRS. The debtor's monthly operating report for July 2019 does not reflect that the debtor did so. Has the debtor made this payment?

In his response to the Court's order to show cause [doc. 227], the debtor states that he also owes a domestic support obligation (to his ex-wife) in the amount of $47,000. The debtor previously has not discussed or reflected this domestic support obligation in his status reports or in his monthly operating reports. It appears to have arisen postpetition.

The debtor's nonpayment of postpetition taxes and postpetition domestic support obligations would constitute further cause for the dismissal or conversion of his chapter 11 case.

#9.00 Order to show cause why this case should not be dismissed of converted to one under chapter 7

Docket 252

Tentative Ruling:

In light of the representations made in the debtor's response [doc. 255] to the Order to Show Cause Why this Case Should not be Dismissed or Converted to One under Chapter 7 [doc. 252], and in the debtor's chapter 11 case status report filed on May 7, 2020, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 1112(b)(1) and (b)(4)(A), the Court will convert this case to one under chapter 7.

Although the debtor represents that its interest in Integrated Dynamic Solutions India Pvt. Ltd. and its causes of action against Automated Systems America, Inc. have little to no value, a chapter 7 trustee should make that determination. Further, there may be avoidance actions that the chapter 7 trustee appropriately could pursue. Accordingly, it appears to be in the best interests of creditors and the estate to convert this case to one under chapter 7.

The Court will prepare the order.

#3.00 Amended Motion for relief from stay [UD]

TBB VALLEY INVESTMENTS, LLC
VS
DEBTOR

fr. 5/20/20

Docket 37

Tentative Ruling:

Grant pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(2).

On March 5, 2020, the Amerigrade Corp. (“Debtor”) filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In its schedule A/B, Debtor indicated it holds an interest in real property located at 13217 Filmore Street, Pacoima, California (the “Property”) [doc. 7]. Debtor represented that the Property was the subject of a foreclosure sale on February 19, 2020, and that “Debtor is working to unwind the sale.”

In its schedule D [doc. 7], Debtor indicates that, among others, Evette Awadalla and Robert Stewart hold junior liens against the Property. In its schedule G [doc. 7], Debtor represents that Olivia Awadalla, Debtor’s president and sole owner, Evette Awadalla and Robert Stewart have unexpired leases as to the Property. As to each of these three leases, Debtor did not indicate the remaining term or the monthly lease obligation.

In its statement of financial affairs [doc. 17], Debtor represents that it received $1,500 in rental income from January 1, 2020 to the petition date, and $11,500 in rental income in 2019. Further, in both of its chapter 11 case status reports filed on April 16, 2020 [doc. 19] and June 4, 2020 [doc. 48], Debtor represents that the rental income it receives is from a different real property than the property at issue.

On April 24, 2020, TBB Valley Investments (“Movant”) filed a motion for relief from stay to proceed with an unlawful detainer action as to the Property (the “Motion”) [doc. 20]. On May 6, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to that motion (the “Opposition”) [doc. 30]. In the Opposition, among other things, Debtor challenges Movant’s standing to bring the Motion.

On May 20, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the Motion. At the hearing, the Court continued the hearing to June 17, 2020, in order for Movant to cure the deficiencies noted in the Court’s ruling.

On May 22, 2020, Movant filed an amended motion for relief from stay to proceed with an unlawful detainer action as to the Property (the “Amended Motion”) [doc. 37]. Movant served the Amended Motion, notice of the hearing and deadline to file a response on Debtor, Debtor’s counsel, the United States trustee and all creditors.

Attached to the Amended Motion, is a declaration signed by Jeff Brandolino. In his declaration, Mr. Brandolino testifies that Movant is the owner of the Property, and that Movant acquired the Property at a foreclosure sale before Debtor filed its chapter 11 petition.

Also attached to the Amended Motion is the trustee deed upon sale, which indicates that Amber Investments Group, Movant and Recon Investment Fund B LLC purchased the Property at the foreclosure sale held on February 19, 2020 (the “Trustee Deed”) [Exh. A]. The Trustee Deed indicates that Movant has a 40% interest in the Property.

"Stay litigation is limited to issues of the lack of adequate protection, the debtor’s equity in the property, and the necessity of the property to an effective reorganization. Hearings on relief from the automatic stay are thus handled in a summary fashion." In re Cini, 2012 WL 2374224, at *9 (Bankr. D. Mont. June 22, 2012); see also Johnson v. Righetti (In re Johnson), 756 F.2d 738, 740 (9th Cir. 1985). As the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit stated in In re Griffin, 719 F.3d 1126, 1128 (9th Cir. 2013):

A proceeding to determine eligibility for relief from a stay only determines whether a creditor should be released from the stay in order to argue the merits in a separate proceeding. Johnson v. Righetti, 756 F.2d 738, 740–41 (9th Cir.1985). Given the limited nature of the relief obtained through this proceeding and because final adjudication of the parties' rights and liabilities is yet to occur, a party seeking stay relief need only establish that it has a colorable claim to the property at issue. In re Veal, 450 B.R. 897, 914–15 (9th Cir. BAP 2011).

Here, Movant has established that it has a colorable claim to the Property. The Trustee Deed indicates that Movant holds a 40% interest in the Property, which it acquired from a foreclosure sale held on February 19, 2020. In its schedule A/B, Debtor also acknowledges this foreclosure sale.

In the Opposition, Debtor argues, among other things, that the lender on the Property failed to follow several of California’s nonjudicial foreclosure laws, and therefore, the foreclosure sale should be unwound. On a motion for relief from stay, the Court only determines whether the creditor should be released from the stay in order to argue the merits in a separate proceeding. Whether nonjudicial foreclosure laws have been violated is an issue that can be determined by the state court, and Debtor is free to litigate those issues in that forum.

In the Amended Motion, Movant requests relief from the automatic stay under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(2). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(2):

(d) On request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant relief from the stay provided under subsection (a) of this section, such as by terminating, annulling, modifying, or conditioning such stay—

(2) with respect to a stay of an act against property under subsection (a) of this section, if—

(A) the debtor does not have an equity in such property; and

(B) such property is not necessary to an effective reorganization;

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(g):

(g) In any hearing under subsection (d) or (e) of this section concerning relief from the stay of any act under subsection (a) of this section—

(1) the party requesting such relief has the burden of proof on the issue of the debtor's equity in property; and

(2) the party opposing such relief has the burden of proof on all other issues.

Because the foreclosure sale occurred prepetition, it appears that Debtor has no equity in the Property. In the Opposition, Debtor argues in a conclusory fashion that the Property is necessary for an effective reorganization. Debtor states that it will renovate and lease the Property.

Debtor's principal and two lienholders are living in the Property, apparently without making monthly lease payments. At this point, it appears that the Property is not income producing. Moreover, Debtor has not explained nor demonstrated how and when it will fund renovation of the Property, or the positive financial impact of any such renovation. Consequently, Debtor has not met its burden under 11 U.S.C. § 362(g) of showing that the Property is necessary to an effective reorganization.

In light of the foregoing, the Court will grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(2).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to obtain possession of the property.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is not waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Grant relief from the automatic stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to proceed to final judgment in the nonbankruptcy forum, provided that the stay remains in effect with respect to enforcement of any judgment against the debtor and property of the debtor's bankruptcy estate.

Movant retains the right to file a proof of claim under 11 U.S.C. § 501 and/or and adversary complaint under 11 U.S.C. § 523 or § 727 in this bankruptcy case.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Docket 56

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(4).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

If recorded in compliance with applicable state laws governing notices of interests or liens in real property, the order is binding in any other case under this title purporting to affect the property filed not later than 2 years after the date of the entry of the order by the court, except that a debtor in a subsequent case under this title may move for relief from the order based upon changed circumstances or for good cause shown, after notice and hearing.

Upon entry of the order, for purposes of Cal. Civ. Code § 2923.5, the Debtor is a borrower as defined in Cal. Civ. Code § 2920.5(c)(2)(C).

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#18.00 Motion to determine amount to be paid to Hossein Fatehmanesh after offset

Docket 90

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 30, 2015, Reza Fateh Manesh ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David Seror was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On November 5, 2015, the Trustee filed a complaint against Hossein Fatehmanesh for turnover of the real property located at 14520 Delano Street, Van Nuys, California 91411 (the "Property") and an award of attorneys' fees, initiating this adversary proceeding. On January 26, 2017, after trial, the Court entered judgment in favor of the Trustee (the "Trial Judgment") [doc. 38]. Through the Trial Judgment, the Court awarded the Trustee $15,000.

On February 8, 2017, the Trustee moved for an award of attorneys' fees and costs [doc. 47]. On March 31, 2017, the Court entered an order awarding the Trustee attorneys' fees in the amount of $92,811.50 and costs in the amount of $3,015.25 (together with the Trial Judgment, the "Trustee Award"). On April 17, 2017, the Trustee recorded an abstract of judgment reflecting the total amount owed the Trustee of $110,826.75. Declaration of David Seror (the "Seror Declaration") [doc. 90], ¶ 3, Exhibit 1.

On January 14, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion to sell the Property (the "Sale Motion") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 144]. A title report generated in connection with the Sale Motion reflected a $175,000 judgment, entered June 1, 2007, in favor of Mr. Fatehmanesh (the "Fatehmanesh Judgment"). Seror Declaration, ¶ 5, Exhibit 2. In addition, the Trustee located an abstract of judgment related to the Fatehmanesh Judgment recorded against the Property. Sale Motion, Exhibit 4. On February 10, 2020, the Court entered an order approving the Sale Motion [Bankruptcy Docket, doc.

On April 14, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion to determine the amount to be paid to Mr. Fatehmanesh (the "Motion") [doc. 90]. The Trustee estimates that Mr. Fatehmanesh is owed a total of $403,458.88 (the $175,000 Fatehmanesh Judgment plus interest at 10% per annum totaling $228,458.88). The Trustee also asserts that the Court should subtract from this total the amount Mr. Fatehmanesh owes the Trustee pursuant to the Trustee Award. Mr. Fatehmanesh opposed the Motion [doc. 93], contending that he is entitled to compound interest from the 10-year anniversary of the Fatehmanesh Judgment forward.

II. ANALYSIS

The parties do not dispute the amount of the Trustee Award or the principal amount of the Fatehmanesh Judgment. Although Mr. Fatehmanesh notes that he believes the Trustee Award was excessive, Mr. Fatehmanesh appealed the Trustee Award and the award is now final. Mr. Fatehmanesh does not otherwise dispute the Trustee's calculation of principal and interest related to the Trustee Award.

The parties disagree about the amount of interest owed on the Fatehmanesh Judgment. Mr. Fatehmanesh asserts that, after 10 years, the principal amount of the Fatehmanesh Judgment became $350,000 and, thereafter, interest began to accrue on that amount. In California, judgments expire 10 years after the date of entry of a money judgment. California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 683.020.

To renew a judgment, judgment creditors must file an application and pay a filing fee. CCP § 683.150; Cal. Gov't Code § 70626. "[T]he entry of renewal shall show the amount of the judgment as renewed. ...[T]his amount is the amount required to satisfy the judgment on the date of the filing of the application for renewal and includes the fee for the filing of the application for renewal." CCP § 683.150(c). The "amount required to satisfy a money judgment is the total amount of the judgment as entered or renewed with the following additions and subtractions:"

- (a) The addition of costs added to the judgment pursuant to Section 685.090.
- (b) The addition of interest added to the judgment as it accrues pursuant to

Chapter 7

- (c) The subtraction of the amount of any partial satisfactions of the judgment.

- (d) The subtraction of the amount of any portion of the judgment that is no longer enforceable.

CCP § 695.210.

"When a judgment is renewed under the Enforcement of Judgments Law, the renewed judgment is the amount required to satisfy the judgment on the date of renewal, an amount that includes accumulated postjudgment interest." Bisno v. Kahn, 225 Cal.App.4th 1087, 1106 (Ct. App. 2014) (emphasis added). "Thus, the renewal of the judgment—which can be done every five years—effectively allows interest to accrue on interest that has been incorporated into the renewed judgment." Id. (citing CCP § 683.110(b)).

The California Constitution generally prohibits the postjudgment compounding of interest. Westbrook v. Fairchild, 7 Cal.App.4th 889, 893 (Ct. App. 1992).

The only exception to the rule that interest on interest (i.e. compound interest) may not be recovered is in situations in which interest is included in a judgment which then bears interest at the legal rate. One common situation occurs when a judgment is renewed. At that time, accrued interest is included in the new judgment, and the new judgment bears interest at the legal rate.

Id., at 894-95.

If the judgment debtor files for bankruptcy petition and a judgment has not expired by the petition date, 11 U.S.C. § 108(c) tolls the expiration date. In re Spirtos, 221 F.3d 1079, 1080-81 (9th Cir. 2000). In that case, the judgment "does not expire until 30 days after the end of the automatic stay." Id., at 1081.

Here, Mr. Fatehmanesh seeks to benefit from the compound interest provision of CCP § 683.150(c) without having taken any of the steps required by that statute to renew the Fatehmanesh Judgment. As explained in Westbrook, the California Constitution prohibits compound interest except in limited circumstances, such as obtaining a renewal of judgment. Westbrook, 7 Cal.App.4th at 893-95. Mr. Fatehmanesh has set forth no authority that would allow Mr. Fatehmanesh to claim compound interest without renewing his judgment.

To the extent Mr. Fatehmanesh believes the compound interest provision of CCP § 683.150(c) should have automatically been triggered because the automatic stay prevented Mr. Fatehmanesh from renewing the Fatehmanesh Judgment, that proposition is not supported by law. Mr. Fatehmanesh could have obtained relief from the automatic stay to renew the Fatehmanesh Judgment. That relief from the automatic stay is required to obtain such a renewal is further support for the fact that renewals of judgments are not automatic and require affirmative action by the judgment creditor. See Spirtos, 221 F.3d at 1081.

Having offered no authority to the contrary, and given the general prohibition of compound interest under California law, the Court will not allow for Mr. Fatehmanesh to claim compound interest on the Fatehmanesh Judgment. The Court will allow Mr. Fatehmanesh a total claim of $403,458.88 offset by the amount Mr. Fatehmanesh owes the Trustee, for a total payment to Mr. Fatehmanesh of $289,085.67. Mr. Fatehmanesh must furnish a fully executed W-9 form to the Trustee prior to receipt of any payment from the estate.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion. Mr. Fatehmanesh must provide a fully executed W-9 form to the Trustee prior to receiving a payment from the estate.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

I. BACKGROUND

On May 4, 2018, Robert Edward Zuckerman ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On March 18, 2019, the Court converted Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 129].

A. The Prepetition State Court Judgment and Albini Adversary Proceeding

Prepetition, dozens of individuals and entities, including Richard Abel ("Plaintiff"), filed a complaint against Debtor, initiating state court case no. SCV-245738 (the "State Court Action"). Request for Judicial Notice ("RJN") [doc. 156], Exhibit A. On March 20, 2017, the state court entered an amended judgment against Debtor (the "Amended Judgment"). Id.

On July 20, 2018, the other plaintiffs from the State Court Action filed a complaint against Debtor, requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to them pursuant to the Amended Judgment under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) (the "Albini Adversary Proceeding") [1:18-ap-01081-VK]. On March 25, 2019, the plaintiffs in the Albini Adversary Proceeding filed a motion for summary judgment, asserting the Amended Judgment is preclusive as to their claim for nondischargeability under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) (the "Albini MSJ") [Albini Adversary Proceeding, doc. 50]. Debtor opposed the Albini MSJ [Albini Adversary Proceeding, doc. 74]. On July 17, 2019, the Court issued a ruling granting the Albini MSJ and detailing why the Amended Judgment precludes relitigation of the plaintiffs' claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) (the Debtor appealed the Albini Order to the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP"). On May 8, 2020, Debtor filed a petition for rehearing before the BAP [BAP Docket, doc. 37]. On June 5, 2020, the BAP entered an order denying the petition for hearing [BAP Docket, doc. 39].

B. The Assignment Order and the Judgment Lien

On June 29, 2017, Plaintiff filed a Notice of Judgment Lien with the California Secretary of State (the "Judgment Lien"). RJN, Exhibit C. The Judgment Lien states that it applies to "all property subject to enforcement of a money judgment against the judgment debtor to which a judgment lien on personal property may attach under Section 697.530 of the Code of Civil Procedure...." Id.

On January 25, 2018, approximately three months prepetition, the state court entered an assignment order in favor of Plaintiff (the "Assignment Order"). RJN, Exhibit B. In the Assignment Order, the state court noted that Plaintiff was owed a total of $207,245.98 plus 10% interest. Id. The state court stated, in relevant part:

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure 708.510 the interests of judgment debtors Cruickshank, Skarpas and Zuckerman, whether standing in the names of Cruickshank, Skarpas, and Zuckerman or from or through any business entity or person in which Cruickshank, Skarpas, and Zuckerman are affiliated, as well as generated through the use of any license issued by a governmental agency including, but not limited to, California Bureau of Real Estate License No. 00833651, and their rights to receive payment of money due or to become due, including, without limitation, accounts receivable, general intangibles, instruments, securities, accounts, deposit accounts, rents, royalties, fees, dividends, fees, salaries, commissions, residual income, distributions, and all other rights to

C. This Adversary Proceeding

On August 2, 2018, Plaintiff filed his own complaint against Debtor and other defendants. On June 7, 2019, Plaintiff filed the operative second amended complaint (the "SAC") [doc. 75]. As concerns Debtor, Plaintiff requested declaratory relief regarding the impact of the Assignment Order and the Judgment Lien and nondischargeability of the debt owed to Plaintiff based on the Amended Judgment pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(2)(B). Through the SAC, Plaintiff also added the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") as a defendant. On June 12, 2019, Plaintiff filed proof that he timely served the Trustee with the summons and the SAC. The Trustee has not filed a response to the SAC.

On November 26, 2019, Plaintiff filed a motion for summary judgment (the "Motion") [docs. 152-157]. Through the Motion, Plaintiff requests a judgment under § 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(2)(B) based on the Amended Judgment. In addition, Plaintiff appears to request a judgment that states that "the following rights to payment are subject to Plaintiff's Assignment Order," listing Debtor's right to: (A) "receivables" from several entities; (B) receipt of payment from Venmo, as disclosed in Debtor's July 2018 monthly operating report ("MOR"); (C) a commission in the amount of $35,000; (D) payment for consulting fees; (E) payments collected from Debtor as reported in his MORs; and (F) payment from City National Bank. Finally, Plaintiff appears to request a judgment that states that the Judgment Lien attaches to all of Debtor's personal property.

On March 4, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [docs. 183-187]. In the Opposition, Debtor argues that Plaintiff's claims based on the Assignment Order and Judgment Lien are vague and that Plaintiff's interpretation of the Assignment Order and the Judgment Lien is too broad. Regarding Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), Debtor reiterates his previous arguments from the Albini Adversary Proceeding that have been rejected by this Court and the BAP.

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Motion for Summary Judgment Standard

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 56, applicable to this adversary proceeding under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 7056, the Court shall grant summary judgment if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2509-10, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986); Rule 56; FRBP 7056. "By its very terms, this standard provides that the mere existence of some alleged factual dispute between the parties will not defeat an otherwise properly supported motion for summary judgment; the requirement is that there be no genuine issue of material fact." 477 U.S. at 247-48 (emphasis in original).

As to materiality, the substantive law will identify which facts are material. Only disputes over facts that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will properly preclude the entry of summary judgment. Factual disputes that are irrelevant or unnecessary will not be counted. . . . [S]ummary judgment will not lie if the dispute about a material fact is "genuine," that is, if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party. . . .

Id. at 248-50 (internal citations omitted). Additionally, issues of law are appropriate to be decided in a motion for summary judgment. See Camacho v. Du Sung Corp., 121 F.3d 1315, 1317 (9th Cir. 1997).

The initial burden is on the moving party to show that no genuine issues of material fact exist based on "the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2553, 91 L.Ed. 265 (1986). Once the moving party meets its initial burden, the nonmoving party bearing "the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue" must identify facts beyond what is contained in the pleadings that show genuine issues of fact remain. Id., at 324; see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256

("Rule 56(e) itself provides that a party opposing a properly supported motion for summary judgment may not rest upon mere allegation or denials of his pleading, but must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.").

The nonmoving party meets this burden through the presentation of "evidentiary materials" listed in Rule 56, such as depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations, stipulations, admissions, and interrogatory answers. Id. To establish a genuine issue, the non-moving party "must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts."

Matsushita Electrical Industry Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586, 106 S.Ct. 1348, 1356, 89 L.Ed.2d 538 (1986); see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252 ("The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the [non-moving party's] position will be insufficient."). Rather, the nonmoving party must provide "evidence of such a caliber that 'a fair-minded jury could return a verdict for the [nonmoving party] on the evidence presented.'" U.S. v. Wilson, 881 F.2d 596, 601 (9th Cir. 1989) (quoting Anderson, 477 U.S. at 266).

B. The Assignment Order and Judgment Lien

With respect to the Assignment Order, Plaintiff appears to request a judgment that his Assignment Order attached to Debtor's right to payment from the sources identified above. However, Plaintiff has not provided sufficient evidence for the Court to make any such determination. The Assignment Order is dated January 24, 2018. Debtor filed his chapter 11 petition on May 4, 2018, at which time the automatic stay prohibited any further enforcement of collection activity against Debtor or the estate. 11 U.S.C. § 362. As such, to obtain a determination that the Assignment Order attached to any of the interests referenced by Plaintiff, Plaintiff would have to provide evidence demonstrating that Debtor had a right to payment from those sources between January 24, 2018, when the state court entered the Assignment Order, and May 4, 2018, the petition date. Plaintiff offers no such evidence.

In fact, many of the rights to payment listed by Plaintiff appear to have arisen postpetition but preconversion. For example, Plaintiff references Debtor's MORs, filed during the pendency of Debtor's chapter 11 case, to identify certain payments received by Debtor. However, Debtor's postpetition but preconversion right to payment became part of the bankruptcy estate upon conversion of Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case. See 11 U.S.C. § 1115(a)(1); and In re Roussos, 2016 WL 5349717, at *5 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2016). As such, if the property that generates the right to payment Plaintiff seeks to attach entered the chapter 7 estate, Plaintiff may not enforce the Assignment Order as to that property unless the Trustee explicitly abandons the Property or Plaintiff obtains relief from the automatic stay.

The Court notes that, even if Debtor had a right to payment to which the Assignment Order attached between the period of January 24, 2018 and May 4, 2018, Plaintiff would only be entitled to the right to payment from the identified asset, not the asset itself. See, e.g. AmeriPride Servs. Inc. v. Texas E. Overseas Inc., 782 F.3d 474, 491–92 (9th Cir. 2015) (reversing district court judgment that assigned personal property to judgment creditor instead of only the right to payment from that property). Thus, even if the Assignment Order attached to Debtor’s right to payment during the relevant prepetition period, the property itself still would become property of the estate, and Plaintiff would still be prohibited from continued enforcement against the asset. In other words, although Plaintiff may have been entitled to intercept certain payments between January 24, 2018 and May 4, 2018 by operation of the Assignment Order, Plaintiff could not continue such activity beyond the petition date. [FN2].

The same is true for Plaintiff’s claim related to the Judgment Lien. Plaintiff has offered no evidence or analysis regarding whether the Judgment Lien attached to any of Debtor’s personal property, including whether such personal property is the type of property under the purview of the Judgment Lien. See Cal. Civ. Proc. Code §§ 680.130, 697.530; and Cal. Comm. Code § 9102(a)(2). Nevertheless, for the same reasons noted above, if Plaintiff would like to enforce the Judgment Lien against property of the estate, Plaintiff must obtain relief from the automatic stay.

In light of the above, the Court will deny the Motion as to these claims for relief. Rather than continue to pursue the claims via this adversary proceeding, Plaintiff should file a motion for relief from the automatic stay in Debtor’s bankruptcy case. If Plaintiff obtains relief from the automatic stay, Plaintiff may pursue his enforcement efforts pursuant to the Assignment Order and the Judgment Lien in state court.

C. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A)

For the same reasons stated in the Albin Ruling and the BAP Opinion, the Court will enter judgment in favor of Plaintiff on the basis that the Amended Judgment establishes Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). The BAP has addressed all of Debtor's arguments in the BAP Opinion. The Court is bound by the BAP's interpretation of the Amended Judgment. Unless the outcome of a further appeal mandates otherwise, the Court will not revisit these issues.

D. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(B)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(B), the plaintiff must show that the debtor incurred a debt by "use of a statement in writing:"

- (i) that is materially false;
- (ii) respecting the debtor's or an insider's financial condition;
- (iii) on which the creditor to whom the debtor is liable for such money, property, services, or credit reasonably relied; and
- (iv) that the debtor caused to be made or published with intent to deceive....

(emphasis added).

Plaintiff bases his § 523(a)(2)(B) claim on appraisals provided by Debtor and his agent which included inaccurate representations. However, Plaintiff has not established that either Debtor or an insider of Debtor owned or had an interest in the Malibu land. Nor does the Amended Judgment include any such findings. Moreover, the Amended Judgment does not include any other statements regarding written false statements regarding Debtor's or an insider's financial condition. As such, Plaintiff has not established a claim under § 523(a)(2)(B).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will enter judgment in favor of Plaintiff under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). The Court will otherwise deny the Motion.

The Court will prepare the judgment.

1. The Court will take judicial notice of the Amended Judgment, the Assignment Order and the Judgment Lien.

2. Moreover, under California Code of Civil Procedure § 708.510(d), "[a] right to payment may be assigned pursuant to this article only to the extent necessary to satisfy the money judgment." In the Assignment Order, the state court stated that Plaintiff was owed $207,245.98 plus 10% interest. As such, the Assignment Order did not serve to transfer all assets that generate a right to payment to Plaintiff; instead, the Assignment Order merely allows Plaintiff to collect up the amount of the judgment.

#1.00 First and final application by Resnik Hayes Moradi LLP, general bankruptcy counsel for the Debtor, for allowance of fees for the period August 14, 2018 through March 24, 2020

Docket 197

Tentative Ruling:

Applicant, counsel to the debtor and debtor in possession – approve fees in the amount of $91,257.50 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $2,204.42, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. For the reasons stated below, the Court will not approve $622.50 in fees.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 7 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

In addition, secretarial/clerical work is noncompensable under 11 U.S.C. § 330. See In re Schneider, 2008 WL 4447092, *11 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2008) (court disallowed billing for services including: monitoring and reviewing the docket;

Tentative Ruling:

Resnik Hayes Moradi, LLP ("Applicant") counsel to the debtor and debtor in possession – approve fees in the amount of $56,349.50 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $1,717.00, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, for the period between July 29, 2019 through February 10, 2020, on an interim basis. At this time, Applicant may collect 80% of the approved fees and 100% of the approved expenses pursuant to the terms set forth in Applicant's supplemental declaration [doc. 130]. The Court will not approve $620.00 in fees for the reasons stated below.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 11 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

The Court will reduce the following fees, as they appear excessive in light of Applicant's experience, and the relative complexity of the work performed compared to the time billed:

In addition, secretarial/clerical work is noncompensable under 11 U.S.C. § 330. See In re Schneider, 2008 WL 4447092, *11 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2008) (court disallowed billing for services including: monitoring and reviewing the docket; electronically distributing documents; preparing services packages, serving pleadings, updating service lists and preparing proofs of service; and e-filing and uploading pleadings); In re Ness, 2007 WL 1302611, *1 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. April 27, 2007) (data entry noncompensable as secretarial in nature); In re Dimas, 357 B.R. 563, 577 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2006) ("Services that are clerical in nature are not properly chargeable to the bankruptcy estate. They are not in the nature of professional services and must be absorbed by the applicant's firm as an overhead expense. Fees for services that are purely clerical, ministerial, or administrative should be disallowed.").

In accordance with the foregoing, the Court will not approve the fees billed by Applicant for the services identified below:

chapter 7 case was closed [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 40].

On March 23, 2020, Alexander Ermakov ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint against Defendant (the "§ 523 Complaint"), seeking nondischargeability of the debt owed to him pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2) and (a)(4), initiating this adversary proceeding. In relevant part, the § 523 Complaint makes the following allegations:

In 2012, Plaintiff and Defendant orally agreed to go into business together. The agreement was that each party would be a 50% owner of the business, as well as that each party would contribute equally in terms of funds and efforts to be invested.

On February 7, 2012, Plaintiff and Defendant formed AAA Plus Limousine and Transportations Services Inc. (the "Company"). Plaintiff and Defendant were each 50% owners of the Company, and Defendant was also an officer and director of the Company.

After several months of operating the Company, Plaintiff noticed some irregularities and questioned Defendant regarding those irregularities. Defendant denied any wrongdoing, but continued to misrepresent and hide facts from Plaintiff. When Plaintiff persisted, Defendant wrongfully ousted Plaintiff from the Company and converted Plaintiff's shares in the Company to himself.

Defendant made statements to Plaintiff in Defendant's personal capacity and as an officer and director of the Company, knowing that the statements were false. Defendant did this with the intent to have Plaintiff rely on those statements in order to misappropriate Plaintiff's shares in the Company. At the time Defendant made the statements to Plaintiff, Defendant intended to defraud Plaintiff. Plaintiff relied on these statements. As a result of Defendant's fraud and misrepresentation, Plaintiff suffered damages in excess of $117,800.

On July 15, 2015, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendant and the Company in the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles, for fraud, among other things (the "State Court Action"). In the State Court Action, Defendant appeared and filed an answer on his own behalf and on behalf of the Company. Defendant participated just enough in the litigation to slow down the proceedings, but never offered a coherent defense.

On April 14, 2017, Plaintiff obtained a default judgment at a prove-up hearing against all defendants in the State Court Action, in the amount of $160,164.14 (the "Judgment"). Plaintiff's expert, Mr. Magidov, testified at the hearing in order to establish the value of the Company.

The § 523 Complaint states that the Judgment is attached as exhibit 1. However, the § 523 Complaint does not include any exhibits.

On April 24, 2020, Defendant filed a Motion for Dismissal of Adversary Case Pursuant to F.R.C.P. Rule 12(b)(6) and F.R.B.P. Rule 7012 for Failure to State a Claim (the "Motion") [doc. 6]. In the Motion, Defendant argues that the § 523(a)(2)(A) cause of action should be dismissed for failure to state a claim.

On June 10, 2020, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 10] and a request for judicial notice ("RJN") [doc. 11]. In the Opposition, Plaintiff argues that the Court should deny the Motion because issue preclusion applies to the § 523(a)(2)(A) cause of action.

The RJN includes the following documents: (a) the state court complaint [doc. 11, Exh. 1]; (b) Defendant's answer in the State Court Action [doc. 11, Exh. 2]; (c) a minute order from the State Court Action, dated January 21, 2015, which states that Defendant appeared pro per at a case management conference [doc. 11, Exh. 3]; (d) a substitution of attorney, dated May 6, 2015, which was filed in the State Court Action [doc. 11, Exh. 4]; (e) a minute order from the State Court Action, dated May 5, 2015, which states that an appearance counsel appeared at the matter on behalf of Defendant [doc. 11, Exh. 5]; (f) the first amended complaint in the State Court Action [doc. 11, Exh. 6]; and (g) the Judgment [doc. 11, Exh. 7].

The first amended complaint in the State Court Action [doc. 11, Exh. 6], which was the operative complaint, makes many of the allegations as the § 523

Complaint. However, it makes further allegations regarding Defendant's alleged statements and conduct.

In relevant part, the Judgment [doc. 11, Exh. 7] [FN1] makes the following findings as to Defendant:

4. Defendants Husnutdin Zairov ousted Plaintiff Alexander Ermakov from [the Company] and converted Plaintiff Alexander Ermakov's shares in the Company to himself.

5. Defendant Husnutdin Zairov made statements to Plaintiff Alexander Ermakov and others, in his personal capacity and as an officer and director of [the Company] knowing that these statements were false and did so with the intent to have Plaintiff rely upon those statements in order for the [d]efendants, and each of them, to misappropriate Plaintiff Alexander Ermakov's shares in the Company. At the time Defendant Husnutdin Zairov made these false statements he intended to defraud Plaintiff Alexander Ermakov. Plaintiff Alexander Ermakov relied upon these false statements.

7. The Court further finds that Defendant Husnutdin Zairov is guilty of oppression, malice and fraud with respect to the second cause of action for Breach of Fiduciary Duty and the fourth cause of action for Conversion.

The Judgment was entered in favor of Plaintiff and against Defendant and the Company on four causes of action, including fraud. The state court awarded Plaintiff the following damages: (a) $93,000 in compensatory damages for the fraud cause of action; (b) $9,800 in prejudgment interest; (c) $5,871.67 in court costs; (d) $34,992.47 in attorneys' fees; and (e) $1,500 in court-imposed sanctions. Defendant and the Company are jointly and severally liable for those damages. The state court also awarded Plaintiff $15,000 in punitive damages against Defendant. Defendant did not timely file a reply to the Opposition.

II. DISCUSSION

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted) (citing, inter alia, Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 547, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed. 2d 929 (2007); Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed. 2d 868 (2009)). "Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2) requires only 'a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief,' in order to 'give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.'" Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555 (citations omitted). "[F]acts must be alleged to sufficiently apprise the defendant of the complaint against him." Kubick v. Fed. Dep. Ins. Corp. (In re Kubick), 171 B.R. 658, 660 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994).

"A complaint that merely recites statutory language fails to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6)." In re Kubick, 171 B.R. 658, 660 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994). This is because "mere statutory language does not plead facts sufficiently so that they may be answered or denied." Id. "[F]acts must be alleged to sufficiently apprise the defendant of the complaint against him." Id.

Pursuant to Rule 9(b), "[i]n alleging fraud or mistake, a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake. Malice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged...." Neubronner v. Milken, 6 F.3d 666, 671 (9th Cir. 1993). "[M]ere conclusory allegations of fraud are insufficient." Moore v. Kayport Package Exp., Inc., 885 F.2d 531, 540 (9th Cir. 1989).

Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

B. Request for Judicial Notice

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986). "A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Further, a court may consider evidence "on which the complaint necessarily relies if: (1) the complaint refers to the document; (2) the document is central to the plaintiff's claim; and (3) no party questions the authenticity of the copy attached to the [Rule] 12(b)(6) motion." Marder v. Lopez, 450 F.3d 445, 448 (9th Cir. 2006) (internal quotation marks omitted). "The court may treat such a document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id. (internal quotation marks omitted).

In the RJN, Plaintiff requests that the Court take judicial notice of several documents that were filed in the State Court Action. As these documents are all court filings, the Court may properly take judicial notice of the requested documents under Federal Rule of Evidence 201.

In addition, the Court may treat the Judgment as part of the § 523 Complaint, and therefore, assume that its contents are true for purposes of the Motion. The § 523 Complaint refers to the Judgment, it is central to Plaintiff's claim, i.e., the Judgment is nondischargeable, and Defendant did not object to its authenticity. Accordingly, for purposes of the Motion, the Court may consider the allegations in the § 523 Complaint and the Judgment in determining whether Plaintiff has stated a claim for relief.

C. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the Plaintiffs must prove by a preponderance of the evidence the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the

In re Weinberg, 410 B.R. 19, 35 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009) (citing In re Slyman, 234 F.3d 1081, 1085 (9th Cir. 2000)).

i. Misrepresentations with Knowledge of Falsity and Intent to Deceive

Representations made without an intent to perform satisfy the first three requirements of § 523(a)(2)(A). In re Rubin, 875 F.2d 755, 759 (9th Cir. 1989). A promise also can be considered fraudulent when the promisor knew or should have known of his inability to perform. In re Barrack, 217 B.R. 598, 606 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1998). A promise to perform in the future is not a false representation or false pretense unless the debtor did not have intent to perform at the time he made the representation. Matter of Bercier, 934 F.2d 689, 691-92 (5th Cir. 1991) ("A mere promise to be executed in the future is not sufficient to make a debt nondischargeable, even though there is no excuse for the subsequent breach.") (citations omitted).

ii. Justifiable Reliance

To satisfy the reliance requirement of § 523(a)(2)(A), a plaintiff must show "justifiable" reliance, not "reasonable reliance." Field v. Mans, 516 U.S. 59, 74-75, 116 S. Ct. 437, 133 L. Ed. 2d 351 (1995). Justifiable reliance takes into account the "qualities and characteristics of the particular plaintiff, and the circumstances of the particular case, rather than of the application of a community standard of conduct to all cases." Id. at 71.

iii. Proximate Causation/Damages

Section 523(a)(2)(A) requires that the damage to the creditor be proximately caused by the debtor's fraud. In re Sabban, 600 F.3d 1219, 1223 (9th Cir. 2010) (explaining that the debtor will not receive a discharge of debts "resulting from" or "traceable" to fraud). "Further, as the Supreme Court explained in Field, a court may turn to the Restatement (Second) of Torts (1976), 'the most widely accepted distillation of the common law of torts,' for guidance on this issue." In re Russell, 203 B.R. 303, 313 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1996) (citing to Field, 516 U.S. at 70).

"Turning to the Restatement, proximate cause entails (1) causation in fact, which requires a defendant's misrepresentations to be a 'substantial factor in determining the course of conduct that results in [the plaintiff's] loss,' § 546; and (2) legal causation, which requires the plaintiff's loss to have been 'reasonably expected to result from the reliance,' § 548A. In determining the presence of proximate cause, however, courts must refrain from relying on speculation to determine whether and to what extent a creditor would have suffered a loss absent fraud. Id. (citing to In re Siriani, 967 F.2d 302, 306 (9th Cir. 1992)).

iv. Discussion

Plaintiff alleges that Defendant committed fraud and relies on the Judgment to satisfy the elements of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). Because Plaintiff is alleging fraud, the § 523 Complaint must also meet the heightened pleading standard in Rule 9(b).

Regarding the first element, neither the § 523 Complaint nor the Judgment specify what misrepresentations Defendant made to Plaintiff. The § 523 Complaint and the Judgment merely recite that Defendant made statements to Plaintiff that were false, without specifying what those statements were. In order to meet the heightened pleading standard of Rule 9(b), the § 523 Complaint must state with particularity the circumstances constituting the fraud. The § 523 Complaint does not do so. Accordingly, the § 523 Complaint does not satisfy the first element of § 523(a)(2)(A).

Regarding the second and third elements, the § 523 Complaint and the Judgment state that Defendant knew the statements were false, and that Defendant made the false statements intending to defraud Plaintiff. Pursuant to Rule 9(b), intent and knowledge may be alleged generally. As such, Plaintiff has alleged sufficient facts to satisfy the second and third elements § 523(a)(2)(A).

Regarding the fourth element, the § 523 Complaint and the Judgment state a legal conclusion that Plaintiff relied on the statements made by Defendant. In determining a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the Court does not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. The § 523 Complaint and the Judgment do not allege sufficient factual allegations regarding Plaintiff's justifiable reliance on Defendant's alleged misrepresentations. Accordingly, the Complaint does not satisfy the fourth element of § 523(a)(2)(A).

Regarding the fifth element, in the § 523 Complaint, Plaintiff alleges that he was damaged in excess of $117,800 as a result of Defendant's alleged misrepresentations. Additionally, the Judgment awards Plaintiff damages from Defendant based on the fraud of action. As such, Plaintiff has alleged sufficient facts to satisfy the fifth element § 523(a)(2)(A).

Based on the foregoing, the § 523 Complaint and the Judgment do not contain sufficient factual allegations to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and satisfy Rule 9(b). However, the deficiencies in the § 523 Complaint may be cured by amendment. Accordingly, the Court will grant the Motion with leave to amend.

D. Issue Preclusion

In the Opposition, Plaintiff argues that the Motion should be denied because issue preclusion applies to this adversary proceeding to bar relitigation of the issues decided in the State Court Action.

"A bankruptcy court may rely on the issue preclusive effect of an existing state court judgment In so doing, the bankruptcy court must apply the forum state's law of issue preclusion." In re Plyam, 2015 WL 2124780, at *3 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. May 5, 2015); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1738 (federal courts must give "full faith and credit" to state court judgments).

"The party asserting preclusion bears the burden of establishing the threshold requirements." In re Harmon, 250 F.3d 1240, 1245 (9th Cir. 2001). "This means providing 'a record sufficient to reveal the controlling facts and pinpoint the exact issues litigated in the prior action.'" Plyam, at *3 (quoting In re Kelly, 182 B.R. 255, 258 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1995), aff'd, 100 F.3d 110 (9th Cir. 1996)). "Any reasonable doubt as to what was decided by a prior judgment should be resolved against allowing the [issue preclusive] effect." Kelly, at 258.

The requirements for issue preclusion in California are:

- (1) the issue sought to be precluded from relitigation is identical to that decided in a former proceeding;

- (2) the issue was actually litigated in the former proceeding;
- (3) the issue was necessarily decided in the former proceeding;
- (4) the decision in the former proceeding is final and on the merits; and
- (5) the party against whom preclusion is sought was the same as, or in privity with, the party to the former proceeding.

In re Harmon, 250 F.3d at 1245 (citing to Lucido v. Superior Court, 51 Cal. 3d 335, 341 (1990)).

At this stage, the Court need not determine whether issue preclusion applies. On a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the Court assesses the sufficiency of the allegations in the complaint to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. The Court's review is limited to the contents of the complaint and the attached exhibits. As discussed above, the § 523 Complaint and the Judgment do not contain sufficient allegations regarding the circumstances constituting fraud and Plaintiff's justifiable reliance.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion with leave to amend.

Plaintiff will have 14 days from the date of the hearing to file and serve on Defendant and his counsel an amended complaint, or to file and serve notice on Defendant and his counsel that Plaintiff will not do so.

Defendant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#3.00 Judgment Creditors Motion Assignment Order and Restraining Order

fr. 5/14/20; 5/21/20

Docket 735

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

At the last hearing, the Court requested that Tammy Phillips and Tammy Phillips, a Prof. Law Corp. ("Creditors"), file a supplemental brief regarding whether Kevan Harry Gilman ("Debtor") waived his right to claim an exemption in any "Covid-19 economic stimulus checks/payments from the federal government to Debtor," including the stimulus check that Debtor may qualify for under the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (the "Stimulus Check").

On May 28, 2020, Creditors filed a supplemental brief (the "Brief") [doc. 746]. In the Brief, Creditors assert that Debtor waived his right to an exemption by failing to claim one within three days of the hearing on their motion pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 708.550. Creditors also argue that Debtor has waived his right to claim an exemption in any future Covid-19 related federal stimulus payments. Finally, if Debtor is provided with a Stimulus Check, Creditors expressed opposition to the Court's proposed procedure for Creditors to receive the Stimulus Check. [FN1]. Debtor did not file a response to the Brief.

Pursuant to CCP § 708.550—

- (a) The judgment debtor may claim that all or a portion of the right to payment is exempt from enforcement of a money judgment by application to the court on noticed motion filed not later than three days before the date set for the hearing on the judgment creditor's application for an assignment order. The judgment debtor shall execute an affidavit in support of the application that includes all of the matters set forth in subdivision (b) of Section 703.520. Failure of the judgment debtor to make a claim of exemption is a waiver of the exemption.

- (b) The notice of the motion shall be personally served on the judgment creditor not later than three days before the date set for the hearing.
- (c) The court shall determine any claim of exemption made pursuant to this section at the hearing on issuance of the assignment order.

Creditors did not reference CCP § 708.550 anywhere in the original motion or their reply to Debtor's declaration. Nevertheless, because Debtor did not claim an exemption in his original declaration or in response to the Brief, the Court will allow Creditors to attach the Stimulus Check without providing additional time for Debtor to claim an exemption. Under CCP § 708.550(a), Debtor has waived any claim of an exemption in the Stimulus Check.

The Court will not rule on whether Creditors have a right to attach any future Covid-19 related federal stimulus payments issued to Debtor. "The exercise of judicial power under Art. III of the Constitution depends on the existence of a case or controversy and a federal court lacks the power to render advisory opinions." U.S. Nat. Bank of Oregon v. Indep. Ins. Agents of Am., Inc., 508 U.S. 439, 446, 113 S.Ct. 2173, 2178, 124 L.Ed.2d 402 (1993) (internal quotations omitted). "A court's role is 'neither to issue advisory opinions nor to declare rights in hypothetical cases, but to adjudicate live cases or controversies consistent with the powers granted [by the] Constitution.'" Potrero Hills Landfill, Inc. v. Cty. of Solano, 868 F.Supp.2d 1007, 1013 (E.D. Cal. 2012) (quoting Stormans, Inc. v. Selecky, 586 F.3d 1109, 1123 (9th Cir. 2009)); see also Thomas v. Union Carbide Agric. Prod., Co., 473 U.S. 568, 580–81, 105 S.Ct. 3325, 87 L.Ed.2d 409 (1985) (courts should refrain from deciding cases that "involve contingent future events that may not occur as anticipated, or indeed may not occur at all"). "For example, a claim is not ripe for adjudication if it rests upon contingent future events that may not occur as anticipated, or indeed may not occur at all." Bova v. City of Medford, 564 F.3d 1093, 1096 (9th Cir. 2009) (internal quotations omitted).

Congress has yet to pass any legislation providing for additional Covid-19 related stimulus payments to individual taxpayers. Before the issue of Creditors' right to attach future, hypothetical Covid-19 related federal stimulus payments is ripe, the Court will not issue an advisory opinion. Without knowing the contours of any such future legislation, the Court is unable to rule on either Creditors' or Debtor's rights vis-à-vis a future stimulus payment which may be issued to Debtor.

Finally, Creditors challenge the Court's proposed procedure for collection of the Stimulus Check, i.e., to obtain the Stimulus Check directly from the United States government. [FN2]. This alternative was suggested to address Creditors' concern that Debtor will dissipate the Stimulus Check, instead of providing it to Creditors.

If Creditors prefer to wait until Debtor receives a Stimulus Check, and then have Debtor forward the Stimulus Check to them (despite their concerns about Debtor's compliance), the Court will instead order Debtor to indorse the Stimulus Check to Creditors and/or their assignees, as requested by Creditors.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will order that, if Debtor receives a Stimulus Check, Debtor must indorse the Stimulus Check to "Charles Jakob, Attorney, for the benefit of Tammy Phillips and Tammy R. Phillips, a Professional Corporation or their assignees of record."

Creditors must submit an order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. Creditors also argue that the Court should have set their original motion for hearing on an earlier date, noting that "[b]y delaying its ruling, the Court is almost certainly rendering the motion worthless." Brief, p. 5. However, a "trial court possesses the inherent power to control its own docket and calendar," and Creditors did not set forth a reasonable basis to have a hearing set on shortened notice, in connection with pending legislation. Subsequently, the Court continued the hearing on this matter because, at the initial hearing on this motion, for the first time, Creditors referenced CCP § 708.550; the Court required sufficient time to assess the application of that statute to this matter.

2. Creditors state that the Court did not advise Creditors which agency to serve

#4.00 Motion to avoid lien under 11 U.S.C. sec 522(f) (Real Property) with Citibank, N.A.

Docket 28

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will continue this hearing to July 23, 2020 at 2:00 p.m.

On April 27, 2020, the debtors filed a Motion to Avoid Lien Under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) (Real Property) (the "Motion") [doc. 28]. After reviewing the Motion, the Court determined that service of the Motion was not proper under Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004(h). Accordingly, the Court set the Motion for hearing [doc. 31] and ordered the debtors to serve Citibank, National Association in accordance with Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004(h), with the Motion, notice of the hearing and deadline to file a response.

On May 27, 2020, the debtors filed a Declaration of Brigitte Lopez re: Proof of Service of Notice of Motion and Motion to Avoid Lien Under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) of Citibank N.A. [doc. 34]. In that declaration, a secretary at the debtor's counsel's firm states that on May 26, 2020, she served a copy of the Motion to Citibank, National Association by certified mail addressed to an officer of the institution.

On May 27, 2020, the debtors also filed a notice of hearing on the Motion [doc. 33]. The notice indicates that the deadline to file an opposition is June 25, 2020, the date of the hearing. Additionally, the notice was served via United States mail; not certified as required by Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004(h).

As service of the notice and deadline to file a response were not proper under Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004(h) and Local Bankruptcy Rule 9013-1(f), the Court will continue this hearing to July 23, 2020 at 2:00 p.m. By July 2, 2020, the debtor must serve notice of the continued hearing and deadline to file a response, i.e. fourteen days prior to the hearing on Citibank, National Association in accordance with Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004(h).

WILMINGTON TRUST, NA
VS
DEBTOR

Docket 49

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will continue this hearing to July 29, 2020 at 9:30 a.m.

On June 5, 2020, movant filed a motion for relief from stay as to real property located in Las Vegas, Nevada (the "Motion") [doc. 39]. In the Motion, movant states that cause exists to grant relief from stay because postpetition mortgage payments have not been made. Subsequently, the debtor's chapter 13 case was converted to one under chapter 7 [doc. 42].

On June 19, 2020, movant filed an amended motion for relief from stay (the "Amended Motion") [doc. 49]. In the Amended Motion, movant states that cause exists to grant relief for stay because movant's interest in the Las Vegas property is not protected by an adequate equity cushion.

Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 4001-1(c) and 9013-1(d), a motion for relief from stay must be filed and served not later than 21 days before the hearing date. Movant did not file and serve the Amended Motion at least 21 days before the hearing.

Accordingly, the Court will continue this hearing to July 29, 2020 at 9:30 a.m. No later than July 8, 2020, movant must file and serve notice of the continued hearing and deadline to file a response, i.e., fourteen days prior to the continued hearing, on all parties required under LBR 4001-1(c).

#3.00 Motion for relief from stay [RP]

COVE GLOBAL ASSET MANAGEMENT
VS
DEBTOR

Docket 16

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

On June 10, 2020, Cove Global Asset Management, LLC ("Movant") filed a motion for relief from stay as to vacant real property located in Los Angeles, California (the "Motion") [doc. 16]. In the Motion, Movant requests relief pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d)(1) and (d)(4).

On June 17, 2020, the debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 19]. In the Opposition, the debtor details his history of ownership of the subject property. Given the debtor's history with respect to the subject property and the prospect that the debtor may amend his proposed chapter 13 plan, the Court does not find that this case was filed in bad faith. Accordingly, the Court will deny Movant's request for relief under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(4).

In the Motion, Movant states that the amount of its claim with respect to the subject property is $44,182.20. Attached to the Motion as exhibit 2 is the debtor's schedule A/B. In his schedule A/B, the debtor indicated that the subject property is valued at $125,000. Movant did not present conflicting evidence regarding valuation. Movant also did not provide evidence that the fair market value of the property is declining.

Given the significant equity cushion in the property, it appears that Movant is adequately protected. Accordingly, the Court will deny Movant's request for relief under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Respondent must submit the order within seven (7) days.

I. BACKGROUND

A. Relevant Bankruptcy Events

On February 16, 2018, Deborah Lois Adri ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In her schedule E/F, filed with her petition, Debtor scheduled a claim in favor of the Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS") and indicated that $526,400 of the claim was entitled to priority treatment. Debtor did not designate the claim as disputed, contingent or unliquidated. On February 28, 2018, the IRS filed a proof of claim against the estate in the total amount of $634,833.87. In the proof of claim, the IRS indicated that $510,840.42 of its claim was subject to 11 U.S.C. § 507(a)(8).

On April 13, 2018, the Court entered an order approving Robert Yaspan as general bankruptcy counsel as of the petition date [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 53]. On February 7, 2019, Debtor filed a Substitution of Attorney [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 275], terminating Mr. Yaspan's representation. On February 8, 2019, the Court entered an order appointing a chapter 11 trustee [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 278]. On April 8, 2019, the Court converted Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 305]. Elissa Miller was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

Aside from the adversary proceedings discussed below, on July 23, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Debtor, requesting denial of Debtor's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A) and (a)(3) (the "Discharge Action") [1:19-ap-01088-VK].

B. The Trustee's Adversary Proceeding against Mr. Yaspan

On October 24, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Mr. Yaspan, initiating adversary 1:19-ap-01128-VK (the "Trustee Action"). In the operative complaint, the Trustee asserted claims for: (A) malpractice based on Mr. Yaspan's alleged failure to advise Debtor regarding the tax consequences of Debtor's petition date; (B) malpractice based on failure to advise Debtor properly, which led to, among other things, the Trustee filing the Discharge Action; and (C) breach of fiduciary duty based on Mr. Yaspan's alleged conduct during the pendency of the chapter 11 case.

Mr. Yaspan filed a motion to dismiss the Trustee Action, asserting, in relevant part, that the Trustee lacks standing to sue Mr. Yaspan [1:19-ap-01128-VK, doc. 28]. On May 6, 2020, the Court held a hearing on Mr. Yaspan's motion and held, in relevant part, that the Trustee has exclusive standing to sue on the malpractice claim based on the tax consequences and the breach of fiduciary duty claim (the "Trustee Action Ruling") [1:19-ap-01128-VK, doc. 35]. The Court also dismissed the Trustee's malpractice claim based on the Discharge Action, holding that it was not ripe for adjudication.

C. This Adversary Proceeding

On February 6, 2020, Debtor filed a complaint against Mr. Yaspan and the Trustee (the "Complaint"). Like the Trustee, Debtor asserts claims for malpractice and breach of fiduciary duty against Mr. Yaspan. In addition, Debtor claims Mr. Yaspan was unjustly enriched by Debtor's payment of $25,000 in legal fees, requests disgorgement of those funds and asserts claims for fraudulent concealment and constructive fraud, based on Mr. Yaspan's alleged concealment of case developments from Debtor. Finally, Debtor asserts a claim for attorneys' fees incurred because she hired another law firm as a result of Mr. Yaspan's alleged conduct.

On March 9, 2020, Mr. Yaspan filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "Yaspan Motion") [doc. 4]. On the same day, the Trustee filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "Trustee Motion") [doc. 6]. In the Trustee Motion, the Trustee asserts that Debtor does not have standing to pursue her claims. Alternatively, the Trustee requests that this action be abated until resolution of the other adversary proceedings related to Debtor's case or that this action be consolidated with the Trustee Action.

On June 10, 2020, Debtor filed oppositions to the Trustee Motion and the Yaspan Motion (the "Oppositions") [docs. 14, 15]. In response to the Trustee Motion, Debtor asserts that she has standing because her malpractice claim arose post-conversion, when: (1) the Trustee filed the Discharge Action to revoke Debtor's discharge based on Mr. Yaspan's alleged conduct; and (2) Debtor learned her tax liability would not be discharged. Debtor further argues that the malpractice claim against Mr. Yaspan is personal to Debtor and relates solely to Mr. Yaspan's representation of Debtor.

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986).

"A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). Under the "incorporation by reference" doctrine, a court may look beyond the four corners of the complaint to take into account documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint, but not physically attached, and may do so without converting a Rule 12(b)(6) motion into a motion for summary judgment. Davis v. HSBC Bank Nevada, N.A., 691 F.3d 1152, 1160 (9th Cir. 2012). The court "may treat the referenced document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id., quoting United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

estate comprised of the following property—

- (1) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c)(2) of this section, all legal or equitable interests of the debtor in property as of the commencement of the case.
...
- (7) Any interest in property that the estate acquires after the commencement of the case.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 323—

- (a) The trustee in a case under this title is the representative of the estate.
- (b) The trustee in a case under this title has capacity to sue and be sued.

"The scope of section 541 is broad, and includes causes of action." Sierra Switchboard Co. v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp., 789 F.2d 705, 707 (9th Cir.1986) (citing United States v. Whiting Pools, Inc., 462 U.S. 198, 205, 103 S.Ct. 2309, 76 L.Ed.2d 515 (1983)). In chapter 11 cases, where the debtor is an individual, in addition to prepetition causes of action held by the debtor pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(1), the estate includes "all property of the kind specified in section 541 that the debtor acquires after the commencement of the case but before the case is closed, dismissed, or converted to a case under chapter 7...." 11 U.S.C. § 1115(a)(1) (emphasis added).

Upon conversion, breach of fiduciary duty and malpractice claims against counsel to a debtor in possession, which arise during a chapter 11 case, pass to the chapter 7 trustee. Chapter 7

"The bankruptcy code endows the bankruptcy trustee with the exclusive right to sue on behalf of the estate." Estate of Spirtos v. One San Bernardino Cty. Superior Court, 443 F.3d 1172, 1176 (9th Cir. 2006) (emphasis added). "The debtor can pursue such claims only if they are abandoned by the estate." In re Meehan, 2014 WL 4801328, at *4 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2014) (citing 11 U.S.C. § 554).

With respect to Debtor's breach of fiduciary duty and fraud-based claims, Mr. Yaspan's representation of Debtor ended on February 7, 2019, when Debtor substituted new counsel in place of Mr. Yaspan. The Court did not convert Debtor's case until April 8, 2019, and the allegations relevant to these claims occurred prior to conversion of Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case. Consequently, the claims belong to the chapter 7 estate.

The same is true for Debtor's claims for disgorgement and unjust enrichment. Debtor does not allege that she paid Mr. Yaspan after the Court's appointment of a chapter 11 trustee. If Debtor seeks to recover payments she made to Mr. Yaspan either prepetition or during her time as the debtor in possession, those claims have passed to the Trustee. Consequently, the Court will dismiss these claims, with prejudice, for lack of standing.

C. The Malpractice Claim

The parties expend most of their effort discussing the accrual of legal malpractice claims. Debtor first cites In re Holcomb, 2018 WL 1976526 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Apr. 25, 2018), for the proposition that the malpractice claim is personal to Debtor and not property of the estate. However, in Holcomb, the allegations regarding malpractice involved the attorney's representation of the debtor during the chapter 7 portion of the case. Holcomb, 2018 WL 1976526, at *7. In deciding that the bankruptcy court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over the malpractice claim, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit stated:

Debtor's allegations against [the attorney] pertain solely to his representation as her chapter 7 private attorney. As such, [the attorney's] duties and representation of Debtor did not involve the administration of the bankruptcy estate as that was the chapter 7 trustee's role. Accordingly, Debtor's claims against [the attorney] do not impact the handling and administration of her estate and thus are easily separable from the bankruptcy case.

Id. (emphasis added). As such, Holcomb is inapposite; here, Debtor substituted counsel in place of Mr. Yaspan prior to conversion of Debtor's case, and Mr. Yaspan represented Debtor only during Debtor's status as the debtor in possession.

Debtor then cites several unpublished cases as support for Debtor's contention that Debtor did not suffer "actual injury" by the petition date, and thus the malpractice claims are not property of the estate. In In re Riche [2:17-ap-01526-ER, doc. 19], the chapter 7 debtors sued their bankruptcy attorney for malpractice. In connection with filing their chapter 7 petition, the debtors alleged that the attorney assured them their home was not at risk of liquidation. However, the attorney failed to conduct a title search, which would have shown that one of the deeds of trust at issue had not been recorded. Consequently, there would be non-exempt equity for the chapter 7 trustee to recover. The chapter 7 trustee did sell the property.

In deciding whether the malpractice claim was property of the estate, the bankruptcy court referred to Budd v. Nixen, 6 Cal.3d 195, 200, 491 P.2d 433 (1971). Relying on Budd, the court held:

Nothing about the filing of the petition made the future sale of Plaintiffs' home inevitable. It is possible that the Trustee could have elected not to administer the home; that Plaintiffs' former bankruptcy counsel could have negotiated a stipulation with the Trustee to provide for dismissal of the case; or that counsel could have devised some other strategy to prevent the sale of the home. Thus, as of the date of the petition, the only injury to Plaintiffs was contingent and speculative.

Riche, p. 6. In re Lipel [1:19-ap-01041-MT, doc. 97] also involved an attorney's representation of a chapter 7 debtor. [FN1]. As a result, neither of these cases involve application of 11 U.S.C. § 1115(a).

On the other hand, Lipel did involve a malpractice claim based on the timing of the debtor's bankruptcy filing, and the resulting nondischargeability of tax debt. There, the court stated, in relevant part:

Plaintiff contends that postpetition acts such as Defendants filing of Schedule E evidencing Debtor's liability to the IRS; advice to Debtor after the emergency bankruptcy petition was filed that the IRS debt would be dischargeable in bankruptcy; and the omission of not letting the case result in a Clerk's dismissal constitutes malpractice. There were two months between the Petition Date and the date that Debtor had new counsel substitute into the bankruptcy case... Debtor had no prepetition right or entitlement to commence a malpractice action against Defendants because under California law, without damages, no cause of action existed prepetition. Although it was possible that Debtor would suffer damages based on the petition having been filed too soon for the Tax Debt to be discharged, that possibility had no value on the petition date. As of the date of the petition, the only injury to Plaintiff was contingent and speculative. Therefore, no claim for breach of professional duty existed upon the petition date, given that "the threat of future harm—not yet realized—does not suffice to create a cause of action for negligence." Budd, 6 Cal.3d at 200.

Both Riche and Lipel relied heavily on the Budd court's language regarding the "actual loss or damage" element of professional negligence. Specifically, both courts relied on the following language as a basis for holding that the debtors' malpractice claims had not arisen as of the petition date:

The mere breach of a professional duty, causing only nominal damages, speculative harm, or the threat of future harm—not yet realized—does not suffice to create a cause of action for negligence. Hence, until the client suffers appreciable harm as a consequence of his attorney's negligence, the client cannot establish a cause of action for malpractice.

Budd, 6 Cal.3d at 200. However, in subsequent decisions from California courts and federal courts interpreting California law, the application of this language from Budd has been further explained.

In 1998, the Supreme Court of California recognized that the "actual loss or damage" and "appreciable harm" language from Budd had been incorporated into California Code of Civil Procedure § 340.6, which statute uses the phrase "actual injury"—

Unlike section 340.6, Budd does not use the phrase "actual injury," referring instead to "damage," "actual loss or damage," "appreciable harm," and "appreciable and actual harm." (Budd, supra, 6 Cal.3d at pp. 198, 200-201.) However, the pertinent legislative history shows how the actual injury tolling provision derived from the holding in Budd.

Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison, 18 Cal. 4th 739, 748 (1998). The Supreme Court of California then highlighted other decisions that clarified the definition of "actual injury"—

Subsequent decisions have made explicit what Budd implied. Thus, Davies v. Krasna held that the existence of appreciable actual injury does not depend on the plaintiff's ability to attribute a quantifiable sum of money to consequential damages. Similarly, Laird rejected the claims that actual injury should be defined by a monetary amount and that the limitations period should be tolled if the injury is, in some way, remediable. Adams recognized that actual injury may consist of impairment or diminution, as well as the total loss or extinction, of a right or remedy.

Id., at 750 (1998) (citing Davies v. Krasna, 14 Cal.3d 502, 514 (1975); Laird v. Blacker, 2 Cal.4th 606, 611, 614-17 (1992); and Adams v. Paul, 11 Cal.4th 583, 589-90, 591 (1995)).

In Jordache, the Supreme Court of California also liberally referenced Foxborough v. Van Atta, 26 Cal.App.4th 217 (Ct. App. 1994). In Foxborough, the plaintiff hired the defendant-attorney regarding a condominium project. Foxborough, 26 Cal.App.4th at 222. In connection with this project, the plaintiff sought the right to automatically annex to the project a smaller parcel. Id. However, the attorney allegedly failed to advise the plaintiff of a three-year regulatory deadline applicable to automatic annexations. Id., at 223.

After the expiration of the deadline, the plaintiff sought to exercise its right to automatic annexation. Id. Upon learning the annexation period had expired, the plaintiff contacted the attorney to pursue a potential legal remedy. Id. The attorney wrote some letters that proved futile, and the plaintiff then pursued litigation to achieve annexation. Id. These efforts were unsuccessful. Id. The plaintiff then sued the attorney for malpractice. Id. The trial court dismissed the malpractice action as time barred. Id.

On appeal, the plaintiff argued that "actual injury" did not occur until he lost the annexation litigation. Id., at 225. The court disagreed, stating—

[The attorney's] alleged negligence did not occur in the litigation. Instead, [the plaintiff] alleged that the [underlying] litigation was one of the consequences of that negligence. The judgment in the [underlying] litigation was not the first realization of an injury from the alleged malpractice, but rather the loss of an alternative means for obtaining monetary relief for that injury. Though [the attorney's] alleged negligence may have contributed to the [underlying] litigation judgment, that judgment was but the last in time of the alleged injuries.

Id., at 226. Instead, the court held that the plaintiff suffered "actual injury" as of the expiration of the automatic annexation period. Prior to that time, the plaintiff could have exercised his right. After the pertinent deadline, the plaintiff had to "resort to the more onerous, expensive, and unpredictable task of obtaining annexation approval." Id., at 227.

As support for this holding, the court stated—

[W]hen malpractice results in the loss of a right, remedy, or interest, or in the imposition of a liability, there has been actual injury regardless of whether future events may affect the permanency of the injury or the amount of monetary damages eventually incurred. This approach promotes the legislative goal of requiring diligent prosecution of known claims to provide finality and predictability in legal affairs, and to ensure that claims are resolved while evidence remains reasonably available and fresh.

Id.; see also U.S. v. Gutterman, 701 F.2d 104, 106 (9th Cir. 1983) (referencing California authority for the notion that "actual and appreciable harm" occurred "when liability had irrevocably attached" and "not subsequently when the clients had actually been sued for their misdeed"). [FN2].

Here, just as the Foxborough plaintiff was damaged upon expiration of the relevant deadline, the damage to Debtor, from adverse tax liability consequences, was established on the petition date. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(1), the relevant statute that designated a portion of the IRS's claim against Debtor as nondischargeable, is self-executing. See 11 U.S.C. § 523(c)(1); and In re Villareal, 563 B.R. 264, 270 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 2016). In other words, the IRS does not need to take any action for the pertinent portion of the debt owed to it to be classified as a nondischargeable claim. In addition, although actual injury does not depend on showing a definitive amount of damages, here, the amount of nondischargeable tax debt is readily calculated, by reference to §§ 523(a)(1) and 507(a)(8).

To undo the tax consequences caused by the timing of her bankruptcy filing, Debtor would have to "resort to... more onerous, expensive, and unpredictable tasks." Foxborough, 26 Cal.App.4th at 227. At that point, Debtor's options would include incurring fees and costs to: (A) move for dismissal of her case, which is "unpredictable," because the motion is subject to opposition by parties in interest and denial by the Court; (B) file a complaint in an effort to challenge the nondischargeability of the debt, likely to be opposed by the IRS and without any guaranty of success; and (C) wait until her bankruptcy case closed to negotiate with the IRS as to its nondischargeable claim. [FN3]. Similar to creditors having unliquidated claims against an estate, here, as of the petition date, Debtor had a malpractice claim against Mr. Yaspan; although the adverse tax liability caused by the petition date may be ameliorated, the related malpractice claim still arose on that date.

As such, this malpractice claim, based on the adverse tax consequences of the petition date, is property of the chapter 7 estate, and subject to the administration of the Trustee. Consequently, the Court will dismiss this malpractice claim, with prejudice, for Debtor's lack of standing.

D. The Malpractice Claim Based on the Discharge Action

As noted in the Trustee Action Ruling, the damages related to Debtor's potential loss of discharge are speculative. As a result, a malpractice claim based on the Discharge Action is not yet ripe. Until the Discharge Action has been concluded, the Court will dismiss this claim, without prejudice.

E. The Claim for Attorneys' Fees for the Tort of Another

Through the Complaint, Debtor requests attorneys' fees and costs incurred defending herself from the Trustee. Because the Trustee filed her adversary proceeding against Debtor post-conversion, and Debtor thereafter incurred attorneys' fees and costs defending herself, this claim belongs to Debtor. Other than noting that it is a remedy instead of a claim, Mr. Yaspan does not directly attack this claim. However, under this theory, California courts allow actions to recover attorneys' fees. See, e.g. Gray v. Don Miller & Assocs., Inc., 35 Cal.3d 498, 505 (1984). Therefore, Debtor may proceed with this claim, subject to any defenses that Mr. Yaspan may have, such as one based on unclean hands. [FN4].

Given that this is Debtor's only claim that the Court is not dismissing at this time, the Trustee's request for a plea in abatement is moot. To the extent California Code of Civil Procedure § 430.10 is applicable to this federal proceeding, the Trustee has not asserted a claim for attorneys' fees for the tort of another against Mr. Yaspan. As such, there is no other "action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action." Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 430.10(c). For the same reason, Debtor need not file a cross-complaint in the Trustee Action. [FN5].

Because Debtor may continue to incur damages under this remaining claim, the Court intends to stay this adversary proceeding until conclusion of the Trustee Action and the Discharge Action.

The Court will dismiss, with prejudice, Debtor's fraud-based claims and the claims for breach of fiduciary duty, unjust enrichment, disgorgement and malpractice based on the tax consequences of the petition date. The Court will dismiss, without prejudice, the claim for malpractice based on the Discharge Action.

The Court will not dismiss Debtor's claim for attorneys' fees and costs. Mr. Yaspan must file an answer to this claim no later than July 15, 2020. After Mr. Yaspan files his answer, the Court will stay this adversary proceeding until conclusion of the Trustee Action and the Discharge Action.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

1. In In re Glaser, 2019 WL 1075613 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Mar. 5, 2019), a chapter 7 case from its inception, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel applied Nevada law on legal malpractice. This matter involves California law on malpractice. As such, Glaser is inapplicable to this case.
2. In Gutterman, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that a malpractice action against an attorney who failed to file an estate tax return timely arose when the IRS assessed the tax penalty against the plaintiff. Gutterman, 701 F.2d at 106.
3. See, e.g. In re Hugger, 2019 WL 1594017, at *5 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Apr. 5, 2019) (affirming bankruptcy court's denial of the debtor's request to vacate his discharge and dismiss his case because the debtor filed his case too soon to discharge tax debt).
4. Because the Court is dismissing the remainder of the Complaint, the Court need not address the balance of Mr. Yaspan's arguments. To the extent Mr. Yaspan's arguments mirror his arguments in response to the Trustee's complaint in the Trustee Action, Mr. Yaspan may refer to the Trustee Action Ruling for the Court's assessment of those arguments, including the Court's reasoning as to why ruling on Mr. Yaspan's unclean hands theory is premature.

#2.00 Order to show cause why this case should not be converted to one under chapter 7

fr. 6/11/20

Amended order entered doc # 230

Docket 217

Tentative Ruling:

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 1112(b)(1) and (b)(4)(A), (b)(4)(I) and (b)(4)(P), the Court will dismiss this case.

On June 15, 2020, the Court entered an Amended Order to Show Cause Why this Case Should Not Be Dismissed or Converted to One Under Chapter 7 (the "Order") [doc. 230]. Pursuant to the Order, the debtor was to file a response by June 25, 2020. The debtor did not timely file any such response.

Based upon the Court's review of the debtor's schedules of assets and liabilities and statement of financial affairs, filed on March 20, 2018, and the record in this case, the Court concludes that it is in the best interest of creditors and the estate to dismiss this case. During the pendency of the debtor's chapter 11 case, the debtor sold the estate's interest in the three real properties identified in his schedule A/B [docs. 126 and 135].

In his schedule A/B, the debtor also indicated interests in two entities, Hartwell Global, Inc. ("Hartwell") and Integrated Dynamic Solutions, Inc. ("IDS"). Hartwell appears to have significant tax debt, and some of that debt has attached to the debtor personally [doc. 227, Declaration of Nasrollah Gashtili, ¶ 6]. IDS has been in its own chapter 11 bankruptcy case, 1:18-bk-12156-VK, which the Court intends to convert to one under chapter 7. Accordingly, there does not appear to be sufficient assets for a chapter 7 trustee to administer for the benefit of creditors.

The Court will prepare the order.

#4.00 Order to show cause why this case should not be dismissed of converted to one under chapter 7

fr. 6/11/20

Docket 252

Tentative Ruling from June 11, 2020

In light of the representations made in the debtor's response [doc. 255] to the Order to Show Cause Why this Case Should not be Dismissed or Converted to One under Chapter 7 [doc. 252], and in the debtor's chapter 11 case status report filed on May 7, 2020, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 1112(b)(1) and (b)(4)(A), the Court will convert this case to one under chapter 7.

Although the debtor represents that its interest in Integrated Dynamic Solutions India Pvt. Ltd. and its causes of action against Automated Systems America, Inc. have little to no value, a chapter 7 trustee should make that determination. Further, there may be avoidance actions that the chapter 7 trustee appropriately could pursue. Accordingly, it appears to be in the best interests of creditors and the estate to convert this case to one under chapter 7.

The Court will prepare the order.

#8.00 Creditor Jacqueline Stein's objection to claim of homestead exemption

fr. 6/9/20

Docket 35

Tentative Ruling:

Overrule, based on the debtor's amended claim of exemption in the subject real property.

I. BACKGROUND

On January 22, 2020, Shalva Tikva ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. The Court has since converted Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [doc. 44]. In his schedule A/B, Debtor identified a fee simple interest in real property located at 21801 San Miguel Street, Los Angeles, CA 91364 (the "Property"). In his schedule C, Debtor claimed a homestead exemption in the Property pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 704.730.

On May 12, 2020, creditor Jacqueline Stein filed an objection to Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption (the "Objection") [doc. 35]. In the Objection, Ms. Stein contends that Debtor is not entitled to a homestead exemption under CCP § 704.730 because Debtor does not reside at the Property. Ms. Stein also asserts Debtor is not entitled to claim an exemption because he acted in bad faith.

On June 14, 2020, Debtor filed an amended schedule C [doc. 54]. In the amended schedule C, Debtor claimed a $26,775 exemption in the Property under CCP § 703.140(b)(5).

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to CCP § 703.140(b)(5), a debtor may claim an exemption in "[t]he debtor's aggregate interest, not to exceed in value [$1,550] plus any unused amount of the exemption provided under paragraph (1), in any property." CCP § 703.140(b)(1), in turn, allows debtors to claim an exemption in "[t]he debtor's aggregate interest, not to exceed [$29,275] in value, in real property or personal property that the debtor or a dependent of the debtor uses as a residence...." [FN1].

CCP § 703.140(b)(5) does not require that a debtor reside in the real property in order to claim any real property as exempt under that section. In re Reaves, 256 B.R. 306, 313 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2000). If the debtor does not claim any exemptions under CCP § 703.140(b)(1), then the "unused amount" of that exemption is equal to the entire exemption amount. Id.; see also In re Garcia, 709 F.3d 861, 864 (9th Cir. 2013) (holding that CCP § 703.140(b)(1) and (b)(5) combine to allow a debtor to exempt the total set forth in both subsections in "any property" and emphasizing the broad reach of the word "any").

After Ms. Stein filed the Objection, Debtor amended his schedule C to claim an exemption in the Property under CCP § 703.140(b)(5) instead of CCP § 704.730. Debtor's amendment renders the Objection moot. Moreover, Debtor does not need to reside at the Property to claim an exemption in the Property under CCP § 703.140(b)(5). Finally, bankruptcy courts are not empowered to disallow a debtor's claim of exemption on the basis of bad faith. See Law v. Siegel, 134 S. Ct. 1188, 1196-97, 188 L. Ed. 2d 146 (2014).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will overrule the Objection.

The Court will prepare the order.

fr. 4/14/20; 5/5/20; 6/9/20

Docket 65

Tentative Ruling:

The Court intends to set an evidentiary hearing on August 21, 2020 at 10:00 a.m. The evidentiary hearing will be held using ZoomGov, which provides a live video connection with the Court. Consequently, the parties will not appear in person, in the courtroom.

The parties must identify any witnesses they intend to call other than creditor and debtor.

The Court will prepare an order setting the evidentiary hearing, which also will set forth the related appearance procedures.

Tentative Ruling from June 9, 2020

The Court will continue this hearing to July 14, 2020 at 11:00 a.m., to discuss the date for setting an evidentiary hearing, potentially through the use of video appearance technology.

I. BACKGROUND

On November 21, 2014, Nabiollah Morovati (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. In his schedule F, the Debtor listed a nonpriority unsecured claim in favor of Sukari Hayes ("Creditor") in the amount of $17,932.97 [doc. 1]. The Debtor indicated that he incurred this debt on October 17, 2014 and that it was based on an employment wage claim. The Debtor listed the Creditor's address as:

Sukari Hayes
c/o Khashayar Eshragi, Esq.
520 S. Grand Avenue

The Debtor also listed Creditor at this address in his master mailing list [doc. 1]. In his statement of financial affairs [doc. 1], the Debtor indicated that, within the year preceding the filing of her petition, he was a party to a prepetition nonbankruptcy action between the Debtor and Creditor. The Debtor did not indicate the status or disposition of the nonbankruptcy action.

On November 25, 2014, January 29, 2015 and April 27, 2015, the Debtor served notices of the 11 U.S.C. § 341(a) meeting of creditors and hearing on confirmation of chapter 13 plan, with a copy of the Debtor's chapter 13 plan, on Creditor at the address listed above [docs. 8, 15 and 24]. Creditor did not file an objection to the Debtor's chapter 13 plan. On December 1, 2015, the Court entered an order confirming the Debtor's chapter 13 plan [doc. 50].

Throughout the pendency of the Debtor's bankruptcy case, notices were being sent to Creditor at the address listed above. On November 28, 2018, Creditor filed a notice of change of address stating that her old address was "Khashayar Eshraghi" and her new address is "Sukari M Hayes, 1310 12th Ave., #201, Los Angeles, California 90019" [doc. 59].

On January 17, 2020, the chapter 13 trustee ("Trustee") filed a Notice of Intent to File Trustee's Final Report and Account, Obtain Discharge of Debtor and Close Case ("Notice") [doc. 64]. The Notice provided that if no objection was filed within 30 days after the date of the Notice, the Court would discharge the Debtor. The Notice further provided that any objection must be accompanied by a notice of the hearing on the objection.

On January 28, 2020, Creditor timely filed the Objection [doc. 65]. On February 26, 2020, the Court entered an order setting the Objection for hearing, and requiring Creditor to provide notice of the hearing and deadline to file a response on the Debtor, the Debtor's attorney and the Trustee [doc. 67]. As a result of improper service, and because Creditor is self-represented, the Court continued the hearing several times [docs. 72 and 76]. On April 10, 2010, the Debtor filed a response to the Objection (the "Response") [doc. 71].

In the Objection, Creditor objects to the closing of the Debtor's case because she was "not informed to appear in bankruptcy court in 2015." This assertion is not supported by a declaration.

Chapter 13

In the Response, the Debtor states that notice of the Debtor's chapter 13 filing was mailed to Creditor in care of the attorney who represented Creditor and assisted her in obtaining a judgment against the Debtor (the "Judgment"). Accordingly, the Debtor contends that serving Creditor at her attorney's address was proper under the circumstances. In his declaration, the Debtor's attorney states that Creditor's attorney's address was the only valid address for Creditor known to either he or the Debtor.

II. DISCUSSION

"A debtor who completes his payments under a Chapter 13 plan is entitled to a broad discharge of 'all debts provided for by the plan or disallowed under section 502 of [the Bankruptcy Code]....'" Ellett v. Stanislaus, 506 F.3d 774, 777 (9th Cir. 2007) (quoting 11 U.S.C. § 1328(a)). "[T]he phrase 'provided for' in section 1328(a) simply requires that for a claim to become dischargeable the plan must 'make a provision for' it, i.e., deal with it or refer to it." Id. (quoting Matter of Gregory, 705 F.2d 1118, 1122 (9th Cir. 1983)).

"[A] claim cannot be considered to have been provided for by the plan if a creditor does not receive proper notice of the proceedings." Id. (quoting In re Hairopoulos, 118 F.3d 1240, 1244 (8th Cir. 1997)) (emphasis added). "The statutory command for notice embodies a basic principle of justice—that a reasonable opportunity to be heard must precede judicial denial of a party's claimed rights." Id. (quoting City of New York v. New York, N.H. & H.R. Co., 344 U.S. 293, 297, 73 S.Ct. 299, 97 L.Ed. 333 (1953)).

"Courts have found that generally 'mailing a notice to a party's last-known address is 'reasonably calculated' to provide actual notice.'" In re Hernandez, No. 2:12-BK-47099-RK, 2017 WL 6033409, at *5 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. Dec. 5, 2017) (quoting In re Freedom Communications Holdings, Inc., 472 B.R. 257, 262 (Bankr. D. Del. 2012)). However, "[i]t is not enough merely to rely on one's own knowledge of a creditor's address." In re Fauchier, 71 B.R. 212, 215 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1987).

In order for a debt to be duly listed, the debtor must state the name and address of the creditor. . . . The burden is on the debtors to use reasonable diligence in completing their schedules and lists. . . . If a creditor proves that an address is incorrect, the debtor must justify the inaccuracy in preparing his schedules. . . . An incorrect or careless omission is not enough.

Id. (citations omitted). See also In re Haga, 131 B.R. 320, 327 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1991) (noting that "the debtor has the burden to show that the creditor ... had notice or actual knowledge of the case in time to file a proof of claim and request for a determination of dischargeability").

Here, the issue is whether the Debtor provided proper notice of his bankruptcy case to Creditor by serving Creditor care of her state court counsel. In the Reply, the Debtor contends that Creditor's state court counsel had a duty to provide notice to his client of all matters affecting her case, including the judgment she obtained against the Debtor. However, case law states otherwise.

"An attorney who has represented a creditor in state court proceedings does not, by virtue of that relationship alone, represent the creditor with respect to that same debt in a federal bankruptcy proceeding. Fauchier, 71 B.R. at 215 (collecting cases). "[O]rdinarily, an attorney-client relationship is terminated once representation is completed." In re Perle, 725 F.3d 1023, 1027 (9th Cir. 2013) (quoting Damron v. Herzog, 67 F.3d 211, 213 (9th Cir.1995)). "And, generally speaking, a lawyer's authority to represent a client ends 'because the lawyer has completed the contemplated services.'" Id. (quoting Restatement (Third) of the Law Governing Lawyers § 31 (2000)). Further, "[a]n attorney owes limited duties to a former client, and keeping the former client apprised of the status of ongoing litigation does not appear to be one of them."

In re: CYNTHIA CREWS, Debtor. CYNTHIA M. QUINTANILLA, Plaintiff, v. CARL M. CREWS, Defendant., No. 11-45982 CN, 2020 WL 1518534, at *7 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2020).

Nevertheless, there are instances when an attorney's knowledge may be imputed to the attorney's client. If the creditor's attorney was actively representing the creditor to enforce claims against the debtor, at the time that notice of the bankruptcy was given to that attorney, the creditor's attorney's knowledge of a debtor's bankruptcy proceeding may be imputed to the creditor. See, e.g., Perle, 725 F.3d at 1027; Lompa

v. Price, 871 F.2d 97 (9th Cir. 1989); Maldonado v. Ramirez, 757 F.2d 48, 51 (3d Cir. 1985); Hernandez, 2017 WL 6033409, at *4; Musacco v. Walden, No. CIV 13-1053 MV/KBM, 2016 WL 9777182, at *4 (D.N.M. June 17, 2016). Although Price, Perle, and Hernandez are in the context of chapter 7 cases, they are instructive. See Ellett, 506 F.3d at 778.

In Price, prepetition, the debtor and creditor were engaged in a contract dispute in state court. Price, 871 F.2d at 97. Prior to the state court suit being resolved, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition. Id. The debtor did not list the creditor in his schedules or statements. Id. However, approximately two months prior to the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint, the debtor's counsel sent the creditor's counsel a notice that the state court lawsuit would be stayed because of the debtor's bankruptcy case. Id. at 97-98. The notice did not contain any deadline dates. Id. at 98. After the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint passed, the creditor filed a motion to file a late complaint. Id. The bankruptcy court granted the motion, and the debtor appealed to the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the Ninth Circuit ("BAP"). Id. The BAP reversed the bankruptcy court's ruling, and held that notice to the creditor's counsel constituted notice to the creditor. Id. The creditor appealed to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the BAP's ruling. Id. at 99. In doing so, the Court of Appeals stated:

Counsel for the [the creditor] in the present appeal was given actual notice of the bankruptcy proceedings in time to file a complaint, or at least to file a timely motion for an extension of time. At that time he was pursuing the same claim in state court that [the creditor] now seeks to have declared nondischargeable. We hold that under these circumstances notice to counsel constituted notice to [the creditor]. See Maldonado v. Ramirez, 37 B.R. 219, 221 (D.V.I.1984) (notice to a creditor's attorney of a bankruptcy filing is usually sufficient if the attorney received knowledge of it while representing his client in enforcing a claim against the bankrupt) (citing 3 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 523.15(5)(c) (15th ed. 1983)), rev'd on other grounds, 757 F.2d 48, 51 (3d Cir.1985) (agreeing with premise, but finding the evidence insufficient to indicate that counsel was enforcing the claim for the client when notice was received); In re Fulton, 3 B.R. 600, 603-04 (Bankr.E.D.Mich.1980)

(attorney who represents client in action affected by bankruptcy proceeding is impliedly authorized to receive notice on client's behalf regarding the action).

Id.

In Perle, among the debtor's outstanding debts was an arbitration award to the creditor. Perle, 725 F.3d at 1025. The award was made three years prior to the debtor filing his petition. Id. During the arbitration proceedings, the creditor was represented by counsel, Russo. Id. At the time of the debtor filing his petition, Russo did not represent the creditor with regard to enforcement or collection of the arbitration award, but did represent the creditor on other matters. Id. at 1025-26. During the debtor's bankruptcy case, Russo, on behalf of a different client, filed a nondischargeability complaint against the debtor. Id. at 1026. Russo never informed the creditor of the debtor's bankruptcy filing. Id. Four years after he received a discharge, the creditor filed a motion to reopen the debtor's case to challenge dischargeability of the arbitration award. Id. The bankruptcy court granted the motion, and the arbitration award was found to be nondischargeable. Id. The debtor appealed, arguing, among other things, that even though the arbitration award is of the type that is nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(3) and (a)(6), that the creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the debtor's bankruptcy case by virtue of Russo's knowledge. Id.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals declined to impute Russo's knowledge of the debtor's bankruptcy filing to the creditor. In doing so, the Court of Appeals stated:

Here, the "contemplated services" that Russo performed for [the creditor] consisted of handling the arbitration. Once the arbitration ended, Russo no longer represented [the creditor] with respect to it. He did continue to handle other unrelated matters for [the creditor] but this is of little significance considering that a lawyer's representation of a client is subject-matter specific.

Additionally, Russo learned of [the debtor's] bankruptcy on behalf of a different client, Corsair, who was contesting the dischargeability of its own debt. This distinguishes [the debtor's] case from two cases on which he relies, Lompa v. Price (In re: Price), 871 F.2d 97 (9th Cir.1989) and In re Linzer, 264 B.R. 243 (Bankr.E.D.N.Y.2001). In both of those cases, the lawyer who received notice of the debtor's bankruptcy was still representing the creditor in relation to the debt that was owed. Here, in contrast, Russo received notice of [the debtor's] bankruptcy as Corsair's counsel, not as [the creditor's].

Perle, 725 F.3d at 1027–28 (emphasis added).

In Hernandez, the debtor listed two addresses, both of which were incorrect, for the creditors in his schedules. Hernandez, 2017 WL 6033409, at *3. One of the addresses was the creditors' attorney. Id. The debtor contended that service to the creditors at their attorney's address was proper. Id. at *4. The bankruptcy court disagreed, stating:

Unlike the situation in Lompa v. Price and In re Price, notice to Creditors' attorney did not constitute proper notice here where (1) there is no evidence that shows the attorney was actively representing the creditors to enforce claims against the debtor at the time that notice of the bankruptcy was given to the attorney, and (2) the notice to Creditors at the Attorney Address did not actually list the attorney's name and relationship to Creditors.

Debtor has not shown by clear and convincing evidence that Creditors' former attorney was enforcing a claim against the Debtor at the time notice was sent to attorney. Although Creditors state in their declaration that "[the Attorney Address] belongs to David Greenberg, who was Creditors' counsel at the time," Declaration of Jaime Farias, ECF 42 at 7, ¶ 3, this statement as well as the other evidence in this case do not demonstrate that Mr. Greenberg was representing Creditors in an action against Debtor at that time Mr. Greenberg allegedly received notice of the bankruptcy case. Indeed, the evidence in the record suggests the opposite: that the Creditors did not have any pending litigation claims against Debtor at the time notice of the bankruptcy case was sent out to the attorney. Declaration of Jaime Farias, ECF 42 at 7–8, ¶¶ 3–4. Mr. Farias's testimony that "[h]ad we been given proper notice of Debtor's bankruptcy, we would have commenced an adversary proceeding against the Debtor for non-dischargeability based on fraud and willful malicious injury by the Debtor" makes sense and is credible, a further indication that they did not have prior actual notice of Debtor's bankruptcy case.

Id. (emphasis in original).

Here, at this point, neither party has presented enough evidence for the Court to determine whether Creditor received sufficient notice for the Debtor's chapter 13 plan to have provided for the Creditor's claim. Creditor has not provided evidence of when she received notice of the Debtor's bankruptcy case, and how she became aware of the Debtor's bankruptcy case. In 2018, Creditor filed a notice of change of address - so she certainly was aware of the Debtor's bankruptcy case by then. Creditor also has not provided evidence of whether the attorney who assisted her, in obtaining the Judgment, had stopped representing her, for the collection of the Judgment, by the date that the Debtor mailed notices regarding the bankruptcy case to that attorney.

Similar to Hernandez, the Debtor has not provided evidence that Creditor's attorney was actively representing Creditor, with respect to collection of the Judgment, when notice of the bankruptcy case was sent to the attorney. Nor has the Debtor provided evidence that serving Creditor at her attorney's address was proper under the circumstances. See In re Schicke, 290 B.R. 792, 805 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. 2003), aff'd, 97 F. App'x 249 (10th Cir. 2004) (concluding that service to former attorney's address was proper when corporation changed its name, and the corporation's address did not appear in any documents in the state court action between the parties). Although the Debtor's attorney contends this was the only valid address known to him or the Debtor, because the Judgment is for a wage claim, presumably, the Debtor would have been in possession of personnel records which would contain Creditor's personal address. Consequently, the Debtor has not yet provided a sufficient explanation of why he did not serve Creditor at her last known address.

In order to determine whether the Creditor received sufficient notice, such that the chapter 13 plan provides for the claim, the Court will hold an evidentiary hearing, at which testimony may be provided regarding the issues set forth above.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will continue this hearing to July 14, 2020 at 11:00 a.m., to discuss the date for setting an evidentiary hearing, potentially through the use of video appearance technology.

#1.00 Debtor's opposition to declaration of Specialized Loan Servicing, LLC
Re: default under adequate protection order; request for entry of order granting relief from stay

fr. 6/10/20

Docket 62

Tentative Ruling:

On June 25, 2020, the debtor filed a supplemental response [doc. 72]. In that response, the debtor indicates that she is current on her deed of trust payments and arrears payments under the stipulation for adequate protection [doc. 54]. The debtor attached images of cashier's checks in the aggregate amount of $20,826.43, which were mailed to the lender on June 24, 2020 [doc. 72, Exh. A]. On June 25, 2020, the debtor's counsel received delivery confirmation of the cashier's checks to lender [doc. 72, Exh. B].

Has the lender received these cashier's checks, and credited the debtor's account? If so, does the lender still contend that the debtor is delinquent on her deed of trust payments and arrears payments?

On January 29, 2015, the debtor filed a chapter 13 petition. On September 27, 2019, The Bank of America National Association ("Creditor") filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay as to the real property located at 9749 Quakertown Avenue, Chatsworth, California 91311 (the "Property") [doc. 48]. On December 3, 2019, Creditor and the debtor filed a stipulation for adequate protection as to the Property (the "Stipulation") [doc. 54]. On the same day, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 56].

Under the terms of the Stipulation, the debtor must make regular monthly deed of trust payments in the amount of $2,798.22 commencing on December 1, 2019 ("Deed of Trust Payments"). The debtor also must cure the postpetition arrears of $14,432.32 in equal monthly installments of $2,405.39 each commencing on December 15, 2019 and continuing through April 15, 2020, and by paying a lump sum in the amount of $2,405.37 by May 15, 2020 ("Arrears Payments").

On April 27, 2020, Creditor filed a Declaration re: Default Under Adequate Protection Order (the "Default Declaration") [doc. 62]. In the Default Declaration, Creditor alleges that the debtor failed to make Deed of Trust Payments for February 2020, March 2020 and April 2020 and Arrears Payments for February 2020 and March 2020, totaling $13,205.44. In the Default Declaration, Creditor attached a notice of default letter addressed to the debtor's counsel and the debtor and the post Stipulation payment history.

On May 6, 2020, the debtor filed an opposition to the Default Declaration (the "Opposition") [doc. 64]. In the Opposition, the debtor claims that she had cured the delinquency before the Default Declaration was filed with the Court and that she is current with Creditor. The debtor also disputes Creditor's accounting of her payments.

The debtor attached two types of proof of payment in support of her position. The first type is in the form of images of checks showing that the debtor made the following payments: (a) $8,001.83 in January 2020 [Exh. B]; (b) $10,407.22 in March 2020 [Exh. C]; and (c) $2,405.39 in April 2020 [Exh. D]. The second type is in the form of images showing proof of delivery by the mail carriers of the checks [Exhs. B, C and D].

Pursuant to the Stipulation, from December 1, 2019 to April 1, 2020, the debtor should have made payments to Creditor in the aggregate amount of $23,612.66. Based on the debtor's evidence in the Opposition, the debtor has made payments to Creditor in the aggregate amount of $20,814.44. Accordingly, the debtor is deficient on payments under the Stipulation in the amount of $2,798.22, or one Deed of Trust Payment.

On May 27, 2020, Creditor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 69]. In the Reply, Creditor states that the payments reflected in the images of the checks for January 2020 and April 2020 were received and credited, but Creditor's records do not show the March 2020 payment being applied to the account. Even if Creditor receives the check written in March 2020, the debtor apparently still would be missing one Deed of Trust Payment.

#19.00 Order to show cause re: remand and status conference of removed proceeding

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will not remand this matter to state court.

I. BACKGROUND

On December 13, 2019, FR LLC ("FR") filed a complaint in state court against Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor"), Dmitri Ludkovski, Ruvyn Feygenberg, Michael Leizerovitz and Sensible Consulting and Management, Inc. (collectively, "Defendants"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 1. Through the state court complaint, FR asserted claims for conversion, negligent bailment, unjust enrichment and quiet title. Id. In relevant part, FR alleged—

In December 2018, Defendants approached FR's assignor to obtain a $119,000 loan secured by the real property located at 13854 Albers Street, Sherman Oaks, CA 91401 (the "Property"). Defendants promised they would make monthly interest payments from February 2019 through July 2019, followed by a balloon payment of the total amount in July 2019.

Defendants also promised that, upon sale of the Property, FR would receive a proportional share of profits. As of the date FR filed the state court complaint, FR's assignor has not been provided the note and deed of trust and has not received any interest payments.

Id. On these allegations, FR prays for, among other relief, a money judgment, a declaration regarding FR's interest in the Property and sale of the Property with proceeds distributed to FR. Id. FR also requested a jury trial. Id. On December 31, 2019, FR filed a Notice of Pendency of Action (the "Lis Pendens"). Id.

On June 5, 2020, Debtor removed the state court action to this Court. On June 8, 2020, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause re: Remand (the "OSC"), instructing the parties to file brief in support of or in opposition to the removal [doc. 2]. On June 19, 2020, the nondebtor defendants filed a statement of consent to the removal [doc. 7].

On July 2, 2020, FR filed a brief requesting remand of this action to state court (the "FR Brief") [doc. 8]. In the FR Brief, FR argues that abstention is mandatory because this action is noncore. FR also asserts that, even if abstention is not mandatory, the Court should remand this action because FR has requested a jury trial and Debtor and the other Defendants are engaging in dishonesty and gamesmanship. On July 7, 2020, Debtor filed a brief opposing remand of this action [doc. 9]. On July 8, 2020, the remaining Defendants filed a brief opposing remand of this matter [doc. 10].

II. ANALYSIS

A. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Removal of state court actions to federal district court is governed by 28 U.S.C. §§ 1441 – 1455. Removal and remand of actions related to bankruptcy cases is governed by § 1452.

- (a) A party may remove any claim or cause of action in a civil action . . . to the district court for the district where such civil action is pending, if such district court has jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under section 1334 of this title.
- (b) The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground. . . .

28 U.S.C. § 1452.

As set forth in § 1452, removal to a bankruptcy court requires that the court have jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under 28 U.S.C. § 1334. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b), with regard to bankruptcy cases and proceedings, provides that:

Chapter 11

Except as provided by subsection (e)(2) and notwithstanding any Act of Congress that confers exclusive jurisdiction on a court or courts other than the district courts, the district courts shall have original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11.

1. Arising Under Jurisdiction

"A matter arises under the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010).

2. Arising In Jurisdiction

"A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id.

Matters that "arise under or in Title 11 are deemed to be 'core' proceedings" In re Harris Pine Mills, 44 F.3d 1431, 1435 (9th Cir. 1995). Title 28, United States Code, section 157(b)(2) sets out a non-exclusive list of core proceedings, including "matters concerning the administration of the estate," "allowance or disallowance of claims," "objections to discharges," "motions to terminate, annul, or modify the automatic stay," and "confirmation of plans." Bankruptcy courts have the authority to hear and enter final judgments in "all core proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in a case under title 11" 28 U.S.C. § 157\(b\)\(1\); Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 475-76, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 2604, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011).

3. Related to Jurisdiction

Bankruptcy courts also have jurisdiction over proceedings that are "related to" a bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); In re Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d 1189, 1193 (9th Cir. 2005). A proceeding is "related to" a bankruptcy case if:

[T]he outcome of the proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. Thus, the proceeding need not necessarily be against the debtor or against the debtor's property. An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate.

Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d at 1193 (quoting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984) (emphasis omitted)).

"[C]ivil proceedings are not within 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b)'s grant of jurisdiction if they... 'are so tangential to the title 11 case or the result of which would have so little impact on the administration of the title 11 case... Put another way, litigation that would not have an impact upon the administration of the bankruptcy case, or on property of the estate, or on the distribution to creditors, cannot find a home in the district court based on the court's bankruptcy jurisdiction.'" In re Wisdom, 2015 WL 2128830, at *10 (Bankr. D. Idaho May 5, 2015) (quoting 1 Collier on Bankruptcy, ¶ 3.01[3][e][v] (Alan N. Resnick & Henry J. Sommer eds., 16th ed. 2014)).

Here, at a minimum, the Court has "related to" jurisdiction over this matter. FR contends that it made a loan which Debtor used to acquire the Property, and it is entitled to an interest in the Property, or otherwise to receive repayment of its putative loan. FR's claim for repayment will significantly impact administration of the estate; Debtor intends to liquidate the Property for distribution to creditors, and FR's alleged right to any sale proceeds, and its claim against property of the estate, will diminish the pool of funds for other creditors. Consequently, this Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action.

B. Mandatory Abstention

FR asserts that the Court is required to remand this matter under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2). However, 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) does not apply to removed proceedings. See In re Lazar, 237 F.3d 967, 981 (9th Cir. 2001). Nevertheless, even if 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) applied to this proceeding, all of the following elements would have to be met to mandate abstention—

- (1) A timely motion;
- (2) a purely state law question;
- (3) a non-core proceeding § 157(c)(1); (4) a lack of independent federal jurisdiction absent the petition under Title 11; (5) that an action is commenced in a state court; (6) the state court action may be timely adjudicated; (7) a state forum of appropriate jurisdiction exists.

In re Gen. Carriers Corp., 258 B.R. 181, 189 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001).

Here, FR has not demonstrated that the state court action may be timely adjudicated. See In re First All. Mortgage Co., 269 B.R. 449, 455 (C.D. Cal. 2001) ("[T]he party moving for abstention will bear the burden of demonstrating that a state court action can be timely adjudicated."). As a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, California courts temporarily closed and, upon reopening, will face a significant backlog of cases. This action did not progress far in state court; in fact, Debtor contends it has not been served with the complaint.

In contrast, this Court has remained open for telephonic and video hearings. The Court continues to calendar matters on a regular basis and is able to adjudicate this matter in a timely fashion. See In re Smith, 389 B.R. 902, 921 n.18 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2008) (noting that "there can be no timely adjudication" where the bankruptcy court can adjudicate the matter before the state court). Given that FR has not met its burden of proving that the state court can adjudicate this matter prior to this Court, FR has not satisfied one of the elements of mandatory abstention, and this Court is not obligated to abstain from this proceeding.

C. Remand

"Bankruptcy courts have broad discretion to remand cases over which they otherwise have jurisdiction on any equitable ground." In re Enron Corp., 296 B.R. 505, 508 (C.D. Cal. 2003). 28 U.S.C. § 1452(b) provides, in pertinent part: "The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground." "[E]ven where federal jurisdiction attaches in actions 'related to' bankruptcy proceedings, Congress has explicitly provided for courts to find that those matters are more properly adjudicated in state court." Parke v. Cardsystem Solutions, Inc., 2006 WL 2917604 (N.D. Cal. October 11, 2006) (quoting Williams v. Shell Oil Co., 169 B.R. 684, 690 (S.D. Cal. 1994)).

Chapter 11

Courts generally consider up to fourteen factors in deciding whether to remand a case to state court. Enron, 296 B.R. at 508. Factors courts should consider in deciding whether to remand are:

- (1) the effect or lack thereof on the efficient administration of the estate if the Court recommends [remand or] abstention;
- (2) extent to which state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues;
- (3) difficult or unsettled nature of applicable law;
- (4) presence of related proceeding commenced in state court or other nonbankruptcy proceeding;
- (5) jurisdictional basis, if any, other than [section] 1334;
- (6) degree of relatedness or remoteness of proceeding to main bankruptcy case;
- (7) the substance rather than the form of an asserted core proceeding;
- (8) the feasibility of severing state law claims from core bankruptcy matters to allow judgments to be entered in state court with enforcement left to the bankruptcy court;
- (9) the burden on the bankruptcy court's docket;
- (10) the likelihood that the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy court involves forum shopping by one of the parties;
- (11) the existence of a right to a jury trial;
- (12) the presence in the proceeding of nondebtor parties;
- (13) comity; and
- (14) the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action.

Id., 508 n.2; see also In re Cytodyn of New Mexico, Inc., 374 B.R. 733, 738 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2007).

Here, the factors weigh against remanding this action. As noted above, this action will have a significant impact on administration of the estate. The outcome of this action will dictate the amount of funds available for distribution to creditors. Moreover, for this reason, there is a notable degree of relatedness to the main bankruptcy case. In addition, this action will not burden the bankruptcy court's docket; in fact, it is much more efficient for this Court to adjudicate the various disputes related to the Property in one forum instead of have multiple actions related to the Property proceed in state court.

There also is no evidence of forum shopping. That Debtor decided to remove the proceeding is not, in and of itself, evidence of forum shopping. Because the state court action had not progressed much prior to removal, there is no indication that Debtor removed the action to avoid an impending decision by the state court. Further, although the complaint involves state law causes of action, the causes of action are neither difficult nor unsettled and this Court routinely adjudicates such issues.

While there are nondebtor parties involved, with the exception of FR, all remaining nondebtor parties have filed a statement consenting to entry of a final judgment by this Court. Finally, the parties may be prejudiced if the Court remands this action because resolution of this action likely will be delayed in state court. The delay is especially harmful with the shortened deadlines associated with subchapter V chapter 11 cases.

The parties dispute whether the causes of action asserted by FR are "core." Although the issues are statutorily core under 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(A), (B) and (K), the parties have not briefed whether the claims are constitutionally core under Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011). [FN1]. Nevertheless, even if the claims are noncore under Stern, the Court "can issue final rulings on pretrial matters, including claim-dispositive motions, that do not require factual findings." In re AWTR Liquidation Inc., 547 B.R. 831, 839 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2016). As to factual findings, whether by motion for summary judgment or trial, the Court may submit proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law to the District Court. Exec. Benefits Ins. Agency v. Arkison, 573 U.S. 25, 31, 134 S.Ct. 2165, 2170, 189 L.Ed.2d 83 (2014).

Finally, FR asserts it has a right to a jury trial. Assuming FR has a right to a jury trial, FR did not timely preserve its right to a jury trial after removal of the proceeding. Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 9027-1(e) ("Within 14 days after service of the notice of removal, a party must comply with LBR 9015-2 to preserve any right to a trial by jury."); see also LBR 9015-2(b) (setting forth requirements for demanding a jury trial). Nevertheless, the parties may consent to a jury trial (and/or entry of a final judgment) before this Court. Wellness Int'l Network, Ltd. v. Sharif, 575 U.S. 665, 135 S.Ct. 1932, 1943, 191 L.Ed.2d 911 (2015). Otherwise, assuming this matter is set to proceed to trial, any nonconsenting party may move to withdraw the reference. Although a submission to the District Court of proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law or a withdrawal of the reference for a jury trial may cause a slight delay, any such delay is unlikely to surpass the delays expected in state court.

FR's additional contentions are irrelevant to whether the Court should remand this matter. FR alleges that Debtor has engaged in dishonest conduct. However, this is not cause for remand; this Court is capable of scrutinizing the conduct of parties that appear before it. FR also discusses the conduct of Mr. Sands. However, Mr. Sands is not a party to this action, and the discussion about him has no bearing on the issues before this Court, i.e., remand and abstention. In light of the analysis of the factors above, the Court will not remand this matter to state court.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will discharge the OSC and will not remand this matter to state court.

The Court also will set an initial status conference for 1:30 p.m. on August 19, 2020. Pursuant to LBR 7016-1(a), the parties must file a joint status report no later than August 5, 2020.

The Court will discharge the OSC. Plaintiff must submit a scheduling order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. FR misinterprets Matter of Pester Refining Co., 66 B.R. 801 (Bankr. S.D. Iowa). There, based on the following facts, the court held that a conversion claim was core: (A) the alleged conversion occurred after the bankruptcy petition had been filed, and (2) the rights being asserted by the alleged wrongdoers were based upon a prepetition debt owed by a debtor in bankruptcy. The court did not hold that these findings are required for a court to deem a conversion claim core. In any event, Pester Refining is an out-of-circuit case from over 30 years ago, and the United States Supreme Court has since provided additional guidance on the nature of core claims.

#22.00 Defendant Shobert Vartan's motion to dismiss plaintiff Lester Lewis' adversary complaint pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. Rule 12(b)(6)

fr. 7/8/20

Docket 10

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On December 18, 2019, Shobert Vartan ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On May 7, 2020, Lester Lewis ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint against Defendant (the "Complaint"), seeking nondischargeability of the debt owed to him pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6). In the Complaint, Plaintiff alleges:

Defendant is in the business of making, brokering, arranging and promoting "hard money" loans. Such loans are commonly made to borrowers who are in severe financial distress or possess limited financial resources and sophistication. Defendant knew or should have known that many of his prospective customers, including Plaintiff, are the subject of elder abuse financial predation and that many of the secured loans Defendant made, brokered, arranged and promoted would likely result in foreclosure and the loss of borrowers' residences and life savings.

During the events alleged in the Complaint, Plaintiff was 68 years old. In 2017, Plaintiff received a loan (the "Loan") after consulting with Defendant. The Loan was secured by the Plaintiff's home located in Compton, California. Prior to receiving the Loan, Plaintiff's home was valued at approximately $350,000 with two encumbrances: (1) a $35,000 note secured by a deed of trust owed to the Plaintiff's brother and (2) a purchase mortgage with principal of $79,600 with 10.5% annual interest. Plaintiff's monthly mortgage payment was approximately $754.

In February 2017, Plaintiff met with Defendant. Plaintiff told Defendant about the terms of his current loan. Plaintiff told Defendant he wanted to refinance in order to do home repairs, reduce his interest rate to 3% or 4%, reduce his monthly payments, pay off the $35,000 note and take out $10,000 to $20,000 cash. Defendant told Plaintiff he would begin the loan application process. Additionally, Defendant told Plaintiff he thought he could arrange a loan at 3% interest and assigned his colleague, Daniel David Reitberg, to work with Plaintiff and arrange details of the Loan.

Defendant later told Plaintiff that Plaintiff had been approved for a loan and that escrow for the Loan would close on March 27, 2017. Defendant never provided Plaintiff with complete written documentation for the Loan, including any estimates of costs or loan disclosure statements. Defendant never obtained Plaintiff's signature or consent to any complete loan documents.

In preparation for the Loan, Defendant together with Unicitizens Financial, Inc. ("Unicitizens") and Reitberg sent Triplett Homes, LLC ("Triplett Homes") to Plaintiff's home for an estimate of repairs. Plaintiff never met nor spoke with Triplett Homes nor its representative. Triplett Homes produced an estimate of repairs totaling $18,350. No work was ever authorized by Plaintiff or done on Plaintiff's residence.

In February or March 2017, Defendant prepared fraudulent loan documentation to facilitate a loan which would generate exorbitant fees for the Defendant and others by generating a loan far in excess of the amount desired or intended by Plaintiff and in excess of the amount Plaintiff was capable of repaying. Defendant had Plaintiff sign, initial and place his thumb print on documents missing essential terms such as the interest rate and loan amount. Defendant also completed documents which represented that the Loan was for a business purpose and that Plaintiff rented out his home and did not reside in it. Defendant did not explain the purpose of this documentation to Plaintiff. However, Defendant represented to Plaintiff that Plaintiff would receive an estimate or statement which contained the Loan terms prior to the Loan's completion.

Pursuant to this scheme, Defendant caused Unicitizens and REO Group, Inc. ("REO Group") to each prepare an "Agreement to Procure a Loan & Lender-Borrower Escrow Instructions" which allowed them to control the loan process and which became riders to the Note and Deed of Trust, and purported to make them beneficiaries and owners of a security interest in Plaintiff's home. On February 28, 2017 a Deed of Trust in favor of REO Group as lender and Adenheim, Inc. ("Adenheim") as trustee was executed. The Deed of Trust purported to secure a loan of $180,000 at 12% annual interest, with 23 monthly interest payments of $1,800 and a balloon payment of $181,000 due on April 1, 2019. This document was fraudulently notarized.

At the direction of Defendant, Unicitizens and Rose Escrow, Inc. (a company owned and operated by Defendant's mother) prepared escrow instructions authorizing the distribution of the $180,000 loan proceeds. These distributions included: $17,500 brokerage fee, $997.50 underwriting fee, $997.50 document fee and $997.50 processing fee to Unicitizens; $17,500 brokerage fee, $997.50 underwriting fee, $997.50 document fee and $997.50 processing fee to Adenheim; $18,350 to Triplett Homes; $800 escrow fee to Rose Escrow and $11,000 additional costs of refinancing. The cash remaining to Plaintiff after these disbursements was $404.69.

On March 9, 2017, Defendant, together with Unicitizens, instructed Rose Escrow to close escrow and disburse the above funds. This was done without Plaintiff's knowledge or consent. All funds were disbursed, except for the $18,350 sum to Triplett Homes for repairs never made. On March 12, 2017, Plaintiff called Rose Escrow and instructed it not to disburse funds from the Loan. Plaintiff then learned about the above disbursements. Plaintiff subsequently refinanced his home with another lender to avoid foreclosure. As a proximate result of Defendant's actions, Plaintiff has been damaged by an amount no less than $5 million.

To the Complaint, Plaintiff attached a copy of a complaint he filed against defendant and others in state court; it does not appear the state court has adjudicated the state court complaint.

On May 7, 2020, Defendant filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "Motion") [doc 10], arguing that Plaintiff failed to state a claim for relief. On July 1, 2020, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 17].

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fed. Dep. Ins. Corp. (In re Kubick), 171 B.R. 658, 660 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994).

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986). Further, a court may consider evidence "on which the complaint necessarily relies if: (1) the complaint refers to the document; (2) the document is central to the plaintiff's claim; and (3) no party questions the authenticity of the copy attached to the [Rule] 12(b)(6) motion." Marder v. Lopez, 450 F.3d 445, 448 (9th Cir. 2006) (internal quotation marks omitted). "The court may treat such a document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id. (internal quotation marks omitted).

"A complaint that merely recites statutory language fails to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6)." In re Kubick, 171 B.R. 658, 660 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994). This is because "mere statutory language does not plead facts sufficiently so that they may be answered or denied." Id. "[F]acts must be alleged to sufficiently apprise the defendant of the complaint against him." Id.

Pursuant to Rule 9(b), "[i]n alleging fraud or mistake, a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake. Malice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged...." Neubronner v. Milken, 6 F.3d 666, 671 (9th Cir. 1993). "[M]ere conclusory allegations of fraud are insufficient." Moore v. Kayport Package Exp., Inc., 885 F.2d 531, 540 (9th Cir. 1989).

Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the Plaintiffs must prove the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

In re Weinberg, 410 B.R. 19, 35 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009) (citing In re Slyman, 234 F.3d 1081, 1085 (9th Cir. 2000)).

Plaintiff appears to rest his § 523(a)(2)(A) claim on a fraudulent "scheme" involving Defendant and other entities. However, Plaintiff does not clearly explain Defendant's relationship to the other entities identified in the Complaint. To adequately hold Defendant liable under § 523(a)(2)(A), Plaintiff would have to allege that "(1) the debtor personally commits actual, positive fraud, or (2) the actual fraud of another is imputed to the debtor under partnership/agency principles." In re Tsurukawa, 287 B.R. 515, 525 (9th Cir. 2002).

Nevertheless, Plaintiff does make the following allegations regarding Defendant's actions: (1) Defendant's representation to Plaintiff prior to the loan application process about the possibility of obtaining a loan with a 3% interest rate; and (2) Defendant's failure to inform Plaintiff about the terms of the Loan, which would generate exorbitant fees for Defendant and result in a loan amount far in excess of the amount Plaintiff was capable of repaying. [FN1].

Regarding statements made about the possibility of securing a loan with a 3% interest rate, Plaintiff has not adequately alleged that Defendant made a fraudulent misrepresentation. Plaintiff alleges that Defendant represented he "thought" he could secure a loan at 3% interest. In so stating, Defendant merely expressed an opinion about possible future loan terms. Without additional allegations regarding how reliance on such a statement would result in damages to Plaintiff, Plaintiff has not satisfied the specificity requirement of Rule 9(b) and failed to state a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) on this basis.

However, Plaintiff has adequately stated a claim for relief based on Defendant's alleged omissions. Plaintiff alleges that Defendant omitted material facts, such as the amount of the Loan and interest rate, from the documents presented to Plaintiff. Plaintiff also sufficiently alleges that he justifiably relied upon Defendant's omissions; Plaintiff alleges he is 68 years old and relied on Defendant, a mortgage broker, for information about a home loan. Plaintiff's age, limited financial sophistication and reliance on Defendant for information directly related to Defendant's profession indicate that Plaintiff's reliance was justifiable.

Finally, Plaintiff has adequately alleged damages proximately caused by Defendant's alleged fraudulent omission. Plaintiff alleges significant financial loss. Defendant's failure to disclose the alleged oppressive loan terms was a substantial factor leading to Plaintiff's injury. Financial loss also could be reasonably expected if the Defendant made the alleged fraudulent omission. As such, the Court will not dismiss Plaintiff's claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) based on the alleged omissions.

C. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement, or larceny." In the Complaint, Plaintiff appears to base his § 523(a)(4) claim solely on embezzlement. However, in the Opposition, Plaintiff also mentions larceny.

"Embezzlement" within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) requires three elements: (1) property rightfully in the possession of the non-owner debtor, (2) the non-owner's misappropriation of the property to a use other than that for which it was entrusted, and (3) circumstances indicating fraud. In re Littleton, 942 F.2d 551, 555 (9th Cir. 1991). "The elements of larceny differ only in that a larcenous debtor has come into possession of funds wrongfully." In re Mickens, 312 B.R. 666, 680 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2004).

Plaintiff does not adequately allege embezzlement. Plaintiff alleges Defendant had a role in the disbursement of the Loan. However, Plaintiff does not allege that Defendant was rightfully in possession of any funds or any other property belonging to Plaintiff. As to larceny, the Complaint does not include any allegations that Defendant himself came into possession of any funds. The allegations regarding disbursements of the funds refer to disbursements to other entities. Although Defendant may control these entities, the allegations in the Complaint do not adequately establish any such relationship.

Plaintiff requests leave to amend the Complaint to add allegations regarding fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary duty. The Court will dismiss the § 523(a)(4) claim and allow Plaintiff leave to amend.

D. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6)

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity."

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S.Ct. 974, 140 L.Ed. 2d 90 (1998). In the Ninth Circuit, " § 523(a)(6)'s willful injury requirement is met only when the debtor has a subjective motive to inflict injury or when the debtor believes that injury is substantially certain to result from his own conduct." Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1206 (quoting In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1142 (9th Cir.2002)). injury-producing action.").

Under § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Maliciousness requires (1) a wrongful act; (2) done intentionally; (3) which necessarily causes injury; (4) without just cause or excuse. Id. at 1147. Maliciousness does not require "personal hatred, spite, or ill-will." In re Bammer, 131 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 1997).

Here, Plaintiff makes a claim under § 523(a)(6) based on elder abuse financial predation. Under California law, financial abuse of an elder occurs when a person or entity "takes, secretes, appropriates, obtains or retains real or personal property of an elder for a wrongful use or with intent to defraud, or both." [Cal. Welfare and Inst. Code § 15610.30 (West 2020)]. A person or entity who assists in the foregoing conduct is also liable. Id. A wrongful use occurs when the person or entity knew or should have known that their conduct was likely to be harmful to the elder. Id. The statute defines an elder as any person residing in California 65 years of age or older. [Cal. Welfare and Inst. Code § 15610.27 (West 2020)]. A lender who holds a secured interest in property can satisfy the statutory taking requirement. Consumer Solutions REO, LLC v. Hillery, 658 F.Supp.2d 1002,1017 (N.D. Cal. 2009).

Plaintiff sufficiently alleges a wrongful act by alleging the necessary elements of financial abuse of an elder under California Welfare and Institutions Code § 15610.30. Plaintiff was 68 years old and residing in California at the time of the events alleged, making him an elder as defined by the statute. Plaintiff alleges Defendant, as president and managing officer of Unicitizens, assisted others in taking a secured interest in Plaintiff's real property. Finally, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant knew Plaintiff could not pay the Loan back and foreclosure and loss of equity was likely to occur. Because Plaintiff alleges that Defendant assisted in the taking of the elder Plaintiff's real property for a wrongful use, Plaintiff sufficiently alleges a wrongful act.

At the motion to dismiss stage, "[m]alice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Rule 9(b). Here, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant willfully and maliciously injured Plaintiff, that Defendant intended the consequences of his actions and that injury was substantially certain to result from Defendant's conduct. Thus, the Complaint includes sufficient allegations regarding the intent elements of § 523(a)(6). Accordingly, the Court will deny the Motion as to

The Court will dismiss Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) with leave to amend. The Court will not dismiss Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(6).

If Plaintiff elects to amend the Complaint, Plaintiff must file and serve an amended complaint no later than August 5, 2020. Any response to an amended complaint must be filed and served no later than August 26, 2020. If Plaintiff does not intend to file an amended complaint, Plaintiff must file and serve a notice to proceed with the Complaint no later than July 22, 2020. In that case, Defendant must file and serve an answer no later than August 12, 2020.

Plaintiff must submit an order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. Defendant argues that, in the state court complaint attached to the Complaint, Plaintiff alleged that multiple individuals and entities perpetrated the alleged fraud whereas, in the Complaint, Plaintiff attributes much of the alleged conduct to Defendant. Because the state court did not enter a judgment on the state court complaint, this Court is not bound by the allegations made before the state court. To the extent Defendant argues that the attached, incorporated state court complaint contradicts the allegations in the Complaint, Plaintiff may omit the attachment if he chooses to amend the Complaint and incorporate any relevant allegations therein into the body of the amended complaint.

Chapter 11

#1.00 Second amended disclosure statement in support of plan of reorganization

Docket 218

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will not approve the proposed disclosure statement as containing adequate information. Taking into account the objections to the proposed disclosure statement filed by HSBC Bank USA, N.A. [doc. 237], the disclosure statement does not currently contain adequate information. Moreover, it is apparent that the Court cannot confirm the amended chapter 11 plan.

Postpetition Efforts to Sell the Real Property. The amended disclosure statement does not discuss the efforts taken to market and to sell the debtor's real property, and any offers received, following the employment of the real estate broker.

Chase/Bank One Card Serv. Claim. In the debtor's amended schedule E/F [doc. 67], the debtor lists a $23,705.00 unsecured claim in favor of Chase/Bank One Card Serv. The debtor did not list the claim as contingent, unliquidated or disputed. Exhibit C to the disclosure statement does not account for this claim.

Cash Flow Projections. The disclosure statement does not provide cash flow projections for the first six months after the effective date of the plan.

Class 3. On the petition date, the debtor indicated that his principal residence was 3541 Eddingham Avenue, Calabasas, California 91302 (the "Property"). Since the petition date, the debtor has moved out of the Property [doc. 167]. However, "whether a claim is secured by a debtor's principal residence is, like all claims, fixed at the petition date." In re Abdelgadir, 455 B.R. 896, 903 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011). Accordingly, the Property is the debtor's principal residence for purposes of the treatment of claims secured by the Property in a chapter 11 plan of reorganization. However, in the amended chapter 11 plan [doc. 219], the debtor lists HSBC Bank USA, N.A. and Wells Fargo Bank N.A.'s claims in class 3 (unimpaired secured claims on property other than the debtor's principal residence) rather than in class 2 (secured claims on the debtor's principal residence).

Class 5. On December 7, 2017, the Internal Revenue Service filed proof of claim 1-1, asserting a $65,941.46 claim secured by the Property and a $16,804.62 priority unsecured claim (the "IRS Claim"). The disclosure statement lists the secured portion of the IRS Claim in class 5 (claims secured by a lien on property other than secured claim in class 2). The secured portion of the IRS Claim must be listed in class 2.

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Pursuant to the ruling at the prior status conference on June 4, 2020, the debtor was to file an updated status report, supported by evidence, by June 2, 2020. The debtor did not timely file any such status report.

At this point, the debtor is unemployed, and his proposed method for paying claims secured by real property and priority tax claims is to sell his former residence, following confirmation of a chapter 11 plan. Pursuant to the proposed plan, the debtor will surrender that real property, if it is not sold by the effective date.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 1112(b)(1), the Court intends to convert this case to one under chapter 7, in order for a chapter 7 trustee to liquidate the debtor's former residence, through engaging a realtor with sufficient expertise in the context of selling real property as property of the estate. The debtor will retain his rights to a homestead exemption, as well as other claimed exemptions. Creditors and employed professionals will be paid in the manner set forth in chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code, and the debtor will have the ability to obtain a discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a).

The Court will prepare the order.

June 4, 2020 Tentative Ruling

The Court is considering the issuance of an Order to Show Cause, why this case should not be converted to one under chapter 7, or dismissed, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 1112(b)(1) and (4)(E), (F) and (H).

Chapter 11

Pursuant to the ruling at the prior status conference held on April 9, 2020, the debtor was to file an updated status report, supported by evidence, by May 21, 2020. The debtor did not timely file any such status report.

Additionally, the debtor was to file amended monthly operating reports that reflect the debtor's income received from his employment. As of May 28, 2020, the debtor has not filed any such amended monthly operating reports.

Moreover, because that income is property of the estate, the Court ordered the debtor to deposit his employment income into a debtor in possession account. The debtor's March 2020 and April 2020 monthly operating reports do not indicate any of his income from his post-petition employment.

Ruling from April 9, 2020

Pursuant to the ruling at the prior chapter 11 case status conference held on February 6, 2020, the debtor was to file an updated status report by March 26, 2020. The debtor has not timely done so.

In the debtor's amended disclosure statement [doc. 188], the debtor indicates that he is receiving income in the amount of $5,000 per month plus commission of 25% of gross revenues from new patient treatment from Beverly Hills Cancer Center. The debtor indicates that he has deposited this income into the debtor's "corporate account." That account is not reflected in the debtor's monthly operating reports.

As property of the estate, that income must be deposited into a debtor in possession account. To reflect this income, the debtor must file amended monthly operating reports.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor"), filed a voluntary petition under subchapter V of chapter 11.

On June 17, 2020, The Sands Law Group APLC ("Sands Law") filed a motion to disqualify Debtor as a debtor under subchapter V of chapter 11 and to appoint a chapter 11 trustee (the "Motion") [doc. 21]. [FN1]. Through the Motion, Sands Law requests that Debtor cannot be a debtor under subchapter V of chapter 11 because Debtor's debts exceed the $7.5 million limit.

Sands Law also requests appointment of a chapter 11 trustee for the following reasons: (A) Debtor has scheduled insiders as creditors of the estate and improperly included them in its Form 204; (B) Debtor indicated in its schedule A/B that it does not have any investments, but, in November 2019, Debtor obtained a Trustee's Deed Upon Sale for a parcel of land in Riverside (the "Riverside Land"); (C) Debtor did not attach an appraisal of the real property located at 13854 Albers Street, Sherman Oaks, CA 91401 (the "Albers Property") to its schedule A/B; (D) Debtor did not check the box for Form 204 in its Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury for Non-Individual Debtors (the "Declaration"); (E) Debtor did not disclose certain lawsuits in its schedules; (F) Debtor's principal, Dmitri Lioudkouski, and another entity owned by Mr. Lioudkouski are defendants in a lawsuit before another bankruptcy judge; (G) Mr. Lioudkouski does not speak English; and (H) Debtor has not timely paid its taxes or other debts.

On July 2, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 81]. On July 9, 2020, Mike Kemel and Mariya Ayzenberg, along with Sands Law, filed a "joint reply" to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 92]. Mr. Kemel and Ms. Ayzenberg previously did not file a joinder to the Motion. For the first time in the Reply, these entities contend that Debtor also should be disqualified as a debtor in possession because Debtor attempted to employ Prime Capital Group, Inc. ("Prime Capital") as a real estate broker without disclosing its prior connection to Prime Capital, namely, that Prime Capital, Mr. Lioudkouski and another of Mr. Lioudkouski's entities are defendants in the same lawsuit.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Whether Debtor Qualifies as a Subchapter V Debtor

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1182(1)(A), a debtor under subchapter V of chapter 11—

... means a person engaged in commercial or business activities... that has aggregate noncontingent liquidated secured and unsecured debts as of the date of the filing of the petition or the date of the order for relief in an amount not more than $7,500,000 (excluding debts owed to 1 or more affiliates or insiders) not less than 50 percent of which arose from the commercial or business activities of the debtor....

(emphasis added). Sands Law contends that Debtor does not qualify as a subchapter V debtor because Debtor has excluded in its calculation of debt certain lawsuits to which it or its principal and affiliate(s) are parties. Section 1182(1)(A) states that a debtor qualifies if the noncontingent and liquidated debts exceed $7.5 million. Debtor's potential liability from pending lawsuits does not factor into this calculation. As such, Debtor is not disqualified as a subchapter V debtor because its contingent or unliquidated debts may exceed $7.5 million.

B. Removal of a Subchapter V Debtor in Possession

On request of a party in interest, and after notice and a hearing, the court shall order that the debtor shall not be a debtor in possession for cause, including fraud, dishonesty, incompetence, or gross mismanagement of the affairs of the debtor, either before or after the date of commencement of the case, or for failure to perform the obligations of the debtor under a plan confirmed under this subchapter.

Here, Sands Law has not demonstrated that Debtor has committed "fraud, dishonesty, incompetence, or gross mismanagement of the affairs of" Debtor. First, regarding Sands Law's contention that Debtor's principal does not speak English, Mr. Lioudkouski has provided a declaration stating that, although his English comprehension is poor, he is able to read English and receives assistance from counsel and Google Translate if he does not understand specific terms.

Sands Law's legal authority regarding interpreters pertains to situations that require complete translations from one language to another, not to individuals who require some assistance with understanding specific words or phrases. Moreover, Sands Law has set forth no authority that a debtor in possession may not maintain that role if its principal is not fluent in English. Instead, a certified interpreter may be required to assist Mr. Lioudkouski in situations where an interpreter might be particularly useful, such as during live testimony.

Sands Law also contends Debtor should not be a debtor in possession because Debtor included insiders as creditors of the estate and included such insiders in Form 204. However, the Bankruptcy Code does not exclude insiders from being creditors of the estate. Although Form 204 instructs Debtor to omit insiders from the list of creditors who have the 20 largest unsecured claims, here, Debtor's inclusion of any such insiders is not sufficient cause to remove Debtor as a debtor in possession. Nevertheless, Debtor should file an amended Form 204 that omits any insider creditors and includes the additional unsecured creditors included in Debtor's amended schedule E/F, filed on June 25, 2020 [doc. 48].

In addition, Sands Law contends that Debtor did not attach an appraisal of the Albers Property to its schedules. Item 58 of schedule A/B asks: "Has any of the property listed in Part 9 been appraised by a professional within the last year?" Debtor answered no. Sands Law contends that Debtor obtained an appraisal on May 1, 2019, over one year before the petition date, and that Debtor should have responded "yes" and attached the appraisal - even if the appraisal does not fall within the purview of item 58. Given that Debtor accurately answered the question, the Court will not remove Debtor as a debtor in possession, based on this answer.

Sands Law also states that Debtor did not schedule an investment in the Riverside Land. In the Opposition, Mr. Lioudkouski states, under penalty of perjury, that the related Trustee's Deed of Sale was rescinded prepetition, and attaches the Rescission of Trustee's Deed to his declaration. Debtor also notes that it mentioned the note receivable in its schedule A/B, i.e., in item 11. As such, on this basis, there is not cause to remove Debtor as a debtor in possession.

Further, Sands Law states that, in the Declaration, Debtor did not check the box for Form 204 when it testified that certain documents are true and correct. However, as noted above, Form 204 includes the same information as schedule E/F, for which schedule Debtor did check the box attesting that the information is true and correct. Debtor may amend the Declaration to check all applicable boxes. This omission alone is insufficient to constitute cause for removal of a debtor in possession under § 1185(a).

Sands Law also argues that Debtor did not disclose certain lawsuits in its schedules. However, all of the referenced lawsuits are included either in Debtor's schedule A/B or in Debtor's Statement of Financial Affairs [doc. 17]. As to the lawsuit before another bankruptcy judge, Debtor apparently is not a party. As such, neither of these bases militate removal of Debtor as a debtor in possession.

Finally, Sands Law has set forth no authority that Debtor's prepetition failure to pay debts, including taxes, must result in removal of debtor as a debtor in possession. If that were the law, most, if not all, debtors would be unable to act as debtors in possession in a chapter 11 case.

The Court need not address the arguments in the Reply because they were raised for the first time in the Reply, and by parties who did not move for removal under § 1185(a) (or join Sands Law's motion). However, even if the Court considers the assertions in the Reply, the replying entities have not provided cause for removal of Debtor as a debtor in possession.

With the exception of irrelevant statements regarding Sands Law's conduct and Mr. Kemel's and Ms. Ayzenberg's standing (which are not at issue because they are not the movants), the only pertinent issue raised in the Reply is that Debtor did not disclose its relationship with Prime Capital in its application to employ Prime Capital as a broker. However, the nature of this "relationship" is that Mr. Lioudekouski and another entity in which Mr. Lioudekouski has an interest are defendants, along with Prime Capital, in a pending lawsuit before another bankruptcy judge. There is no other evidence of a relationship between Prime Capital and Debtor. In addition, Debtor already agreed to withdraw the application to employ Prime Capital. Consequently, this is not a reason to remove Debtor as a debtor in possession.

The Court notes that, as with all cases under subchapter V of chapter 11, there is a trustee employed pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1183. Under 11 U.S.C. § 1183(b), which outlines a subchapter V trustee's duties, the trustee shall—

- (1) perform the duties specified in paragraphs (2), (5), (6), (7), and (9) of section 704(a) of this title;

- (2) perform the duties specified in paragraphs (3), (4), and (7) of section 1106(a) of this title, if the court, for cause and on request of a party in interest, the trustee, or the United States trustee, so orders;
- (3) appear and be heard at the status conference under section 1188 of this title and any hearing that concerns—
 - (A) the value of property subject to a lien;
 - (B) confirmation of a plan filed under this subchapter;
 - (C) modification of the plan after confirmation; or
 - (D) the sale of property of the estate;
- (4) ensure that the debtor commences making timely payments required by a plan confirmed under this subchapter;
- (5) if the debtor ceases to be a debtor in possession, perform the duties specified in section 704(a)(8) and paragraphs (1), (2), and (6) of section 1106(a) of this title, including operating the business of the debtor;
- (6) if there is a claim for a domestic support obligation with respect to the debtor, perform the duties specified in section 704(c) of this title; and
- (7) facilitate the development of a consensual plan of reorganization.

The duties specified in 11 U.S.C. § 704(a)(2), (5)-(7) and (9), which the subchapter V trustee is required to perform under § 1183(b)(1), are—

- (2) be accountable for all property received;
- (5) if a purpose would be served, examine proofs of claims and object to the allowance of any claim that is improper;
- (6) if advisable, oppose the discharge of the debtor;

- (7) unless the court orders otherwise, furnish such information concerning the estate and the estate's administration as is requested by a party in interest;
- (9) make a final report and file a final account of the administration of the estate with the court and with the United States trustee;

As such, subchapter V of chapter 11 already provides for the subchapter V trustee to perform certain oversight functions. At this time, there is no cause to remove debtor as a debtor in possession and expand the subchapter V trustee's role under § 1183(b) (2) and (b)(5).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

On June 19, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed an application to employ Nodd Law Group ("Nodd Law" as special litigation counsel (the "Application") [doc. 25]. On June 27, 2020, The Sands Law Group, APLC ("Sands Law") filed an opposition to the Application [doc. 58]. On June 28, 2020, Mike Kemel and Mariya Ayzenberg filed a joinder to Sands Law's opposition [doc. 59]. Together, these objecting entities assert: (A) attorney Jeffrey Nodd's real name is "Dimitry Nudelman;" (B) Debtor's principal does not understand the English retainer agreement; (C) Mr. Nodd referenced the wrong date and/or time of a mediation in a declaration he submitted in support of an unrelated motion; (D) Nodd Law has a claim against the estate arising from its prepetition representation of Debtor and, as a result, is not disinterested; (E) Nodd Law's retainer agreement with Debtor includes a charging lien that Nodd Law cannot unilaterally waive; and (F) Nodd Law's employment is not necessary to the estate. Sands Law also devotes a portion of its objection to disputing an unrelated declaration filed by the subchapter V trustee regarding a § 341(a) meeting of creditors.

The arguments regarding Mr. Nodd's name and Debtor's principal's comprehension of English, and Sands Law's comments concerning the subchapter V trustee's unrelated declaration, have little to no bearing on whether Nodd Law may be employed as special litigation counsel. As to the contention that Mr. Nodd referenced the wrong date and time in an unrelated declaration, Mr. Nodd has submitted a supplemental declaration that the inclusion of an incorrect date was a typographical error. Such a typographical error does not disqualify Nodd Law from employment by the estate.

With respect to the assertion that Nodd Law is not disinterested, holding a claim against the estate does not, in and of itself, disqualify attorneys from serving as special litigation counsel. Section 327(e) "permits post-petition representation by the debtor's pre-petition attorney for a special purpose where he holds no adverse interest to the debtor within the scope of the representation." In re Film Ventures Int'l, Inc., 75 B.R. 250, 252 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1987) (emphasis added). "Section 327(e) contains less restrictive requirements than Section 327(a) which governs the employment of general counsel as there is no requirement of disinterestedness." Id.

Here, Debtor seeks to employ Nodd Law for the limited purpose of representing Debtor in connection with Debtor's insurance claim with Lloyd's of London ("Lloyd's"). Prepetition, Nodd Law represented Debtor in connection with the claim and a mediation of the dispute between Lloyd's and Debtor. The parties have reached a compromise, subject to the approval of the Court. If the Court approves the compromise, the dispute with Lloyd's will be resolved, and through effectuation of the compromise, the estate will receive $250,000.

Nothing in the record suggests that Nodd Law holds an interest adverse to Debtor's interests in the litigation between Debtor and Lloyd's. That Nodd Law has a claim for payment of its fees and costs does not mean that Nodd Law has an interest adverse to Debtor in the dispute against Lloyd's. In fact, the existence of a contingency agreement indicates that Debtor and Nodd Law have a joint interest in maximizing recovery from Lloyd's.

Moreover, because Nodd Law has represented Debtor since the inception of the dispute between Lloyd's and Debtor, and the dispute may soon be resolved by compromise, employing Nodd Law is in the best interest of the estate. Neither objecting entity has set forth a sound reason why the attorney that has represented Debtor during the entirety of this dispute should not continue to represent Debtor towards a potential recovery of $250,000 for the estate. In re Goldstein, 383 B.R. 496, 501-02 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2007) ("[W]hen counsel is very familiar with the non-bankruptcy litigation because counsel has previously performed legal services for the debtor; it is obvious that the continuation of counsel's special services is in the best interest of the estate. Special counsel's familiarity with case would expedite the process of resolving matters and will lead to advantages for the estate and the creditors.").

Finally, the objecting entities' arguments regarding the charging lien are moot; Nodd Law and Debtor have agreed to nullify the charging lien provision in the retainer agreement. Inexplicably, Sands Law filed a request to strike Debtor's reply to the objections, asserting that Debtor presented the information regarding waiver of the charging lien for the first time in the reply. However, the Application explicitly stated that Nodd Law waived its charging lien. Application, p. 7, ¶ 31.

In any event, an attorney's charging lien would not automatically disqualify an attorney from representing a debtor for a limited purpose under § 327(e). See Film Ventures, 75 B.R. at 252 (holding that the attorney's secured interest in estate assets did not disqualify the attorney under § 327(e) because the estate's and the attorney's interest in preserving the security were aligned). Moreover, because Nodd Law's representation is for a limited purpose and Debtor is requesting employment of a different firm as general bankruptcy counsel, "[a]t any time general counsel for the Debtor could... [bring] an avoidance lien action attacking the transfer if it had been improper." Id. However, because the parties have agreed to nullify Nodd Law's lien, and the Court is approving the modification of the retainer agreement to eliminate that

#1.00 Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment as to defendants Susan Biddle and Susan Biddle, Trustee of the Biddle 2018 Family Trust, dated November 16, 2018 or, in the alternative, summary of adjudication of issues

fr. 5/27/20; 7/1/20

Docket 34

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 12, 2018, Christopher Anderson ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David K. Gottlieb was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). On April 17, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Jerome Biddle, Susan Biddle and Susan Biddle, Trustee of the Biddle 2018 Family Trust, Dated November 16, 2018 (collectively referred to as the "Biddles"). [FN1].

A. The Property, the Anderson Trust and the Power of Attorney

In 1986, Debtor and Kelli Anderson were married. Uncontroverted Fact ("UF") [docs. 48, 56], ¶ 11. On June 16, 1989, Debtor and Ms. Anderson purchased real property located at 10000 Nita Avenue, Chatsworth, California (the "Property"). UF, ¶ 12.

In January 2014, Debtor and Ms. Anderson created the Anderson Trust Dated January 30, 2014 (the "Anderson Trust"). Declaration of Lisa Ann Coe ("Coe Declaration"), ¶ 3, Exhibit D. On the same day, Ms. Anderson also executed a Power of Attorney. Coe Declaration, ¶ 3, Exhibit E. Through the Power of Attorney, Ms. Anderson appointed Debtor as her attorney-in-fact as to several subjects, including "real property transactions." Id. The Power of Attorney provided that Debtor had authority to "do anything [Ms. Anderson] could do and in the opinion of [Debtor] ought to be done, as fully and effectively as [Ms. Anderson] could do it" herself. Id.

On February 7, 2014, Debtor and Ms. Anderson transferred title to the Property to "Christopher S. Anderson and Kelli A. Anderson, Trustees of the Anderson Trust dated January 30, 2014, as community property." UF, ¶ 15. As relevant to this action, the Anderson Trust defined "Trustee" to be either: (A) Ms. Anderson and Debtor; (B) Debtor alone; or (C) any successor trustee or co-trustee. Coe Declaration, ¶ 3, Exhibit D. In addition, the Anderson Trust provided that the "Trustee may borrow money... and encumber the trust property by mortgage, deed of trust, pledge, or otherwise for the debts of the trust or of us." Id. Regarding revocation, the Anderson Trust provided—

During our joint lifetimes, we may revoke this trust by a writing (other than a will) delivered to the Trustee... with respect to community property, signed by either of us and delivered also to the other spouse....

Id. Similarly, to revoke the Power of Attorney, Ms. Anderson was required to deliver a notice of revocation, in writing, to Debtor. Coe Declaration, ¶ 3, Exhibit E.

B. The Dissolution Action

On July 20, 2016, Ms. Anderson filed a petition for dissolution of her marriage to Debtor (the "Dissolution Action"). UF, ¶ 16. At this time, the Property was still held by the Anderson Trust "as community property." UF, ¶ 17. On August 18, 2016, Thomas A. Warden, one of Ms. Anderson's attorneys in the Dissolution Action, recorded with the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office a "Notice of Pending Action" (the "Lis Pendens"), indicating the Dissolution Action affected title to the Property. UF, ¶ 18.

In connection with the Dissolution Action, Debtor filed yearly income and expense declarations. Request for Judicial Notice ("RJN"), ¶¶ 16-17, Exhibits 11-12. In his 2016 income and expense declaration (the "2016 IED"), Debtor identified $1,685,000 in assets, a judgment that Debtor valued at over $44 million (discussed below) and several other assets that Debtor valued as "unknown." RJN, ¶ 16, Exhibit 11. Debtor also indicated that he did not receive any income and identified $8,298,576 in liabilities. Id. In his 2017 income and expense declaration (the "2017 IED"), Debtor again indicated he was not receiving any income; this time, Debtor valued his real and personal property as "TBD." Id.

C. The Transaction with the Biddles

In June 2017, Debtor contacted Jeff Prather of The FHL Financial Group ("FHL") to obtain a loan secured by the Property. UF, ¶ 147. FHL acted as the Biddles' agent in the loan transaction as well as the escrow for the loan transaction. UF, ¶¶ 24-25, 61. Mr. Prather arranges private loans that are asset-based and does not generally consider a borrower's income if the loan he arranges is adequately secured by the borrower's assets. Declaration of Jeff Prather ("Prather Declaration"), ¶¶ 3-4.

As part of investigating Debtor's assets, Mr. Prather contacted a title company and obtained a preliminary report, which reflected that the Property was owned by the Anderson Trust. UF, ¶ 149. The title report reflected the following encumbrances against the Property: (A) the Lis Pendens; (B) a $170,000 deed of trust in favor of Surfside Funding; (C) a $12,022.52 judgment lien in favor of Fidelity Capital Holdings; and (D) a $119,064.76 judgment lien in favor of Juan Flores. Prather Declaration, ¶ 15.

Mr. Prather also obtained an appraisal of the Property. Prather Declaration, ¶ 13, Exhibit A. The appraisal indicated the Property was worth $1,520,000 as of June 22, 2017. Id. Subsequently, Mr. Prather informed Debtor that a loan could be made to the Anderson Trust; alternatively, Mr. Prather stated he could arrange a loan to Debtor directly if the Property was transferred to Debtor's name. Prather Declaration, ¶ 16.

In September 2017, Debtor contacted Mr. Prather to proceed with the $525,000 loan. UF, ¶ 151. At that time, Debtor presented the following documents to Mr. Prather to demonstrate that the Property was held by Debtor alone: (A) a Release of Notice of Pendency of Action (the "Release of Notice") to release the Lis Pendens; (B) a Subordination Agreement through which Mr. Flores subordinated his lien to the Biddles' lien; (C) a grant deed transferring title to the Property from the Anderson Trust to Debtor as his sole and separate property (the "Grant Deed"); and (D) a revocation of the Anderson Trust dated August 28, 2017 (the "2017 Revocation of Trust"). Prather Declaration, ¶¶ 18-19, 23.

The Trustee also references three unattached jurats that were in Mr. Prather's file. Prather Declaration, ¶ 24. However, according to Mr. Prather, FHL would not have accepted signed but unattached jurats. Mr. Prather believes the jurats became unattached during copying of FHL's files. Id.

Debtor also informed Mr. Prather that the $170,000 deed of trust had been satisfied, which information Mr. Prather verified by contacting the lender and confirming the same. Prather Declaration, ¶ 19. With respect to the $12,022.52 judgment lien, Debtor requested that it be paid off using the loan proceeds funded by the Biddles. Id. As such, in light of the purported satisfaction, release or subordination of the other liens against the Property, Mr. Prather proceeded with arranging the loan and preparing a deed of trust. UF, ¶ 154; Prather Declaration, ¶¶ 18-19.

On September 11, 2017, Debtor executed a Note Secured by a Deed of Trust (the "Biddles' Note"), pursuant to which Debtor promised to pay the Biddles $525,000 for funds lent by the Biddles to Debtor. UF, ¶ 103. Pursuant to the Biddles' Note, Debtor was to make monthly interest only payments of $4,703.12 per month for 11 months, followed by a principal and interest payment of $529,703.12. UF, ¶ 105. On the same day, Debtor also executed a deed of trust securing the Note with the Property (the "Biddles' Deed of Trust"). Prather Declaration, ¶ 22, Exhibit C. The Biddles' Deed of Trust was signed by Debtor and notarized by a notary public named Alan Kaminsky. Id. The Biddles' Deed of Trust is signed only by Debtor and Mr. Kaminsky; neither party contends that the Biddles' Deed of Trust bears a forged signature or a fraudulent notarization. In connection with this transaction, on September 18, 2017, the Release of Notice, the Subordination Agreement, the Grant Deed and the Biddles' Deed of Trust were recorded with the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office. UF ¶ 26.

Although the Grant Deed, the Release of Notice, the Subordination Agreement and the 2017 Revocation of Trust bear Ms. Anderson's signature, the parties acknowledge that Ms. Anderson did not actually sign these documents. UF, ¶¶ 32-33, 40-41, 51-53, 62-63. In addition, although the documents include a notarization by Blanca Lopez, Ms. Lopez did not actually notarize the documents. UF, ¶¶ 34-35, 37, 43-46, 54-57, 64-68. Debtor's signature is not on the Release of Notice; however, Debtor himself signed the Grant Deed, the 2017 Revocation of Trust and the Subordination Agreement. Anderson Declaration, ¶¶ 11-13, Exhibits 6-8.

D. Debtor's Use of the Loan Funds

Debtor and Ms. Anderson owned Sharp Image Gaming, Inc. ("Sharp Image"). UF, ¶ 134. In December 2011, Sharp Image obtained a $30,442,964.39 verdict in its favor (the "Sharp Image Judgment") against Shingle Springs Band of Miwok Indians (the "Tribe"). UF, ¶ 135.

Debtor apparently anticipated collection of nearly $50 million from the Sharp Image Judgment. Coe Declaration, ¶¶ 13-14, Exhibit L, p. 142. In June 2017, a California appellate court presiding over the appeal of the Sharp Image Judgment held oral argument. The Biddles' Request for Judicial Notice ("Biddle RJN") [doc. 50], Exhibit Y. (As discussed above, it was around this time Debtor contacted Mr. Prather to arrange a private loan.) In September 2017, the appellate court reversed the Sharp Image Judgment. UF, ¶ 157.

During the course of the Dissolution Action, Debtor stated that, to appeal the appellate court's reversal, Debtor had to pay taxes to the Franchise Tax Board to maintain Sharp Image's legal status and ability to litigate. Coe Declaration, ¶¶ 13-14, Exhibit L, p. 142. In addition, Debtor needed money to pay his appellate attorneys. Id. As such, Debtor testified that he used $160,337.52 of the Biddles' loan to pay the Franchise Tax Board and $50,000 of the funds to pay his attorneys. Id., p. 144. [FN2].

In January 2017, Mr. Flores had obtained a judgment against Debtor, Ms. Anderson and an entity they owned for $119,064.76. UF, ¶ 21. On May 10, 2017, Mr. Flores recorded an abstract of judgment against the Property and, as noted above, obtained a judgment lien against the Property. UF, ¶ 22. According to Debtor, at the time he sought a loan from the Biddles, Mr. Flores was threatening to force the sale of the Property to satisfy his judgment. Coe Declaration, ¶¶ 13-14, Exhibit L, p. 143. As such, according to Debtor, from September 18, 2017 through November 14, 2017, Debtor paid Mr. Flores a total of $103,000. Id. Aside from these payments, Debtor stated that the remaining funds went towards payment of property taxes, community debts owed towards credit cards, maintenance of the Property and "necessities of life," with a balance of $5,915 remaining at the time these issues were raised before the family court. Id.

E. Ms. Anderson Learns of the Transfer to the Biddles

On September 30, 2017, Ms. Anderson received the Release of Notice in the mail. Declaration of Kelli Anderson ("Anderson Declaration"), ¶ 11. This was the first time Ms. Anderson had seen the Release of Notice. Id. Subsequently, Ms. Anderson also learned of the Grant Deed, the Biddles' Deed of Trust, the 2017 Revocation of Trust and the Subordination Agreement.

On November 14, 2017, Ms. Anderson filed a request for an order: (A) transferring title to the Property back to both Debtor and Ms. Anderson; (B) appointing a receiver and selling the Property; (C) requiring Debtor to pay the $525,000 he received to Ms. Anderson; (D) sanctioning Debtor; and (E) requiring Debtor to pay Ms. Anderson's attorneys' fees and costs. Biddle RJN, Exhibit I. In connection with this filing, Ms. Anderson also asserted that Debtor violated the automatic temporary restraining order under California Family Code § 2040. Biddle RJN, Exhibit N. On January 11, 2018, the family court entered an order: (A) directing the Property be listed for sale; (B) appointing a receiver; (C) holding Debtor responsible for the monthly payments owed to the Biddles; and (D) sanctioning Debtor. Biddle RJN, Exhibit P.

In March 2018, Ms. Anderson filed a request for, among other things, an order that she receive an abstract of judgment and a total of $525,000 from escrow upon the sale of the Property. Biddle RJN, Exhibit R. On March 23, 2018, the family court entered an order awarding Ms. Anderson $525,000. Biddle RJN, Exhibit S. On the same day, Ms. Anderson obtained an abstract of judgment against the Property. Biddle RJN, Exhibit T.

F. Debtor's Bankruptcy Case

On June 12, 2018, Debtor filed his chapter 7 petition. In his schedules filed with his petition, Debtor identified $76,683,569 in assets, including the Property. In his schedule I, Debtor indicated he was not receiving any income. In his Statement of Financial Affairs, Debtor further indicated that he did not receive any income the two years preceding the petition date.

On January 23, 2019, the Trustee obtained a judgment against Plummer Group, LLC ("Plummer"), avoiding its judgment lien against the Property pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §

547 and preserving the lien for the benefit of the estate [1:18-ap-01123-VK, doc. 10]. According to Plummer Group's proof of claim, the judgment lien is worth $117,612.50 and is alleged by the Trustee to have been recorded on May 23, 2018 [1:18-ap-01123-VK, doc. 10, doc. 1].

On April 26, 2019, the Trustee filed a motion to sell the Property for $1,115,000 (the "Sale Motion") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 112]. In connection with the Sale Motion, the Trustee noted the following encumbrances against the Property—

- (A) a $2,022.52 abstract of judgment in favor of Fidelity Capital Holdings, Inc., which the Trustee believed had already been paid;
- (B) the Biddles' Deed of Trust;
- (C) a $50,000 lien in favor of a family law attorney to Ms. Anderson, Denise A. Houghton;
- (D) the $119,064,76 abstract of judgment in favor of Mr. Flores;
- (E) the $525,000 abstract of judgment in favor of Ms. Anderson;
- (F) another abstract of judgment in favor of Ms. Anderson in the amount of $4,000 arising from the family court's award of sanctions to Ms. Anderson;
- (G) the Lis Pendens, which the Trustee asserted no longer applied to the Property, because the Property was no longer subject to division by the family court;
- (H) an abstract of judgment in favor of Plummer Group, which the Court already had avoided as a preferential transfer.

Sale Motion, p. 9.

Around the same time the Trustee filed the Sale Motion, the Trustee also filed a motion to approve a compromise with Mr. Flores (the "Flores Compromise") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 101]. The Flores Compromise sought to resolve an adversary proceeding the Trustee had filed against Mr. Flores [1:19-ap-01011-VK], through which the Trustee alleged that Mr. Flores had been paid $103,000 of the amount owed to him. Through the Flores Compromise, Mr. Flores and the Trustee agreed that Mr. Flores would be paid $20,000 from the sale of the Property in full satisfaction of his secured claim, and would have an allowed unsecured claim of $100,000. On April 30, 2019, the Court entered an order approving the Flores Compromise [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 122].

In addition, the Trustee also initiated an adversary proceeding against Ms. Anderson [1:19-ap-01018-VK], requesting avoidance of the $525,000 and $4,000 abstracts of judgment against the Property, preservation of the liens for the benefit of the estate under 11 U.S.C. § 551 and turnover of other assets. On May 20, 2019, the Trustee filed a motion to approve a compromise with Ms. Anderson (the "Anderson Compromise") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 130]. Through the Anderson Compromise, Ms. Anderson and the Trustee agreed that the abstracts of judgment were avoided as preferential transfers and preserved for the benefit of the estate and that Ms. Anderson would not have any claim against the estate. In return, Ms. Anderson would keep assets that were the subject of the Trustee's turnover claim. The Court approved the Anderson Compromise [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 139].

On May 31, 2019, the Court entered an order approving the Sale Motion free and clear of liens, with the liens identified above attaching to the sale proceeds [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 135]. On June 11, 2019, the Trustee obtained a judgment against Ms. Houghton, avoiding her judgment lien under 11 U.S.C. §§ 544 and 545 and preserving the lien for the benefit of the estate [1:19-ap-01043-VK, doc. 13].

G. This Adversary Proceeding

On April 17, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against the Biddles, initiating this adversary proceeding. On February 19, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion for summary judgment (the "MSJ") [doc. 34]. The Trustee asserts that the Biddles' Deed of Trust is void or should be avoided because: (A) Debtor forged certain documents associated with the transfer; (B) California community property law prevented Debtor from transferring the Property without Ms. Anderson's consent; (C) the automatic temporary restraining order in place during the Dissolution Action prevented the transfer; (D) the transfer was a fraudulent transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(A); and (E) the transfer violated California Civil Code § 1227.

In addition, the Trustee asserts that, if the Court holds that the Biddles' claim is not secured, the Court should deem the loan usurious. The Trustee also argues that three interest payments Debtor made to the Biddles within 90 days of the petition date should be avoided as preferential transfers.

The Biddles oppose the MSJ [doc. 47]. Specifically, they contend that: (A) Debtor had authority under the Anderson Trust and the Power of Attorney to act as he did; (B) the Trustee and third party creditors do not have standing to pursue Ms. Anderson's community property rights; (C) Ms. Anderson ratified the transfer to the Biddles; (D) the family court's orders are res judicata; (E) the Trustee has not met his burden as to the § 548(a)(1)(A) claim and the Biddles have a defense under § 548(c); (F) the Trustee has not met his burden as to the California Civil Code § 1227 claim; (G) the usury claim is defeated because the Biddles' loan was arranged by a licensed real estate broker; and (H) the Trustee has not met his burden as to the preferential transfer claim because the Biddles are secured creditors.

On May 13, 2020, in connection with his reply, the Trustee filed evidence of another revocation of trust, for the Anderson Trust, dated September 2, 2016 (the "2016 Revocation of Trust") [doc. 55]. The 2016 Revocation of Trust is signed only by Debtor and notarized by Mr. Kaminsky.

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Motion for Summary Judgment Standard

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 56, applicable to this adversary proceeding under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 7056, the Court shall grant summary judgment if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2509-10, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986); Rule 56; FRBP 7056. between the parties will not defeat an otherwise properly supported motion for summary judgment; the requirement is that there be no genuine issue of material fact." 477 U.S. at 247–48 (emphasis in original).

As to materiality, the substantive law will identify which facts are material. Only disputes over facts that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will properly preclude the entry of summary judgment. Factual disputes that are irrelevant or unnecessary will not be counted. . . . [S]ummary judgment will not lie if the dispute about a material fact is "genuine," that is, if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party. . . .

Id. at 248–50 (internal citations omitted). Additionally, issues of law are appropriate to be decided in a motion for summary judgment. See Camacho v. Du Sung Corp., 121 F.3d 1315, 1317 (9th Cir. 1997).

The initial burden is on the moving party to show that no genuine issues of material fact exist based on "the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2553, 91 L.Ed. 265 (1986). Once the moving party meets its initial burden, the nonmoving party bearing "the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue" must identify facts beyond what is contained in the pleadings that show genuine issues of fact remain. Id., at 324; see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256 ("Rule 56(e) itself provides that a party opposing a properly supported motion for summary judgment may not rest upon mere allegation or denials of his pleading, but must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.").

The nonmoving party meets this burden through the presentation of "evidentiary materials" listed in Rule 56, such as depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations, stipulations, admissions, and interrogatory answers. Id. To establish a genuine issue, the non-moving party "must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts." Matsushita Electrical Industry Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586, 106 S.Ct. 1348, 1356, 89 L.Ed.2d 538 (1986); see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252 ("The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the [non-moving party's] position will be insufficient."). Rather, the nonmoving party must provide "evidence of such a caliber that ‘a fair-minded jury could return a verdict for the [nonmoving party] on the evidence presented.’” U.S. v. Wilson, 881 F.2d 596, 601 (9th Cir. 1989) (quoting Anderson, 477 U.S. at 266).

B. Whether Debtor Had Authority to Transfer Community Property

i. Authority under the Anderson Trust and/or Power of Attorney

The parties do not dispute that Ms. Anderson did not sign some of the documents associated with the Biddles’ loan, namely, the Grant Deed, the 2017 Revocation of Trust and the Release of Notice. Nevertheless, the Biddles contend that Debtor had authority to encumber the Property without Ms. Anderson’s consent and, as a result, the fact that Ms. Anderson did not actually sign the documents is not fatal to the validity of the Biddles’ Deed of Trust.

For purposes of this analysis, the Court will assume that the Grant Deed is void, because it contains a forgery. [FN3]. Nevertheless, in this instance, the immediate impact of the forged Grant Deed is not that the Biddles’ Deed of Trust also is void. The Trustee is correct that the "validity of the title of a subsequent purchaser or encumbrancer depends upon the validity of his grantor's title." Wutzke v. Bill Reid Painting Serv., Inc., 151 Cal.App.3d 36, 44 (Ct. App. 1984) (emphasis added). In other words, the validity of the Biddles’ Deed of Trust depends on the validity of Debtor’s title. However, in this case, if the Grant Deed is void, title would revert either to the Anderson Trust or, if the Anderson Trust was revoked, the Property would constitute community property of Debtor and Ms. Anderson.

As discussed below, pursuant to the Anderson Trust, Debtor had authority to encumber the Property, without Ms. Anderson’s consent. If the Anderson Trust was revoked, and title to the Property was held as community property, Debtor had authority to encumber it on behalf of Ms. Anderson, pursuant to the Power of Attorney.

Under the terms of the Anderson Trust, both Debtor and Ms. Anderson were designated as co-trustees. However, the terms specified that any reference to the "Trustee" meant both Debtor and Ms. Anderson, Debtor alone or any successor trustee. Anderson Trust, p. 1. In relevant part, the Anderson Trust also provided that the "Trustee," including Debtor acting alone, had the power to "borrow money... and encumber the trust property by mortgage, deed of trust, pledge, or otherwise for the debts of the trust or of us." Anderson Property, p. 3. As such, pursuant to the terms of the Anderson Trust, Debtor had the authority to encumber the Property, which was included as property of the Anderson Trust, without Ms. Anderson's consent.

If the Anderson Trust remained valid at the time the Biddles' Deed of Trust was executed, on September 11, 2017, the forged documents would not have an impact on the Biddles' liens. The Biddles' Deed of Trust itself does not include a forged signature; it is signed by Debtor alone and notarized by Alan Kaminsky. [FN4]. Thus, even if the Grant Deed and the 2017 Revocation of Trust were invalid, Debtor still could have authority, under the Anderson Trust, to execute the Biddles' Deed of Trust – which does not contain a forged signature or forged notarization.

Nevertheless, there is a genuine dispute of material fact as to whether, at the time Debtor executed the Biddles' Deed of Trust, the Anderson Trust was revoked. Pursuant to the terms of the Anderson Trust, revocation of the Anderson Trust required "a writing (other than a will) delivered to the Trustee... with respect to community property, signed by either of [Debtor or Ms. Anderson] and delivered also to the other spouse." Anderson Trust, p. 2 (emphasis added).

The Trustee disputes the validity of the 2017 Revocation of Trust. However, in connection with his reply, the Trustee presents the 2016 Revocation of Trust. In the record, there is no evidence regarding when Debtor, the only party to sign both the 2016 Revocation of Trust and 2017 Revocation of Trust, delivered either revocation to Ms. Anderson. [FN5]. The Trustee contends that, because Ms. Anderson's attorney produced the revocations to the Trustee during discovery, Debtor must have delivered the revocations to Ms. Anderson. Without establishing the date of delivery, the fact that one or both revocations eventually were delivered to Ms. Anderson does not aid the Trustee. Consequently, the Trustee has not met his burden of proving that revocation occurred, prior to execution of the Biddles' Deed of Trust.

If the Court assumes that the Anderson Trust was revoked prior to execution of the Biddles' Deed of Trust, the Trustee has not adequately addressed the Power of Attorney. With respect to numerous matters, including "real property transactions," the Power of Attorney explicitly appointed Debtor as Ms. Anderson's attorney-in-fact.

Power of Attorney, pp. 1-2. The Power of Attorney also broadly stated that Debtor had authority to "do anything [Ms. Anderson] could do and in the opinion of [Debtor] ought to be done, as fully and effectively as [Ms. Anderson] could do it" herself. Power of Attorney, p. 3 (emphasis added).

In light of this language, Debtor had broad authority to act on behalf of Ms. Anderson, including explicit authority to act on behalf of Ms. Anderson with respect to all real property transactions. Moreover, to revoke the Power of Attorney, Ms. Anderson would have to deliver a notice of revocation, in writing, to Debtor. Power of Attorney, p. 3. There is no evidence that Ms. Anderson ever revoked the Power of Attorney, let alone revoked it prior to the execution of the Biddles' Deed of Trust. [FN6].

The Trustee's sole argument is that Debtor, by failing to act in Ms. Anderson's best interest, breached the fiduciary duties he owed her as her agent and attorney-in-fact. However, there is a genuine issue of material fact regarding Debtor's reasons to obtain the $525,000 loan from the Biddles. Debtor used at least a portion of the funds to defend the Sharp Image Judgment, in the amount of over $30 million, and to pay off community debts. As such, it is not evident that Debtor's decision to borrow from the Biddles, and to encumber the Property, was not in Ms. Anderson's best interest. [FN7].

ii. The Impact of the Release of Notice and Subordination Agreement

There is no genuine issue of material fact that the Release of Notice was forged. The Biddles have not set forth any evidence that Debtor had authority to invalidate the Lis Pendens on Ms. Anderson's behalf. As such, because Debtor did not have authority to execute the Release of Notice, the Release of Notice is void. Wutzke, 151 Cal.App.3d at 43-44.

"Because a lis pendens provides constructive notice of the litigation, 'any judgment later obtained in the action relates back to the filing of the lis pendens.'" *Mira Overseas Consulting Ltd. v. property after the action is filed will be bound by the judgment." Slintak, 139 Cal.App.4th at 586-87. "A judgment favorable to the plaintiff relates to, and receives its priority from, the date the lis pendens is recorded, and is senior and prior to any interests in the property acquired after that date" Stagen v. Stewart–West Coast Title Co., 149 Cal.App.3d 114, 123 (Ct. App. 1983); see also California Code of Civil Procedure § 405.24 ("The rights and interest of the claimant in the property, as ultimately determined in the pending noticed action, shall relate back to the date of the recording of the notice.").

Here, as the Trustee acknowledged in the Sale Motion, the family court did not enter a judgment regarding ownership of the Property. The only "right and interest" adjudicated by the family court was the award of a judgment and judgment lien against the Property in favor of Ms. Anderson. Because the Release of Notice is void, and the Lis Pendens remained in effect at the time Debtor executed the Biddles' Deed of Trust, Ms. Anderson's judgment lien relates back to the date of the Lis Pendens. In other words, Ms. Anderson's judgment lien predates the Biddles' Deed of Trust and would be entitled to priority over the Biddles' Deed of Trust.

Although the Trustee, through the Anderson Compromise, obtained the release of Ms. Anderson's judgment lien, the Trustee preserved the lien for the benefit of the estate. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 551—

Any transfer avoided under section 522, 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, or 724(a) of this title, or any lien void under section 506(d) of this title, is preserved for the benefit of the estate but only with respect to property of the estate.

The Anderson Compromise explicitly provided that Ms. Anderson's lien may be avoided under 11 U.S.C. § 547, one of the statutes listed in § 551, and that the Trustee intended to preserve the lien for the benefit of the estate under § 551. As such, although the judgment lien has been avoided, Ms. Anderson's $525,000 senior lien remains relevant for purposes of calculating how much the Biddles would be entitled to be paid from the sale of the Property, based on the available sale proceeds. [FN8].

It does not appear, however, that the Trustee preserved the judgment lien claimed by Mr. Flores for the benefit of the estate or that the Trustee would have the ability to do so under § 551. Although the Trustee referenced 11 U.S.C. § 506 in his complaint against Mr. Flores, the Trustee did not specify that he was requesting relief under § 506(d), the only subsection that would lead to preservation under § 551. Moreover, nothing in the Flores Compromise established that the Trustee avoided the judgment lien in favor of Mr. Flores under 11 U.S.C. § 506(d); the Flores Compromise does not refer to any specific Code section. As such, if the Subordination Agreement is invalid, Mr. Flores's judgment lien would take priority over the Biddles' Deed of Trust in the amount of $20,000 only, as set forth in the Flores Compromise.

However, the Trustee has not disputed the validity of the Subordination Agreement. Given that Debtor may have had authority to enter into the Subordination Agreement, for the reasons stated above, if Mr. Flores agreed to subordinate his lien, the Biddles' Deed of Trust would take priority over the $20,000 to be paid to Mr. Flores.

In the Sale Motion, the Trustee indicated that the liens against the Property total $718,635.02 (without including the Biddles' Deed of Trust – and counting Mr. Flores's compromised lien as securing $20,000). With the Biddles' Deed of Trust included, the encumbrances would total $1,243,635.02, i.e., $128,635.02 more than the sale price of $1,115,000. Although Plummer Group apparently recorded its judgment subsequent to the Biddles, the parties have not provided evidence of the recordation date. In addition, there is no analysis regarding the priority of Ms. Houghton's lien. If the Biddles have a valid lien against the proceeds from the sale of the Property, these outstanding issues could impact the amount to be paid to them.

iii. Authority under Community Property Laws

The Trustee also asserts that Debtor did not have authority to encumber the Property under California Family Code ("Cal. Fam. Code") §§ 1102 and 2040. [FN9]. Under Cal. Fam. Code § 1102(a)—

Except as provided in Sections 761 and 1103, either spouse has the management and control of the community real property, whether acquired prior to, or on or after January 1, 1975, but both spouses, either personally or by a duly authorized agent, are required to join in executing an instrument by which that community real property or an interest therein is leased for a longer period than one year, or is sold, conveyed, or encumbered.

(emphasis added). [FN10]. Pursuant to Cal. Fam. Code § 2040(a)(2)(A), a summons initiating a dissolution proceeding includes a temporary restraining order—

Restraining both parties from transferring, encumbering, hypothecating, concealing, or in any way disposing of, any property, real or personal, whether community, quasi-community, or separate, without the written consent of the other party or an order of the court, except in the usual course of business or for the necessities of life, and requiring each party to notify the other party of proposed extraordinary expenditures at least five business days before incurring those expenditures and to account to the court for all extraordinary expenditures made after service of the summons on that party.

Prior to evaluating the application of these statutes, it is important to acknowledge the specific nature of the Trustee's standing under 11 U.S.C. § 544. Section 544 provides the Trustee two avenues for avoiding transfers: 11 U.S.C. § 544(a) and 544(b). Under § 544(a), the Trustee inherits the rights and powers of either a hypothetical lien creditor or a hypothetical bona fide purchaser, whether or not such a creditor actually exists. 11 U.S.C. § 544(a)(1)-(3). If such a hypothetical lien creditor or bona fide purchaser could avoid the subject transfer under applicable state law, the Trustee is empowered to do the same by § 544(a). [FN11]. However, the Trustee has not provided any authority stating that any party, other than the non-consenting spouse, may move for relief under either Cal. Fam. Code § 1102 or 2040. [FN12].

Under § 544(b)(1), the Trustee "may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property or any obligation incurred by the debtor that is voidable under applicable law by a creditor holding an unsecured claim that is allowable under section 502 of this title...."

By its terms, Section 544(b)(1) requires the existence of an actual creditor who could avoid the transfer. In other words, the effect of this section is to clothe the trustee with no new or additional right in the premises over that possessed by a creditor, but simply puts him in the shoes of the latter. If the actual creditor could not succeed for any reason—whether due to the statute of limitations, estoppel, res judicata, waiver, or any other defense—then the trustee is similarly barred and cannot avoid the transfer.

In re DBSI, Inc., 869 F.3d 1004, 1009 (9th Cir. 2017) (internal quotations omitted); see also In re Acequia, Inc., 34 F.3d 800, 809 (9th Cir. 1994) ("[T]he trustee is chained to the rights of creditors when invoking section 544(b)."). "[T]he existence of a section 544(b) cause of action depends upon whether a creditor existing at the time the transfers were made still had a viable claim against the debtor at the time the bankruptcy petition was filed." Acequia, 34 F.3d at 807 (emphasis in Acequia) (internal quotations omitted).

The Trustee appears to assert he is stepping into the shoes of Ms. Anderson. However, on the petition date, Ms. Anderson was not an unsecured creditor. Nevertheless, if Ms. Anderson qualifies as an unsecured creditor under § 544(b) (i.e., because she agreed to waive her judicial lien as a preferential transfer), the Trustee has not demonstrated that Ms. Anderson could successfully avoid the Biddles' Deed of Trust under Cal. Fam. Code §§ 1102 or 2040 on the petition date. [FN13].

As noted above, under § 544(b), the Trustee is bound by all the defenses available against Ms. Anderson. The Biddles have raised a genuine issue of material fact as to whether Ms. Anderson's claims under Cal. Fam. Code §§ 1102 and 2040 were fully litigated prepetition. Under California law, claim preclusion is defined as follows:

[A] final judgment, rendered upon the merits by a court having jurisdiction of the cause, is conclusive of the rights of the parties and those in privity with them, and is a complete bar to a new suit between them on the same cause of action.

Burdette v. Carrier Corp., 158 Cal.App.4th 1668, 1681–82 (Ct. App. 2008) (citing Goddard v. Security Title Insurance & Guarantee Co., 14 Cal.2d 47, 51 (1939)) (internal quotations omitted). California's res judicata doctrine bars duplicative litigation of matters that were raised or could have been raised. Tensor Grp. v. City of Glendale, 14 Cal.App.4th 154, 160 (Ct. App. 1993) ("If the matter was within the scope of the action, related to the subject matter and relevant to the issues, so that it could have been raised, the judgment is conclusive on it despite the fact that it was not in fact expressly pleaded or otherwise urged.") (emphasis in Tensor).

Before the family court, Ms. Anderson raised the issues currently raised by the Trustee. Ms. Anderson explicitly raised Debtor's violation of the temporary restraining order under Family Code § 2040. Ms. Anderson also could have raised Family Code § 1102(d), if she wanted to avoid the Biddles' Deed of Trust. Instead, Ms. Anderson requested different remedies, such as a money judgment, a judgment lien, sanctions and appointment of a receiver to sell the Property. The family court entered an order granting Ms. Anderson these remedies. That order has not been appealed.

In response, the Trustee states that he is not in privity with the parties to the dissolution action. However, as explained above, the Trustee is stepping into the shoes of Ms. Anderson, an actual party to the dissolution action. Because Ms. Anderson would be barred from relitigating these issues, the Trustee also is barred. See DBSI, 869 F.3d at 1009 ("If the actual creditor could not succeed for any reason—whether due to the statute of limitations, estoppel, res judicata, waiver, or any other defense—then the trustee is similarly barred and cannot avoid the transfer.") (emphasis added).

The Biddles also contend that Ms. Anderson ratified Debtor's conduct. However, the Biddles reference conduct by Ms. Anderson that constitutes waiver of an available remedy and res judicata, not ratification. "Ratification is the voluntary election by a person to adopt in some manner as his or her own an act that was purportedly done on his or her behalf by another person, the effect of which, as to some of all persons, is to treat the act as if originally authorized by him or her." Estate of Stephens, 28 Cal.4th 665, 673 (2002) (citing Rakestraw v. Rodrigues, 8 Cal.3d 67, 73 (1972)). An agent's act "may be adopted expressly or it may be adopted by implication based on conduct of the purported principal from which an intention to consent to or adopt the act may be fairly inferred." Rakestraw, 8 Cal.3d at 73.

Here, Ms. Anderson did not adopt Debtor's conduct. After learning about the documents signed on her behalf, Ms. Anderson immediately raised the issues before the family court. Because Ms. Anderson neither approved of Debtor's conduct nor remained silent, the Court cannot infer an "intention to consent to or adopt" Debtor's actions. Rakestraw, 8 Cal.3d at 73. The Biddles' arguments more closely reflect waiver of a remedy than ratification of the act.

For instance, in Hyatt v. Mabie, 24 Cal.App.4th 541 (Ct. App. 1994), just prior to a dissolution trial, the husband borrowed $24,750 from the defendants and secured the loan with a deed of trust against a residence held as community property. Hyatt, 24 Cal.App.4th at 543. The wife did not know about this transfer. Id. Subsequently, in connection with a sale of the residence, the wife signed escrow instructions directing that the defendants' note be paid from the proceeds of sale. Id. After the sale of the residence, the plaintiff filed a complaint against the defendants seeking to recover the $24,750 paid to the defendants from the sale. Id., at 545. On appeal, the California appellate court held that—

[T]he record supports the trial court's factual finding that plaintiff waived a known remedy. Plaintiff first discovered the encumbrance in June 1990 after the dissolution but before the property had been sold. The dissolution court had reserved jurisdiction over the sale and its proceeds to make appropriate orders on application of either party. Plaintiff could have requested a modification of the judgment to adjust the division of the community property to take account of the newly discovered encumbrance. Instead plaintiff signed instructions directing the escrowee to pay off defendants' encumbrance from the sale proceeds. The defendants were paid in full and the deed of trust reconveyed. Rather than seeking relief from the dissolution court, plaintiff chose to proceed with the sale, knowing Hyatt's share of the proceeds would be used to pay off the note owing to defendants. Plaintiff's remedy was to move the dissolution court for a modification of the decree to equalize the property division in light of the newly discovered encumbrance. We conclude plaintiff waived her remedy.

Id., at 547.

Here, Ms. Anderson chose to obtain a judgment and judgment lien in the amount of $525,000 (and the same with respect to the $4,000 in sanctions) rather than to seek cancellation of the Biddles' Deed of Trust. Thus, the evidence indicates that Ms. Anderson waived cancellation of the Biddles' Deed of Trust as a remedy. In any event, because the family court entered a prepetition order adjudicating the same rights that the Trustee asserts here, and because Ms. Anderson could have raised cancellation before entry of that order, the family court's order precludes this Court from reassessing these issues.

C. Fraudulent Transfer

To prevail on a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(A), the Trustee must prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that: (1) the Property was property of the estate; (2) there was a transfer of such property; (3) the transfer occurred within two years before the petition date; and (4) the transfer was made with the actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud Debtor's creditors. In re GGW Brands, LLC, 504 B.R. 577, 607 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2013). Courts generally consider the following badges of fraud when assessing intent to hinder, delay or defraud—

1. Actual or threatened litigation against the Debtor;
2. A purported transfer of all or substantially all of the Debtor's property;
3. Insolvency or other unmanageable indebtedness on the part of the Debtor;
4. A special relationship between the Debtor and the transferee; and
5. After the transfer, retention by the Debtor of the property involved in the putative transfer.

Id., at 607-08.

Here, there is a genuine issue of material fact as to whether Debtor executed the Biddles' Deed of Trust with actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors. The Trustee asserts that the Court need not consider the badges of fraud, because Debtor's forgery is conclusive as to his intent. The Trustee has not provided any legal support for his proposition that evidence of forgery conclusively establishes fraudulent intent. The evidence of forgery on some of the documents certainly is relevant to the Court's overall analysis. However, here, it does not establish the requisite intent.

First, the specific transfer the Trustee seeks to avoid is the execution of the Biddles' Deed of Trust. The Biddles' Deed of Trust itself does not contain a forged signature or notarization. In addition, there is a genuine issue of material fact as to whether Debtor had authority, under either the Anderson Trust or the Power of Attorney, to execute documents on Ms. Anderson's behalf. If Debtor believed he had authority to execute the transfers, the fact that the documents contain a forgery, standing alone, would not establish intent to hinder, delay or defraud.

Debtor used a significant portion of the subject funds to fund the Sharp Image litigation, to pay property taxes on the Property and to satisfy community debts. As such, the Court cannot conclude that Debtor intended to hinder, delay or defraud creditors; Debtor's intent may have been to preserve a valuable judgment in the Sharp Image Litigation.

Although Debtor was involved in litigation at the time of the subject transfer, the Trustee has not shown that the transfer to the Biddles was of substantially all of Debtor's property or that Debtor was insolvent and/or unable to manage his debt. Debtor's financial condition at the time of the transfer is reflected in the income and expense declarations and Debtor's schedules filed in his bankruptcy case. The Trustee relies on these documents to discuss Debtor's lack of income and liabilities, yet the Trustee does not account for Debtor's assets.

For instance, in the 2017 IED, Debtor stated that he had no income. On the other hand, in the assets section, when prompted to value his real and personal property, he wrote in "TBD." There is no other evidence regarding the value of Debtor's assets in or around September 2017, i.e., the relevant time period. In the 2016 IED, Debtor listed $1,685,500 in assets; this amount does not include the Sharp Image Judgment (which Debtor valued highly at the time) or several assets, such as a Jaguar, an Audi, an interest in a business and multiple Wells Fargo accounts, which Debtor valued as "unknown." Moreover, in his bankruptcy schedules, although Debtor stated he did not receive any income during the two years preceding the petition date, Debtor also scheduled $76,683,569 in assets, including $300,000 in crystals, paintings and jewelry. Finally, in connection with the transfer to the Biddles, Debtor paid off and eliminated two liens against the Property; as such, although the Biddles' Deed of Trust encumbered the Property, the Biddles' loan was used to release other encumbrances against the Property.

Taking these facts into account, the Trustee has not adequately addressed Debtor's assets, including whether Debtor overvalued his assets and their actual value, whether the assets were encumbered and whether the Biddles' $525,000 loan, which also served to eliminate some of Debtor's liabilities, rendered Debtor insolvent or constituted a transfer of "substantially all" of Debtor's assets.

The Trustee also has not demonstrated that there was a special relationship between Debtor and the Biddles. Instead, the Trustee states that there was a special relationship between Debtor and the Anderson Trust. While true, the transferees at issue here are the Biddles, and the Trustee does not contend that the Biddles and Debtor had a special relationship. In fact, as discussed by Mr. Prather, Debtor contacted FHL and arranged the loan with Mr. Prather, not with the Biddles. There is no evidence Debtor personally knew the Biddles.

Finally, Debtor did not secretly retain the property involved in the transfer. Consequently, at this time, the Trustee has not met his burden of proving that the transfer to the Biddles was fraudulent under § 548(a)(1).

Even if the Trustee had met his burden of proof under § 548(a)(1), the Biddles have raised a genuine issue of material fact as to whether they were good faith transferees. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 548(c)—

Except to the extent that a transfer or obligation voidable under this section is voidable under section 544, 545, or 547 of this title, a transferee or obligee of such a transfer or obligation that takes for value and in good faith has a lien on or may retain any interest transferred or may enforce any obligation incurred, as the case may be, to the extent that such transferee or obligee gave value to the debtor in exchange for such transfer or obligation.

"[G]ood faith is not susceptible of precise definition." In re Agricultural Research & Tech. Group, Inc., 916 F.2d 528, 536 (9th Cir. 1990) (internal quotation omitted). "[K]nowledge or actual notice of circumstances sufficient to put [the transferee], as a prudent man, upon inquiry as to whether [the transferor] intended to delay or defraud his creditors... should be deemed to have notice...." Id. (quoting Shauer v. Alerton, 151 U.S. 607, 621, 14 S.Ct. 442, 446, 38 L.Ed. 286 (1894)).

The parties do not dispute that the Biddles provided value for the Biddles' Deed of Trust. Nonetheless, the Trustee asserts that the Biddles did not act in good faith.

Chapter 7

According to the Trustee, the unattached jurats should have been a "red flag," and the Biddles should have further investigated the accuracy of the documents given to Mr. Prather by Debtor.

As to the jurats, Mr. Prather has testified that the jurats came unattached during copying of the documents. In essence, the Trustee states that this contention is not credible. However, at this summary judgment stage, the Court cannot ascertain credibility.

As to the Trustee's assertion that Mr. Prather should have been more diligent, Mr. Prather stated that he ran a title report and, based on the title report, instructed Debtor to transfer the Property to his name. Upon receiving documents that purported to show such a transfer, Mr. Prather sent them to a title company for approval. In addition, Mr. Prather verified Debtor's representation that the $170,000 deed of trust was paid. Moreover, because Mr. Prather focused on asset-based financing, he obtained an appraisal of the Property.

The Trustee asserts that Mr. Prather was obligated to further investigate the documents handed to him. However, with the possible exception of the jurats, there is nothing in the record that demonstrates that Mr. Prather had "knowledge or actual notice" that Debtor was attempting to delay or defraud his creditors. From Mr. Prather's perspective, the other encumbrances against the Property had either been satisfied, subordinated or released. As such, even if the Trustee had proven his case in chief, the Court could not hold, at this time, that the Biddles acted without good faith.

D. California Civil Code § 1227

Pursuant to California Civil Code § 1227—

CERTAIN INSTRUMENTS VOID AGAINST PURCHASERS,
ETC. Every instrument, other than a will, affecting an estate in real property, including every charge upon real property, or upon its rents or profits, made with intent to defraud prior or subsequent purchasers thereof, or incumbrancers thereon, is void as against every purchaser or incumbrancer, for value, of the same property, or the rents or profits thereof.

Here, it does not appear that Debtor intended to defraud "prior or subsequent purchasers" of the Property. As noted above, the Biddles have raised a genuine issue of material fact as to Debtor's intent for encumbering the Property; specifically, the Biddles have shown that Debtor spent a portion of the funds on the Sharp Image litigation and paying off community debts. As such, there is insufficient evidence demonstrating that Debtor intended to defraud Ms. Anderson, as a prior purchaser. There also is no evidence that Debtor intended to defraud other prior or subsequent purchasers.

Moreover, because the Trustee has not specified any prior or subsequent purchasers, other than Ms. Anderson, this statute poses the same issues as the community property statutes. Given that Ms. Anderson, as the allegedly defrauded prior purchaser, already has adjudicated her claim against Debtor and received her chosen remedies from the family court, the Trustee could not step into Ms. Anderson's shoes to avoid the Biddles' Deed of Trust.

E. Preferential Transfers

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 547(b)—

Except as provided in subsections (c) and (i) of this section, the trustee may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property—

- (1) to or for the benefit of a creditors;
- (2) for or on account of an antecedent debt owed by the debtor before such transfer was made;
- (3) made while the debtor was insolvent;
- (4) made—

(A) on or within 90 days before the date of the filing of the petition; or

- (B) between ninety days and one year before the date of the filing of the petition, if such creditor at the time of such transfer was an insider; and
- (5) that enables such creditor to receive more than such creditor would receive if—
- (A) the case were a case under chapter 7 of this title;
- (B) the transfer had not been made; and
- (C) such creditor received payment of such debt to the extent provided by the provisions of this title.

Here, the parties dispute the third and fifth elements. As to insolvency, under 11 U.S.C. § 547(f), "[f]or the purposes of this section, the debtor is presumed to have been insolvent on and during the 90 days immediately preceding the date of the filing of the petition." Although the Biddles dispute this element, they do not provide evidence to rebut the presumption that Debtor was insolvent during the 90 days preceding the petition date. As such, there is no genuine issue of material fact as to this element.

However, there is a genuine issue of material fact regarding § 547(b)(5). The Trustee's argument under § 547(b)(5) appears to rest on the presumption that the Biddles' claim is unsecured. But, as discussed above, the Trustee has not met his burden of proving the priority of critical encumbrances against the Property. The encumbrances against the Property exceed the sale price by $128,635.02. If Plummer Group's and Mr. Flores's liens, which total $137,612.50, are junior to the Biddles' lien, the Biddles would be fully secured. [FN14].

If the Biddles are fully secured, the subject transfers would not have enabled the Biddles to receive more than they would in a chapter 7 liquidation. See, e.g. In re Imagine Fulfillment Servs., LLC, 489 B.R. 136, 151 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2013) ("[B]ecause a fully-secured creditor will always receive payment in full on its claim in a chapter 7 case, a payment to a fully-secured creditor would not be preferential."). Consequently, the Trustee has not demonstrated that the prepetition transfers at issue were preferential.

F. Usury

"Whether a transaction is usurious must be determined as of the time of the transaction." First Am. Title Ins. & Tr. Co. v. Cook, 12 Cal.App.3d 592, 596 (Ct. App. 1970). Here, the Trustee's usury claim is dependent on the Court deeming the Biddles' Deed of Trust void. The Trustee's theories that may result in avoidance of the Deed of Trust would be insufficient to designate the loan usurious; a subsequent avoidance would not change the nature of the loan as secured at the time of the subject transaction. At this time, the Trustee has not demonstrated that the Deed of Trust is void and, as a result, has not shown that the loan was usurious.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the MSJ.

The Biddles must submit an order within seven (7) days.

1. During the course of this adversary proceeding, Mr. Biddle passed away.
2. Despite reinstating its corporate status and numerous petitions for rehearing and review, Sharp Image's efforts to reverse the appellate court's decision were unsuccessful. UF, ¶¶ 160, 162, 165-167. On June 25, 2018, the Supreme Court of the United States denied a writ of certiorari filed by Sharp Image, concluding the Sharp Image litigation. UF, ¶ 173.
3. Inclusion of a spouse's forged signature does not necessarily render the document void. For instance, if the forging spouse had implied authority, or if the forgery benefitted the non-forging spouse, the transfer still may be valid, despite the forgery. See In re Nelson, 761 F.2d 1320 (9th Cir. 1985).
4. The Trustee does not contend that Debtor forged Mr. Kaminsky's signature in this notarization.

5. Because the parties agree that Ms. Anderson and Ms. Lopez did not sign the 2017 Revocation of Trust, Debtor was the only party to sign the 2017 Revocation of Trust.
6. The Biddles reference California Probate Code § 18100, which protects third parties from trustees who act beyond the scope of their authority, if the third parties act in good faith, for valuable consideration and without actual knowledge that the trustee is exceeding his or her power. The Court need not reach this issue because the record is insufficient as to whether, at the time of the subject transfer, the Anderson Trust remained in effect.
7. The Court queries whether the automatic temporary restraining order, which arose when Ms. Anderson filed for dissolution of marriage, invalidated the Power of Attorney. Neither party has addressed this issue.
8. The same is true for the avoided liens of Plummer Group and Ms. Houghton (if the liens were senior to the Biddles' Deed of Trust).
9. As a preliminary matter, a claim under Cal. Fam. Code § 1102(d) is not time barred despite the one-year limitations period set forth in the statute. Debtor filed his bankruptcy petition within the one-year period. As a result, the limitations period was tolled pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 108(a) and 546.
10. As discussed above, Debtor was a "duly authorized agent" pursuant to the Power of Attorney. For purposes of the analysis in this section, the Court will presume that the Power of Attorney was invalid when Debtor executed the Biddles' Deed of Trust.
11. Because a hypothetical lien creditor or bona fide purchaser could challenge a deed in the chain of title on the basis that it is void, the Trustee has standing under § 544(a) to challenge the Biddles' Deed of Trust on his theory of forgery.
12. In fact, with respect to Cal. Fam. Code § 1102, California courts have held that the statute "has never been interpreted in such a way as to provide a means whereby a third party creditor of the married couple may challenge and void

Fam. Code § 2040, the Court did not find any reported decisions where a third party creditor attempted to invoke the statute to invalidate a lien.

13. Violations of Cal. Fam. Code § 1102 are voidable, not void. Clar, 193 Cal.App.3d at 1036.

14. The Court is using the $20,000 value of Mr. Flores's lien, in accordance with the Flores Compromise. As discussed above, because Mr. Flores apparently agreed to subordinate his lien, the Biddles' Deed of Trust would be senior to his lien.

#6.00 Motion for an order quashing "Notice of deposition, of person most knowledgeable of The Sands Law Group APLC and request for production of documents" Initiated by the Debtor-In-Possession and Dmitri Lioudkovski and his attorney David B. Golubchik

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

Given that the Court resolved the contested matter from which this discovery dispute arose, the debtor's notice of deposition and the motion to quash that notice are moot.

The movant did not timely file a reply to the debtor's opposition. To the extent the movant is still requesting sanctions against the debtor, the request is denied. The movant requests sanctions on two bases: (A) failure to comply with Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 7026-1(c); and (B) failure to send a notice to Gina Lisitsa under California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 1987.2.

Pursuant to LBR 7026-1(c)(1):

Unless excused from complying with this rule by order of the court for good cause shown, a party must seek to resolve any dispute arising under FRBP 7026-7037 or FRBP 2004 in accordance with this rule.

LBR 7026-1(c)(2) requires the following:

Prior to the filing of any motion relating to discovery, counsel for the parties must meet in person or by telephone in a good faith effort to resolve a recovery dispute. It is the responsibility of counsel for the moving party to arrange the conference. Unless altered by agreement of the parties or by order of the court for cause shown, counsel for the opposing party must meet with the counsel for the moving party within 7 days of service upon counsel of a letter requesting such meeting and specifying the terms of the discovery order to be sought.

(emphasis added). Should no resolution be reached, LBR 7026-1(c)(3) requires the parties provide a joint stipulation between the parties setting forth the disputed issues.

The movant contends that the debtor did not respond to its efforts to meet and confer. However, in a declaration attached to the motion, Thomas Sands appears to state that the debtor did not respond to meet and confer requests regarding the movant's unrelated request for an examination under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 2004. There is nothing in the record demonstrating that the movant attempted to meet and confer with the debtor regarding this discovery dispute.

The movant cites CCP § 1987.2 as an alternative basis for sanctions, asserting that the debtor sought to obtain private information about Ms. Lisitsa, and that the debtor should have sent a consumer notice to Ms. Lisitsa regarding the debtor's discovery requests. However, under CCP § 1985.3(a)(3), the debtor does not qualify as a "subpoenaing party" required to send such a notice because a "subpoenaing party" is defined as "the person or persons causing a subpoena duces tecum to be issued or served in connection with any civil action or proceeding pursuant to this code...." (emphasis added). "[T]his code" refers to the CCP. Given that the contested matter at issue was the Motion to Disqualify, which was based entirely on federal law, the CCP is inapplicable. See, e.g. Kaur v. City of Lodi, 2016 WL 10679575, at *1 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) ("Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 1985.3(a) is, by its terms, inapplicable to subpoenas issued in federal court cases.").

In addition, a consumer entitled to such notice "means any individual, partnership of five or fewer persons, association, or trust which has transacted business with, or has used the services of, the witness or for whom the witness has acted as agent or fiduciary." CCP § 1985.3(a)(2). Nothing in the record before the Court suggests that the movant acted as an agent or fiduciary for Ms. Lisitsa.

Finally, the notice of deposition requested production of documents, correspondence and materials between the movant and Ms. Lisitsa "with respect to the Debtor including, without limitation, any managers or members of the Debtor." Notice of Deposition, p. 3 (emphasis added). Given that the request pertains solely to materials related to the debtor and/or its members, it is unclear which of Ms. Lisitsa's "private

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On January 6, 2014, Sos S. Arutyunyan ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On November 5, 2014, Debtor, on the one hand, and secured creditors Jimmy Lee Grand McCoy and Myrtle Marie McCoy (the "McCoys"), on the other hand, executed a settlement agreement regarding treatment of the McCoys' claim (the "Settlement Agreement"). In relevant part, the Settlement Agreement provided—

Debtor shall pay all property taxes when due, and provide Creditor with evidence of payment within ten (10) days of the payment date. In addition, Debtor shall maintain all required property insurance reflecting Creditor as the "loss payee," and provide Creditor with evidence of insurance coverage within ten (10) days of the request by Creditor.

Debtor stipulates to immediate relief from the automatic stay effective upon seven (7) days' written notice from Creditor to Debtor in the event Debtor defaults under the terms of this Agreement. If Debtor fails to cure said default within seven (7) days, Creditor[s] may submit to the Court and the Court may enter an order granting relief from the automatic stay. Parties agree to the entry of a stipulated order granting relief from the automatic stay (the "Order")....

11 Plan of Reorganization Dated November 26, 2014 (the "Plan") [doc. 98]. In the Plan, Debtor classified the McCoys as secured creditors in Class 5(b). Other than the McCoys, the Plan designated a class of unsecured creditors as Class 6(b). On April 2, 2015, the Court entered an order confirming the Plan (the "Confirmation Order") [doc. 122]. The Confirmation Order provided that Debtor "shall not be entitled to receive a discharge until all payments required to be made under the Plan to the holders of unclassified claims, priority claims and general unsecured claims have been paid in full." Confirmation Order, p. 2 (emphasis added).

On June 10, 2020, Debtor filed a motion for entry of a discharge and final decree (the "Motion") [doc. 142]. In a declaration attached to the Motion, Debtor stated that he "completed making Class 6(b) payments to general unsecured creditors." Declaration of Sos S. Arutyunyan, ¶ 11.

On June 24, 2020, the McCoys filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 144]. In the Opposition, the McCoys contend that Debtor has not timely made property tax payments and has not timely provided proof of current insurance to the McCoys. As such, the McCoys assert that Debtor has breached the Settlement Agreement and entry of a discharge is premature.

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, the remedy for Debtor's default under the Settlement Agreement is for Debtor to stipulate "to immediate relief from the automatic stay upon seven (7) days' written notice from" the McCoys to Debtor. Debtor then has seven days to cure any such default. As such, if the McCoys believe Debtor has breached the Settlement Agreement and would like to pursue enforcement of the terms therein, the McCoys must employ the procedures set forth in the Settlement Agreement.

The Settlement Agreement does not provide for denial of Debtor's discharge as a consequence for breaching the terms of the Settlement Agreement. Moreover, the Confirmation Order explicitly states that Debtor may receive a discharge upon completing payments to "holders of unclassified claims, priority claims and general unsecured claims." Confirmation Order, p. 2. The McCoys' claim is not an unclassified, priority or general unsecured claim. Because Debtor states in his declaration that he has completed payments of unclassified, priority or general unsecured claims, Debtor is entitled to a discharge.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion. The McCoys may pursue other remedies available to them.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

I. BACKGROUND

On December 18, 2019, Daniel Michael Uzan ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On March 23, 2020, Jason Mitchell and JHM Ventures ("Plaintiffs") filed a complaint against Defendant (the "Complaint"), seeking nondischargeability of the debt owed to them pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6). In relevant part, the Complaint includes the following factual allegations:

Mr. Mitchell is President of JHM. In February 2015, Mr. Mitchell and Defendant agreed to go into business together for the purpose of providing home automation services. Mr. Mitchell and Defendant entered into a written shareholder agreement ("Shareholder Agreement") as equal shareholders of TRU Smart Home Installations, Inc. (the "Corporation"). The Shareholder Agreement stipulated that consent of all shareholders was required to approve the voluntary dissolution of the Corporation.

At the time that Mr. Mitchell and Defendant agreed to go into business together, Defendant represented to Mr. Mitchell that he annually performed between $150,000 and $200,000 in electrical projects. Defendant further represented that he had agreements for projects with an electrical union for $2 million as well as an existing $500,000 project. Defendant represented that he routinely received referrals for home automation services and that he had several clients who were in the process of hiring him to install home automation services. These representations were false, and Defendant was aware of the falsity and misleading nature of his statements at the time that they were made.

In February 2015, Defendant entered into a written guaranty agreement ("Guaranty Agreement") with JHM, pursuant to which Defendant became the guarantor of a $300,000 loan to the Corporation. Defendant has refused to pay the loan that is the subject of the Guaranty Agreement.

In entering into the Shareholder Agreement and Guaranty Agreement, Plaintiffs relied on Defendant's representations to their detriment. Plaintiffs have been damaged in the sum of at least $472,938.

In addition, Mr. Mitchell contributed between $50,000 and $60,000 to the Corporation. Defendant was required to contribute inventory to the Corporation to offset this monetary contribution. As an equal shareholder in the Corporation, Mr. Mitchell had an equal ownership in these assets. Defendant misappropriated these assets by taking them for his own personal use and for the use of Defendant's other companies. Defendant has refused to return the inventory or monetary contributions to Mr. Mitchell. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Mr. Mitchell has suffered damages of not less than $60,000.

In addition to making false representations and misappropriating the Corporation's property, Defendant breached his fiduciary duty owed to Mr. Mitchell by: (1) failing to properly manage and operate the business and affairs of the Corporation, (2) dissolving the Corporation and changing its name to "Elements Smart Homes Solutions, Inc." ("Elements") without Mr. Mitchell's consent, (3) failing to follow winding up procedures and (4) failing to exercise actions required of him as a Director, Managing Shareholder and President of the Corporation.

On May 26, 2020, Defendant filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint [doc 8]. On July 15, 2020, Plaintiffs filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 12].

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

B. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)

In the Complaint, Plaintiffs do not specify on which subsection their § 523(a)(2) claims are based. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition" (emphasis added).

[A] statement is "respecting" a debtor's financial condition if it has a direct relation to or impact on the debtor's overall financial status. A single asset has a direct relation to and impact on aggregate financial condition, so a statement about a single asset bears on a debtor's overall financial condition and can help indicate whether a debtor is solvent or insolvent, able to repay a given debt or not. Naturally, then, a statement about a single asset can be a "statement respecting the debtor's financial condition."

Lamar, Archer & Cofrin, LLP v. Appling, 138 S.Ct. 1752, 1761, 201 L.Ed.2d 102 (2018).

Here, Plaintiffs allege that Defendant represented that he: (A) annually performed between $150,000 and $200,000 in electrical projects; (B) had agreements with an electrical union for projects worth $2 million; (C) had an existing $500,000 project; and (D) routinely received referrals and had several clients who were in the process of hiring him to install home automation services. Under the broad reading of "a statement respecting a debtor's financial condition" set forth by Appling, these statements directly relate to Defendant's financial condition. As a result, the representations fall outside the purview of § 523(a)(2)(A). In the Opposition, Plaintiffs do not argue otherwise. Thus, to proceed with a claim under § 523(a)(2), Plaintiffs must include sufficient allegations under § 523(a)(2)(B).

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(B), the plaintiff must show that the debtor incurred a debt by "use of a statement in writing:"

- (i) that is materially false;
- (ii) respecting the debtor's or an insider's financial condition;
- (iii) on which the creditor to whom the debtor is liable for such money, property, services, or credit reasonably relied; and
- (iv) that the debtor caused to be made or published with intent to deceive....

As noted above, Plaintiffs have alleged several material misrepresentations respecting Defendant's financial condition. Plaintiffs also adequately allege reliance on those representations, and generally allege that Defendant intended to deceive Plaintiffs. Because Plaintiffs allege they would not have entered into their agreements with Defendant but for the representations, the Complaint also includes adequate allegations regarding causation.

However, as acknowledged by Plaintiffs in the Opposition, the issue is that Plaintiffs do not allege that any of the subject misrepresentations were in writing.

Consequently, the Court will dismiss Plaintiffs' § 523(a)(2) claim with leave to amend.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement, or larceny." A debt is nondischargeable for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity "where (1) an express trust existed, (2) the debt was caused by fraud or defalcation, and (3) the debtor acted as a fiduciary to the creditor at the time the debt was created." In re Niles, 106 F.3d 1456, 1459 (9th Cir. 1997).

Whether a relationship is a fiduciary one within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) is a question of federal law. Ragsdale v. Haller, 780 F.2d 794, 795 (9th Cir. 1986); see also In re Cantrell, 269 B.R. 413, 420 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001) ("The definition of 'fiduciary capacity' under § 523(a)(4) is governed by federal law."). In the context of dischargeability, the fiduciary relationship must arise from an express or technical trust that was imposed before and without reference to the wrongdoing that caused the debt. Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796; see also In re Stern, 403 B.R. 58, 66 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009) ("In order for the debt to be actionable for nondischargeability, the debtor must have been a trustee before the alleged wrong and without reference thereto; the debtor must have already been a trustee before the debt was created."); Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420 ("Only relationships arising from express or technical trusts qualify as fiduciary relationships under § 523(a)(4)."). Under § 523(a)(4), a court must consider state law to ascertain whether there is the required express or technical trust. In re Honkanen, 446 B.R. 373, 379 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011). "A trust under California law may be formed by express agreement, by statute, or by case law." Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420. California law does not recognize "officers, directors or controlling shareholders as trustees of either an express or a statutory trust." Id., 421-22.

In the Complaint, Mr. Mitchell's claim under § 523(a)(4) is based on fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary duty. [FN1]. However, corporate officers, directors or shareholders do not owe the type of fiduciary duty contemplated by § 523(a)(4). Mr. Mitchell has not otherwise alleged a fiduciary duty, arising from an express, statutory or technical trust, owed by Defendant to Mr. Mitchell. Plaintiffs do not address this issue in their Opposition.

Instead, in the Opposition, Plaintiffs contend Mr. Mitchell is asserting a claim for embezzlement and/or larceny. "Embezzlement" within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) requires three elements: (1) property rightfully in the possession of the non-owner debtor, (2) the non-owner's misappropriation of the property to a use other than that for which it was entrusted, and (3) circumstances indicating fraud. In re Littleton, 942 F.2d 551, 555 (9th Cir. 1991). "The elements of larceny differ only in that a larcenous debtor has come into possession of funds wrongfully." In re Mickens, 312 B.R. 666, 680 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2004). For purposes of embezzlement and larceny, a fiduciary relationship is not required. Littleton, 942 F.2d at 555.

Mr. Mitchell does not mention embezzlement or larceny in connection with his claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4). Nevertheless, in the Opposition, Plaintiff contends that the Complaint includes sufficient allegations regarding embezzlement and/or larceny. The Complaint does include adequate allegations as to certain elements of embezzlement; for instance, Mr. Mitchell alleges that Defendant was tasked with management and control of the Corporation and, as a result, the Corporation's cash and assets were rightfully in Defendant's possession. Mr. Mitchell also alleges that Defendant misappropriated those assets to other uses. Further, Mr. Mitchell alleges "circumstances indicating fraud" by alleging that Defendant induced Mr. Mitchell to contribute money by intentionally misrepresenting pertinent facts.

However, Mr. Mitchell has not alleged how he, instead of the Corporation, was damaged by the misappropriation. Mr. Mitchell does not allege that he ever owned the Corporation's inventory; instead, Mr. Mitchell alleges he had an "ownership interest" as a shareholder. As to the funds Mr. Mitchell alleges he loaned to the Corporation, the Corporation owned those funds at the time of the alleged misappropriation. Shareholders do not own corporate assets. Eagle v. Am. Tel. & Tel. Co., 769 F.2d 541, 546-47 (9th Cir. 1985) ("Because shareholders do not own the corporation's assets, the wrongful depletion of corporate assets is an injury to the corporation and only an indirect injury to the shareholders.").

While Defendant's alleged misappropriation of the Corporation's assets may have reduced the value of Mr. Mitchell's shares, Mr. Mitchell has not alleged a theory of embezzlement on this basis or explained if any such theory is plausible under applicable law. See, e.g. Eagle, 769 F.2d at 547 ("[S]hareholders normally cannot recover in their individual capacities for a wrongful depletion of corporate assets."). Mr. Mitchell also has not alleged an independent ownership interest in the subject assets. Consequently, the Court will dismiss Mr. Mitchell's claim under § 523(a)(4) with leave to amend.

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity."

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S.Ct. 974, 140 L.Ed. 2d 90 (1998). In the Ninth Circuit, "§ 523(a)(6)'s willful injury requirement is met only when the debtor has a subjective motive to inflict injury or when the debtor believes that injury is substantially certain to result from his own conduct." Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1206 (quoting In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1142 (9th Cir.2002)). "The Debtor is charged with the knowledge of the natural consequences of his actions." Id. (citing In re Cohen, 121 B.R. 267, 271 (Bankr.E.D.N.Y.1990)).

Under § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Maliciousness requires (1) a wrongful act; (2) done intentionally; (3) which necessarily causes injury; (4) without just cause or excuse. Id. at 1147. Maliciousness does not require "personal hatred, spite, or ill-will." In re Bammer, 131 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 1997).

Mr. Mitchell alleges that Defendant willfully and maliciously injured him, that Defendant intended the consequences of his actions and that the injury was substantially certain to result from Defendant's conduct. At the motion to dismiss stage, "[m]alice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Rule 9(b). As such, the Complaint includes adequate allegations regarding the intent elements of § 523(a)(6).

As the "wrongful act," Mr. Mitchell alleges that Defendant misappropriated Mr. Mitchell's cash and ownership interest in the Corporation's inventory by taking such assets for his own personal use. While the Complaint includes sufficient allegations regarding Defendant's disposition of property, Mr. Mitchell has not adequately alleged that he was damaged from the alleged misappropriation.

Once again, Mr. Mitchell alleges he was damaged by Defendant's alleged misappropriation of the Corporation's inventory and the cash Mr. Mitchell loaned to the Corporation. As discussed above, Mr. Mitchell's ownership interest was in the shares of the Corporation, not the cash and inventory owned by the Corporation. Mr. Mitchell has not alleged that he held an interest in these assets for any reason other than he was a shareholder of the Corporation. Mr. Mitchell has not alleged why he was damaged by misappropriation of assets that he did not own.

To the extent applicable authority allows Mr. Mitchell to claim damages for misappropriation of corporate assets, the damage to Mr. Mitchell would be loss of value in the shares, not loss of the value of the assets themselves. Otherwise, Mr. Mitchell would have to allege that he had an independent interest in these assets, or that, upon dissolution of the Corporation and but for the alleged misappropriation, Mr. Mitchell would have received more money than he did. Such allegations are not in the Complaint.

In the Opposition, Plaintiffs also argue that the allegations regarding Defendant unilaterally changing the Corporation's name serve as another basis for their § 523(a)(6) claim. However, the Complaint does not include any allegations that the name change resulted in Mr. Mitchell losing his shares in the Corporation (or any other loss to Mr. Mitchell stemming from this conduct). If Mr. Mitchell intends to use the alleged name change as a basis for his § 523(a)(6) claim, he must allege how he was damaged by the change. In light of the above, the Court also will dismiss this claim with leave to amend.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss Plaintiffs' claims with leave to amend. If Plaintiffs elect to amend the Complaint, they must file and serve an amended complaint no later than August 19, 2020. If Plaintiffs file an amended complaint, Defendant must file and serve a response no later than September 9, 2020.

#17.00 Motion to compel further responses to requests for production of documents, set no. 1, to debtor Kenneth C. Scott, and for production of documents, and for imposition of monetary sanctions

Docket 46

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will deny in part and grant in part the motion to compel, filed by H. Samuel Hopper, and the motions to quash, filed by the debtor, Kenneth C. Scott ("Debtor").

I. BACKGROUND

A. Bankruptcy Case

On December 18, 2018 (the "Petition Date"), Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, initiating case 1:18-bk-13024-VK. Prior to Debtor filing his petition, on November 7, 2018, H. Samuel Hopper ("Creditor") filed a complaint in the California Superior Court, County of Los Angeles against Debtor for, among other things, various wage claims, civil penalties, statutory penalties, interest and attorneys' fees and costs (the "State Court Action") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 70, Exh. 1]. On December 11, 2018, Debtor apparently was served with the summons and the complaint in the State Court Action [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 20, Exh. 2].

On the Petition Date, Debtor filed his original bankruptcy schedules and statements [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 1]. In his schedule A/B, Debtor scheduled an interest in personal property with an aggregate value of $126,817.28, including a 100% interest in My Private Practice, Inc. ("MPPI") valued at $0.00. [FN1]. Debtor also scheduled an interest in "monies in business account," valued at $17,274.00 (the "Funds"). In his latest-amended schedule C [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 35], Debtor claimed exemptions in $126,817.28 of that personal property.

In his schedule D [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 1], Debtor did not list any secured creditors. In his schedule E/F [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 1], Debtor listed nonpriority unsecured claims totaling $123,841.73. Those nonpriority unsecured claims consisted of: (1) a $9,069.00 claim in favor of Bank of America for a revolving credit account; (2) a $30,000.00 claim in favor of Creditor for the State Court Action; (3) a $35,600.00 claim in favor of JoAnn Scott, who is Debtor's mother; and (4) a $49,172.73 claim in favor of Johanna Scott, Debtor's estranged wife. In his statement of financial affairs ("SOFA") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 1], Debtor indicated that he is married.

In his original schedule I [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 1], Debtor indicated that he was employed as a therapist at MPPI. In his latest-amended schedules I and J, filed on May 17, 2019 [Bankruptcy Case, docs. 95 and 96], Debtor represented that his monthly income, as of the Petition Date, was $5,005.30 and his monthly expenses were $4,511.69, leaving net monthly income of $493.61. In his latest-amended SOFA, filed on March 6, 2019 [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 34], Debtor indicated that, along with MPPI, Debtor was involved in the business of "Kenneth Scott - Psy'd, Inc." ("Scott Psy.D"). [FN2].

B. Proofs of Claim

Five creditors have filed proofs of claim in Debtor's bankruptcy case. American Honda Finance Corporation filed proof of claim 1-1, which indicates that it holds a secured claim (arising from a lease) in the amount of $19,469.73. Bank of America, N.A. filed proof of claim 2-1, which indicates that it holds a nonpriority unsecured claim in the amount of $8,944.00.

On December 16, 2019, Creditor filed an amended proof of claim 3-3, asserting a nonpriority unsecured claim in the amount of $169,432.60 [Claim 3-3]. JoAnn Scott filed proof of claim 4-1, which indicates that she holds a nonpriority unsecured claim in the amount of $35,600.00.

Johanna Scott filed proof of claim 5-1, which indicates that she holds a nonpriority unsecured claim in the amount of $49,172.00. At the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor testified that he and Johanna Scott have been separated since 2012 and that he moved out in 2012 [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 41, Exh. 1, p. 4:1-5]. In a declaration filed on August 28, 2019, Debtor testified that he and Ms. Scott executed a marital separation agreement on April 24, 2014 (the "MSA") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 167, ¶ 2]. Ms. Scott's proof of claim is based on the MSA.

C. Motion to Dismiss Chapter 13 Case

On April 19, 2019, Creditor filed a motion to dismiss Debtor's bankruptcy case, which was based, in part, on bad faith (the "Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 70]. Creditor argued, among other things, that: (A) Debtor's schedules were false or incomplete; (B) Debtor may be misrepresenting/manipulating his income from MPPI and/or Scott Psy.D; (C) Debtor produced no evidence of his right to receive the Funds; (E) Debtor has produced no evidence that Scott Psy.D is a viable entity and that his income from that entity can fund a feasible chapter 13 plan; (F) JoAnn Scott and Johanna Scott's claims may be fraudulent; and (G) Debtor does not need to reorganize his debts, and he filed his bankruptcy case to delay and hinder the State Court Action.

Prior to the May 14, 2019 hearing on the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case, the Court posted a tentative ruling denying the motion. However, based on Creditor's oral argument at that hearing, the Court continued the hearing on the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case for the Creditor to take discovery regarding the issue of bad faith [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 123].

On November 13, 2019, the Court held a continued status conference on the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case. Creditor's counsel was present at that status conference. At that status conference, the Court set a continued status conference for December 10, 2019 and ordered the parties to file a joint status report by November 26, 2019, two weeks prior to the continued status conference, regarding the discovery that Creditor would take in connection with the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case. On November 26, 2019, the Court entered a Scheduling Order re Motion to Dismiss Debtor Kenneth C. Scott's Chapter 13 Petition, which addressed the continued status conference date and extended the deadline for the parties to file a joint status report (the "Scheduling Order") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 180]. [FN3].

On November 20, 2019, Debtor filed a motion for summary judgment on the issue of bad faith (the "MSJ") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 174]. A continued hearing on the MSJ is set for July 29, 2020 at 2:30 p.m.

On November 26, 2019, Debtor and Creditor filed a joint status report [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 181]. In that joint status report, Creditor stated that he intended to take written discovery, including interrogatories, requests for admission and document requests, and depositions of Debtor, Niaz Khnai, JoAnn Scott and the person most knowledgeable at Fenton & Ross, CPA ("Fenton"), Debtor's accountant.

On December 10, 2019, the Court held a continued status conference on the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case. Prior to the status conference, the Court posted a tentative ruling regarding Debtor's objections to Creditor's proposed discovery. Creditor's counsel did not appear at that status conference. At the status conference, the Court set February 1, 2020, as the last day for discovery to be completed on the issue of bad faith [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 183].

D. Related Adversary Proceeding

On April 19, 2019, Creditor filed a complaint against Debtor and Debtor's corporation, MPPI, initiating adversary proceeding 1:19-ap-01046-VK (the "Adversary Proceeding"). On July 13, 2019, Creditor filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 8]. On June 16, 2020, the Court entered an order granting in part and denying in part the motion to dismiss the FAC [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 61].

On June 17, 2020, Creditor filed a second amended complaint ("SAC") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 62]. On July 17, 2020, Debtor filed a motion to dismiss the SAC. That motion is pending, and no hearing on that motion has been set.

According to the parties' most recently filed status report [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 14 and 15], the parties have not met and conferred in compliance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7026-1.

At the status conference held on June 3, 2020, the Court stated that it would stay all matters related to the Adversary Proceeding until the MSJ and Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case have been resolved.

Request for Production of Documents, Set No. 1, to Debtor Kenneth C. Scott (the "Debtor RFPD") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 48, Exh. 19]. On January 22, 2020, Debtor's counsel emailed Creditor's counsel Debtor's responses to the Debtor RFPD [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 48, Exh. 27]. Debtor responded by objecting to each request.

On March 2, 2020, Creditor filed a Motion to Compel Further Responses to Requests for Production of Documents, Set No. 1, to Debtor Kenneth C. Scott, and for Production of Documents, and for Imposition of Monetary Sanctions (the "Motion to Compel") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 46]. On the same day, Creditor filed a joint statement of questions and answers in dispute (the "Debtor Joint Statement") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 47] and a declaration of Debtor's counsel [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 48].

In the Debtor Joint Statement, Debtor objects to the document production requests based on: (a) relevance; (b) overbreadth; (c) financial privacy; (d) marital communications privilege; (e) attorney-client privilege; and (f) third-party privacy of information.

F. The Motions to Quash

On December 30, 2019, Creditor served Johanna Scott with a subpoena requesting attendance at a deposition, scheduled for January 30, 2020, and the production of documents ("Johanna Subpoena") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 41, Exhs. 11 and 12]. On December 31, 2019, Creditor served Fenton with a subpoena requesting attendance at a deposition, scheduled for January 30, 2020, and the production of documents (together with the Johanna Subpoena, the "Subpoenas") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 41, Exhs. 13 and 14]. Neither Ms. Scott nor Fenton filed objections to the Subpoenas.

On January 27, 2020, Debtor filed a Motion to Quash Subpoena for Documents and Deposition Subpoena for Johanna Scott (the "Motion to Quash Johanna Subpoena") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 29] and a Motion to Quash Subpoena for Documents and Deposition Subpoena for Fenton & Ross (the "Motion to Quash Fenton Subpoena," together with the Motion to Quash Johanna Subpoena, the "Motions to Quash") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 28].

On January 29, 2020, the Court entered two orders setting hearing on the Motions to Quash (the "Orders Setting Hearings") [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 31 and 32]. In the Orders Setting Hearings, the Court noted that in light of the parties' history, the pending MSJ and the discovery deadline of February 1, 2020, the Court would waive the requirement, in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 7026-1(c)(3), for the parties to file a written stipulation concerning the disputed discovery. The Court also set the hearings on the Motion to Quash on March 4, 2020.

On February 19, 2020, Creditor filed oppositions to Motions to Quash (the "Oppositions") [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 39 and 40]. On the same day, Creditor also filed a Declaration of Daniel Parker Jett in Support of Plaintiff H. Samuel Hopper's Opposition to Debtor's Motions to Quash Deposition Subpoenas Issued to Third-Party Witnesses Johanna Scott and Fenton & Ross, CPA, and Request for Imposition of Monetary Sanctions [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 41]. On February 26, 2020, Debtor filed replies to the Oppositions [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 42 and 43].

On March 4, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the Motions to Quash. At the hearings, the Court determined, after reviewing the Motions to Quash, the Oppositions and the Replies, that the parties must file a written stipulation identifying each discovery dispute in accordance with LBR 7026-1. The Court also ordered the parties to mediation and stayed all pending matters until the mediation was concluded.

On May 15, 2020, the parties participated in mediation, with a recalled bankruptcy judge [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 53]. However, the parties were unable to settle their disputes. Accordingly, at the June 3 status conference on the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case, the Court ordered the parties to file the joint statements on the Motions to Quash. Specifically, the Court ordered Debtor to serve his portion of the joint statements on Creditor by June 12, 2020, and Creditor was to serve his portion on Debtor by June 26, 2020. The Court also ordered Debtor to file the joint statements by June 30, 2020.

Debtor did not timely file the joint statements. Nor did he request an extension from the Court. Instead, on July 6, 2020, Debtor filed two statements [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 64 and 65, filed correctly as docs. 71 and 72], which did not include Creditor's counsel's signature. Debtor's counsel also filed two declarations regarding the Motions to Quash (the "Debtor Declarations") [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 66 and 67]. In the Debtor Declarations, Debtor requests monetary sanctions against Creditor and Creditor's counsel for "being forced" to file the Motions to Quash. Debtor also argues that subpoenas are not authorized under the Bankruptcy Code in contested matters.

On July 8, 2020, Creditor's counsel filed an objection to those statements [doc. 69] and a supplemental declaration (the "Supplement Declaration") [doc. 70]. In that objection, Creditor's counsel states that Debtor timely sent his portion of the joint statements to Creditor and that Creditor timely sent his portion of the joint statements to Debtor. However, on July 1, 2020, Debtor's counsel sent further revised versions of the joint statements to Creditor's counsel. After reviewing the revised joint statements, Creditor's counsel noticed that Debtor's counsel inserted new arguments in the joint statements. As such, Creditor's counsel refused to sign the joint statements. Attached to the Supplemental Declaration as exhibit 4 is the joint statement regarding the Motion to Quash Fenton Subpoena, which includes both parties' signatures, that Creditor's counsel sent to Debtor's counsel on June 26, 2020 (the "Fenton Joint Statement"). Attached to the Supplemental Declaration as exhibit 6 is the joint statement regarding the Motion to Quash Johanna Subpoena, which includes both parties' signatures, that Creditor's counsel sent to Debtor's counsel on June 26, 2020 (the "Johanna Joint Statement").

The statements submitted by Debtor's counsel were untimely and included arguments added after Debtor's deadline to submit his portion of the joint statements. Consequently, in ruling on the Motions to Quash, the Court will strike those statements from the record and use the Fenton Joint Statement and Johanna Joint Statement.

In the Fenton Joint Statement, Debtor objects to the requests based on: (a) relevance; (b) overbreadth; (c) financial privacy; (d) accountant-client privilege; (e) tax privilege; and/or (f) third-party privacy of information.

In the Johanna Joint Statement, Debtor objects to the document production requests based on: (a) relevance; (b) overbreadth; (c) financial privacy; (d) marital communications privilege; and/or (e) third-party privacy of information.

II. DISCUSSION

A. Subpoenas are Authorized in Contested Matters

In the Fenton Joint Statement, Debtor argues that the use of a subpoena for personal records is not authorized by the Bankruptcy Code. Debtor is incorrect. In relevant part, Fed. R. Bankr. P. ("FRBP") 9014 states that FRBP 7030 shall apply in contested matters. FRBP 7030 in turn incorporates Fed. R. Civ. P. ("FRCP") 30, which incorporates FRCP 45. Accordingly, a subpoena served in compliance with FRCP 45 is enforceable by the Court in contested matters, such as the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case.

B. Debtor's Standing to Object to the Subpoenas

Pursuant to FRCP 26(c)(1):

A party or any person from whom discovery is sought may move for a protective order in the court where the action is pending -- or as an alternative on matters relating to a deposition, in the court for the district where the deposition will be taken. The motion must include a certification that the movant has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with other affected parties in an effort to resolve the dispute without court action. The court may, for good cause, issue an order to protect a party or person from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense, including one or more of the following:

- (A) forbidding the disclosure or discovery;
- (B) specifying terms, including time and place or the allocation of expenses, for the disclosure or discovery;
- (C) prescribing a discovery method other than the one selected by the party seeking discovery;
- (D) forbidding inquiry into certain matters, or limiting the scope of disclosure or discovery to certain matters;
- (E) designating the persons who may be present while the discovery is conducted;

(F) requiring that a deposition be sealed and opened only on court order;
(G) requiring that a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information not be revealed or be revealed only in a specified way; and
(H) requiring that the parties simultaneously file specified documents or information in sealed envelopes, to be opened as the court directs.

In the Oppositions, Creditor asserts that Debtor does not have standing under FRCP 45 to move to quash the Subpoenas based on relevance or overbreadth. There appears to be no binding authority from the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court of the United States regarding whether a party has standing to move to quash a subpoena issued to a non-party. See Terteryan v. Nissan Motor Acceptance Corp., No. CV 16-2029-GW (KS), 2017 WL 3576844, at *2 (C.D. Cal. July 5, 2017) ("The Ninth Circuit has yet to address the question of whether a party has standing to bring a motion to quash.").

Courts within the Ninth Circuit have taken different approaches to the issue of standing. Most courts appear to take the view that "a party lacks standing under [FRCP] 45(c)(3) to challenge a subpoena issued to a non-party unless the party claims a personal right or privilege with respect to the documents requested in the subpoena," but "has standing under [FRCP] 26(c) to seek a protective order regarding subpoenas issued to non-parties which seek irrelevant information." In re REMEC, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. CIV 04CV1948 JLS AJB, 2008 WL 2282647, at *1 (S.D. Cal. May 30, 2008); see also Eric v. Van Cleave, No. C16-1278RSM, 2017 WL 553276, at *6 (W.D. Wash. Feb. 10, 2017); Clair v. Schlachter, No. 213CV804KJMEFBPTMP, 2016 WL 2984107, at *5 (E.D. Cal. May 23, 2016); and F.T.C. v. AMG Servs., Inc., 291 F.R.D. 544, 552-53 (D. Nev. 2013) (holding that a party may bring a motion for protective order under FRCP 26(c) to quash non-party subpoenas).

Another court held that, although subpoenas were issued to non-parties, there was good cause to allow the defendant to move to quash non-party subpoenas because the subpoenas included requests that were irrelevant and overbroad. Moon v. SCP Pool Corp., 232 F.R.D. 633, 636-38 (C.D. Cal. 2005). Another court decided that the standing conferred on a party by operation of FRCP 26(c) serves to furnish standing on a party moving to quash a subpoena under FRCP 45. Firetrace USA, LLC v. Jesciard, No. CV-07-2001-PHX-ROS, 2008 WL 5146691, at *1-2 (D. Ariz. Dec. 8, 2008). Finally, at least one court held that, even if a party does not have standing to object to a non-party subpoena, courts may sua sponte assess the relevance of the information sought via the non-party subpoenas. Rodriguez v. El Toro Med. Inv'rs Ltd. P'ship, No. 816CV00059JLSKESX, 2017 WL 2495171, at *2 (C.D. Cal. May 11, 2017).

Courts outside the Ninth Circuit also have taken different approaches to the issue of standing in this context. For instance, one court found that, although parties have limited standing under FRCP 45, courts may assess a motion to quash under FRCP 45 as a motion for a protective order under FRCP 26(c), under which rule parties do have standing. Auto-Owners Ins. Co. v. Southeast Floating Docks, Inc., 231 F.R.D. 426, 429 (M.D. Fla. 2005) ("As parties, Defendants clearly have standing to move for a protective order if the subpoenas seek irrelevant information."); see also Washington v. Thurgood Marshall Acad., 230 F.R.D. 18, 22 (D.D.C. 2005) (construing motion to quash under FRCP 45 as motion for protective order under FRCP 26).

Given that numerous decisions within and outside the Ninth Circuit provide that parties have standing to object to subpoenas on the grounds of relevance and overbreadth, pursuant to FRCP 26(c), the Court need not reach the question of standing under FRCP 45(d). As aptly stated by one court:

Although the relief obtained by Seagate in its motion for a protective order is similar to the relief that could have been obtained by the individuals and entities named in the subpoenas had they brought motions to quash under [FRCP] 45, courts have recognized an important distinction between requests to quash a subpoena and motions for protective orders requesting the court to control discovery more generally under [FRCP] 16 and 26. The mere fact that subpoenas are the type of discovery at issue does not limit parties and the court to the relief provided for in [FRCP] 45. ... Where a party, such as Seagate, contends that subpoena requests are irrelevant, cumulative, and burdensome, they are not simply asserting the rights of the third party, but their own right to reasonable discovery and efficient disposition of the case. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 1. ("These rules ... should be construed and administered to secure the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding."). Furthermore, unlike undue burden, which is a fact potentially best known to the party receiving the subpoena, Seagate, as a party to the present litigation, is the only entity as between itself and third parties with the appropriate knowledge to assert an objection based on relevance or cumulative discovery. Therefore, where a party does not seek to quash a subpoena under [FRCP] 45(c) "the issue is not one of privity between a party and the subpoenaed third-person, but is one of case management under [FRCP] 16 and 26." Marvin Lumber, 177 F.R.D. at 444. Because the Court finds that Seagate is entitled, as a party to the litigation, to limit irrelevant and cumulative discovery, the Court concludes that the Magistrate Judge did not err in finding that Seagate had standing to bring its motion for a protective order.

Shukh v. Seagate Tech., LLC, 295 F.R.D. 228, 236–37 (D. Minn. 2013).

Based on the authorities above, the Court may assess the Motions to Quash as motions for protective orders under FRCP 26(c). Debtor has standing to object to the Subpoenas under FRCP 26, including on the basis that the Subpoenas are irrelevant and overbroad. FRCP 26(c)(1) ("A party or any person from whom discovery is sought may move for a protective order in the court where the action is pending....") (emphasis added). Because Debtor, as a party, is the "only entity... with the appropriate knowledge to assert an objection based on relevance" and to request that the "court... control discovery... under [FRCP] 16 and 26," Shukh, 295 F.R.D. at 236-37, this standing extends to Debtor's objections to the Subpoenas.

C. Timeliness of the Motions to Quash

In the Oppositions, Creditor argues that Debtor's objection to the Subpoenas is untimely. Because the Court is assessing the Motions to Quash as motions for protective orders, even if the request to quash the Subpoenas is untimely under FRCP 45, the request for a protective order is timely under FRCP 26(c).

FRCP 26(c) does not prescribe a deadline by which a party must file a motion for protective order. See, e.g. Solis v. Tomco Auto Products, Inc., 2012 WL 12878752, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Sep. 20, 2012) (finding that FRCP 26(c) "does not contain a deadline;" "[t]he cases do not explicitly require a party to file a motion for protective order before the deadline for serving a written response to discovery" and noting that the court "is not inclined to adopt a requirement that is not found in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or local rules, and that would routinely require the filing of ex parte applications").

D. FRCP 26 and FRCP 37

Pursuant to FRCP 26(b)(1):

Unless otherwise limited by court order, the scope of discovery is as follows: Parties may obtain discovery regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense and proportional to the needs of the case, considering the importance of the issues at stake in the action, the amount in controversy, the parties' relative access to relevant information, the parties' resources, the importance of the discovery in resolving the issues, and whether the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit. Information within this scope of discovery need not be admissible in evidence to be discoverable. (emphasis added).

"Relevant information for purposes of discovery is information reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence." Survivor Media, Inc. v. Survivor Prods., 406 F.3d 625, 635 (9th Cir. 2005) (internal quotation omitted). "District courts have broad discretion in determining relevancy for discovery purposes." Id.

Pursuant to FRCP 26(b)(2)(C)(iii), "the court must limit the frequency or extent of discovery otherwise allowed by these rules or by local rule if it determines that...the proposed discovery is outside the scope permitted by Rule 26(b)(1)."

Pursuant to FRCP 26(b)(2)(B):

On a motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the party from whom discovery is sought must show that the information is not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. If that showing is made, the court may nonetheless order discovery from such sources if the requesting party shows good cause. Alternatively, the court may impose conditions on such

"FRCP 26(c) confers broad discretion on the trial court to decide when a protective order is appropriate and what degree of protection is required." Seattle Times Co. v. Rhinehart, 467 U.S. 20, 36, 104 S.Ct. 2199, 81 L.Ed.2d 17 (1984). The party seeking the protective order has the burden "to 'show good cause' by demonstrating harm or prejudice that will result from the discovery." Rivera v. NIBCO, Inc., 364 F.3d 1057, 1063 (9th Cir.2004).

Pursuant to FRCP 34, a party may serve on any other party a request within the scope of FRCP 26(b) to "produce and permit the requesting party or its representative to inspect, copy, test, or sample" items in the "responding party's possession, custody, or control." In response, a party is obligated to produce all specified relevant and nonprivileged documents or other things that are in his or her possession, custody or control.

Pursuant to FRCP 37 (in pertinent part):

(a) Motion for an Order Compelling Disclosure or Discovery

(1) In General. On notice to other parties and affected person, a party may move for an order compelling disclosure or discovery. E. Federal Privacy and Privilege Law Applies

In the Debtor Joint Statement, Debtor objects to many of the requests for production of documents based on privacy protections including those under California law, such as California's protection of financial privacy. However, pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence ("FRE") 501, testimonial privileges in federal question cases are governed by federal common law.

A federal question case is one that arises under federal law. 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (giving district courts original jurisdiction over all civil actions arising under federal law). The Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case was brought under 11 U.S.C. § 1307. Because this is federal bankruptcy statutory provision, the case presents federal questions under 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Consequently, Debtor's reliance on the State of California's privacy protections is misplaced. [FN4].

i. Financial Privacy

In the Debtor Joint Statement, the Johanna Joint Statement and the Fenton Joint Statement, Debtor argues that some of the requests violate his right to privacy, including his right to financial privacy, tax privilege and accountant-client privilege. As pertains to the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case, Debtor additionally argues that some of the requests violate JoAnn Scott and Johanna Scott's rights to privacy.

Federal courts generally recognize a right of privacy that can be raised in response to discovery requests. Johnson by Johnson v. Thompson, 971 F.2d 1487, 1497 (10th Cir. 1992). However, unlike a privilege, the right of privacy is not an absolute bar to discovery. "Resolution of a privacy objection ... requires a balancing of the need for the information sought against the privacy right asserted." A. Farber & Partners, Inc. v. Garber, 234 F.R.D. 186, 191 (C.D. Cal. 2006) (citing Keith H. v. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist., 228 F.R.D. 652, 657 (C.D. Cal. 2005)). See also Johnson by Johnson, 971 F.2d at 1497.

However, "[d]ebtors who have filed for bankruptcy relief must have a significantly reduced expectation of privacy in their houses, papers, and effects that society is prepared to recognize as reasonable. The reduced expectation of privacy is a natural consequence of the substantial and detailed disclosures that are inherent in the bankruptcy process." In re Kerlo, 311 B.R. 256, 266 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2004) (quoting In re Barman, 252 B.R. 403, 414 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 2000)).

In addition, under federal law, tax returns are not privileged from discovery. Hernandez v. Yon Hoon Cho, 867 F.2d 613 (9th Cir. 1989) (citing Heathman v. United States District Court, 503 F.2d 1032, 1034–35 (9th Cir.1974)). Moreover, federal law does not recognize an accountant-client privilege. Couch v. United States, 409 U.S. 322, 335, 935 S.Ct. 611, 34, L.Ed.2d 548 (1973).

Applying these standards, Creditor's need for information relevant to the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case (when proportional to the needs of the case), outweighs Debtor's reduced expectation of privacy in his financial information. Debtor's concerns regarding privacy may be addressed with an appropriate protective order, and Creditor has submitted such a proposed stipulated protective order [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 48, Exh. 32]. [FN5].

Regarding JoAnn Scott and Johanna Scott's rights to privacy, to the extent that Debtor has standing to assert a right to privacy on their behalf, given that JoAnn Scott and Johanna Scott each have filed a proof of claim in Debtor's bankruptcy case, Creditor's need for the information to assess the basis of the proofs of claim outweighs their rights to privacy, if any, regarding the basis of the proofs claim.

ii. Marital Communications Privilege

In the Debtor Joint Statement and the Johanna Joint Statement, Debtor asserts that some of the requests violate his marital communications privilege. There are two marital privileges recognized by the federal common law. The first, usually called the "adverse spousal testimony" privilege, allows a spouse to refuse to testify adversely to his or her spouse during a valid marriage. United States v. Griffin, 440 F.3d 1138, 1143–44 (9th Cir. 2006). The adverse testimonial privilege only applies in criminal cases. See Trammel v. United States, 445 U.S. 40, 100 S. Ct. 906, 63 L. Ed. 2d 186 (1980).

"The second, usually called the 'marital communications' privilege, protects from disclosure private communications between spouses." Griffin, 440 F.3d at 1143–44. "The privilege exists 'to protect the integrity of marriages and ensure that spouses freely communicate with one another.'" Id. "This privilege (1) 'extends only to words or acts intended as communication to the other spouse'; (2) 'covers only those communications made during a valid marriage'; and (3) 'applies only to those marital communications which are confidential.'" Ross v. Santa Clara Cty. Sheriff's Dep't (SCCSD), 2015 WL 4484152, at *3 (N.D. Cal. July 22, 2015) (citing United States v. Marashi, 913 F.2d 724, 729-30 (9th Cir. 1990)).

Unlike the adverse testimony privilege, the marital communications privilege may be asserted even after the marriage has been terminated. See Pereira v. United States, 347 U.S. 1, 6, 74 S.Ct. 358, 361, 98 L.Ed. 435 (1954). Additionally, courts have applied the marital communications privilege in civil cases. See, e.g., Ross, 2015 WL 4484152, at *3; Knepp v. United Stone Veneer, LLC., No. CIV. A. 4:06-CV-1018, 2007 WL 2597936, at *4 (M.D. Pa. Sept. 5, 2007); Andrews v. Holloway, 256 F.R.D. 136, 146-47 (D.N.J. 2009) (following Knepp); Bickoff v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., No. 14-CV-1065-BEN WVG, 2015 WL 1256360, at *2 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 18, 2015) (applying the marital communications privilege to a civil case).

"Like all other privileges, the marital communications privilege is subject to waiver." Knepp, 2007 WL 2597936, at *4. Though waiver applies if a spouse has not timely made an objection, "the privilege is held by both spouses" and waiver by one spouse does not constitute waiver by the other spouse. Andrews, 256 F.R.D. at 147. If there is an objection at the time the testimony is offered, the objection is timely. United States v. Vo, 413 F.3d 1010, 1017 (9th Cir. 2005).

However, the marital communications privilege does not apply if the couple is separated and the marriage is irreconcilable at the time of the communication. United States v. Fomichev, 899 F.3d 766, 771 (9th Cir.), opinion amended on denial of reh'g, 909 F.3d 1078 (9th Cir. 2018); *United States v. evidence in the search for truth....").

"Several factors guide a court's determination whether a marriage is irreconcilable. Those factors include the duration of the separation, the stability of the marriage at the time of the communication, whether a divorce action had been filed and the conduct of the parties since that filing, whether a property settlement had been proposed, and, finally, any statements by the parties regarding irreconcilability or the reasons for separation." Murphy, 65 F.3d at 761 (citing Roberson, 859 F.2d at 1381).

Debtor asserts that some of the discovery sought in the Johanna Subpoena and the Debtor RFPD is protected by the marital communications privilege. Although Ms. Scott did not file an objection to the Johanna Subpoena asserting the privilege, Debtor has made such an objection. As stated above, either spouse may invoke the marital communications privilege.

Based on testimony given by Debtor, Debtor and Johanna Scott have been separated and living apart since 2012, and on April 24, 2014, they executed the MSA. As of their execution of the MSA, it is evident that the marriage was irreconcilable, for purposes of applying the marital communications privilege. Consequently, from and following no later than April 24, 2014, communications between Debtor and Johanna Scott are no longer protected by the marital communications privilege.

Regarding communications between Debtor and Johanna Scott prior to April 24, 2014, they do not appear to be pertinent to the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case. Debtor filed his chapter 13 petition in December 2018, i.e., more than four years after execution of the MSA. Considering the amount of time that has past, the burden of producing the requested discovery is outweighed by its likely benefit.

F. The Motion to Compel

In accordance with the Court's decision to stay matters concerning the Adversary Proceeding, until resolution of the MSJ and the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case, the Court will not rule on the discovery disputes which possibly are pertinent to the Adversary Proceeding, and not the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case. [FN6]. Accordingly, at this time, the Court will not rule on the following requests for production of documents: 1, 12, 19, 20, 21, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 44, 45, 46, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64,

Regarding Debtor's objections in the Debtor Joint Statement to the balance of the requests:

13, 14, 15, 55, 86 and 87: overruled.

16, 17 and 18: overruled with respect to communications and documents from April 24, 2014 through the petition date.

39: sustained.

40: overruled, but the Court will limit this request to documents related to legal actions taken against Debtor within one year before he filed his chapter 13 petition.

41 and 43: overruled, but the Court will limit these requests to the years 2017 and 2018. The Court notes that under 11 U.S.C. § 521(e)(2)(ii), Debtor is obligated to provide a copy of his tax return to Creditor upon a timely request.

42: overruled, but the Court will limit this request to production of MPPI's 2017 and 2018 federal tax returns. Debtor is the sole shareholder of MPPI, and as such, is in control of its federal tax returns.

47, 54 and 78: overruled, but the Court will limit these requests to the years 2017 and 2018.

79 and 80: sustained.

I. Requests for Sanctions

In the Debtor Declarations, Debtor requests monetary sanctions against Creditor for his attorneys' fees in filing and defending the Motions to Quash. In the Oppositions, Creditor requests that the Court impose monetary sanctions against Debtor and/or Debtor's counsel under LBR 7026-1 for Debtor's counsel's failure to request a meet and confer prior to filing the Motions to Quash and under LBR 9011-3(c) for filing a frivolous motion.

LBR 7026-1(c)(1):

Unless excused from complying with this rule by order of the court for good cause shown, a party must seek to resolve any dispute arising under FRBP 7026-7037 or FRBP 2004 in accordance with this rule.

LBR 7026-1(c)(2) provides as follows:

Prior to the filing of any motion relating to discovery, counsel for the parties must meet in person or by telephone in a good faith effort to resolve a recovery dispute. It is the responsibility of counsel for the moving party to arrange the conference. Unless altered by agreement of the parties or by order of the court for cause shown, counsel for the opposing party must meet with the counsel for the moving party within 7 days of service upon counsel of a letter requesting such meeting and specifying the terms of the discovery order to be sought (emphasis added).

Pursuant to LBR 7026-1(c)(3), if counsel are unable to resolve the dispute, in connection with a discovery motion, the party seeking the discovery must file and serve a notice of motion together with a written stipulation by the parties identifying any disputed discovery issues, with contentions and points and authorities of each party as to each issue.

Pursuant to LBR 9011-3(c), "[t]he presentation to the court of an unnecessary motion and the unwarranted opposition to a motion, which unduly delays the course of an action or proceeding, or failure to fully comply with these rules, subjects the offender and attorney at the discretion of the court to appropriate discipline, including the imposition of costs and the award of attorneys' fees to opposing counsel, . . . and such other sanctions, including denial of the motion or dismissal of the proceeding, as may appear proper to the court under the circumstances." (emphasis added).

Debtor has not provided the Court with any basis to impose monetary sanctions against Creditor or Creditor's counsel. Regarding Creditor's request, in the Orders Setting Hearing, the Court initially waived the requirement for the parties meet and confer and to file a written stipulation concerning the disputed discovery issues. Accordingly, the Court will not award either side attorneys' fees and costs or sanctions authorized by LBR 7026-1(c)(4), for the parties' noncompliance with procedures in LBR 7026-1. Additionally, the Motions to Quash are not frivolous. In accordance with this ruling, the Court will grant the Motions to Quash in part, and deny in part. As such, the Court also will not award attorneys' fees under LBR 9011-3.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant in part and deny in part the Motion to Compel and the Motions to Quash.

Creditor must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Chapter 13

1. In a declaration filed on August 28, 2019 [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 167], Debtor discusses this valuation of MPPI.
2. On May 17, 2019, Debtor filed a declaration [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 100] in which he further described the income he received from MPPI in 2017 and 2018, based on his gross wages and profit distributions. In that declaration, Debtor also stated that, in 2019, MPPI "closed its doors, and he "started doing business" as Scott Psy.D.
3. The Court served the Scheduling Order on Creditor's counsel at the address provided by Creditor's counsel in the bankruptcy case. On October 22, 2019, Creditor's counsel filed a notice of change of address in the parties' related adversary proceeding [1:19-ap-01046-VK, doc. 23]; Creditor's counsel has not filed a change of address in the bankruptcy case. The Court must serve Creditor's counsel at the address provided in the relevant case.
4. Debtor argues that "California law protects against financial disclosure and is not preempted by Federal law." Debtor cites to Am. Bankers Ass'n v. Lockyer, 541 F.3d 1214 (9th Cir. 2008) for this proposition. American Bankers is inapposite. In American Bankers, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals was evaluating whether the California Financial Information Privacy Act was preempted by the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act. This case presents no such questions.
5. Although the Court has stricken the Fenton Statement submitted by Debtor's counsel, in that statement, Debtor argues that Creditor did not serve a notice to consumer on Debtor as required by Cal. Civ. Proc. ("CCP") § 1983.5. However, under CCP § 1985.3(a)(3), Creditor does not qualify as a "subpoenaing party" required to send such a notice because a "subpoenaing party" is defined as "the person or persons causing a subpoena duces tecum to be issued or served in connection with any civil action or proceeding pursuant to this code...." (emphasis added). "[T]his code" refers to the CCP. Given that the contested matter at issue is the Motion to Dismiss Bankruptcy Case, which is based entirely on federal law, the CCP is inapplicable. See, e.g. Kaur v. City of Lodi, 2016 WL 10679575, at *1 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016)

("Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 1985.3(a) is, by its terms, inapplicable to subpoenas issued in federal court cases.").

6. Moreover, the discovery requests concerning the Adversary Proceeding are premature. Pursuant to FRBP 7026, which incorporates FRCP 26, unless a party obtains a stipulation or court order, discovery is not permitted before the parties have conferred pursuant to FRCP 26(f). According to the parties' most recently filed status reports in the Adversary Proceeding [Adversary Proceeding, docs. 14 and 15], the parties have not conferred pursuant to FRCP 26(f). Additionally, regarding the Adversary Proceeding, Creditor did not obtain a stipulation or Court order permitting him to conduct discovery before the parties engaged in a FRCP 26(f) conference.

If the debtor will not object to Mr. Hopper's latest amended proof of claim, the adversary proceeding need not concern the allowed amount of the claim against debtor, as an alter ego or otherwise (which claim would be paid in accordance with a confirmed chapter 13 plan), but only the dischargeability of the claim, in accordance with the Bankruptcy Code.

Once the Court determines the dischargeability of the claim against the debtor (as an alter ego or otherwise), the Court could allow the state court action to go forward against the nondebtor defendants.

#1.00 U.S. Trustee's motion to appoint trustee pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1104, or in the alternative, motion under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) to convert case

Docket 14

Tentative Ruling:

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(1) and (a)(2), the Court will order the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee.

I. BACKGROUND

A. Debtor's Bankruptcy Case

On June 29, 2020, Helping Others International, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On the same day, Debtor filed its schedules and statement of financial affairs [doc. 1]. According to Debtor's petition, The Megan Zucaro Living Trust (the "Trust") is the sole member of Debtor, holding a 100% interest [doc. 1, p. 12]. In its statement of financial affairs, Debtor indicated that Megan Zucaro is Debtor's manager and is trustee of the Trust [doc. 1, p. 37].

In its schedule A/B, Debtor indicated that it has $7,301,000 in assets, which includes $6,400,000 in real property, consisting of two single family residences, a boarding house and a condominium, and $901,000 in personal property, of which $350,000 is for accounts receivable. Debtor also listed a cause of action against Ahn Thuy Nguyen and Thuy Rucks for conversion and fraud related to Debtor's alleged purchase of a detox center in Huntington Beach, California, which is no longer operating. Debtor indicated that it is seeking $4,000,000 in that state court action.

In its schedule D, Debtor indicated that it has $7,016,030.02 in claims secured by the real properties. In its schedule E/F, Debtor indicated that it has $170,000 in nonpriority unsecured claims.

In its schedule G, Debtor indicated that it has no executory contracts or unexpired leases. However, at its initial debtor interview on July 10, 2020, Ms. Zucaro testified that Debtor is renting two of the four parcels of real property and collecting between $4,500 and $5,500 in monthly rental income [Declaration of Maria D. Marquez, doc. 14, ¶ 11].

In its statement of financial affairs, Debtor indicated that it received $73,500 in gross revenue from January 1, 2020 to the petition date, $95,000 in 2019 and $125,000 in 2018. Yet Debtor indicated that no accountants or bookkeepers have maintained Debtor's book and records within two years before filing its chapter 11 petition. Debtor also indicated that within two years before filing its petition, Debtor encumbered three of the real properties with deeds of trust. Some of the encumbrances occurred only a few months before Debtor filed its petition. Debtor did not list the individuals who were granted the deeds of trust in its schedule D; rather Debtor listed the individuals in its schedule E/F, as holding nonpriority unsecured claims.

On July 17, 2020, United Lender, LLC initiated adversary proceeding 1:20-ap-01070-VK, by removing a pending state court action to this Court (the "Adversary Proceeding"). Debtor and Ms. Zucaro are named as defendants in that action. On July 24, 2020, the Court entered an Order to Show Cause re: Remand and Notice of Setting Status Conference (Removed Proceeding) (the "OSC") [1:20-ap-01070-VK, doc. 5]. On September 9, 2020, the Court will hold a hearing on the OSC.

B. Ms. Zucaro's Felony Conviction

On March 4, 2020, the Ventura County District Attorney filed a three-count criminal complaint against Ms. Zucaro (the "Criminal Action") [doc. 14, Exh. C]. The Criminal Action concerns Ms. Zucaro's conduct in a real estate transaction in 2018. In the Criminal Action, the district attorney alleged that Ms. Zucaro, a licensed real-estate agent, through a series of false pretenses, stripped the equity from real property owned by a Pedro Becerra, 91 year-old man, for her own personal gain.

The district attorney alleged that after Ms. Zucaro was unable to sell the real property, she told Mr. Becerra that she would complete development of the property by obtaining a loan and constructing a group home for the elderly. Ms. Zucaro allegedly convinced Mr. Becerra to sign a grant deed transferring a 50% interest in the property to Ms. Zucaro. Ms. Zucaro allegedly paid nothing for this interest, even though the property was appraised for $2,000,000. Allegedly, at Ms. Zucaro's request, Mr.

Becerra signed additional documents to support what he believed was Ms. Zucaro's own loan. However, Mr. Becerrea was actually signing documentation making him a co-borrower on the loan. After the loan was approved and the mortgage on the property was paid off, approximately $165,000 in net equity was wired to Ms. Zucaro's account. The funds were supposed to be used to develop the property. When the money was wired into her account, the account allegedly contained only $109. Within 30 days of receiving the funds, Ms. Zucaro's ending account balance was allegedly $1,699. Ms. Zucaro allegedly did not use the funds to construct the group home; rather she used them for personal expenditures. Mr. Becerra's property is now encumbered with a loan that he can neither service nor refinance.

On June 10, 2020, in the Criminal Action, Ms. Zucaro pled guilty to one felony count of diversion of construction funds [doc. 14, Exhs. D and E]. On July 8, 2020, Ms. Zucaro was sentenced to 365 days in jail and placed on 60 months' probation, ordered to surrender her real estate license and ordered to pay $300,255 in restitution [doc. 14, Exh. E]. On August 7, 2020, Ms. Zucaro is required to report to begin her jail sentence. Id. In pertinent part, the state court also ordered that Ms. Zucaro is:

prohibited from participating, in any manner, whether or not for commercial gain, in any transaction involving the purchase or sale of real estate, real estate loan modification, or bankruptcy services, including, but not limited to, soliciting, advertising, offering, engaging, referring, or providing services. This includes, but is not limited to, the following services: loan modification; loss litigation; foreclosure rescue; short sale consulting; forensic loan audits; counseling, preparation, filing, or consulting regarding bankruptcy actions; counseling, preparation, filing, or consulting regarding proposed, anticipated, or actual litigation on behalf of a residential loan borrower against lender(s) or servicer(s) of their loans. (emphasis added).

C. Ms. Zucaro's Bankruptcy Case

On June 8, 2020, Ms. Zucaro filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating case 9:20-bk-10714-MB (the "Zucaro Bankruptcy Case"). Ms. Zucaro is represented by Debtor's proposed counsel (who has not filed an employment application in Debtor's case).

Chapter 11

On June 22, 2020, the UST filed a motion to dismiss or convert the Zucaro Bankruptcy Case to one under chapter 7 [Zucaro Bankruptcy Case, doc. 14]. The basis of that motion was that Ms. Zucaro failed to comply with the United States Trustee's Guidelines and/or Local Bankruptcy Rules. On June 30, 2020, Ms. Zucaro filed a non-opposition to that motion [Zucaro Bankruptcy Case, doc. 18]. Accordingly, on July 16, 2020, the court entered an ordering converting the Zucaro Bankruptcy Case to one under chapter 7 [Zucaro Bankruptcy Case, doc. 20].

D. The Motion, Opposition and Responses

On July 13, 2020, the UST filed a Motion for the Appointment of a Chapter 11 Trustee Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1104, or in the Alternative, Motion Under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) to Convert Case (the "Motion") [doc. 14]. In the Motion, the UST argues that the judgment in the Criminal Action shows fraud, dishonesty and gross mismanagement of Debtor by Ms. Zucaro before the commencement of the case, which warrants the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee under 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(1). The UST additionally argues that appointment of a chapter 11 trustee is warranted under 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(2) because the Criminal Action raises questions as to Ms. Zucaro's ability to be a reliable fiduciary with control over estate assets and on her ability to manage and reorganize Debtor. The UST points to the state court order that prohibits Ms. Zucaro from participating: (i) in any bankruptcy services, including preparation, filing and consulting regarding bankruptcy actions; and (ii) in any transaction involving the sale or purchase of real estate.

Alternatively, in the Motion, the UST argues that cause exists under 11 U.S.C. §§ 1112(b)(4)(C), (b)(4)(H) and (b)(4)(J) to convert Debtor's case to one under chapter 7. The UST argues that there is reason to believe that Debtor will be unable to effectuate a plan of reorganization because Ms. Zucaro is prohibited from participating in any transaction involving the purchase or sale of real estate, which would be necessary for Debtor to confirm a chapter 11 plan. The UST also argues that Debtor failed to comply with the requirements of the United States Trustee's Guidelines and/or Local Bankruptcy Rules by failing to provide: (i) sufficient evidence of opening and maintenance of debtor in possession bank accounts; (ii) proof of appropriate insurance coverage for the four parcels of real property; (ii) proof of required certificates and licenses; (iv) a projected cash flow statement for the first 90 days of operation under chapter 11; (v) copies of the two most recent federal tax returns; and (vi) conformed copies of recorded petition in each county in which real property is owned.

On July 27, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 25]. In the Opposition, Debtor argues, among other things, that Debtor is a separate legal entity from Ms. Zucaro and that Debtor has not been found to be involved in any fraudulent activity. Debtor also argues that there is a possibility that Debtor can be reorganized through obtaining debtor in possession financing to pay off the secured creditors and to develop auxiliary units on the real properties. Opposition, ¶¶ 52-54. In relevant part, Debtor states:

Although Ms. Zucaro will not be managing the Debtor for a period of 30 days while she resides in custody at the Ventura County Jail, Todd Road facility, she has been informed by the Ventura County Sheriff that she will be released in 30 days on probation and placed on house arrest for 5 months. Ms. Zucaro will be available to meet and confer on all matters from home after September 4, 2020. Ms. Zucaro has contacted numerous architects, builders and contractors who have indicated a willingness to undertake the development of Auxiliary Dwelling Units on the properties owned by Helping Others International, LLC. Nader Safa of Altair Group and Lorraine Alderette have expressed an interest in the project. Ms. Zucaro has received basic drawings indicating layout, profile, and cost estimates for adding ADUs to the Moreno Valley property and the Soto property. There is good reason to retain Ms. Zucaro in management of the Debtor in that she can add value to the reorganization through her contacts and experience with the properties.

Opposition, ¶ 12. Debtor did not respond to the UST arguments concerning compliance with the United States Trustee's Guidelines and/or the Local Bankruptcy Rules.

Attached to the Opposition is a declaration by Ms. Zucaro. In that declaration, Ms. Zucaro states that her usual course of business to purchase real estate is for her private lender to give her a loan for 65% of the appraised value of the real property and the seller to carry back 35% of the second note [Declaration of Megan Zucaro, doc. 25, ¶ 8]. Ms. Zucaro states this is the only way she has ever purchased real property. Id.

Trust, filed a response to the Motion (the "Nguyen Response") [doc. 30], a declaration in support of the Nguyen Response [doc. 32] and a request for judicial notice [doc. 33]. In the Nguyen Response, the secured creditor states that it intends to file a motion to dismiss Debtor's bankruptcy case, but in the meantime Debtor's case should be converted to one under chapter 7. Regarding the Adversary Proceeding, the secured creditor states, in relevant part:

Nguyen filed the state court action that was recently removed to this Court by Debtor's coconspirator, United Lender, LLC. Nguyen's state court action was filed January 15, 2020 and is styled Nguyen v. United Lender, LLC, et al., Orange County Superior Court case number 30-2020- 01124778-CU-FR-CJC. Nguyen alleges that she sold a $3.1 million home located in Huntington Beach, California to Debtor, which is owned and operated by debtor, defendant and convicted felon Megan Zucaro ("Zucaro"). Zucaro/Debtor received from United Lender, LLC, a Nevada limited liability company ("United Lender"), who is a hard money lender, a purchase loan in the amount of $1.9 million. Zucaro talked Nguyen into seller carryback financing wherein Nguyen funded a $1.2 million loan to the buyer of record, Debtor, secured by a second deed of trust to cover the balance of the $3.1 purchase price. Debtor defaulted on the first payments due on United Lender's and Nguyen's loans. United Lender promptly commenced foreclosure proceedings on its first deed of trust, seeking to eliminate Nguyen's junior deed of trust. Nguyen further alleges in the state court action that the defendants have engaged in this equity theft fraud scheme with respect to not only Nguyen, but at least four other home sellers in Southern California. Specifically, United Lender and Zucaro/Debtor have engaged in this real estate equity fraud scheme whereby sellers were talked into carryback financing secured by a second deed of trust behind United Lender's (or an alter ego entity) first deed of trust.

Nguyen Response, pp. 2-3.

On July 27, 2020, creditor American Financial Center, Inc. ("American Financial") filed a response to the Motion (the "American Response") [doc. 31]. In the American Response, American Financial states that it does not dispute the need for third-party oversight of the estate assets. However, American Financial argues that it is difficult to assess, under 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(2), the likely benefits derived by the appointment

II. DISCUSSION

A. 11 U.S.C. § 1104

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1104:

- (a) At any time after the commencement of the case but before confirmation of a plan, on request of a party in interest or the United States trustee, and after notice and a hearing, the court shall order the appointment of a trustee—
 - (1) for cause, including fraud, dishonesty, incompetence, or gross mismanagement of the affairs of the debtor by current management, either before or after the commencement of the case, or similar cause, but not including the number of holders of securities of the debtor or the amount of assets or liabilities of the debtor; or
 - (2) if such appointment is in the interests of creditors, any equity security holders, and other interests of the estate, without regard to the number of holders of securities of the debtor or the amount of assets or liabilities of the debtor.
- (e) The United States trustee shall move for the appointment of a trustee under subsection (a) if there are reasonable grounds to suspect that current members of the governing body of the debtor, the debtor's chief executive or chief financial officer, or members of the governing body who selected the debtor's chief executive or chief financial officer, participated in actual fraud, dishonesty, or criminal conduct in the management of the debtor or the debtor's public financial reporting.

Here, there is cause to appoint a chapter 11 trustee under 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(1). Although Debtor argues that the Criminal Action was not related to Ms. Zucaro's management of Debtor, the list of enumerated causes under 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(1) is nonexhaustive. Given that Ms. Zucaro is the manager of Debtor, and in light of Ms. Zucaro's criminal conviction, it appears that Ms. Zucaro cannot be expected to perform her fiduciary duties as manager of a debtor in possession.

Furthermore, pursuant to the state court order in the Criminal Action, Ms. Zucaro is prohibited from participating in any bankruptcy actions and from any transaction involving the sale or purchase of real property. Despite Ms. Zucaro being prohibited from participating in the sale or purchase of real property, Debtor has offered no alternative manager or explained how it can proceed with its intended plan of reorganization. Additionally, at this point, Debtor apparently lacks qualified counsel to represent it in the bankruptcy case. Debtor's proposed bankruptcy counsel also represents Ms. Zucaro in her bankruptcy case; consequently, under the standards set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 327(a), he may not be qualified to represent Debtor concurrently, as general counsel to a debtor in possession.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(2), it appears to be in the best interests of creditors to appoint a chapter 11 trustee. Debtor lacks competent management.

An objective chapter 11 trustee is necessary to investigate Debtor's assets, liabilities and income. A chapter 11 trustee also may investigate whether there are potential transfers to avoid and can represent the estate's interest in the Adversary Proceeding.

11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) provides in pertinent part:

- (1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) and subsection (c), on request of a party in interest, and after notice and a hearing, the court shall convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter, whichever is in the best interests of creditors and the estate, for cause unless the court determines that the appointment under section 1104(a) of a trustee or an examiner is in the best interests of creditors and the estate.
- (2) The court may not convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter if the court finds and specifically identifies unusual circumstances establishing that converting or dismissing the case is not in the best interests of creditors and the estate, and the debtor or any other party in interest establishes that – or convert this case to one under chapter 7. In addition to Ms. Zucaro not being capable of performing her fiduciary duties as manager of debtor in possession, the UST provided evidence that Debtor has not complied with the United States Trustee Guidelines and/or Local Bankruptcy Rules and has not provided evidence that it maintains appropriate insurance coverage on the four real properties. Moreover, Debtor does not dispute that it has not complied with the United States Trustee Guidelines and/or Local Bankruptcy Rules.

However, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b)(1), the Court has found that appointment of a chapter 11 trustee is in the best interests of creditors and the estate. Consequently, the Court will not convert this case to one under chapter 7.

III. CONCLUSION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(1) and (a)(2), the Court will order the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee.

The UST must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#11.00 Motion for leave to file first amended complaint to avoid fraudulent transfers filed on September 16, 2019

Docket 21

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 26, 2018, Antoine R. Chamoun filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David Seror was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On September 16, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Walid R. Chamoun and Patricia Chamoun ("Defendants"), requesting avoidance of fraudulent and preferential transfers. On October 24, 2019, Defendants filed an answer to the original complaint [doc. 8]. On June 3, 2020, the Court entered an order approving a stipulation by the parties and extending the deadlines to: (A) August 28, 2020 to complete discovery; (B) September 30, 2020 to file pretrial motions; and (C) October 16, 2020 to submit a pretrial stipulation [doc. 19].

On July 15, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion to amend the original complaint (the "Motion") [doc. 21], requesting leave to add claims for relief for breach of contract, unjust enrichment and turnover of property. On July 29, 2020, Defendants filed an untimely opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 23]. In the Opposition, Defendants mainly discuss their analysis of the merits of the original claims. Defendants also contend that the amendments are not material to the Trustee's fraudulent transfer claims. Although the Opposition was not timely filed, the Court considered the arguments in reaching the decision below.

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 15(a), applicable to this adversary proceeding through Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7015—

(1) Amending as a Matter of Course.

A party may amend its pleading once as a matter of course within:

(A) 21 days after serving it, or

(B) if the pleading is one to which a responsive pleading is required, 21 days after service of a responsive pleading or 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier.

(2) Other Amendments.

In all other cases, a party may amend its pleading only with the opposing party's written consent or the court's leave. The court should freely give leave when justice so requires.

Courts have the discretion to grant or deny leave to amend a complaint. Swanson v. U.S. Forest Serv., 87 F.3d 339, 343 (9th Cir. 1996). "In exercising this discretion, a court must be guided by the underlying purpose of Rule 15 to facilitate decision on the merits, rather than on the pleadings or technicalities." United States v. Webb, 655 F.2d 977, 979 (9th Cir. 1981). The factors courts commonly consider when determining whether to grant leave to amend are:

1. Bad faith;
2. Undue delay;
3. Prejudice to the opposing party; and
4. Futility of amendment.

Ditto v. McCurdy, 510 F.3d 1070, 1079 (9th Cir. 2007) (internal citations omitted).

Here, the Trustee has demonstrated that leave to amend is proper. There is no indication of bad faith on the record. Moreover, given that the parties stipulated to a continuance of all deadlines in this adversary proceeding, the amendment will not cause undue delay.

Chapter 7

Defendants contend they will be prejudiced by the amendment because Defendants will be subject to discovery on "immaterial" matters, and the allegations are not relevant to the Trustee's fraudulent transfer claims. However, the Trustee is not adding allegations related to his original fraudulent transfer claims; instead, the Trustee seeks to add new claims for breach of contract, turnover and unjust enrichment. The new allegations relate to these new claims.

Defendants also note that they will "suffer" from an extension of the resolution of this proceeding. However, the parties already stipulated to an extension of all deadlines, and filing an amended complaint will not automatically trigger a need for a further extension. Finally, the proposed amendments are not futile. Once again, Defendants' sole argument related to futility appears to be that the proposed amendments are immaterial to the Trustee's fraudulent transfer claim. Because the new allegations are relevant to the Trustee's new claims, and Defendants have not articulated any other reason an amendment would be futile, this factor also weights in favor of granting the Trustee's request to file an amended complaint.

Defendants' remaining arguments about the merits of the Trustee's original claims are not relevant to this Motion. Defendants may make these arguments when the merits of the Trustee's claims are properly before the Court.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#12.00 Motion to dismiss first amended complaint for the denial of discharge

Docket 25

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will grant the motion in part and deny the motion in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 9, 2019, Peter M. Seltzer ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating bankruptcy case 1:19-bk-11696-VK. On December 26, 2019, the Court entered an order converting Defendant's bankruptcy case to one under chapter 7 [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 98].

On December 16, 2019, Darren Kessler ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint against Defendant (the "Complaint"), seeking nondischargeability of the debt owed to him pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6) and for denial of discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 727(a)(2), (a)(4)(A) and (a)(5). In relevant part, the Complaint made the following allegations:

On May 20, 2014, Defendant executed and delivered to Plaintiff a promissory note/equity agreement (the "May Note") [Complaint, Exh. A]. Under the terms of the May Note, Defendant borrowed and agreed to pay Plaintiff the principal sum of $800,000 (the "Principal"). The May Note provided that Plaintiff would immediately receive a 14% equity interest in ACC Enterprises, LLC ("ACC"). Defendant was to pay off the Principal upon receipt of payment from ACC. The payments were to be made on a cyclical basis based on disbursement made via K-1 by ACC to Defendant within thirty days of Defendant being paid.

On October 1, 2014, Defendant and Plaintiff agreed to modify the May Note, and entered into a new promissory note (the "October Note") [Complaint, Exh. B]. The October Note provided that in addition to the previously acquired 14% interest in ACC, Defendant also personally agreed to repay Plaintiff the sum of $800,000 along with an equity interest in the "stock of the makers" [sic]. All principal and accrued interest in the October Note was due and payable by October 1, 2017, and the October Note states that repayment of the Principal is "in addition to" the transfer of equity.

On July 10, 2014, Plaintiff transferred $300,000 to ACC Industries, Inc. On November 21, 2014, Plaintiff transferred an additional $500,000 to Defendant's corporation, Jakdyl, Inc. [Complaint, Exh. C]. ACC Industries, Inc. and Jakdyl, Inc. are listed on Defendant's statement of financial affairs, item #27.

On August 18, 2015, Defendant emailed Plaintiff reaffirming that he "anticipate[d] paying [Plaintiff] back $800,000 principle [sic] by end of Dec 2015... (Remainder will be paid from Vegas Building $250k)." (the "2015 Email") [Complaint, Exh. D].

Defendant defaulted in his performance of the October Note by failing to pay the note in full when due. Prior to filing the Complaint, Plaintiff made a demand for the balance due on the October Note, but no part of said balance has been paid. Consequently, Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendant in the superior court for the state of California for breach of contract, money had and received and unjust enrichment.

In statements made in the state court action, Defendant denied executing the May Note and the October Note. Defendant also stated that the company in which Plaintiff was to receive distributions and an equity interest did not exist at the time Plaintiff transferred funds to Defendant. Defendant further stated that the emails affirming his obligation to Plaintiff were "altered." Thus, when Defendant made the representations in the May Note and the October Note, he knew them to be false, and made these representations with the intent to induce Plaintiff to enter into the notes.

After the petition date, Defendant filed his original schedules and statement of financial affairs ("SOFA") [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 10]. Defendant signed his schedules and SOFA under penalty of perjury as true and accurate.

Defendant's SOFA, listed, among other things: (i) no income from employment or operation of a business in 2019; (ii) no payments to insiders within one year prior to the petition date; (iii) no gifts within the two years prior to the petition date; (iv) no loss or insurance coverage from theft, fire or other disaster; (v) no transfers within the two years prior to the petition date; (vi) no accounts with financial institutions closed within the one year prior to the petition date; and (vii) interest in three business entities – Indiana Texas Management ("ITM"), 2305 LLC and Jakdyl LLC.

On August 15, 2019, Defendant appeared for his § 341(a) meeting of creditors, where he testified under oath about his assets and liabilities (the "Meeting"). At the Meeting, Defendant revealed that he had an interest in over 20 business entities as well as additional pending litigation, which he failed to disclose in his original schedules.

Following the Meeting, Plaintiff filed several motions for Fed. R. Bankr. P. ("FRBP") 2004 examinations, mainly against financial institutions where Defendant currently had (or had in the past) accounts and where Defendant's entities currently had (or had in the past) accounts.

On October 15, 2019, Defendant filed amended schedules and SOFA [Bankruptcy Case, doc. 56]. Defendant filed the amended schedules two months after the Meeting and after the Court granted several of Plaintiff's FRBP 2004 examinations.

The amended schedules and SOFA disclosed the following, which were not included in the original schedules: (i) transfer of $50,000 to Brian Burr; (ii) four litigation claims against third parties; $6,850 gross income in the last calendar year from operating a business; (iii) $150,000 received in the last year from a legal settlement; (iv) $300,000 property damage from the November 2018 Woolsey fire; (v) two transfers including a $550,000 transfer to Neil Harris in February 2019 as a business investment to be repaid and a $50,000 transfer to Brian Burr "temporarily" in May 2019; and (vi) an additional nine business entities which he had an interest within the four years prior to the petition date.

Defendant's July 2019 and August 2019 monthly operating reports ("MOR") reflect that beyond receipt of one insurance proceed check in the amount of $121,000, Defendant had no income. Those MORs also reflect that Defendant retained accounts under the name of 2305 LLC and ITM, neither of which were designated debtor-in-possession accounts, to transact for general personal expenses. The August 2019 MOR also reflects that Defendant withdrew $66,010 for a "price lift." Defendant has submitted no evidence that such funds were used for Woolsey fire damage repairs.

Defendant's September 2019 and October 2019 MORs reflect, among other things, that Defendant: (i) received another alleged insurance proceeds check in the amount of $134,162.70; (ii) made a cash withdrawal from the 2305 LLC account in the amount of $9,510 rendering the account closed; (iii) closed his Wells Fargo debtor-in-possession account and opened a new account at Union Bank; (iv) paid $15,000 to "tactical mitigation" for purported home damage repairs; and (v) paid an additional $15,000 for "price lift" for alleged home repairs.

Based on the discovery Plaintiff received from his FRBP 2004 examinations, many (if not all) of Defendant's entities are the alter ego of the other. Defendant often and freely moved funds in and out of his entities and into and out of Defendant's personal accounts to hide funds from creditors, and for his own personal use.

Defendant maintained a bank account, in his name, at Chase during the pendency of his bankruptcy case and immediately prior to the petition date. On May 21, 2019, Defendant received over $178,759 in insurance proceeds. Only $126,000 of these funds were deposited in the debtor-in-possession account, as Defendant withdrew $40,000 on May 29, 2019, an additional $9,866.64 on the day prior to the petition date, and a further $2,832 after the petition date (collectively, the "Insurance Proceed Transfers").

Between March 2019 and the petition date, Defendant made the following withdrawals and/or transfers from the 2305 LLC account, none of which were disclosed in Defendant's original or amended schedules: (i) March 18, 2019, wire to ETF Management in the amount of $150,000; (ii) April 19, 2019, wire to Harris Ritoff in the amount of $100,000; (iii) May 20, 2019, two withdrawals in the amounts of $28,000 and $7,000; and (iv) May 28, 2019, a withdrawal in the amount of $4,000 (collectively, the "Pre-Petition Transfers").

As of January 1, 2019, Defendant had $1,048,301.55 in the ITM and 2305 LLC bank accounts. About six months later, on the petition date, Defendant only had $128,857.76, which funds consisted solely of insurance proceeds. Defendant has not provided a justification or explanation for the dissipation of $900,000.

In his amended SOFA, Defendant asserts that he received $250,000 in income in 2018 and that ACG Industries was shut down in 2017. However, a review of the ITM bank account reveals that from March 2018 to May 2018, Defendant received $905,000 from ACG Industries. This demonstrates that Defendant received three times the amount of income disclosed in his amended SOFA and that ACG Industries was still operating in 2018.

Attached to the Complaint were the May Note [Exh. A], the October Note [Exh. B], bank statements [Exh. C] and the 2015 Email [Exh. D]. The May Note provides that Defendant "promises to get re payment to the order of [Plaintiff], or his successors in interest, the sum of EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND ($800,000.) DOLLARS through revenues generated by [ACC]. Along with securing an equity stake of 14% in the makers INVESTMENT in [ACC]...." The May Note further provides, that "[a]ll principal and accrued interest shall be due and payable on a cyclical basis based on disbursement made via K-1 by ACC to 'maker' within 30 days of 'maker' being paid." On May 22, 2014, Plaintiff and Defendant apparently signed the May Note.

The October Note provides that Defendant and ACC "promises to pay to the order of [Plaintiff], or his successors in interest, the sum of Eight hundred thousand ($800,000.) DOLLARS along with an equity interest of 14% in the makers...." The October Note provides that interest will accrue for three years, "payable annually on the anniversary date at the rate of five percent (1%) [sic] per annum." The October Note further provides that: "[a]ll principal and accrued interest shall be due and payable by Oct 1, 2017." On October 1, 2014, Plaintiff and Defendant apparently signed the October Note.

Based on the bank statements, on July 10, 2014, Plaintiff made a $300,000 transfer to ACC Industries, Inc., and on November 21, 2014, he made a $500,000 transfer to Jakdyl, Inc.

On February 4, 2020, Defendant filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "First Motion to Dismiss") [doc. 5]. On April 29, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the First Motion to Dismiss [doc. 12]. On May 13, 2020, the Court entered an order granting in part and denying in part the First Motion to Dismiss (the "Order") [doc. 16]. Pursuant to the Order, the Court granted the First Motion to Dismiss as to Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4) and (a)(6) and 727(a)(5) with leave to amend, and denied the motion as to Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. §§ 727(a)(2) and (a)(4).

On May 12, 2020, Plaintiff filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 15]. Attached to the FAC is the same exhibits as were attached to the Complaint. In relevant part, the FAC makes the following new allegations:

In May 2014, Plaintiff was introduced to Defendant in connection with making investments into cannabis growing operations in Nevada. Plaintiff and Defendant discussed the appropriate manner in which Plaintiff could transfer funds and obtain a return. Defendant requested that Plaintiff directly loan the money to Defendant, so that Defendant could receive a higher percentage of ownership in the ventures, thereby, obtaining a higher level of control in the resulting investment.

In May 2014, in connection with these discussions, Plaintiff expressed that he wanted a guaranty that his money would be returned with profit. Plaintiff recognized that making a direct equity investment came with more risk than he was willing to undertake. Plaintiff further recognized, and relied upon Defendant's representation, that Defendant would obtain significant control in the underlying investment specifically because Plaintiff was willing to loan the funds to Defendant. Plaintiff expressly stated that he wanted a return of his capital, with interest, and did not want to bear the risk associated with a direct equity investment.

Plaintiff was advised by Defendant prior to the execution of the May Note and October Note that Defendant was an officer, director and controlling member of ACC.

Defendant has now confirmed that at no time did he ever intend to abide by the terms of the May Note or October Note. Rather, he always intended to treat Plaintiff's funds as a direct equity investment in the underlying entities. Defendant prepared the May Note and October Note which expressly state that the funds would be treated as a loan, and not merely a direct equity investment into risky entities. In documenting the May Note and October Note, Defendant falsely assured Plaintiff that the transfer of funds was a safe transaction and that Defendant would guaranty Plaintiff would not suffer any loss.

As of September 20, 2018, ACC was insolvent as its assets were less than its liabilities and/or it could not pay its debts as they became due. Upon the insolvency of ACC, a fiduciary trust relationship was created whereby ACC's officers, directors and controlling members (including Defendant) owed a fiduciary duty to ACC's creditors, including Plaintiff.

Based on Defendant's original schedules and bank statements, in 2018, Defendant took over $90,000 from ACC, thus committing an act of defalcation to the detriment of ACC's creditors. Defendant as an officer, director and/or controlling member of an insolvent company, owing a fiduciary duty to its creditors, deposited the funds into an account in the name of ITM. ITM is the alter ego of Defendant and vice versa.

Defendant received the Principal from Plaintiff, with the understanding that such funds were to be invested for the benefit of Plaintiff, and would be returned to Plaintiff by October 1, 2017, pursuant to the October Note. Plaintiff has a right, at minimum, to the Principal by virtue of the October Note, when it was converted by Defendant. Defendant wrongfully took the Principal and improperly interfered with Plaintiff's ability to use it, and converted such funds for his owner personal benefit and use, when such funds rightfully belonged to Plaintiff. Defendant took Plaintiff's funds without his consent or authorization.

On June 16, 2020, Defendant filed an amended motion to dismiss the FAC (the "Motion") [doc. 25]. In the Motion, Defendant argues that Plaintiff has failed to state a claim under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) and that Plaintiff has failed to plead the fraud-based claims with particularity as required by Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b). On July 22, 2020, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 31]. Defendant did not timely file a reply to the Opposition.

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted) (citing, inter alia, Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 547, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed. 2d 929 (2007); Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed. 2d 868 (2009)). "Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2) requires only 'a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief,' in order to 'give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.'" Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555 (citations omitted). In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986). Further, a court may consider evidence "on which the complaint necessarily relies if: (1) the complaint refers to the document; (2) the document is central to the plaintiff's claim; and (3) no party questions the authenticity of the copy attached to the [Rule] 12(b)(6) motion." Marder v. Lopez, 450 F.3d 445, 448 (9th Cir. 2006) (internal quotation marks omitted). Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

B. 11 U.S.C. §§ 727(a)(2) and (a)(4)

In ruling on the First Motion to Dismiss, the Court stated that the Complaint contained sufficient allegations to state a claim for relief under §§ 727(a)(2) and (a)(4) [doc. 12]. The FAC does not add any new allegations pertinent to these claims, and the Motion did not include new arguments concerning dismissal of these claims. Accordingly, the Court will not revisit the merits of its prior ruling. The Court will deny the Motion as to these claims.

C. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

Chapter 7

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the Plaintiffs must prove by a preponderance of the evidence the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

In re Weinberg, 410 B.R. 19, 35 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009) (citing In re Slyman, 234 F.3d 1081, 1085 (9th Cir. 2000)).

i. Misrepresentations with Knowledge of Falsity and Intent to Deceive

Representations made without an intent to perform satisfy the first three requirements of § 523(a)(2)(A). In re Rubin, 875 F.2d 755, 759 (9th Cir. 1989). A promise also can be considered fraudulent when the promisor knew or should have known of his inability to perform. In re Barrack, 217 B.R. 598, 606 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1998). A promise to perform in the future is not a false representation or false pretense unless the debtor did not have intent to perform at the time he made the representation. Matter of Bercier, 934 F.2d 689, 691-92 (5th Cir. 1991) ("A mere promise to be executed in the future is not sufficient to make a debt nondischargeable, even though there is no excuse for the subsequent breach.") (citations omitted).

ii. Justifiable Reliance

To satisfy the reliance requirement of § 523(a)(2)(A), a plaintiff must show "justifiable" reliance, not "reasonable reliance." Field v. Mans, 516 U.S. 59, 74-75, 116 S. Ct. 437, 133 L. Ed. 2d 351 (1995). Justifiable reliance takes into account the "qualities and characteristics of the particular plaintiff, and the circumstances of the particular case, rather than of the application of a community standard of conduct to all cases." Id. at 71.

Section 523(a)(2)(A) requires that the damage to the creditor be proximately caused by the debtor's fraud. In re Sabban, 600 F.3d 1219, 1223 (9th Cir. 2010) (explaining that the debtor will not receive a discharge of debts "resulting from" or "traceable" to fraud). "Further, as the Supreme Court explained in Field, a court may turn to the Restatement (Second) of Torts (1976), 'the most widely accepted distillation of the common law of torts,' for guidance on this issue." In re Russell, 203 B.R. 303, 313 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1996) (citing to Field, 516 U.S. at 70).

"Turning to the Restatement, proximate cause entails (1) causation in fact, which requires a defendant's misrepresentations to be a 'substantial factor in determining the course of conduct that results in [the plaintiff's] loss,' § 546; and (2) legal causation, which requires the plaintiff's loss to have been 'reasonably expected to result from the reliance,' § 548A. In determining the presence of proximate cause, however, courts must refrain from relying on speculation to determine whether and to what extent a creditor would have suffered a loss absent fraud. Id. (citing to In re Siriani, 967 F.2d 302, 306 (9th Cir. 1992)).

Here, the FAC fails to cure the deficiencies the Court noted in its ruling on the First Motion to Dismiss [doc. 12]. Specifically, Plaintiff alleges:

[W]hen Defendant made the representations in the May Note and October Note to Plaintiff, he knew them to be false, and made these representations with the intent to defraud and deceive Plaintiff and with the intent to and with intent to [sic] induce Plaintiff to enter into the above-described May Note and October Note.

Plaintiff believed the representations and relied on the truth of them in entering into the May Note and October Note. Plaintiff would not have given his consent to the May Note or October Note, nor would he have provided the $800,000 in funds, had it not been for [Defendant's] statements and actions to induce Plaintiff (the fraud).

The reliance by Plaintiff was justified because at the time the representations were made, Defendant personally assured [Plaintiff] that the funds would be treated as a loan to [Defendant], and not a direct equity investment into any third-party entities. [Defendant] prepared the May Note and October Note which expressly state that the funds would be treated as a loan, and not merely a direct equity investment into risky entities. In documenting the May Note and October Note, [Defendant] falsely assured Plaintiff that the transfer of funds was a safe transaction and [Defendant] would guaranty that Plaintiff would not suffer any loss.

As concerns the representations in the May Note, as the Court previously stated, the Complaint does not make sufficient allegations regarding whether the condition precedent was met, i.e., that ACC generated revenue and that disbursements were made to Defendant within the pertinent time frame, i.e., before the October Note went into effect. Moreover, the May Note contains no deadline for the payment in full of any accrued interest and principal.

As concerns the October Note, Plaintiff has not alleged what false representations Defendant made specifically concerning the October Note that Plaintiff relied on when transferring $500,000 in November 2014 to Jakdyl, Inc. (not Defendant). In the October Note, Defendant represented that he would repay the Principal and transfer an equity interest in ACC to Plaintiff. Failure to repay the Principal or to transfer an equity interest is a breach of contract. Not every breach of contract amounts to fraud.

In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges that he relied on Defendant's representation that Defendant "would obtain significant control in the underlying investment because Plaintiff was willing to loan" the Principal to Defendant. However, Plaintiff does not allege that this was false or that Defendant had knowledge of the falsity and an intent to deceive Plaintiff at the time the representation was made. Plaintiff also does not allege when this representation was made.

Similarly, in the FAC, Plaintiff alleges that in documenting the May Note and October Note, Defendant falsely assured Plaintiff that the transfer of the Principal was a safe transaction and that Defendant would guaranty Plaintiff would not suffer any loss. However, Plaintiff does not allege that he relied on this representation, and that Defendant intended to deceive Plaintiff with this representation. Plaintiff also does not specify when this representation was made.

The other new allegations in the FAC concern what Plaintiff expressed to Defendant. As with the Complaint, the FAC does not sufficiently identify what false statements or misrepresentations Defendant made to Plaintiff before Plaintiff transferred the pertinent funds in July 2014 and November 2014, when Defendant did so, and that Plaintiff relied on those statements.

Consequently, as to the § 523(a)(2) cause of action, the Court will grant the Motion, with leave to amend. As to the May Note, in particular, if Plaintiff chooses to pursue a § 523(a)(2) cause of action, Plaintiff must address, among other things, the specific payment provisions of that note and whether any default occurred, based on those payment provisions.

D. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement, or larceny."

A debt is nondischargeable for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity "where (1) an express trust existed, (2) the debt was caused by fraud or defalcation, and (3) the debtor acted as a fiduciary to the creditor at the time the debt was created." In re Niles, 106 F.3d 1456, 1459 (9th Cir. 1997).

In the Opposition, Plaintiff argues that the FAC contains sufficient allegations concerning Defendant's defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity. Accordingly, the focus of the inquiry will be on the existence of fiduciary relationship and defalcation.

i. Existence of Trust/Fiduciary Relationship

Whether a relationship is a fiduciary one within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) is a question of federal law. Ragsdale v. Haller, 780 F.2d 794, 795 (9th Cir. 1986); see also In re Cantrell, 269 B.R. 413, 420 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001) ("The definition of 'fiduciary capacity' under § 523(a)(4) is governed by federal law."). In the context of dischargeability, the fiduciary relationship must arise from an express or technical trust that was imposed before and without reference to the wrongdoing that caused the debt. Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796; see also In re Stern, 403 B.R. 58, 66 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009) ("In order for the debt to be actionable for nondischargeability, the debtor must have been a trustee before the alleged wrong and without reference thereto; the debtor must have already been a trustee before the debt was created."); Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420 ("Only relationships arising from express or technical trusts qualify as fiduciary relationships under § 523(a)(4).").

Under § 523(a)(4), a court must consider state law to ascertain whether there is the required express or technical trust. In re Honkanen, 446 B.R. 373, 379 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011). "If state law does not 'clearly and expressly impose trust-like obligations on a party,' courts 'will not assume that such duties exist and will not find that there was a fiduciary relationship.'" In re Houng, 636 F. App'x 396, 398 (9th Cir. 2016) (quoting 4 Collier on Bankruptcy, ¶ 523.10 (Alan N. Resnick & Henry J. Sommer eds., 16th ed.)).

"A trust under California law may be formed by express agreement, by statute, or by case law." Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420. An express trust under California law requires the following five elements: (1) present intent to create a trust; (2) a trustee; (3) trust property; (4) a proper legal purpose; and (5) a beneficiary. Honkanen, at 379 n.6 (citing Cal. Prob. Code §§ 15201–15205). A technical trust under California law is one "arising from the relation of attorney, executor, or guardian, and not to debts due by a bankrupt in the character of an agent, factor, commission merchant, and the like." Id., at n.7 (quoting Royal Indemnity Co. v. Sherman, 269 P.2d 123, 125 (Cal. Ct. App. 1954)).

Additionally, "[t]rusts arising as remedial devices to breaches of implied or express contracts—such as resulting or constructive trusts—are excluded, while statutory trusts that bear the hallmarks of an express trust are not." Id. (citing In re Pedrazzini, 644 F.2d 756, 759 (9th Cir. 1981)).

ii. Defalcation

Defalcation is defined as the "misappropriation of trust funds or money held in any fiduciary capacity; the failure to properly account for such funds." Weinberg, 410 B.R. at 28 (quoting In re Lewis, 97 F.3d 1182, 1186 (9th Cir. 1996)). "A defalcation may include innocent, as well as intentional or negligent, defaults in performing trust duties." Id.

In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges two bases for the requisite fiduciary relationship: (i) Defendant agreed to act as Plaintiff's agent for purposes of ensuring Plaintiff was repaid the Principal; and (ii) upon the insolvency of ACC, ACC's officers, directors and controlling members owed a fiduciary duty to ACC's creditors.

As to the Plaintiff's first allegation, as stated above, and as noted in the Court's ruling on the First Motion to Dismiss [doc. 12], any such agreement would not create the required technical trust within the purview of § 523(a)(4). Moreover, Plaintiff characterizes the debt as a loan. Accepting a loan, without more, does not create a fiduciary relationship. See In re Mbunda, 484 B.R. 344 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2012). As to Plaintiff's second allegation, the FAC contains sufficient allegations to state a claim for relief.

Under California common law, "courts adhere to the 'trust fund doctrine,' pursuant to which 'all of the assets of a corporation, immediately upon becoming insolvent, become a trust fund for the benefit of all [of the corporation's] creditors [].'" Houng, 636 F. App'x at 398 (quoting Berg & Berg Enter., LLC v. Boyle, 100 Cal.Rptr.3d, 875, 893 (2009)). The duties directors owe to creditors upon insolvency are generally limited to "avoidance of actions that divert, dissipate, or unduly risk corporate assets that might otherwise be used to pay creditors ['] claims," by "divert[ing] assets of the corporation for the benefit of insiders or preferred creditors." Berg, 100 Cal.Rptr.3d at 893–94 (emphasis in original).

In Houng, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals addressed whether California's trust fund doctrine established a fiduciary relationship within the meaning of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a) (4). In relevant part, the Ninth Circuit stated:

The trust fund doctrine "clearly and expressly impose[s] trust-like obligations" on the controllers of an insolvent entity. 4 Collier on Bankruptcy, ¶ 523.10. Because the duties arise at insolvency, see Berg, 100 Cal.Rptr.3d at 893, and require the avoidance of "divert[ing], dissipat[ing], or unduly risk[ing] corporate assets," id. at 894, the fiduciary relationship exists "prior to any wrongdoing" and "without reference to [the wrong]," as required by § 523(a)(4). Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796. This is in contrast to a trust "ex maleficio," i.e., a trust that arises "by operation of law upon a wrongful act," that we have held is outside of § 523(a)(4)'s purview. Blyler v. Hemmeter (In re Hemmeter), 242 F.3d 1186, 1189–90 (9th Cir.2001).

With regard to whether the trust doctrine creates an "express or technical" trust, "[m]ost courts ... recognize that the 'technical' or 'express' trust requirement [for nondischargeability] is not limited to trusts that arise by virtue of a formal trust agreement, but includes relationships in which trust-type obligations are imposed pursuant to statute or common law." LSP Inv. P'ship v. Bennett (In re Bennett), 989 F.2d 779, 784–85 (5th Cir.1993); see also, e.g., Lovell v. Stanifer (In re Stanifer), 236 B.R. 709, 714 (9th Cir. BAP 1999). Indeed, decades ago our court recognized that qualifying as a "fiduciary" for nondischargeability purposes does not require formalistically satisfying the technical requirements of specific categories of trusts. Runnion v. Pedrazzini (In re Pedrazzini), 644 F.2d 756, 758 n. 2 (9th Cir.1981). Instead, in analyzing whether certain California statutory law could satisfy the precursor to § 523(a)(4), we held that "[t]he precise manner in which a trust is created ... is of little importance. Rather, the focus should be on whether true fiduciary responsibilities have been imposed." Id. We held that the "core requirements" for determining whether the requisite "trust-like obligations" are imposed, "are that the relationship exhibit characteristics of the traditional trust relationship, and that the fiduciary duties be created before the act of wrongdoing and not as a result of the act of wrongdoing." Id. at 758–59. We have continued to apply these same standards to determine whether a trust is sufficient to create a "fiduciary" relationship within the meaning of § 523(a)(4). See In re Hemmeter, 242 F.3d at 1189–90; Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796.

Accordingly, in more recent cases, we have looked to state common law in applying the trust requirement of § 523(a)(4), without strict regard to whether the trust created by common law was "express" or "technical." See Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 797; In re Lewis, 97 F.3d at 1186; Lewis v. Short (In re Short), 818 F.2d 693, 695 (9th Cir.1987). Here, because California's common law trust fund doctrine imposes "true fiduciary responsibilities" prior to "the act of wrongdoing and not as a result of the act of wrongdoing," In re Pedrazzini, 644 F.2d at 758, 758 n. 2, the "express or technical" trust requirement for nondischargeability is satisfied.

Houng, 636 F. App'x at 399.

In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges that in September 2018, ACC was insolvent, that Defendant told Plaintiff that he was an officer, director and controlling member of ACC and that while ACC was insolvent, Defendant took $90,000 from ACC and deposited those funds into the account of ITM (an alleged alter ego of Defendant). When ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the Court must accept these allegations as true.

Under California's trust fund doctrine, immediately upon ACC allegedly becoming insolvent, all of ACC's assets became a trust fund for the benefit of ACC's creditors, such as Plaintiff. [FN1] Defendant being the officer, director or controlling member of ACC, had a fiduciary duty not to divert, dissipate or unduly risk ACC's assets that might otherwise be paid to creditors. Although the fiduciary duties may be limited, as stated above, the duties created by California's trust fund doctrine satisfy the criteria for a "fiduciary" relationship under § 523(a)(4). [FN2]

Further, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant committed an act of defalcation while in that fiduciary capacity by misappropriating $90,000 to his own personal use. Consequently, as to the § 523(a)(4) cause of action, the Court will deny the Motion.

E. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6)

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity." As in any § 523(a) action, the plaintiff bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence. Grogan v. Garner, 498 U.S. 279, 286, 111 S.Ct. 654, 112 L.Ed.2d 755 (1991).

i. Willfulness

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S.Ct. 974, 140 L.Ed. 2d 90 (1998). In the Ninth Circuit, " § 523(a)(6)'s willful injury requirement is met only when the debtor has a subjective motive to inflict injury or when the debtor believes that injury is substantially certain to result from his own conduct." Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1206 (quoting In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1142 (9th Cir.2002)). "The Debtor is charged with the knowledge of the natural consequences of his actions." Id. (citing In re Cohen, 121 B.R. 267, 271 (Bankr.E.D.N.Y.1990)). See also Su, 290 F.3d at 1146 ("In addition to what a debtor may admit to knowing, the bankruptcy court may consider circumstantial evidence that tends to establish what the debtor must have actually known when taking the injury-producing action.").

ii. Maliciousness

Under § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Chapter 7

Section 523(a)(6) generally applies to torts rather than to contracts. An intentional breach of contract generally will not give rise to a nondischargeable debt, unless it is accompanied by tortious conduct which results in willful and malicious injury. Jercich, at 1205; Lockerby v. Sierra, 555 F.3d 1038, 1040 (9th Cir. 2008) ("an intentional breach of contract cannot give rise to nondischargeability under § 523(a)(6) unless it is accompanied by conduct that constitutes a tort under state law").

Here, Plaintiff makes a claim under § 523(a)(6) based on conversion. "Conversion is the wrongful exercise of dominion over the property of another." Farmers Insurance Exchange v. Zerin, 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 451 (Ct. App. 1997). Under California law the elements of conversion are plaintiff's ownership or right to possession of property at the time of the conversion, defendant's wrongful act or disposition of his property right, and consequent damages. Ehrle, 189 B.R. 771, 776 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2002) (citing In re Saylor, 178 B.R. 209, 214 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1995)). "[A] mere contractual right of payment, without more, will not suffice" to support a claim for conversion. Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin, 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 452 (1997).

"[T]he specific thing at issue must be a thing to which the plaintiff has a right of ownership or possession—a right with which the defendant has interfered by virtue of its own disposition of the property." Voris v. Lampert, 7 Cal. 5th 1141, 1151–52, 446 P.3d 284, 291 (2019), reh'g denied (Oct. 23, 2019) (internal citations and quotations omitted). "This means that a cause of action for conversion of money can be stated only where a defendant interferes with the plaintiff's possessory interest in a specific, identifiable sum; the simple failure to pay money owed does not constitute conversion." Id. (internal citations and quotations omitted). "Were it otherwise, the tort of conversion would swallow the significant category of contract claims that are based on the failure to satisfy mere contractual rights of payment." Id. (internal citations and quotations omitted). "[T]o put the matter simply, a plaintiff has no claim for conversion merely because the defendant has a bank account and owes the plaintiff money." Id. (internal citations and quotations omitted).

At the motion to dismiss stage, "[m]alice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b). The FAC alleges that Defendant willfully and maliciously injured Plaintiff, that Defendant intended the consequences of his actions and that injury was substantially certain to result from Defendant's conduct. Thus, the FAC sufficiently alleges the intent elements of § 523(a)

However, even with the amendments, the FAC fails to allege the elements of conversion. Plaintiff alleges that he loaned the Principal to Defendant, and that Defendant was to repay the Principal to Plaintiff based on the terms in the October Note. Plaintiff alleges that, at a minimum, he has a right to the Principal by virtue of the October Note, when it was "converted" by Defendant. Plaintiff transferred the Principal to ACC Industries, Inc. and Jakdyl, Inc. in 2014. Plaintiff does not allege that Defendant used the Principal in any way other than to which the parties agreed. As stated above, a mere contractual right to payment, without more, will not support a claim for conversion.

Consequently, as to the § 523(a)(6) cause of action, the Court will grant the Motion. Because the Court already granted Plaintiff leave to amend the Complaint and the deficiencies were not cured by an amendment, the Court will dismiss this claim without leave to amend.

F. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5), a debtor's discharge will be denied if "the debtor has failed to explain satisfactorily, before determination of denial of discharge under this paragraph, any loss of assets or deficiency of assets to meet the debtor's liabilities." Under § 727(a)(5), the objecting party must demonstrate that:

- (1) debtor at one time, not too remote from the bankruptcy petition date, owned identifiable assets;
- (2) on the date the bankruptcy petition was filed or order of relief granted, the debtor no longer owned the assets; and
- (3) the bankruptcy pleadings or statement of affairs do not reflect an adequate explanation for the disposition of the assets.

Retz, 606 F.3d at 1205.

Here, the FAC makes sufficient allegations under § 727(a)(5). Plaintiff alleges that Defendant has failed to explain satisfactorily the loss of assets from: (i) the Insurance Proceed Transfers; (ii) the Pre-Petition Transfers; (iii) a $550,000 transfer to Neil Harris in February 2019 as a "[b]usiness investment to be repaid;" and (iv) a $50,000 transfer to Brian Burr "temporarily" in May 2019.

Chapter 7

With the exception of the $2,832 transfer of insurance proceeds that occurred after the petition date, the FAC contains sufficient factual allegations as to the Insurance Proceed Transfers and the Pre-Petition Transfers. See In re Choy, 569 B.R. 169, 184-185 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2017) (stating that Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals precedent limits § 727(a)(5) to a debtor's inexplicable, pre-petition loss of assets). Plaintiff alleges that Defendant a few months prior to the petition date owned the funds, that on the petition date Defendant no longer owned the funds, and Defendant's schedules and SOFA do not provide an adequate explanation for the disposition of the funds.

Similarly, Plaintiff has adequately alleged the elements with regard to the transfer to Neal Harris and the transfer to Brian Burr. The transfers were not too remote in time from the petition date and Defendant's amended SOFA does not adequately explain the loss of the funds. Consequently, as to the § 727(a)(5) cause of action, the Court will deny the Motion.

III. CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, the Court will grant the Motion as to the § 523(a)(2)(A) claim with leave to amend and the § 523(a)(6) claim without leave to amend. The Court will deny the Motion as to the §§ 523(a)(4) and 727(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(5) claims.

Plaintiff will have 14 days from the date of the hearing to file and serve on Defendant and his counsel an amended complaint, or to file and serve notice on Defendant and his counsel that Plaintiff will not do so.

Plaintiff must submit the order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. Pursuant to the October Note, Defendant and ACC promised to repay Plaintiff the Principal and to transfer a 25.5% equity interest in ACC to Plaintiff. Neither Defendant nor ACC repaid the Principal to Plaintiff by the October 1, 2017 due date. As such, in 2018, Plaintiff would have been a creditor of ACC, as well as a stockholder (if Plaintiff received an equity interest in accordance with the terms of the October Note).

While it is true that the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held in Cantrell that a corporate officer is not a fiduciary to the corporation or its shareholders for purposes of § 523(a)(4), Cantrell is inapposite to this case. In Cantrell, the plaintiff was the corporation itself—not a creditor. Further, the corporation was not insolvent, and therefore, Cantrell did not discuss California’s trust fund doctrine.

#1.00 Amended application for payment of final fees and/or expenses

Docket 247

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part, at this time.

LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. ("Applicant"), special litigation counsel to the debtor – approve fees in the amount of $40,000 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $2,408.50 (for Aptus Court Reporting), pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. At this time, the Court will not approve $7,255.50 in fees for D.W. Pyne, CPA and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $3,962.82 for the reasons stated below.

D.W. Pyne, CPA is a professional employed by the estate [doc. 136]. As such, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, in order for Mr. Pyne to receive compensation, Mr. Pyne must file a final fee application that complies with the requirements of LBR 2016-1.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1), a court may award a professional person employed under § 327 "reimbursement for actual, necessary expenses." Factors relevant to determining if an expense is proper, include: "(i) whether the expense is reasonable and economical, (ii) whether the applicant has provided a detailed itemization of expenses, (iii) whether the expenses appear to be in the nature of non-reimbursable overhead, and (iv) whether the applicant has adhered to allowable rates for expenses as fixed by local rule or order of the Court." In re GSC Group, Inc., 502 B.R. 673, 743 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013).

Regarding Applicant's request for reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $3,962.82, the application does not include a description of the expenses. Without further explanation, the Court cannot determine whether the expenses are reasonable and whether they are non-compensable overhead.

#4.00 First and final application for compensation and reimbursement of expenses for Law Offices of Michael Jay Berger

fr. 7/2/20; 07/23/2020;

Docket 42

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will grant the fee application in part and deny it in part.

A. Background

On March 5, 2020, Amerigrade Corp. ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. At that time, Debtor was represented by Resnik Hayes Moradi LLP ("Resnik Hayes"). On April 24, 2020, Debtor filed a substitution of attorney, indicating that The Law Offices of Michael J. Berger ("Applicant") was substituted as attorney of record in place of Resnik Hayes [doc. 22].

On May 1, 2020, Applicant filed an application requesting Court approval to be employed by the estate (the "Employment Application") [doc. 25]. In the Employment Application, Applicant disclosed that its retainer of $15,000 was paid by Evette Adawalla, Debtor's principal's mother and a creditor of the estate [Declaration of Michael Jay Berger, doc. 25, ¶ 13]. Ms. Adawalla allegedly is the beneficiary of a second position deed of trust against certain real property, in which Debtor claims an interest, located at 13219 Filmore Avenue, Pacoima, California (the "Property").

Attached to the Employment Application was a declaration by Ms. Adawalla. In that declaration, Ms. Adawalla states that her interest is not inconsistent to that of Debtor's bankruptcy estate [Declaration of Evette Adawalla, doc. 25, ¶ 4]. Additionally, Ms. Adawalla states that the payment of the retainer was a gift contribution to Debtor and that she would not be seeking repayment from Debtor. Id. at ¶ 3.

Also attached to the Employment Application is the signed written fee contract between Debtor and Applicant (the "Retainer Agreement") [doc. 25, Exh. 4]. Pursuant to the Retainer Agreement, $10,000 of the retainer was for Applicant's representation of Debtor in its chapter 11 case and $5,000 of the retainer was for the possible prosecution of an adversary proceeding, regarding a prepetition nonjudicial foreclosure sale.

In relevant part, the Retainer Agreement states:

In addition to the above referenced services, if I determine there is merit to the proposed adversary proceeding against Mr. Cooper for unlawful foreclosure on your property located at 13217 Filmore Street Pacoima, CA 91331, against the new owners of the property, and against any other appropriate parties. I will represent you in an adversary proceeding against Mr. Cooper and any other party that should be held accountable for the improper foreclosure and taking of your personal property. This planned adversary proceeding will include all appropriate causes of action. This acknowledges my receipt of payment of $15,00 from you last night, retaining me both for the Chapter 11 case ($10,000) and the planned adversary proceeding ($5,000).

(emphasis added). The Employment Application and notice of the opportunity to request a hearing was served on the United States Trustee, Debtor, Resnik Hayes, Ms. Adawalla and other creditors. No opposition to the Employment Application was timely filed. Accordingly, on May 26, 2020, the Court entered an order granting the Employment Application [doc. 39].

While Applicant was employed by the estate, Applicant filed the Employment Application, two monthly operating reports [docs. 33 and 34] and an opposition to a motion for relief from stay [doc. 30]. The opposition was 31 pages, inclusive of exhibits. Based on certain issues raised in the opposition, the Court continued the hearing on the motion for relief from stay.

On May 21, 2020, Debtor filed another substitution of attorney, indicating that Resnik Hayes was substituted as attorney of record in place of Applicant [doc. 36].

B. The Fee Application

On May 29, 2020, Applicant filed a first and final application for compensation, requesting approval of $21,851 in fees and reimbursement of $139.82 in expenses for the period between April 24, 2020 and May 26, 2020 (the "Fee Application") [doc. 42].

On June 18, 2020, Debtor filed an objection to the Fee Application (the "Debtor Objection") [doc. 55]. In the Debtor Objection, Debtor objects to the Fee Application because: (i) the fees sought are not reasonable; (ii) Applicant billed for services in violation of the parties' agreement; (iii) Applicant is not disinterested; and (iv) an adversary complaint was never filed by Applicant. Debtor also details several questionable representations supposedly made by Applicant to induce Debtor to retain Applicant.

In the Debtor Objection, Debtor states that Debtor and Applicant had an agreement that Sofya Davtyan, Esq. would review Debtor's monthly operating reports ("MORs") and be the only point of contact so as to limit fees. Debtor objects to Applicant's billing entries for its senior paralegal, as related to reviewing Debtor's MORs.

On June 23, 2020, Ms. Adawalla filed an untimely objection to the Fee Application (the "Creditor Objection") [doc. 63]. In the Creditor Objection, Ms. Adawalla objects to the Fee Application because: (i) Applicant did not file an adversary proceeding complaint; (ii) Applicant made various representations to induce Ms. Adawalla to retain Applicant; (iii) Applicant was never properly hired; (iv) Applicant regularly induces his clients to retain his girlfriend as an accountant; and (v) Applicant's billing records show lumped billing.

On June 25, 2020, Applicant filed a declaration in reply to the Debtor Objection and the Creditor Objection (the "Reply") [doc. 67]. In the Reply, among other things, Applicant disputes that Mr. Berger made particular representations to Debtor and Ms. Adawalla. Applicant also disputes that it had an agreement with Debtor that it would never use paralegals to provide services.

C. Applicant's Alleged Conduct

Although the Court is concerned by the alleged representations detailed in the Debtor Objection and Creditor Objection, Applicant disputes that those representations were made. If Debtor is concerned about Applicant's conduct or representations in connection with this bankruptcy case, Debtor may present those issues to the California State Bar.

In addition, whether Applicant "regularly induces" its clients to retain Jenny Liu as an accountant, as a result of her alleged relationship with Mr. Berger, is not relevant to the Court's assessment of the Fee Application. In this case, no employment application to retain Ms. Liu as an accountant was submitted.

Regarding Debtor's contention that Applicant billed for services in violation of the parties' agreement, there is nothing in the Retainer Agreement to indicate that any such agreement was made. Accordingly, the Court will not disallow the fees billed by Applicant's paralegal on that basis alone. As set forth below, the Court will assess the Fee Application based on the standards set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 330.

D. The $5,000 Retainer for the Adversary Proceeding Complaint

The Court will not order Applicant to return $5,000 of the retainer. Pursuant to the Retainer Agreement, Applicant was to file the adversary proceeding complaint if Applicant determined that the claims were meritorious. As detailed in the Reply and based on the billing entries in the Fee Application, Applicant spent substantial time assessing whether the proposed adversary proceeding had merit, and the opposition to the motion for relief from stay discussed issues regarding the unlawful foreclosure claims. Even though no adversary proceeding complaint was filed, Applicant may be compensated for the time spent investigating and advising the Court of the claims.

Additionally, Applicant's allowed fees are more than the $15,000 retainer Applicant received. Pursuant to the Retainer Agreement, Debtor agreed to timely pay Applicant's fees. Applicant may use the full $15,000 retainer to satisfy its approved fees.

Pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2014(a), an application for an order of employment "shall be accompanied by a verified statement of the person to be employed setting forth the person's connections with the debtor, creditors, any other party in interest, their respective attorneys and accountants, the United States trustee, or any person employed in the office of the United States trustee."

Except as provided in section 327(c), 327(e), or 1107(b) of this title, the court may deny allowance of compensation for services and reimbursement of expenses of a professional person employed under section 327 or 1103 of this title if, at any time during such professional person's employment under section 327 or 1103 of this title, such professional person is not a disinterested person, or represents or holds an interest adverse to the interest of the estate with respect to the matter on which such professional person is employed.

Contrary to Debtor's assertion, payment of a debtor's counsel's retainer by a creditor does not necessarily create a disqualifying interest. See In re Am. Int'l Refinery, Inc., 676 F.3d 455, 464 (5th Cir. 2012) (finding that under the totality of the circumstances, creditor's payment of debtor's counsel's retainer did not create a disqualifying interest). Courts apply a totality-of-circumstances approach to determine lack of disinterestedness under § 101(14)(E). In re AFI Holding, Inc., 355 B.R. 139, 152 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006), aff'd and adopted, 530 F.3d 832 (9th Cir. 2008).

Here, under the totality of the circumstances, it does not appear that there is a disqualifying interest that would require the Court to deny the Fee Application. In the Employment Application, Applicant properly disclosed that its retainer was paid by Ms. Adawalla. Neither the United States Trustee nor any other party opposed the Employment Application. Further, there is no evidence that Applicant acted contrary to the interests of the estate or gave legal advice that was colored by any loyalty to Ms. Adawalla. F. Standards the Court Must Apply to Assess the Fee Application

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). Except in circumstances not relevant to this chapter 11 case, "the court shall not allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

In addition, secretarial/clerical work is noncompensable under 11 U.S.C. § 330. See In re Schneider, 2008 WL 4447092, *11 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2008) (court disallowed billing for services including: monitoring and reviewing the docket; electronically distributing documents; preparing services packages, serving pleadings, updating service lists and preparing proofs of service; and e-filing and uploading pleadings); In re Ness, 2007 WL 1302611, *1 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. April 27, 2007) (data entry noncompensable as secretarial in nature); In re Dimas, 357 B.R. 563, 577 (Bankr. N.D. Moreover, in addition to violating the Local Rules, lumped or blocked billing is generally frowned upon by courts because it prevents the court from "fairly evaluating whether individual tasks were expeditiously performed within a reasonable time frame." In re Thomas, 2009 WL 7751299, *5 (9th Cir. BAP), quoting In re Hudson, 364 B.R. 875, 880 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 2007). When fee applications contain lumped billing, courts disallow or reduce the lumped entries. See In re Breeden, 180 B.R. 802, 810 (Bankr. N.D. W.Va. 1995) (court disallowed all lumped fee entries solely because their format); Welch v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 480 F.3d 942 at 948 (9th Cir. 2007) (court may properly impose a reduction for block billing).

G. Approval of Administrative Expenses

Having reviewed the pleadings submitted, and based on the standards noted above, the Court will approve Applicant's fees in the amount of $18,314.90 and reimbursement of Applicant's expenses in the amount of $139.82, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, for the period between April 23, 2020 and May 22, 2020, on a final basis. At this time, Applicant may collect 80% of the approved fees and 100% of the approved expenses. The Court will not approve $3,536.10 in fees for the reasons stated below.

In the Fee Application, Applicant attached billing records indicating that Applicant billed 21.30 hours, totaling $8,219, in connection with the motion for relief from stay. Considering the standards set forth in § 330(a)(1)(A), this amount is excessive. Accordingly, the Court will allow $6,000 in fees, for this category.

In addition, Applicant billed 2.40 hours, totaling $1,428.00, in connection with reviewing Resnik Hayes' employment application. Considering the standards set forth in § 330(a)(1)(A), this amount is excessive. Accordingly, the Court will allow only $595.00 in fees, for this category.

In accordance with the foregoing, the Court does not approve the fees billed for the services identified below because they are secretarial.

#9.00 Motion for authority for interim use of cash collateral
fr. 6/25/20

Docket 16

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

Objecting secured creditor Community Commerce Bank ("Community") acknowledges that the debtor must use cash collateral for certain expenses to maintain the debtor's office building. At this time, the Court will allow the debtor's use of cash collateral in accordance with the proposed budget, with the exception that, at this time, the Court will not approve the use of cash collateral to pay legal and/or accounting fees and expenses.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 327, the employment of lawyers and accountants requires the approval of the Court, and pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, their fees and expenses are subject to approval by the Court. Consequently, the debtor may not use cash collateral for payment of professionals' fees and expenses, unless and until the Court enters an order allowing such payment, after concluding that the requested professional fees and expenses are reasonable, and that any objecting creditors with an interest in that cash collateral are adequately protected for that use.

Regarding Community's contention that there is cause to dismiss this case, the Court will address those arguments in connection with a motion to dismiss.

The debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#27.00 Motion under Local Bankruptcy Rule 3015-1 (n) and (w)
to modify plan or suspend plan payments

Docket 33

Tentative Ruling:

On October 3, 2019, the Court entered an order confirming the debtors' chapter 13 plan (the "Order") [doc. 26]. Pursuant to the Order, the debtors are to pay $4,648 per month for 55 months. The plan is a 100% plan. The Order also provides that the applicable commitment period is five years if the plan pays less than 100%.

On July 6, 2020, the debtors filed a motion to modify their chapter 13 plan (the "Motion") [doc. 33]. In the Motion, the debtors propose to reduce the plan payment to $1,876 per month from July 2020 to July 2024. If the Motion is granted, the last plan payment due would be payable 54 months after the first plan payment was due. The proposed modification will reduce the percentage paid to general unsecured creditors from 100% to 41%. The debtors state that they are requesting a modification of their plan because their income has decreased. The debtors do not explain why their income has decreased or whether this is a temporary decrease.

On July 21, 2020, the chapter 13 trustee filed an objection to the Motion (the "Objection") [doc. 34]. In the Objection, the chapter 13 trustee states that she disapproves of the proposed modification because: (1) the modification would reduce the percentage paid to unsecured creditors without providing for a five year commitment period as required by the Order; and (2) the debtors have not explained why their income was reduced and the expected duration of their reduced income.

The Court will continue this hearing to September 8, 2020 at 11:00 a.m. By August 25, 2020, the debtors must file a response to the Objection addressing the issues raised by the chapter 13 trustee.

Appearances on August 11, 2020 are excused.

#29.00 Motion under 11 U.S.C. sec 110 for fines and disgorgement of fees against bankruptcy petition preparer Jenny Casco

fr. 6/9/20

Docket 33

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

At the prior hearing on June 9, 2020, the Court continued the hearing for Jenny Casco ("Respondent") to file a response to the motion. On July 28, 2020, Respondent timely filed a response (the "Response") [doc. 36].

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 110(a):

- (1) "bankruptcy petition preparer" means a person, other than an attorney for the debtor or an employee of such attorney under the direct supervision of such attorney, who prepares for compensation a document for filing; and
- (2) "document for filing" means a petition or any other document prepared for filing by a debtor in a United States bankruptcy court or a United States district court in connection with a case under this title.

In the Response, Respondent admits that she prepared the debtor's bankruptcy documents and collected monies to prepare those documents, including collecting the filing fee. Response, ¶¶ 6-7. Nowhere in the Response does Respondent state that she is a licensed attorney or that she is an employee of an attorney under the direct supervision of that attorney.

Accordingly, Respondent is a bankruptcy petition preparer as defined in § 110(a)(1). As such, Respondent was required to comply with the provisions of 11 U.S.C. § 110. Respondent did not and is subject to fines for her noncompliance. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 110(h)(5), Respondent must remit the fines set forth below to the Office of

3. Respondent failed to provide the debtor a copy of the documents filed on his behalf as commanded by 11 U.S.C. § 110(d): $50.00. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 110(d), Respondent was required to provide the debtor with a copy of each document filed on his behalf not later than the time at which the document was filed. In the Response, Respondent states that she provided the debtor with copies of the documents on his last visit to Respondent's office. This does not comply with the provisions in 11 U.S.C. § 110(d).
4. Respondent executed ten documents on behalf of the debtor in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 110(e)(1): $500.00 ($50.00 per violation). Respondent did not address the debtor's testimony regarding his signature being forged on ten documents [Declaration of Antonio Jesus Almeida, doc. 34, ¶ 29].
5. Respondent gave legal advice in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 110(e)(2): $50.00. In the Response, Respondent admits that she "advised Mr. Almeida that he should proceed with filing a lawsuit against foreclosing entities, and both parties discussed the option of filing a new Bankruptcy Chapter 13 in order to stop the January 7, 2020 lockout on Hayward property." Response, ¶ 6.
6. Respondent received payment from the debtor for the court fees in connection with filing the petition in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 110(g): $50.00. In the Response, Respondent states that she informed the debtor that the cost of the lawsuit would be $2,500, plus a filing fee of $310 for filing the bankruptcy petition. Response, ¶ 6.
7. Respondent failed to file an accurate declaration under penalty of perjury disclosing

Because respondent did not disclose her identity, the Court will triple these fines pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 110(l)(2)(D), for a total of $2,700.00. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 110(h)(3)(A)(i), the Court will also require disgorgement of $1,100.00 in unreasonable fees paid by the debtor.

In addition, by forging the debtor's signature on ten documents filed in this case, respondent acted fraudulently in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 110(i)(1). Respondent must pay damages in the amount of $2,000.00 to the debtor.

Thus, respondent must remit the following amounts to the Office of the U.S. Trustee: $3,100.00 to the debtor pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 110(h)(3) and 11 U.S.C. § 110(i) and $2,700.00 payable to the U.S. Trustee. Respondent must send certified funds to the Office of the U.S. Trustee within 30 days after the order is served.

#4.00 Order to show cause re: remand and status conference
re: removed proceeding

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will sever the claims and remand this action in part.

I. BACKGROUND

A. The State Court Complaint

On June 20, 2019, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a complaint in state court against Michael Leizerovitz, Sensible Consulting and Management, Inc. ("Sensible Consulting"), Ruvin Feygenberg and Ming Zhu, LLC ("Ming Zhu"), initiating this lawsuit (the "State Court Action"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 1. The defendants filed demurrers to the complaint. Id. After hearings on the demurrers, the state court sustained the demurrers with leave to amend. Id.

On September 27, 2019, Debtor filed a first amended complaint (the "Complaint"). Id. Through the Complaint, Debtor asserted claims for breach of implied covenant against encumbrances, quiet title, usury and declaratory relief. Id. In relevant part, Debtor alleged—

On January 31, 2019, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz signed a grant deed transferring the real property located at 13854 Albers Street, Sherman Oaks, CA 91401 (the "Albers Property") to Debtor. Mr. Feygenberg and Sensible Consulting provided a loan secured by the Albers Property. Pursuant to the loan agreement, the interest rate amounted to 23% per annum. Mr. Feygenberg then assigned his interest in the deed of trust to Sensible Consulting.

At the time Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz executed the grant deed, they covenanted that the Albers Property was free of liens and encumbrances. However, the Albers Property was encumbered by taxes and a judgment in favor of Ming Zhu. Debtor requests a judgment that it is the owner in fee simple of the Albers Property and that Defendants do not have an interest in the Albers Property.

Id.

On October 24, 2019, Ming Zhu filed a demurrer to the Complaint, and on November 1, 2019, Mr. Leizerovitz, Mr. Feygenberg and Sensible ("Defendants") filed their demurrer to the Complaint. Id. On February 18, 2020, the state court held hearings on the demurrers. Id. At that time, the state court sustained Ming Zhu's demurrer without leave to amend, dismissing Ming Zhu from this action. Id. The state court also dismissed the quiet title cause of action without leave to amend. Id. As to Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz, the state court dismissed the usury and declaratory relief causes of action without leave to amend, but overruled the demurrer as to the breach of implied covenant against encumbrances claim. Id. Finally, as to Sensible, the state court overruled the demurrer as to the breach of implied covenant and usury claims, sustained the demurrer as to the quiet title claim without leave to amend and sustained the demurrer as to the declaratory relief claim with leave to amend. Id.

B. The Cross-Complaint

On March 20, 2020, Defendants filed an answer to the Complaint. Id. Concurrently, Defendants filed a cross-complaint (the "Cross-Complaint") against Debtor, Dmitri Lioudkovski, Yevgeniya Lisitsa and Lisitsa Law, Inc. (the "Lisitsa Parties") and Real Property Trustee, Inc. ("RPT") and Mike Kemel (the "RPT Parties"). Id. In the Cross-Complaint, Defendants asserted causes of action for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, concealment, indemnity, declaratory relief, quiet title, cancellation of instruments, wrongful foreclosure and declaratory relief. Id.

In December 2018, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz entered into an agreement with Debtor for Debtor's acquisition of the Albers Property. The parties planned to purchase a defaulted promissory note secured by a first position deed of trust (the "Note" and the "DOT"), which was in the process of foreclosure. The parties planned to complete the non-judicial foreclosure for Debtor to obtain title to the Albers Property.

Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz acted as lenders secured by the Albers Property. Ms. Lisitsa and Lisitsa Law acted as counsel for all parties to the agreement. Pursuant to the agreement, Debtor was to contribute $1,022,500 towards the purchase of the Note and the DOT. However, unbeknownst to Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz, Mr. Lioudkovski made secret deals with others to obtain the funds Debtor needed to purchase the Note and the DOT and promised the secret lenders first position deeds of trust. Ms. Lisitsa was aware of the secret loans, and cross-complainants believe one of the secret lenders is a relative of Ms. Lisitsa.

On December 31, 2018, Debtor, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz acquired the Note and the DOT. On January 30, 2019, after Ms. Lisitsa represented these parties in litigation against the owner of the Albers Property, the foreclosure sale occurred. Despite the agreement that only Debtor would take title to the Albers Property, the foreclosure trustee, under the direction of Debtor and Mr. Lioudkovski, issued a Trustee's Deed naming Debtor, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz as owners. One day later, Ms. Lisitsa prepared a grant deed to divest Mr. Feygenberg's and Mr. Leizerovitz's interest in the Albers Property, and a deed of trust in favor of Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz. However, Ms. Lisitsa, acting in concert with Debtor and Mr. Lioudkovski, did not record these documents until March 22, 2019, after multiple demands from cross-complainants.

In early March 2019, Debtor, acting through Ms. Lisitsa, asked the cross-complainants to provide a pay-off demand. Debtor also informed the cross-complainants that there was a problem because there was a judgment lien against Mr. Feygenberg; however, the problem would not have arisen had Mr. Feygenberg never been placed on title to the Albers Property.

Debtor failed to contribute the $1,022,500 of its own funds and, as a result, breached the agreement between the parties. Debtor, Mr. Lioudkovski and the Lisitsa Parties also breached fiduciary duties owed to Defendants by concealing the secret loans, and these parties should indemnify Defendants for any costs incurred litigating the secret loans.

In addition to these allegations regarding the Albers Property, Mr. Leizerovitz also asserted causes of action for quiet title, cancellation of instruments, wrongful foreclosure and injunctive relief based on the following allegations regarding a different transaction—

Coachella Vineyard Luxury RV Park, LLC ("RV") owned vacant land in Coachella, California (the "RV Property"). Prior to July 2018, Mr. Leizerovitz held deeds of trust encumbering the RV Property. Mr. Leizerovitz agreed to release his deed of trust to allow RV to obtain new financing for development of the RV Property. The new financing included a loan, made by Debtor on July 31, 2018, in the principal amount of $2 million. This loan was secured by a first position deed of trust against the RV Property.

In return for releasing his deeds of trust, Mr. Leizerovitz received an unsecured promissory note in the amount of $400,000 and a promissory note secured by a deed of trust against the RV Property in the amount of $500,000. In February 2019, RV agreed that the unsecured note would be secured by the RV Property as an extension of credit. Additionally, Mr. Leizerovitz agreed to provide RV with another $50,000 loan secured by the deed trust. As such, the deed of trust in favor of Mr. Leizerovitz totaled $950,000 as a third position lien.

On June 17, 2019, Debtor declared its loan in default. The Notice of Default was prepared by RPT and Mr. Kemel and was in the amount of $2,450,244.27. On September 19, 2019, Debtor recorded a Notice of Sale set for October 15, 2019. RV then filed a lawsuit against Debtor in state court. The state court allowed a foreclosure, but reduced Debtor's demand amount.

Mr. Leizerovitz was interested in acquiring the RV Property through the foreclosure. However, on November 12, 2019, Mr. Leizerovitz learned that the RPT Parties conducted the foreclosure for Debtor on November 7, 2019, in violation of California Civil Code § 2924g(d); Mr. Leizerovitz was denied the opportunity to attend the foreclosure and purchase the RV Property. In addition, Debtor credit bid $2.5 million, an amount in excess of the amount allowed by the state court.

RV demanded that the foreclosure be set aside, but cross-defendants have failed to cancel the Trustee's Deed or confirm RV's title to the RV Property, which would restore Mr. Leizerovitz's secured interest in the RV Property.

C. Miscellaneous State Court Matters

On January 19, 2020, while litigating the State Court Action, Defendants filed a complaint against the Lisitsa Parties for legal malpractice (the "Malpractice Action"). Request for Judicial Notice [doc. 23], Exhibit C. The Malpractice Action involves the Lisitsa Parties' representation of Defendants in connection with the real property transactions outlined above.

On May 8, 2020, the RPT Parties filed a declaration of non-monetary status, asserting that they were sued solely in their capacity as trustee, and not because of wrongful acts or omissions on their part. Id. On May 22, 2020, the state court held a hearing and issued a ruling requiring the RPT Parties to participate in the lawsuit.

On May 15, 2020, Defendants filed a Notice of Related Case in the State Court Action, referencing the Malpractice Action. Id. On May 22, 2020, Debtor and Mr. Lioudkovski filed an answer to the cross-complaint. On June 12, 2020, the RPT Parties filed a motion to compel the depositions of Defendants and requested sanctions against these parties. Id. On June 19, 2020, the Lisitsa Parties filed a demurrer to the Cross-Complaint, set for hearing before the state court on August 13, 2020. II. ANALYSIS

Removal of state court actions to federal district court is governed by 28 U.S.C. §§ 1441 – 1455. Removal and remand of actions related to bankruptcy cases is governed by § 1452.

- (a) A party may remove any claim or cause of action in a civil action . . . to the district court for the district where such civil action is pending, if such district court has jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under section 1334 of this title.
- (b) The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground. . . .

28 U.S.C. § 1452.

The party seeking removal bears the burden of establishing federal jurisdiction. Id. As set forth in § 1452, removal to a bankruptcy court requires that the court have jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under 28 U.S.C. § 1334. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b), with regard to bankruptcy cases and proceedings, provides that:

Except as provided by subsection (e)(2) and notwithstanding any Act of Congress that confers exclusive jurisdiction on a court or courts other than the district courts, the district courts shall have original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11.

1. Arising Under Jurisdiction

"A matter arises under the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010).

2. Arising In Jurisdiction

"A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id.

Matters that "arise under or in Title 11 are deemed to be 'core' proceedings" In re Harris Pine Mills, 44 F.3d 1431, 1435 (9th Cir. 1995). Title 28, United States Code, section 157(b)(2) sets out a non-exclusive list of core proceedings, including "matters concerning the administration of the estate," "allowance or disallowance of claims," "objections to discharges," "motions to terminate, annul, or modify the automatic stay," and "confirmation of plans." Bankruptcy courts have the authority to hear and enter final judgments in "all core proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in a case under title 11" 28 U.S.C. § 157\(b\)\(1\); Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 475-76, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 2604, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011).

3. Related to Jurisdiction

Bankruptcy courts also have jurisdiction over proceedings that are "related to" a bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); In re Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d 1189, 1193 (9th Cir. 2005). A proceeding is "related to" a bankruptcy case if:

[T]he outcome of the proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. Thus, the proceeding need not necessarily be against the debtor or against the debtor's property. An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate.

Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d at 1193 (quoting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984) (emphasis omitted)).

"[C]ivil proceedings are not within 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b)'s grant of jurisdiction if they... 'are so tangential to the title 11 case or the result of which would have so little impact on the administration of the title 11 case... Put another way, litigation that would not have an impact upon the administration of the bankruptcy case, or on property of the estate, or on the distribution to creditors, cannot find a home in the district court based on the court's bankruptcy jurisdiction.'" In re Wisdom, 2015 WL 2128830, at *10 (Bankr. D. Idaho May 5, 2015) (quoting 1 Collier on Bankruptcy, ¶ 3.01[3][e][v] (Alan N. Resnick & Henry J. Sommer eds., 16th ed. 2014)).

Here, the Court does not have "arising under" jurisdiction because none of the claims asserted by any of the parties involve a provision of the Bankruptcy Code. In addition, the Court lacks "arising in" jurisdiction because the causes of action in the Complaint and Cross-Complaint are not unique to bankruptcy and do not depend on the existence of a bankruptcy case.

However, the Court has "related to" subject matter jurisdiction over the Complaint and the Cross-Complaint. Both pleadings involve claims by or against Debtor, which may impact Debtor's assets and liabilities. In addition, the pleadings involve assets of the estate, such as the Albers Property and Debtor's interest in the RV Property. Nevertheless, as discussed below, the Court will remand part of this matter to state court.

"Bankruptcy courts have broad discretion to remand cases over which they otherwise have jurisdiction on any equitable ground." In re Enron Corp., 296 B.R. 505, 508 (C.D. "[E]ven where federal jurisdiction attaches in actions 'related to' bankruptcy proceedings, Congress has explicitly provided for courts to find that those matters are more properly adjudicated in state court." Parke v. Cardsystem Solutions, Inc., 2006 WL 2917604 (N.D. Cal. October 11, 2006) (quoting Williams v. Shell Oil Co., 169 B.R. 684, 690 (S.D. Cal. 1994)).

Courts generally consider up to fourteen factors in deciding whether to remand a case to state court. Enron, 296 B.R. at 508. Factors courts should consider in deciding whether to remand are:

- (1) the effect or lack thereof on the efficient administration of the estate if the Court recommends [remand or] abstention;
- (2) extent to which state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues;
- (3) difficult or unsettled nature of applicable law;
- (4) presence of related proceeding commenced in state court or other nonbankruptcy proceeding;
- (5) jurisdictional basis, if any, other than [section] 1334;
- (6) degree of relatedness or remoteness of proceeding to main bankruptcy case;
- (7) the substance rather than the form of an asserted core proceeding;
- (8) the feasibility of severing state law claims from core bankruptcy matters to allow judgments to be entered in state court with enforcement left to the bankruptcy court;
- (9) the burden on the bankruptcy court's docket;
- (10) the likelihood that the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy court involves forum shopping by one of the parties;
- (11) the existence of a right to a jury trial;
- (12) the presence in the proceeding of nondebtor parties;
- (13) comity; and
- (14) the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action.

Chapter 11

Here, the Court will sever the claims and remand this matter in part. The Court will not remand the remaining claims in the Complaint, or the claims in the Cross-Complaint asserted against Debtor and relating to the Albers Property (the "Albers Claims"). The Court will remand all of the claims against the Lisitsa Parties (the "Lisitsa Claims"), and all of the claims involving the RV Property (including against Debtor) to state court (the "RV Claims").

As to the Albers Claims, Defendants and Debtor consent to entry of a final order by this Court. As such, the Court will be able to adjudicate these claims in a prompt fashion. In addition, the Albers Claims may impact the sale of the Albers Property and the amount to be distributed from any such sale. To prevent significant delays related to administration of the Albers Property, and because the Court may adjudicate related issues in the FR LLC v. Lev Investments, LLC et al. proceeding (the "FR Proceeding") [1:20-ap-01060-VK], the Court will not remand the Albers Claims to state court.

However, the Court will remand the Lisitsa Claims and the RV Claims to state court. [FN1]. Unlike Debtor and Defendants, the Lisitsa Parties and RPT Parties do not consent to entry of a final order or judgment by this Court. While some of these claims may be statutorily "core," Defendants have not shown that any of the claims are constitutionally core under Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011). Thus, if the Court did not remand these claims, the Court would have to submit a Report and Recommendation to the District Court, delaying final resolution of these claims.

In addition, both the Lisitsa Parties and RPT Parties have demanded a jury trial. While the demands are not timely under Local Bankruptcy Rule 9027-1(e), denying the Lisitsa Parties' and RPT Parties' request for remand would prejudice these parties because they would not be deprived of a jury trial before the state court. Moreover, the Lisitsa Claims and the RV Claims involve exclusively California law, including claims not commonly litigated in bankruptcy court. Defendants also filed a Notice of Related Action before the state court, acknowledging that the Malpractice Action as a related proceeding. Further, there is no jurisdictional basis over the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims other than 28 U.S.C. § 1334.

The Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims may impact the amount of claims asserted by or against the estate; however, unlike the Albers Claims or the FR Proceeding, the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims will not have as direct an impact on administration of assets of the estate. As such, a majority of the factors weigh in favor of remanding the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims to state court. [FN2].

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will remand the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims to state court. The Court will not remand the Albers Claims. The Court will prepare that order.

Defendants and Debtor must be prepared to discuss the following dates and deadlines:

Within seven (7) days after this status conference, Debtor must submit an Order Assigning Matter to Mediation Program and Appointing Mediator and Alternate Mediator using Form 702. During the status conference, Debtor and Defendants must inform the Court of their choice of Mediator and Alternate Mediator. Debtor and Defendants should contact their mediator candidates before the status conference to determine if their candidates can accommodate the deadlines set forth below.

Deadline to complete discovery: 11/30/20.

Deadline to complete one day of mediation: 12/18/20.

Deadline to file pretrial motions: 1/15/21.

Deadline to complete and submit pretrial stipulation in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1: 2/3/21.

these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

FOOTNOTES

1. The RPT Parties briefly discuss mandatory abstention. However, 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) does not apply to removed proceedings. See In re Lazar, 237 F.3d 967, 981 (9th Cir. 2001). In any event, because the Court is exercising its discretion to remand the RV Claims, the Court need not rely on mandatory abstention as a basis for remanding the claims involving the RPT Parties.
2. Because the Court is remanding the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims to state court, the Court will not preside over Defendants' request for default against the RPT Parties [docs. 7-10] or the Lisitsa Parties' and RPT Parties' motions to dismiss the Cross-Complaint [docs. 19, 20].

#4.00 Status conference re: chapter 11 case

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

On March 5, 2017, Jasmin DeVillar ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, initiating case 1:17-bk-10553-VK. Debtor was represented by Dana M. Douglas. During the pendency of that chapter 13 case, Debtor did not confirm a chapter 13 plan.

On September 21, 2017, on Debtor's motion, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's prior case to one under chapter 11 (the "Conversion Order") [1:17-bk-10553-VK, doc. 30]. Pursuant to the Conversion Order, Debtor had 14 days to file a Chapter 11 Statement of Your Current Monthly Income and a list containing Debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors. Debtor did not timely file either of these documents. Consequently, on October 17, 2017, the Court dismissed Debtor's prior case [1:17-bk-10553-VK, doc. 34].

On March 14, 2020, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating the pending case. Debtor is again represented by Ms. Douglas. On July 30, 2020, Debtor filed an initial chapter 11 status conference report [doc. 27]. In that status report, Debtor states that she intends to file a motion under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) to avoid a tax lien in favor of the California Department of Tax and Fee Administration (the "CDTFA"). On June 10, 2020, the CDTFA filed proof of claim 17-1, asserting a secured claim in the amount of $150,162.89 based on liens recorded pursuant to Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757 (the "Tax Lien").

On July 25, 2020, Ms. Douglas filed an application to be employed as debtor in possession counsel, requesting nunc pro tunc employment as of March 13, 2020 [doc. 25]. In that application, Ms. Douglas does not provide an explanation as to why she waited four months after she began providing services to Debtor to file an employment application. On August 6, 2020, the United States Trustee filed an objection to that employment application [doc. 28].

"A retroactive authorization order should not be issued where the lateness in seeking court approval of employment is accompanied by inexcusable or unexplained negligence." Downtown, 89 B.R. at 63–64.

Under Local Bankruptcy Rule 2014-1(b)(E), "an application for the employment of counsel for a debtor in possession should be filed as promptly as possible after the commencement of the case, and an application for employment of any other professional person should be filed as promptly as possible after such person has been engaged."

Here, Ms. Douglas has failed to provide a satisfactory explanation for her failure to file an employment application promptly after commencement of this case. Moreover, Ms. Douglas is not competent to represent Debtor as a debtor in possession. For example, after Ms. Douglas failed to file routinely required documents timely, as required by the Conversion Order, Debtor's prior chapter 11 case was dismissed

Additionally, as it is not a judicial lien, Debtor cannot avoid the Tax Lien under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 522(f)(1):

Notwithstanding any waiver of exemptions but subject to paragraph (3), the debtor may avoid the fixing of a lien on an interest of the debtor in property to the extent that such lien impairs an exemption to which the debtor would have been entitled under subsection (b) of this section, if such lien is—

(A) a judicial lien, other than a judicial lien that secures a debt of a kind that is specified in section 523(a)(5)....

(emphasis added). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 101(36), "[t]he term ‘judicial lien’ means lien obtained by judgment, levy, sequestration, or other legal or equitable process or proceeding." Under 11 U.S.C. § 101(53), "[t]he term ‘statutory lien’ means lien arising solely by force of a statute on specified circumstances or conditions, or lien of distress for rent, whether or not statutory, but does not include security interest or judicial lien, whether or not such interest or lien is provided by or is dependent on a statute and whether or not such interest or lien is made fully effective by statute."

Where a valid lien is created and perfected by statute, it is statutory. See e.g., In re Scott, 400 B.R. 257, 265-66 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009); In re Cox, 349 B.R. 4, 12 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2006). In relevant part, Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757(a) states:

If any person fails to pay any amount imposed under this part at the time that it becomes due and payable, the amount thereof, including penalties and interest, together with any costs in addition thereto, shall thereupon be a perfected and enforceable state tax lien.

The language of this statute is clear: the lien is created and perfected by statute alone. Consequently, a lien arising from Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757 is a statutory lien for purposes of 11 U.S.C. § 101(53), and therefore, not subject to avoidance under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). As bankruptcy counsel to an individual debtor, Ms. Douglas should be aware that the Tax Lien is not avoidable under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f).

Moreover, in this district, in the last three years (not to mention prior years), Ms. Douglas has been debtor in possession counsel in numerous cases. These cases uniformly have ended in dismissal without court approval of a disclosure statement and/or confirmation of a chapter 11 plan. The following is a list of these cases.

In case 1:19-bk-12810-VK, which is currently pending before the Court, Ms. Douglas is debtor in possession counsel. The Court recently issued an order to show cause why the case should not be dismissed or converted because Ms. Douglas failed to meet the deadline to file a chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement and otherwise did not comply with an order of the Court [1:19-bk-12810-VK, doc. 75].

Not only has Ms. Douglas failed to file her employment application promptly, but she has consistently shown that she is not capable of prosecuting a chapter 11 case to confirmation of a chapter 11 plan of reorganization. Consequently, the Court will not approve employment of Ms. Douglas as debtor in possession counsel.

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The parties should address the following:

Deadline to file proof of claim ("Bar Date"): September 30, 2020.

Deadline to mail notice of Bar Date: August 20, 2020.

The debtor must use the mandatory court-approved form Notice of Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim in a Chapter 11 Case, F 3003-1.NOTICE.BARDATE.

Deadline for debtor and/or debtor in possession to file proposed plan and related disclosure statement: October 8, 2020.

Continued chapter 11 case status conference to be held at 1:00 p.m. on October 22, 2020.

The debtor in possession or any appointed chapter 11 trustee must file a status report, to be served on the debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors, all secured creditors, and the United States Trustee, no later than 14 days before the continued status conference. The status report must be supported by evidence in the form of declarations and supporting documents.

The Court will prepare the order setting the deadlines for the debtor and/or debtor in possession to file a proposed plan and related disclosure statement.

The debtor must lodge the Order Setting Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim, using mandatory court-approved form F 3003-1.ORDER.BARDATE, within seven (7) days.

Chapter 11

#8.00 Motion to convert case to chapter 7

Docket 16

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will set a hearing to determine if this case must be dismissed based on the debtor's failure to obtain consent by member David Schwartz to file the debtor's chapter 11 petition.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 29, 2020, 1465V Donhill Drive, LLC ("Debtor") filed a chapter 11 petition. With the petition, Debtor filed a List of Equity Security Holders, indicating that David Schwartz held a 25% interest in Debtor and Pacific Precision Laboratories, Inc. ("Pacific Precision") held a 75% interest in Debtor. Debtor also attached the Unanimous Written Consent of the Managing Members (the "Written Consent"), which provided that Chandu Vanjani, as the managing member, authorized the filing of a chapter 11 petition. The Written Consent is not signed by Mr. Schwartz.

On July 13, 2020, Debtor filed its schedules and statements [doc. 10]. In its schedule A/B, Debtor identified a fee simple interest in real property located at 1465 Donhill Drive, Beverly Hills, CA (the "Property"). Debtor valued the Property at $12 million. Debtor also scheduled $25,000 in furniture, $13.28 in a checking account and lawsuits with unknown value. In its schedule D, Debtor identified a deed of trust in favor of 5AIF Nutmeg, LLC ("5AIF") in the amount of $5,576,850 and a secured tax debt owed to the Los Angeles County Tax Collector in the amount of $54,000.

On July 20, 2020, Mr. Schwartz filed a motion to convert Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case (the "Motion to Convert") [doc. 16]. In the Motion to Convert, Mr. Schwartz asserts conversion is appropriate because Debtor: (A) failed to obtain Mr. Schwartz's consent to file a chapter 11 petition; (B) scheduled only $13.28 in available cash and has no reasonable likelihood of rehabilitation; (C) postpetition, listed the Property for sale with a broker whose employment has not been approved by the Court; (D) valued the Property at $12 million despite the fact that the broker listed the Property for sale at $8,999,999; and (E) scheduled a debt to Pacific Precision without disclosing that Mr. Vanjani is the owner of Pacific Precision.

Mr. Schwartz also provided Debtor's LLC Operating Agreement (the "Operating Agreement"). In addition, Mr. Schwartz provided a string of emails between himself and Mr. Vanjani, reflecting a disagreement regarding whether Debtor should be placed in a bankruptcy case and, if so, under which chapter.

On July 30, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion to Convert [doc. 25]. Debtor does not address Mr. Schwartz's contention that it lacked authority to file a chapter 11 case. On the same day, 5AIF filed a joinder to the Motion to Convert (the "Joinder") [doc. 26]. In the Joinder, 5AIF contends that Debtor filed the petition in bad faith because it did not have Mr. Schwartz's authority. 5AIF requests dismissal of the case with a bar.

On August 5, 2020, Mr. Schwartz filed a reply [doc. 32], asserting he does not want dismissal of the case and requesting conversion to a chapter 7 case. On August 6, 2020, Debtor responded to the Joinder [doc. 33], asserting that the Joinder is improper because 5AIF requests different relief from Mr. Schwartz.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Authority to File the Petition

Debtor does not adequately address whether it had authority to file this chapter 11 petition. Both Mr. Schwartz and Debtor refer to a string of emails between Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Vanjani (the owner of 75% member Pacific Precision). Although the emails contain discussions about possibly placing Debtor in a bankruptcy case, none of the emails reflect a clear consensus between Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Vanjani regarding whether to file for bankruptcy protection and/or under which chapter to file. In addition, Mr. Schwartz did not sign the Written Consent or any other part of the petition.

Pursuant to the Operating Agreement, which identifies both Pacific Precision and Mr. Schwartz as members—

Management by Voting Members. The Voting Members shall manage the Company and vote upon all matters upon which the Members have the right to in proportion to their PVI. The nonvoting Members have no right to vote or participate in management. The Voting Members may only act collectively and unanimously.

Operating Agreement, p. 1 (emphasis added). Pursuant to this provision, Debtor is a member-managed limited liability company. Under California Corporate Code § 17704.07(b)(4), in a member-managed limited liability company, "an act outside the ordinary course of the activities of the limited liability company may be undertaken only with the consent of all members." See also In re Avalon Hotel Partners, LLC, 302 B.R. 377, 380 (Bankr. D. Or. 2003) ("A decision to file for bankruptcy protection is a decision outside of the ordinary course of business, even for an entity in dissolution.").

Here, Debtor does not dispute that Mr. Schwartz is a voting member under the Operating Agreement. In fact, in the same paragraph regarding classification of voting members, the Operating Agreement refers to "Exhibit 1," which identifies both Pacific Precision and Mr. Schwartz. If Mr. Schwartz is a voting member, the Operating Agreement explicitly requires that Pacific Precision and Mr. Schwartz act "collectively and unanimously" in the management of Debtor. Operating Agreement, p. 1.

To the extent the Operating Agreement may be read as silent regarding authority to place Debtor into bankruptcy, California Corporate Code § 17704.07(b)(4) supplements the Operating Agreement by requiring unanimous consent of members for acts outside the ordinary course of business. Bankruptcy appears to qualify as an act outside the ordinary course of Debtor's activities.

Given that Mr. Schwartz did not agree to the filing of a chapter 11 petition, the parties must address whether the Court is required to dismiss this case for failure to obtain Mr. Schwartz's consent. Unless Mr. Schwartz ratifies the filing by consenting to proceed with this chapter 11 case, or both Pacific Precision and Mr. Schwartz agree to conversion to a chapter 7 case, the Court will continue this hearing for the parties to provide supplemental briefing regarding whether dismissal is required under these circumstances. As discussed below, Mr. Schwartz has not otherwise presented cause

B. Cause to Convert

(b) (1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, subsection (c) of this section, and section 1104(a)(3), on request of a party in interest, and after notice and a hearing, absent unusual circumstances specifically identified by the court that establish that the requested conversion or dismissal is not in the best interests of creditors and the estate, the court shall convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter, whichever is in the best interests of creditors and the estate, if the movant establishes cause. . . .

(2) The court may not convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter if the court finds and specifically identifies unusual circumstances establishing that converting or dismissing the case is not in the best interests of creditors and the estate, and the debtor or any other party in interest establishes that -

(A) there is a reasonable likelihood that a plan will be confirmed . . . within a reasonable period of time; and

(B) the grounds for converting or dismissing the case include an act or omission of the debtor other than under paragraph 4(A) –

(i) for which there exists a reasonable justification for the act or omission; and

(4) For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘cause’ includes . . .

(A) substantial or continuing loss to or diminution of the estate and the absence of a reasonable likelihood of rehabilitation;

11 U.S.C. § 1112(b).

“Cause’ is defined in § 1112(b)(4), but the list contained in § 1112(b)(4) is illustrative, not exhaustive.” In re Mense, 509 B.R. 269 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2014). The movant bears the burden of establishing by a preponderance of the evidence that cause exists. In re Sullivan, 522 B.R. 604, 614 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2014). Motions to dismiss under 11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) require a two-step analysis. “First, it must be determined that there is ‘cause’ to act. Second, once a determination of ‘cause’ has been made, a choice must be made between conversion and dismissal based on the ‘best interests of the creditors and the estate.’” In re Nelson, 343 B.R. 671, 675 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006).

Here, Mr. Schwartz has not provided cause to convert this case. Debtor apparently intends to sell the Property to pay off creditors of the estate. Under any of the submitted valuations of the Property, there is sufficient equity for distribution to unsecured creditors after accounting for the liens held by 5AIF and the Los Angeles County Tax Collector. As such, the fact that Debtor scheduled $13.28 in available cash, standing alone, is not cause to convert this case. In addition, although the Court has not yet approved employment of Debtor’s proposed broker, Debtor filed an application to employ the broker [doc. 31].

Finally, Mr. Schwartz contends that Mr. Vanjani concealed that he is the owner of Pacific Precision. However, the List of Equity Security Holders identifies Pacific Precision as a member and is signed by Mr. Vanjani. Mr. Vanjani also signed the Written Consent and several other forms in connection with Debtor’s petition and schedules. As such, neither Pacific Precision nor Mr. Vanjani concealed that they are insiders, and the lack of explicit identification of Mr. Vanjani as the owner of Pacific Precision is not grounds for conversion.

III. CONCLUSION

Unless Mr. Schwartz consents to proceeding in this chapter 11 case, the Court will continue this hearing to 2:00 p.m. on September 10, 2020. No later than August 27, 2020, Debtor and Mr. Schwartz must file and serve supplemental briefs discussing whether dismissal is required based on Debtor's failure to obtain Mr. Schwartz's consent under the Operating Agreement and California Corporate Code § 17704.07(b) (4), or any other applicable authority.

Alternatively, no later than August 27, 2020, the parties may file a joint stipulation agreeing to proceed in a chapter 11 case or convert to a chapter 7 case.

The Court will prepare the order.

#9.00 Debtor's motion to convert case from chapter 7 to 13

Docket 25

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On May 14, 2020, Thomas A. Perez ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. Nancy J. Zamora was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In his schedule A/B, Debtor identified a joint tenancy interest in the real property located at 9251 Woodley Avenue, North Hills, CA 91343 (the "Property"). Debtor valued the Property at $625,000. In his schedule C, Debtor claimed a $27,497 exemption in the Property under California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 703.140(b)(5).

In his schedule D, Debtor identified the following encumbrances against the Property: (A) a first priority deed of trust in favor of PHH Mortgage Services ("PHH") in the amount of $343,758; (B) a second priority deed of trust in favor of PHH in the amount of $53,745; and (C) a third priority deed of trust in favor of Maria Rita Perez, Debtor's sister, in the amount of $200,000 (the "Perez DOT").

In his schedules I and J, Debtor indicated his monthly net income amounts to $2 per month. In his Statement of Financial Affairs ("SOFA"), Debtor stated that he received $17,436 per year in state disability payments in 2018 and 2019, and $4,359 from January 1, 2020 through the petition date in state disability payments. Debtor indicated that, during that time, neither he nor his spouse received any other income. Finally, in the SOFA, Debtor stated that: (A) within one year of the petition date, he did not transfer any property on account of a debt that benefited an insider; and (B) within two years of the petition date, he did not transfer any property to anyone outside the ordinary course of his financial affairs.

In the Declaration About an Individual Debtor's Schedules, filed with his petition, Debtor declared that he "read the summary and schedules filed with this declaration and that they are true and correct," and signed this declaration under penalty of perjury. In addition, Debtor signed the SOFA under penalty of perjury, again declaring that "the answers are true and correct."

On June 19, 2020, Debtor attended a § 341(a) meeting of creditors. According to Debtor, after this meeting of creditors, Debtor recognized he was in "trouble" over the Perez DOT. Declaration of Thomas A. Perez ("Perez Declaration") [doc. 45], ¶ 16. Specifically, Debtor stated that Legal Experts, Debtor's former bankruptcy attorneys, advised Debtor to approach a "person of confidence" to create a third encumbrance against the Property; in other words, it appears Debtor asked his sister to fabricate the Perez DOT to prevent liquidation of the Property in a chapter 7 case. Id., ¶¶ 9-12. After the § 341(a) meeting of creditors, Debtor hired new counsel, and Ms. Perez reconveyed the Perez DOT. Id., ¶ 17.

On the same day as the § 341(a) meeting of creditors, the Trustee filed a Notice of Assets [doc. 11]. On June 26, 2020, the Trustee filed an application to employ a real estate broker (the "Application to Employ") [doc. 15]. On June 30, 2020, Debtor filed a Substitution of Attorney [doc. 17]. Debtor also filed an amended schedule C [doc. 18], claiming a homestead exemption in the amount of $175,000 under CCP § 704.950. In a liquidation analysis included in an amended schedule A/B, Debtor stated that the Perez DOT may be avoided as a preference because it was recorded less than one year before the petition date; nevertheless, Debtor asserted there was no equity in the Property. On July 3, 2020, Debtor filed second amended schedules A/B and C [doc. 19], to amend the applicable homestead exemption statute to CCP § 704.730(a)(3)(A).

On July 6, 2020, the Trustee filed an adversary proceeding against Ms. Perez, requesting avoidance of the Perez DOT as a preferential transfer and a fraudulent transfer [1:20-ap-01067-VK]. On July 11, 2020, Debtor filed a motion to convert this case to a chapter 13 case (the "Motion") [doc. 25]. Debtor also opposed the Application to Employ [doc. 27].

On July 21, 2020, the Trustee filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 30]. In the Opposition, the Trustee asserts that: (A) Debtor lacks disposable income to fund a chapter 13 plan; (B) the request to convert is not in good faith because Debtor concealed the transfer to his sister and filed this Motion in response to the Trustee's effort to sell the Property; (C) avoidance of Ms. Perez's deed of trust will preserve the deed of trust for the benefit of the estate, ahead of any claim of exemption by Debtor; and (D) Debtor did not provide any evidence in support of the Motion.

On August 6, 2020, Debtor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 45]. In connection with the Reply, Debtor contends he is entitled to his claim of a homestead exemption because Ms. Perez voluntarily reconveyed the Perez DOT without legal action by the Trustee. In light of this claim of exemption, Debtor contends there is insufficient equity to sell the Property.

In addition, Debtor asserts that, after he reviewed his original schedules with his current attorney, he identified several mistakes which, if amended, provide Debtor a budget to fund a chapter 13 plan. These mistakes include: (A) many of the debts originally scheduled by Debtor are his wife's separate debts; (B) Debtor's rental income is $2,100 per month, not $1,500 per month as originally scheduled; (C) Debtor's and his spouse's actual monthly income is $5,617 per month, not $4,537 per month; and (D) Debtor's original schedule J may be reduced by approximately $195 per month.

On August 6, 2020, Debtor also filed another set of amended schedules A/B, C, D, E/F, G, I and J [doc. 44]. To his schedules I and J, Debtor attached proof of his spouse's income, which reflects miscellaneous income of $18,458.43 and additional funds from the Social Security Administration received by Debtor's spouse in 2019.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, a case may not be converted to a case under another chapter of this title unless the debtor may be a debtor under such chapter.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 109(e)—

Only an individual with regular income that owes, on the date of the filing of the petition, noncontingent, liquidated, unsecured debts of less than $394,725¹ and noncontingent, liquidated, secured debts of less than $1,184,200¹, or an individual with regular income and such individual's spouse, except a stockbroker or a commodity broker, that owe, on the date of the filing of the petition, noncontingent, liquidated, unsecured debts that aggregate less than $394,725¹ and noncontingent, liquidated, secured debts of less than $1,184,200¹ may be a debtor under chapter 13 of this title.

The right to convert under this section is not absolute. In Marrama v. Citizens Bank of Mass., 549 U.S. 365, 127 S.Ct. 1105, 166 L.Ed.2d 956 (2007), the Supreme Court of the United States determined that a debtor forfeits his right to convert to chapter 13 under § 706(a) if the debtor engages in bad faith conduct that would warrant dismissal or reconversion of a chapter 13 case. In Marrama, the debtor, Robert Marrama, made misleading or inaccurate statements in his chapter 7 schedules, and engaged in fraudulent transfers prepetition with the intent of shielding his valuable property from creditors. Id., at 368. After the chapter 7 trustee informed Mr. Marrama of his intent to recover the fraudulently transferred property for the benefit of the estate, Mr. Marrama moved to convert his case to a chapter 13 case. Id., at 368-69. The chapter 7 trustee objected to the conversion based on Mr. Marrama's bad faith attempts to conceal the transferred property. Id., at 369. Mr. Marrama argued he had an absolute right to convert to chapter 13 under 11 U.S.C. § 706(a). Id.

The Court first determined there was no absolute right to conversion because of § 706(d), which requires a debtor be eligible to be a debtor under the chapter to which he wishes to convert. Id., at 372. The Court then looked to the reasons why a debtor may not qualify to be debtor under chapter 13, such as 11 U.S.C. § 109(e) (which sets forth the Code's requirements for being a chapter 13 debtor) or, more importantly, for "cause," under § 1307(c) (which sets forth the standards for dismissal or conversion under chapter 13). Id. The Court noted that, under § 1307(c), prepetition bad faith conduct may constitute "cause" warranting dismissal or conversion. Id., at 373. Thus, a debtor's prepetition bad faith conduct could be grounds to deny a motion for conversion under § 706. Id.

Here, Debtor engaged in the type of bad faith conduct that warrants denial of his request to convert this case. As in Marrama, Debtor engaged in a prepetition transfer to shield the Property from creditors. Specifically, Debtor fabricated a deed of trust in favor of his sister to prevent liquidation of the Property by a chapter 7 trustee.

In addition, Debtor made several misstatements in his schedules and statements. For instance, Debtor indicated in his SOFA that his spouse received no income in 2019; in his latest-amended schedule I, Debtor included income statements from 2019 reflecting that his spouse received at least $18,458.43 that year. In addition, in his original schedules I and J, Debtor understated both his rental income and his spouse's income by approximately $1,000 per month. Although Debtor blames Legal Experts for these mistakes, Debtor signed his schedules and statements under penalty of perjury, attesting that he reviewed the schedules and statements and that the schedules and statements were "true and correct."

Moreover, despite stating in his declaration that he realized "the trouble [he] was in" at the initial § 341(a) meeting of creditors, held on June 19, 2020, Debtor did not move to convert this case until July 11, 2020, approximately one week after the Trustee filed the Application to Employ. Debtor also did not amend his schedules I and J to reflect his allegedly accurate income and expenses until August 6, 2020. As such, it appears Debtor is moving to convert this case solely to prevent the sale of the Property by the Trustee. Consequently, the Court will deny Debtor's request for conversion.

Nevertheless, because Ms. Perez voluntarily reconveyed her deed of trust, obviating the need for legal action by the Trustee, the Court questions whether there are sufficient grounds to deny Debtor his homestead exemption. To facilitate a resolution to the dispute over Debtor's homestead exemption, the Court will order Debtor and the Trustee to attend mediation in an attempt to resolve this issue without expending significant estate resources.

#18.00 Defendant's motion for order dismissing complaint and to non-timely filing and for failure to state a cause of action

Docket 4

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On July 30, 2019, Breann Castillo ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. The deadline to file a complaint requesting nondischargeability of a debt under 11 U.S.C. § 523 expired on November 5, 2019. In her schedules and statements, Debtor did not identify Andrew Campolong ("Plaintiff") as a creditor of the estate. Based on a review of Debtor's bankruptcy docket, it does not appear Mr. Campolong was served with the petition or any other documents filed in Debtor's bankruptcy case.

On May 29, 2020, over six months after expiration of the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint, Plaintiff filed a complaint requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to him pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6) and revocation of Defendant's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)(1) (the "Complaint"). In the Complaint, Plaintiff alleged that Debtor did not schedule a debt owed to Plaintiff, and that Plaintiff was not on any mailing list filed in Debtor's bankruptcy case. Plaintiff otherwise alleges—Prepetition, Plaintiff gave Debtor, his ex-wife, three credit cards for Plaintiff to use to pay basic living expenses. Instead, Plaintiff used the credit cards to pay off other debts and finance an extravagant lifestyle. After Plaintiff grew upset at the expenses, Debtor signed a repayment agreement, one month before the petition date, agreeing to pay Plaintiff $35,000 for use of his credit cards. Debtor never intended to repay Plaintiff for use of his credit cards, and never intended to use the credit cards solely for basic living expenses.

In addition, despite signing the repayment agreement only one month before filing for bankruptcy, Debtor did not schedule Plaintiff as a creditor. During her bankruptcy case, Debtor placated Plaintiff by making minimal payments. Upon receiving her discharge, Debtor stopped paying Plaintiff.

On June 8, 2020, Debtor filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "Motion") [doc. 4]. In the Motion, Debtor asserts that, prior to expiration of the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint, Plaintiff had actual knowledge of Debtor's bankruptcy case. To this end, Debtor attaches emails and text messages between Debtor and Plaintiff, ranging from July 30, 2019 through August 26, 2019, in which the parties discuss Debtor's bankruptcy case. Declaration of Breann Castillo, ¶¶ 4-6, Exhibits 1-3. Specifically, the attachments reflect the following—

- (A) In an email dated July 30, 2019, the petition date, Plaintiff stated, "Let me know how the BK thing is going and if there is anything I should know or do to assist."
- (B) In an email dated August 26, 2019, months before expiration of the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint, Plaintiff asked, "Hows [sic] the BK going?"
- (C) On the same day, and in response to Plaintiff's email, Debtor responded, "BK meeting is next Friday in court. Then every creditor has 2 months to challenge. So we'll see."

Id. In light of the above, Debtor argues that the Complaint is untimely. In addition, Debtor contends that Plaintiff failed to state a claim for relief.

On July 2, 2020, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 6]. In the Opposition, Plaintiff does not address the attached emails or Debtor's contention that Plaintiff possessed actual knowledge of the bankruptcy case. Instead, Plaintiff reiterates that he was not scheduled as a creditor, and states he did not receive "written notice" of the bankruptcy case.

Chapter 7

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted); citing, inter alia, Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 547, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007); and Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009)).

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986).

"A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). Under the "incorporation by reference" doctrine, a court may look beyond the four corners of the complaint to take into account documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint, but not physically attached, and may do so without converting a Rule 12(b)(6) motion into a motion for summary judgment. Davis v. HSBC Bank Nevada, N.A., 691 F.3d 1152, 1160 (9th Cir. 2012). The court "may treat the referenced document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id., quoting United States v. Richie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

B. Plaintiff's Claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(3)(B), a debt is nondischargeable if it is—

...neither listed nor scheduled under section 521(a)(1) of this title, with the name, if known to the debtor, of the creditor to whom such debt is owed, in time to permit... if such debt is of a kind specified in paragraph (2), (4), or (6) of this subsection, timely filing of a proof of claim and timely request for a determination of dischargeability of such debt under one of such paragraphs, unless such creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the case in time for such timely filing and request....

(emphasis added). "It is well established that a creditor who learns of a bankruptcy filing has a duty to inquire into the relevant deadlines." In re Dewalt, 961 F.2d 848, 851 n.3 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing In re Price, 871 F.2d 97, 99 (9th Cir. 1989)). As explained by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals—of the bankruptcy proceedings in time to file a complaint, or at least to file a timely motion for an extension of time.

The fact that [the debtor] failed to list [the creditor] as a creditor did not relieve [the creditor] of his obligation to take timely action to protect his claim. See In re Alton, 837 F.2d 457, 460 (11th Cir.1988) ("The statutory language [of section 523(a)(3)(B)] clearly contemplates that mere knowledge of a pending bankruptcy proceeding is sufficient to bar the claim of a creditor who took no action, whether or not that creditor received official notice from the court of various pertinent dates.")....

Price, 871 F.2d at 99. "[T]he 30-day notice provision of Rule 4007(c) provides a guide to the minimum time within which it is reasonable to expect a creditor to act at penalty of default." Dewalt, 961 F.2d at 851.

Here, Debtor has provided evidence that, prior to expiration of the deadline to file a nondischargeability complaint, Plaintiff had actual knowledge about Debtor's bankruptcy case. Although the Court may not consider this type of extraneous evidence in connection with a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6), the Court may convert the Motion to a motion for summary judgment. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(d) ("If, on a motion under Rule 12(b)(6) or 12(c), matters outside the pleadings are presented to and not excluded by the court, the motion must be treated as one for summary judgment under Rule 56. All parties must be given a reasonable opportunity to present all the material that is pertinent to the motion.").

Debtor's evidence, if admitted and uncontroverted, would establish that Plaintiff had actual knowledge of Debtor's bankruptcy case. Because the emails are dated between the petition date and August 26, 2019, the emails also would demonstrate that Plaintiff had notice well before 30 days prior to expiration of the deadline. See Dewalt, 961 F.2d at 851. As a result, Plaintiff's claims under § 523 would be untimely, and the Court would dismiss the claims with prejudice.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)—

"On request of a trustee, a creditor, or the United States trustee, and after notice and a hearing, the court shall revoke a discharge granted under subsection (a) of this section if—

- (1) such discharge was obtained through the fraud of the debtor, and the requesting party did not know of such fraud until after the granting of such discharge...."

See also In re Guadarrama, 284 B.R. 463, 469 (C.D. Cal. 2002). "[R]evocation is an extraordinary remedy." In re Bowman, 173 B.R. 922, 924 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994). Consequently, "[§] 727's [revocation] of discharge is construed liberally in favor of the debtor and strictly against those objecting to discharge." Guadarrama, 284 B.R. at 469 (quoting In re Adeeb, 787 F.2d 1339, 1342 (9th Cir. 1986)).

"To succeed on its claim under § 727(d)(1), [the plaintiff is] required to prove by a preponderance of the evidence: (1) that [the debtor] obtained a discharge through fraud, and (2) that the [plaintiff] was unaware of the alleged fraud prior to discharge. Guadarrama, 284 B.R. at 469. As to the first element, the plaintiff must prove that the debtor "committed fraud in fact, that the fraud occurred in or in connection with her procurement of a discharge, and that 'sufficient grounds... existed which would have prevented the discharge.'" Id. (quoting Bowman, 173 B.R. at 924).

"The grounds for a denial of discharge are enumerated in 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)...." Id. "Thus, to secure revocation of [the debtor's] discharge, the [plaintiff is] required to show that the fraud in which [the debtor] engaged would have caused the bankruptcy court to deny her a discharge" under § 727(a). Id.; see also In re Bors, 2012 WL 6575171, at *9 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Dec. 17, 2012), aff'd, 672 F. App'x 696 (9th Cir. 2016) ("A finding of fraud in the procurement requires evidence of some conduct that under § 727(a) would have been sufficient grounds to deny debtor's discharge...."). As explained in Bors—

More importantly, [the plaintiff] failed to allege that but-for these intentional misrepresentations and/or omissions, Debtor would have been denied his discharge. As to [the plaintiff's] assertion that Debtor intentionally failed to notify the Orange County Court and all parties to the State Court Action about the bankruptcy case, all she alleged was that his failure to timely notify prevented her from bringing an action to except her debt from discharge under § 523, not that but-for Debtor's failure to notify he would have been denied a discharge of all of his debts under § 727(a).

Even if [the plaintiff] were seeking to revoke [the debtor's] entire discharge, the FAC, at best, asserts only a claim that Debtor fraudulently obtained a discharge of her debt. In general, it is not enough that a debtor's fraud rendered one particular debt nondischargeable. For an action under § 727(d)(1), a creditor must allege that the debtor's discharge would not have been granted but-for the debtor's fraud.

Bors, 2012 WL 6575171 at *10.

To the extent Plaintiff is alleging he lacked notice of Debtor's bankruptcy case, and Debtor's failure to list Plaintiff as a creditor would have resulted in denial of her discharge, evidence of Plaintiff's actual knowledge also will defeat Plaintiff's claim under § 727(d)(1). To the extent Plaintiff is alleging that he did have notice of Debtor's bankruptcy case, but Debtor fraudulently misrepresented that she would continue paying Plaintiff post-discharge, the Court will provide Plaintiff leave to amend the Complaint to adequately allege such a theory. As noted above, Plaintiff must allege how such conduct would have prevent Debtor from obtaining a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a), and not merely that the conduct would except Plaintiff's debt from discharge.

III. CONCLUSION

As to Plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523, the Court will convert the Motion to a motion for summary judgment and continue this hearing to 2:30 p.m. on October 14, 2020. As to Plaintiff's claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)(1), the Court will provide Plaintiff leave to amend the claim. The Court will set a deadline for Plaintiff to amend the claim under § 727(d)(1) at the continued hearing on October 14, 2020.

Tentative Ruling:

In his declaration attached to the post-confirmation status report [doc. 150], the debtor states that he has "commenced" payments under the confirmed chapter 11 plan. However, the declaration is not sufficiently responsive to Local Bankruptcy Rule 3020-1(a), which requires that the debtor include:

- (1) A schedule listing for each debt and each class of claims: the total amount required to be paid under the plan; the amount required to be paid as of the date of the report; the amount actually paid as of the date of the report; and the deficiency, if any, in required payments;
- (2) A schedule of any and all postconfirmation tax liabilities that have accrued or come due and a detailed explanation of payments thereon;
- (3) Projections as to the reorganized debtor's, postconfirmation trustee's, or other responsible party's continuing ability to comply with the terms of the plan;
- (4) An estimate of the date for plan consummation and application for final decree; and
- (5) Any other pertinent information needed to explain the progress toward completion of the confirmed plan.

A statement that the debtor has "commenced" plan payments does not address these prompts. Consequently, the Court will continue this status conference to 1:00 p.m. on September 17, 2020. #7.00 Application to Employ Levene, Neale, Bender,
Yoo & Brill L.L.P. as Bankruptcy Counsel

fr. 7/16/20

Docket 10

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will approve the employment of Levene, Neale, Bender, Yoo & Brill L.L.P. as the debtor and debtor in possession's bankruptcy counsel.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11, subchapter V petition.

A. The Application to Employ

On June 10, 2020, Debtor filed an application to employ Levene, Neale, Bender, Yoo & Brill L.L.P. ("LNBYB") as its general bankruptcy counsel (the "Application to Employ") [doc. 10]. On June 20, 2020, The Sands Law Group, APLC ("Sands Law") filed an opposition to the Application to Employ (the "Sands Law Opposition") [doc. 28]. In the Sands Law Opposition, Sands Law contends that: (A) LNBYB represented to FR, LLC ("FR"), an entity with a purported security interest in Debtor's real property, that there was an impending sale of the property, but in an application to employ a broker, did not disclose any such pending sale; and (B) Debtor attempted to hire a real estate broker that was not disinterested. Although Sands Law attached a declaration to the Sands Law Opposition, the declaration does not include many of the facts alleged in the Sands Law Opposition.

On the same day, the Mike Kemel and Mariya Ayzenberg (the "Kemel Parties") also filed an opposition to the Application to Employ (the "Kemel Opposition") [doc. 57]. As discussed more fully below, the Kemel Parties contend that David Golubchik, an attorney at LNBYB, has a conflict of interest preventing him from representing Debtor in this case. The Kemel Parties also contend that LNBYB should have disclosed its purported connection to the Kemel Parties.

On July 9, 2020, Debtor filed an omnibus reply to the Sands Law Opposition and the Kemel Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 90]. In the Reply, Debtor contends that: (A) neither Sands Law nor the Kemel Parties have standing to object to the Application to Employ; (B) Sands Law cannot authenticate an email sent to a third party and, in any event, the email does not reflect anything other than Mr. Golubchik's attempt to get information about a claim against the estate; (C) the failure to disclose connections between Debtor's proposed broker and certain affiliates of Debtor does not give rise to fraudulent conduct by LNBYB; and (D) the Kemel Parties' contentions regarding the alleged conflict of interest are false.

B. The Motion to Disqualify LNBYB as Debtor's Bankruptcy Counsel

On June 26, 2020, along with the Kemel Opposition, the Kemel Parties filed an emergency motion to "recuse" David Golubchik and LNBYB as counsel to Debtor (the "Motion to Disqualify") [doc. 56]. In the Motion to Disqualify, the Kemel Parties contend that Mr. Golubchik has a conflict of interest because he previously represented the Kemel Parties in connection with a bankruptcy case titled In re Upadhyaya, 2:19-bk-12043-VZ (the "Upadhyaya Case"). The Kemel Parties do not assert that the Upadhyaya Case has any relation to Debtor's case, nor does a review of the docket related to the Upadhyaya Case reveal any such connection.

As evidence in support of their motion, the Kemel Parties produced a (heavily redacted) retainer agreement between Aykem, LLC ("Aykem") and LNBYB (the "Aykem Retainer"). Declaration of Mike Kemel ("Kemel Declaration"), ¶ 9, Exhibit B. The Aykem Retainer is signed by Mr. Kemel in his capacity as manager of Aykem. Id. In relevant part, the Aykem Retainer provides—

CONFLICT OF INTEREST. LNBYB's employment shall be limited to the representation of the Client, separate and distinct from Client's companies, agents, employees, family members and others. LNBYB cannot represent or advise others in connection with the matters for which it is being retained. Therefore, such parties as partnerships, corporations, guarantors and affiliates, for example, should consider retaining separate counsel to represent and provide such advice as may be necessary or appropriate from time to time.

Client has been advised that LNBYB, because of the specialized nature of its practice, may from time to time concurrently represent one client in a particular case and the adversary of that client in an unrelated case. For example, it is possible that LNBYB may have represented one or more of the parties with whom you ordinarily do business in the past or at present in connection with other matters. We have not undertaken an extensive review of your business or financial affairs and thus we are not aware if this pertains. Please be assured that, despite such potential conflicting representation, LNBYB strictly preserves all client confidences and zealously pursues the interest of each client, including in those circumstances in which LNBYB represents the adversary of an existing client. Client specifically waives any objections to any such present concurrent representation.

Id. The Kemel Parties also provided declarations by Ms. Ayzenberg and Mr. Kemel, in which the Kemel Parties state that they disclosed certain "private" and "confidential" information about their business affairs and litigation tactics and that Mr. Golubchik advised Ms. Ayzenberg about "investment strategy" related to Debtor's real property.

The Kemel Parties also provided some emails between Mr. Golubchik and third parties, none of whom are either Mr. Kemel or Ms. Ayzenberg. Kemel Declaration, ¶ 19, Exhibit D. The Kemel Parties also attach an article which does not, on its face, have any relation to Debtor or this bankruptcy case. The Kemel Parties also attach a registration application for Aykem and certain documents from lawsuits that have been removed to this Court. Kemel Declaration, ¶ 14, Exhibits C, H.

On June 28, 2020, the Kemel Parties filed a supplement to the Motion to Disqualify (the "Supplement") [doc. 59]. In the Supplement, the Kemel Parties reiterate that Mr. Golubchik knows personal information about the Kemel Parties, such as how much money they have to fund litigation. The Kemel Parties did not provide a declaration in support of the Supplement.

On June 29, 2020, Mr. Golubchik filed a declaration in response to the Motion to Disqualify (the "Golubchik Declaration") [doc. 61]. In the Golubchik Declaration, Mr. Golubchik states that he reviewed LNBYB's internal records, his emails and his timesheets, and that LNBYB does not have any record of communications or contact with Ms. Ayzenberg. According to Mr. Golubchik, he is certain that neither LNBYB nor Mr. Golubchik ever assisted Ms. Ayzenberg in any way, including in connection with Debtor's real property.

As to Mr. Kemel, Mr. Golubchik contends LNBYB only represented Aykem in connection with the Upadhyaya Case. According to Mr. Golubchik, Gina Lisitsa contacted Mr. Golubchik to help Aykem object to confirmation of a chapter 13 plan and obtain relief from the automatic stay. Mr. Golubchik also states that he negotiated a payoff of the debt owed to Aykem and that, upon concluding this negotiation, terminated his representation of the company.

Mr. Golubchik contends he never received personal information about Ms. Ayzenberg or Mr. Kemel, did not receive financials for Aykem and never had any discussions with Ms. Ayzenberg or Mr. Kemel. According to Mr. Golubchik, all his discussions were with Ms. Lisitsa, and all of these discussions related to the Upadhyaya Case.

On June 29, 2020, the Kemel Parties responded to the Golubchik Declaration [doc. 65], reiterating many of their prior points. However, the Kemel Parties did not support their response with a declaration, and did not file evidentiary objections to the Golubchik Declaration. On June 30, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion to Disqualify [doc. 71], requesting an opportunity to orally examine the Kemel Parties. On the same day, the Kemel Parties responded [doc. 73], asserting that an oral examination of the Kemel Parties would violate their attorney-client privilege.

On August 20, 2020, Debtor filed a supplemental opposition to the Motion to Disqualify [doc. 147]. To this supplement, Debtor attached an unredacted version of the Aykem Retainer. Declaration of David B. Golubchik, ¶ 5, Exhibit A. The first page of the unredacted Aykem Retainer explicitly defines Aykem as LNBYB's client. Id. In addition, the unredacted Aykem Retainer provides—

He in nowise represents the officers personally"]).)

Sprengel v. Zbylut, 40 Cal.App.5th 1028, 1042 (Ct. App. 2019) (applying standard to a limited liability company). In addition, pursuant to California Rule of Professional Conduct 1.13(a)—

A lawyer employed or retained by an organization shall conform his or her representation to the concept that the client is the organization itself, acting through its duly authorized directors, officers, employees, members, shareholders, or other constituents overseeing the particular engagement.

(emphasis added); see also Smith v. Laguna Sur Villas Cmty. Ass'n, 79 Cal.App.4th 639, 643 (Ct. App. 2000) ("Corporations have a separate legal identity and enjoy the benefit of the attorney-client privilege.").

agreement provided by the Kemel Parties is between LNBYB and Aykem, a limited liability company. The Kemel Parties have not presented evidence of any agreement, separate from the Aykem Retainer, that reflects that LNBYB represented any entity other than Aykem. As such, the Kemel Parties have not met their burden of proving that LNBYB expressly agreed to represent the Kemel Parties in their individual capacities. See, e.g. In re C & M Russell, LLC, 2018 WL 941643, at *5 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. Feb. 16, 2018) ("Plaintiff is not a party to the Retainer Agreement, and there is no attorney client relationship between Plaintiff and either of the Defendants. The uncontroverted evidence shows that the parties to the Retainer Agreement were [the limited liability company] and Defendant [attorneys]. Although Plaintiff had involvement in [the limited liability company], it is a separate legal entity from her.").

As discussed above, Aykem is a separate legal entity with its own attorney-client relationship with LNBYB. LNBYB's representation of Aykem did not create an attorney-client relationship between LNBYB and the Kemel Parties. LNBYB strongly disputes that Mr. Golubchik ever communicated with either Mr. Kemel and Ms. Ayzenberg. Nevertheless, even if the Court takes as true the Kemel Parties' declarations, wherein they state that they disclosed personal information to Mr. Golubchik unrelated to the Upadhyia Case, such information would not be privileged unless LNBYB and/or Mr. Golubchik had an attorney-client relationship with the Kemel Parties.

Aykem, the entity that was LNBYB's former client, is not a creditor of this estate, and the Kemel Parties do not contend that Aykem has any involvement with Debtor or this bankruptcy case. For Aykem to move to disqualify LNBYB and/or Mr. Golubchik, which it has not, it would have to demonstrate a substantial relationship between Mr. Golubchik's representation of Aykem in the Upadhyia Case and Mr. Golubchik's representation of Debtor in this case. See, e.g. Jessen v. Hartford Cas. Ins. Co., 111 Cal.App.4th 698, 705 (Ct. App. 2003). No party alleges any such connection. As such, there is no express agreement between Mr. Golubchik and the Kemel Parties, and Mr. Golubchik's representation of Aykem would not prevent Mr. Golubchik from representing Debtor. [FN1].

an express attorney-client relationship, such as by operation of a written retainer agreement, they may be able to prove an implied attorney-client relationship. In Sprengel, for instance, attorneys represented a limited liability company with two 50% members. Sprengel, 40 Cal.App.5th at 1031. After the initial litigation, one of the members filed a malpractice action against the attorneys, asserting that the attorneys violated their professional duties by undertaking representation of the limited liability company without her consent, and providing advice that was adverse to her interests. Id.

The member acknowledged that she never entered into an express retainer agreement with the attorneys. Id., at 1041-42. On appeal, the issue was whether the member had proven that an implied attorney-client relationship existed between the parties. Id., at 1042. In assessing whether an implied attorney-client relationship had formed, the Sprengel court referenced Responsible Citizens, supra, and applied that case's multi-factor test to assess whether an implied attorney-client relationship existed. Id., at 1044 (quoting Responsible Citizens, 16 Cal.App.4th at 1733). The Responsible Citizens factors are—

Without any attempt at being exhaustive, we can identify some factors which might support, or undercut, implication of an attorney-client relationship with an individual partner in any particular case. The type and size of the partnership obviously have a bearing, as already noted. So do the nature and scope of the attorney's engagement by the partnership. The kind and extent of contacts, if any, between the attorney and the individual partner might be important factors. The same is true as to the attorney's access to information (e.g., partnership financial information) relating to the individual partner's interests.

For that reason, we believe that in determining whether an attorney-client relationship exists in cases like this, primary attention should be given to whether the totality of the circumstances, including the parties' conduct, implies an agreement by the partnership attorney not to accept other representations adverse to the individual partner's personal interests. (See Friedman, The Creation of the Attorney-Client Relationship: An Emerging View, op. cit. supra, 22 Cal. Western

Chapter 11

L.Rev. at p. 231, suggesting that one of the most important facts involved in finding an attorney-client relationship is "the expectation of the client based on how the situation appears to a reasonable person in the client's position.")

Responsible Citizens, 16 Cal.App.4th at 1733. Although Responsible Citizens involved partnerships, Sprengel applied the test therein to limited liability companies. Sprengel, at 1044.

Here, the Kemel Parties either have not presented evidence regarding these factors, or the evidence presented indicates that an attorney-client relationship did not exist between LNBYB and the Kemel Parties. For instance, the "nature and scope" of the Aykem Retainer actually demonstrates that LNBYB intended to represent Aykem, and only Aykem, in a limited capacity. In relevant part, the Aykem Retainer provides that LNBYB's "shall be limited to the representation of the Client, separate and distinct from Client's... agents, employees, family members and others" and that "LNBYB is being employed by the Client, and not any other parties such as any partnerships, corporations or their officers, directors, shareholders, employees and/or guarantors." Aykem Retainer, pp. 2, 3 (emphases added).

The Aykem Retainer also instructed such parties to retain their own counsel. Id. Thus, LNBYB made clear that its only client was Aykem. In light of this explicit language alone, a "reasonable person in the [Kemel Parties'] position" would not expect that they individually maintained an attorney-client relationship with LNBYB. Responsible Citizens, 16 Cal.App.4th at 1733.

In addition, the Aykem Retainer explicitly stated that LNBYB's representation would be limited to the Upadhya Case. Aykem Retainer, p. 1. While the declarations of Mr. Kemel and Ms. Ayzenberg provide that they individually discussed other matters with Mr. Golubchik, they do not contend that Mr. Golubchik actually represented Aykem or the Kemel Parties in connection with any of these unrelated matters. As such, the nature and scope of LNBYB's representation was limited to the Upadhya Case.

Moreover, as to LNBYB's "access to information relating to the individual's partner's interests," the Kemel Parties have not provided any evidence of access. While the Kemel Parties state in their declarations that they volunteered certain information to LNBYB, they do not contend that LNBYB had access to personal information about the Kemel Parties (such as, for example, certain attorneys for corporations who have access to information about the corporation's subsidiaries, parents, etc.).

The Kemel Parties do state that they had extensive contact with Mr. Golubchik. Mr. Golubchik, for his part, vehemently denies these statements. However, even ignoring Mr. Golubchik's testimony denying the contact, the Kemel Parties do not state in their declarations that they hired Mr. Golubchik in an individual capacity, that they entered into oral retainer agreements or that they took any action to signal to Mr. Golubchik that they were intending to hire him as their individual attorney on separate matters. Instead, the Kemel Parties merely state that they discussed several issues with Mr. Golubchik. Such voluntary disclosure of information does not create an attorney-client relationship. See Zenith Ins. Co. v. O'Connor, 148 Cal.App.4th 998, 1010 (Ct. App. 2007) ("California law is settled that a client's subjective belief that an attorney-client relationship exists, standing alone, cannot create such a relationship, or a duty of care owed by the attorney to that plaintiff."). [FN2].

With the exception of Mr. Kemel's signature on the Aykem Retainer, the Kemel Parties' declarations also are undermined by the lack of evidence of any contact between Mr. Golubchik and the Kemel Parties. The Sprengel and Reasonable Citizens courts emphasized that "primary attention should be given to whether the totality of the circumstances, including the parties' conduct, implies an agreement by the partnership attorney not to accept other representations adverse to the individual partner's personal interests." Sprengel, at 1044 (citing Responsible Citizens, 16 Cal.App.4th at 1733).

Here, the Kemel Parties have not produced any evidence to support their statements that they consulted with Mr. Golubchik. The Motion to Disqualify is devoid of any indicators of an attorney-client relationship; there are no letters, no emails, no text messages, no invoices, no telephone records, no legal documents filed on behalf of the Kemel Parties by Mr. Golubchik and no other writing that would hint at an attorney-client relationship between LNBYB/Mr. Golubchik and the Kemel Parties. Further, after Mr. Golubchik filed the Golubchik Declaration, in which he disputed most of the contentions in the declarations filed by the Kemel Parties, the Kemel Parties did not object to the Golubchik Declaration and did not attempt to provide any evidence that would contradict the Golubchik Declaration. As aptly stated by one California appellate court—

Chapter 11

The [trial] court cited as support the formal engagement letter between [the corporation] and [its attorneys]. Far from providing evidentiary support of an attorney-client relationship between [the individual shareholder moving for disqualification of the attorneys] and [the attorneys], this letter raises the question why [the shareholder] did not produce a retainer agreement between herself and the firm (as it was apparently the firm's policy to require one), and did not even declare that such an agreement existed.

Critically, she fails to declare that a contract for legal services existed between her and [the attorneys]. She does not declare she entered into a written retainer agreement or that an oral contract was somehow created. She does not declare she was ever billed by or made payments to [the attorneys]. She does not declare she received any correspondence from [the attorneys], for example, on the firm's letterhead or signed by an attorney in his or her capacity as a lawyer at the firm. ... In sum, Fang's declaration falls short on evidentiary facts and essentially amounts to a unilateral declaration of an attorney-client relationship with the law firm.

Perlan Therapeutics, Inc. v. NexBio, Inc., 2013 WL 4508990, at *6-7 (Cal. Ct. App. Aug. 22, 2013). The lack of evidence in Perlan is strikingly similar to the lack of evidence here. Notably, as in Perlan, it is unclear why LNBYB would draft a detailed retainer agreement outlining the scope of its representation of Aykem, but neglect to draft any retainer in connection with its purported representation of the Kemel Parties.

The documents the Kemel Parties did provide do not constitute evidence of an attorney-client relationship. The emails attached to the Motion to Disqualify are between Mr. Golubchik and third parties. Neither Mr. Kemel nor Ms. Ayzenberg are included as recipients or senders. In addition, the substance of the emails either does not involve the Kemel Parties, or involves them only to the extent they signed on behalf of Aykem in connection with the Upadhyya Case. The article attached to the Motion to Disqualify does not appear, on its face, to have any relationship to Debtor, Ms. Ayzenberg, Mr. Kemel or this bankruptcy case.

As to the documents related to lawsuits involving Debtor, the Kemel Parties suggest that, because Mr. Golubchik removed other proceedings, but did not remove these proceedings, there must be a conflict Mr. Golubchik is attempting to hide. This is not evidence of a conflict of interest. Finally, Aykem's registration with the California Secretary of State has no bearing on whether there was an attorney-client relationship.

While the Kemel Parties may claim they cannot produce privileged documents, the Kemel Parties had ample opportunity to provide the Court with redacted documents omitting substantive attorney-client communication. In fact, that is exactly what the Kemel Parties did with the Aykem Retainer. Alternatively, the Kemel Parties could have moved for a protective order, provided a privilege log and/or filed documents under seal. Instead, the Kemel Parties have moved to quash Debtor's requests for discovery. See Motion to Quash Notices of Deposition and Request for Production of Documents [doc. 138]. Despite filing numerous papers in connection with the Motion to Disqualify, and in opposition to the Application to Employ, the Kemel Parties never provided evidence to support their claim that they individually maintained an attorney-client relationship with LNBYB and/or Mr. Golubchik.

Given that the Aykem Retainer explicitly excluded any entity other than Aykem as a client, to meet their "heavy burden" of proving a separate attorney-client relationship with LNBYB and/or Mr. Golubchik and to survive the "strict judicial scrutiny" applied to motions to disqualify, the Kemel Parties should have provided evidence substantiating their claim of an attorney-client relationship. They did not. Consequently, the Kemel Parties have failed to demonstrate that there was an attorney-client relationship between LNBYB/Mr. Golubchik and the Kemel Parties, whether express or implied.

C. Other Issues Raised by the Parties

The other issues raised by Sands Law and the Kemel Parties also do not warrant disqualification of LNBYB or a denial of the Application to Employ. As a preliminary matter, LNBYB's contention that Sands Law and the Kemel Parties lack standing because they are not creditors to the estate is moot; Sands Law and the Kemel Parties have now filed proofs of claim against the estate, and the Court has not yet adjudicated the validity of the claims.

With respect to the Kemel Parties' assertion that LNBYB should have disclosed its relationship to the Kemel Parties in the Application to Employ, as discussed above, the Kemel Parties did not prove that they had a relationship with LNBYB. Moreover, Aykem, LNBYB's former client, does not appear to have any involvement in this case.

Next, Sands Law's argument that Mr. Golubchik emailed FR's counsel to inform FR of a proposed sale is not grounds to deny the Application to Employ. [FN3]. Counsel for debtors in possession routinely inform secured creditors about their intent to sell estate property in an attempt to negotiate with the secured creditors. Because settlement is generally cheaper than litigation, such conduct preserves estate resources. Moreover, in connection with the Reply, Mr. Golubchik testified that, at the time he sent the subject email to FR's counsel, Debtor did have a sale lined up. Declaration of David B. Golubchik [doc. 90], ¶ 90. This is not cause to deny the Application to Employ.

As to Sands Law's argument that Debtor attempted to hire a real estate broker that was not disinterested, as previously noted in the Court's ruling on Sands Law's motion to appoint a chapter 11 trustee (the "Prior Ruling") [doc. 93]—

[T]he nature of this "relationship" is that [Dmitri Lioudkouski, Debtor's principal] and another entity in which Mr. Lioudkouski has an interest are defendants, along with [Prime Capital, the proposed broker], in a pending lawsuit before another bankruptcy judge. There is no other evidence of a relationship between Prime Capital and Debtor. In addition, Debtor already agreed to withdraw the application to employ Prime Capital.

Prior Ruling, p. 5. Moreover, it is unclear why Prime Capital's potential disinterestedness would impact LNBYB's Application to Employ. As such, neither Sands Law nor the Kemel Parties have provided cause to deny the Application to Employ.

1. In a filing unrelated to the Motion to Disqualify [doc. 144], which the Court need not consider, the Kemel Parties argue, for the first time, that Aykem is an alter ego of the Kemel Parties. In the case referenced by the Kemel Parties, a firm that represented a subsidiary corporation undertook representation adverse to the parent corporation. Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners, L.P. v. Superior Court (Parsons Corp.), 60 Cal.App.4th 248, 251-52 (Ct. App. 1997). After the trial court entered an order disqualifying the attorney, the appellate court vacated the trial court's order, holding that such disqualification is only appropriate when the parent and subsidiary corporations are alter egos of one another, and not simply when there is a general "unity of interests" between the entities. Id., at 257-58. To determine if two entities are alter egos of one another, courts consider: "inadequate capitalization, commingling of funds and other assets, disregard of corporate formalities (e.g., stock issuance, keeping of minutes, election of officers and directors, segregation of corporate records), identical equitable ownership in the two entities and identical directors and officers." Id., at 258. The Kemel Parties have presented no evidence that they inadequately capitalized Aykem, commingled funds and/or disregarded corporate formalities.
2. Likewise, if true, Mr. Golubchik's discussion of "investment strategy" (or any other strategy) would not, on its own, create an attorney-client relationship if Mr. Golubchik was unaware the Kemel Parties intended to hire Mr. Golubchik to represent them in connection with these issues.
3. Sands Law is not counsel to FR and was not a sender or recipient of the emails between FR's counsel and Mr. Golubchik. As such, Sands Law cannot properly authenticate these emails. In any event, the emails are not grounds for denial of the Application to Employ.

Chapter 7

#10.00 Motion for an order authorizing chapter 7 trustee to deposit funds into the bankruptcy court's registry

Docket 323

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On January 7, 2020, Duane Daniel Martin ("Duane") and Tisha Michelle Martin ("Tisha") (together, "Debtors") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David K. Gottlieb was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On August 12, 2019, the Trustee filed a motion to approve a compromise between the Trustee, Duane, Michael Martin ("Michael") and Roxe, LLC (the "Compromise Motion") [doc. 219]. In relevant part, the agreement attached to the Compromise Motion provided that 26% of the net proceeds from the sale, defined in the agreement as "Michael's Distribution," would be deposited into the Epps & Coulson, LLP Client Trust Account.

The Trustee also filed a motion for approval to sell real property of the estate (the "Sale Motion") [doc. 223]. Tisha opposed the Compromise Motion, asserting a claim in Michael's Distribution and requesting that Michael's Distribution be escrowed pending resolution of the claims to Michael's Distribution ("Compromise Opposition") [doc. 246]. In relevant part, Tisha argued that a lis pendens she recorded in connection with litigation before state family court preserved her right in the Michael Distribution. Compromise Opposition, p. 12. Epps & Coulson, LLP ("Epps"), Michael's prior attorneys, also have asserted a claim to Michael's Distribution [doc. 238].

On September 18, 2019, the Court entered orders approving the Sale Motion (the "Sale Order") [doc. 264] and the Compromise Motion, as modified (the "Compromise Order") [doc. 265]. In relevant part, the Sale Order provides—

Epps & Coulson, LLP and Tisha... are instructed to remove their respective liens, claims and interests on the Family Home. The Deed of Trust in favor of Epps & Coulson, LLP will be treated as a lien to the extent of Michael's Distribution, will not be paid through Escrow, and shall attach only to Michael's Distribution from the Net Proceeds under the Settlement, subject to resolution of the disputed claim of Tisha.

Michael's Distribution (defined below) shall be delivered by Escrow at closing to the Trustee to be held by the Trustee in a segregated account pending the (a) resolution of both (i) the fee dispute between Roxe, LLC, Michael and Epps & Coulson, and (ii) Tisha's asserted interest in such funds (collectively, the "Dispute Parties") pursuant to a stipulation of all of the Dispute Parties (the "Stipulation for Resolution"); or (b) entry of an Order from a Court of competent jurisdiction, which may or may not be the Bankruptcy Court, that directs where Michael's Distribution should be delivered (the "Order Directing Payment of Michael's Distribution"). Once there is either a Stipulation for Resolution or Order Directing Payment of Michael's Distribution, then the Dispute Parties shall jointly submit the Stipulation for Resolution or file a Motion for Order Directing Payment of Michael's Distribution in the Bankruptcy Court in the Debtors' Bankruptcy Case for the Bankruptcy Court's entry of an Order which directs the Trustee where to deliver Michael's Distribution (the "Distribution Order"). Until entry of a Distribution Order, or as otherwise directed by the Bankruptcy Court in the Debtors' Bankruptcy Case, the Trustee shall continue to hold Michael's Distribution in a segregated account.

Sale Order, pp. 4-5. The Sale Order defined Michael's Distribution as 26% of the net proceeds after payment of liens, costs and fees; Michael's Distribution is separate from the 74% distribution of net proceeds to the Trustee. The Compromise Order reiterated the instructions regarding holding Michael's Distribution. Compromise Order, pp. 3-4.

On July 27, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion for authority to deposit Michael's Distribution into the Court's Registry (the "Motion") [doc. 323]. In the Motion, the Trustee states that he is prepared to file a Final Report and close this case, and that the remaining disputes over Michael's Distribution will be handled by a court other than

On August 13, 2020, Epps & Coulson, LLP ("Epps") filed a "limited opposition" to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 325]. In the Opposition, Epps requests that Michael's Distribution be deposited into the Epps & Coulson, LLP Client Trust Account. Epps then provides legal argument regarding why it believes Tisha does not have a proper claim to Michael's Distribution.

On August 19, 2020, the Trustee filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 326], asserting that the arguments in the Opposition exceed the scope of the Motion. Given that the Trustee seeks only to relocate the subject funds to the Court's Registry, and not to adjudicate entitlement to the subject funds, the Trustee asserts that Epps' arguments are improper in the context of the Motion. On August 20, 2020, Tisha filed a response to the Opposition [doc. 327], agreeing with the Trustee's arguments in the Reply.

II. ANALYSIS

Here, because the Trustee is prepared to file a Final Report and close this case, the Trustee requests transfer of Michael's Distribution from the Trustee's segregated account to the Court's Registry. In its Opposition, Epps first contends that, because the settlement agreement attached to the Compromise Motion provided for storage of the funds in Epps's client trust account, the Court should redirect the funds to that account. However, Tisha was not a party to the settlement agreement. In addition, Tisha explicitly objected to Epps holding the funds in its client trust account, and the Court resolved that objection by instructing that the Trustee hold the subject funds. As such, the Compromise Order and the Sale Order supersede any contradictory language in the settlement agreement.

Epps' remaining arguments, regarding whether Tisha is legally entitled to the Michael Distribution, exceed the scope of the Motion. The Trustee's request is to hold the funds in the Court's Registry instead of the Trustee's segregated account; the Motion does not request any relief related to Tisha's, Epps', Michael's or any other party's rights to the Michael Distribution. A transfer of the funds to the Court's Registry will not impact these parties' claims to the funds. Epps having provided no other basis to preclude the funds from being deposited into the Court's Registry, the Court will grant

#12.00 Motion to compel production of documents, and media,

Docket 119

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On April 10, 2018, Exotic Euro Cars, Inc. ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. Amy L. Goldman was appointed chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In its statement of financial affairs [doc. 1], Debtor indicated that Sharmini Kumar is Debtor's president.

On December 26, 2018, Renzer Bell II ("Movant") filed proof of claim 3-1, asserting an unsecured claim in the amount of $773,435 based on "breach of contract, anticipatory repudiation of contract, and fraud."

On October 24, 2018, Movant filed a Motion for an Order Directing Trustee Amy Goldman, and her Attorney Todd Frealy to Release Documents Germane to the Chapter 7 Petition of Debtor Exotic Euro Cars (the "First Motion to Compel") [doc. 31]. On November 2, 2018, the Trustee filed a stipulation between the Trustee and Movant resolving the First Motion to Compel (the "Stipulation") [doc. 37]. On November 21, 2018, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 50].

Pursuant to the Stipulation, the Trustee was to provide Movant with certain documents enumerated in the Stipulation, the recordings of the § 341(a) meetings of creditors and a list of any future discovery and additional records obtained which belong to Debtor by January 15, 2019. The Trustee further agreed to provide Movant a list of any future discovery obtained after December 31, 2018 every 60 days, and agreed to produce additional records which belong to Debtor every 75 days. The Stipulation excluded from production records the Trustee obtains that raise privacy concerns or are not documents which belong to Debtor. However, the Trustee agreed to provide a list to Movant of such records so that he can determine whether it is necessary to seek a Court order instructing their production. Additionally, the Stipulation excluded from production Dr. Kain Kumar's personal bank statements.

In relevant part, the Stipulation provides:

F. The Trustee is in the process of conducting additional discovery against third parties in an attempt to recover information and documents that will lead to recovery of assets for the benefit of the bankruptcy estate. The Trustee anticipates obtaining additional information and documents within the next 90 days (the "Future Discovery").

3. By December 31, 2018, the Trustee will provide to [Movant] a list of any Future Discovery obtained, and will agree to produce additional records which belong to the Debtor to [Movant] by January 15, 2019. In addition, the Trustee will provide to [Movant] a list of any Future Discovery obtained after December 31, 2018 every 60 days, and will agree to produce additional records which belong to the Debtor every 75 days. To the extent that the Trustee obtain records which raise privacy concerns or are not documents which belong to the Debtor, the Trustee will not produce such records or documents, but will provide [Movant] with a list of such records so that he can determine whether it is necessary to seek a Court order that instructs their production.

Stipulation, pp. 3-4.

On December 17, 2018, Movant filed an Amended Motion for an Order Granting Creditor Renzer Bell Leave to Serve Requests for Admissions, and Requests for Production Upon Debtor Exotic Euro Car, Inc., Kain Kumar MD, Inc., Antelope Valley Medical Group Leasing, Inc., and Antelope Valley Medical Group, Inc., and for an Order Granting Creditor Renzer Bell Leave to Conduct an Examination of Exotic Euro Cars, Inc., Kain Kumar MD, Inc., Antelope Valley Medical Group Leasing, Inc., and Antelope Valley Medical Group, Inc. (the "2004 Exam Motion") [doc. 65].

Chapter 7

In the 2004 Exam Motion, Movant requested that the Court grant him leave to serve requests for admission on several entities under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 7036. Movant also requested that the Court grant him leave to serve requests for production of documents and to conduct a FRBP 2004 exam of several entities.

On December 20, 2018, the Court entered an order denying the 2004 Exam Motion because there was no relevant pending adversary proceeding or contested matter which would allow for requests for admission under FRBP 7036, and Movant had not complied with the requirements of FRBP 2004 and Local Bankruptcy Rule 2004-1 [doc. 68].

On December 30, 2019, the Trustee filed three adversary proceeding complaints, initiating adversary proceedings 1:19-ap-01154-VK, 1:19-ap-01155-VK and 1:19-ap-01156-VK. One of these adversary proceeding complaints was filed against Dr. Kain Kuman and Sharmini Kumar (together, the "Kumars") for avoidance of voidable and fraudulent transfers and recovery of avoided transfers for the benefit of Debtor's estate.

On January 21, 2020, Movant filed a motion for relief from stay to proceed with an action in the United States District Court, Southern District of New York against Debtor and the Kumars, among others (the "RFS Motion") [doc. 99]. On February 18, 2020, the Court entered an order granting the RFS Motion [doc. 104].

On August 7, 2020, Movant filed a Motion to Compel Production of Documents, and Media, and Compliance with Docket Nos. 37 and 50 (the "Motion") [doc. 119]. In the Motion, Movant alleges that the Trustee has failed to or refused to comply with the terms of the Stipulation because he has not received a list of documents or records for over nine months. Movant contends that he is entitled to receive discovery obtained in connection with the adversary proceedings because the Stipulation is silent regarding production of these documents.

Movant requests that the Court order the Trustee "to provide copies of any, and all documents, and media to [Movant] including but not limited to documents evincing transfers, wire transfer, withdrawals, and payments made by [Debtor] for the benefits of its directors, officers, or shareholders, the oral deposition transcript taken for defendant Sharmini Kumar, and any other discovery documents/materials/media in the possession of [the Trustee] ... which are related to the Chapter 7 Petition of [Debtor], and not explicitly excluded by dockets nos. 37, and 50. . . ."

On August 13, 2020, the Trustee filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Trustee Opposition") [doc. 123]. In the Trustee Opposition, the Trustee argues that the Court should deny the Motion because the Trustee has fulfilled her duties under 11 U.S.C. § 704(a)(7) and the Trustee has already produced to Movant all records and media as required by the Stipulation. The Trustee contends that Movant's request for documents seeks documents which are protected by the attorney-client privilege and the work product doctrine.

On August 15, 2020, the Kumars filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Kumar Opposition") [doc. 124]. In the Kumar Opposition, the Kumars object to the Motion because, among other things, it is overly broad and it seeks to compel the Trustee to turnover the Kumars' private and sensitive documents, which the Kumars provided to the Trustee with the understanding that they would be kept private.

II. DISCUSSION

In the Motion, Movant does not articulate the legal basis for compelling the Trustee to produce the requested documents and media, aside from the Stipulation and the related Order. At this time, Movant is not a party to a pending adversary proceeding, and there is no pending relevant contested matter. Accordingly, aside from enforcement of the Stipulation, the only legal basis for the Motion could be the Trustee's statutory duty under 11 U.S.C. § 704(a)(7).

A. Enforcement of the Stipulation

As detailed in the Trustee Opposition, the Trustee has complied with the terms of the Stipulation. The Trustee states that since December 30, 2019, she and her counsel have not received any documents that belong to Debtor. In the declaration attached to the Trustee Opposition, the Trustee's counsel testifies that he has produced to Movant all Debtor's documents that are in possession of the Trustee and her counsel [Declaration of Todd Frealy ("Frealy Decl."), ¶¶ 9, 14–46]. This includes, among others, all of Debtor's bank statements, wire transfer records, withdrawal slips and canceled checks from Debtor's bank accounts at three different banks. Id.

The Stipulation excluded from production documents that raise privacy concerns or are not documents which belong to the Debtor. However, the Stipulation requires the Trustee to provide a list of such documents to Movant. It appears that the Trustee has complied with this provision as well. Frealy Decl., ¶¶ 18, 25, 28 and 46. To the extent that Movant seeks documents which the Trustee or her counsel received in connection with prosecuting the adversary proceedings - except for Debtor's documents (which the Trustee has provided to Movant) - those documents are beyond the scope of the Stipulation.

B. The Chapter 7 Trustee's Statutory Duty Under 11 U.S.C. § 704(a)(7)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 704(a)(7), the trustee shall, "unless the court orders otherwise, furnish such information concerning the estate and the estate's administration as is requested by a party in interest." The bankruptcy court in In re Refco Inc., 336 B.R. 187 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2006) discussed the scope of a chapter 7 trustee's obligation under § 704(a)(7). In relevant part, the court noted:

First, a trustee's duty under section 704a is fairly extensive, as § 704a places the burden of providing requested information on the trustee, and reflects the overriding duty to keep parties in interest informed. Courts have interpreted the trustee's responsibilities broadly, making a request for information difficult for the trustee to avoid, in the absence of a court order to the contrary. Pineiro v. Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, 318 F.Supp.2d 67, 102 (S.D.N.Y.2003) (internal citations and quotations omitted). See also In re Robert Landau Assocs., Inc., 50 B.R. 670, 677 (Bankr.S.D.N.Y.1985) ("The policy of open inspection, established in the Code itself through section 704(7) and F.R.B.P. 5005 and 5007, is fundamental to the operation of the bankruptcy system and is the best means of avoiding any suggestion of impropriety that might or could be raised.") (internal citation and quotation omitted); In re Sports Accessories, Inc., 34 B.R. 80, 82 (Bankr.D.Md.1983) (discussing importance of trustee's duty to disclose).

Second, the duty to provide information under section 704a is not unlimited, however, as is made clear by the section's introductory clause. Robert Landau, 50 B.R. at 675; Speleos v. McCarthy, 201 B.R. 325, 328 (D.D.C.1996). In particular, a trustee may obtain a protective order against disclosure of information under section 704a if disclosure would result in waiver of the attorney-client privilege, In re Lee Way Holding Co., 120 B.R. 881, 908 (Bankr.S.D.Ohio 1990), or of information that is proprietary and confidential. In re Grabill Corp., 109 B.R. 329, 333 (N.D.Ill.1989); see also 6 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 704.11 (15th ed.2005), at 704–23 (noting that section 107 of the Bankruptcy Code must also be kept in mind when considering a trustee's duty to furnish information).

Third, a trustee's right to a protective order under section 704a is informed by the trustee's fiduciary duties, because the requirement to disclose information under section 704a derives from a trustee's fiduciary duties to creditors and the estate. In re Scott, 172 F.3d 959, 967 (7th Cir.1999); In re Modern Office Supply, Inc., 28 B.R. 943, 944 (Bankr.W.D.Okla.1983).

Refco, 336 B.R. at 193–94.

Here, the Trustee has fulfilled her statutory duty under § 704(a)(7) to furnish information concerning the estate and the estate's administration to Movant. Movant has sent numerous requests for information and updates concerning the estate's administration, and the Trustee's counsel has answered those requests. Frealy Decl., ¶¶ 17–46.

To the extent that Movant seeks production of information developed by the Trustee's professionals for the prosecution of the adversary proceedings, that is not "information concerning the estate and the estate's administration" as contemplated under § 704(a)(7). In re Walters, 136 B.R. 256, 257–59 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1992). In In re Walters, the debtor filed a chapter 7 petition, and two creditors each filed an adversary proceeding against the debtor objecting to his discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727. The chapter 7 trustee filed an adversary complaint against the debtor's wife, among others, alleging that certain prepetition transfers made by the debtor were fraudulent transfers and seeking to recover the value of those transfers for the estate.

The chapter 7 trustee employed attorneys and accountants to prosecute the adversary proceeding against the debtor's wife. Eventually, the chapter 7 trustee and the debtor's wife entered into a settlement agreement and the adversary proceeding was dismissed. Subsequently, the two creditors moved the bankruptcy court for an order granting them access to the information developed by the chapter 7 trustee's accountants while investigating and prosecuting the action against the debtor's wife (the "Audit Materials"). The chapter 7 trustee objected to producing the Audit Materials because they did not fall within the ambit of § 704(a)(7), and even if they did, the Audit Materials were privileged and/or protected from discovery under the work product doctrine.

The bankruptcy court held that the Audit Materials were not "information concerning the estate and the estate's administration" under § 704(a)(7). In reaching this decision, the bankruptcy court discussed two cases, i.e., In re Modern Office Supply, Inc., 28 B.R. 943 (Bankr. W.D. Okla. 1983) and In re Sports Accessories, Inc., 34 B.R. 80 (Bankr. D. Md. 1983).

In In re Modern Office Supply, Inc., 28 B.R. 943 (Bankr. W.D. Okla. 1983), a creditor moved to convert the debtor's chapter 11 case to one under chapter 7. The creditor alleged that the debtor in possession had failed its statutory duties under § 704(a)(7) because the debtor had failed, contrary to the local rules and court orders, to report on the debtor's financial condition.

The Walters court noted:

The information required to be provided by the trustee-debtor in possession in Modern Office Supply was information concerning "estate administration:" that is, information regarding the financial condition and continued operation of the debtor's business, which is the foundation of a Chapter 11 estate. Such information permits the creditors to determine whether the trustee (or debtor in possession, as in Modern Office Supply) is protecting their interests in the property of the estate. Such information cannot be analogized to the Audit Materials in question in this case. If Plaintiffs sought to determine the status of the adversary proceeding against Mrs. Walters, while the adversary proceeding was still pending, and requested information concerning what steps Trustee was taking to prosecute that action diligently, then that information would be analogous to the information required to be produced in Modern Office Supply. The Audit Materials, however, essentially were prepared to assist Trustee in determining the extent of the facts underlying his causes of action against Mrs. Walters and the Trusts. Creditors do not need such information to decide whether their interests are being protected.

Walters, 136 B.R. at 258. The Walters court then discussed In re Sports Accessories, Inc., 34 B.R. 80 (Bankr. D. Md. 1983). In Sports Accessories, a creditor requested information regarding the chapter 7 trustee's efforts to collect over $350,000 in accounts receivable. The court in Sports Accessories ordered the chapter 7 trustee to turn over information concerning the following items: (1) what accounts receivable were outstanding as of March 24, 1981; (2) what accounts receivable have been collected by the trustee since that date; (3) what litigation has been filed by the trustee to collect any accounts receivable; (4) what cases have been turned over for collection; and (5) what accounts has the trustee elected not to pursue further. The Walters court noted, in a footnote:

Note that the court directed the Trustee only to state what litigation had been filed to collect the receivables, and what accounts the trustee had elected not to pursue: the court did not direct the trustee to turn over all the discovery and work product generated in reaching those determinations.

Walters, 136 B.R. at 259, n.3.

Here, as in Walters, Movant is not entitled under § 704(a)(7) to information developed by the Trustee's professionals for the prosecution of the adversary proceedings. That information is not encompassed by § 704(a)(7). Because the information does not fall under § 704(a)(7), the Court need not address the Trustee's claims of privilege or work product.

The Court notes that Movant may conduct discovery in the pending action before the United States District Court, for which Movant has obtained relief from the automatic stay.

III. CONCLUSION

For the reasons discussed above, the Court will deny the Motion.

#13.00 Motion by Resnik Hayes Moradi LLP to withdraw as general bankruptcy counsel to the debtor

Docket 73

Tentative Ruling:

In order for movant to file a supplement to the motion, and for any authorized withdrawal to take place after the hearing on the pending motion for relief from the automatic stay, the Court intends to continue this hearing to September 17, 2020 at 2:30 p.m.

I. BACKGROUND

On March 5, 2020, Amerigrade Corp. (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On June 19, 2020, the Court entered an order setting November 2, 2020 as the deadline for the Debtor to file a plan and disclosure statement [doc. 60]. The next case status conference is set for November 19, 2020.

When the Debtor filed its chapter 11 petition, Resnik Hayes Moradi LLP ("Resnik Hayes") represented the Debtor, as its general bankruptcy counsel. On April 24, 2020, the Debtor filed a substitution of attorney, substituting the Law Offices of Michael Jay Berger as its bankruptcy counsel [doc. 22]. On May 21, 2020, the Debtor filed another substitution of attorney, reinstating Resnik Hayes as its bankruptcy counsel [doc. 36].

On May 22, 2020, TBB Valley Investments, LLC filed an amended motion for relief from stay as to an unlawful detainer action concerning the Debtor's real property at 13217 Filmore Street, Pacoima (the "First RFS Motion") [doc. 37]. On June 30, 2020, the Court entered an order granting the First RFS Motion in part [doc. 71].

On July 15, 2020, Resnik Hayes filed a motion to withdraw as the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel (the "Motion to Withdraw") [doc. 73]. On August 7, 2020, creditor Evette Adawalla filed an opposition to the Motion to Withdraw (the "Opposition") [docs. 81 and 82].

On August 19, 2020, U.S. Bank, National Association filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay concerning the Debtor's real property at 13219 Filmore Street, Pacoima (the "Second RFS Motion") [doc. 89]. The hearing on the Second RFS Motion is set for September 9, 2020.

II. DISCUSSION

Pursuant to California Rule of Professional Conduct ("CRPC") 3-700(C)(1), an attorney may request permission to withdraw as counsel if the client:

- (d) by other conduct renders it unreasonably difficult for the member to carry out the employment effectively;

Pursuant to CRPC 3-700(A)(2):

A member shall not withdraw from employment until the member has taken reasonable steps to avoid reasonably foreseeable prejudice to the rights of the client, including giving due notice to the client, allowing time for employment of other counsel, complying with rule 3-700(D), and complying with applicable laws and rules.

"[T]he court has discretion to deny an attorney's request to withdraw where such withdrawal would work an injustice or cause undue delay in the proceeding." Mandell v. Superior Court, 67 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4 (Ct. App. 1977); see also Estate of Falco, 188 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1014 (Ct. App. 1987) ("To protect the best interests of the client, a trial court should have broad discretion in allowing attorneys to withdraw.").

Courts have considered the following factors when evaluating a motion to withdraw: "(1) the reasons why withdrawal is sought; (2) the prejudice withdrawal may cause to other litigants; (3) the harm withdrawal might cause to the administration of justice; and (4) the degree to which withdrawal will delay the resolution of the case." CE Res., Inc. v. Magellan Grp., LLC, 2009 WL 3367489, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 21, 2015); see also Deal v. Countrywide Home Loans, 2010 WL 3702459, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 15, 2010); and Beard v. Shuttermart of Cal., Inc., 2008 WL 410694, at *2 (S.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2008).

Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2091-1(e)(2), "[u]nless good cause is shown and the ends of justice require, no substitution or withdrawal will be allowed that will cause unreasonable delay in prosecution of the case or proceeding to completion."

Pursuant to LBR 2091-1(d), "[a]n attorney moving for leave to withdraw from representation of a corporation, a partnership including a limited liability partnership, a limited liability company, or any other unincorporated association, or a trust, concurrently or prior to filing any such motion, must give notice to the client of the consequences of its inability to appear without counsel, including the possibility that a default judgment may be entered against it in pending proceedings; or, if the client is a chapter 11 debtor, that the case may be converted to chapter 7, a trustee may be appointed, or the case may be dismissed."

Here, there may be cause to allow withdrawal of counsel. In the Motion to Withdraw, Resnik Hayes states that the Debtor is attempting to pursue a course of action against Resnik Hayes' advice, not responding to certain communications, not providing consistent instructions and not clarifying the current status of the engagement. If true, these events fall within the purview of CRPC 3-700(C)(1)(d). However, the declaration attached to the Motion to Withdraw does not attest to these allegations, and the declaration of Olivia Adawalla, the Debtor's President, attached to the Opposition, contradicts these assertions.

In the Opposition, Ms. Adawalla argues that Resnik Hayes did not provide notice to the Debtor of the consequences of its inability to appear without counsel as required by LBR 2091-1(d). In the Motion to Withdraw, Resnik Hayes states that the Debtor "has been previously advised to immediately seek representation to insure that its rights are not adversely affected by the withdrawal." The declaration attached to the Motion to Withdraw does not state when Resnik Hayes so advised the Debtor. Additionally, the declaration of Olivia Adawalla, attached to the Opposition, contradicts this assertion. Moreover, contrary to LBR 2091-1(d), the statement in the Motion to Withdraw does not provide the Debtor, which must have counsel to appear in court, with sufficient notice of the consequences of its inability to appear without counsel.

In addition, the Second RFS Motion is set for hearing on September 9, 2020. In light of this timing, it is questionable whether the Debtor will have sufficient time to obtain new counsel for it to respond to the Second RFS Motion. Thus, counsel's withdrawal at this time could significantly prejudice the Debtor and its bankruptcy estate.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court intends to continue this hearing to September 17, 2020 at 2:30 p.m. No later than September 3, 2020, Resnik Hayes must file and serve on the Debtor and the respondent a supplemental declaration attesting to the facts asserted in the Motion to Withdraw. Any response must be filed and served on Resnik Hayes no later than September 10, 2020.

The Court will prepare the order.

#29.00 Motion for objection to the notice of mortgage payment change filed by U.S. Bank Trust National Trust Association as Trustee for GIFM Holdings Trust on June 23, 2020

Docket 64

Tentative Ruling:

The parties dispute whether the debtors or the lender paid the subject insurance premiums that led to the increase in the debtors' mortgage payments. However, neither party has provided sufficient documentary evidence of such payment, such as a check or account demonstrating that either the debtors or the lender funded the required premiums, in full.

Although the debtors provided a confirmation email, dated July 22, 2020, as to one $745.65 payment, that email does not include any information regarding the source of the payment, or whether the payment completely and timely satisfied the premium due at that time.

If the debtors have been timely paying all of the insurance premiums to maintain the required insurance coverage on the subject property, without any gap in required coverage, the lender has not demonstrated that it may charge the debtors for insurance coverage, on top of the debtors' own coverage, under the terms of the applicable promissory note or deed of trust.

The Court will continue this hearing to 11:00 a.m. on October 6, 2020. No later than September 22, 2020, the parties must file and serve documentary evidence regarding the source of funding for the subject insurance payments and whether that source paid the required insurance premiums, in full, without a lapse in coverage.

If the debtors demonstrate that they funded the required insurance premiums in full, and without a gap in coverage, the lender must file and serve evidence that it is entitled to charge the debtors for insurance, pursuant to the terms of the applicable promissory note and deed of trust, when the debtors have maintained and paid in full for the required insurance coverage.

Docket 65

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

On July 30, 2020, in response to the debtor's motion to modify his chapter 13 plan [doc. 66], secured creditor Rama NPL 1, LLC ("Creditor") filed a notice of opposition and request for a hearing (the "Opposition") [doc. 69]. In the Opposition, Creditor contends that the debtor, Keith Tatsukawa ("Debtor"), may not extend the term of his chapter 13 plan to seven years.

However, pursuant to the recently added section (d) under 11 U.S.C. § 1329, a debtor may do so:

(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (3), for a plan confirmed prior to the date of enactment of this subsection, the plan may be modified upon the request of the debtor if—

(A) the debtor is experiencing or has experienced a material financial hardship due, directly or indirectly, to the coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) pandemic; and

(B) the modification is approved after notice and a hearing.

(2) A plan modified under paragraph (1) may not provided for payments over a period that expires more than 7 years after the time that the first payment under the original confirmed plan was due.

11 U.S.C. § 1329(d)(1)–(2).

Debtor has submitted a declaration testifying that he has experienced reduced rental income, and increased expenses, as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. The chapter

Chapter 13

13 trustee has recommended approval of Debtor's motion, subject to Debtor paying 100% of allowed claims.

Given the chapter 13 trustee's recommendation, Debtor's adverse changes in income and expenses, due to the pandemic, and Debtor's ability to increase the plan term to 7 years, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1329(d)(1)–(2), the Court will grant the motion.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Chapter 13

#33.00 Motion under Local Bankruptcy Rule 3015-1 (n) and (w)
to modify plan or suspend plan payments

fr. 8/11/20

Docket 33

Tentative Ruling:

In light of the debtors' agreement to increase the term of their chapter 13 plan to 5 years, and the debtors' evidence regarding their reduction in income, does the chapter 13 trustee have any issues with the reduced plan payments which the debtors propose to make?

8/11/2020 Tentative:

On October 3, 2019, the Court entered an order confirming the debtors' chapter 13 plan (the "Order") [doc. 26]. Pursuant to the Order, the debtors are to pay $4,648 per month for 55 months. The plan is a 100% plan. The Order also provides that the applicable commitment period is five years if the plan pays less than 100%.

On July 6, 2020, the debtors filed a motion to modify their chapter 13 plan (the "Motion") [doc. 33]. In the Motion, the debtors propose to reduce the plan payment to $1,876 per month from July 2020 to July 2024. If the Motion is granted, the last plan payment due would be payable 54 months after the first plan payment was due. The proposed modification will reduce the percentage paid to general unsecured creditors from 100% to 41%. The debtors state that they are requesting a modification of their plan because their income has decreased. The debtors do not explain why their income has decreased or whether this is a temporary decrease.

On July 21, 2020, the chapter 13 trustee filed an objection to the Motion (the "Objection") [doc. 34]. In the Objection, the chapter 13 trustee states that she disapproves of the proposed modification because: (1) the modification would reduce the percentage paid to unsecured creditors without providing for a five year commitment period as required by the Order; and (2) the debtors have not explained

#16.00 Status conference re removed proceeding

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will not remand this matter.

I. BACKGROUND

A. The State Court Action

On January 15, 2020, Any Thy Song Nguyen, Trustee of Mother Nature Trust ("Plaintiff"), filed a complaint in state court against United Lender, LLC ("United"), Shawn Ahdoot, Albert A. Ahdoot, Megan E. Zucaro, Helping Others International, LLC ("Debtor"), Western Fidelity Associates, LLC ("Western Fidelity"), American Financial Center, Inc. ("American") and John B. Spear (collectively, "Defendants"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 2.

On January 21, 2020, Plaintiff filed the operative first amended complaint (the "FAC"), asserting causes of action for: (A) wrongful foreclosure – fraud; (B) fraud and deceit – intentional misrepresentation; (C) negligence; (D) breach of contract; (E) relief based on rescission of contract; (F) quieting title; (G) cancellation of written instruments; (H) declaratory relief; and (I) unfair business practices. Notice of Removal, Exhibit 14. Plaintiff demanded a jury trial. Id. In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges—

Plaintiff was the seller of residential real property located at 6475 Marigayle Circle, Huntington Beach, CA 92648 (the "Huntington Property"). United is the purported holder of a first deed of trust against the Huntington Property; Shawn and Albert Ahdoot are principals and alter egos of United. Debtor was the buyer of the Huntington Property and the trustor or debtor under the first deed of trust encumbering the Huntington Property; Ms. Zucaro is a principal and alter ego of Debtor, as well as a licensed real estate broker.

Western Fidelity is the trustee under the first deed of trust, and recorded a Notice of Trustee's Sale with a sale set for January 27, 2020. Mr. Spear is a licensed real estate broker and the "responsible broker" for Ms. Zucaro. Finally, American Financial is the purported holder of a third deed of trust against the Huntington Property. Defendants were agents of one another and co-conspirators.

In March 2019, Plaintiff received a call from Ms. Zucaro, who stated she was a real estate broker interested in buying the Huntington Property. Plaintiff told Ms. Zucaro she would sell the Huntington Property for $2.5 million. However, Ms. Zucaro stated she did not have sufficient funds for the purchase, but would pay $3 million if Plaintiff would carry a promissory note secured by a second deed of trust for one year, while Ms. Zucaro sold other properties. Ms. Zucaro also requested an additional $150,000 commission. Plaintiff sold the Huntington Property to Debtor on these terms and obtained a promissory note from Debtor, secured by a second priority deed of trust, in the amount of $1.2 million.

Subsequently, Debtor did not make any payments to Plaintiff. On July 1, 2019, Debtor obtained a loan from American secured by a third priority deed of trust in the amount of $75,000. On September 18, 2019, United caused Western Fidelity to record a Notice of Default and Election to Sell Under Deed of Trust. On December 20, 2019, United caused Western Fidelity to record a Notice of Trustee's Sale, setting a foreclosure sale for January 27, 2020.

Since then, Plaintiff discovered that United sent a letter to Debtor noting that Debtor and Ms. Zucaro were current on United's loan. Plaintiff also discovered that Defendants have engaged in similar fraudulent conduct related to other real property. As such, Plaintiff believes Defendants acted in concert to steal Plaintiff's equity in the Huntington Property.

Id. On these allegations, Plaintiff seeks, among other relief, rescission of the sale agreement, a judgment that Defendants have no interest in the Huntington Property and monetary damages against Defendants. Id.

Chapter 11

On March 4, 2020, United filed a cross-complaint against Debtor, Plaintiff, Ms. Zucaro, Mr. Spear and Tri Star Equity Group Corp. (the "Cross-Complaint"), asserting causes of action for: (A) judicial foreclosure of deed of trust; (B) specific performance of assignment of rents; (C) appointment of receiver pursuant to provision in deed of trust; (D) injunctive relief; (E) breach of contract; (F) negligent misrepresentation; (G) fraudulent concealment; (H) negligence; (I) negligent hiring/supervision; (J) conspiracy; and (K) unjust enrichment. Notice of Removal, Exhibit 75. United also demanded a jury trial. Id. In the Cross-Complaint, United alleges—

On April 3, 2019, Debtor submitted to United a request for a loan secured by the Huntington Property. On May 1, 2019, Debtor and United entered into a loan transaction through which United provided $1,957,000 in financing for the purchase and sale of the Huntington Property. Pursuant to the promissory note executed in connection with this transaction, Debtor was to make monthly payments on the first of each month, beginning on June 1, 2019.

Debtor defaulted on the promissory note, which is due and payable in full, in the total sum of $2,234,390.66. Debtor has refused to cure its defaults. In addition, United believes that Debtor is using the Huntington Property as an unlicensed halfway house or sober living facility. United believes the other cross-defendants have conspired with Debtor to defraud United by inflating the sale price and using United's loan to enrich themselves.

Id. On these allegations, United seeks, among other things, sale of the Huntington Property, enforcement of its deed of trust as a first priority deed of trust, specific performance of the deed of trust and a monetary judgment in the amount of $2,234,390.66, plus interest, late charges, fees and costs. Id.

On August 20, 2020, United filed a motion to amend the Cross-Complaint [doc. 18], requesting leave to assert claims for: (A) quiet title; (B) declaratory relief; (C) equitable lien by subrogation; and (D) tort of another. If the Court grants the request to amend the Cross-Complaint, the Cross-Complaint will seek, among other things, a judgment that United's lien is valid, a sale of the Huntington Property and monetary

On June 5, 2020, Plaintiff filed a notice that the state court set trial for August 27, 2021, with a settlement conference set for July 23, 2021. Notice of Removal, Exhibit 122. Although the parties have filed several pleadings in state court, prior to removal, the state court entered only two substantive orders: (A) an order on a request to enter a temporary restraining order enjoining the scheduled foreclosure sale of the Huntington Property; and (B) an order on a motion requesting a preliminary injunction enjoining the foreclosure sale. Notice of Removal, Exhibits 24, 25, 51, 52. The remaining motions and applications were pending at the time United removed this action to this Court.

B. Debtor's Bankruptcy Case and the Removal

On June 29, 2020, Debtor filed its chapter 11 petition. On July 17, 2020, United removed this action to this Court. On July 24, 2020, the Court issued the OSC [doc. 5]. On August 6, 2020, the Court entered an order appointing a chapter 11 trustee (the "Trustee") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 47]. [FN1].

On August 14, 2020, Plaintiff filed a brief requesting remand of this action and a statement of non-consent to entry of a final order or judgment by this Court ("Plaintiff's Brief") [doc. 16]. Plaintiff argues that the factors applicable to equitable remand weigh in favor of remanding this matter; Plaintiff especially emphasizes her demand for a jury trial. In addition, Plaintiff asserts that United waived its right to removal of this action based on a provision in the promissory note executed by United and Debtor. Finally, Plaintiff argues that United waived its right to removal by filing pleadings before the state court.

On August 26, 2020, the Trustee filed a brief opposing remand (the "Trustee's Brief") [doc. 24]. In the Trustee's Brief, the Trustee states that he is attempting to work with the other parties to reach a compromise and settlement. The Trustee also argues that the Court should not remand this matter because the Huntington Property is the primary asset of the estate, and the outcome of this adversary proceeding is critical to administration of the estate. On August 26, 2002, United also filed a brief opposing remand (the "United Brief") [doc. 25]. In the United Brief, United asserts that the contractual provision referenced by Plaintiff does not mandate remand, and that United has not otherwise waived its right to removal. United also asserts that the factors applicable to equitable remand weigh against remanding this action.

On August 26, 2020, American filed a brief [doc. 26] stating that it does not object to the removal of this action, but requests that the Court keep this case "until final resolution on the merits" to avoid further delay. Previously, American had filed a demand for jury trial and a statement of non-consent to a jury trial by this Court [doc. 14]. On August 26, 2020, Plaintiff, United and American filed a status report [doc. 27], in which the parties note that Plaintiff is evaluating a settlement proposal made by the Trustee.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Removal of state court actions to federal district court is governed by 28 U.S.C. §§ 1441 – 1455. Removal and remand of actions related to bankruptcy cases is governed by § 1452.

- (a) A party may remove any claim or cause of action in a civil action . . . to the district court for the district where such civil action is pending, if such district court has jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under section 1334 of this title.
- (b) The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground. . . .

28 U.S.C. § 1452. As set forth in § 1452, removal to a bankruptcy court requires that the court have jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under 28 U.S.C. § 1334. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b), with regard to bankruptcy cases and proceedings, provides that:

Except as provided by subsection (e)(2) and notwithstanding any Act of Congress that confers exclusive jurisdiction on a court or courts other than the district courts, the district courts shall have original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11.

Chapter 11

"A matter arises under the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010).

2. Arising In Jurisdiction

"A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id.

Matters that "arise under or in Title 11 are deemed to be 'core' proceedings . . ." In re Harris Pine Mills, 44 F.3d 1431, 1435 (9th Cir. 1995). Title 28, United States Code, section 157(b)(2) sets out a non-exclusive list of core proceedings, including "matters concerning the administration of the estate," "allowance or disallowance of claims," "objections to discharges," "motions to terminate, annul, or modify the automatic stay," and "confirmation of plans." Bankruptcy courts have the authority to hear and enter final judgments in "all core proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in a case under title 11 . . ." 28 U.S.C. § 157\(b\)\(1\); Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 475-76, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 2604, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011).

3. Related to Jurisdiction

Bankruptcy courts also have jurisdiction over proceedings that are "related to" a bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); In re Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d 1189, 1193 (9th Cir. 2005). A proceeding is "related to" a bankruptcy case if:

[T]he outcome of the proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. Thus, the proceeding need not necessarily be against the debtor or against the debtor's property. An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate.

Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d at 1193 (quoting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984) (emphasis omitted)).

Chapter 11

Here, none of the parties contend that this Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over this proceeding. Under the authorities above, and in reviewing the FAC and the Cross-Complaint, the Court has "related to" jurisdiction over this matter. Both the FAC and the Cross-Complaint assert several causes of action against Debtor. In addition, because Plaintiff requests rescission of the sale agreement through which Plaintiff sold the Huntington Property to Debtor, resolution of this proceeding impacts whether the Huntington Property will remain property of the estate. Consequently, this Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action.

B. Waiver of Right to Remove

In Plaintiff's Brief, Plaintiff contends that United waived its right to remove this proceeding by filing pleadings in state court. Plaintiff cites Yusefzadeh v. Nelson, Mullins, Riley & Scarborough, LLP, 365 F.3d 1244 (11th Cir. 2004), as support for her proposition. However, Yusefzadeh applied to removals under 28 U.S.C. § 1446(a), not 28 U.S.C. § 1452(a). Yusefzadeh, 365 F.3d at 1246. The Yusefzadeh court referenced 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c) to note that parties may argue that the removing party waived its right to remove an action in connection with a request to remand. Id.

Section 1447(c) explicitly applies to removals under 28 U.S.C. § 1446(a). 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c) ("A motion to remand the case on the basis of any defect other than lack of subject matter jurisdiction must be made within 30 days after the filing of the notice of removal under section 1446(a)." (emphasis added)). Plaintiff has not set forth any authority applying a waiver bar to a removal under § 1452(a). See Shared Network Users Grp., Inc. v. WorldCom Techs., Inc., 309 B.R. 446, 449 (E.D. Pa. 2004) ("Section 1452(b)...has its own provision for preventing dilatory or otherwise unfair conduct on the part of the removing party. While § 1446 has the 30 day rule, § 1452 permits the court to remand on 'any equitable ground.' Thus, § 1452 takes care of the problem of abusive tactics by a removing party in a way different from § 1446.").

In addition, as noted by United, a party "may have the right to remove to federal court where, after it is apparent that the case is removable, the defendant takes actions in state court that manifest his or her intent to have the matter adjudicated there, and to abandon his or her right to a federal forum." Resolution Tr. Corp. v. Bayside Developers, 43 F.3d 1230, 1240 (9th Cir. 1994) (emphasis added).

We have made clear that we will not "charge defendants with notice of removability until [they have] received a paper that gives them enough information to remove." Kuxhausen v. BMW Fin. Servs. NA LLC, 707 F.3d 1136, 1141 (9th Cir. 2013) (quoting Durham v. Lockheed Martin Corp., 445 F.3d 1247, 1251 (9th Cir. 2006)). "[A]s long as the complaint or 'an amended pleading, motion, order or other paper' does not reveal that the case is removable," a defendant, in effect, "may remove at any time." Rea v. Michaels Stores Inc., 742 F.3d 1234, 1238 (9th Cir. 2014) (per curiam) (quoting 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b)(3)).

Kenny v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 881 F.3d 786, 791 (9th Cir. 2018). In Kenny, for instance, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the operative complaint was "indeterminate as to the amount in controversy" and, as a result, the right to remove was not apparent. Id., at 790.

Here, the right to removal under 28 U.S.C. § 1452(a) does not arise until a bankruptcy case is commenced. As such, United could not have waived its rights prior to Debtor's filing of a bankruptcy petition, on June 29, 2020. United removed this proceeding approximately two weeks after the petition date. In those two weeks, the state court docket reflects that United filed only two responsive pleadings; United did not take any other action during that time. As such, to the extent waiver may be used as a bar to removal under 28 U.S.C. § 1452(a), United did not waive its right to remove under the circumstances present in this case.

C. Forum Selection Clause

Plaintiff also asserts that United contractually waived its right to removal because the promissory note executed by Debtor and United includes the following provision—

Choice of Venue. If there is a lawsuit, Borrower agrees, upon Lender's request, to submit to the jurisdiction of the courts of Clark County, State of Nevada.

Notice of Removal, Exhibit 74. However, Plaintiff is neither the borrower nor the lender; as such, Plaintiff does not have standing to enforce any provision in a contract to which she is not a party. Plaintiff has not otherwise stated a legal basis that would allow Plaintiff to enforce a provision in the promissory note. Moreover, the referenced provision explicitly hinges on a request by United; here, United (as well as the Trustee) has requested that this Court adjudicate this proceeding. Thus, United did not contractually waive a right to removal.

D. Equitable Remand

"Bankruptcy courts have broad discretion to remand cases over which they otherwise have jurisdiction on any equitable ground." In re Enron Corp., 296 B.R. 505, 508 (C.D. Cal. 2003). 28 U.S.C. § 1452(b) provides, in pertinent part: "The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground." "[E]ven where federal jurisdiction attaches in actions 'related to' bankruptcy proceedings, Congress has explicitly provided for courts to find that those matters are more properly adjudicated in state court." Parke v. Cardsystem Solutions, Inc., 2006 WL 2917604 (N.D. Cal. October 11, 2006) (quoting Williams v. Shell Oil Co., 169 B.R. 684, 690 (S.D. Cal. 1994)).

Courts generally consider up to fourteen factors in deciding whether to remand a case to state court. Enron, 296 B.R. at 508. Factors courts should consider in deciding whether to remand are:

- (1) the effect or lack thereof on the efficient administration of the estate if the Court recommends [remand or] abstention;
- (2) extent to which state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues;
- (3) difficult or unsettled nature of applicable law;
- (4) presence of related proceeding commenced in state court or other nonbankruptcy proceeding;
- (5) jurisdictional basis, if any, other than [section] 1334;
- (6) degree of relatedness or remoteness of proceeding to main bankruptcy case;
- (7) the substance rather than the form of an asserted core proceeding;
- (8) the feasibility of severing state law claims from core bankruptcy matters to allow judgments to be entered in state court with enforcement left to the bankruptcy court;
- (9) the burden on the bankruptcy court's docket;
- (10) the likelihood that the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy court involves forum shopping by one of the parties;
- (11) the existence of a right to a jury trial;

- (12) the presence in the proceeding of nondebtor parties;
- (13) comity; and
- (14) the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action.

Id., 508 n.2; see also In re Cytodyn of New Mexico, Inc., 374 B.R. 733, 738 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2007).

Here, the factors weigh against remand. First, the impact of this proceeding on administration of the estate is significant. The proceeding will impact whether one of Debtor's critical scheduled assets remains property of the estate, as well as the amount of secured claims encumbering the Huntington Property (and asserted as claims against the estate in general). The Complaint, the Cross-Complaint and United's proposed first amended cross-complaint indicate a high degree of relatedness to the main bankruptcy case. In addition, the causes of action in these pleadings do not appear to be difficult or unsettled.

Moreover, the FAC, the Cross-Complaint and the proposed first amended cross-complaint appear to include both core and noncore claims. Given the intertwining allegations related to all the claims, severing core and noncore claims would not be feasible. Further, while there are nondebtor parties involved, most parties either have not responded to the OSC, or have explicitly consented to entry of a final order and/or a jury trial by this Court. American, the only party other than Plaintiff to file a statement not consenting to a jury trial, subsequently requested the Court keep this case "until final resolution on the merits."

In addition, the state court set trial for August 27, 2021, i.e., approximately one year from this hearing. Rather than prejudice all parties by delaying administration of Debtor's bankruptcy case by (at least) one year, and in comparing this Court's calendar to the state court's trial date, this Court will be able to more quickly adjudicate this matter; in turn, this will allow the Trustee to proceed promptly to administration and distribution of the estate. In light of the parties' comments regarding settlement discussions, a discharge of the OSC also will allow the parties to take advantage of this Court's mediation panel by arranging a global mediation of the issues related to both this adversary proceeding and Debtor's bankruptcy case. Finally, the record does not reflect that United is forum shopping.

Although Plaintiff has not consented to entry of a final order or judgment by this Court, or to a jury trial held by this Court, these concerns are only two factors in assessing whether to remand an action. If the parties eventually require trial, and continue to object to trial being conducted by this Court, the parties may move to withdraw the reference and set trial before the United States District Court (the "District Court"). If Plaintiff does not consent to entry of a final order or judgment by this Court, and the District Court does not withdraw the reference, this Court will issue a report and recommendation to the District Court. Based on the above, the Court will not remand this action to state court.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will not remand this matter to state court.

The Trustee did not participate in the joint status report submitted by Plaintiff, United and American. The Court will continue this status conference to 1:30 p.m. on October 7, 2020. No later than September 23, 2020, all non-defaulted parties must file and serve a joint status report.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. On August 27, 2020, the Court held a hearing on a motion, filed by the Trustee, to convert this case to a chapter 7 case. At that time, the Court issued a ruling granting the motion, and this case has been converted to a chapter 7 case.

#3.00 Status conference re: chapter 11 case

fr. 3/19/20; 4/2/20

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Contrary to the Court's ruling at the chapter 11 case status conference held in April 2020, the debtor did not lodge an order setting a bar date or provide notice of the bar date.

The debtor's only asset is an overencumbered single family residence. Based on a recorded Grant Deed attached to the proof of claim filed by secured creditor Bank of New York Mellon (the beneficiary of a first trust deed encumbering the residence), in April 2006, the debtor received its interest in that real property for consideration of less than $100.00.

The debtor's schedules indicate that the residence has a value of $700,000.00, and the first deed of trust encumbering the residence secures a $1,000,000.00 claim. However, the proof of claim filed by Bank of New York Mellon [Claim 2-1] represents that the amount of the debt secured by the first deed of trust is $1,859,629.60, and that payments have not been made on that claim since March 1, 2009.

Although the debtor allegedly leases its real property, the debtor's monthly operating reports indicate that it has not received any rental income for April 2020 through July 2020 [docs. 50, 55, 56, 57, 58].

Who are the current tenants in the debtor's real property?

Docket 3

Tentative Ruling:

The petitioning creditors did not file proof of timely service of the summons and involuntary petition on the alleged debtor. Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 1010-1—

The court may dismiss an involuntary petition without further notice and hearing if the petitioner fails to (a) prepare a Summons and Notice of Status Conference in an Involuntary Bankruptcy Case on the court-mandated form; (b) at the same time the involuntary petition is filed, submit the Summons and Notice of Status Conference to the clerk for issuance; (c) serve the summons and petition within the time allowed by FRBP 7004; (d) file a proof of service of the summons and petition with the court; or (e) appear at the status conference set by the court.

If the petitioning creditors did not timely serve the summons and the involuntary petition on the alleged debtor, they must request an Alias Summons from the Court. Upon receiving the filing of the request, the Clerk will issue an Alias Summons.

The Alias Summons must be served upon the alleged debtor within 7 days of its issuance by the Court, pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004 and Local Bankr. R. 7004-1(b). The petitioning creditors must attach to the Alias Summons a copy of the involuntary petition.

To demonstrate proper service of the Alias Summons and the involuntary petition, the petitioning creditors must file a signed proof of service indicating that the Alias Summons and the involuntary petition were timely served on the alleged debtor. If the petitioning creditors can obtain an issued Alias Summons from the Court by September 25, 2020, the status conference will be continued to 1:00 p.m. on October 22, 2020.

#7.00 Debtor's application to employ Central Realty Advisors and Fair Realty Inc. as Real Estate Broker

Docket 127

Tentative Ruling:

Approve.

On August 7, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed an application to employ Central Realty Advisors and Fair Realty Inc. as real estate brokers to the estate (the "Application") [doc. 127]. On August 20, 2020, The Sands Law Group, APLC ("Sands Law") filed an opposition to the Application (the "Opposition") [doc. 146]. Sands Law contends that the brokers have not stated that they have experience with bankruptcy. In addition, Sands Law asserts that the brokers should not receive their commission unless they are the "procuring cause" of a sale, and that the brokers have not justified an exclusive listing arrangement or their commission solely for posting the listing on MLS. Finally, Sands Law notes that this case will be converted or dismissed if Debtor does not timely file a plan of reorganization.

Regarding Sands Law's argument that the brokers lack experience with bankruptcy, Sands Law has set forth no authority that requires an estate's real estate professionals to have such experience. In addition, in the Declaration of Ilya Tsipis (the "Tsipis Declaration") [doc. 164], attached to the reply, Mr. Tsipis states that he does have experience with bankruptcy sales. As to Sands Law's argument that Debtor's case will be converted or dismissed if Debtor fails to timely file a chapter 11 plan of reorganization, Debtor timely filed a plan on August 28, 2020 [doc. 156].

The Tsipis Declaration addresses the remaining concerns expressed in the Opposition. These arguments are based on Sands Law's contention that merely listing the subject property on MLS does not constitute enough work to warrant an exclusive listing and the brokers' commission. However, the Tsipis Declaration includes detailed information about the work already done by the brokers to market and sell the subject property, which significantly exceeds simply listing the subject property for sale. As such, the Court will approve the Application.

#8.00 Debtor's motion for order disallowing claim no. 2 filed by The Sands Law Group

Docket 130

Tentative Ruling:

Sustain in part and overrule in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11, subchapter V petition. On June 12, 2020, The Sands Law Group, APLC ("Sands Law") filed proof of claim no. 2, asserting a claim in the amount of $10,500.01 based on "services performed." To the proof of claim, Sands Law attached redacted billing entries.

On August 10, 2020, Debtor filed an objection to Sands Law's claim (the "Objection") [doc. 130], asserting that Sands Law was hired by another attorney, Gina Lisitsa, to assist in certain litigation matters on behalf of Debtor. Debtor contends it paid all obligations owed to Sands Law, and attached evidence of two checks, totaling $750, issued to Sands Law by Debtor. Debtor also contends that it requested that Sands Law provide support for its claim, but did not receive a response.

On August 26, 2020, Sands Law filed an opposition to the Objection (the "Opposition") [doc. 153]. In connection with the Opposition, Sands Law provided a retainer agreement between Sands Law and Debtor (the "Retainer Agreement"). Declaration of Thomas D. Sands ("Sands Declaration"), ¶ 4, Exhibit A. Through the Retainer Agreement, Debtor hired Sands Law to represent Debtor in a state court action. Id. Debtor agreed to pay a flat fee of $250 "per motion/opposition for a court appearance," and $250 per hour for all other work, including "waiting time in court and elsewhere and for travel time, both local and out of town." Id. The Retainer Agreement is signed by Dmitri Lioudkovski on behalf of Debtor. Id. Sands Law also provided unredacted billing entries. Sands Declaration, ¶ 6, Exhibit B.

On September 3, 2020, Debtor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc.

164]. In the Reply, as amended by a subsequent Notice of Errata [doc. 172], Debtor contends it does not oppose Sands Law holding an unsecured claim in the amount of $7,958.34. According to Debtor, Sands Law's claim should be reduced by $750 based on the payments already made by Debtor to Sands Law. In addition, Debtor believes the claim should be reduced by another $1,791.67 because the Retainer Agreement provides for a flat fee of $250 per court appearance, and not for hourly compensation as reflected in the billing entries.

II. ANALYSIS

11 U.S.C. § 502(a) provides that a proof of claim is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest objects. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f) provides that a proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the rules constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim. See also Local Bankruptcy Rule 3007-1(c) ("an objection to claim must be supported by admissible evidence sufficient to overcome the evidentiary effect of a properly documented proof of claim").

"To defeat the claim, the objector must come forward with sufficient evidence and show facts tending to defeat the claim by probative force equal to that of the allegations of the proofs of claim themselves." Lundell v. Anchor Const. Specialists, Inc., 223 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2000) (internal citation omitted). "If the objector produces sufficient evidence to negate one or more of the sworn facts in the proof of claim, the burden reverts to the claimant to prove the validity of the claim by a preponderance of the evidence. The ultimate burden of persuasion remains at all times upon the claimant." Id. (internal citations omitted); In re Laptops Etc. Corp., 164 B.R. 506, 522 (Bankr. D. Md. 1993) (burden shifts to claimant, who has ultimate burden of persuasion as to validity of its claim, only "upon objection to the claim coupled with the admission of probative evidence which tends to sufficiently rebut the prima facie validity of the claim"); see also In re Campbell, 336 B.R. 430, 436 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005) ("[o]bjections without substance are inadequate to disallow claims, even if those claims lack the documentation required by Rule 3001(c).").

Here, through the Reply and Notice of Errata, Debtor agrees to the allowance of a general unsecured claim in favor of Sands Law in the amount of $7,958.34. Rather than object to the claim in full, Debtor now requests a reduction of the claim for two reasons: (A) Debtor already paid $750 to Sands Law; and (B) the Retainer Agreement provides for a flat rate of $250 per court appearance, but Sands Law billed hourly for hearings on September 10, 2019 and October 22, 2019.

Debtor provided evidence of the $750 payment to Sands Law in the Objection. Sands Law did not respond to this evidence. As such, the Court will reduce Sands Law's claim by $750 based on the evidence of payment provided by Debtor, and Sands Law's failure to provide evidence or argument to the contrary.

However, Debtor raised the issues regarding hourly billing for court appearances for the first time in the Reply. The billing entry dated September 10, 2019 states that Sands Law reviewed a "tentative ruling and research and appear[ed] at" a demurrer hearing, and also included a notation stating "Memo file." Sands Declaration, ¶ 6, Exhibit B, p. 4. The billing entry dated October 22, 2019 reads "Case Management Conf to and from." Id., p. 6. The Retainer Agreement provides for hourly billing for "all other work" and "waiting time in court and elsewhere and for travel time." As such, even if the Retainer Agreement limited billing for court appearances to $250 per appearance, it appears Sands Law also billed for "other work" and travel to and from the courthouse on the dates referenced by Debtor. As such, in addition to raising the argument for the first time in the Reply, Debtor has not shown that these amounts should be reduced.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will sustain the Objection in part and overrule the Objection in part, and allow Sands Law's claim in the amount of $9,750.01.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#9.00 Debtor's motion for order disallowing claim no.8 filed by Mike Kemel

Docket 131

Tentative Ruling:

Sustain.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11, subchapter V petition.

On August 4, 2020, Mike Kemel filed proof of claim no. 8 against the estate based on "money loaned." On August 10, 2020, Debtor filed the an objection to the claim (the "Objection") [doc. 131], asserting that Debtor has not engaged in any business dealings with Mr. Kemel, and has no record of any amounts owed to Mr. Kemel.

On August 27, 2020, Mr. Kemel filed an opposition to the Objection (the "Opposition") [doc. 154]. To the Opposition, Mr. Kemel attached a declaration in which he states that [Debtor's principal, Dmitri Lioudkovski] "asked [Mr. Kemel] to loan him... $24,500" and "promised that he would pay me back [immediately] as he was expecting from Russia...." Declaration of Mike Kemel ("Kemel Declaration"), ¶¶ 14-15 (emphases added). Mr. Kemel also stated that he would "never have lent the money to Mr. Lioudkovski if he had known that [Mr. Lioudkovski's] true intention was not to [repay Mr. Kemel]...." Kemel Declaration, ¶ 19 (emphasis added).

Notwithstanding these statements in the declaration, in the Opposition, Mr. Kemel asserts that he lent the money to Debtor. Mr. Kemel did not provide any evidence of a debt owed by Debtor to Mr. Kemel; instead, Mr. Kemel argues that failure to provide documentation in connection with the filing of a proof of claim is not a basis to disallow a claim.

On September 3, 2020, Debtor filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 170], again reiterating that Debtor does not owe any debt to Mr. Kemel, and attaching a declaration by Debtor's principal attesting to the same. Debtor also filed evidentiary objections to the Kemel Declaration [doc. 169].

II. ANALYSIS

11 U.S.C. § 502(a) provides that a proof of claim is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest objects. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f) provides that a proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the rules constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim. See also Local Bankruptcy Rule 3007-1(c) ("an objection to claim must be supported by admissible evidence sufficient to overcome the evidentiary effect of a properly documented proof of claim").

Anchor Const. Specialists, Inc.*, 223 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2000) (internal citation omitted). "If the objector produces sufficient evidence to negate one or more of the sworn facts in the proof of claim, the burden reverts to the claimant to prove the validity of the claim by a preponderance of the evidence. The ultimate burden of persuasion remains at all times upon the claimant." Id. (internal citations omitted); In re Laptops Etc. Corp., 164 B.R. 506, 522 (Bankr. D. In the Opposition, Mr. Kemel references In re Heath, 331 B.R. 424 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005), and asserts that Heath and out-of-circuit cases like Heath stand for the proposition that a claim may not be disallowed based on a lack of documentation. Mr. Kemel misconstrues the holding of Heath. As explained by the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") in Campbell:

We emphasize, as we did in Heath, that a creditor who files a proof of claim that lacks sufficient support under Rule 3001(c) and (f) does so at its own risk. That proof of claim will lack prima facie validity, so any objection that raises a legal or factual ground to disallow the claim will likely prevail absent an adequate response by the creditor. Moreover, a creditor's lack of adequate response to a debtor's formal or informal inquiries "in itself may raise an evidentiary basis to object to the unsupported aspects of the claim, or even a basis for evidentiary sanctions, thereby coming within Section 502(b)'s grounds to disallow the claim." Heath, 331 B.R. at 437 (citations omitted).

Campbell, 336 B.R. at 436 (citing In re Heath, 331 B.R. 424 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005)). In other words, although a lack of documentation alone is insufficient to disallow a claim, if the objecting party raises a substantive issue under 11 U.S.C. § 502(b), the claimant's failure to respond or provide sufficient evidence may lead to disallowance of the claim. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(1), the Court may disallow claim if "such claim is unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law for a reason other than because such claim is contingent or unmatured."

Here, Debtor has substantively challenged the claim by providing a declaration stating that Debtor does not owe any money to Mr. Kemel, has never engaged in business dealings with Mr. Kemel and that a review of Debtor's books and records indicates that no money is owed to Mr. Kemel. As noted in Campbell, Mr. Kemel did not attach any evidence to his proof of claim "at [his] own risk," because the proof of claim lacked prima facie validity. As such, upon Debtor's challenge of the claim, the burden shifted to Mr. Kemel to prove the validity of his claim by a preponderance of the evidence.

Rather than prove his claim, Mr. Kemel provided a declaration in which he states that he loaned Mr. Lioudkosvki money, not Debtor. As such, the only evidence offered by Mr. Kemel, i.e., his declaration, shows that Mr. Kemel may have a claim against another entity. However, even if Mr. Kemel had testified that he entered into a loan transaction with Debtor, Mr. Kemel did not provide any evidence to meet his burden of proof and burden of persuasion. In fact, the Kemel Declaration itself does not include any specific terms indicative of a loan agreement; Mr. Kemel did not provide an interest rate, a maturity date (other than stating the money was due "immediately") or any other provisions of the purported loan agreement. Consequently, the Court will disallow Mr. Kemel's claim.

Tentative Ruling:

Sustain.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11, subchapter V petition. On June 12, 2020, Debtor removed to this Court a state court action styled Ayzenberg v. Lev Investments, LLC, et al. (the "State Court Action") [1:20-ap-01062-VK, doc. 1]. Through the State Court Action, Mariya Ayzenberg sued Debtor and other defendants for financial abuse of an elder, conversion and declaratory relief.

Prepetition, on December 4, 2019, Ms. Ayzenberg, Debtor and Debtor's principal executed a settlement agreement resolving the State Court Action (the "Agreement"). Declaration of Michael Shemtoub [doc. 152], ¶ 9, Exhibit A. In relevant part, the Agreement provides—

Agreement, ¶¶ 12, 18.

During the course of this bankruptcy case and the removed adversary proceeding, Debtor indicated that the purpose of removal was to expunge the lis pendens recorded in connection with the State Court Action. See, e.g. 1:20-ap-01062-VK, doc. 8. On July 10, 2020, Ms. Ayzenberg filed a request to remand the State Court Action [1:20-ap-01062-VK, doc. 7]. After some communication with Ms. Ayzenberg's state court counsel regarding withdrawal of the lis pendens, Debtor eventually verified that Ms. Ayzenberg had withdrawn the lis pendens [1:20-ap-01062-VK, docs. 8, 10]. As such, on July 15, 2020, Debtor filed a notice of non-opposition to remand of the State Court Action [1:20-ap-01062-VK, doc. 10]. In response, the Court entered an order remanding the State Court Action [1:20-ap-01062-VK, doc. 14].

On August 6, 2020, Ms. Ayzenberg filed proof of claim no. 9 against the estate, requesting $35,000 based on a "breach of [the Agreement]." On August 10, 2020, Debtor filed an objection to the claim (the "Objection") [doc. 132], arguing that Ms. Ayzenberg did not set forth a basis for asserting a claim against the estate.

On August 26, 2020, Ms. Ayzenberg filed an opposition to the Objection (the "Opposition") [doc. 152]. In the Opposition, Ms. Ayzenberg contends that her claim is based on attorneys' fees and costs she incurred responding to removal of the State Court Action. Ms. Ayzenberg references paragraph 18 of the Agreement as support. On September 3, 2020, Debtor filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 168], noting that Ms. Ayzenberg was not a prevailing party, and the Agreement does not otherwise provide a basis for recovery of attorneys' fees. Debtor also argues that Ms. Ayzenberg cannot recover from the estate because her claim arose postpetition.

II. ANALYSIS

11 U.S.C. § 502(a) provides that a proof of claim is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest objects. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f) provides that a proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the rules constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim. See also Local Bankruptcy Rule 3007-1(c) ("an objection to claim must be supported by admissible evidence sufficient to overcome the evidentiary effect of a properly documented proof of claim").

"To defeat the claim, the objector must come forward with sufficient evidence and show facts tending to defeat the claim by probative force equal to that of the allegations of the proofs of claim themselves." Lundell v. Anchor Const. Specialists, Inc., 223 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2000) (internal citation omitted). "If the objector produces sufficient evidence to negate one or more of the sworn facts in the proof of claim, the burden reverts to the claimant to prove the validity of the claim by a preponderance of the evidence. The ultimate burden of persuasion remains at all times upon the claimant." Id. (internal citations omitted); In re Laptops Etc. Corp., 164 B.R. 506, 522 (Bankr. D. Md. 1993) (burden shifts to claimant, who has ultimate burden of persuasion as to validity of its claim, only "upon objection to the claim coupled with the admission of probative evidence which tends to sufficiently rebut the prima facie validity of the claim"); see also In re Campbell, 336 B.R. 430, 436 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005) ("[o]bjections without substance are inadequate to disallow claims, even if those claims lack the documentation required by Rule 3001(c).").

Here, Ms. Ayzenberg asserts she is entitled to attorneys' fees incurred in connection with the removal of the State Court Action. However, paragraph 12 of the Agreement provides that each party "shall bear their own attorneys' fees and costs incurred in connection with the Action and in connection with the subject matter of this Agreement." Agreement, ¶ 12. Paragraph 18, on which Ms. Ayzenberg relies, provides for recovery of attorneys' fees only in connection with a "motion, lawsuit or action to interpret or enforce the terms of this Agreement...." Agreement, ¶ 18. Ms. Ayzenberg's request for attorneys' fees incurred disputing the removal of the State Court Action does not involve interpretation or enforcement of the terms of the Agreement; in fact, the Agreement is silent as to the lis pendens. As to other fees or costs incurred in connection with the Action, the parties explicitly agreed to bear their own fees and costs.

Nevertheless, even if paragraph 18 applied to Ms. Ayzenberg's fees and costs incurred seeking remand of the State Court Action, Ms. Ayzenberg was not a prevailing party under California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 1032(a)(4), which provides—

"Prevailing party" includes the party with a net monetary recovery, a defendant in whose favor a dismissal is entered, a defendant where neither plaintiff nor defendant obtains any relief, and a defendant as against those plaintiffs who do not recover any relief against that defendant. If any party recovers other than monetary relief and in situations other than as specified, the "prevailing party" shall be as determined by the court, and under those circumstances, the court, in its discretion, may allow costs or not and, if allowed, may apportion costs between the parties on the same or adverse sides pursuant to rules adopted under Section 1034.

(emphases added). Here, Ms. Ayzenberg does not fall under one of the explicit categories of a "prevailing party." Ms. Ayzenberg did not obtain a net monetary recovery after removal and remand of the State Court Action. In addition, Ms. Ayzenberg is not the defendant, and, as a result, is not entitled to attorneys' fees or costs under the remaining three categories.

Where any other relief is obtained by a party, the Court has discretion to "allow costs or not" or "apportion costs between the parties." CCP § 1032(a)(4) (emphasis added). Here, both Debtor and Ms. Ayzenberg received some form of relief: Debtor obtained a recorded withdrawal of the lis pendens, and Ms. Ayzenberg obtained remand of the State Court Action. As such, to the extent paragraph 18 covers the subject fees and costs, the Court will, in its discretion, order that the parties bear their own fees and costs under CCP § 1032(a)(4). [FN1].

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will sustain the Objection.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. Debtor also argues that, because Ms. Ayzenberg's claim arose postpetition, Ms. Ayzenberg is not entitled to assert a claim against the estate. However, 11 U.S.C. § 1141(d)(1)(A) provides for the discharge of "any debt that arose before the date of... confirmation." (emphasis added). Because the asserted claim arose pre-confirmation, Ms. Ayzenberg's claim may not be

#11.00 Debtor's motion for order disallowing claim no. 11 filed by Kevin Moda

Docket 133

Tentative Ruling:

Sustain.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11, subchapter V petition.

On August 7, 2020, Kevin Moda filed proof of claim no. 11 against the estate based on "arranging funds for purchase of Albers Property." On August 10, 2020, Debtor filed an objection to the claim (the "Objection") [doc. 133], asserting that Debtor has not engaged in any business dealings with Mr. Moda, and has no record of any amounts owed to Mr. Moda.

On September 2, 2020, Mr. Moda filed an untimely declaration in opposition to the Objection (the "Declaration") [doc. 163]. In the Declaration, Mr. Moda states—[Debtor] didn't ask for the money. [Debtor's principal, Dmitri Lioudkouski] did.

Lioudkouski owes the money. It is the deal that was struck.

Declaration, ¶¶ 6-7. On September 3, 2020, Debtor filed a reply and motion to strike the untimely Declaration [doc. 166].

II. ANALYSIS

11 U.S.C. § 502(a) provides that a proof of claim is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest objects. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f) provides that a proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the rules constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim. See also Local Bankruptcy Rule 3007-1(c) ("an objection to claim must be supported by admissible evidence sufficient to overcome the evidentiary effect of a properly documented proof of claim").

"To defeat the claim, the objector must come forward with sufficient evidence and show facts tending to defeat the claim by probative force equal to that of the allegations of the proofs of claim themselves." Lundell v. Anchor Const. Specialists, Inc., 223 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2000) (internal citation omitted). "If the objector produces sufficient evidence to negate one or more of the sworn facts in the proof of claim, the burden reverts to the claimant to prove the validity of the claim by a preponderance of the evidence. The ultimate burden of persuasion remains at all times upon the claimant." Id. (internal citations omitted); In re Laptops Etc. Corp., 164 B.R. 506, 522 (Bankr. D. Md. 1993) (burden shifts to claimant, who has ultimate burden of persuasion as to validity of its claim, only "upon objection to the claim coupled with the admission of probative evidence which tends to sufficiently rebut the prima facie validity of the claim"); see also In re Campbell, 336 B.R. 430, 436 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005) ("[o]bjections without substance are inadequate to disallow claims, even if those claims lack the documentation required by Rule 3001(c).").

Here, even if the Court considers the untimely Declaration, Mr. Moda admits that Debtor is not the obligor on the debt. As such, Mr. Moda has shown that he does not have a claim against this estate, and the Court will disallow the claim in full. Because the Court assessed the Declaration in reaching the decision to sustain the Objection, the Court will deny Debtor's request to strike the Declaration.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will sustain the Objection and deny the request to strike the Declaration.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#25.00 Trustee's motion for order authorizing use of estate property under 11 USC § 363 to participate in LLC appraisal process

Docket 103

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On August 1, 2016, Mohsen Loghmani ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David K. Gottlieb was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On November 5, 2018, Debtor filed amended schedules and statements [doc. 87]. In his schedule A/B, Debtor indicated that he did not have any interest in corporations, limited liability companies, partnerships or joint ventures. On March 5, 2020, the Trustee filed a report of no distribution. On March 18, 2020, Debtor's bankruptcy case was closed.

On June 18, 2020, the Trustee received a letter from Barry L. Cohen regarding Debtor's undisclosed membership interest in Huntley Broadlawn, LLC (the "LLC"), which owns and operates a preschool. Declaration of David K. Gottlieb ("Gottlieb Declaration") [doc. 103], ¶ 18. According to Mr. Cohen, the LLC's members are: (i) Sandra Juanita Ellis, with a 25% membership interest; (ii) Angela Ellis, with a 25% membership interest (together with Sandra Juanita Ellis, the "Ellis Members"); and (iii) Debtor, with the remaining 50% interest. Gottlieb Declaration, ¶ 19, Exhibit 5. The Ellis Members wish to purchase the estate's interest in the LLC in accordance with the LLC's Operating Agreement. Gottlieb Declaration, ¶ 20. In relevant part, the Operating Agreement provides—

- (1) the Transfer may be accomplished without registration, or similar process, under federal and securities laws;
 - (2) the transferee delivers to the Company a written agreement to be bound by Article VI;
 - (3) the Transfer will not result in the termination of the Company pursuant to IRC Section 708;

The Transfer of an Economic Interest pursuant to this Section 6.1 shall not result in the Transfer of any of the transferor's other Membership rights. Operating Agreement, pp. 10-11, 16. The Operating Agreement defines "Economic Interest" as

... a person's right to share in the income, gains, losses, deductions, credit, or similar items of, and to receive Distributions from, the Company, but does not include any other rights of a Member including, without limitation, the right to vote or to participate in management, or any right to information concerning the business and affairs of the Company.

Operating Agreement, p. 3. On August 3, 2020, the U.S. Trustee filed a motion to reopen Debtor's bankruptcy case and direct the appointment of a chapter 7 trustee to investigate Debtor's interest in the LLC (the "Motion to Reopen") [doc. 98]. On August 11, 2020, the Court entered an order granting the Motion to Reopen [doc. 100].

On August 20, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion for an order authorizing use of the estate's interest in the LLC (the "Motion") [doc. 103]. On September 2, 2020, Debtor filed an objection to the Motion (the "Objection") [docs. 111, 117]. In the Objection, Debtor argues that the estate does not have an interest in the LLC. According to Debtor, on January 3, 2011, Debtor verbally transferred his interest to his son, Matthew Loghmani ("Matthew").

As evidence, Debtor provided certain tax returns filed on behalf of the LLC, which are signed by Matthew, as well as a loan application signed by Matthew. Declaration of Mohsen Loghmani ("Loghmani Declaration") [doc. 117], ¶¶ 10-11, Exhibits A-B. Debtor also provided an unsigned amended operating agreement, which identified Mathew as a 50% member of the LLC. Loghmani Declaration, ¶ 12, Exhibit C. Finally, Debtor provided an unsigned declaration by Matthew, purporting to authenticate a Statement of Decision that is not attached to any of Debtor's filed pleadings.

On September 3, 2020, the Trustee filed a reply to the Objection [doc. 112], asserting that Debtor failed to provide any legal or evidentiary support for his argument that Matthew owns the 50% membership interest in the LLC. In addition, the Trustee contends that any verbal transfer to Matthew would be ineffective under the Operating Agreement. The Trustee also provided a declaration by Angela Ellis, who provided evidence that Debtor participated in management of the LLC years after the purported transfer to Matthew, such as signing loan modification documents and writing checks on behalf of the LLC. Declaration of Angela Ellis, ¶¶ 13-15, 19, 21-25, Exhibits 3-4, 7, 8-12.

II. ANALYSIS

As a preliminary matter, Debtor essentially filed an opposition on behalf of a third party. Debtor is not an attorney; therefore, Debtor does not have standing to represent Matthew's purported interest in the LLC. The sole declaration by Matthew is unsigned and does not attest to any of the pertinent facts from the Objection. As such, the Court may strike the Objection on these bases alone.

However, even if the Court considers the Objection, Debtor has not shown that the estate does not have an interest in 50% of the LLC. Pursuant to Cal. Corp. Code § 17701.10(a)—

Except as otherwise provided in this section, the operating agreement governs all of the following:

- (1) Relations among the members as members and between the members and the limited liability company.

- (2) The rights and duties under this title of a person in the capacity of manager.

(3) The activities of the limited liability company and the conduct of those activities.

(4) The means and conditions for amending the operating agreement.

In addition, under Cal. Corp. Code § 17705.02(f), "[a] transfer of a transferable interest in violation of a restriction on transfer contained in the operating agreement is ineffective as to a person having notice of the restriction at the time of transfer."

Here, the Operating Agreement limits members' ability to transfer their membership interest; pursuant to Section 6.1 of the Operating Agreement, members may transfer only their economic interest. As a result, any attempt by Debtor to transfer any other interest, such as the right to vote or participate in management, would be null and void under the Operating Agreement. As such, the estate would own these non-economic interests - even if Debtor otherwise legitimately transferred his economic interest to Matthew.

As to the economic interest, the Operating Agreement sets forth five requirements to effectuate a transfer, including that the transferee deliver a written agreement to be bound by Article VI of the Operating Agreement, and that the transferor or transferee deliver tax information to the LLC. Debtor did not provide any evidence that Debtor and/or Matthew complied with these requirements.

The purported amended Operating Agreement provided by Debtor is not signed by any of the members of the LLC. In addition, to amend the Operating Agreement, all members of the LLC must provide their written consent. Operating Agreement, p. 16. There is no evidence that any member consented, in writing, to amending the Operating Agreement.

The additional evidence provided by Debtor does not establish that Matthew, as opposed to Debtor, is the owner of the 50% membership interest at issue. The declaration by Matthew is neither signed nor relevant to the question of ownership of the 50% interest. In addition, signing tax returns on behalf of the LLC does not result in transfer of a member's interest in the LLC where the Operating Agreement includes explicit instructions and/or prohibitions regarding transfers of membership interests. Finally, the Trustee provided evidence that Debtor participated in management of the

LLC after the purported transfer to Matthew; to the extent Debtor argues that taking action on behalf of the LLC translates to a membership interest in the LLC, Debtor himself repeatedly took such action after the alleged transfer to Matthew. Consequently, even if Debtor had standing to object on behalf of Matthew, Debtor has not shown that Matthew has any interest in the LLC.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Tentative ruling regarding the evidentiary objections to the identified paragraphs in the Declarations set forth below:

Trustee's Evidentiary Objections to the Declaration of Mohsen Loghmani

paras. 8: overrule

paras. 5-7, 9, 10-11: sustain

Trustee's Evidentiary Objections to the Declaration of Matthew Loghmani

The Court will sustain the objection to the entire declaration on the basis that the declaration is not signed by Matthew Loghmani. 28 U.S.C. § 1746.

Docket 43

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(2).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to foreclose upon and obtain possession of the property.

The co-debtor stay of 11 U.S.C. § 1201(a) and § 1301(a) is terminated, modified or annulled as to the co-debtor, on the same terms and conditions as to the debtor.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

#10.00 Motion for turnover of debtor's real property

Docket 38

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 26, 2018, Antoine R. Chamoun ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David Seror was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On November 29, 2018, Debtor filed his latest amended schedules and statements [doc. 23]. In his schedule A/B, Debtor identified a fee simple interest in the real property located at 1706 Empty Saddle Road, Simi Valley, CA 93063 (the "Empty Saddle Property"). In his schedule G, Debtor identified a five year lease between Debtor and Patricia Chamoun, through which Ms. Chamoun rents the Empty Saddle Property (the "Lease").

On September 16, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Walid R. Chamoun and Patricia Chamoun (together, "Defendants"), initiating this adversary proceeding. On August 5, 2020, the Trustee filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 27]. As to Ms. Chamoun, the Trustee alleges that Ms. Chamoun made only four rent payments in accordance with the Lease, and has been residing rent-free in the Empty Saddle Property. As such, the Trustee asserts causes of action for breach of contract, turnover and unjust enrichment. The Trustee also requests that the Lease be avoided as a fraudulent transfer.

On August 26, 2020, Defendants filed an answer to the FAC (the "Answer") [doc. 40]. Aside from denying certain allegations in the FAC, Defendants asserted five affirmative defenses and requested a jury trial. Regarding the Lease, among other things, Ms. Chamoun contends that she has made all of the rent payments to Debtor, in accordance with the Landlord's directions under the Lease, and that the Trustee did not direct her to do otherwise.

Chapter 7

On August 25, 2020, the Trustee filed the Motion [doc. 38]. In the Motion, the Trustee asserts that, contrary to the Lease, Ms. Chamoun has not allowed the Trustee or his agents access to the Empty Saddle Property, and refuses to sign the Coronavirus Property Entry Advisory and Declaration (the "Coronavirus Declaration"). Declaration of Robyn Sokol ("Sokol Declaration") [doc. 38], ¶ 4, Exhibit 2. Attached to the Coronavirus Declaration are property access guidelines, which provide that, prior to entering a property, individuals should adhere to the following—

- No person may visit the property if they are exhibiting any COVID-19 symptoms.
- Wash hands with soap and water or use hand sanitizer before entering and after exiting the property.
- Wear rubber gloves, protective face mask, and protective shoe covering; discard after viewing.
- Do not touch your eyes, nose, or mouth. Do not touch surfaces or items in the property; if you believe it necessary to touch surfaces or items, consider the risk of doing so. Surfaces may not have been cleaned or disinfected prior to entry.
- No more than two visitors from the same household and one agent inside a structure at a time; practice social distancing at least 6 feet apart from others.

In addition, attached to the Coronavirus Declaration also is a more detailed "Best Practices Guidelines and Prevention Plan for Showings." Id. The Trustee also references the Lease, which provides—

Tenant shall make Premises available to Landlord or Landlord's representative for the purpose of entering to make necessary or agreed repairs, decorations, alterations, or improvements, or to supply necessary or agreed services, or to show Premises to prospective or actual purchasers, tenants, mortgagees, lenders, appraisers, or contractors.

Sokol Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit 1. In light of Ms. Chamoun's failure to sign the Coronavirus Declaration and allow access to the Empty Saddle Property, the Trustee requests an order that Ms. Chamoun vacate the Empty Saddle Property.

On September 2, 2020, Ms. Chamoun filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 30]. In the Opposition, Ms. Chamoun asserts that the Trustee is utilizing a motion for turnover as a loophole to prosecuting the adversary proceeding. Ms. Chamoun also states that she provided alternative suggestions to entry of the empty Saddle Property; as such, it appears Ms. Chamoun does not dispute that the Trustee and/or his agents may enter the Empty Saddle Property for the purpose of marketing, but instead requests additional protections.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Turnover of Empty Saddle Property

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 542—

- (a) Except as provided in subsection (c) or (d) of this section, an entity, other than a custodian, in possession, custody, or control, during the case, of property that the trustee may use, sell, or lease under section 363 of this title, or that the debtor may exempt under 522 of this title, shall deliver to the trustee, and account for, such property or the value of such property, unless such property is of inconsequential value or benefit to the estate.

Under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7001(1), an adversary proceeding is required "to recover money or property, other than a proceeding to compel the debtor to delivery property to the trustee...." (emphasis added). "A turnover proceeding is not intended as a remedy to determine the disputed rights of parties to property...." In re Century City Doctors Hosp., LLC, 466 B.R. 1, 19 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2012) (internal quotation omitted); see also In re Gurga, 176 B.R. 196, 199 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994) ("[T]urnover proceedings involve return of undisputed funds.") (emphasis in Gurga).

"In order to maintain a motion for turnover, the burden of proof is upon the party seeking the turnover." In re Bloom, 91 B.R. 445, 446 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1988); see also Maggio v. Zeitz, 333 U.S. 56, 64 (1948) (stating that turnover orders must be supported by clear and convincing evidence).

Here, the Trustee must prosecute an adversary proceeding to obtain turnover from nondebtor parties, such as Ms. Chamoun. Although the Trustee has commenced an adversary proceeding, filing a motion for turnover within that adversary proceeding is not a legitimate vehicle for obtaining a judgment for turnover. The Trustee must employ available tools of litigation, such as filing a motion for summary judgment, requesting injunctive relief or proceeding to trial. The Court may deny the Motion on this basis alone.

In addition, turnover motions are not appropriate where property rights are in dispute. While there is no dispute that the Empty Saddle Property is property of the estate, Ms. Chamoun has asserted a leasehold interest in the Empty Saddle Property. In the Answer, Ms. Chamoun denies many of the Trustee's allegations and raises several affirmative defenses. Given the disputed claim of turnover in the FAC, and prior to any adjudication of the claims in the FAC, the request for turnover is premature.

B. Access to Empty Saddle Property

In the Opposition, it appears Ms. Chamoun is not opposed to allowing the Trustee and/or his agent limited access to the Empty Saddle Property. Given that the Lease requires Ms. Chamoun to make the Empty Saddle Property available to the Trustee and/or the Trustee's representatives for the purpose of showing the Empty Saddle Property to prospective purchasers, and because the Trustee has provided detailed best practices and guidelines to protect from the risk of COVID-19, Ms. Chamoun should be prepared to discuss, with specificity, any additional protections she believes are necessary and why. Otherwise, the Court may set dates and deadlines for the Trustee to request injunctive relief to obtain sufficient access to the Property, in accordance with the Lease.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion. The parties should be prepared to discuss procedures for the Trustee and/or his agents to access and market the Empty Saddle Property.

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Having reviewed the parties' supplemental briefs, and because the proofs of claim filed by Lisitsa Law, Inc. and Mike Kemel do not impact the Court's prior analysis, the Court will adopt its tentative ruling from the hearing on August 12, 2020, based on the analysis set forth below:

The Court will sever the claims and remand this action in part.

I. BACKGROUND

A. The State Court Complaint

On June 20, 2019, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a complaint in state court against Michael Leizerovitz, Sensible Consulting and Management, Inc. ("Sensible Consulting"), Ruvin Feygenberg and Ming Zhu, LLC ("Ming Zhu"), initiating this lawsuit (the "State Court Action"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 1. The defendants filed demurrers to the complaint. Id. After hearings on the demurrers, the state court sustained the demurrers with leave to amend. Id.

On September 27, 2019, Debtor filed a first amended complaint (the "Complaint"). Id. Through the Complaint, Debtor asserted claims for breach of implied covenant against encumbrances, quiet title, usury and declaratory relief. Id. In relevant part, Debtor alleged—

On January 31, 2019, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz signed a grant deed transferring the real property located at 13854 Albers Street, Sherman Oaks, CA 91401 (the "Albers Property") to Debtor. Mr. Feygenberg and Sensible Consulting provided a loan secured by the Albers Property. Pursuant to the loan agreement, the interest rate amounted to 23% per annum. Mr. Feygenberg then assigned his interest in the deed of trust to Sensible Consulting.

At the time Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz executed the grant deed, they covenanted that the Albers Property was free of liens and encumbrances. However, the Albers Property was encumbered by taxes and a judgment in favor of Ming Zhu. Debtor requests a judgment that it is the owner in fee simple of the Albers Property and that Defendants do not have an interest in the Albers Property.

Id.

On October 24, 2019, Ming Zhu filed a demurrer to the Complaint, and on November 1, 2019, Mr. Leizerovitz, Mr. Feygenberg and Sensible ("Defendants") filed their demurrer to the Complaint. Id. On February 18, 2020, the state court held hearings on the demurrers. Id. At that time, the state court sustained Ming Zhu's demurrer without leave to amend, dismissing Ming Zhu from this action. Id. The state court also dismissed the quiet title cause of action without leave to amend. Id. As to Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz, the state court dismissed the usury and declaratory relief causes of action without leave to amend, but overruled the demurrer as to the breach of implied covenant against encumbrances claim. Id. Finally, as to Sensible, the state court overruled the demurrer as to the breach of implied covenant and usury claims, sustained the demurrer as to the quiet title claim without leave to amend and sustained the demurrer as to the declaratory relief claim with leave to amend. Id.

B. The Cross-Complaint

On March 20, 2020, Defendants filed an answer to the Complaint. Id. Concurrently, Defendants filed a cross-complaint (the "Cross-Complaint") against Debtor, Dmitri Liudkovski, Yevgeniya Lisitsa and Lisitsa Law, Inc. (the "Lisitsa Parties") and Real Property Trustee, Inc. ("RPT") and Mike Kemel (the "RPT Parties"). Id. In the Cross-Complaint, Defendants asserted causes of action for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, concealment, indemnity, declaratory relief, quiet title, cancellation of instruments, wrongful foreclosure and declaratory relief. Id.

In December 2018, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz entered into an agreement with Debtor for Debtor's acquisition of the Albers Property. The parties planned to purchase a defaulted promissory note secured by a first position deed of trust (the "Note" and the "DOT"), which was in the process of foreclosure. The parties planned to complete the non-judicial foreclosure for Debtor to obtain title to the Albers Property.

Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz acted as lenders secured by the Albers Property. Ms. Lisitsa and Lisitsa Law acted as counsel for all parties to the agreement. Pursuant to the agreement, Debtor was to contribute $1,022,500 towards the purchase of the Note and the DOT. However, unbeknownst to Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz, Mr. Lioudkovski made secret deals with others to obtain the funds Debtor needed to purchase the Note and the DOT and promised the secret lenders first position deeds of trust. Ms. Lisitsa was aware of the secret loans, and cross-complainants believe one of the secret lenders is a relative of Ms. Lisitsa.

On December 31, 2018, Debtor, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz acquired the Note and the DOT. On January 30, 2019, after Ms. Lisitsa represented these parties in litigation against the owner of the Albers Property, the foreclosure sale occurred. Despite the agreement that only Debtor would take title to the Albers Property, the foreclosure trustee, under the direction of Debtor and Mr. Lioudkovski, issued a Trustee's Deed naming Debtor, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz as owners. One day later, Ms. Lisitsa prepared a grant deed to divest Mr. Feygenberg's and Mr. Leizerovitz's interest in the Albers Property, and a deed of trust in favor of Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz. However, Ms. Lisitsa, acting in concert with Debtor and Mr. Lioudkovski, did not record these documents until March 22, 2019, after multiple demands from cross-complainants.

In early March 2019, Debtor, acting through Ms. Lisitsa, asked the cross-complainants to provide a pay-off demand. Debtor also informed the cross-complainants that there was a problem because there was a judgment lien against Mr. Feygenberg; however, the problem would not have arisen had Mr. Feygenberg never been placed on title to the Albers Property.

Debtor failed to contribute the $1,022,500 of its own funds and, as a result, breached the agreement between the parties. Debtor, Mr. Lioudkovski and the Lisitsa Parties also breached fiduciary duties owed to Defendants by concealing the secret loans, and these parties should indemnify Defendants for any costs incurred litigating the secret loans.

In addition to these allegations regarding the Albers Property, Mr. Leizerovitz also asserted causes of action for quiet title, cancellation of instruments, wrongful foreclosure and injunctive relief based on the following allegations regarding a different transaction—

Coachella Vineyard Luxury RV Park, LLC ("RV") owned vacant land in Coachella, California (the "RV Property"). Prior to July 2018, Mr. Leizerovitz held deeds of trust encumbering the RV Property. Mr. Leizerovitz agreed to release his deed of trust to allow RV to obtain new financing for development of the RV Property. The new financing included a loan, made by Debtor on July 31, 2018, in the principal amount of $2 million. This loan was secured by a first position deed of trust against the RV Property.

In return for releasing his deeds of trust, Mr. Leizerovitz received an unsecured promissory note in the amount of $400,000 and a promissory note secured by a deed of trust against the RV Property in the amount of $500,000. In February 2019, RV agreed that the unsecured note would be secured by the RV Property as an extension of credit. Additionally, Mr. Leizerovitz agreed to provide RV with another $50,000 loan secured by the deed trust. As such, the deed of trust in favor of Mr. Leizerovitz totaled $950,000 as a third position lien.

On June 17, 2019, Debtor declared its loan in default. The Notice of Default was prepared by RPT and Mr. Kemel and was in the amount of $2,450,244.27. On September 19, 2019, Debtor recorded a Notice of Sale set for October 15, 2019. RV then filed a lawsuit against Debtor in state court. The state court allowed a foreclosure, but reduced Debtor's demand amount.

Mr. Leizerovitz was interested in acquiring the RV Property through the foreclosure. However, on November 12, 2019, Mr. Leizerovitz learned that the RPT Parties conducted the foreclosure for Debtor on November 7, 2019, in violation of California Civil Code § 2924g(d); Mr. Leizerovitz was denied the opportunity to attend the foreclosure and purchase the RV Property. In addition, Debtor credit bid $2.5 million, an amount in excess of the amount allowed by the state court.

RV demanded that the foreclosure be set aside, but cross-defendants have failed to cancel the Trustee's Deed or confirm RV's title to the RV Property, which would restore Mr. Leizerovitz's secured interest in the RV Property.

C. Miscellaneous State Court Matters

On January 19, 2020, while litigating the State Court Action, Defendants filed a complaint against the Lisitsa Parties for legal malpractice (the "Malpractice Action"). Request for Judicial Notice [doc. 23], Exhibit C. The Malpractice Action involves the Lisitsa Parties' representation of Defendants in connection with the real property transactions outlined above.

On May 8, 2020, the RPT Parties filed a declaration of non-monetary status, asserting that they were sued solely in their capacity as trustee, and not because of wrongful acts or omissions on their part. Id. On May 22, 2020, the state court held a hearing and issued a ruling requiring the RPT Parties to participate in the lawsuit.

On May 15, 2020, Defendants filed a Notice of Related Case in the State Court Action, referencing the Malpractice Action. Id. On May 22, 2020, Debtor and Mr.

RJN, Exhibit A.

D. Debtor's Bankruptcy Case and the Removal

On June 1, 2020, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On June 26, 2020, Defendants removed the state court action to this Court.

On July 20, 2020, Ms. Lisitsa and Lisitsa Law filed a notice of appearance and request for jury trial [doc. 12]. On July 23, 2020, RPT and Mr. Kemel filed a statement under FRBP 9027(e)(3) indicating they do not consent to entry of a final order or judgment by this Court [doc. 15]. On the same day, RPT and Mr. Kemel filed a demand for a jury trial [doc. 16].

On July 24, 2020, RPT and Mr. Kemel filed a brief requesting remand of this action [doc. 18]. RPT and Mr. Kemel also provided the docket from the state court action, which reflects several upcoming hearings calendared before the state court. On the same day, Ms. Lisitsa and Lisitsa Law filed their brief requesting remand of this action [doc. 21]. On July 29, 2020, Defendants filed a brief opposing remand ("Defendants' Brief") [doc. 24]. On July 29, 2020, Debtor filed a joinder to Defendants' Brief [doc. 27].

II. ANALYSIS

A. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Removal of state court actions to federal district court is governed by 28 U.S.C. §§ 1441 – 1455. Removal and remand of actions related to bankruptcy cases is governed by § 1452.

- (a) A party may remove any claim or cause of action in a civil action . . . to the district court for the district where such civil action is pending, if such district court has jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under section 1334 of this title.

- (b) The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground. . . .

28 U.S.C. § 1452.

The party seeking removal bears the burden of establishing federal jurisdiction. Id. As set forth in § 1452, removal to a bankruptcy court requires that the court have jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under 28 U.S.C. § 1334. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b), with regard to bankruptcy cases and proceedings, provides that:

Except as provided by subsection (e)(2) and notwithstanding any Act of Congress that confers exclusive jurisdiction on a court or courts other than the district courts, the district courts shall have original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11.

1. Arising Under Jurisdiction

"A matter arises under the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010).

2. Arising In Jurisdiction

"A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id.

Matters that "arise under or in Title 11 are deemed to be 'core' proceedings" In re Harris Pine Mills, 44 F.3d 1431, 1435 (9th Cir. 1995). Title 28, United States Code, section 157(b)(2) sets out a non-exclusive list of core proceedings, including "matters concerning the administration of the estate," "allowance or disallowance of claims," "objections to discharges," "motions to terminate, annul, or modify the automatic stay," and "confirmation of plans." Bankruptcy courts have the authority to hear and enter final judgments in "all core proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in a case under title 11" 28 U.S.C. § 157\(b\)\(1\); Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 475-76, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 2604, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011).

3. Related to Jurisdiction

Bankruptcy courts also have jurisdiction over proceedings that are "related to" a bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); In re Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d 1189, 1193 (9th Cir. 2005). A proceeding is "related to" a bankruptcy case if:

[T]he outcome of the proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. Thus, the proceeding need not necessarily be against the debtor or against the debtor's property. An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate.

Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d at 1193 (quoting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984) (emphasis omitted)).

"[C]ivil proceedings are not within 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b)'s grant of jurisdiction if they... 'are so tangential to the title 11 case or the result of which would have so little impact on the administration of the title 11 case... Put another way, litigation that would not have an impact upon the administration of the bankruptcy case, or on property of the estate, or on the distribution to creditors, cannot find a home in the district court based on the court's bankruptcy jurisdiction.'" In re Wisdom, 2015 WL 2128830, at *10 (Bankr. D. Idaho May 5, 2015) (quoting 1 Collier on Bankruptcy, ¶ 3.01[3][e][v] (Alan N. Resnick & Henry J. Sommer eds., 16th ed. 2014)).

Here, the Court does not have "arising under" jurisdiction because none of the claims asserted by any of the parties involve a provision of the Bankruptcy Code. In addition, the Court lacks "arising in" jurisdiction because the causes of action in the Complaint and Cross-Complaint are not unique to bankruptcy and do not depend on the existence of a bankruptcy case.

However, the Court has "related to" subject matter jurisdiction over the Complaint and the Cross-Complaint. Both pleadings involve claims by or against Debtor, which may impact Debtor's assets and liabilities. In addition, the pleadings involve assets of the estate, such as the Albers Property and Debtor's interest in the RV Property. Nevertheless, as discussed below, the Court will remand part of this matter to state court.

B. Remand

"Bankruptcy courts have broad discretion to remand cases over which they otherwise have jurisdiction on any equitable ground." In re Enron Corp., 296 B.R. 505, 508 (C.D. Cal. 2003). 28 U.S.C. § 1452(b) provides, in pertinent part: "The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground." "[E]ven where federal jurisdiction attaches in actions 'related to' bankruptcy proceedings, Congress has explicitly provided for courts to find that those matters are more properly adjudicated in state court." Parke v. Cardsystem Solutions, Inc., 2006 WL 2917604 (N.D. Cal. October 11, 2006) (quoting Williams v. Shell Oil Co., 169 B.R. 684, 690 (S.D. Cal. 1994)).

Courts generally consider up to fourteen factors in deciding whether to remand a case to state court. Enron, 296 B.R. at 508. Factors courts should consider in deciding whether to remand are:

- (1) the effect or lack thereof on the efficient administration of the estate if the Court recommends [remand or] abstention;
- (2) extent to which state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues;
- (3) difficult or unsettled nature of applicable law;
- (4) presence of related proceeding commenced in state court or other nonbankruptcy proceeding;
- (5) jurisdictional basis, if any, other than [section] 1334;
- (6) degree of relatedness or remoteness of proceeding to main bankruptcy case;
- (7) the substance rather than the form of an asserted core proceeding;
- (8) the feasibility of severing state law claims from core bankruptcy matters to allow judgments to be entered in state court with enforcement left to the bankruptcy court;
- (9) the burden on the bankruptcy court's docket;
- (10) the likelihood that the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy court involves forum shopping by one of the parties;

- (11) the existence of a right to a jury trial;
- (12) the presence in the proceeding of nondebtor parties;
- (13) comity; and
- (14) the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action.

Id., 508 n.2; see also In re Cytodyn of New Mexico, Inc., 374 B.R. 733, 738 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2007).

Here, the Court will sever the claims and remand this matter in part. The Court will not remand the remaining claims in the Complaint, or the claims in the Cross-Complaint asserted against Debtor and relating to the Albers Property (the "Albers Claims"). The Court will remand all of the claims against the Lisitsa Parties (the "Lisitsa Claims"), and all of the claims involving the RV Property (including against Debtor) to state court (the "RV Claims").

As to the Albers Claims, Defendants and Debtor consent to entry of a final order by this Court. As such, the Court will be able to adjudicate these claims in a prompt fashion. In addition, the Albers Claims may impact the sale of the Albers Property and the amount to be distributed from any such sale. To prevent significant delays related to administration of the Albers Property, and because the Court may adjudicate related issues in the FR LLC v. Lev Investments, LLC et al. proceeding (the "FR Proceeding") [1:20-ap-01060-VK], the Court will not remand the Albers Claims to state court.

However, the Court will remand the Lisitsa Claims and the RV Claims to state court. [FN1]. Unlike Debtor and Defendants, the Lisitsa Parties and RPT Parties do not consent to entry of a final order or judgment by this Court. While some of these claims may be statutorily "core," Defendants have not shown that any of the claims are constitutionally core under Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011). Thus, if the Court did not remand these claims, the Court would have to submit a Report and Recommendation to the District Court, delaying final resolution of these claims.

In addition, both the Lisitsa Parties and RPT Parties have demanded a jury trial. While the demands are not timely under Local Bankruptcy Rule 9027-1(e), denying the Lisitsa Parties' and RPT Parties' request for remand would prejudice these parties because they would not be deprived of a jury trial before the state court. Moreover, the Lisitsa Claims and the RV Claims involve exclusively California law, including claims not commonly litigated in bankruptcy court. Defendants also filed a Notice of Related Action before the state court, acknowledging that the Malpractice Action as a related proceeding. Further, there is no jurisdictional basis over the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims other than 28 U.S.C. § 1334. [FN2].

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will remand the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims to state court. The Court will not remand the Albers Claims. The Court will prepare that order.

Defendants and Debtor must be prepared to discuss the following dates and deadlines:

Within seven (7) days after this status conference, Debtor must submit an Order Assigning Matter to Mediation Program and Appointing Mediator and Alternate Mediator using Form 702. During the status conference, Debtor and Defendants must inform the Court of their choice of Mediator and Alternate Mediator. Debtor and Defendants should contact their mediator candidates before the status conference to determine if their candidates can accommodate the deadlines set forth below.

Deadline to complete discovery: 11/30/20.

Deadline to complete one day of mediation: 12/18/20.

Deadline to file pretrial motions: 1/15/21.

Deadline to complete and submit pretrial stipulation in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1: 2/3/21.

Pretrial: 2/17/21 at 1:30 p.m.

In accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a)(3), within seven (7) days after this hearing, Debtor must submit a Scheduling Order. Within seven (7) days after this hearing, Debtor also must submit an order conforming to the ruling above. If any of these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

FOOTNOTES

1. The RPT Parties briefly discuss mandatory abstention. However, 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) does not apply to removed proceedings. See In re Lazar, 237 F.3d 967, 981 (9th Cir. 2001). In any event, because the Court is exercising its discretion to remand the RV Claims, the Court need not rely on mandatory abstention as a basis for remanding the claims involving the RPT Parties.
2. Because the Court is remanding the Lisitsa Claims and RV Claims to state court, the Court will not preside over Defendants' request for default against the RPT Parties [docs. 7-10] or the Lisitsa Parties' and RPT Parties' motions to dismiss the Cross-Complaint [docs. 19, 20].

Docket 22

I. BACKGROUND

On June 29, 2020, Helping Others International, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On September 2, 2020, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [doc. 69].

On January 15, 2020, Any Thy Song Nguyen, Trustee of Mother Nature Trust ("Plaintiff"), filed a complaint in state court against United Lender, LLC ("United"), Shawn Ahdoot, Albert A. Ahdoot, Megan E. Zucaro, Helping Others International, LLC ("Debtor"), Western Fidelity Associates, LLC ("Western Fidelity"), American Financial Center, Inc. ("American") and John B. Spear (collectively, "Defendants"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 2.

On January 21, 2020, Plaintiff filed the operative first amended complaint (the "FAC"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 14. On February 20, 2020, United filed a petition to compel arbitration (the "Arbitration Petition"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 56.

On March 4, 2020, United filed a cross-complaint against Debtor, Plaintiff, Ms. Zucaro, Mr. Spear and Tri Star Equity Group Corp. (the "Cross-Complaint"), asserting causes of action for: (A) judicial foreclosure of deed of trust; (B) specific performance of assignment of rents; (C) appointment of receiver pursuant to provision in deed of trust; (D) injunctive relief; (E) breach of contract; (F) negligent misrepresentation; (G) fraudulent concealment; (H) negligence; (I) negligent hiring/supervision; (J) conspiracy; and (K) unjust enrichment. CONT... Helping Others International, LLC

On July 17, 2020, United Lender, LLC ("United") removed a state court action to this Court, initiating this adversary proceeding. On August 20, 2020, United filed a motion for leave to amend its cross-complaint (the "Motion") [doc. 22], requesting leave to assert claims for: (A) quiet title; (B) declaratory relief; (C) equitable lien by subrogation; and (D) tort of another.

On September 2, 2020, Plaintiff filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 30]. In the Opposition, Plaintiff asserts that the Court should deny the Motion because this action should be remanded to state court. Plaintiff also argues that United did not obtain leave to file the original cross-complaint and, as a result, cannot move to amend that cross-complaint.

II. ANALYSIS

As a preliminary matter, on September 9, 2020, the Court decided not to remand this matter. As a result, Plaintiff's arguments related to remand are moot. Plaintiff's remaining argument is that, because United did not obtain leave from the state court to file the Cross-Complaint, the cross-complaint is not a legally operative pleading that may be amended.

Pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 428.50(a), "[a] party shall file a cross-complaint against any of the parties who filed the complaint or cross-complaint against him or her before or at the same time as the answer to the complaint or cross-complaint." Under CCP § 1281.7, a petition to compel arbitration "may be filed in lieu of filing an answer to a complaint."

Here, on February 20, 2020, United timely filed the Arbitration Petition in lieu of an answer. See CCP § 412.20(a)(3) (providing that a defendant should file a response to a complaint within 30 days of service of the summons). However, United did not file the Cross-Complaint "at the same time" as the Arbitration Petition.

Under CCP § 428.50(c), "[a] party shall obtain leave of court to file any cross-complaint except one filed within the time specified in subdivision (a) or (b). Leave may be granted in the interest of justice at any time during the course of the action." Here, United did not seek leave to file the cross-complaint, rendering the cross-complaint legally inoperative. See Intellisoft, Ltd. v. Acer Am. Corp., 955 F.3d 927, 934–35 (Fed. Cir. 2020) ("California courts have held that a pleading was "ineffective" where the party seeking to file the pleading did not obtain the required leave of court.").

Nevertheless, United still may move for leave to file a cross-complaint. CCP § 428.50(c) does not include a time limit for a party to move to file a cross-complaint. In addition, after the 2009 amendment to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("FRCP") 13, courts apply FRCP 15(a) to motions for leave to file a counterclaim. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 13 advisory committee's note to 2009 amendment; and Osprey Consulting I, Inc. v. Westport Ins. Corp., 2020 WL 5106715, at *2 (D. Md. Aug. 31, 2020) (explaining amendment and applying FRCP 15(a)(2)).

Pursuant to FRCP 15(a)(2), "a party may amend its pleading only with the opposing party's written consent or the court's leave. The court should freely give leave when justice so requires." Courts have the discretion to grant or deny leave to amend a complaint. Swanson v. U.S. Forest Serv., 87 F.3d 339, 343 (9th Cir. 1996). "In exercising this discretion, a court must be guided by the underlying purpose of [FRCP] 15 to facilitate decision on the merits, rather than on the pleadings or technicalities." United States v. Webb, 655 F.2d 977, 979 (9th Cir. 1981). The factors courts commonly consider when determining whether to grant leave to amend are:

1. Bad faith;
2. Undue delay;
3. Prejudice to the opposing party; and
4. Futility of amendment.

Ditto v. McCurdy, 510 F.3d 1070, 1079 (9th Cir. 2007) (internal citations omitted).

Here, even if the original cross-complaint is legally inoperative for failure to obtain leave from the state court, the Court may grant leave for United to file the attached "amended" cross-complaint as the operative cross-complaint. Using the factors above, there is no indication of bad faith on the record. Even if the state court had stricken United's cross-complaint for failure to obtain leave of the court, United still would be able to file a motion for leave to file a cross-complaint (both in state court and before this Court). Because this action has not progressed past the pleading stage, United would likely prevail in either forum. As such, Plaintiff's contention that United timed the removal to avoid the state court's hearing on Plaintiff's demurrer and/or motion to strike does not carry significant weight.

In addition, United filed the Motion promptly upon removal of this action to this Court, such that there has not been undue delay. Moreover, on its face, the claims in the proposed cross-complaint do not appear to be futile. Although Plaintiff refers the Court to her demurrer filed in state court, the demurrer does not include an analysis under FRCP 12(b)(6), the Rule applicable to this Court's assessment of the adequacy of the proposed cross-complaint. Finally, Plaintiff has not articulated why she would suffer prejudice if United files the proposed cross-complaint. Because this action is still in the pleading stage, and because United intends to assert fewer claims than in the original cross-complaint, the record does not show that Plaintiff will suffer prejudice from responding to the proposed cross-complaint. In light of the Ninth Circuit's policy of deciding issues on the merits, the Court will grant the Motion.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion.

United must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#2.00 Amended application of LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. for payment of final fees and/or expenses

fr. 8/6/20

Docket 247

Tentative Ruling:

In connection with the amended application for payment of final fees and expenses (the "Final Application") filed by LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. ("Applicant"), the Court has reviewed the Notice of Motion and Motion For Order Approving Compromise of Controversy [doc. 192] (the "Settlement Motion"). The Settlement Motion was the basis for the Court to approve the debtor's settlement of the state court action International Medical Care, Inc. v. The Regents of the University of California. Applicant prepared and filed the Settlement Motion.

The Settlement Motion states:

"There are unpaid trial expenses of $4,664.00, consisting of $2,255.50 for the forensic accountant who testified [at] trial and $2,408.50 for the court reporter. The net settlement amount of $55,336.00 will go to the Debtor . . . and will be available for Debtor's Chapter 11 Plan."

The Settlement Motion does not discuss any other unpaid trial expenses.

Previously, the Court has approved, on an interim basis, reimbursement of Applicant's expenses in the amount of $1,187.16 (incurred from April 20, 2018 through February 20, 2019) and authorized the estate's payment of those expenses, in full. See Order on Application for Payment of Interim Fees and/or Expenses [doc. 177] and Revised First Interim Application of LibertyBell Law Group for Allowance of Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses, p. 27 [doc. 115]. At this time, the Court will approve reimbursement of those expenses, on a final basis.

At the prior hearing on the Final Application, the Court also allowed reimbursement of Applicant's expenses for the court reporter and denied reimbursement of expenses for the forensic accountant.

If Applicant had additional trial expenses in the amount of $3,962.82, why didn't Applicant discuss those expenses in the Settlement Motion?

Based on the points noted above, and the failure of Applicant to file timely a supplement to its request for reimbursement of $3,962.82 in other expenses, the Court will deny reimbursement to Applicant of any expenses which the Court has not previously approved.

In order for the Court to assess whether Applicant has turned over to the chapter 7 trustee the balance of any funds Applicant has received in connection with its representation of the debtor and/or International Medical Care, Inc. ("IMC"), net payment of Applicant's Court-approved fees and expenses, Applicant must provide an accounting to the Court of all funds that Applicant has received in connection with its representation of the debtor and/or IMC, on and after November 24, 2017.

In its employment application [doc. 13], Applicant and the debtor represented that, before the debtor filed his chapter 11 petition, the debtor had paid $15,000.00 to Applicant.

When can Applicant file and serve such an accounting with the Court?

8/6/20 Ruling

Grant in part, at this time.

LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. ("Applicant"), special litigation counsel to the debtor – approve fees in the amount of $40,000 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $2,408.50 (for Aptus Court Reporting), pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. At this time, the Court will not approve $7,255.50 in fees for D.W. Pyne, CPA and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $3,962.82 for the reasons stated below.

D.W. Pyne, CPA is a professional employed by the estate [doc. 136]. As such, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, in order for Mr. Pyne to receive compensation, Mr. Pyne must file a final fee application that complies with the requirements of LBR 2016-1.

Factors relevant to determining if an expense is proper, include: "(i) whether the expense is reasonable and economical, (ii) whether the applicant has provided a detailed itemization of expenses, (iii) whether the expenses appear to be in the nature of non-reimbursable overhead, and (iv) whether the applicant has adhered to allowable rates for expenses as fixed by local rule or order of the Court." In re GSC Group, Inc., 502 B.R. 673, 743 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013).

Regarding Applicant's request for reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $3,962.82, the application does not include a description of the expenses. Without further explanation, the Court cannot determine whether the expenses are reasonable and whether they are non-compensable overhead.

The Court will continue this hearing to September 17, 2020 at 10:30 a.m. By September 3, 2020, Applicant must file and serve a supplement to the application, which includes a detailed itemization of the requested expenses as required by LBR 2016-1(a)(1)(F). Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2016-1(a)(1)(F), the application must include a summary listing of all expenses by category (i.e., long distance telephone, photocopy costs, facsimile charges, travel, messenger and computer research). As to each unusual or costly expense item, the application must state: (i) the date the expense was incurred; (ii) a description of the expense; (iii) the amount of the expense; and (iv) an explanation of the expense.

fr. 12/19/20; 12/26/19; 6/18/20; 07/23/2020; 8/27/20;

Tentative Ruling:

On August 26, 2020, the Court entered an order instructing the debtor to file a status report, supported by evidence, no later than September 3, 2020 [doc. 83]. Why did the debtor not timely file a status report?

Assuming the Court grants the application to employ proposed replacement bankruptcy counsel, when will that counsel be able to file a chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement?

On December 27, 2019, the Court entered the Order Setting Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim [doc. 51]. The resulting bar date is March 2, 2020.

Pursuant to that order, the debtor was required to serve written notice of the bar date on all creditors, using the court's mandatory form, by December 30, 2019. Did the debtor timely serve all creditors, including all holders of disputed liens, with the required written notice of the bar date?

The Court notes that, because the debtor failed to meet the conditions which the Court set to continue the automatic stay, the debtor's motion to continue the automatic stay was denied. See Order Denying Motion for Order Imposing a Stay or Continuing the Automatic Stay, entered on January 23, 2020 [doc. 58].

7/23/2020 Tentative:

Contrary to the Court's order dated June 8, 2020 (the "Order") [doc. 67], the debtor did not timely file a proposed chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement. In addition, contrary to the Order, the debtor did not timely file a status report.

#9.00 Status conference re: chapter 11 case

fr. 8/13/20

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

The parties should address the following:

On June 10, 2020, the California Department of Tax and Fee Administration filed proof of claim 17-1, asserting a secured claim in the amount of $150,162.89 based on liens recorded pursuant to Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757.

In light of the debtor's negative net income, based on her schedules I and J, filed on March 30, 2020 [doc. 14], how does the debtor intend to address the employment tax liabilities, and the resulting lien, which caused the filing of the current chapter 11 case?

Does the debtor intend to retain special tax counsel for assistance? If not, why?

Deadline to file proof of claim ("Bar Date"): November 30, 2020.

Deadline to mail notice of Bar Date: September 30, 2020.

The debtor(s) must use the mandatory court-approved form Notice of Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim in a Chapter 11 Case, F 3003-1.NOTICE.BARDATE.

The debtor(s) must lodge the Order Setting Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim, using mandatory court-approved form F 3003-1.ORDER.BARDATE, within seven (7) days.

8/13/20 Ruling

On March 5, 2017, Jasmin DelVillar ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, initiating case 1:17-bk-10553-VK. Debtor was represented by Dana M. Douglas. During the pendency of that chapter 13 case, Debtor did not confirm a chapter 13

On September 21, 2017, on Debtor's motion, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's prior case to one under chapter 11 (the "Conversion Order") [1:17-bk-10553-VK, doc. 30]. Pursuant to the Conversion Order, Debtor had 14 days to file a Chapter 11 Statement of Your Current Monthly Income and a list containing Debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors. Debtor did not timely file either of these documents. Consequently, on October 17, 2017, the Court dismissed Debtor's prior case [1:17-bk-10553-VK, doc. 34].

On March 14, 2020, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating the pending case. Debtor is again represented by Ms. Douglas. On July 30, 2020, Debtor filed an initial chapter 11 status conference report [doc. 27]. In that status report, Debtor states that she intends to file a motion under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) to avoid a tax lien in favor of the California Department of Tax and Fee Administration (the "CDTFA"). On June 10, 2020, the CDTFA filed proof of claim 17-1, asserting a secured claim in the amount of $150,162.89 based on liens recorded pursuant to Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757 (the "Tax Lien").

On July 25, 2020, Ms. Douglas filed an application to be employed as debtor in possession counsel, requesting nunc pro tunc employment as of March 13, 2020 [doc. 25]. In that application, Ms. Douglas does not provide an explanation as to why she waited four months after she began providing services to Debtor to file an employment application. On August 6, 2020, the United States Trustee filed an objection to that employment application [doc. 28].

"Both § 327 and Bankruptcy Rule 2014 explicitly require attorneys [and other professionals] to seek the approval of the court before they commence employment for the estate." *In re Downtown Inv. "The Ninth Circuit allows retroactive (nunc pro tunc) awards of fees for services rendered without prior court approval where: (1) the applicant has a satisfactory explanation for the failure to receive prior judicial approval; and (2) the applicant has benefitted the estate in some significant manner." In re Mehdipour, 202 B.R. 474, 479 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1996), aff'd, 139 F.3d 1303 (9th Cir. 1998).

the statutory requirement of prior approval.'" Id. (quoting In re B.E.S. Concrete Prods., Inc., 93 B.R. 228, 231 (Bankr.E.D.Cal.1988)). "A retroactive authorization order should not be issued where the lateness in seeking court approval of employment is accompanied by inexcusable or unexplained negligence." Downtown, 89 B.R. at 63–64.

Under Local Bankruptcy Rule 2014-1(b)(E), "an application for the employment of counsel for a debtor in possession should be filed as promptly as possible after the commencement of the case, and an application for employment of any other professional person should be filed as promptly as possible after such person has been engaged."

Here, Ms. Douglas has failed to provide a satisfactory explanation for her failure to file an employment application promptly after commencement of this case. Moreover, Ms. Douglas is not competent to represent Debtor as a debtor in possession. For example, after Ms. Douglas failed to file routinely required documents timely, as required by the Conversion Order, Debtor's prior chapter 11 case was dismissed

Additionally, as it is not a judicial lien, Debtor cannot avoid the Tax Lien under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 522(f)(1):

Notwithstanding any waiver of exemptions but subject to paragraph (3), the debtor may avoid the fixing of a lien on an interest of the debtor in property to the extent that such lien impairs an exemption to which the debtor would have been entitled under subsection (b) of this section, if such lien is—

(A) a judicial lien, other than a judicial lien that secures a debt of a kind that is specified in section 523(a)(5)....

(emphasis added). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 101(36), "[t]he term 'judicial lien' means lien obtained by judgment, levy, sequestration, or other legal or equitable process or proceeding." Under 11 U.S.C. § 101(53), "[t]he term 'statutory lien' means lien arising solely by force of a statute on specified circumstances or conditions, or lien of distress for rent, whether or not statutory, but does not include security interest or judicial lien, whether or not such interest or lien is provided by or is dependent on a statute and whether or not such interest or lien is made fully effective by statute."

Where a valid lien is created and perfected by statute, it is statutory. See e.g., In re Scott, 400 B.R. 257, 265-66 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009); In re Cox, 349 B.R. 4, 12 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2006). In relevant part, Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757(a) states:

If any person fails to pay any amount imposed under this part at the time that it becomes due and payable, the amount thereof, including penalties and interest, together with any costs in addition thereto, shall thereupon be a perfected and enforceable state tax lien.

The language of this statute is clear: the lien is created and perfected by statute alone. Consequently, a lien arising from Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757 is a statutory lien for purposes of 11 U.S.C. § 101(53), and therefore, not subject to avoidance under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). As bankruptcy counsel to an individual debtor, Ms. Douglas should be aware that the Tax Lien is not avoidable under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f).

Moreover, in this district, in the last three years (not to mention prior years), Ms. Douglas has been debtor in possession counsel in numerous cases. These cases uniformly have ended in dismissal without court approval of a disclosure statement and/or confirmation of a chapter 11 plan. The following is a list of these cases.

In case 1:19-bk-12810-VK, which is currently pending before the Court, Ms. Douglas is debtor in possession counsel. The Court recently issued an order to show cause why the case should not be dismissed or converted because Ms. Douglas failed to meet the deadline to file a chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement and otherwise did not comply with an order of the Court [1:19-bk-12810-VK, doc. 75].

Not only has Ms. Douglas failed to file her employment application promptly, but she has consistently shown that she is not capable of prosecuting a chapter 11 case to confirmation of a chapter 11 plan of reorganization. Consequently, the Court will not approve employment of Ms. Douglas as debtor in possession counsel.

The Court will continue this status conference to September 17, 2020 at 1:00 p.m., for Debtor to obtain qualified chapter 11 bankruptcy counsel. By September 3, 2020, Debtor must file and serve on the United States trustee a status report discussing her efforts to secure such counsel.

Chapter 11

#10.10 Status conference re: chapter 11 case

fr. 3/19/20; 4/2/20, 9/10/20

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

On February 11, 2020, the debtor, a two-member limited liability corporation, filed a chapter 11 petition, commencing this case. This is the debtor's third chapter 11 case. The debtor's immediately preceding chapter 11 case was filed on December 4, 2019 and dismissed on January 24, 2020.

At the last chapter 11 case status conference, the Court mandated the filing of a declaration regarding the alleged occupant(s) of the debtor's sole significant asset, i.e., a single family residence located in Encino, California. The debtor has filed such a declaration of its managing member, Tyler Murphy [doc. 65]. According to the debtor's statement of financial affairs [doc. 1], Mr. Murphy holds a 90% interest in the debtor.

In his declaration, Mr. Murphy states: "Occupants were not asked to sign a written agreement at the time of rental because they were known to me and, also, we did not know at that time that it would turn out to be a long-term occupancy of the Property."

Although Mr. Murphy's declaration indicates that the "occupants" allegedly have resided in the property since "approximately 2014," are obligated to pay rent in the amount of $1,500.00 per month (without a written lease), and have paid that rent except for the months of July 2020 and August 2020, the debtor's monthly operating reports indicate that rents also were not paid for February 2020 and April 2020 through June 2020. The only monthly operating report that shows receipt of any rental payments is the monthly operating report for March 2020 - which indicates that the debtor received $2,000.00 in rent.

According to the debtor's statement of financial affairs [doc. 1], in 2019, the debtor received $14,000 in rent, and in 2018, the debtor received $16,000 in rent - which is less than $1,500 per month, i.e., the amount allegedly payable by the "occupants" of the debtor's property.

On August 13, 2020, the debtor filed a proposed Disclosure Statement Describing Chapter 11 Plan (the "Disclosure Statement") [doc. 60]. In the Disclosure Statement, the debtor indicates that it intends to file motions for authority to hire an appraiser to prepare a report as to the fair market value of the property and a motion to determine the "secured" value of the property. Given that this is the debtor's second recent chapter 11 case, and that this chapter 11 case has been pending since February 2020, why hasn't the debtor already filed such motions?

When does the debtor intend to do so?

Contrary to the Court's ruling at the chapter 11 case status conference held in April 2020, the debtor did not lodge an order setting a bar date or provide notice of the bar date.

The debtor's only asset is an overencumbered single family residence. Based on a recorded Grant Deed attached to the proof of claim filed by secured creditor Bank of New York Mellon (the beneficiary of a first trust deed encumbering the residence), in April 2006, the debtor received its interest in that real property for consideration of less than $100.00.

The debtor's schedules indicate that the residence has a value of $700,000.00, and the first deed of trust encumbering the residence secures a $1,000,000.00 claim. However, the proof of claim filed by Bank of New York Mellon [Claim 2-1] represents that the amount of the debt secured by the first deed of trust is $1,859,629.60, and that payments have not been made on that claim since March 1, 2009.

Although the debtor allegedly leases its real property, the debtor's monthly operating reports indicate that it has not received any rental income for April 2020 through July 2020 [docs. 50, 55, 56, 57, 58].

#15.00 Debtor's objection to Salisbury, Lee & Tsuda, LLP's second amended proof of claim no. 13

fr. 9/10/20

Docket 136

Tentative Ruling:

Based on the provisions in the subject settlement agreement (to which both the claimant and the debtor's estranged spouse are parties and signatories), the proofs of claim filed by the claimant prior to the parties' entry into that agreement (in particular, claim no. 13-2), the motion to approve the settlement and the order thereon, the Court will sustain the objection.

On October 24, 2019, Salisbury, Lee and Tsuda, LLP ("SLT") filed its initial proof of claim no. 13 in the amount of $152,621.77 [claim 13-1]. In its initial proof of claim, SLT described that claim as based on a money judgment. SLT characterized that claim as secured and also as entitled to priority under 11 U.S.C. § 507(a), as a domestic support obligation.

On November 4, 2019, SLT filed an amended proof of claim no. 13 in the amount of $326,129.14 (the "Amended Claim") [claim 13-2]. In the Amended Claim, SLT stated that: (1) it has a secured claim in the amount of $152,621.77, based on a money judgment, and that the secured claim also was entitled to priority under 11 U.S.C. § 507(a), as a domestic support obligation; and (2) it has an unsecured claim in the amount of $173,507.37 based on "legal fees on behalf of debtor's spouse Kathryn A. Lukes prior to 7/29/2019 which may become an obligation of debtor." SLT also characterized its unsecured claim as entitled to priority under 11 U.S.C. § 507(a), as a domestic support obligation

On January 7, 2020, the debtor, SLT and Mrs. Lukes entered into a settlement agreement (the "Settlement Agreement") [doc. 138, exh. D]. In the Settlement Agreement, Section 2.2 of the Settlement Agreement provides, in pertinent part:

2.2.2. Within 2 business days of receipt of the settlement funds from the Debtor, SLT shall: (a) withdraw its POC from the Bankruptcy Case.

Section 2.3 of the Settlement Agreement provides that:

In exchange for the above stated good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is acknowledged, as well as the releases and waivers mutually exchanged under the terms thereof, Mrs. Lukes and SLT relieve, release and forever discharge the Debtor, from all liabilities associated with the attorney's fee order made in favor of SLT on March 18, 2019 and all liabilities associated with child support and spousal support orders made in favor of Mrs. Lukes to the extent such liabilities have accrued through January 1, 2020.

(Emphasis added). This language encompasses both the secured claim and the unsecured claim identified in SLT's Claim 13-2, which was filed prior to the parties' entry into the Settlement Agreement and which refers to legal fees on behalf of the debtor's spouse which accrued long prior to January 1, 2020.

If the debtor complied with the Settlement Agreement, SLT agreed to withdraw that claim, and the debtor's estranged spouse agreed to release the debtor from that liability. Because the debtor complied with the Settlement Agreement, SLT is no longer entitled to a claim against the debtor based on his potential obligation to pay legal fees of his estranged spouse, as a result of any services that SLT provided to her, before January 1, 2020.

The debtor must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#3.00 Motion for relief from stay [AN]

WV SPE 2017-2S, LLC, AS ASSIGNEE
VS
DEBTOR

Docket 51

Tentative Ruling:

Deny. There is not cause for the Court to grant movant relief from the automatic stay in order for movant to amend the application for renewal of the subject judgment, amend the related abstracts of judgment (recorded in Los Angeles, Ventura and Riverside counties) and/or record a certified copy of the amended application for renewal of the subject judgment.

On April 5, 2019, the prior assignee of the judgment, Guaranty Solutions, LLC ("Guaranty"), filed its Application for and Renewal of Judgment. However, at that time, Guaranty did not include a list of the recorded abstracts of judgment or add the pertinent missing information to the abstracts of judgment.

On February 4, 2020, the debtor filed his chapter 7 petition. On May 22, 2020, Guaranty assigned the judgment to movant. Movant's postpetition acquisition of the renewed judgment (through assignment) does not constitute cause for movant to obtain relief from the automatic stay to correct or alter Guaranty's renewal of the judgment or to amend the recorded abstracts of judgment.

In addition, the Court will not abstain from determining the validity of Movant's lien(s).

This decision does not reflect the Court's determination that any liens arising from the recorded abstracts of judgment are subject to avoidance.

At this time, the Court has insufficient evidence of whether or not the judgment creditor, who had the abstracts of judgment recorded, had knowledge of the last four digits of the debtor's social security number and/or driver's license number, at the time that the judgment creditor had each of the three abstracts of judgment recorded, or that Guaranty had that information, when Guaranty applied for renewal of the judgment. Consequently, the Court cannot currently determine if the absence of that information from the recorded abstracts of judgment make any liens subject to avoidance, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 544(a)(3).

If and when the chapter 7 trustee files an adversary proceeding to avoid Movant's lien(s), on the basis that the last four digits of the debtor's social security number and/or his driver's license number are missing from the recorded abstracts of judgment, the Court will decide that dispute.

The chapter 7 trustee must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#8.00 Motion for damages, attorney's fees, and punitive damages for plaintiff's violation of the automatic stay

Docket 27

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. Background

On November 15, 2018, Nancy S. Tenggren (the "Plaintiff") filed a Request for Entry of Default against Gerie G. Annan (the "Debtor") – also known as Gerie Guo Ying Keh or Gerie Keh – in the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles ("LASC") [doc. 30, ¶ 11; Exh. 1]. On June 18, 2019, the LASC rejected the Plaintiff's Request for Default Judgment because of "insufficiency of proof of damages." [doc. 30, ¶ 13; Exh. 2].

On October 10, 2019, the Plaintiff filed a Request for Entry of Default Judgment based on an Amended Statement of Damages against the Debtor [doc. 30, ¶ 14; Exh. 4]. The LASC determined that this request was filed on November 12, 2019. [doc. 30, ¶ 9; Exh. 6].

On December 11, 2019, the Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. The Debtor did not file a Notice of Stay or Notice of Automatic Stay in the Plaintiff's LASC action.

On February 25, 2020, the LASC denied the Plaintiff's Request for Default Judgment because there was no proof of service of a statement of damages prior to entry of default, and the Plaintiff had not justified the claim for general and special damages [doc. 27, ¶ 15; Exh. 6].

II. The Motion

On August 24, 2020, the Debtor filed a Notice of Motion and Motion for Damages, Attorney's Fees, and Punitive Damages for Plaintiff's Violation of the Automatic Stay; Declaration of Michael D. Luppi (the "Motion") [doc. 27]. In the Motion, the Debtor contends that "Plaintiff, despite knowing of the Bankruptcy, and without obtaining relief from stay" filed an Entry of Default Judgment in violation of the automatic stay. The Debtor requests the following monetary relief: (1) $1,000.00 in damages; (2) $1,500.00 in attorney's fees; and (3) $5,000.00 in punitive damages. The Debtor has not submitted any evidence of his actual damages or attorney's fees he incurred, as a result of the Plaintiff's putative violation of the automatic stay.

III. The Opposition

On September 9, 2020, the Plaintiff filed an Opposition to Defendant's Notice of Motion for Attorney's Fees and Punitive Damages for Plaintiff's Violation of the Automatic Stay; Declaration of Andrew J. Spielberg; Declaration of Robert P. Goe (the "Opposition") [doc. 30]. In the Opposition, the Plaintiff contends that her counsel, Andrew J. Spielberg, was not aware of the Debtor's bankruptcy filing until March 13, 2020 [doc. 30, ¶ 1; Declaration of Andrew J. Spielberg]. Plaintiff argues that she "never knowingly, willfully, intentionally or in bad faith violated the Automatic Stay" and that she "never propounded discovery nor brought any law and motion matters against the debtor nor after the 12/11/19 bankruptcy" [Id., ¶¶ 2–3]. The Plaintiff asserts that the Debtor has not met his burden of proof and is not entitled to damages.

IV. Discussion

Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code provides in pertinent part:

- (a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, a petition filed under section 301, 302, or 303 of this title . . . operates as a stay, applicable to all entities, of—
- (2) the enforcement, against the debtor or against property of the estate, of a judgment obtained before the commencement of the case under this title;

 - (6) any act to collect, assess, or a recover a claim against the Debtor that arose before the commencement of the case;
 - (7) the setoff of any debt owing to the debtor that arose before the commencement of the case under this title against any claim against the debtor[.]

"[A]ctions taken in violation of the automatic stay are void." In re Gruntz, 202 F.3d 1074, 1082 (9th Cir. 2000) (citing In re Schwartz, 954 F.2d 569, 571 (9th Cir. 1992)). An affirmative duty is imposed on non-debtor parties to comply with the stay, and to remedy any violations, even if inadvertent, of the automatic stay. In re Dyer, 322 F.3d 1178, 1191–92 (9th Cir. 2003).

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(k)(1), a debtor "injured by any willful violation of a stay provided by this section shall recover actual damages, including costs and attorney's fees, and, in appropriate circumstances, may recover punitive damages." A prima facie case under section 362(k) requires a showing (1) by an individual debtor of (2) injury from (3) a willful (4) violation of the stay. In re Fernandez, 227 B.R. 174, 181 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1998).

"A creditor who attempts collection of prepetition debt after it knows of the debtor's bankruptcy is subject to sanctions for willful violation of the automatic stay." In re Bourke, 543 B.R. 657, 664 (Bankr. D. Mont. 2015). "[T]he willfulness test for automatic stay violations merely requires that: (1) the creditor know of the automatic stay; and (2) the actions that violate the stay be intentional." Morris v. Peralta, 317 B.R. 381, 389 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2004) (citing Eskanos v. Adler, P.C. v. Leetien, 309 F.3d 1210, 1215 (9th Cir. 2002)). "Once a creditor has knowledge of the bankruptcy, it is deemed to have knowledge of the automatic stay." In re Breul, 533 B.R. 782, 787–88 (Bankr. C.D. Chapter 7

An award of punitive damages requires "some showing of reckless or callous disregard for the law or rights of others." In re Snowden, 769 F.3d 651, 657 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting In re Bloom, 875 F.2d 224, 228 (9th Cir. 1989)).

Here, the Debtor has failed to show that he is entitled to attorney's fees, damages and/or punitive damages. The Debtor has not shown that the Plaintiff acted with willful conduct and that the Debtor was injured. According to the Plaintiff's counsel, counsel did not become aware of the Debtor's bankruptcy filing until March 13, 2020. Moreover, on February 25, 2020, the LASC denied the Plaintiff's Request for Entry of Default Judgment.

The Debtor has not provided any evidence of damages. Default judgment in the Plaintiff's favor against Debtor was never entered, and in response to the Plaintiff's Request for Entry of Default Judgment, filed in late 2019, the Debtor apparently took no action in the LASC. Therefore, the Debtor is not entitled to damages pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(k)(1). Because the Plaintiff did not recklessly or callously disregard the automatic stay, the Debtor also is not entitled to punitive damages.

Consequently, the Court will deny the Motion.

Respondent must submit the order within seven (7) days.

On July 15, 2020, the Court entered judgment in favor of the plaintiff on his claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) (the "Judgment") [doc. 225]. The plaintiff's remaining claims remain pending.

During the prior status conference, on June 17, 2020, the Court instructed the plaintiff either to file a status report by September 9, 2020, or to dismiss the remaining claims in his operative second amended complaint. The plaintiff did not timely file a status report, nor has he requested dismissal of the remaining claims. As such, the Court will issue an Order to Show Cause why the plaintiff's remaining claims should not be dismissed for failure to prosecute.

If the Court dismisses the plaintiff's remaining claims, the Court will take the status conference off calendar until the appeal on the Judgment is resolved.

Docket 15

Tentative Ruling:

Given that this is an action under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523 and 727, the Court does not need consent from the parties to enter final judgment. See In re Deitz, 760 F.3d 1038, 1050 (9th Cir. 2014) ("We hold that, even after Stern, the bankruptcy court had the constitutional authority to enter a final judgment determining both the amount of [the plaintiffs'] damage claims against [the debtor], and determining that those claims were excepted from discharge.") (referencing Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011)); and In re Dung Anh Phan, 607 B.R. 598, 605 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2019) (holding that, notwithstanding Stern, bankruptcy courts have constitutional authority to enter final judgments in actions under 11 U.S.C. § 727).

Parties should be prepared to discuss the following:

Deadline to complete discovery: 3/1/21.

Deadline to file pretrial motions: 3/15/21.

Deadline to complete and submit pretrial stipulation in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1: 4/7/21.

fr. 7/8/20; 7/15/20; 08/19/20;

Docket 7

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On December 18, 2019, Shobert Vartan ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On March 24, 2020, Philip Alvarez and Philip Alvarez, as Successor Trustee of the Evangelina Alvarez Living Trust of 2015 ("Plaintiffs"), initiated this adversary proceeding. On March 26, 2020, Plaintiffs filed the first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 4], requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to them under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6). In relevant part, Plaintiffs allege:

On April 24, 2016, Mr. Alvarez's mother passed away; her estate included a residence occupied by herself and Mr. Alvarez. The property is a single-family residence located at 925 E. Stockton Avenue, Compton, California 90221 (the "Property"). At the time of Mr. Alvarez's mother's death, the Property was paid off with no mortgage liens or any other liens or encumbrances.

After Mr. Alvarez's mother passed away, Mr. Alvarez decided to remodel the Property to rent the unit in the back of the house. Mr. Alvarez had a fixed disability income of $909.40 per month, and desired additional income from the rental. To raise money for the remodeling, Mr. Alvarez obtained a $90,000.00 hard money loan (the "Original Loan") against the Property. However, Mr. Alvarez eventually realized that the contractor and his company were scam artists.

Around this same time, Mr. Alvarez watched a television program which touted Unicitizen Financial Inc. ("Unicitizen") as a company that could help people with their mortgage companies. As such, Mr. Alvarez called Unicitizen and spoke with Defendant. Defendant came out to the Property and said he could help Plaintiffs get out of the Original Loan and get the Property fixed the way it was supposed to be fixed by the previous contractor. Defendant stated Plaintiffs would just need to refinance with Unicitizen, and Plaintiffs agreed.

Defendant, Unicitizen, Adenheim, Inc. ("Adenheim") and REO Group Inc. ("REO Group") were all aware that Mr. Alvarez occupied the Property as his residence and had no ability to repay the loan. Defendant, Unicitizen, Adenheim and REO Group acted to avoid Dodd-Frank protections by preparing and funding a hard money loan as a "non-owner occupied" transaction. They did this because it was impossible to make a scenario where Mr. Alvarez's sole income of $909.40 would make any loan possible to repay, especially with the balloon due in two years. Defendant was in full possession of Plaintiffs' income and expenses, and was on full notice of Plaintiffs' true economic situation. Defendant, Unicitizen, Adenheim and REO Group checked to see if Mr. Alvarez occupied the Property with the county recorder property mailing address, county property taxes mailing address, his driver's license, property insurance mailing address and with the credit bureaus when running a credit report; each showed Mr. Alvarez's residence as the same as the Property.

On December 18, 2016, Mr. Alvarez signed a deed of trust in favor of REO Group. The deed secured a note for $155,000.00. On January 30, 2017, REO Group recorded the deed of trust with the Los Angeles county recorder. The note rate on the loan was represented as being 12%, but Plaintiffs were never given copies of the loan documents. The loan contained six months of pre-paid interest from February 2017 through the end of July 2017.

In early April 2017, Defendant informed Mr. Alvarez that he could get a better loan for the Property and that Defendant was working on a refinance so Plaintiffs could remove the $155,000 deed of trust and complete the remodel of the Property. Defendant knew that Mr. Alvarez occupied the Property as his residence and that Plaintiffs did not have the ability to repay this loan.

On May 3, 2017, Plaintiffs signed a deed of trust in favor of RIDEDEC. The deed secures a note for $198,000.00. The note rate on the loan appeared to be 12%, but Plaintiffs were never given copies of the loan documents. Plaintiffs received no real benefit from this new loan. Over $35,000.00 was paid to 3rd parties so Plaintiffs could end up with the same interest rate. This loan had a balloon of one year and became due June of 2018, which Plaintiffs had no ability to pay. In total, as a result of the wrongdoing of Defendant and his co-conspirators, Plaintiffs received just 11.49% of the money lent, or $22,748.19 of the $198,000.00 in loans.

Defendant was aware that Mr. Alvarez lived in the Property and purposely schemed to define Mr. Alvarez's property as non-owner occupied. Defendant did this to enrich himself since there was no way to write the loans for Mr. Alvarez if he occupied the Property. Mr. Alvarez did not have the economic means to repay the debt with his very limited and fixed income.

On October 16, 2017, RIDEDEC recorded a notice of default and election to sell under the deed of trust. In January 2018, Plaintiffs filed a complaint against Defendant in the Los Angeles Superior Court for breach of written contract, breach of an oral contract fraud, constructive fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, unjust enrichment and unfair business practices.

On July 24, 2019, Defendant entered into a settlement agreement that provided for payment of $65,000, with $20,000 payable upon signing the agreement, and the remainder paid in $1,000 per month for forty-five months. At the time he entered into the agreement, Defendant had no intent or ability to perform under the settlement agreement.

Plaintiff incorporated the July 9, 2019 settlement agreement (the "Settlement Agreement") into the FAC. FAC, Exhibit 1. The Settlement Agreement is signed by Defendant and includes the following admissions—

On April 24, 2020, Defendant filed a motion to dismiss the FAC (the "Motion") [doc. 7]. In the Motion, Defendant argues that Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim.

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted) (citing, inter alia, *Bell Atl. Corp. v. attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. *See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Further, a court may consider evidence "on which the complaint necessarily relies if: (1) the complaint refers to the document; (2) the document is central to the plaintiff's claim; and (3) no party questions the authenticity of the copy attached to the [Rule] 12(b)(6) motion." Marder v. Lopez, 450 F.3d 445, 448 (9th Cir. 2006) (internal quotation marks omitted). "The court may treat such a document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id. (internal quotation marks omitted).

Pursuant to Rule 9(b), "[i]n alleging fraud or mistake, a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake. Malice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged...." Neubronner v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

B. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for money, property, services, or an extension, renewal, or refinancing of credit, to the extent obtained by – false pretenses, a false representation, or actual fraud, other than a statement respecting a debtor's or an insider's financial condition."

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the Plaintiffs must prove by a preponderance of the evidence the following five elements:

- (1) misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the

- debtor;
- (2) knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) an intent to deceive;
- (4) justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct

In re Weinberg, 410 B.R. 19, 35 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009) (citing In re Slyman, 234 F.3d 1081, 1085 (9th Cir. 2000)).

In the Motion, Defendant argues that Defendant's role in the alleged scheme to defraud Plaintiffs is not clear. However, in the FAC, Plaintiffs allege that Defendant himself made false representations on which Mr. Alvarez relied. FAC, pp. 13-14. In addition, Plaintiffs incorporate the Settlement Agreement into the FAC. The Settlement Agreement provides that Defendant "admits, verifies, and agrees to each cause of action as pled against" him and "admits, verifies, and agrees that each and every element to each cause of action pled against" him has been met. The state court complaint includes a claim for fraud against Defendant. See Symington, 51 F.3d at 1484 (holding that exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper). As such, even if the body of the FAC is not specific enough regarding Defendant's role in the general scheme, the incorporation of the Settlement Agreement sufficiently establishes a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A).

Plaintiffs' second claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) is based on allegations that Defendant fraudulently entered into the Settlement Agreement. Defendant contends that the allegations are insufficient to establish fraud; Defendant asserts the allegations sound in breach of contract. However, Plaintiffs allege that Defendant entered into the Settlement Agreement knowing that his representation that he would perform under the Settlement Agreement was false, and that Defendant made such representations intentionally. Under Rule 9(b), allegations regarding intent may be alleged generally. As such, Plaintiffs also have adequately alleged a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) on this basis.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement, or larceny." A debt is nondischargeable for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity "where (1) an express trust existed, (2) the debt was caused by fraud or defalcation, and (3) the debtor acted as a fiduciary to the creditor at the time the debt was created." In re Niles, 106 F.3d 1456, 1459 (9th Cir. 1997).

i. Existence of Trust/Fiduciary Relationship

Whether a relationship is a fiduciary one within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) is a question of federal law. Ragsdale v. Haller, 780 F.2d 794, 795 (9th Cir. 1986); see also In re Cantrell, 269 B.R. 413, 420 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2001) ("The definition of 'fiduciary capacity' under § 523(a)(4) is governed by federal law."). In the context of dischargeability, the fiduciary relationship must arise from an express or technical trust that was imposed before and without reference to the wrongdoing that caused the debt. Ragsdale, 780 F.2d at 796; see also In re Stern, 403 B.R. 58, 66 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009) ("In order for the debt to be actionable for nondischargeability, the debtor must have been a trustee before the alleged wrong and without reference thereto; the debtor must have already been a trustee before the debt was created."); Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420 ("Only relationships arising from express or technical trusts qualify as fiduciary relationships under § 523(a)(4)."). Under § 523(a)(4), a court must consider state law to ascertain whether there is the required express or technical trust. In re Honkanen, 446 B.R. 373, 379 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011).

"A trust under California law may be formed by express agreement, by statute, or by case law." Cantrell, 269 B.R. at 420. An express trust under California law requires the following five elements: (1) present intent to create a trust; (2) a trustee; (3) trust property; (4) a proper legal purpose; and (5) a beneficiary. Honkanen, at 379 n.6 (citing Cal. Prob. Code §§ 15201–15205). A technical trust under California law is one "arising from the relation of attorney, executor, or guardian, and not to debts due by a bankrupt in the character of an agent, factor, commission merchant, and the like." Id., at n.7 (quoting Royal Indemnity Co. v. Sherman, 269 P.2d 123, 125 (Cal. Ct. App. 1954)). Additionally, "[t]rusts arising as remedial devices to breaches of implied or express contracts—such as resulting or constructive trusts—are excluded, while statutory trusts that bear the hallmarks of an express trust are not." Id. (citing In re Pedrazzini, 644 F.2d 756, 759 (9th Cir. 1981)).

ii. Embezzlement or Larceny

"Embezzlement" within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) requires three elements: (1) property rightfully in the possession of the non-owner debtor, (2) the non-owner's misappropriation of the property to a use other than that for which it was entrusted, and (3) circumstances indicating fraud. In re Littleton, 942 F.2d 551, 555 (9th Cir. 1991). "The elements of larceny differ only in that a larcenous debtor has come into possession of funds wrongfully." In re Mickens, 312 B.R. 666, 680 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2004). A finding of larceny requires proof of the debtor's fraudulent intent in taking the creditor's property. In re Sokol, 170 B.R. 556, 560 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1994).

"Fraudulent appropriation requires an intent to deprive, which can be inferred from the conduct of the person accused and from the circumstances of the situation." Savonarola v. Beran, 79 B.R. 493, 496 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1987). For purposes of embezzlement and larceny, a fiduciary relationship is not required. Littleton, 942 F.2d at 555.

Here, the FAC does not include sufficient allegations under § 523(a)(4). Plaintiffs have not alleged that an express or technical trust, which was imposed before and without reference to the wrongdoing that caused the debt, existed. In the Opposition, Plaintiffs acknowledge Honkanen, supra, which held that, in light of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' ruling in In re Cantrell, 329 F.3d 1119 (9th Cir. 2003), "a California real estate licensee does not meet the fiduciary capacity requirement of § 523(a)(4) solely based on his or her status as a real estate licensee." Honkanen, 446 B.R. at 381. Under Honkanen, the licensee must hold property in trust for the plaintiff. Id.

Nevertheless, Plaintiffs reference two cases that predate Honkanen and Cantrell. See In re Briles, 228 B.R. 462 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1998); and In re Rodriguez, 196 B.R. 537 (N.D. Cal. 1996). However, Briles and Rodriguez relied on In re Woosley, 117 B.R. 524 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1990), to hold that the debtor's real estate license established a fiduciary relationship for purposes of § 523(a)(4). See id. In Honkanen, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit recognized that Cantrell abrogated Woosley. Honkanen, 446 B.R. at 381-82. As such, Plaintiffs' references are outdated, and Plaintiffs have not established a fiduciary relationship under § 523(a)(4).

In addition, Plaintiffs do not sufficiently allege embezzlement or larceny. The FAC fails to allege facts indicating that Defendant embezzled money from Plaintiffs. While the FAC does allege that various entities involved in generating the January and May 2017 loans received loan proceeds in connection with facilitating the loans, the FAC does not allege that Defendant received funds that were misappropriated. As such, Plaintiffs have not adequately alleged a claim under § 523(a)(4).

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity."

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S.Ct. 974, 140 L.Ed. 2d 90 (1998). In the Ninth Circuit, " § 523(a)(6)'s willful injury requirement is met only when the debtor has a subjective motive to inflict injury or when the debtor believes that injury is substantially certain to result from his own conduct." Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1206 (quoting In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1142 (9th Cir.2002)). "The Debtor is charged with the knowledge of the natural consequences of his actions." Id. (citing In re Cohen, 121 B.R. 267, 271 (Bankr.E.D.N.Y.1990)). See also Su, 290 F.3d at 1146 ("In addition to what a debtor may admit to knowing, the bankruptcy court may consider circumstantial evidence that tends to establish what the debtor must have actually known when taking the injury-producing action.").

Under § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Maliciousness requires (1) a wrongful act; (2) done intentionally; (3) which necessarily causes injury; (4) without just cause or excuse. Id. at 1147. Maliciousness does not require "personal hatred, spite, or ill-will." In re Bammer, 131 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 1997).

Plaintiffs adequately allege that Defendant willfully and maliciously injured Plaintiffs.

Chapter 7

In the FAC, Plaintiffs allege that Defendant induced Plaintiffs to enter into loans secured by the home in January 2017 and May 2017, with the same excessive interest rate, and that each loan was worse than the previous loan and made solely to enrich Defendant and his co-conspirators. Plaintiffs further allege that each loan sold or pushed by Defendant put Plaintiffs' home at risk and was a predatory loan that was illegal, in that the home was owner-occupied and Defendant knew that the home was owner-occupied and that Plaintiffs had no ability to make the payments. Plaintiffs state that Defendant's acts were done with specific intent to harm Plaintiffs.

In addition, the incorporated Settlement Agreement contains Defendant's admissions that his actions were malicious. In the Settlement Agreement, Defendant admitted that: (A) he committed a wrongful act; (B) the act was done intentionally; (C) the act necessarily caused injury to Mr. Alvarez; (D) the act was done without just cause or excuse; and (E) Mr. Alvarez was harmed and damaged by Defendant. As such, the FAC and the Settlement Agreement establish a claim under § 523(a)(6).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss Plaintiffs' claim under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) with leave to amend. The Court will deny the Motion as to Plaintiffs' claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(6).

If Plaintiffs elect to amend the FAC, they must file and serve a second amended complaint no later than October 21, 2020. Otherwise, no later than October 21, 2020, Plaintiffs must file and serve a notice that they will not be amending the FAC. No later than November 12, 2020, Defendant must file and serve a response to any second amended complaint, or, if one is not filed, an answer to the FAC.

Plaintiffs must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#2.00 Status conference re chapter 11, subchapter V case

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

In its original chapter 11 petition [doc. 1], the debtor elected to proceed under subchapter V of chapter 11. In addition, on September 8, 2020, the debtor filed a Subchapter V Status Report [doc. 14]. However, on September 14, 2020, the debtor filed an amended petition [doc. 17], identifying itself as a small business debtor but no longer checking the box to proceed under subchapter V of chapter 11.

Does the debtor no longer wish to proceed under subchapter V of chapter 11?

On August 27, 2020, the Court entered an order setting this status conference [doc. 4] and requiring the debtor to file a declaration including the following information: (A) any litigation in which the debtor is involved; (B) whether the debtor intends to hire any professionals and, if so, when the debtor intends to file the related employment application(s); and (C) a budget of the debtor's projected income, expenses and cash flow for the first six months of this case on a month by month basis. The debtor has not filed a declaration including this information.

If the debtor will not be proceeding under subchapter V, the debtor still must provide for payment of the subchapter V trustee's Court-approved fees and expenses. In addition, the debtor will have to pay the U.S. Trustee's quarterly fees, incurred after it is no longer proceeding under subchapter V.

The bar date has been set for February 22, 2021.

In the event the debtor will not be proceeding under subchapter V, the Court will set March 12, 2021 as the deadline for the debtor to file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement.

If the debtor elects to proceed in subchapter V, the parties should address the following:

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1189(b), the debtor's deadline to file a proposed plan is November 23, 2020.

Continued chapter 11 case status conference to be held at 2:30 p.m. on December 17, 2020.

The debtor must file a status report, to be served on the debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors, all secured creditors, and the Subchapter V Trustee, not later than 14 days before the continued status conference. The status report must be supported by evidence in the form of declarations and supporting documents.

The status report must address the following:

What efforts has the debtor made so far to obtain the consent of creditors for a consensual plan?

If the debtor expects that the plan will be a nonconsensual plan, i.e., a plan confirmed under 11 U.S.C. § 1191(b), why does it expect that?

Any additional information the debtor would like to disclose to the Court concerning this chapter 11 case or the plan (e.g. executory contracts or unexpired leases or sale or surrender of real and/or personal property).

The Court will prepare an order continuing the status conference and setting the deadline to file and serve the related status report, as well as the deadline to file a chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement, if the debtor is not proceeding under subchapter V of chapter 11.

#55.00 Motion for objection to the notice of mortgage payment change filed by U.S. Bank Trust National Trust Association as Trustee for GIFM Holdings Trust on June 23, 2020

fr. 09/08/2020;

Docket 64

Tentative Ruling:

At the last hearing on this matter, the Court instructed the debtor and the lender to file and serve, no later than September 22, 2020, documentary evidence regarding the source of funding for the subject insurance payments. On September 22, 2020, debtor Gus Albert Bolona filed a declaration testifying that the debtors have made all insurance payments and attaching certain payments as documentary evidence of such payment. The lender has not timely filed any evidence of its own.

As such, the Court will sustain the debtors' objection to the lender's notice of mortgage change.

The debtors must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#3.00 Motion for relief from stay [RP]

ARKADY VAPNIK
VS
DEBTOR

fr. 9/9/20

Docket 10

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On September 26, 2019, Vladislav Fedorenko (the "Borrower") executed a promissory note (the "Note") in the principal sum of $730,000, which was made payable to Arkady Vapnik (the "Movant") [doc. 10-1, Exh. 1]. The Note is secured by a deed of trust ("Deed of Trust"), executed by the Borrower, encumbering the real property located at 5351 Yolanda Avenue, Tarzana, California 91356 (the "Property"). Id. at Exh. 2. The Deed of Trust describes the Borrower, "a Married Man as his Sole and Separate Property as trustor." Pursuant to the terms of the Note, the Borrower agreed that:

Interest-only payments shall be due and payable in consecutive monthly installments of $5,468.92 on the 1st day of each month beginning on 12/01/2019. Such payments shall continue until the entire indebtedness evidenced by this Note and all accrued and unpaid interest and fees are fully paid, with any unpaid principal and interest due and payable on 11/01/2020 (the "Maturity Date").

Id. at Exh. 1. The Note further contained a "balloon payment" provision, which required the Borrower to make a payment of $730,000 along with any accrued interest and fees on November 1, 2020. See id.

On March 24, 2020, the Movant recorded a notice of default against the Property, reflecting a default in the amount of $26,089.26 [doc. 10-1, Exh. 4]. Accordingly, on July 6, 2020, the Movant recorded a notice of trustee's sale, which set a foreclosure sale of the Property for August 4, 2020. Id. at Exh. 5. This sale was postponed to August 11, 2020. Id. at 13.

On August 10, 2020, one day before the scheduled foreclosure sale, Yelena Chistyakova (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition. On that same day, the Borrower executed a quitclaim deed to transfer title from the Property to the Debtor [doc. 10-1, Exh. 6]. Debtor contends that she has a community property interest in the Property, as the Borrower's spouse.

In her Schedules, the Debtor provides the following information:

Value of the Property	$1,140,926.00
Debtor's net monthly income	$3,979.32
Borrower's net monthly income	$4,771.98
Total monthly income	$8,751.00
Total monthly expenses	$7,194.00
Monthly net income	$1,557.00

[See doc. 14, Schedules I, J; doc. 15, Schedule A/B]. In her Schedule I, the Debtor indicated that she does not expect an increase in income within the year after filing.

II. THE MOTION

On August 18, 2020, the Movant filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay (the "Motion") [doc. 10]. In the Motion, the Movant contends that the Debtor filed her bankruptcy petition in bad faith and that the unauthorized transfer of the Property one day before the scheduled foreclosure sale was part of a scheme to delay, hinder, or defraud the Movant.

III. THE OPPOSITION

On August 24, 2020, the Debtor filed a chapter 13 plan, which proposes to pay $83,505.30 in arrears to the Movant [doc. 18]. The Debtor's proposed plan payment is $1,557.00 per month for sixty months. Additionally, the Debtor will pay a $1,391.76 monthly dividend to the Movant to cure the arrearage. The proposed plan is a 100% plan.

On August 26, 2020, the Debtor filed a response to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 23]. In the Opposition, the Debtor argues that her bankruptcy petition was not filed in bad faith because: (1) the Property has an estimated value of $1,250,000.00 based on a new property appraisal [doc. 23, Exh. B]; (2) the Movant's secured claim of $813,505.00 is fully covered; and (3) the Debtor has an equity cushion in the amount of $336,495.00. The Debtor also argues that the $83,505.13 in accrued interest is excessive and demands an accounting.

IV. THE REPLY

On September 23, 2020, the Movant filed a reply to the Debtor's Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 32]. In the Reply, the Movant contends that, because the loan is set to mature on November 1, 2020, the Debtor's chapter 13 plan is not feasible and demonstrates bad faith. Specifically, the Movant states that at least $880,665.56 is due on November 1, 2020 and that the Debtor's monthly net income of $1,557.00 is insufficient to cure the arrearage and maintain the required plan payments at the same time.

On September 23, 2020, the Movant objected to the Debtor's proposed chapter 13 plan because, among other things, the Debtor has insufficient income to confirm a chapter 13 plan, which pays the Movant's secured claim in full over the term of the plan, and that the Debtor filed the pending case in bad faith.

V. DISCUSSION

11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(4) provides:

On request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant relief from the stay provided under subsection (a) of this section, such as by terminating, annulling, modifying, or conditioning such stay—

(1) for cause, including the lack of adequate protection of an interest in property of such party in interest;

...

(4) with respect to a stay of an act against real property under subsection (a), by a creditor whose claim is secured by an interest in such real property, if the court finds that the filing of the petition was part of a scheme to delay, hinder, or defraud creditors that involved either—

(A) transfer of all or part ownership of, or other interest in, such real property without the consent of the secured creditor or court approval; or

(B) multiple bankruptcy filings affecting such real property.

If recorded in compliance with applicable State laws governing notices of interests or liens in real property, an order entered under paragraph (4) shall be binding in any other case under this title purporting to affect such real property filed not later than 2 years after the date of the entry of such order by the court, except that a debtor in a subsequent case under this title may move for relief from such order based upon changed circumstances or for good cause shown, after notice and a hearing. Any Federal, State, or local governmental unit that accepts notices of interests or liens in real property shall accept any certified copy of an order described in this subsection for indexing and recording.

11 U.S.C. § 1322(c) provides that:

(c) Notwithstanding subsection (b)(2) and applicable nonbankruptcy law—

(1) a default with respect to, or that gave rise to, a lien on the debtor's principal residence may be cured under paragraph (3) or (5) of subsection (b) until such residence is sold at a foreclosure sale that is conducted in accordance with applicable nonbankruptcy law; and

- (2) in a case in which the last payment on the original schedule for a claim secured only by a security interest in real property that is the debtor's principal residence is due before the date on which the final payment under the plan is due, the plan may provide for the payment of the claim as modified pursuant to section 1325(a)(5) of this title.

The Debtor's proposed chapter 13 plan cannot be confirmed without agreement from the Movant. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1322(c)(2), the Debtor must pay Movant's allowed secured claim in full, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(5), during the term of a confirmed chapter 13 plan. However, the Debtor does not have sufficient income to do so.

Given the Debtor's contention that there is a large equity cushion in the Property, and attempts to negotiate a compromise with the Movant have stalled, is the Debtor willing to convert her case to one under chapter 7?

#12.00 Order to show cause why this adversary proceeding should not be dismissed for failure to prosecute

Docket 18

Tentative Ruling:

On July 29, 2020, the Court entered a scheduling order [doc. 13], instructing the parties to file a joint status report no later than August 5, 2020. On August 26, 2020, the Court held a status conference. Prior to the status conference, FR, LLC ("Plaintiff") did not timely file a status report. As such, on August 28, 2020, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause why this adversary proceeding should not be dismissed for failure to prosecute (the "OSC") [doc. 18]. The Court also mentioned that the debtor contends it has yet to be served with the complaint. In the OSC, the Court instructed Plaintiff to file a response no later than September 23, 2020, and for defendants to file any response no later than September 30, 2020.

On September 23, Plaintiff filed a response to the OSC (the "Response") [doc. 21]. In the Response, Plaintiff contends that it failed to file a status report because its counsel did not calendar the status conference. Plaintiff also states that service has been completed in accordance with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 4 and Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7004 by mailing the summons and complaint to the debtor.

On October 1, 2020, the debtor filed a reply [doc. 22], asserting that Plaintiff must personally serve the debtor in accordance with California law, and that Plaintiff is a cancelled entity that cannot prosecute the action.

With respect to Plaintiff's failure to file a status report, Plaintiff has provided a declaration from counsel satisfactorily explaining the deficiency. The debtor does not address this point in its reply. As such, the Court will not dismiss the proceeding on this basis.

However, the debtor asserts that the complaint was not properly served. According to the debtor, because the complaint was filed in state court, Plaintiff was required to serve the debtor in person. To the Response, Plaintiff attached a proof of service, dated December 31, 2019, showing service of the summons and complaint by mail. Under California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 415.30—

- (a) A summons may be served by mail as provided in this section. A copy of the summons and of the complaint shall be mailed (by first-class mail or airmail, postage prepaid) to the person to be served, together with two copies of the notice and acknowledgment provided for in subdivision (b) and a return envelope, postage prepaid, addressed to the sender.

- (c) Service of a summons pursuant to this section is deemed complete on the date a written acknowledgment of receipt of summons is executed, if such acknowledgment thereafter is returned to the sender.

(emphasis added). In addition, CCP § 415.30(b) sets forth language that must be included in the notice and acknowledgment mailed to the defendant.

Here, there is no evidence that Plaintiff served the notice and acknowledgment required by CCP § 415.30(b). In addition, service under CCP § 415.30 is not effectuated until the defendant executes a written acknowledgment of receipt of summons. There is no evidence that any of the defendants executed such a written acknowledgment. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 9027(f)—

If one or more of the defendants has not been served with process, the service has not been perfected prior to removal, or the process served proves to be defective, such process or service may be completed or new process issued pursuant to Part VII of these rules. This subdivision shall not deprive any defendant on whom process is served after removal of the defendant's right to move to remand the case.

Because it appears service was not perfected prior to removal, Plaintiff must request another summons and serve the defendants in accordance with FRBP 7004.

The final issue raised by the debtor is that Plaintiff is a canceled entity. To this end, the debtor attaches a Certificate of Cancellation from the California Secretary of State. However, a search of the California Secretary of State's website also generates a record of a "FR L.L.C." That entity remains active. As such, it is not immediately clear that the Certificate of Cancellation relates to Plaintiff.

In light of the above, the Court will discharge the OSC. However, unless the defendants waive the service issues, Plaintiff must request another summons and properly serve the defendants under the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure.

Plaintiff can obtain Another Summons by filing form F 7001-1.2.REQUEST.ANOTHER. SUMMONS, located on the Court's website. Upon receiving the filing of the Request that the Clerk Issue Another Summons and Notice of Status Conference, the Clerk will issue Another Summons.

The Another Summons must be served upon the defendants within 7 days of its issuance by the Court, pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004 and Local Bankr. R. 7004-1(b). Plaintiff must attach to the Another Summons a copy of the complaint and a copy of Judge Kaufman's Status Conference Instructions (the "Instructions").

The Instructions include this Court's procedures regarding a claimed right to trial by jury. If the parties dispute whether Plaintiff is entitled to a jury trial, in order for the Court to adjudicate this issue timely, the parties must follow the procedures set forth in item 7 of the Instructions.

To demonstrate proper service of the Another Summons and the complaint and Instructions to be served with that summons, Plaintiff must file a signed proof of service indicating that the Another Summons and the documents to be served with that summons were timely served on the defendants. If Plaintiff can obtain an issued Another Summons from the Court by October 16, 2020, the status conference will be continued to 1:30 p.m. on November 25, 2020.

No later than November 12, 2020, the parties must submit a joint status report in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a).

fr. 8/12/20; 9/16/20

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Parties should be prepared to discuss the following:

Within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiff must submit an Order Assigning Matter to Mediation Program and Appointing Mediator and Alternate Mediator using Form 702. During the status conference, the parties must inform the Court of their choice of Mediator and Alternate Mediator. The parties should contact their mediator candidates before the status conference to determine if their candidates can accommodate the deadlines set forth below.

Deadline to complete discovery: 11/30/20.

Deadline to complete one day of mediation: 12/15/20.

Deadline to file pretrial motions: 1/15/21.

Deadline to complete and submit pretrial stipulation in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1: 2/3/21.

Pretrial: 2/17/21 at 1:30 p.m.

In accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a)(3), within seven (7) days after this status conference, the plaintiff must submit a Scheduling Order.

If any of these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

#9.00 Debtor's Motion to Convert Case From Chapter 7 to 13

Docket 180

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 10, 2018, Richard Phillip Dages (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In his schedules, the Debtor provided the following information:

Employment	Self-employed manager
Monthly income	$11,740.33
Monthly expenses	$10,060.00
Net monthly income	$1,680.33

[See Doc.1, Schedules I and J]. Furthermore, in his schedules, the Debtor stated that Mr. Cooper f/k/a Nationstar Mortgage ("Mr. Cooper") has a secured claim in the amount of $1,400,00.00 [doc. 1, Sch. D]. The Debtor also stated that the property securing Mr. Cooper's claim is valued at $810,000.00 [Doc. 1, Sch. D]. The Debtor scheduled $17,305.00 in other unsecured debt. None of the Debtor's debts are described as unliquidated or contingent.

In its proof of claim 2-1, filed on July 19, 2018, Mr. Cooper set forth that it has a secured claim, as of the petition date, in the amount of $1,201,784.09.

On November 1, 2019, the Debtor filed his chapter 11 plan of reorganization and related disclosure statement [docs. 117, 118]. On January 9, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the adequacy of the Debtor's proposed disclosure statement and case status conference. At the hearing, the Court denied the adequacy of the disclosure statement [doc. 131].

On May 5, 2020, the Court entered an order converting the case from chapter 11 to one under chapter 7 [doc. 170]. Diane C. Weil was appointed as chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") [doc. 174].

II. THE MOTION

On July 27, 2020, the Debtor filed a Motion to Convert Case Under 11 U.S.C. §§ 706(a) or 1112(a) (the "Motion") [doc. 180]. In the Motion, the Debtor seeks to convert his case from chapter 7 to one under chapter 13. The Debtor avers that he is a 73-old Navy veteran and seeks to keep his home by converting his case to one under chapter 13. The Debtor states that he can pay off his unsecured creditors, through chapter 13.

III. THE OPPOSITION

On September 24, 2020, the Trustee filed an Opposition to Debtor's Motion to Convert Case to a Case under Chapter 13 (the "Opposition") [doc. 190]. In the Opposition, the Trustee contends that the Debtor does not qualify to be a debtor in a chapter 13 case. Specifically, the Trustee contends that the Debtor's secured debt exceeds the $1,184,200.00 debt limit pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 109(e).

IV. DISCUSSION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 706(a) and (d)—

- (a) The debtor may convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 11, 12, or 13 of this title at any time, if the case has not been converted under section 1112, 1208, or 1307 of this title. Any waiver of the right to convert a case under this subsection is unenforceable.

...

- (d) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, a case may not be converted to a case under another of this title unless the debtor may be a debtor under such chapter.

(e) Only an individual with regular income that owes, on the date of the filing of the petition, noncontingent, liquidated, unsecured debts of less than $394,725 and noncontingent, liquidated, secured debts of less than $1,184,200 or an individual with regular income and such individual's spouse, except a stockbroker or a commodity broker, that owe, on the date of the filing of the petition, noncontingent, liquidated, unsecured debts that aggregate less than $394,725 and noncontingent, liquidated, secured debts of less than $1,184,200 may be a debtor under chapter 13 of this title.

The right to convert under this section is not absolute. In Marrama v. Citizens Bank of Mass., 549 U.S. 365, 127 S. Ct. 1105, 166 L. Ed. 2d 956 (2007), the Supreme Court of the United States determined that a debtor forfeits his right to convert a chapter 13 under § 706(a) if the debtor engages in bad faith conduct that would warrant dismissal or reconversion of a chapter 13 case.

The Supreme Court also determined that there is no absolute right to conversion because of § 706(d), which requires a debtor be eligible to be a debtor under the chapter to which he wishes to convert. Marrama, 549 U.S. at 372. The Supreme Court looked to the reasons why a debtor may not qualify to be a debtor under chapter 13, such as 11 U.S.C. § 109(e) (which sets forth the Code's requirements for being a chapter 13 debtor) or, more importantly, for "cause," under § 1307(c) (which sets forth the standards for dismissal or conversion under chapter 13). Id.

A chapter 7 debtor may convert the case to chapter 11, 12, or 13 at any time. 11 U.S.C. § 706(a). However, a debtor may not convert a chapter 7 case to a case under another chapter unless the debtor is eligible for relief under that chapter. 11 U.S.C. § 706(d). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 109(e), only individuals with regular income whose debts are below the applicable ceilings may be debtors under chapter 13. An "individual with regular income" means an individual who has "sufficiently stable and regular" monthly income "to enable them to make plan payments in chapter 13." 11 U.S.C. § 101(30). A debtor without excess income to fund a plan or who cannot establish a reasonable certainty that income is forthcoming to fund a plan does not meet the eligibility requirements for chapter 13. In re Jones, 174 B.R. 8, 13 (Bankr. D.N.H. 1994).

Chapter 7

A debtor must meet the debt limits as of the petition date. Scovis v. Henrichsen (In re Scovis), 249 F.3d 975, 981 (9th Cir. 2001). Post-petition events do not change the debt limit analysis. Slack v. Wilshire Insurance Company (In re Slack), 187 F.3d 1070, 1072 (9th Cir. 1999). A court looks at a debtor's schedules to determine whether the debtor meets the debt limit requirements. Scovis, 249 F.3d at 982.

Here, the Debtor's debts exceed the section 109(e) ceilings of $1,184,200 for secured debts and $394,725 for unsecured debts. Because the Debtor filed his petition in 2018, the operative debt limit to determine chapter 13 eligibility is $1,184,200 for secured claims and $394,725 for unsecured claims.

Mr. Cooper filed a proof of claim in the amount of $1,201,784.09. This amount is more than $1,184,200.00 for secured claims. Conversely, the unsecured portion of Mr. Cooper's claim of $391,784.09, as subtracted from its proof of claim and taking into account the scheduled value of the Debtor's real property, combined with other scheduled unsecured claims, totals $409,089.09 in unsecured debt. This amount is more than the applicable limit of $394,725.00 for unsecured claims. Consequently, the Debtor is not eligible to convert his case from chapter 7 to one under chapter 13.

#11.00 Motion of Chapter 7 Trustee for order compelling turnover of personal property

fr. 9/17/20

Docket 42

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On March 20, 2020, Nasrin Nino ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David K. Gottlieb was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In her schedule A/B, Debtor identified an interest in NNP Partnership (the "Partnership"), stating—

Debtor owns a 50% interest in NNP Partnership which was formed upon the dissolution of her marriage to Antone Nino in 1/2013. At the time of the dissolution, the parties owned an interest in several gas stations under different corporate names and the land in West Hills at which a gas station owned by a trust (debtor has no relationship to the trustors or the trust) is operating. Upon the dissolution, the respective interests of the parties became a partnership. Debtor's ex husband died in 2014 and Jeffrey Siegel has been appointed by the probate court to administer Antone's estate. The stations were sold and Siegel is holding about $350,000 for Antone's estate.

On August 27, 2020, the Trustee filed the Motion [doc. 42], requesting turnover of the assets held by the custodian, Mr. Siegel, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 543. The Trustee notes that Mr. Siegel informed the Trustee that he does not oppose the Motion, and will turn over the assets upon entry of an order by the Court. According to the Trustee, Mr. Siegel is holding approximately $345,000 in funds.

On September 17, 2020, Kamal Bilal, a creditor, filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 47]. In the Opposition, Mr. Bilal contends that he has a judgment against the Partnership, and that the assets held by Mr. Siegel are not property of the bankruptcy estate. Instead, Mr. Bilal contends that Mr. Siegel must use the Partnership's funds to satisfy the debt owed to Mr. Bilal. Mr. Bilal also provided a Judgment Pursuant to Stipulation (the "Stipulated Judgment"), dated January 10, 2020, wherein Mr. Siegel and Mr. Bilal agreed that the Partnership owes Mr. Bilal $300,000. Declaration of Robert M. Ungar, ¶ 11, Exhibit 5.

II. ANALYSIS

The parties do not dispute that the Partnership has not been wound up. Nevertheless, in the Motion, the Trustee appears to assert that the funds being held by Mr. Siegel are property of the estate. The Trustee has set forth no authority in support of his contention that the Partnership's assets are property of the estate.

"[W]hile the individual's interest in the partnership or corporation (which could be a 100 percent interest) would be property of the estate, the assets of the partnership or corporation itself would not be." In re Shapow, 599 B.R. 51, 71 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2019) (quoting 2 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 101.30[3] (16th ed. 2018)).

It is axiomatic that the mere bankruptcy of a partner does not bring the partnership's assets within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court. A debtor's interest in a partnership is an asset of the debtor's estate under 11 U.S.C § 541; the assets of the partnership are not. Before a partner is entitled to receive his share of the partnership's property, or his right to the profits of the partnership, if any, the partnership's creditors are entitled to payment.

In re Katz, 341 B.R. 123, 128 (Bankr. D. Mass. 2006) (internal citations omitted). As in Katz, which analyzed the issues under Massachusetts law, pursuant to California Corporations Code § 16807(a)—

In winding up a partnership's business, the assets of the partnership, including the contributions of the partners required by this section, shall be applied to discharge its obligations to creditors, including, to the extent permitted by law, partners who are creditors. Any surplus shall be applied to pay in cash the net amount distributable to partners in accordance with their right to distributions under subdivision (b).

Chapter 7

As such, prior to any distribution of the Partnership's assets to Debtor's estate, the Partnership must pay its obligations to creditors. The Stipulated Judgment evidences a debt owed by the Partnership to Mr. Bilal in the amount of $300,000. Even if Mr. Siegel turns the subject funds over to the Trustee, the Trustee may not use the funds as property of the estate unless the Partnership's obligations are satisfied; any surplus left after such satisfaction, which would normally be distributed to Debtor as the sole remaining partner, may then become part of Debtor's bankruptcy estate.

Although the Partnership's assets are not property of the estate, the Trustee succeeded to Debtor's rights as the sole partner tasked with winding up the Partnership, and this Court has jurisdiction to oversee the winding up process of the Partnership. "[T]he general rule that the simple act of a partner's filing of bankruptcy does not confer jurisdiction over the partnership's assets does not mean that a bankrupt partner's estate includes only his personal property interest in the partnership. It includes certain rights given to him by law and/or contract, including the rights to seek an accounting, and to request a judicially supervised wind-up and termination of the partnership." Katz, 341 B.R. at 128. For instance, one court explained—

The Court agrees with Defendants that a court imposed wind up of the Partnership is a non-core matter. The Court disagrees, however, that this Court lacks jurisdiction. Carolina Preservation Partners, Inc. v. Weinhold, 414 B.R. 754, 759 (M.D. Fla. 2009) (proceeding regarding partnership property is a related to proceeding); In re Katz, 341 B.R. at 131–32 (finding related to jurisdiction over a court ordered wind up because the right to make such a request was property of the estate). Under the applicable standard of related to jurisdiction, the procedures regarding the wind up of the Partnership undeniably impact the estate and the administration of the estate. "An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate." The Matter of Lemco Gypsum, Inc., 910 F.2d 784, 788 (11th Cir.1990).

Here, Mr. Siegel has agreed to turn over the Partnership's funds to the Trustee. Because Mr. Siegel holds funds in excess of the amount owed to Mr. Bilal pursuant to the Stipulated Judgment, the wind up of the Partnership may impact the estate by potentially bringing a surplus into the estate for distribution to creditors. Thus, the Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this matter.

In light of the authorities above, the Court will order that Mr. Siegel turn over the subject funds to the Trustee. However, the funds are not property of the estate. The Trustee may use the funds to wind up the Partnership in accordance with California law, including by complying with California Corporations Code § 16807(a).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion in part and deny the Motion in part.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#12.00 Debtor's Motion To Approve The Payment And Satisfaction Of General Unsecured Claim With Non-Estate Funds Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 105(A)

Docket 204

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On June 12, 2020, The Sands Law Group, APLC ("Sands Law") filed a proof of claim, asserting a prepetition claim against the estate in the amount of $10,500.01.

On August 10, 2020, Debtor filed an objection to Sands Law's claim (the "Objection to Claim") [doc. 130]. On September 17, 2020, the Court entered an order overruling in part and sustaining in part the Objection to Claim (the "Claim Order") [doc. 208]. In the Claim Order, the Court allowed a general unsecured claim in favor of Sands Law in the amount of $9,750.01.

On September 17, 2020, Debtor filed a motion to approve the payment of satisfaction of a general unsecured claim (the "Motion") [doc. 204]. In the Motion, Debtor states that Debtor's principal, Dmitri Lioudkouski, has agreed to pay Sands Law's claim in full while waiving a right of repayment from the estate. As such, Debtor requests an order authorizing Mr. Lioudkouski to transfer $9,750.01 to the estate for payment in full of Sands Law's claim.

II. ANALYSIS

Debtor cites 11 U.S.C. § 105(a) as its only authority in support of the Motion. However, "[i]t is hornbook law that § 105(a) does not allow the bankruptcy court to override explicit mandates of other sections of the Bankruptcy Code." Law v. Siegel, 571 U.S. 415, 421, 134 S.Ct. 1188, 1194, 188 L.Ed.2d 146 (2014) (internal quotation omitted). "Section 105(a) confers authority to 'carry out' the provisions of the Code, but it is quite impossible to do that by taking action that the Code prohibits." Id.

The Code does not expressly authorize courts to allow preferential payment of pre-petition obligations in contravention of its claims priority scheme or outside of a confirmed plan of reorganization.

A pre-petition creditor's continued business with the debtor-in-possession is often the stimulus for seeking payment of one creditor's prepetition debt over the others under a "doctrine of necessity" or "critical vendor" theory. These terms are not defined in the Bankruptcy Code. Indeed, most circuit courts, including the Ninth, have held that the bankruptcy court does not have general equitable power under § 105(a) to overrule the Code's priority scheme by favoring one class of unsecured creditors over another....

Even those courts that would allow such payments, under § 105(a), or under other code sections, such as a § 363 use of estate funds outside the ordinary course, demand a stringent evidentiary test showing that the payment of the pre-petition claims is critical to the debtor's reorganization.

In re Berry Good, LLC, 400 B.R. 741, 746–47 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 2008) (internal citations and quotations omitted). In addition, "[t]he general rule is that a distribution on pre-petition debt in a Chapter 11 case should not take place except pursuant to a confirmed plan of reorganization, absent extraordinary circumstances." In re Air Beds, Inc., 92 B.R. 419, 422–424 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1988). As explained by the Supreme Court of the United States—

The Code's priority system constitutes a basic underpinning of business bankruptcy law. Distributions of estate assets at the termination of a business bankruptcy normally take place through a Chapter 7 liquidation or a Chapter 11 plan, and both are governed by priority. In Chapter 7 liquidations, priority is an absolute command—lower priority creditors cannot receive anything until higher priority creditors have been paid in full. See 11 U.S.C. §§ 725, 726. Chapter 11 plans provide somewhat more flexibility, but a priority-violating plan still cannot be confirmed over the objection of an impaired class of creditors. See § 1129(b).

The priority system applicable to those distributions has long been considered fundamental to the Bankruptcy Code's operation. See H.R.Rep. No. 103–835, p. 33 (1994) (explaining that the Code is "designed to enforce a distribution of the debtor's assets in an orderly manner ... in accordance with established principles rather than on the basis of the inside influence or economic leverage of a particular creditor")....

The importance of the priority system leads us to expect more than simple statutory silence if, and when, Congress were to intend a major departure.

Czyzewski v. Jevic Holding Corp., 137 S.Ct. 973, 983–84, 197 L.Ed.2d 398 (2017).

Here, Debtor's latest amended schedule E/F [doc. 48] and the claims register identify several unsecured creditors other than Sands Law. Debtor's request to pay Sands Law ahead of other creditors of the estate contravenes the statutory priority and distribution scheme in the Bankruptcy Code. Under the authorities above, the Court does not have the power to alter that scheme by operation of § 105(a). Debtor having provided no other authority for the relief requested, the Court will deny the Motion.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion.

The Court will prepare the Order.

fr. 9/23/20

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will remand this adversary proceeding to the Superior Court of California, for the County of Los Angeles.

I. BACKGROUND

This case involves residential real property located at 4256 Tarzana Estates Drive, Tarzana, California 91356 (the "Tarzana Property") that has been transferred between family members, related parties and Transpine, Inc. ("Debtor"). Nisan Tepper is Debtor's CEO [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, doc. 40, Corporate Ownership Statement, p. 2–3). According to his 2005 declaration, Danny Tepper purchased the Tarzana Property in 1995 and resided there with his wife and children [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. A, Declaration of Danny Tepper, p. 87, ¶ 6–7].

A. The State Court Action

On May 30, 2017, Overland Direct, Inc. ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint in the Superior Court of California, for the County of Los Angeles, initiating state court case no. LC105743 (the "State Court Action") [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. A, Third Amended Complaint, p. 7].

In July 2017, Saeed Kashefi transferred the Tarzana Property via a quitclaim deed to Tarzana Holdings, LLC [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. A, Quitclaim Deed, p. 175]. Based on a grant deed recorded on August 2, 2017, Tarzana Holdings, LLC transferred the Tarzana Property to Debtor [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. A, Grant Deed, p. 178]. Saeed Kashefi, as the managing member of Tarzana Holdings, LLC, executed this grant deed.

In January 2018, Debtor granted a deed of trust, encumbering the Tarzana Property, to Wooshies, Inc. ("Wooshies") [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. A, Deed of Trust, p. 182]. On January 8, 2018, Nisan Tepper, Debtor's CEO, executed the Wooshies DOT. Id. On January 12, 2018, this deed of trust was recorded in the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office ("Wooshies DOT"). Id.

On November 5, 2019, Plaintiff filed a third amended complaint (the "TAC") against Yaniv Tepper, U.S. Bancorp, Quality Loan Service Corporation, Daniel Tepper, Esola Capital Investment, LLC ("Esola Capital"), Avshy Cohen, Debtor, Saeed Kashefi, Vanowen 2, LLC, Firooz Payan, Security Union Corporation, Tarzana Holdings, LLC and Does 1-50 (collectively, "Defendants") [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. A, TAC, p. 7–28]. Plaintiff asserts causes of action for: (1) declaratory relief; (2) voidable transfer; and (3) cancellation of written instrument. Id. at p. 25–27.

In the TAC, Plaintiff alleges—

Based on the fraudulent transfers, assignments, and foreclosure described herein, which Plaintiff contends are void, voidable, and/or unenforceable, Debtor has never held valid fee simple ownership of the Tarzana Property, including when it purportedly executed the Wooshies DOT securing the loan from Wooshies. As a result, Wooshies did not have the right to encumber the Tarzana Property to secure its loan and Wooshies would have been on notice of the title issues relating to the Tarzana Property had Wooshies conducted proper due diligence into the chain of title for the Tarzana Property.

At the time Transpine received its loan from Wooshies and the parties executed the Wooshies DOT securing the Tarzana Property, this lawsuit had already been pending for approximately six months (since May 30, 2017) and Debtor was an active, participating defendant in this action.

At the time the Wooshies DOT was executed, Debtor was aware the San Diego Superior Court had issued a temporary restraining order (February 23, 2017) and a preliminary injunction (March 13, 2017) as to the Tarzana Property.

Chapter 11

On March 12, 2018, approximately two months after the execution of the Wooshies DOT, the San Diego Superior Court entered an order adding "Transpine, Inc. and any other entities owned or otherwise controlled by Daniel Tepper" to the preliminary injunction issued on March 13, 2017.

...

Daniel Tepper, Esola Capital, Yaniv Tepper, Kashefi, Payan, and Tarzana Holdings, LLC used Debtor as a vehicle to orchestrate a fraud to obtain title to the Tarzana Property, transfer the property to Debtor, obtain a loan from Wooshies, and use the Tarzana Property as security for the note. This was done to circumvent an injunction and to hide the Tarzana Property from Esola Capital's creditors, including Plaintiff, Cartwright Termite & Pest Control, Inc., and Michael R. Cartwright II.

Id. at p. 23–24, ¶ 61–64, 67. Based on these allegations, Plaintiff seeks, among other relief, a judicial declaration to determine who owns the Tarzana Property, injunctive relief, voidable transfer, cancellation of the Wooshies DOT and monetary damages against Defendants. Id. at p. 27.

In the State Court Action, defaults of several of the Defendants have been entered, and a stipulated judgment was entered against Firooz Payan. [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 21, Joint Status Report, p. 4]. Esola Capital and Vanowen 2, LLC have not filed answers, although their defaults apparently have not yet been entered. Id.

Wooshies already has prevailed on a demurrer, and judgment was entered in Wooshies' favor to avoid cancellation of the Wooshies DOT. [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, doc. 49, Declaration of Daniel J. McCarthy, p. 16, ¶ 6; Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 8-1, p. 167]. The remaining active Defendants are Debtor, Yaniv Tepper, Daniel Tepper and Nisan Tepper, individually and as trustee of the Tepper Family Revocable Trust. Chapter 11

On August 7, 2020, Debtor filed a notice of the automatic stay in the State Court Action [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Notice of Removal, p. 3, line 11]. The Superior Court of California, for the County of Los Angeles (the "State Court") had scheduled a hearing on Plaintiff's motion to compel deposition and motion to compel further responses, which was to take place on August 10, 2020 [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 8-1, p. 166]. Prior to the hearing, the State Court issued a lengthy tentative decision that Plaintiff had met its burden of showing good cause for the motions to compel. Id., at pp. 166-69.

On August 10, 2020, the State Court issued a minute order recognizing the automatic stay, resulting from Debtor's bankruptcy filing [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. C, State Court Minute Order, p. 259]. Consequently, the State Court rescheduled the hearing on Plaintiff's motion to compel deposition and motion to compel further discovery responses. Id. On August 19, 2020, Debtor removed the State Court Action to this Court.

At this time, in the State Court Action, several motions are set for hearing on December 1, 2020, including Plaintiff's motions to compel and a trial setting conference [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 21, Attachment to Joint Status Report: Nisan Tepper and Transpine, p. 6].

B. Debtor's Bankruptcy Case and the Removal

On July 22, 2020, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In its Schedule A, Debtor lists as assets its interest in the Tarzana Property and $246.91 in cash. Debtor's Schedule G indicates that it has no unexpired leases [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, doc. 40, Schedule G]

Based on Debtor's schedules, the Tarzana Property is encumbered by a single deed of trust, i.e., the Wooshies DOT, securing a claim in the amount of $1.3 million [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, doc. 40, Schedule D]. Based on Debtor's Schedule A, the Tarzana Property has a value of $2.4 million [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, doc. 40, Schedule A].

At this time, and throughout 2020, Debtor is not producing any rental or other income. [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, July 2020 monthly operating report, doc. 39;

Other than Wooshies' claim, Debtor has: (1) two priority unsecured tax debts; (2) non-priority unsecured debts payable to Nisan Tepper, its CEO; (3) non-priority unsecured debt payable to counsel of record for Nisan Tepper and Debtor in the State Court Action, i.e., Kelley Semmel, LLP; and (4) non-priority unsecured debt, described as contingent, unliquidated and disputed, payable to Plaintiff [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, doc. 40, Schedules E and F].

According to Nisan Tepper, the "Debtor's primary asset is its 100% ownership of the [Tarzana] Property. The Bankruptcy Case was largely precipitated by a pending foreclosure sale by the purported first trust deed holder, Wooshies, Inc." [Bankruptcy Docket, 20-11286, doc. 47, Declaration of Nisan Tepper, p. 8, ¶ 8].

On September 9, 2020, the Court issued an Amended Order to Show Cause re: Remand and Notice of Setting Status Conference (Removed Proceeding) (the "OSC") [doc. 13]. In the OSC, the Court instructed any party who supports remand to file and serve a memorandum of points and authorities 28 days after removal of the State Court Action, and any party who opposes remand to file and serve a memorandum of points and authorities 14 days before the status conference.

No party timely filed a response to the OSC. On September 30, 2020, the parties filed a Joint Status Report (the "Status Report") [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 21]. In the Status Report, Plaintiff demands a jury trial and does not consent to this Court's authority to enter final judgment. Defendants dispute that Plaintiff has a right to a jury trial, and they consent to this Court's authority to enter a final judgment.

II. DISCUSSION

1. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Removal of state court actions to federal district court is governed by 28 U.S.C. §§ 1441–1455. Removal and remand of actions related to bankruptcy cases is governed by § 1452.

(a) A party may remove any claim or cause of action in a civil action . . . to the district court for the district where such civil action is pending, if such district court has jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under section 1334 of this title.

- (b) The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground[.]

28 U.S.C. § 1452.

The Court strictly construes the removal statutes against removal jurisdiction, and jurisdiction must be rejected if there is any doubt as to the right of removal. See Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992). The party seeking removal bears the burden of establishing federal jurisdiction. Id. Moreover, under the well-pleaded complaint rule, "[t]he presence or absence of federal question jurisdiction is governed by the 'well-pleaded complaint,' which provides that federal jurisdiction exists only when a federal question is presented on the fact of the plaintiff's properly pleaded complaint." Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318 (1987).

Parties cannot consent to subject matter jurisdiction. Clapp v. Commissioner, 875 F.2d 1396, 1398 (9th Cir. 1992) ("Subject matter jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon the court by consent or waiver."); In re Marshall, 264 B.R. 609, 619 (C.D. Cal. 2001) ("[I]n so far as the issue is the actual subject matter jurisdiction of the federal courts, rather than just the bankruptcy court's power to enter a final judgment, such jurisdiction cannot be conferred by consent.").

As set forth in § 1452, removal to a bankruptcy court requires that the court have jurisdiction of such claim or cause of action under 28 U.S.C. § 1334. Section 1334(b), with regard to bankruptcy cases and proceedings, provides that:

Except as provided by subsection (e)(2) and notwithstanding any Act of Congress that confers exclusive jurisdiction on a court or courts other than the district courts, the district courts shall have original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11.

a. Arising Under Jurisdiction

"A matter arises under the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010).

b. Arising In Jurisdiction

"A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id.

Matters that "arise under or in Title 11 are deemed to be 'core' proceedings[.]" In re Harris Pine Mills, 44 F.3d 1431, 1435 (9th Cir. 1995). Title 28, United States Code, section 157(b)(2) sets out a non-exclusive list of core proceedings, including "matters concerning the administration of the estate," "allowance or disallowance of claims," "objection to discharges," "motions to terminate, annul, or modify the automatic stay," and "confirmation of plans." Bankruptcy courts have the authority to hear and enter final judgments in "all core proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in a case under title 11[.]" 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(1); Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 475–76, 131 S. Ct. 2594, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011).

Where the court does not have power to enter final judgment, the court only may "issue final rulings on pretrial matters, including claim-dispositive motions, that do not require factual findings." In re AWTR Liquidation Inc., 547 B.R. 831, 839 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2016). Otherwise, the court must either submit proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law to the United States District Court, or the parties must withdraw the reference for the United States District Court to preside over trial. Exec. Benefits Ins. Agency v. Arkison, 573 U.S. 25, 31, 134 S. Ct. 2165, 2170, 189 L.Ed.2d 83 (2014).

c. Related to Jurisdiction

Bankruptcy courts also have jurisdiction over proceedings that are "related to" a bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); In re Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d 1189,

Chapter 11

1193 (9th Cir. 2005). A proceeding is "related to" a bankruptcy case if:

[T]he outcome of the proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. Thus, the proceeding need not necessarily be against the debtor or against the debtor's property. An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate.

Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d at 1193 (quoting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984) (emphasis omitted).

Here, the State Court Action did not "arise under" the Bankruptcy Code because the causes of action asserted by Plaintiff do not depend on bankruptcy statutes. In addition, this proceeding does not "arise in" Debtor's bankruptcy case because it is not a matter that is unique to bankruptcy, and the State Court Action could (and did) exist independent of Debtor's bankruptcy case.

However, this Court has subject matter jurisdiction over the issues raised in the State Court Action. Although the TAC includes state law causes of action that do not arise under the Bankruptcy Code or arise in a bankruptcy case, the Court has "related to" jurisdiction over these claims because Plaintiff seeks to void the transfer of the Tarzana Property to Debtor. As such, the litigation involves issues regarding ownership of property of the estate. A resolution of the State Court Action may impact whether the Tarzana Property will remain property of the estate. Consequently, the Court has subject matter jurisdiction over the State Court Action.

2. Remand

"Bankruptcy courts have broad discretion to remand cases over which they otherwise have jurisdiction on any equitable ground." In re Enron Corp., 296 B.R. 505, 508 (C.D. Cal. 2003). 28 U.S.C. § 1452(b) provides, in pertinent part, that "[t]he court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground." "[E]ven where federal jurisdiction attaches in actions 'related to' bankruptcy proceedings, Congress has explicitly provided for courts to find that those matters are more properly adjudicated in state court.'" Parke v. Cardsystem Solutions, Inc., 2006 WL 2917604 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 11, 2006) (quoting Williams v. Shell Oil Co., 169 B.R. 684, 690 (S.D. Cal. 1994)).

Courts generally consider up to fourteen factors in deciding whether to remand a case to state court. Enron, 296 B.R. at 508. Factors courts should consider in deciding whether to remand are:

- (1) the effect or lack thereof on the efficient administration of the estate if the court recommends [remand or] abstention;
- (2) extent to which state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues;
- (3) difficult or unsettled nature of applicable law;
- (4) presence of related proceeding commenced in state court or other nonbankruptcy proceeding;
- (5) jurisdiction basis, if any, other than [section] 1334;
- (6) degree of relatedness or remoteness of proceeding to main bankruptcy case;
- (7) the substance rather than the form of an asserted core proceeding;
- (8) the feasibility of severing state law claims from core bankruptcy matters to allow judgments to be entered in state court with enforcement left to the bankruptcy court;
- (9) the burden on the bankruptcy court's docket;
- (10) the likelihood that the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy court involves forum shopping by one of the parties;
- (11) the existence of a right to a jury trial;
- (12) the presence in the proceeding of nondebtor parties;
- (13) comity; and
- (14) the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action.

Id. at 508 n. 2; see also In re Cytodyn of New Mexico, Inc., 374 B.R. 733, 738 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2007).

Here, although the Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this matter, the Court will remand this matter to the State Court based on the following factors.

Chapter 11

a. Effect on the Efficient Administration of the Estate

The impact of this litigation on administration of the estate is significant. This litigation concerns whether the Tarzana Property should remain an asset of Debtor and its bankruptcy estate. However, because this litigation has been pending in State Court since 2017, and the State Court already has decided various motions, including a dispositive motion regarding the Wooshies DOT, judicial efficiency favors remand.

b. Predominance of State Law Issues/Jurisdictional Basis Other than 1334

Here, the state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues. There is no jurisdictional basis other than 28 U.S.C. § 1334. Through the State Court Action, Plaintiff seeks to determine who owns the Tarzana Property and to prevent Defendants from selling or transferring the Tarzana Property, based on state law. There are no issues dependent on bankruptcy law.

a. Difficult or Unsettled Nature of Law/Burden on the Bankruptcy Court's Docket

The State Court Action has been pending since 2017, and Debtor's notice of removal contains over forty pages of case information concerning future hearing dates, court rulings and procedural history [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 1, Exh. B, p. 212–257]. The State Court already has granted a demurrer regarding the Wooshies' DOT. Moreover, the State Court already has assessed the pending motions to compel, and the litigation concerns solely state law and prior orders of one or more state courts. Although the causes of action in the litigation appear to be a well-settled areas of the law, it is burdensome for this Court to assess matters which already have been assessed by the State Court, and with which the State Court has developed substantial familiarity.

b. Likelihood of Forum Shopping

It appears that Debtor removed the State Court Action as forum shopping. Plaintiff contends that Debtor and related parties have transferred (or encumbered) the Tarzana Property in violation of a preliminary injunction and to hinder Plaintiff from collecting state court awarded judgments against Daniel Tepper and Esola Capital.

On August 10, 2020, the State Court provided a lengthy tentative ruling, in Plaintiff's favor, on Plaintiff's motions to compel the deposition of Daniel Tepper, production of documents from Nisan Tepper (Debtor's CEO) and preparing the case to go to trial.

The significant amount of time that this litigation had proceeded in the State Court, the proximity of the State Court hearing on August 10, 2020, regarding Plaintiff's motions to compel deposition and production of documents with respect to Debtor's insiders, the State Court's tentative decision in Plaintiff's favor regarding those motions and Debtor's removal of this litigation to this Court on August 19, 2020 suggest that Debtor did not remove this litigation in good faith.

c. Existence of a Right to Jury Trial

In the Status Report, Plaintiff demands a jury trial, based on its fraudulent transfer claims for damages and avoidance of transfer, and states that it intends to ask the United States District Court to withdraw the reference of this action; the parties dispute whether Plaintiff has such a right. [Adversary Docket, 20-01074, doc. 21].

d. Presence of Non-Debtor Parties/Comity

The State Court Action includes numerous non-debtor defendants involved in transactions concerning the Tarzana Property. "Comity dictates that California courts should have the right to adjudicate the exclusively state law claims involving California-centric plaintiffs and California-centric transactions." Enron, 296 B.R. at 505. The State Court Action involves a California plaintiff and California-centric transactions. Moreover, Plaintiff contends that Debtor and other Defendants have violated a state court's preliminary injunction concerning the Tarzana Property. That issue is best adjudicated by the State Court.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will remand the State Court Action.

The Court will prepare the order.

#9.00 Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment; in the Alternative, for Summary Adjudication on Each Individual Claim Asserted in Trustee's Complaint

fr. 10/7/20

Docket 33

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On February 16, 2018, Deborah Lois Adri ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On April 8, 2019, the Court entered an order converting this case to a chapter 7 case [doc. 305]. Elissa D. Miller was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). On July 23, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Debtor, requesting denial of Debtor's discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A), (a)(2)(B), (a)(3) and (a)(4) (the "Complaint").

A. Prepetition Events

On March 7, 2017, the Franchise Tax Board (the "FTB") recorded a notice of lien against Debtor's property, based on Debtor's failure to pay California income taxes for the year of 2014. Statement of Uncontroverted Facts ("SUF") [doc. 43], ¶ 14. The FTB held a secured claim in the amount of $311,856.48. SUF, ¶ 15. On January 10, 2018, the Los Angeles Superior Court issued a judgment against Debtor confirming a contractual arbitration award in favor of Moshe Adri in the amount of $1,375,125.94 (the "Adri Judgment"). SUF, ¶ 16.

In January 2018, the same month as the Adri Judgment, Debtor received a distribution from her family trust in the amount of $626,000. SUF, ¶ 17. Upon receipt, Debtor assigned the check to Robert Yaspan, Debtor's bankruptcy attorney. SUF, ¶ 19. Mr.

Yaspan deposited the check into his client trust account. SUF, ¶ 20. Of this $626,000, $25,000 was allocated as Mr. Yaspan's retainer. SUF, ¶ 21.

Mr. Yaspan also sent $100,000 of the funds to the account of Gold Girls, Inc. ("Gold Girls"). SUF, ¶ 22. Gold Girls is a California corporation solely owned by Debtor, and ceased operations on January 18, 2018. SUF, ¶¶ 23-24. The balance of the money, in the amount of $501,000, went into three accounts in Debtor's name. SUF, ¶ 25.

B. Debtor's Bankruptcy Filing and Disclosures

On February 16, 2018, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition [1:18-bk-10417-VK]. Concurrently with her petition, Debtor filed her schedules and statements (the "Original Disclosures") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 1]. Debtor read and reviewed the Original Disclosures before signing the papers under penalty of perjury. SUF, ¶ 29.

In her original schedule A/B, Debtor identified a 50% interest in Ride on Autos, LLC ("ROA"), which Debtor valued at $1,000, and a 100% interest in Gold Girls, which Debtor valued at $100,000. [FN1]. Debtor also identified $501,000 in "[c]ash at Robert M Yaspan Client Trust Account on day of filing; transferred to debtor in possession general account immediately upon opening of account."

On March 29, 2018, Debtor attended her § 341(a) meeting of creditors. SUF, ¶ 32. During her examination, Debtor testified to assets, ownership interests and transactions that were not scheduled in the Original Disclosures. SUF, ¶ 33. Debtor also responded to Requests for Admissions ("RFAs"), addressing the omissions from the Original Disclosures. SUF, ¶ 34. Those omissions include—

1. $125,614 held in an account in the name of Gold Girls [FN2];
2. Several of Debtor's bank accounts;
3. A total of $961,700 received from the Albert Family Trust ("Trust");
4. Debtor's interest, as a beneficiary, in the Trust; and

5. Debtor's interest in four businesses.

SUF, ¶¶ 36, 37, 39-41, 42; Declaration of Deborah Adri ("Adri Declaration") [doc. 41], ¶¶ 12, 33. The Trustee contends that Debtor also failed to disclose, in her Original Disclosures, the $501,000 in Mr. Yaspan's client trust account. However, under Item 16, Debtor identified $501,000 in cash held in Mr. Yaspan's client trust account.

On January 16, 2019, Debtor filed amended schedules and statements (the "Amended Disclosures") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 243]. Debtor signed the Amended Disclosures under penalty of perjury, and had the opportunity to review the Amended Disclosures prior to signing them. SUF, ¶¶ 45-46. In the Amended Disclosures, Debtor disclosed the omitted information above. SUF, ¶¶ 48-51.

C. Debtor's Use of Estate Funds and Monthly Operating Reports

Postpetition, using funds belonging to the estate, Debtor purchased used cars at one or more wholesale auctions. SUF, ¶ 52. At the time Debtor purchased the vehicles, she did not take title to the automobiles in her name. SUF, ¶ 53. According to Debtor, she followed protocol by leaving the title to the automobiles in the previous owner's name until it was sold, at which time title would be in the buyer's name. Adri Declaration, ¶ 18.

Debtor transferred possession of the automobiles to ROA. SUF, ¶ 54. However, Debtor did not have a written agreement with ROA regarding the terms of the consignment agreement with ROA. Id. According to Debtor, she entered into a verbal agreement with ROA, through which Debtor would receive 70% of the profits and ROA would receive 30% of the profits after payment of fees and expenses. Adri Declaration, ¶ 18. Overall, Debtor made 27 postpetition transfers totaling $472,000 by purchasing used cars for resale as part of her car consignment business. SUF, ¶ 56.

In her second amended February 2018 monthly operating report ("MOR"), Debtor indicated that the aggregate ending balance in all her disclosed accounts was $506,178.73. SUF, ¶ 57. As of December 31, 2018, Debtor's ending balance in her general debtor in possession account, money market account and tax account had decreased to $12,261.54. SUF, ¶ 58. In addition, the ending balance of Gold Girls' bank account (which is not an operating business and held approximately $125,000 as of February 2018) decreased to $10,926.83. Id. Based on all of Debtor's MORs, from February 16, 2018 through December 31, 2018, in connection with ROA, Debtor spent $534,279.28. SUF, ¶ 59.

However, Debtor's original MORs contained no information about the vehicles she purchased (whether in her name or another). SUF, ¶ 60. On December 7, 2018, the Court entered an order requiring Debtor to file amended MORs no later than December 31, 2018 [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 212]. Among other things, the Court instructed Debtor to properly complete various sections of the MORs and attach bank statements. Debtor did not timely file the MORs. On the same date, creditor Moshe Adri filed a motion to appoint a chapter 11 trustee (the "Motion to Appoint Trustee") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 216].

On January 11, 2019, Debtor filed only three amended MORs for February 2018, March 2018 and April 2018. SUF, ¶ 63. On January 25, 2019, Debtor filed bank statements for May through October 2018 (the "Bank Statements"). SUF, ¶ 64. On January 31, 2019, Debtor filed second amended MORs for February 2018, March 2018 and April 2018. SUF, ¶ 65. In Debtor's second amended March 2018 MOR, Debtor indicated, for the first time, that she distributed $22,000 to ROA as a loan for operating expenses [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 265]. Debtor did not obtain Court approval to make the loan.

On February 7, 2019, the Court held a hearing on the Motion to Appoint Trustee. At that time, the Court issued a ruling granting the Motion to Appoint Trustee (the "Trustee Appointment Ruling"), and set forth the following chart illustrating the differences between the Original Disclosures and Amended Disclosures—undisclosed accounts to pay her personal living expenses. The second amended February 2018 and March 2018 MORs show that Debtor used the Omitted Personal Accounts for her personal expenses after her petition date. The amended MORs also show that Debtor has been using Gold Girls' bank account to pay personal living expenses. In February 2018, Debtor spent $14,526.11 from the Gold Girls' account on personal disbursements, including, among other things, pet care, parking, car inventory, groceries and a $5,000.00 transfer on her petition date to one of the Omitted Personal Accounts. From March 2018 to May 2018, Debtor spent $11,421.42 from Gold Girls' bank account on personal living expenses.

Trustee Appointment Ruling, pp. 4-5. As such, on February 8, 2019, the Court entered an order appointing a chapter 11 trustee [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 278]. On April 8, 2019, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 305].

D. The Adversary Proceeding

On July 23, 2019, the Trustee filed the Complaint. On March 30, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion for summary judgment (the "Motion") [doc. 33]. Among other things, the Trustee argues that Debtor waived any defense based on advice of counsel because Debtor has not waived her attorney-client privilege. On September 16, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 40]. In the Opposition, Debtor asserts that there is a genuine issue of material fact as to Debtor's intent, and raises advice of her counsel, Mr. Yaspan, as a defense. Debtor also filed a declaration in support of the Opposition [doc. 41]. On September 23, 2020, the Trustee filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 44].

On October 6, 2020, the parties filed a stipulation agreeing that Debtor waives her right to assert the attorney-client privilege as to her relationship with Mr. Yaspan (the "Privilege Waiver") [doc. 48]. On the same day, the Court entered an order approving the Privilege Waiver [doc. 49].

Chapter 7

A. General Motion for Summary Judgment Standard

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 56, applicable to this adversary proceeding under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 7056, the Court shall grant summary judgment if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2509-10, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986); Rule 56; FRBP 7056. "By its very terms, this standard provides that the mere existence of some alleged factual dispute between the parties will not defeat an otherwise properly supported motion for summary judgment; the requirement is that there be no genuine issue of material fact." 477 U.S. at 247-48 (emphasis in original).

As to materiality, the substantive law will identify which facts are material. Only disputes over facts that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will properly preclude the entry of summary judgment. Factual disputes that are irrelevant or unnecessary will not be counted. . . . [S]ummary judgment will not lie if the dispute about a material fact is "genuine," that is, if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party. . . .

Id. at 248-50 (internal citations omitted). Additionally, issues of law are appropriate to be decided in a motion for summary judgment. See Camacho v. Du Sung Corp., 121 F.3d 1315, 1317 (9th Cir. 1997).

The initial burden is on the moving party to show that no genuine issues of material fact exist based on "the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2553, 91 L.Ed. 265 (1986). Once the moving party meets its initial burden, the nonmoving party bearing "the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue" must identify facts beyond what is contained in the pleadings that show genuine issues of fact remain. Id., at 324; see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256 ("Rule 56(e) itself provides that a party opposing a properly supported motion for summary judgment may not rest upon mere allegation or denials of his pleading, but must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.").

The nonmoving party meets this burden through the presentation of "evidentiary materials" listed in Rule 56, such as depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations, stipulations, admissions, and interrogatory answers. Id. To establish a genuine issue, the non-moving party "must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts."

Matsushita Electrical Industry Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586, 106 S.Ct. 1348, 1356, 89 L.Ed.2d 538 (1986); see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252 ("The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the [non-moving party's] position will be insufficient."). Rather, the nonmoving party must provide "evidence of such a caliber that 'a fair-minded jury could return a verdict for the [nonmoving party] on the evidence presented.'" U.S. v. Wilson, 881 F.2d 596, 601 (9th Cir. 1989) (quoting Anderson, 477 U.S. at 266).

11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2) provides that a court shall grant a debtor a discharge unless "the debtor, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor or an officer of the estate charged with custody of property ... has transferred, removed, destroyed, mutilated, or concealed ... (A) property of the debtor, within one year before the date of the filing of the petition; or (B) property of the estate, after the date of the filing of the petition."

"Two elements comprise an objection to discharge under § 727(a)(2)(A): 1) a disposition of property, such as transfer or concealment, and 2) a subjective intent on the debtor's part to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor..." In re Beauchamp, 236 B.R. 727, 732 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). The transfer must occur within one year prepetition. In re Lawson, 122 F.3d 1237, 1240 (9th Cir. 1997). "The standard for denial of discharge under § 727(a)(2)(B) is the same as § 727(a)(2)(A), but the disposition must be of estate property occurring after the petition date." In re Miller, 2015 WL 3750830, at *3 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. June 12, 2015).

In examining the circumstances of a transfer under § 727(a)(2), certain "badges of fraud" may support a finding of fraudulent intent. These factors, not all of which need be present, include (1) a close relationship between the transferor and the transferee; (2) that the transfer was in anticipation of a pending suit; (3) that the transferor debtor was insolvent or in poor financial condition at the time; (4) that all or substantially all of the debtor's property was transferred; (5) that the transfer so completely depleted the debtor's assets that the creditor has been hindered or delayed in recovering any part of the judgment; and (6) that the debtor received inadequate consideration for the transfer. In re Retz, 606 F.3d 1189, 1200 (9th Cir. 2010).

Intent may be inferred from the actions of the debtor. In re Devers, 759 F.2d 751, 753–54 (9th Cir. 1985). The necessary intent under § 727(a)(2) "may be established by circumstantial evidence, or by inferences drawn from a course of conduct." In re Adeeb, 787 F.2d 1339, 1343 (9th Cir.1986) (quoting Devers, 759 F.2d at 753–54).

Here, the Trustee has met her burden of proving that Debtor transferred property within one year of the petition date. Specifically, in January 2018, approximately one month before the petition date, Debtor transferred the $626,000 distribution she received from the Trust to Mr. Yaspan. From that amount, $100,000 was transferred to Gold Girls' account. Debtor does not dispute that these transfers occurred.

However, the Trustee has not met her burden of proving that Debtor transferred the funds with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or officers of the estate. "Where intent is at issue, summary judgment is seldom granted." In re Gertsch, 237 B.R. 160, 165 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999) (citing to Provenz v. Miller, 102 F.3d 1478, 1489 (9th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 522 U.S. 808 (1997)). "Summary judgment is ordinarily not appropriate in a § 727 action where there is an issue of intent." In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 65 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). "Evidence of fraud is conclusive enough to support summary judgment in a § 727(a)(2)(A) action when it yields no plausible conclusion but that the debtor's intent was fraudulent." In re Marrama, 445 F.3d 518, 522 (1st Cir. 2006) (affirming denial of debtor's discharge on summary judgment). "Fraud claims, in particular, normally are so attended by factual issues (including those related to intent) that summary judgment is seldom possible." In re Stephens, 51 B.R. 591, 594 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1985).

Here, while certain badges of fraud are present, such as a judgment and other liabilities near the time of transfer and inadequate consideration for the transfer, there is a genuine issue of material fact regarding whether Debtor acted with the requisite intent. For instance, while Debtor did not provide complete disclosures related to this transfer in her Original Disclosures, Debtor scheduled $501,000 of the funds in her schedule A/B, which funds ended up in the debtor in possession account. In addition,

Debtor contends she disclosed the $100,000 in her schedules by identifying Gold Girls as a company in which Debtor has an interest, and valuing Gold Girls at $100,000. Adri Declaration, ¶ 41.

Moreover, Debtor asserts that she relied on Mr. Yaspan's advice in making the transfer. In the Adri Declaration, to which the Trustee has not objected, Debtor testifies that Mr. Yaspan informed Debtor that she could "legally distribute to [Debtor] $100,000 of those funds from that account to [Debtor] for use in [her] clothing company, The Gold Girls, Inc." and that Debtor asked Mr. Yaspan "whether this strategy was legal, and [Mr. Yaspan] said it was because it was going to a corporation" that Debtor "did not have to place this money into a debtor in possession account." Adri Declaration, ¶ 41. Although the Trustee initially asserted that Debtor had waived her right to assert an advice of counsel defense, on the basis that Debtor refused to waive her attorney-client privilege, the Privilege Waiver moots this argument.

In the Reply, the Trustee contends that Debtor admitted to hindering, delaying or defrauding her creditors when she stated, in the Adri Declaration, that she was concerned about depositing the $626,000 distribution from the Trust into her personal account in case a judgment creditor levied upon and seized the funds through judgment enforcement. Adri Declaration, ¶ 7. While this testimony is relevant to Debtor's intent, Debtor's evidence regarding reliance on advice of her counsel creates a genuine issue of material fact. As noted by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, "the advice of counsel claim is not a separate defense, but rather 'a circumstance indicating good faith which the trier of fact is entitled to consider on the issue of fraudulent intent.'" In re Maring, 338 F.App'x 655, 658 (9th Cir. 2009) (citing Bisno v. U.S., 299 F.2d 711, 719 (9th Cir. 1961)).

Thus, Debtor's evidence serves to create a genuine issue of material fact by negating the Trustee's evidence of intent. Because the Court may not assess Debtor's credibility through this motion for summary judgment, the Court will not enter judgment on the Trustee's § 727(a)(2)(A) claim. However, the Court will grant the Trustee's request for partial summary adjudication as to the fact that Debtor made the prepetition transfers above.

With respect to § 727(a)(2)(B), the Trustee has not met her burden of proof. The Trustee appears to base her claim under § 727(a)(2)(B) on Debtor's alleged use of a bank account in the name of Street Resources, LLC ("Street Resources") to pay her personal expenses. The Trustee has set forth no evidence that Debtor withdrew funds from Street Resources' account, or that such funds were withdrawn with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or officers of Debtor's bankruptcy estate. While the Trustee included these facts in her conclusions of law, she did not include them in her statement of uncontroverted facts, and there is no other evidence included with the Motion regarding use of Street Resources' funds.

In her statement of facts, the Trustee also discusses the following postpetition transfers: (A) the use of $472,000 of estate funds to purchase used vehicles; (B) a $22,000 loan to ROA; and (C) the depletion of the debtor in possession account and Gold Girls account. The Trustee does not discuss these transfers in connection with her analysis of the § 727(a)(2)(B) claim. To the extent the Trustee intends to rely on these transfers as a basis for her § 727(a)(2)(B) claim, Debtor either admits to these facts, or the Court make take judicial notice of Debtor's MORs, which reflect the transfers. As such, the Court may adjudicate that Debtor made these postpetition transfers. However, for the reasons stated above, at this time, the Court will not make an intent determination.

Section 727(a)(3) places an affirmative duty on the debtor to keep and preserve records accurately documenting his or her business and personal affairs. See In re Caneva, 550 F.3d 755, 762 (9th Cir. 2008). Requiring accurate documentation "removes the risk to creditors of 'the withholding or concealment of assets by the bankrupt under cover of a chaotic or incomplete set of books or records.'" Id. (quoting Burchett v. Myers, 202 F.2d 920, 926 (9th Cir. 1953)).

To succeed on its objection to discharge under § 727(a)(3), Plaintiffs must show "(1) that [Defendant] failed to maintain and preserve adequate records, and (2) that such failure rendered it impossible to ascertain [Defendant's] financial condition and material business transactions." In re Cox, 41 F.3d 1294, 1296 (9th Cir. 1994) (quoting Meridian Bank v. Alten, 958 F.2d 1226, 1232 (3d Cir. 1992)). Generally, records are sufficient if they allow the court and creditors to trace the debtor's financial dealings. In re Ridley, 115 B.R. 731, 733 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1990).

Chapter 7

The Trustee bases her claim under § 727(a)(3) on Debtor's omissions from her Original Disclosures and MORs, and Debtor's depletion of estate assets. However, the Trustee has not articulated how such omissions or use of assets qualify as a failure to maintain and preserve records. The Trustee does not assert that Debtor does not have records sufficient to ascertain Debtor's financial condition. In fact, the Trustee's claims under § 727(a)(2) and (a)(4) are based on omissions discovered after Debtor presented records evidencing her true financial condition. See In re May, 579 B.R. 568, 597-98 (Bankr. D. Utah 2017) ("[Section] 727(a)(3) does not deal with making false statements on one's bankruptcy schedules; that is the province of § 727(a)(4). If falsification of bankruptcy schedules were actionable under § 727(a)(3), that would largely turn § 727(a)(4)(A) into a dead letter, since few plaintiffs would go to the trouble of proving intent."). As such, the Court will not enter judgment in favor of the Trustee under § 727(a)(3).

Section 727(a)(4)(A) denies a discharge to a debtor who "knowingly and fraudulently" made a false oath or account in the course of the bankruptcy proceedings. To bring a successful § 727(a)(4)(A) claim for false oath, the plaintiff must show: (1) the debtor made a false oath in connection with the case; (2) the oath related to a material fact; (3) the oath was made knowingly; and (4) the oath was made fraudulently. In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 62 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). "[A] false oath may involve a false statement or omission in the debtor's schedules." In re Roberts, 331 B.R. 876, 882 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005), aff'd and remanded on other grounds, 241 F. App'x 420 (9th Cir. 2007).

"A fact is material if it bears a relationship to the debtor's business transactions or estate, or concerns the discovery of assets, business dealings, or the existence and disposition of the debtor's property." In re Retz, 606 F.3d 1189, 1198 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting Khalil, 379 B.R. at 173). "A debtor acts knowingly if he or she acts deliberately and consciously." Retz, 606 F.3d at 1198 (quoting Khalil, 379 B.R. at 173) (internal quotation omitted).

The fraud provision of § 727(a)(4) is similar to common law fraud, which the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has described as follows:

The creditor must show that (1) the debtor made the representations; (2) that at the time he knew they were false; (3) that he made them with the intention and purpose of deceiving the creditors; (4) that the creditors relied on such representations; (5) that the creditors sustained loss and damage as the proximate result of the representations having been made.

Roberts, 331 B.R. at 884. Intent must usually be established by circumstantial evidence or inferences drawn from the debtor's course of conduct. Khalil, 379 B.R. at 174 (circumstances might include multiple omissions or failure to clear up omissions).

A debtor's voluntary disclosure of transactions not listed on schedules at the § 341(a) meeting of creditors may show a lack of intent to defraud under § 727(a)(4). Baker v. Mereshian (In re Mereshian), 200 B.R. 342, 347 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 1996); see also Gullickson v. Brown (In re Brown), 108 F.3d 1290, 1294 (10th Cir. 1997); Isaacson, 478 B.R. at 784. In addition, "[e]vidence that demonstrates confusion or a believable lack of understanding on the part of a debtor may . . . militate against an inference of fraudulent intent." Isaacson, 478 B.R. at 784.

Here, the Trustee has met her burden of proving that Debtor omitted the following material assets from her Original Disclosures and/or MORs [FN3]:

1. Multiple accounts and Debtor's expenditure of funds from the accounts;
2. The Trust and funds on hand in the Trust;
3. The estate's entitlement to a 42% distribution from the Trust when due;
4. A Toyota Sienna;
5. A total of $961,700 in distributions from the Trust;

7. Property in storage.

The Court will grant the Trustee's request for partial summary adjudication as to the fact that Debtor omitted the information above, and that the information was material.

The Trustee has not met her burden of proving that Debtor made a false oath in connection with the $501,000 that was originally in Mr. Yaspan's client trust account. Debtor disclosed the cash, as well as the fact that the cash was initially in Mr. Yaspan's client trust account, in her Original Disclosures. To the extent the Trustee argues that Debtor concealed the initial transfer from the Trust to Mr. Yaspan's client trust account, that issue is more appropriately addressed by the Trustee's claims under § 727(a)(2), discussed above.

Regarding intent, the Trustee has not met her burden of proving that Debtor made the false oaths knowingly or fraudulently. In the Adri Declaration, Debtor contends that she did not fully understand many of the questions in the schedules and statements and, when she asked Mr. Yaspan's office about these questions, was told "not to worry about it or that it would be handled later." Adri Declaration, ¶ 13. Debtor also contends that she provided all required information to Mr. Yaspan, who did not include the information in the Original Disclosures, and that she generally relied on Mr. Yaspan's advice. Adri Declaration, ¶¶ 14-17. In addition, Debtor made many of the omitted disclosures during her § 341(a) meeting of creditors. As such, for the same reasons discussed above, Debtor has created a genuine issue of material fact as to her intent, and the Court will not make an intent determination at this stage.

E. The Trustee's Arguments Regarding the Adri Declaration

In the Reply, the Trustee asserts that Debtor made a false oath in the Adri Declaration by stating that she has a California license to sell automobiles, and that Debtor violated California law by not having a written consignment agreement with ROA. However, as to the first basis, the Court will not enter judgment denying Debtor a discharge based on an issue raised for the first time in the Reply. In addition, Debtor did not necessarily make a false oath; specifically, Debtor stated—standard legal protocol when purchasing and selling any and all vehicles, in accordance with California law. I was simply purchasing them with the Ride on Auto license, as I was legally allowed to do, and then entering them into the dealer inventory as a consigned vehicle in my name.

Adri Declaration, ¶ 18 (emphasis added). Because Debtor stated, in the same paragraph, that she used ROA's license, it is not clear that Debtor meant to testify that she personally has an automobile dealer license.

The Trustee's additional contentions that Debtor violated the law by conducting her consignment business without a license and failing to enter into a written consignment agreement have no bearing on whether Debtor should be denied a discharge. Further, the Trustee has not articulated how these matters impact Debtor's intent related to the false oaths identified by the Trustee, such as the omissions from Debtor's schedules and statements. To the extent the Trustee is attempting to prove a lack of credibility, the Court may not make such a finding through a motion for summary judgment.

F. The Trustee's Arguments Regarding Failure to Comply with a Court Order

For the first time in the Reply, the Trustee contends that Debtor should be denied a discharge because she failed to comply with an order of the Court. Specifically, the Trustee asserts that Debtor did not timely file amended MORs by the Court's deadline.

Although the Trustee does not explicitly cite 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(6), the Trustee quotes from the statute and references a case related to § 727(a)(6). The Trustee did not assert a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(6) in the Complaint. In addition, the Trustee did not include any argument related to § 727(a)(6) in the Motion. The Trustee's additional cases relate to contempt sanctions, not denial of a debtor's discharge. As such, the Court will disregard the Trustee's arguments under § 727(a)(6).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Trustee's request for partial summary adjudication as to the fact that Debtor made the transfers or omitted the disclosures outlined above.

1. The parties contend that Debtor valued ROA at $5,000; however, Debtor's original schedule A/B valued ROA at $1,000. See Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 1, Item 19.
2. Although Debtor disputes the existence of the account, Debtor's citation to the identified paragraph in her declaration does not include any pertinent information contradicting the Trustee's statement. Debtor does admit to failing to disclose $25,614 of this amount. However, the Court takes judicial notice of Debtor's schedules and statements, which do not identify any part of the $125,614. To the extent Debtor contends she scheduled these funds by valuing Gold Girls at $100,000, Debtor's original schedule A/B states that the $100,000 value is the "fair market value" of Gold Girls, and does not include any information about the amount of money in Gold Girls' account. Debtor's Statement of Financial Information is silent as to the transfer of the $125,614 from Debtor to Gold Girls' account.
3. The Trustee relies on the SUFs, Debtor's Original and Amended Disclosures, Debtor's original and amended MORs and the Court's Trustee Appointment Ruling as proof of omissions made by Debtor. Debtor does not meaningfully dispute that she omitted this information from her Original Disclosures.

Docket 117

Tentative Ruling:

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1125, the Court will approve the "Debtors' First Amended Disclosure Statement Describing First Amended Chapter 11 Plan of Reorganization."

Proposed dates and deadlines regarding "Debtors' First Amended Chapter 11 Plan of Reorganization" (the "Plan"):

Hearing on confirmation of the Plan: December 3, 2020 at 1:00 p.m.

Deadline for the debtors to mail the approved disclosure statement, the Plan, ballots for acceptance or rejection of the Plan and to file and serve notice of: (1) the confirmation hearing and (2) the deadline to file objections to confirmation and to return completed ballots to the debtor: October 16, 2020.

The debtors must serve the notice and the other materials on all creditors, parties who have requested special notice and the Office of the United States Trustee.

Deadline to file and serve any objections to confirmation and to return completed ballots to the debtors: November 13, 2020.

Deadline for the debtors to file and serve the debtors' brief and evidence, including declarations and the returned ballots, in support of confirmation, and in reply to any objections to confirmation: November 23, 2020. Among other things, the debtors' brief must address whether the requirements for confirmation set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 1129 are satisfied. These materials must be served on the Office of the U.S. Trustee and any party who objects to confirmation.

Deadline to file proof of claim ("Bar Date"): December 18, 2020.

Deadline to mail notice of Bar Date: October 16, 2020.

The debtor must use the mandatory court-approved form Notice of Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim in a Chapter 11 Case, F 3003-1.NOTICE.BARDATE.

Deadline for debtor and/or debtor in possession to file proposed plan and related disclosure statement: January 15, 2021.

Continued chapter 11 case status conference to be held at 1:00 p.m. on February 4, 2021.

The debtor in possession or any appointed chapter 11 trustee must file a status report, to be served on the debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors, all secured creditors, and the United States Trustee, addressing the debtor's progress toward confirmation of a chapter 11 plan, no later than 14 days before the continued status conference. The status report must be supported by evidence in the form of declarations and supporting documents.

The Court will prepare the order setting the deadlines for the debtor and/or debtor(s) in possession to file a proposed plan and related disclosure statement.

The debtor must lodge the Order Setting Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim, using mandatory court-approved form F 3003-1.ORDER.BARDATE, within seven (7) days.

fr. 08/06/20 (stip); 8/13/20

Docket 15

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

The debtor filed an objection to the application on the basis that the debtor had requested conversion of this case to a chapter 13 case, which would moot the chapter 7 trustee's application to employ a real estate broker. However, on August 25, 2020, the Court entered an order denying the debtor's motion to convert this case [doc. 56]. There being no other cause to deny the application, the Court will approve the application to employ a real estate broker.

The chapter 7 trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#6.00 Motion for relief from stay [AN]

CALIFORNIA BOARD OF PSYCHOLOGY
VS
DEBTOR

Docket 228

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

A. Administrative Complaint

On December 18, 2018, Kenneth C. Scott ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition.

Prior to Debtor filing his petition, on June 28, 2017, H. Samuel Hopper filed a complaint with the California Board of Psychology (the "Board") against Debtor for, among other things, violations of the laws and regulations relating to the practice of psychology. Doc. 229, Declaration of Sandra Monterrubio, attached thereto as Exh. B ("Monterrubio Decl."), ¶ 2.

On July 18, 2017, the Division of Investigations, Department of Consumer Affairs ("DOI") initiated an investigation. On November 11, 2018, the DOI interviewed Debtor. Id.

On February 22, 2019, the Board sent its completed investigation, finding that Debtor had violated the rules and regulations governing the practice of psychology, to the Office of the Attorney General for the State of California for review and consideration of disciplinary charges. Id., at ¶ 4.

On August 9, 2019, the Executive Officer of the Board filed an Accusation against Debtor for: (1) charging and deducting rent from a psychological assistant; (2) improper deduction of psychological assistant registration and renewal fees; (3) exploitative relationship with a psychology assistant; and (4) harm to supervisees.

Chapter 13

Doc. 229, Accusation, attached thereto as Exh. A. The Executive Officer of the Board requested that the Board issue a decision: (1) "[r]evoking or suspending" Debtor's psychologist license; and (2) ordering Debtor to pay the Board the reasonable costs of the investigation and enforcement of this case, and, if placed on probation, the costs of probation monitoring. Id., at p. 32.

On August 23, 2019, Debtor requested an administrative hearing on the charges contained in the Accusation. Doc. 229, Declaration of Colleen M. McGurrin, attached thereto as Exh. C ("McGurrin Decl."), ¶ 5; Monterrubio Decl., ¶ 6.

On October 31, 2019, the Office of the Attorney General for the State of California filed a request for an administrative hearing before the Office of Administrative Hearings ("OAH"). McGurrin Decl., ¶ 7. An administrative hearing was scheduled for May 11, 2020 and, at Debtor's request, subsequently continued to November 16, 2020. Monterrubio Decl., ¶ 7–9; McGurrin Decl., ¶¶ 10–11.

On or about March 30, 2020, the parties to the action participated in a telephonic prehearing conference with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) assigned to hearing the case. That same day, the parties also participated in a mandatory settlement conference with another ALJ in an attempt to informally resolve the matter. Settlement negotiations have not been successful. McGurrin Decl., ¶ 9.

B. Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay

On September 29, 2020, the Board filed a Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay under 11 U.S.C. § 362 (Action in Nonbankruptcy Forum) (the "Motion") [doc. 228]. The Board argues that, under 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(4), the Board, as a state or a governmental unit, may continue to exercise its regulatory power, by prosecuting the Accusation before the OAH, as an exception to the automatic stay.

C. Opposition to the Motion

On October 7, 2020, Debtor filed an Opposition to Board of Psychology's Motion for Relief from Automatic Stay (the "Opposition") [doc. 236]. In the Opposition, Debtor contends that the Board was not served notice of his bankruptcy petition because the Board has never been a creditor nor has a judgment been awarded in its favor. Following the Board's filing of the Accusation, Debtor claims that the Board was notified of his bankruptcy petition. Doc. 236, Declaration of Seth Weinstein ("Weinstein Decl."), attached as Exh. 1 thereto, ¶ 5.

Furthermore, Debtor argues that section 362(b)(4) does not apply because "the [Board's] action is not a claim for the protection of public health or safety. The [Board's] action is based on Mr. Hopper and [his bankruptcy counsel's] attempts to sidestep this Court's automatic stay and prosecution of the Hopper matter in a forum outside of the bankruptcy court."

II. DISCUSSION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 101(27), a "governmental unit" is defined as:

United States; State; Commonwealth; District; Territory; municipality; foreign state; department; agency, or instrumentality of the United States (but not a United States trustee while serving as a trustee in a case under this title), a State, a Commonwealth, a District, a Territory, a municipality, or a foreign state; or other foreign or domestic government.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(4), in pertinent part:

- (a) The filing of a petition under section 301, 302, or 303 of this title, or of an application under section 5(a)(3) of the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970, does not operate as a stay—

- (4) under paragraph (1), (2), or (6) of subsection (a) of this section, of the commencement or continuation of an action or proceeding by a governmental unit . . . to enforce such governmental unit's or organization's police and regulatory power, including the enforcement of a judgment other than a money judgment, obtained, in an action or proceeding by the governmental unit or to enforce such governmental unit's or organization's police or regulatory power[.]

The Bankruptcy Code provides certain exceptions to the automatic stay, that should be read narrowly. In re Dunbar, 235 B.R. 465, 470 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999), aff'd, 245

F.3d 1058 (9th Cir. 2001). Section 364(b)(4) provides an exception to the automatic stay for "the commencement or continuation of an action or proceeding by a governmental unit or to enforce such governmental unit's police or regulatory power." In re Universal Life Church, Inc., 128 F.3d 1294, 1297 (9th Cir. 1997). "The phrase 'police or regulatory power' refers to the enforcement of laws affecting health, welfare, morals and safety, but not regulatory laws that directly conflict with the control of the res or property by the bankruptcy court." Id. (citing Hillis Motors, Inc. v. Hawaii Auto Dealers' Ass'n, 997 F.2d 581, 591 (9th Cir. 1993)).

The section 364(b)(4) exception "has been applied in a variety of contexts, including labor law enforcement, state bar disciplinary proceedings, and employment discrimination actions brought by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission." In re Dingley, 852 F.3d 1143, 1146 (9th Cir. 2017) (quoting Universal Life Church, 128 F.3d at 1297). For example, courts have held that section 362(b)(4) excepts the actions of a medical or healthcare board to initiate a license revocation proceeding against a debtor. See In re Thomassen, 15 B.R. 907, 909 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1981) ("[Debtor] has been accused of malpractice and professional incompetence and with fraud in the handling of his patients' and employees' funds. The State's interest in this matter is in punishing such misconduct and in preventing future acts of the type which [Debtor] has been accused. This is a valid police and regulatory interest."); see also In re Emerald Casino, Inc., 2003 WL 23147946 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 24, 2003) (same).

The Ninth Circuit applies two tests to determine whether a state's actions fall within the section 362(b)(4) exception: (1) the "pecuniary purpose" test; and (2) the "public policy" test. Universal Life Church, 128 F.3d at 1297. When an action satisfies either test, the action is exempt from the automatic stay under 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(4). Lockyer v. Mirant Corp., 398 F.3d 1098, 1108 (9th Cir. 2005).

Under the pecuniary purpose test, the court must determine "whether the government action relates primarily to the protection of the government's pecuniary interest in the debtor's property or to matters of public safety and welfare." Id. (citing NLRB v. Continental Hagen Corp., 932 F.2d 828, 833 (9th Cir. 1991)). When the action is pursued "solely to advance a pecuniary interest of the government unit," the automatic stay will be imposed. Universal Life Church, 128 F.3d at 1297 (citing In re Thomassen, 15 B.R. 907, 909 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1981); see also Mirant, 398 F.3d at 1109 ("If the suit seeks to protect the government's pecuniary interest, the § 362(b)(4) exception does not apply. On the other hand, if the suit seeks to protect public safety and welfare, the exception does apply.") Put another way, the court "must look to what specific acts the government wishes to carry out and determine if such execution would result in an economic advantage to the government or its citizens over third parties in relation to the debtor's estate." See In re Charter First Mortgage, Inc., 42 B.R. 380, 382 (Bankr. D.Or. 1984).

Under the public policy test, the court attempts to "distinguish between government actions that effectuate public policy and those that adjudicate private rights." Universal Life Church, 128 F.3d at 1297 (quoting Continental Hagen, 932 F.2d at 833). "Under this test, the court considers whether the administrative agency is exercising legislative, executive, or judicial functions." In re Poule, 91 B.R. 83, 86 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1988). "Where the agency's action affects only the parties immediately involved in the proceeding, it is exercising a judicial function and the debtor is entitled to the same protection from the automatic stay as if the proceeding were being conducted in a judicial forum." Id. (citing Charter First Mortg., 42 B.R. at 383–84). As such, "a governmental unit cannot escape the automatic stay by adjudicating the private rights of its citizens under the guise of public protection." See In re Medicar Ambulance Co., Inc., 166 B.R. 918, 926 (N.D. Cal. 1994) (citing Charter First Mortg., 42 B.R. at 383–84). "A suit does not satisfy the 'public purpose' test if it is brought primarily to advantage discrete and identifiable individuals or entities rather than some broader segment of the public." Mirant, 398 F.3d at 1109 (quoting Continental Hagen, 932 F.2d at 833).

A. Governmental Unit

Here, the Board meets the definition of a governmental unit. The Board is charged with the authority to enforce the rules and regulations that govern practicing psychologists in the State of California by "exercising its licensing, regulatory, and disciplinary functions" to protect the public. See Cal Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2920, 2920.1, 2928; In re Wade, 115 B.R. 222, 227 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1990) ("[C]ourts apply a functional approach by examining the entity at issue is carrying out a governmental function."). The Board, therefore, is carrying out a governmental function on behalf of the State of California.

B. Section 362(b)(4) Exception

Here, the Board satisfies both the pecuniary purpose test and public policy test to qualify for relief under 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(4). Under the pecuniary purpose test, the Board seeks disciplinary action against Debtor for alleged mistreatment of a psychology assistant in violation of the rules and regulations governing the practice of psychology. Therefore, Board seeks to protect the public and the profession of psychology by suspending or revoking Debtor's psychology license.

Under the public policy test, the Board is engaging in a governmental action rather than adjudicating private rights. By seeking to suspend or revoke Debtor's psychologist license, the Board is not exercising a judicial function; its actions affect the broader public, in preventing future violations, rather than the rights of private parties. See Medicar, 166 B.R. at 926–927 ("In applying the public policy test a court must determine whether the action is an attempt to prevent future violations of the law rather than an attempt to determine the liability of private parties.")

Consequently, the Court finds that the Board's suit comes within the "police or regulatory power" exception under section 362(b)(4), and the Board may continue its disciplinary action against Debtor.

C. Annulment

"Many courts have focused on two factors in determining whether cause exists to grant [retroactive] relief from the stay: (1) whether the creditor was aware of the bankruptcy petition; and (2) whether the debtor engaged in unreasonable or inequitable conduct, or prejudice would result to the creditor." In re National Environmental Waste Corp., 129 F.3d 1052, 1055 (9th Cir. 1997). "[T]his court, similar to others, balances the equities in order to determine whether retroactive annulment is justified." Id.

Here, the Board has met the requirements for annulment. First, the Board was unaware of Debtor's bankruptcy petition. The Board did not receive notice of Debtor's bankruptcy petition for a lengthy period of time; it appears that Debtor's attorney did not notify the Board of Debtor's pending bankruptcy case until January 27, 2020, i.e., long after Debtor had filed his chapter 13 petition and had requested an administrative hearing regarding the Accusation. Weinstein Decl., ¶ 5.

Second, the Board would experience prejudice. As discussed, the Board seeks to discipline Debtor for alleged misconduct. If the Board is unable to continue the disciplinary action, it undermines the purpose of the Board to govern the practice of psychology in the State of California.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will: (1) allow the Board to continue its disciplinary action against Debtor before the OAH; and (2) annul the automatic stay, to the extent that the automatic stay applies. On the other hand, at this time, the Court will not grant relief from the automatic stay for the Board to enforce against Debtor and/or the bankruptcy estate any monetary judgment it obtains for the reasonable costs of the investigation and enforcement of the disciplinary proceeding. The Board may file a proof of claim with respect to any such monetary judgment, in its favor.

The Board must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Adv#: 1:10-01354 Asphalt Professionals Inc v. Davis

- #15.00 Defendant Darin Davis' motion for attorney's fees against Asphalt Professionals, Inc. ("API") for fees Davis incurred to defend the API's appeal of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals of this court's order granting Davis $92,347.79 for attorney's fees Davis Incurred to defend API's 11 U.S.C. section 523(a)(2)(A) claim

Docket 331

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 15, 2020, Darin Davis ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On August 16, 2010, Asphalt Professionals, Inc. ("API") filed a complaint against Debtor, initiating this adversary proceeding. After the Court entered judgment on API's claims (the "Judgment"), Debtor moved for an award of attorneys' fees [doc. 228]. On December 3, 2018, the Court entered an order granting in part and denying in part Debtor's request for attorneys' fees (the "Fee Order") [doc. 260]. Subsequently, API appealed the Judgment, the Fee Order and several subsequent orders allowing Debtor recovery of incurred fees and costs.

On June 24, 2020, Debtor filed a motion requesting fees and costs incurred defending an appeal, before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, of this Court's $92,347.70 award of attorneys' fees and costs (the "First Motion") [doc. 331]. On June 30, 2020, Debtor filed another motion request attorneys' fees and costs incurred defending an appeal, before the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit, of this Court's $55,671.25 award of attorneys' fees and costs (the "Second Motion") [doc. 334]. API opposes both the First Motion and the Second Motion (the "Oppositions") [docs. 354, 355], arguing that: (A) certain portions of briefs filed by Debtor are duplicative of arguments made in prior briefs filed by Debtor; (B) some requested fees are excessive; and (C) Debtor did not agree to stay litigation of his prior attorneys' fees motions and, as a result, did not mitigate the amount of attorneys' fees or costs incurred.

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Lodestar Standard

Movants bear the burden of proving that the fees sought are reasonable. Center for Biological Diversity v. Cty. of San Bernardino, 188 Cal.App.4th 603, 615 (Ct. App. 2010); In re Atwood, 293 B.R. 227, 233 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2003). Both California state courts and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals customarily assess the reasonableness of attorneys' fees utilizing the "lodestar" approach where the number of hours reasonably expended is multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate. Ketchum v. Moses, 24 Cal.4th 1122, 1131 (2001); In re Eliapo, 468 F.3d 592, 598 (9th Cir. 2006).

"A district court should exclude from the lodestar amount hours that are not reasonably expended because they are 'excessive, redundant, or otherwise unnecessary.'" Van Gerwen v. Guarantee Mut. Life Co., 214 F.3d 1041, 1045 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 434, 103 S.Ct. 1933, 1939-40, 76 L.Ed.2d 40 (1983)). "After computing the lodestar, the court must assess whether additional considerations require adjustment of the figure, such as the novelty or complexity of the issues, the skill and experience of counsel, the quality of representation and the results obtained." PSM Holding, 2015 WL 11652518 at *4.

B. API's Arguments Regarding Excessive and/or Duplicate Billing

In the Oppositions, API asserts that the requested fees should be reduced by the same percentage as the amount of duplicative lines in Debtor's briefs. However, API sets forth no legal authority that provides for this method of reduction. In fact, while courts may reduce fees on the basis that they are "unnecessarily duplicative," courts must "articulate[] [their] reasoning with... specificity." Moreno v. City of Sacramento, 534 F.3d 1106, 1112-13 (9th Cir. 2008). As explained by the Moreno court—

The court may reduce the number of hours awarded because the lawyer performed unnecessarily duplicative work, but determining whether work is unnecessarily duplicative is no easy task. When a case goes on for many years, a lot of legal work product will grow stale; a competent lawyer won't rely entirely on last year's, or even last month's, research: Cases are decided; statutes are enacted; regulations are promulgated and amended. A lawyer also needs to get up to speed with the research previously performed. All this is duplication, of course, but it's necessary duplication; it is inherent in the process of litigating over time. Here, there was a previous appeal (of the district court's grant of summary judgment) which would have added to the delay and rendered much of the research stale. One certainly expects some degree of duplication as an inherent part of the process. There is no reason why the lawyer should perform this necessary work for free.

After all, duplication always happens when a task is started, stopped and then taken up again later. But necessary duplication—based on the vicissitudes of the litigation process—cannot be a legitimate basis for a fee reduction. It is only where the lawyer does unnecessarily duplicative work that the court may legitimately cut the hours.

Id.

As a preliminary matter, API does not cite specific billing entries as duplicative. Instead, API compares briefs filed by Debtor to note that the briefs contain duplicative portions. However, the billing entries attached to the Motions identify the amount of time spent on the subject briefs as a whole, not on specific parts of the briefs. As such, it is not evident that Debtor's counsel billed for the duplicative portions of the briefs, rather than the new research, analysis and argument set forth in those briefs.

As explained by Debtor, while portions of certain briefs included similar language, Debtor's counsel was required to perform new work, such as assessing and supplementing API's excerpts of record, researching and analyzing new legal arguments made by API (such as API's arguments regarding merger) and responding to questions posed by the appellate courts, such as the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' instruction that the parties be prepared to discuss the significance of a specific California case. Declaration of Alan W. Forsley [doc. 359], ¶¶ 8-13. The subject briefs were not so identical to prior briefs to warrant the drastic reduction requested by API.

Chapter 7

In addition, API's proposed method of reduction does not provide room for a qualitative analysis of whether the requested fees and costs are unnecessarily duplicative, instead of merely duplicative. As noted by Moreno, duplicative work may be necessary, such as ensuring that legal research is not stale and updating briefs for argument before a different appellate body. Finally, API's calculations are not sound; API suggests calculating the percentage of duplicate lines in a single brief and then using that percentage to reduce API's total requested fees, not just the total fees incurred drafting the subject brief. Such a calculation would result in reducing all work performed by Debtor's counsel by a significant percentage, despite the fact that API does not dispute much of the other work for which counsel bills. Rather than arbitrarily reduce the requested fees by the percentage of duplicative lines, the Court will assess whether the requested fees and costs are reasonable under the lodestar method, discussed above.

C. The First Motion

Regarding API's arguments related to Debtor's counsel's work on legal research, drafting Debtor's response to the appellate brief and preparing for oral argument, the Court believes the total of 17.3 hours spent on research, and 25.7 spent drafting Debtor's brief (excluding the amounts billed for review of API's brief and excerpts of record and drafting the table of authorities and table of contents), is excessive. After assessing the appellate brief, the Court believes allowing a total of 12 hours for legal research and a total of 18 hours for drafting the brief is reasonable. Consequently, the Court will reduce the requested fees by $5,525.

API also asserts that the Court should reduce the fees incurred for work on opposing API's stay enforcement motions and participating in the Court of Appeals' mediation program. However, Debtor's counsel spent a total of 7.4 hours opposing the first motion for stay enforcement, 5.9 hours opposing the second motion for stay enforcement and 3.5 hours opposing the third motion for stay enforcement. This amount is not unreasonable for the time required to draft three oppositions; in addition, API's own filings necessitated these responses by Debtor. As to the time spent on mediation, Debtor's counsel spent a total of approximately 3 hours preparing a mediation questionnaire, reviewing API's questionnaire, reviewing the Court of Appeals' mediation conference orders, participating in multiple meetings and conference calls and corresponding with Debtor regarding mediation. This is a minimal amount of work for participation in mediation. As such, the Court will not reduce the requested fees on these bases.

D. The Second Motion

As to the Second Motion, Debtor's counsel incurred only 4.8 hours to draft a response to API's appellate brief (excluding minimal time spent analyzing API's brief and excerpt of records and preparing a table of authorities and table of contents), 3.3 hours to prepare for oral argument and 1.70 hours to attend oral argument. These amounts are not excessive or unnecessary in relation to the work performed by Debtor's counsel.

API also asserts that Debtor should not recover fees for time spent drafting a motion for extension of time. Debtor's counsel billed only 1.10 hours to draft this motion, and the appellate court granted the motion. API does not articulate why incurring fees for drafting a motion for extension of time is inherently unreasonable or unnecessary, particularly where the motion was successful. Finally, API argues that Debtor should not recover fees for the appellate court's memorandum of decision. The only billing entries on the subject date referenced by API are for counsel's review of the notice of judgment, for 0.10 hours, and for corresponding to Debtor regarding the judgment, for another 0.10 hours. The total 12 minutes to perform these tasks are neither unnecessary nor unreasonable. Consequently, the Court will not reduce any of the requested fees in the Second Motion.

E. API's Argument Regarding Mitigation

API's final argument, in response to both the First Motion and the Second Motion, is that Debtor failed to "mitigate damages" by refusing to stay prosecution of Debtor's motions for attorneys' fees and costs. To the extent API's case, which does not relate to attorneys' fees and costs, applies to this case, API has not demonstrated that Debtor failed to mitigate losses.

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7054(b)(2) and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(d)(2)(B)(i), a motion for attorneys' fees must be filed no later than 14 days after the entry of judgment. To obtain attorneys' fees and costs, Debtor was required to file his motions by this deadline. After such filing, the onus was on API to move for stay of prosecution of the motions, or for stay of enforcement of the resulting orders. There is no case law, federal rule or local rule that places an obligation for prevailing parties to stay prosecution of their motions for attorneys' fees until resolution of an appeal. On the other hand, federal rules allow the opposing party to move for stay of motions and/or orders. API did not move for such relief. Thus, the Court will not punish Debtor by reducing his incurred fees for API's failure to move for a stay of the motions timely filed by Debtor.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deduct $5,525 from the fees requested in the First Motion, for a total allowed amount of $40,232. The Court will allow the requested fees from the Second Motion in full.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#17.00 Defendant's motion to dismiss first amended complaint

Docket 21

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

I. BACKGROUND

On December 18, 2019, Daniel Michael Uzan ("Defendant") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. On March 23, 2020, Jason Mitchell and JHM Ventures ("Plaintiffs") filed a complaint against Defendant (the "Complaint"), seeking nondischargeability of the debt owed to them pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6).

On May 26, 2020, Defendant filed a motion to dismiss the Complaint (the "First Motion") [doc. 8]. On July 29, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the First Motion. At that time, the Court issued a ruling [doc. 16] dismissing the Complaint on the following bases: (A) the misrepresentations alleged by Plaintiffs were statements respecting Defendant's financial condition and, as a result, Plaintiffs did not state a claim under § 523(a)(2)(A); (B) Plaintiffs did not allege that the subject misrepresentations were in writing, such that Plaintiffs did not adequately plead a claim under § 523(a)(2)(B); and (C) Mr. Mitchell, the sole plaintiff moving for relief under § 523(a)(4) and (a)(6), did not adequately allege damages. On August 11, 2020, the Court entered an order granting the First Motion and allowing Plaintiffs leave to amend the Complaint [doc. 18].

On August 19, 2020, Plaintiffs filed the first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 20], requesting nondischargeability of the debt owed to them under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(B), (a)(4) and (a)(6). Plaintiffs no longer request relief under § 523(a)(2)(A). As relevant to Plaintiffs' claim under § 523(a)(2)(B), Plaintiffs allege—

Defendant told Mr. Mitchell that he had agreements with an electrical union for $2 million, plus a $500,000 job in Santa Monica. This representation was confirmed in writing when Defendant sent a text message to Mr. Mitchell, informing Mr. Mitchell that Defendant had a meeting with the electrical union. In addition to this representation, Defendant represented that he performed $150,000 - $200,000 in electrical jobs every year and had several clients, including celebrity clients, who wanted home automation services.

To the FAC, Plaintiffs also attach the subject text message containing the alleged representation. FAC, Exhibit B. In relevant part, the attached text exchange reads:

Mr. Mitchell: Hope everything is alright. Not sure the plan today, but tw is coming to put in the phone line. You coming by today?

Defendant: Going to meet with the electrical Union today I'll hit you up after.

Mr. Mitchell: Calling or coming by? What's your timing?

Defendant: Not sure how long meeting will take its 40 thousand square feet.

...

Mr. Mitchell: Where'd you go? How did the meeting go... Watching directv?

Defendant: With kids

FAC, Exhibit B. As to the remaining claims, Plaintiffs amended the FAC to: (A) indicate that only JHM requests relief under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4); and (B) include two different claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), one asserted by Mr. Mitchell and the other by JHM. Regarding the claims asserted by JHM, Plaintiffs allege that Defendant breached a shareholder agreement between Mr. Mitchell and Defendant (the "Shareholder Agreement") and misappropriated assets of Elements Smart Homes Solutions, Inc. ("Elements"), including a loan from JHM.

On September 9, 2020, Defendant filed a motion to dismiss the FAC (the "Motion") [doc. 21]. In the Motion, Defendant argues: (A) the only representation alleged to be in writing is not material; and (B) JHM has not alleged why it, instead of Elements, was damaged by JHM's allegations under § 523(a)(4) and (a)(6). Defendant does not request dismissal of Mr. Mitchell's claim under § 523(a)(6).

On October 7, 2020, Plaintiffs filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 24]. On October 14, 2020, Defendant filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 25].

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

- (i) that is materially false;

- (iii) on which the creditor to whom the debtor is liable for such money, property, services, or credit reasonably relied; and
- (iv) that the debtor caused to be made or published with intent to deceive....

"Material misrepresentations for this statutory section are substantial inaccuracies of the type which would generally affect a lender's or guarantor's decision." In re Candland, 90 F.3d 1466, 1470 (9th Cir. 1996); see also In re Greene, 96 B.R. 279, 283 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1989) (holding that a materially false statement is one which "paints a substantially untruthful picture of a financial condition by misrepresenting information of the type which would normally effect the decision to grant credit").

The determination of reliance...requires a two-part analysis. First, the court must determine whether the creditor actually relied on the debtor's statements. Actual reliance means that the creditor in fact relied on the omission or misrepresentation.

Second, the court must determine whether the creditor's reliance was reasonable. The standard in the Ninth Circuit for "reasonable reliance" does not require adherence to any particular list of factors; rather, the bankruptcy court is to make its determination on a case-by-case basis in light of the totality of the circumstances.

In the end, the degree of reliance required—reasonable—is more stringent than the justifiable reliance required under § 523(a)(2)(A), and evidences Congressional intent to create a heightened bar to discharge exceptions. This heightened requirement was not erected to shield dishonest debtors, but to balance the potential misuse by both debtors and creditors of statements reflecting a debtor's financial condition.

In re Maxwell, 600 B.R. 62, 70 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2019). 'prudent person' test." Id. (citing In re McGee, 359 B.R. 764, 774 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006)).

Here, the only written representation referenced by Plaintiffs is a text message in which Defendant allegedly states he had a meeting with an electrical union. First, Plaintiffs do not allege that this representation is false; the FAC is devoid of any allegation that Defendant did not meet with the electrical union.

However, even if Plaintiffs allege that the representation was false, they have not adequately explained why such a representation is material or why it relates to Defendant's financial condition. In the subject text messages, Defendant did not represent that the electrical union was his client, or that he had secured any business with the union. The text messages, without more, are not the type of representation that would generally impact a lender's or guarantor's decision. On their face, the text messages also do not appear to relate to Defendant's financial condition.

Finally, Plaintiffs have not adequately alleged reasonable reliance on the text messages. First, Plaintiffs themselves do not allege that they relied on the text message; instead, when discussing reliance, Plaintiffs refer to other, oral representations allegedly made by Defendant. As such, Plaintiffs have not met the "actual reliance" prong of the analysis. In addition, Plaintiffs have not adequately alleged why a hypothetical, prudent person would rely on a text message regarding a meeting to lend money to a business. Thus, the Court will dismiss Plaintiffs' claim under § 523(a)(2)(B), with prejudice.

"Embezzlement" within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) requires three elements: (1) property rightfully in the possession of the non-owner debtor, (2) the non-owner's misappropriation of the property to a use other than that for which it was entrusted, and (3) circumstances indicating fraud. In re Littleton, 942 F.2d 551, 555 (9th Cir. 1991). "The elements of larceny differ only in that a larcenous debtor has come into possession of funds wrongfully." In re Mickens, 312 B.R. 666, 680 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2004). Chapter 7 claim. In the FAC, Plaintiffs allege that Defendant misappropriated Elements' assets by using money and inventory contributed by Mr. Mitchell and JHM for his own personal use, and that Defendant breached the Shareholder Agreement.

As to the allegations regarding violation of the Shareholder Agreement, Plaintiffs allege that Mr. Mitchell was a party to the Shareholder Agreement; there are no allegations indicating that JHM was a party to the Shareholder Agreement. Because the claim under § 523(a)(4) is being asserted by JHM, JHM does not have standing to assert a breach of the Shareholder Agreement.

Plaintiffs also have not alleged why JHM had an interest in assets of Elements. JHM is not alleged to be a shareholder, and, although Plaintiffs allege that JHM contributed assets to Elements, Plaintiffs do not specify which assets were allegedly contributed by JHM or whether JHM maintained a security interest in such assets.

The only contribution by JHM specifically alleged by Plaintiffs is a loan. However, Plaintiffs do not allege relevant terms of the loan, or that JHM had a security interest in assets of Elements arising from such a loan. As to the loan funds, the recipient of the funds becomes the owner. See In re Bren, 284 B.R. 681, 698 (Bankr. D. Minn. 2002) ("Payment of a contract price in exchange for the recipient to undertake an obligation of future performance transfers the ownership of the money to the recipient."). As such, JHM no longer owned the funds and, as a result, does not have standing to assert a claim for embezzlement. Consequently, the Court will dismiss JHM's claim under § 523(a)(4), with prejudice.

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity."

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S.Ct. 974, 140 L.Ed. 2d 90 (1998). In the Ninth Circuit, "§ 523(a)(6)'s willful injury requirement is met only when the debtor has a subjective motive to inflict injury or when the debtor believes that injury is substantially certain to result from his own conduct." Ormsby, 591 F.3d at 1206 (quoting In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1142 (9th Cir.2002)). "The Debtor is charged with the knowledge of the natural consequences of his actions." Id. (citing In re Cohen, 121 B.R. 267, 271 (Bankr.E.D.N.Y.1990)).

Under § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Maliciousness requires (1) a wrongful act; (2) done intentionally; (3) which necessarily causes injury; (4) without just cause or excuse. Id. at 1147. Maliciousness does not require "personal hatred, spite, or ill-will." In re Bammer, 131 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 1997).

Plaintiffs base their claim under § 523(a)(6) on Defendant's alleged misappropriation of Elements' assets. For the same reasons explained above, Plaintiffs have not adequately alleged why JHM has standing to sue Defendant for misappropriation of Elements' assets. Plaintiffs have not alleged that JHM had an interest in Elements, or specified which assets were misappropriated and whether JHM had an interest in such assets (in fact, in the FAC, Plaintiffs allege that Mr. Mitchell had an interest in the corporate assets, not JHM). As such, the Court will dismiss JHM's claim under § 523(a)(6), with prejudice.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss Plaintiffs' first, second and third claims, with prejudice. Defendant must file and serve an answer to Plaintiffs' fourth claim no later than November 11, 2020. The Court will continue the status conference to 1:30 p.m. on December 9, 2020. No later than November 25, 2020, the parties must file and serve a joint status report in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(a).

Defendant must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#12.00 Darin Davis' Motion for Attorney's Fees and Costs Incurred to Defend Asphalt Professionals, Inc.'s ("API") Appeal to the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals of This Court's Order Sustaining Objection to Proofs of Claim

Docket 457

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On June 15, 2020, Darin Davis ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. After the Court entered an order sustaining Debtor's objection to the claim (the "Claims Order") filed by Asphalt Professionals, Inc. ("API"), Debtor moved for an award of attorneys' fees [doc. 303]. On October 28, 2019, the Court entered an order granting the request for fees (the "Fee Order") [doc. 260]. API appealed both the Claims Order and the Fee Order.

On June 24, 2020, Debtor filed a motion requesting fees and costs incurred defending API's appeal of the Claims Order before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals (the "First Motion") [doc. 457]. On June 25, 2020, Debtor filed another motion requesting attorneys' fees and costs incurred defending an appeal of the Fee Order before the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "Second Motion") [doc. 459]. API opposes both the First Motion and the Second Motion (the "Oppositions") [docs. 471, 472], arguing that: (A) certain portions of briefs filed by Debtor are duplicative of arguments made in prior briefs filed by Debtor; (B) some requested fees are excessive; and (C) Debtor did not agree to stay litigation of his prior attorneys' fees motions and, as a result, did not mitigate the amount of attorneys' fees or costs incurred.

Both California state courts and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals customarily assess the reasonableness of attorneys' fees utilizing the "lodestar" approach where the number of hours reasonably expended is multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate. Ketchum v. Moses, 24 Cal.4th 1122, 1131 (2001); In re Eliapo, 468 F.3d 592, 598 (9th Cir. 2006).

B. API's Arguments Regarding Excessive and/or Duplicate Billing

In the Oppositions, API asserts that the requested fees should be reduced by the same percentage as the amount of duplicative lines in Debtor's briefs. However, API sets forth no legal authority that provides for this method of reduction. In fact, while courts may reduce fees on the basis that they are "unnecessarily duplicative," courts must "articulate[] [their] reasoning with... specificity." Moreno v. City of Sacramento, 534 F.3d 1106, 1112-13 (9th Cir. 2008). As explained by the Moreno court—

The court may reduce the number of hours awarded because the lawyer performed unnecessarily duplicative work, but determining whether work is unnecessarily duplicative is no easy task. When a case goes on for many years, a lot of legal work product will grow stale; a competent lawyer won't rely entirely on last year's, or even last month's, research: Cases are decided; statutes are enacted; regulations are promulgated and amended. A lawyer also needs to get up to speed with the research previously performed. All this is duplication, of course, but it's necessary duplication; it is inherent in the process of litigating over time. Here, there was a previous appeal (of the district court's grant of summary judgment) which would have added to the delay and rendered much of the research stale. One certainly expects some degree of duplication as an inherent part of the process. There is no reason why the lawyer should perform this necessary work for free.

...

After all, duplication always happens when a task is started, stopped and then taken up again later. But necessary duplication—based on the vicissitudes of the litigation process—cannot be a legitimate basis for a fee reduction. It is only where the lawyer does unnecessarily duplicative work that the court may legitimately cut the hours.

Id.

As a preliminary matter, API does not cite specific billing entries as duplicative. Instead, API compares briefs filed by Debtor to note that the briefs contain duplicative portions. However, the billing entries attached to the Motions identify the amount of time spent on the subject briefs as a whole, not on specific parts of the briefs. As such, it is not evident that Debtor's counsel billed for the duplicative portions of the briefs, rather than the new research, analysis and argument set forth in those briefs.

In addition, API's proposed method of reduction does not provide room for a qualitative analysis of whether the requested fees and costs are unnecessarily duplicative, instead of merely duplicative. As noted by Moreno, duplicative work may be necessary, such as ensuring that legal research is not stale and updating briefs for argument before a different appellate body. Finally, API's calculations are not sound; API suggests calculating the percentage of duplicate lines in a single brief and then using that percentage to reduce API's total requested fees, not just the total fees incurred drafting the subject brief. Such a calculation would result in reducing all work performed by Debtor's counsel by a significant percentage, despite the fact that API does not dispute much of the other work for which counsel bills. Rather than arbitrarily reduce the requested fees by the percentage of duplicative lines, the Court will assess whether the requested fees and costs are reasonable under the lodestar method, discussed above.

C. The First Motion

As to the First Motion, Debtor's counsel incurred 7.7 hours drafting the responsive appellate brief, and 4.8 hours preparing for oral argument. This is a reasonable amount of time to spend on this type of work. First, while the brief at issue contains certain repetitive portions, the brief is not identical to prior briefs, such that Debtor's counsel likely spent time modifying the legal standards and argument for a new appellate body. In fact, had Debtor billed for unnecessarily duplicative work, Debtor likely would have billed much more for work on an appellate level brief. In addition, it is not unreasonable or excessive to spend 4.8 hours preparing for oral argument before an appellate court.

However, the Court will reduce the amount billed to prepare the reply [doc. 478] from the requested $1,700 to $850. The billed hours are slightly excessive compared to the amount of work reasonably required to prepare the subject reply.

In addition, the Court will not allow recovery of fees incurred analyzing or reviewing API's motion to dismiss the Court's Order to Show Cause (the "OSC"). The Court issued the OSC to obtain a response from API's counsel regarding whether counsel violated Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9011. The Court did not request a response to the OSC from Debtor, and Debtor was not otherwise involved with the OSC. As such, any decision by the appellate court regarding this Court's OSC would not have any impact on Debtor's defense of this appeal. Consequently, the Court will strike the billing entries dated February 20, 2020, in the amount of $212.50, and February 27, 2020, in the amount of $42.50, for a total reduction of $255.

D. The Second Motion

As to the Second Motion, Debtor's counsel again spent minimal time on legal research and drafting Debtor's responsive appellate brief. Debtor billed 1.3 hours for legal research, 11.7 hours on drafting the appellee's brief, 4.7 hours on preparing for oral argument and 1.70 hours to attend oral argument. The Court does not believe that this amount is excessive or unreasonable in light of the issues involved and the lengthy record on appeal.

API also argues that Debtor's counsel performed "minimal" work opposing API's motions to stay enforcement. Counsel billed a total of 16 hours to analyze and respond to two different motions for stay of enforcement filed by API. The amount spent on responding to API's multiple requests was neither unreasonable nor unnecessary. API's own filings called for a response by Debtor, and the total of 16 hours spent completing oppositions in response to two motions is not excessive.

As with the First Motion, the Court will reduce the amount billed to prepare the reply [doc. 479] from the requested $1,700 to $850. The billed 4 hours are slightly excessive compared to the amount of work reasonably required to prepare the subject reply. In addition, the Court will not allow recovery of fees incurred reviewing or analyzing API's motion to dismiss this Court's OSC. Debtor's counsel billed a total of 0.50 hours on such work; as a result, the Court will reduce the total request by $212.50.

E. API's Argument Regarding Mitigation

API's final argument, in response to both the First Motion and the Second Motion, is that Debtor failed to "mitigate damages" by refusing to stay prosecution of Debtor's motions for attorneys' fees and costs. To the extent API's cited authority, which does not relate to attorneys' fees and costs, applies to this case, API has not demonstrated that Debtor failed to mitigate losses.

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7054(b)(2) and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(d)(2)(B)(i), a motion for attorneys' fees must be filed no later than 14 days after the entry of judgment. To obtain attorneys' fees and costs, Debtor was required to file his motions by this deadline. After such filing, the onus was on API to move for stay of prosecution of the motions, or for stay of enforcement of the resulting orders. There is no case law, federal rule or local rule that places an obligation for prevailing parties to stay prosecution of their motions for attorneys' fees until resolution of an appeal. On the other hand, federal rules allow the opposing party to move for stay of motions and/or orders. API did not move for such relief. Thus, the Court will not punish Debtor by reducing his incurred fees for API's failure to move for a stay of the motions timely filed by Debtor.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will reduce the total requested in the First Motion by $1,105, for a total

#15.00 Motion for Order Authorizing Trustee to Compromise Controversy with 1501, LLC

Docket 62

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On July 16, 2019, Winters-Schram & Associates ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. Nancy J. Zamora was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On September 24, 2020, the Trustee filed the Motion [doc. 62], requesting approval of a compromise with 1501, LLC ("1501"). The Trustee did not attach the settlement agreement to the Motion. On October 1, 2020, the U.S. Trustee ("UST") filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 67]. In the Opposition, the UST asserts that the Trustee must provide the settlement agreement for review by the Court and interested parties. The UST also contends that the Trustee has not discussed why the settlement agreement is subject to confidentiality under one of the exceptions set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 107.

On October 15, 2020, the Trustee filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 71]. To the Reply, the Trustee attached a lightly redacted copy of the settlement agreement. The Trustee contends that the parties have provided disclosure of all relevant terms of the settlement agreement, and only seek to protect from disclosure the involvement of certain individuals who are not parties to the settlement agreement. On October 16, 2020, 1501 filed a joinder to the Reply [doc. 72].

II. ANALYSIS

Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9019(a) provides the following: "On motion by the trustee and after notice and a hearing, the court may approve a compromise or settlement." In deciding whether to approve a compromise, courts must determine whether it is fair and equitable, and whether it is reasonable under the particular circumstances of the case. In re A & C Properties, 784 F.2d 1377, 1381 (9th Cir.

Although "[t]he law favors compromise and not litigation for its own sake," the law requires "more than a mere good faith negotiation of a settlement by the trustee in order for the bankruptcy court to affirm a compromise agreement." Id. "[A]s long as the bankruptcy court amply considered the various factors that determined the reasonableness of the compromise, the court's decision must be affirmed." Id. In determining the fairness, reasonableness and adequacy of a proposed settlement agreement, the court must consider:

- (a) The probability of success in the litigation; (b) the difficulties, if any, to be encountered in the matter of collection; (c) the complexity of the litigation involved, and the expense, inconvenience and delay necessarily attending it; (d) the paramount interest of the creditors and a proper deference to their reasonable views in the premises.

Id. (citations omitted). It is the movant's burden to establish that the settlement is reasonable and should be approved. Id. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 107—finds that disclosure of such information would create undue risk of identity theft or other unlawful injury to the individual or the individual's property:

(A) Any means of identification (as defined in section 1028(d) of title 18) contained in a paper filed, or to be filed, in a case under this title.

(B) Other information contained in a paper described in subparagraph (A).

(2) Upon ex parte application demonstrating cause, the court shall provide access to information protected pursuant to paragraph (1) to an entity acting pursuant to the police or regulatory power of a domestic governmental unit.

(3) The United States trustee, bankruptcy administrator, trustee, and any auditor serving under section 586(f) of title 28—

(A) shall have full access to all information contained in any paper filed or submitted in a case under this title; and

(B) shall not disclose information specifically protected by the court under this title.

Here, the Trustee provided a "lightly redacted" copy of the settlement agreement. The Trustee contends that, with the information present in the redacted settlement agreement, the Court and interested parties may make an informed decision regarding the A & C Properties factors. However, contrary to the Trustee's assertion in the Reply, the parties did not merely redact the identities of individuals who are not parties to the agreement. In addition to redacting certain insurers' identities, the parties redacted, among other things: (A) the amount D.K. Brown Construction, Inc., a party to the settlement agreement, alleges that it is owed; (B) the identities of unknown released parties; (C) language regarding the release and discharge clause; (D) the amount to be paid by the unidentified insurers; (E) the amount which 1501 agreed to accept in resolution of its claims; (F) the amount D.K. accept in resolution of its claims; and (G) language regarding the authority of signers clause.

The Court and interested parties cannot fully evaluate the A & C Properties factors without the benefit of such pertinent missing information. For instance, how can parties assess the probability of success in litigation without knowing how much certain parties to the agreement allege they are owed? Or, how can parties determine if the agreement meets the paramount interest of creditors without knowing the amounts certain parties agreed to accept in resolution of their claims?

The problem is compounded by the Trustee's failure to identify a subsection of 11 U.S.C. § 107 under which the agreement is entitled to confidentiality. Thus, the Court is unable to weigh whether the parties have a statutory right to privacy. Without specifying a recognized right to privacy, the Court is bound by the general mandate of § 107(a), which provides that papers filed in bankruptcy cases "are public records and open to examination...." Consequently, unless the parties file an unredacted version of the settlement agreement or provide a statutory or otherwise legally recognized exception to § 107(a), the Court will deny the Motion.

III. CONCLUSION

Unless the parties agree to file an unredacted copy of the settlement agreement, the Court will deny the Motion. Alternatively, the Court may continue the hearing for the Trustee to provide legal authority regarding the asserted right to confidentiality.

#16.00 Motion for Order Authorizing Trustee to Sell Real Property
Free and Clear of Liens, Subject to Overbid

Docket 89

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On January 22, 2020, Shalva Tikva ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. Nancy J. Zamora was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In his schedule A/B, Debtor identified a fee simple interest in real property located at 21801 San Miguel Street, Los Angeles, CA 91367 (the "Property").

On September 29, 2020, the Trustee filed the Motion [doc. 89], requesting authority to sell the Property to Seema Kwatra and Saaniya Kwatra for $845,000. The Trustee intends to distribute the sale proceeds as follows: (A) first, to Amwest Funding Corp. ("Amwest") in the estimated amount of $622,533.69; (B) second, to Jacqueline Stein in the reduced, agreed-upon amount of $140,000; (C) third, to pay real property taxes owed to the County of Los Angeles in the estimated amount of $29,508.24; (D) fourth, to pay closing costs in the amount of $16,900; and (E) fifth, from a carve-out of Ms. Stein's security interest, approximately $23,317.76 as a distribution to the estate. The Trustee notes that there is insufficient equity to pay a subordinated deed of trust in favor of Amos Varsha in the amount of $30,000 (the "$30,000 DOT").

On October 13, 2020, Mr. Varsha filed an untimely opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 93]. In the Opposition, Mr. Varsha contends that he did not execute a subordination agreement. In addition, Mr. Varsha asserts that he is the beneficiary of another deed of trust, securing a loan of $40,000 (the "$40,000 DOT"), which is senior to the deed of trust in favor of Ms. Stein. On October 15, 2020, the Trustee filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 95]. To the Reply, the Trustee attached two subordination agreements, signed by Mr. Varsha and notarized, which subordinate the $30,000 DOT to the deeds of trust in favor of Amwest and Ms. Stein. Declaration of Nancy Hoffmeier Zamora, ¶¶ 6-7, Exhibits D-E. As to the $40,000 DOT, the Trustee contends that stamped language on the $40,000 DOT, related to a documentary transfer tax, provides that the $40,000 DOT is a bonafide gift; as such, the Trustee states there is no evidence that Mr. Varsha is owed any debt related to the $40,000 DOT.

II. ANALYSIS

Regarding the $30,000 DOT, the Trustee has provided recorded subordination agreements, signed by Mr. Varsha and notarized, that demonstrate that the $30,000 DOT was subordinated to Amwest's and Ms. Stein's security interests. For his part, other than stating in a conclusory fashion that he did not execute the subordination agreements, Mr. Varsha does not state why the subordination agreements are invalid; for instance, there is no argument that the signatures were forged or that the notarization was fraudulent. In light of the record, the subordination agreements appear to be valid, and the $30,000 DOT should not take priority over the other deeds of trust.

As to the $40,000 DOT, the Trustee mainly contends that the language regarding the $40,000 DOT being a bonafide gift indicates there is no debt owed to Mr. Varsha. "A security interest cannot exist without an underlying obligation..." All. Mortg. Co. v. Rothwell, 10 Cal. 4th 1226, 1235, 900 P.2d 601, 606 (1995); see also Coon v. Shry, 209 Cal. 612, 615 (1930) ("There cannot be a mortgage if there is no debt or other obligation to be secured."); and 5 Miller & Starr, Cal. Real Estate (4th ed.) § 13:11 ("Because the security instrument is merely incident to and measured by the performance of the obligation, there can be no lien of a mortgage or trust deed without an underlying and enforceable debt or obligation.").

While the Trustee is correct that the $40,000 DOT would be invalid if it does not secure an underlying debt, the $40,000 DOT provides that it secures "[p]ayment of the indebtedness evidenced by one Promissory Note of even date herewith, and any extension or renewal thereof, in the principal sum of Forty Thousand Dollars and 00/100 ($40,000.00)..." Declaration of Amos Varsha, ¶ 5, Exhibit B. The stamped language regarding the "bonafide gift" appears to relate to a documentary transfer tax exemption. The Trustee has not provided authority regarding whether such stamped language would, without more, nullify the language in the deed of trust itself (which language references a promissory note and obligation to pay).

Nevertheless, because Mr. Varsha did not timely file the Opposition, the Trustee has not been afforded an adequate opportunity to investigate the $40,000 DOT. Further, the Trustee has not addressed which subsection of 11 U.S.C. § 363(f) applies to allow the Trustee to sell the Property free and clear of either the $30,000 DOT or, assuming it is valid and/or enforceable, the $40,000 DOT. As such, the Court will continue this hearing for the parties to provide supplemental briefing and evidence.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will continue this hearing to 1:30 p.m. on November 19, 2020. No later than November 5, 2020, the parties must file and serve supplemental briefs discussing whether: (A) the $40,000 DOT is valid and/or enforceable (and, as to Mr. Varsha, providing evidence of the underlying debt, such as a promissory note); (B) the Trustee may sell the Property free and clear of either the $30,000 DOT or the $40,000 DOT under 11 U.S.C. § 363(f); and (C) in light of these issues and assuming the sale moves forward, if the Trustee can guarantee that there will be funds left over for distribution to the Internal Revenue Service.

No later than November 12, 2020, the parties may file and serve briefs responding to the opposing party's supplemental briefs.

Docket 226

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In its schedule A/B, Debtor scheduled a fee simple interest in real property located at 13854 Albers Street, Sherman Oaks, CA 91401 (the "Property").

On October 1, 2020, Debtor filed a motion to sell the Property (the "Motion") [doc. 226], requesting authority to sell the Property. On October 7, 2020, the U.S. Trustee (the "UST") filed a limited objection to the Motion (the "UST Objection") [doc. 235]. The UST objects to Debtor's request to pay $21,517 to LDI Ventures, LLC ("LDI") out of escrow for maintenance and repair expenses of the Property. The UST asserts that repayment of such debt is governed by 11 U.S.C. § 503(b)(1), as an administrative expense, and LDI should submit a proof of claim and seek reimbursement under that statute rather than be paid through escrow. The UST does not otherwise object to sale of the Property.

On October 8, 2020, Michael Leizerovitz and Sensible Consulting Management, Inc. (the "Leizerovitz Parties") filed a response to the Motion (the "Leizerovitz Response") [doc. 236]. The Leizerovitz Parties do not object to sale of the Property, but request additional information as to the following: (A) whether there is any relationship between the purchaser, on the one hand, and Debtor and/or its affiliates, on the other hand; (B) evidence of "haggling" over the purchase price; (C) an independent appraisal of the Property; (D) information regarding whether the sale price is the "highest" or "best" of the offers received by Debtor; and (E) information about whether there will be seller financing and, if so, more information about the terms.

The Leizerovitz Parties also do not understand why Debtor wants to "pre-qualify" potential overbidders prior to the hearing on the Motion.

On October 9, 2020, The Sands Law Group, APLC ("Sands Law") filed a response to the Motion (the "Sands Law Response") [doc. 240]. Sands Law asserts that the Court should reconsider his opposition to the application to employ the real estate brokers involved with this sale. Sands Law also contends, without any evidence, that the purchaser is a "strawman" for another entity. However, Sands Law concludes by saying he neither endorses nor objects to the sale, and footnotes that he will not be appearing at the hearing. The Sands Law Response is not supported by a declaration.

On October 15, 2020, Debtor filed a reply to the Leizerovitz Response and the Sands Law Response (the "Reply") [doc. 242], with an attached declaration by one of the real estate brokers. Subsequently, Debtor also filed a declaration by the proposed purchaser of the Property (the "Declaration") [doc. 243]. However, Debtor has not responded to the UST Objection.

II. ANALYSIS

The Reply and the Declaration address most of the concerns raised by the Leizerovitz Parties. Regarding the Leizerovitz Parties' concerns about the overbid procedures, the Leizerovitz Parties have not provided any authority that a requirement to submit overbids three days before the hearing is so unreasonable as to chill bidding. The overbid procedures set forth in the Motion appear to be standard, and not so harsh as to stifle possible overbidding on the Property.

The Leizerovitz Parties' request for an appraisal also is unnecessary. "Generally, ...the best way to determine the market value of property is to expose the property to the marketplace." In re Mama's Original Foods, Inc., 234 B.R. 500, 504 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1999) (citing Bank of America NT & SA v. 203 North LaSalle Street Partnership, 526 U.S. 434, 119 S.Ct. 1411, 1423, 143 L.Ed.2d 607 (1999)). Here, the declarations in support of the Motion and the Reply demonstrate that the Property has been marketed for approximately three months, and the purchase price reflects the highest offer received by the brokers. Given that the purchase price reflects the actual market value of the Property, the Leizerovitz Parties have not articulated why an appraisal would provide a more accurate valuation. Debtor has otherwise provided additional information responsive to the concerns set forth in the Leizerovitz Response.

As to the Sands Law Objection, Sands Law repeats arguments already adjudicated by the Court in connection with Sands Law's opposition to the application to employ the real estate brokers. In addition, Sands Law has provided no evidence, such as in the form of a declaration, in support of its remaining assertions. Sands Law has not provided a sound reason to deny the Motion.

However, Debtor has not addressed the UST Objection. Because the UST does not object to the sale itself, the Court will approve the sale, with the exception that the Court will deny Debtor's request to pay LDI via escrow. Instead, Debtor may hold the subject funds until there is a Court order allowing payment of the funds under the appropriate standards.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion, with the exception that the Court will deny the request to pay LDI through escrow. LDI may file and serve a properly noticed motion requesting payment of the funds under the appropriate legal standards.

Debtor must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Docket 53

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 362(d)(1), the Court will lift the automatic stay in order to allow Overland Direct, Inc. ("Overland") to proceed to judgment in state court litigation against Transpine, Inc. ("Debtor"), as well as other defendants, concerning, inter alia, whether Debtor's receipt of its primary asset, an equity interest in a residence, constitutes a fraudulent transfer.

I. BACKGROUND

The Court incorporates by reference its written decision (the "Remand Decision") [Adv. No. 1:20-ap-01074-VK, doc. 23] remanding the action removed by Debtor (the "State Court Action") to the Superior Court of California, for the County of Los Angeles (the "State Court").

On October 15, 2020, the Court entered an Order Remanding Action to the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles [Adversary Docket, doc. 24].

On October 15, 2020, the Court entered an Order to Show Cause Why the Court Should Not Grant Relief from the Automatic Stay (the "OSC") [doc. 53]. Debtor is one of several defendants in the State Court Action which concerns, among other things, whether Debtor's receipt of an interest in residential real property located at 4256 Tarzana Estates Drive, Tarzana, California 91356 (the "Tarzana Property") constitutes a fraudulent transfer. In the State Court Action, defaults of several of the defendants have been entered, and a stipulated judgment was entered against one defendant. The remaining active defendants are Debtor and insiders of Debtor, including Nisan Tepper, who is Debtor's CEO and sole equityholder, and two sons of Nisan Tepper.

The Tarzana Property is encumbered by a deed of trust. Previously, in the State Court Action, the State Court held that this deed of trust constitutes a valid lien against the Tarzana Property.

In the OSC, the Court ordered Debtor to file a response by October 19, 2020, explaining why the Court should not lift the automatic stay sua sponte in order to allow the State Court to determine whether the Tarzana Property was fraudulently transferred to Debtor.

On October 19, 2020, Debtor filed a Response to Show Cause Why the Court Should Not Grant Relief from the Automatic Stay (the "Response") [doc. 57]. In the Response, Debtor argues that there is no "cause" pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) to support lifting the automatic stay, under the factors articulated by In re Curtis, 40 B.R. 795 (Bankr. D. Utah 1984).

II. DISCUSSION

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 105(a):

- (a) The court may issue any order, process, or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of this title. No provision of this title providing for the raising of an issue by a party in interest shall be construed to preclude the court from, sua sponte, taking any action or making any determination necessary or appropriate to enforce or implement court orders or rules, or to prevent an abuse of process.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1):

- (d) On request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant relief from the stay provided under subsection (a) of this section, such as by terminating, annulling, modifying, or conditioning such stay—
 - (1) for cause, including the lack of adequate protection of an interest in property of such party in interest;

The decision whether or not to grant or deny stay relief is within the broad discretion of the bankruptcy court. In re Kronemyer, 405 B.R. 915, 919 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009); In re Plumberex Specialty Products, Inc., 311 B.R. 551, 557 (C.D. Cal. 2004).

"Section 105(a) has been interpreted as allowing a bankruptcy court to lift the automatic stay sua sponte to allow related litigation to proceed in another court." In re Clark, 2014 WL 5646640, at *9 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2014) (citing cases); see also In re Bellucci, 119 BR. 763, 778–79 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 1990). In In re Clark, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the Ninth Circuit concluded that a bankruptcy court may lift the automatic stay sua sponte and that there was "[no] abuse of discretion in the bankruptcy court's decision to lift the automatic stay of § 362 to allow the State Court Litigation to proceed in the California state courts" Id.

The bankruptcy court may modify or terminate the automatic stay "for cause" under § 362(d)(1). Section 362(d)(1) permits lifting of the automatic stay to continue pending litigation against a debtor in a nonbankruptcy forum. See Christensen v. Tucson Estates, Inc. (In re Tucson Estates, Inc.), 912 F.2d 1162, 1166 (9th Cir. 1990).

Factors that courts have used to determine whether to lift the automatic stay to allow litigation to proceed in a nonbankruptcy forum include:

- (1) Whether the relief will result in a partial or complete resolution of the issues.
- (2) The lack of any connection with or interference with the bankruptcy case.
- (3) Whether the foreign proceeding involves the debtor as a fiduciary.
- (4) Whether a specialized tribunal has been established to hear the particular cause of action and that tribunal has the expertise to hear such cases.
- (5) Whether the debtor's insurance carrier has assumed full financial responsibility for defending the litigation.
- (6) Whether the action essentially involves third parties, and the debtor functions only as a bailee or conduit for the goods or proceeds in question.
- (7) Whether litigation in another forum would prejudice the interests of other creditors, the creditors' committee and other interested parties.
- (8) Whether the judgment claim arising from the foreign action is subject to equitable subordination under Section 510(c).
- (9) Whether movant's success in the foreign proceeding would result in a judicial lien avoidable by the debtor under Section 522(f).
- (10) The interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties.

- (11) Whether the foreign proceedings have progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial.

"Although the term 'cause' is not defined in the Code, courts in the Ninth Circuit have granted relief from the stay under § 362(d)(1) when necessary to permit pending litigation to be concluded in another forum if the non-bankruptcy suit involves multiple parties or is ready for trial." Plumberex Specialty Products, 311 B.R. at 556 (citing Tucson Estates, 912 F.2d at 1166). "Among factors appropriate to consider in determining whether relief from the automatic stay should be granted to allow state court proceeding to continue are considerations of judicial economy and the expertise of the state court, as well as prejudice to the parties and whether exclusively bankruptcy issues are involved." Kronemyer, 405 B.R. at 921 (internal citations omitted); see also In re American Spectrum Realty, Inc., 540 B.R. 730 (C.D. Cal. 2015) (finding "cause" to lift the automatic stay to allow a pending state court action to proceed).

When applied to the case, the following Curtis factors support relief from the automatic stay.

1. Whether the relief will result in a partial or complete resolution of the issues

Overland contends that the Tarzana Property was fraudulently transferred to Debtor; the State Court Action has been pending since 2017. Allowing the State Court Action to proceed in the State Court would allow timely resolution of the dispute between Overland and Debtor. In order for Debtor to reorganize effectively, the legitimacy of its retaining title to the Tarzana Property, or distributing any net proceeds arising from Debtor's sale of the Tarzana Property, must be established. The State Court Action will resolve that issue.

2. The lack of any connection with or interference with the bankruptcy law

Chapter 11

The State Court Action concerns whether Debtor's receipt of an interest in the Tarzana Property constitutes a fraudulent transfer, and whether Debtor may retain its equity interest in the Tarzana Property. The State Court Action involves solely state law issues that are not dependent on bankruptcy law. See In re A Partners, LLC, 344 B.R. 114, 122 (E.D. Cal. 2006) (citing First Federal Bank of California v. Cogar (In re Cogar), 210 B.R. 803, 809 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997)(state law determines nature and extent of debtor's interest in property).

3. Whether litigation in another forum would prejudice the interests of other creditors, the creditors' committee and other interested parties

Debtor has not explained how creditors or interested parties would be prejudiced, if litigation proceeds in the State Court. As evidenced by Debtor's schedules and monthly operating report, the Tarzana Property, which is the Debtor's sole significant asset, is not producing any income. Lifting the automatic stay would not prejudice creditors, because the State Court is well equipped to address whether or not Debtor receipt of its interest in the Tarzana Property constitutes a fraudulent transfer. Moreover, the State Court already has been involved with this litigation, for years, and already has decided certain pertinent issues.

4. The interest of judicial economy and the expeditious and economical determination of litigation for the parties

The issue of whether Debtor's receipt of title to the Tarzana Property constitutes a fraudulent transfer is a purely state law issue that has been pending before the State Court since 2017. On December 1, 2020, the State Court is set to hear several motions, including motions to compel against other defendants (for which the State Court rendered a tentative decision, before Debtor removed the State Court Action to this Court) and to hold a trial setting conference. Lifting the automatic stay would minimize the duplication of litigation in two different forums over the same issues. Therefore, judicial economy favors lifting the stay.

5. Whether the foreign proceedings have progressed to the point where the parties are prepared for trial

Chapter 11

"[A] desire to permit an action to proceed to completion in another tribunal . . . contemplates the situation in which the debtor is a party to a prepetition action that has progressed to the point where it would be a waste of the parties' and the court's resources to begin anew in bankruptcy court." Curtis, 40 B.R. at 805 (internal citation and quotation marks omitted).

Here, although the parties are not prepared for trial in the State Court Action, the State Court will hold a trial setting conference on December 1, 2020. Before the litigation was removed to this Court (and subsequently remanded to the State Court), the State Court: (1) entered defaults; (2) decided the validity of the single deed of trust that encumbers the Tarzana Property; and (3) issued tentative decisions to grant motions to compel. At this point, it is far more efficient for the litigation to go forward in the State Court.

6. The impact of the stay on the parties and the "balance of the hurt"

Before Debtor can reorganize or distribute any net proceeds from a sale of the Tarzana Property, the issue of whether or not Debtor's receipt of title to that property constitutes a fraudulent transfer, which is based on state law, must be determined. Having that litigation proceed in the State Court, where it has been pending for several years, will not hurt Debtor, or any other parties. Rather, it will promote and expedite the determination of a critical issue for effectuating Debtor's reorganization.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will lift the automatic stay in order for the State Court litigation to proceed to a final judgment regarding Debtor's interest in the Tarzana Property and whether or not Debtor's receipt of its interest in the Tarzana Property constitutes a fraudulent transfer.

The Court will prepare the order.

Docket 16

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

On October 1, 2020, Dashing Properties Management, Inc. (the "Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. Reza Safaie is Debtor's President and sole equityholder [doc. 7, Corporate Ownership Statement; doc. 18, Statement of Financial Affairs, item 28].

A. SO-CAL Capital Inc.'s Deed of Trust and Debtor's Prepetition Default

Prior to filing its bankruptcy petition, on November 4, 2019, Debtor granted a deed of trust, encumbering a condominium located at 5135 Zelzah Avenue # 107, Encino, California 91316 (the "Zelzah Property"), to SO-CAL Capital, Inc. ("Movant") [Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay under 11 U.S.C. § 362 ("Stay Relief Motion"), doc. 16-1, Exh. B, Deed of Trust]. On November 5, Mr. Safaie, Debtor's President, executed the SO-CAL deed of trust ("SO-CAL DOT"). Id. On November 7, 2019, the SO-CAL DOT was recorded in the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office. Id.

The SO-CAL DOT secures a promissory note (the "Note") in the amount of $297,500.00 [doc. 16-1, Exh. C, Promissory Note]. The Note provides that: (1) the loan term is 24 months; (2) the loan interest rate is 9.50%; (3) Debtor must make monthly payments in the amount of $2,355.21; (4) the default rate is 19.50%; and (4) the full amount of the loan is due on December 1, 2021. Id.

In March 2020, the Zelzah Property's insurance was canceled based on non-payment [Stay Relief Motion, doc. 16, Declaration of Patrick Lacy, ¶ 26]. Debtor renewed its property insurance in May 2020 [id., Exh. I]. On May 28, 2020, Movant notified Mr.

Safaie that the loan was in default based on two delinquent payments and that, unless the loan was made current, Movant would begin foreclosure proceedings [id., Exh. J, email dated May 28, 2020, p. 104].

On June 3, 2020, a notice of default and election to sell under the SO-CAL DOT was recorded [id., Exh. K]. On September 8, 2020, a notice of trustee's sale was recorded, setting a trustee's sale on October 2, 2020 [id., Exh. L].

B. Debtor's Assets and Liabilities

On October 15, 2020, Debtor filed its schedules of assets and liabilities and its Statement of Financial Affairs [doc. 18]. In its Schedule A/B, Debtor lists its interest in the Zelzah Property. Debtor's Schedule G indicates that it has an unexpired lease with two tenants.

Based on Debtor's schedules, the Zelzah Property is encumbered by two deeds of trust: (1) a deed of trust to Far Ocean Management, LLC, securing a claim in the amount of $210,000.00 and (2) the SO-CAL DOT, securing a claim in the principal amount of $297,500.00 [doc. 18, Schedule D]. The other secured claims are property taxes owed to the Los Angeles County Tax Collector in the amount of $4,718.19 and HOA dues owed to Zelzah Garden Homeowners in the amount of $2,800.00. In Debtor's Schedule A/B, Debtor states that the Zelzah Property has a value of $550,000.00 [doc. 18].

In its Schedule A/B, Debtor also lists a claim for damages, pertaining to flood damage sustained by the Zelzah Property, in the amount of $85,000.00 against Zelzah Garden Homeowners Association and Travelers Insurance. Id.

Other than the two claims secured by the deeds of trusts against the Zelzah Property and other secured debt, Debtor has: (1) a non-priority unsecured debt payable to Fara Erami in the amount of $80,000 and (2) a non-priority unsecured debt payable to Mr. Safaie, its President, in the amount of $76,000 [doc. 18, Schedule E/F]. Mr. Safaie represents that he provided a loan to Debtor, following the flood damage sustained by the Zelzah Property, to pay for tenants' hotel accommodations and mold remediation [doc. 20, Declaration of Reza Safaie, ¶ 9].

According to its Statement of Financial Affairs, Debtor generated no revenue during 2019 [doc. 18, Statement of Financial Affairs].

C. *The Stay Relief Motion

Chapter 11

On October 14, 2020, Movant filed the Stay Relief Motion [doc. 16]. Movant seeks relief pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d)(1) and (4).

Under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1), Movant contends that its interest in the Zelzah Property is not adequately protected because: (1) it is not protected by an adequate equity cushion and (2) the fair market value of the Zelzah Property is declining and payments have not been made to Movant to protect its interest against the declining value.

In the Stay Relief Motion, Movant states that the value of the equity cushion in the Zelzah Property, calculated by the value exceeding Movant's debt and other senior debt, is $86,777.16 and that this represents 20.42% of the fair market value of the Zelzah Property.

Based on an appraisal report, conducted in October 2019 – for which the appraiser's signed declaration has not been provided, Movant contends that the Zelzah Property has a value of $425,000.00 [doc. 16, Exh. D, Appraisal Report]. Movant also represents that its secured claim, as of the petition date, is in the amount of $336,951.31.

Under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(4), Movant argues that Debtor filed its bankruptcy case in bad faith because: (1) Movant is one of few creditors listed in Debtor's schedules; (2) Debtor filed few documents with its bankruptcy petition; and (3) Debtor has not made payments to Movant since March 2020. Movant also contends that:

Reza Safaie, principal of the Debtor, is a serial bankruptcy filer with at least three personal bankruptcy filings and at least six other bankruptcy filings where Mr. Safaie was the principal of the debtor company. The case at hand is another instance that illustrates a pattern and practice of filing for bankruptcy to forestall foreclosure on real property owned by Mr. Safaie directly or through his nominee entities.

Doc. 16, Declaration of Douglas J. Harris, ¶ 2. Movant contends that Mr. Safaie's previous bankruptcy filings demonstrate a pattern of abusing the bankruptcy system.

On October 21, 2020, Debtor filed its opposition to the Stay Relief Motion [doc. 20], and on October 28, 2020, Movant filed a reply [doc. 29]. In its reply, Movant states

D. Bankruptcy Cases Filed by Mr. Safie and Affiliated Entities

1. The First Case

On June 11, 1997, Mr. Safaie filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, commencing case no. 1:97-bk-18016-GM (the "First Case"). On July 28, 1997, because Mr. Safaie failed to make the required chapter 13 payments and failed to appear at the 341 meeting of creditors, the Court entered an order dismissing the First Case with a 180-day bar. First Case, doc. 26.

2. The Second Case

On February 22, 1999, Mr. Safaie filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, commencing case no. 1:99-bk-12018-GM (the "Second Case"). In his Schedule A, Mr. Safaie listed an interest in real property located at 24508 Park Granada, Calabasas, California 91302. Second Case, doc. 11. On May 4, 1999, because Mr. Safaie failed to make the required chapter 13 payments, the Court entered an order dismissing the Second Case with a 180-day bar to refiling. Second Case, doc. 35.

3. The Third Case

On January 18, 2002, Mr. Safaie filed a voluntary 13 petition, commencing case no. 1:02-bk-10478-AG (the "Third Case"). Mr. Safaie did not list any real property in his Schedule A. Third Case, doc. 18. On February 15, 2002, Mr. Safaie filed an application for voluntary dismissal of his chapter 13 case. Third Case, doc. 38. On February 19, the Court entered an order granting Mr. Safaie's voluntary dismissal with a 180-day bar to refiling. Third Case, doc. 39.

4. The Fourth Case

On November 20, 2001, S.B.R.S. Inc., a California corporation, filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition, commencing case no. 1:01-bk-20812-KT (the "Fourth Case"). S.B.R.S. On February 14, 2012, SBRS, Inc., a California corporation ("SBRS"), filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, commencing case no. 1:12-bk-11389-MT (the "Fifth Case"). [FN1] Mr. Safaie served as president of SBRS. Fifth Case, doc. 18. In its Schedule A, SBRS listed interests in three real properties located at: (1) 3442 Malaga Court, Calabasas, California 91302; (2) 5 San Mateo Way, Corona Del Mar, California 92652; and (3) 45 La Cerra Drive, Rancho Mirage, California 92270. Fifth Case, doc. 20. On December 26, 2012, because SBRS did not timely file its required monthly operating reports and statements, the United States Trustee filed a motion to dismiss or convert the Fifth Case. The Fifth Case, doc. 72. On February 20, 2013, the Court entered an order converting the Fifth Case to one under chapter 7. Fifth Case, doc. 111. During the Fifth Case, the chapter 7 trustee sold the real property located at 5 San Mateo Way and abandoned the other two real properties. Fifth Case, Trustee's Final Report, doc. 239. On November 20, 2014, the Fifth Case was closed. Fifth Case, doc. 252.

6. The Sixth Case

On November 13, 2012, Desert Hot Spring Ranch, Inc. ("Desert Hot Spring") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, commencing case no. 1:12-bk-20005-AA (the "Sixth Case"). Mr. Safaie served as president of Desert Hot Spring. Sixth Case, Declaration of Reza Safaie Regarding Case Commencement Deficiency Notice, doc. 15. In the Sixth Case, Desert Hot Spring did not file schedules or a statement of financial affairs. On November 19, 2012, the United States Trustee filed a motion to dismiss or convert the case. Sixth Case, doc. 7. On November 30, 2012, Desert Hot Spring filed a notice of non-opposition requesting that its case be dismissed without a bar to refiling. Sixth Case, doc. 16. On December 10, 2012, the Court entered an order dismissing the Sixth Case. Sixth Case, doc. 17.

chapter 7 trustee filed a motion to sell the real property located at 4369 Willow Glen Street, Desert Hot Spring filed a motion to convert the Seventh Case to one under chapter 11. Seventh Case, doc. 49. On May 29, 2013, the chapter 7 trustee filed an opposition to the motion to convert, arguing that Desert Hot Spring had acted in bad faith and Mr. Safaie had repeatedly abused the bankruptcy system. Seventh Case, doc. 52. On July 17, 2013, the Court denied Desert Hot Spring's motion to convert. Seventh Case, doc. 89. On February 21, 2014, after the Court granted the chapter 7 trustee's motion to sell the real property located at 4369 Willow Glen Street, and the Trustee's Final Report was filed, the Seventh Case was closed. Seventh Case, docs. 116, 126.

8. The Eighth Case

On February 10, 2015, SBRS filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, commencing its third bankruptcy case, case no. 8:15-bk-10657-ES (the "Eighth Case"). Mr. Safaie represented that he was the property manager for the real properties owed by SBRS. Eighth Case, Declaration of Reza Safaie filed in support of Debtor's Motion for Order Authorizing the Interim Use of Cash Collateral, doc. 22. In its Schedule A, SBRS listed an interest in two real properties located at: (1) 3442 Malaga Court, Calabasas, California 91302 and (2) 45 La Cerra Drive, Rancho Mirage, California 92270. Eighth Case, doc. 1. On August 10, 2015, because, among other things, SBRS failed to file its disclosure statement and plan by the Court-set deadline, failed to make post-petition mortgage payments and had no ability to reorganize, the United States Trustee filed a motion to dismiss or convert the case. Eighth Case, doc. 60. On September 23, 2015, the Court entered an order granting the United States Trustee's motion to dismiss. Eighth Case, doc. 71.

9. The Ninth Case

On November 16, 2017, S.B.R.S., Inc. ("S.B.R.S.") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, commencing case no. 1:17-bk-13063-MT (the "Ninth Case"). In its original Schedule A/B, S.B.R.S. listed interests in real property located at 3442 Malaga Court, Calabasas, California 91302 and real property located at 45 La Cerra Drive, Rancho Mirage, CA 92270. Ninth Case, doc. 18. Subsequently, S.B.R.S. filed an amended Schedule A/B, which listed only an interest in the real property located at 3442 Malaga Court. Ninth Case, doc. 41. On May 2, 2018, regarding the real property located at 3442 Malaga Court, the Court entered an order granting relief from the automatic stay under 11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d)(1), (2) and (4). Ninth Case, doc. 70. On May 16, 2018, the United

II. DISCUSSION

11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d)(1) and (4) provide, in pertinent part:

(d) On request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant the stay provided under subsection (a) of this section, such as by terminating, annulling, modifying, or conditioning such stay—

(1) for cause, including the lack of adequate protection of an interest in property of such party in interest;

(4) with respect to a stay of an act against real property under subsection (a), by a creditor whose claim is secured by an interest in such real property, if the court finds that the filing of the petition was part of a scheme to delay, hinder, or defraud creditors that involved either—

(A) Transfer of all or part ownership of, or other interest in, such real property without the consent of the secured creditor or court approval; or

(B) Multiple bankruptcy filings affecting such real property.

11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d)(1) and (4) (emphasis added).

A decision to lift the automatic stay is within the discretion of the bankruptcy court. In re MacDonald, 755 F.2d 715, 716 (9th Cir. 1985). "Cause" exists when, among other things, there is a lack of adequate protection. In re Ellis, 60 B.R. 432, 435 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1985). An equity cushion may provide adequate protection. In re Mellor, 734 F.2d 1396, 1400 (9th Cir. 1984). "The Ninth Circuit has held that a 20% equity cushion provides adequate protection." In re Capitol Station 65, LLC, 2018 WL 333863, at *11 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. Jan. 8, 2018) (citing Mellor, 734 F.2d at 1401).

Lack of adequate protection is not the only factor to consider in determining whether there is "cause" to grant relief from the automatic stay. "Many courts have found a debtor's bad faith, or lack of good faith, to constitute 'cause' for lifting the stay to permit creditors to proceed in rem against a debtor's property." In re Mantachie Apartment Homes, LLC, 488 B.R. 325, 331 (Bankr. N.D. Miss. 2013) (citing Matter of Little Creek Development Co., 779 F.2d 1068, 1072 (5th Cir. 1986); see also In re Trust, 526 B.R. 668, 680 (N.D. Tex. 2015) ("Although not expressly listed in § 362(d)(1), it is well established that a debtor's lack of good faith may constitute 'cause' for relief from the automatic stay.")).

Regarding § 362(d)(1), at this time, Movant has not demonstrated that the Zelzah Property is declining in value. Moreover, there is conflicting evidence regarding the value of the Zelzah Property. Movant relies on an appraisal report that describes the value of the Zelzah Property, as of approximately one year ago, as $425,000.00. In contrast, Debtor has submitted: (1) Mr. Safie's declaration, in which he states that the Zelzah Property has a fair market value of approximately $550,000.000 [doc. 20] ; and (2) the declaration of a licensed real estate salesperson, Benjamin Toufer, who opines that the purchase price of the Zelzah Property "should be in the range of $550,000.00" [doc. 21, ¶ 3]. Notably, neither of these opinions is supported by a specific, relevant comparable sales analysis.

Mr. Safie represents that Debtor has identified a potential buyer to purchase the Zelzah Property for $520,000.00 [doc. 20]. However, Debtor provides no other evidence that it received any such offer, or entered into a contract to sell the Zelzah Property. Similarly, Debtor does not identify the alleged, potential buyer or provide any evidence of such a buyer's financial ability to consummate a purchase. Finally, although Debtor represents that it has entered into a 90-day listing agreement for the sale of the Zelzah Property, at a listing price of $549,000.00 [doc. 20, Exh. B], Debtor has not obtained, nor sought, Court approval of that listing agreement or the employment of the pertinent broker.

Based on the conflicting, and problematic, evidence of the Zelzah Property's current fair market value, the Court may schedule an evidentiary hearing to make that determination.

Regarding whether Debtor's case was filed in bad faith, such that there would be cause to grant relief from stay, although Debtor's principal and affiliates of Debtor have frequently filed bankruptcy cases, and apparently have not confirmed a chapter 11 plan in any of those cases, it is unclear whether Debtor has filed this case in bad faith. Debtor has provided explanations for its loan payment defaults, such as flooding and water damage to the Zelzah Property, resulting in the need for mold remediation, and the current pandemic's impact on Debtor's ability to generate income from leasing the Zelzah Property [doc. 20, Declaration of Reza Safie, ¶¶ 9, 13, 15]. These explanations suggest that Debtor did not file this case in bad faith.

Regarding the application of § 362(d)(4), it does not appear that an interest in the Zelzah Property has been transferred without Movant's consent, or that there have been multiple bankruptcy filings regarding the Zelzah Property. Mr. Safaie's previous bankruptcy filings, and those of affiliated entities, involved different real properties. Consequently, at this time, the Court will not grant relief from the automatic stay based on § 362(d)(4).

FOOTNOTES

FN1. SBRS, Inc., a California corporation, and S.B.R.S. Inc., a California corporation, appear to be separate, affiliated entities. Mr. Safaie was the President and sole shareholder of each of these entities. #1.00 Amended application of LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. for payment of final fees and/or expenses

fr. 8/6/20, 9/17/20

Docket 247

Tentative Ruling:

LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. ("Applicant"), special litigation counsel to the debtor – in addition to the Court's prior approval, on a final basis, of fees in the amount of $40,000.00 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $2,408.50 (for Aptus Court Reporting), and other expenses in the amount of $1,187.16 (incurred from April 20, 2018 through February 20, 2019), the Court will approve expenses in the amount of $1,717.01, which expenses were incurred from April 1, 2019 through October 30, 2019, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis.

Although the Court will not "approve" expenses incurred prepetition from February 1, 2017 through July 24, 2017, if Applicant had a retainer at that time, Applicant may apply that retainer to repayment of those expenses.

Applicant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

9/17/20 Tentative Ruling

In connection with the amended application for payment of final fees and expenses (the "Final Application") filed by LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. ("Applicant"), the Court has reviewed the Notice of Motion and Motion For Order Approving Compromise of Controversy [doc. 192] (the "Settlement Motion"). The Settlement Motion was the basis for the Court to approve the debtor's settlement of the state court action International Medical Care, Inc. v. The Regents of the University of California. Applicant prepared and filed the Settlement Motion.

The Settlement Motion states:

"There are unpaid trial expenses of $4,664.00, consisting of $2,255.50 for the forensic accountant who testified [at] trial and $2,408.50 for the court reporter. The net settlement amount of $55,336.00 will go to the Debtor and will be available for Debtor's Chapter 11 Plan."

The Settlement Motion does not discuss any other unpaid trial expenses.

Previously, the Court has approved, on an interim basis, reimbursement of Applicant's expenses in the amount of $1,187.16 (incurred from April 20, 2018 through February 20, 2019) and authorized the estate's payment of those expenses, in full. See Order on Application for Payment of Interim Fees and/or Expenses [doc. 177] and Revised First Interim Application of LibertyBell Law Group for Allowance of Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses, p. 27 [doc. 115]. At this time, the Court will approve reimbursement of those expenses, on a final basis.

At the prior hearing on the Final Application, the Court also allowed reimbursement of Applicant's expenses for the court reporter and denied reimbursement of expenses for the forensic accountant.

If Applicant had additional trial expenses in the amount of $3,962.82, why didn't Applicant discuss those expenses in the Settlement Motion?

Based on the points noted above, and the failure of Applicant to file timely a supplement to its request for reimbursement of $3,962.82 in other expenses, the Court will deny reimbursement to Applicant of any expenses which the Court has not previously approved.

In order for the Court to assess whether Applicant has turned over to the chapter 7 trustee the balance of any funds Applicant has received in connection with its representation of the debtor and/or International Medical Care, Inc. ("IMC"), net payment of Applicant's Court-approved fees and expenses, Applicant must provide an accounting to the Court of all funds that Applicant has received in connection with its representation of the debtor and/or IMC, on and after November 24, 2017.

In its employment application [doc. 13], Applicant and the debtor represented that, before the debtor filed his chapter 11 petition, the debtor had paid $15,000.00 to Applicant.

When can Applicant file and serve such an accounting with the Court?

Grant in part, at this time.

LibertyBell Law Group, P.C. ("Applicant"), special litigation counsel to the debtor – approve fees in the amount of $40,000 and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $2,408.50 (for Aptus Court Reporting), pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. At this time, the Court will not approve $7,255.50 in fees for D.W. Pyne, CPA and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $3,962.82 for the reasons stated below.

D.W. Pyne, CPA is a professional employed by the estate [doc. 136]. As such, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, in order for Mr. Pyne to receive compensation, Mr. Pyne must file a final fee application that complies with the requirements of LBR 2016-1.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1), a court may award a professional person employed under § 327 "reimbursement for actual, necessary expenses." Factors relevant to determining if an expense is proper, include: "(i) whether the expense is reasonable and economical, (ii) whether the applicant has provided a detailed itemization of expenses, (iii) whether the expenses appear to be in the nature of non-reimbursable overhead, and (iv) whether the applicant has adhered to allowable rates for expenses as fixed by local rule or order of the Court." In re GSC Group, Inc., 502 B.R. 673, 743 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013).

Regarding Applicant's request for reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $3,962.82, the application does not include a description of the expenses. Without further explanation, the Court cannot determine whether the expenses are reasonable and whether they are non-compensable overhead.

The Court will continue this hearing to September 17, 2020 at 10:30 a.m. By September 3, 2020, Applicant must file and serve a supplement to the application, which includes a detailed itemization of the requested expenses as required by LBR 2016-1(a)(1)(F). Pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2016-1(a)(1)(F), the application must include a summary listing of all expenses by category (i.e., long distance telephone, photocopy costs, facsimile charges, travel, messenger and computer research). Pena & Soma, APC, counsel to chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $30,000.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $601.27. The Court will not approve $412.50 in fees for the reasons below.

SLBiggs, accountant to chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $6,807.50 and reimbursement of expenses of $220.71, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a) (3). Chapter 7

#8.00 Motion of Chapter 7 Trustee for order compelling turnover of personal property
fr. 9/17/20; 10/08/20;

Docket 42

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will adopt its tentative ruling from October 8, 2020.

At the last hearing, the Court instructed the parties to file supplemental briefs on the narrow issue of whether, under California law, an individual who files for bankruptcy is prohibited from acting as a partner tasked with winding up a partnership.

On October 21, 2020, Kamal Bilal filed a supplemental brief (the "Bilal Brief") [doc. 59]. In the Bilal Brief, Mr. Bilal contends that Cal. Corp. Code §§ 16601(6)(A) and 16803(a) bar the debtor (and, as a result, the chapter 7 trustee) from participating in the wind up process. Mr. Bilal also reiterates arguments from his original opposition, which arguments Mr. Bilal did not have leave to make via these supplemental briefs.

On October 29, 2020, the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") filed his responsive brief [doc. 61], asserting that the partnership already had been dissolved prior to the debtor's bankruptcy filing, and, as a result, the debtor could not subsequently dissociate from an already dissolved partnership.

Pursuant to Cal. Corp. Code § 16803(a)—

After dissolution, a partner who has not dissociated may participate in winding up the partnership's business, but on application of any partner, partner's legal representative, or transferee, the court, for good cause shown, may order judicial supervision of the winding up.

(emphasis added). Under Cal. Corp. Code § 16601—

A partner is dissociated from a partnership upon the occurrence of any of the following events:

Chapter 7

(6) The partner's act or failure to act in any of the following instances:

(A) By becoming a debtor in bankruptcy.

Mr. Bilal contends that these statutes, read together, prohibit the debtor from participating in the wind up process. However, while Cal. Corp. Code § 16803(a) prevents a partner that dissociated prior to dissolution from participating in the wind up process, the statute does not appear to cover dissociation after dissolution.

Prior to the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (the "1994 Act"), "a partner's dissociation triggered dissolution." 1. [§ 18]Statutory Development., 9 Witkin, Summary 11th Partn § 18 (2020). The 1994 Act changed the law, such that the 1994 Act "provide[d] for partnership continuity and clearly distinguishe[d] between a partner's dissociation and dissolution." Id. The new dissociation statutes allowed "remaining partners to carry on partnership business without the withdrawing partner and without having to start from scratch." Corrales v. Corrales, 198 Cal.App.4th 221, 227 (Ct. App. 2011).

As such, the dissociation statutes were meant to be separate from the dissolution statutes, and the dissociation of a partner triggers different parts of the statutory scheme from the dissolution of the partnership. For instance, the dissociation of a partner triggers a statute regarding buying out the dissociating partner, as well as a statute terminating the dissociated partner's duties of loyalty and care, among other things. See Cal. Corp. Code §§ 16603, 16701. On the other hand, dissolution of a partnership triggers the wind up process for the partnership. Cal. Corp. Code § 16801 et seq.

In light of this statutory distinction between dissociation and dissolution, "[a] person cannot dissociate from a dissolved partnership...." Corrales, 198 Cal.App.4th at 227. As noted by the Corrales court—

This rule is necessary to protect the partnership's creditors. In a dissociation, the partnership assets are used to buy out the withdrawing partner. (§ 16701.) In a dissolution, the assets go first to pay the creditors. (§ 16807, subd. (a).) A partner cannot get first dibs on partnership assets by dissociating when in fact the withdrawal effects a dissolution.

Id., 198 Cal.App.4th at 227 n.7. In addition, because "a partnership must consist of at least two persons," the departure of one partner automatically dissolves the partnership. Id. (citing Cal. Corp. Code § 16101). "When that happens, the dissolution procedures take over." Id.; see also Kuist v. Hodge, 2008 WL 510075, at *14 (Ct. App. Feb. 27, 2008) (holding that the sole remaining partner "could not dissociate from a continuing partnership because the... partnership ceased to exist without him").

Here, the parties do not dispute that the subject two-person partnership was dissolved when the debtor's partner died, in 2014. Declaration of Carmela T. Pagay [doc. 42], ¶ 5. At that time, the partnership was automatically dissolved, triggering the wind up statutes set forth in Cal. Corp. Code § 16801 et seq. As of the date of dissolution, the debtor had not dissociated; in fact, the debtor did not file for bankruptcy until March 20, 2020.

Upon dissolution, the dissociation statutes on which Mr. Bilal relies would no longer apply. For the reasons set forth in Corrales, at that time, the debtor could no longer dissociate from the dissolved partnership. The Corrales court's interpretation of the statutes is in harmony with the plain language of the statute and the general statutory scheme set forth in the 1994 Act. On the other hand, Mr. Bilal's reading of the statutes would create a conflict between provisions in the 1994 act, such as between the buyout provisions of Cal. Corp. Code § 16701 and the wind up provisions of Cal. Corp. Code § 16801 et seq. See Corrales, 198 Cal.App.4th at 227 n.7. In addition, because dissociation triggers the termination of a partner's fiduciary duties, whereas dissolution does not, allowing a partner to dissociate after dissolution would absolve partners of their post-dissolution fiduciary duties. See Cal. Corp. Code § 16404(c). Moreover, Mr. Bilal has not provided any California authority in support of his statutory interpretation.

As such, the Court will adopt its prior tentative ruling as its final ruling. The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Chapter 7

Debtor identified an interest in NNP Partnership (the "Partnership"), stating—

Debtor owns a 50% interest in NNP Partnership which was formed upon the dissolution of her marriage to Antone Nino in 1/2013. At the time of the dissolution, the parties owned an interest in several gas stations under different corporate names and the land in West Hills at which a gas station owned by a trust (debtor has no relationship to the trustors or the trust) is operating. Upon the dissolution, the respective interests of the parties became a partnership. Debtor's ex husband died in 2014 and Jeffrey Siegel has been appointed by the probate court to administer Antone's estate. The stations were sold and Siegel is holding about $350,000 for Antone's estate.

On August 27, 2020, the Trustee filed the Motion [doc. 42], requesting turnover of the assets held by the custodian, Mr. Siegel, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 543. The Trustee notes that Mr. Siegel informed the Trustee that he does not oppose the Motion, and will turn over the assets upon entry of an order by the Court. According to the Trustee, Mr. Siegel is holding approximately $345,000 in funds.

On September 17, 2020, Kamal Bilal, a creditor, filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 47]. In the Opposition, Mr. Bilal contends that he has a judgment against the Partnership, and that the assets held by Mr. Siegel are not property of the bankruptcy estate. Instead, Mr. Bilal contends that Mr. Siegel must use the Partnership's funds to satisfy the debt owed to Mr. Bilal. Mr. Bilal also provided a Judgment Pursuant to Stipulation (the "Stipulated Judgment"), dated January 10, 2020, wherein Mr. Siegel and Mr. Bilal agreed that the Partnership owes Mr. Bilal $300,000. Declaration of Robert M. Ungar, ¶ 11, Exhibit 5.

II. ANALYSIS

The parties do not dispute that the Partnership has not been wound up. Nevertheless, in the Motion, the Trustee appears to assert that the funds being held by Mr. Siegel are property of the estate. The Trustee has set forth no authority in support of his contention that the Partnership's assets are property of the estate.

"[W]hile the individual's interest in the partnership or corporation (which could be a 100 percent interest) would be property of the estate, the assets of the partnership or corporation itself would not be." In re Shapow, 599 B.R. 51, 71 (Bankr. C.D. Cal.

2019) (quoting 2 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 101.30[3] (16th ed. 2018)).

It is axiomatic that the mere bankruptcy of a partner does not bring the partnership's assets within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court. A debtor's interest in a partnership is an asset of the debtor's estate under 11 U.S.C § 541; the assets of the partnership are not. Before a partner is entitled to receive his share of the partnership's property, or his right to the profits of the partnership, if any, the partnership's creditors are entitled to payment.

In re Katz, 341 B.R. 123, 128 (Bankr. D. Mass. 2006) (internal citations omitted). As in Katz, which analyzed the issues under Massachusetts law, pursuant to California Corporations Code § 16807(a)—

In winding up a partnership's business, the assets of the partnership, including the contributions of the partners required by this section, shall be applied to discharge its obligations to creditors, including, to the extent permitted by law, partners who are creditors. Any surplus shall be applied to pay in cash the net amount distributable to partners in accordance with their right to distributions under subdivision (b).

(emphasis added).

As such, prior to any distribution of the Partnership's assets to Debtor's estate, the Partnership must pay its obligations to creditors. The Stipulated Judgment evidences a debt owed by the Partnership to Mr. Bilal in the amount of $300,000. Even if Mr. Siegel turns the subject funds over to the Trustee, the Trustee may not use the funds as property of the estate unless the Partnership's obligations are satisfied; any surplus left after such satisfaction, which would normally be distributed to Debtor as the sole remaining partner, may then become part of Debtor's bankruptcy estate.

Although the Partnership's assets are not property of the estate, the Trustee succeeded to Debtor's rights as the sole partner tasked with winding up the Partnership, and this Court has jurisdiction to oversee the winding up process of the Partnership. "[T]he general rule that the simple act of a partner's filing of bankruptcy does not confer jurisdiction over the partnership's assets does not mean that a bankrupt partner's estate includes only his personal property interest in the partnership. It includes certain rights given to him by law and/or contract, including the rights to seek an accounting, and to request a judicially supervised wind-up and termination of the partnership." Katz, 341 B.R. at 128.

For instance, one court explained—

The Court agrees with Defendants that a court imposed wind up of the Partnership is a non-core matter. The Court disagrees, however, that this Court lacks jurisdiction. Carolina Preservation Partners, Inc. v. Weinhold, 414 B.R. 754, 759 (M.D. Fla. 2009) (proceeding regarding partnership property is a related to proceeding); In re Katz, 341 B.R. at 131–32 (finding related to jurisdiction over a court ordered wind up because the right to make such a request was property of the estate). Under the applicable standard of related to jurisdiction, the procedures regarding the wind up of the Partnership undeniably impact the estate and the administration of the estate. "An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate." The Matter of Lemco Gypsum, Inc., 910 F.2d 784, 788 (11th Cir.1990).

In re Thadikamalla, 488 B.R. 791, 793–94 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2013).

Here, Mr. Siegel has agreed to turn over the Partnership's funds to the Trustee. Because Mr. Siegel holds funds in excess of the amount owed to Mr. Bilal pursuant to the Stipulated Judgment, the wind up of the Partnership may impact the estate by potentially bringing a surplus into the estate for distribution to creditors. Thus, the Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this matter.

In light of the authorities above, the Court will order that Mr. Siegel turn over the subject funds to the Trustee. However, the funds are not property of the estate. The Trustee may use the funds to wind up the Partnership in accordance with California law, including by complying with California Corporations Code § 16807(a).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion in part and deny the Motion in part.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Chapter 13

#39.00 Motion under Local Bankruptcy Rule 3015-1 (n) and (w)
to modify plan or suspend plan payments

Docket 80

Tentative Ruling:

On January 26, 2017, the Court entered an order confirming debtor's chapter 13 plan (the "First Order") [doc. 23]. Pursuant to the First Order, debtor was to pay $1,519.00 per month starting September 28, 2016 and then $3,237.00 per month starting November 28, 2016. The plan was a 100% plan.

On July 19, 2019, the Court entered an order granting debtor's motion to modify plan (the "Second Order") [doc. 61]. Pursuant to the Second Order, debtor was to pay $1,770.00 per month starting June 29, 2019 through August 29, 2021. The plan remained a 100% plan.

On September 16, 2020, debtor filed a motion to modify his chapter 13 plan (the "Motion") [doc. 80]. In the Motion, debtor proposes to reduce the plan payment to $1,380.00 per month from September 29, 2020 through August 29, 2021. If the Motion is granted, the last plan payment would be payable 72 months after the first plan payment was due. The proposed modification will not reduce the percentage paid to general unsecured creditors. Debtor states that he is requesting a modification of his plan because his income has decreased. Debtor works as a construction supervisor; according to debtor, because of the pandemic, the construction industry has closed. Debtor also represents that, because of the pandemic, his spouse lost her employment as a floral designer and event planner, and he is currently working part-time as a construction consultant.

On September 24, 2020, the chapter 13 trustee filed an objection to the Motion (the "Objection") [doc. 82]. In the Objection, the chapter 13 trustee states that she disapproves of the proposed modification because: (1) debtor has not served all creditors and (2) the Motion does not resolve the current delinquency in the amount of $5,586.00

The Court will continue this hearing to December 8, 2020 at 11:00 a.m. By November 24, 2020, debtor must file a response to the Objection addressing the issues

#40.00 Creditor H. Samuel Hopper's motion to compel further responses to requests for production of documents, set no. 1 to debtor Kenneth C. Scott, and for production of documents and for imposition of monetary sanctions

Docket 233

Tentative Ruling:

Grant, as set forth below.

On December 20, 2019, the creditor made the following requests for production by the debtor—

Request for Production of Documents No. 47:

ALL DOCUMENTS RELATING TO ANY payment YOU received from MPPI since October 8, 2014.

Request for Production of Documents No. 54:

ALL DOCUMENTS RELATING TO ANY income, salary, profit, distribution, gain, remuneration, OR reimbursement paid to OR earned by YOU from MPPI since October 8, 2014.

Request for Production of Documents No. 55:

ALL DOCUMENTS RELATING TO ANY income, salary, profit, distribution, gain, remuneration, OR reimbursement paid to OR earned by YOU from KSPD since December 18, 2018.

On March 2, 2020, the creditor filed a motion to compel the debtor to respond to his requests for production (the "March 2020 Motion") [Adversary Proceeding, doc. 46]. On July 29, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the March 2020 Motion. In relevant part, the Court overruled the debtor's objection to request for production no. 55; the Court also overruled the debtor's objection to requests for production nos. 47 and 54, but limited the requests to the years 2017 and 2018 [doc. 217].

On September 30, 2020, the creditor filed another motion to compel the debtor to respond to the requests for production (the "September 2020 Motion") [doc. 233]. In a joint statement submitted by the parties, the debtor contends that he provided tax returns in response to the requests, and that his accountants have certain responsive documents that the debtor does not. On October 22, 2020, the creditor filed a motion to extend deadlines, including the discovery cutoff date, based on the debtor's failure to respond completely to the requests for production (the "Motion to Extend") [doc. 241].

On October 27, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the Motion to Extend. At that time, the Court ordered the debtor to produce additional financial documents responsive to the creditor's requests, such as copies of checks and W-2s, no later than November 3, 2020. The parties have not filed updates regarding the Court's order for the debtor to produce the missing documents. Has the debtor provided these documents to the creditor?

In the joint statement, the creditor also requests attorneys' fees and costs incurred prosecuting the September 2020 Motion and for preparing for and attending the hearing on the September 2020 Motion. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("FRCP") 37(a)(4), "an evasive or incomplete disclosure answer, or response must be treated as a failure to disclose, answer, or respond." Under FRCP 37(a)(5)—

(A) If the Motion Is Granted (or Disclosure or Discovery Is Provided After Filing). If the motion is granted--or if the disclosure or requested discovery is provided after the motion was filed--the court must, after giving an opportunity to be heard, require the party or deponent whose conduct necessitated the motion, the party or attorney advising that conduct, or both to pay the movant's reasonable expenses incurred in making the motion, including attorney's fees. But the court must not order this payment if:

- (i) the movant filed the motion before attempting in good faith to obtain the disclosure or discovery without court action;
- (ii) the opposing party's nondisclosure, response, or objection was substantially justified; or
- (iii) other circumstances make an award of expenses unjust.

Chapter 13

Here, the debtor did not timely produce requested financial documents, such as the missing checks, which necessitated the filing of the September 2020 Motion. The debtor has not articulated any reason why the failure to produce the checks was substantially justified. In addition, based on the joint statement submitted by the parties, the creditor attempted to obtain the disclosure before pursuing court action. There being no other reason why an award of expenses would be unjust, the Court will order the debtor to pay the creditor the fees and costs incurred prosecuting this motion.

In his declaration, the creditor's attorney stated—

From August 25, 2020 (the date I first received Debtor's further responses to RFPD#1 and initial production of documents), through the date of this declaration, I worked in excess of 13.1 hours writing to Mr. Shirdel in a good faith attempt to gain his cooperation under the Order, preparing this Motion, including this declaration, all exhibits, the Notice, the [Proposed] Order, and all other supporting papers for presentation to the Court. I anticipate spending at least an additional 2.0 hours preparing for and attending the hearing on this Motion. Accordingly, [the creditor] has incurred or will incur attorney's fees in the amount of at least $7,205.00 for the preparation of this Motion and its supporting papers.

Declaration of Daniel Parker Jett [doc. 234], ¶ 37. For the legal services provided to the creditor, with respect to the September 2020 Motion, the request of $7,205.00 is reasonable. Pursuant to FRCP 37(a)(5), the Court will order the debtor to pay $7,205.00 to the creditor no later than December 15, 2020.

In addition, at the hearing on October 27, 2020, the Court asked the debtor if the information in his chapter 13 statement of current monthly income, i.e., Form 122C-1 (the "Statement") [doc. 98] is accurate. The Court instructed the debtor to assess the information in the Statement and to file an amended Form 122C-1, if necessary, no later than November 3, 2020. The debtor has not timely filed an amended Form 122C-1. Instead, on November 6, 2020, the debtor untimely filed a different form, i.e., a chapter 13 calculation of disposable income, i.e., Form 122C-2 [doc. 254]. The debtor's filing is not responsive to the Court's instructions.

Finally, at the hearing on October 27, 2020, the Court instructed the creditor to subpoena certain documents directly from the debtor's banks. Has the creditor served any such subpoenas on the banks, and by when does the creditor anticipate responses by the banks?

In light of the debtor's failure to respond to the Court order to file an amended Statement, and the debtor's failure to respond completely to the creditor's requests for production, the Court will grant the Motion to Extend and set the following extended deadlines:

Discovery cutoff date: December 15, 2020

Creditor's supplemental opposition filing deadline: February 3, 2021

Debtor's supplemental reply filing deadline: February 17, 2021

Hearing on the motion for summary judgment: 2:30 p.m. on March 3, 2021

The parties should be prepared to discuss a continued time and date for the creditor to take the debtor's deposition.

The creditor must submit an order on the September 2020 Motion and a new scheduling order within seven (7) days.

#41.00 Objection to debtor's claim of exemption

Docket 82

Tentative Ruling:

The Court questions the credibility of the debtor's representations that she lives part-time in Nevada and that:

I spent more time in the 180 day period prior to filing the petition than I spent in California. I did travel back and forth between California and Nevada but during this time period my only source of income was from the operation of my barber shop in the Las Vegas area of Nevada and that is the reason why the majority of my time was spent in Nevada.

Declaration of Marine Kasabyan, filed on October 27, 2020 [doc. 88] (emphasis added).

The only documentary evidence that the debtor presents of her alleged residency in Las Vegas are utility bills, for post-petition periods of time. Such utility bills, for real property that the debtor owns and leases to a tenant, do not demonstrate that the debtor lives in the Las Vegas Property, part time or otherwise, nor that she lived in the Las Vegas Property, prior to the petition date.

The following facts and prior representations of the debtor undermine the accuracy of her latest representations:

In her chapter 7 petition, filed on October 15, 2019, the debtor used the address of a residence located at 16344 Itasca Street, North Hills, CA (the "North Hills Property") and represented that "Over the last 180 days before filing this petition, I have lived in this district [the Central District of California] longer than in any other district."

In her original Schedule A, the debtor stated that she has an interest in the North Hills Property, and that it is community property. In her original Schedule B, the debtor does not list any interest in a barbershop (item 19) or any equipment or inventory for a barbershop (items 40 and 41). [doc. 11].

Chapter 13

In her original Schedule I, the debtor states that her occupation is a "caretaker," that her employment address is the North Hills Property and that she has been employed there for 2 years. Regarding her income, the debtor states that her monthly take home pay is $1,204.17 and that she has additional monthly income, in the amount of $5,743.66, from Supreme Pools LA. The debtor indicates that her non-filing spouse is the owner of Supreme Pools LA. The debtor does not state that she operates a barbershop, disclose the location of a barbershop or disclose any income from a barbershop. [doc. 11].

In the Chapter 7 Statement of Your Current Monthly Income, the debtor does not disclose any income from a barbershop, located in Las Vegas, Nevada. [doc. 11].

In her original Statement of Financial Affairs, part 11, the debtor indicated that her only business is Supreme Pools LA. She did not list any interest in a barbershop, located in Las Vegas, Nevada. [doc. 11].

In her declaration filed in January 2020, the debtor never mentioned that she has a barbership, located in Las Vegas, Nevada, or that she earns any income from a barbership. In that declaration, filed in support of her motion to convert this case to one under chapter 13, she states that her regular income comes from two sources: 1) income from IHSS; and 2) income from the operation of the family business, Supreme Pools. [doc. 29].

In her Chapter 7 Statement of Current Monthly Income, the debtor indicated that she and her spouse are "living in the same household" [doc. 11].

The debtor's tax returns for 2018 indicate that her home address is the North Hills Property and that she rents her property located at 4620 Inland Ct, Las Vegas, Nevada (the "Las Vegas Property") 365 days per year. Exhibit 2 to Chapter 7 Trustee's Response to Memorandum of Debtor in Support of Motion to Convert Case From Chapter 7 to Chapter 13; and Declaration of D. Edward Hays [doc. 31].

In her declaration filed in January 2020, the debtor states: "I did not include any misleading information in my schedules." [Declaration of Marine Kasabyan, para. 14, doc. 29]. However, there is a huge disparity between the debtor's latest representations about her assets and income, in her amended schedules and Statement of Financial Affairs, and in her latest declaration, and the representations she made, under penalty of perjury, in her bankruptcy petition and original schedules - as well as in her earlier declaration, filed in January 2020.

Given this disparity, it appears that the debtor's action in filing the petition was not in good faith, such that the Court cannot confirm her chapter 13 plan [11 U.S.C. § 1325(a) (7)] and that there is cause for the Court to reconvert this case, for cause, to one under chapter 7 [11 U.S.C. § 1307(c)].

Docket 75

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will dismiss this case.

I. BACKGROUND

A. The Original Schedules

On November 7, 2019, Blanca Mohd ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On November 21, 2019, Debtor filed her schedules and statements [doc. 12]. In her schedule A/B, Debtor identified real property located at 10437 Cedros Avenue, Mission Hills, CA 91345 (the "Cedros Property"). Debtor valued the Cedros Property at $451,000. Debtor also identified real property located at 14915 Sandra Street, Mission Hills, CA 91345 (the "Sandra Property"). Debtor valued the Sandra Property at $550,000. In addition, Debtor scheduled $33,993 in personal property.

In her schedule D, Debtor identified a $611,000 deed of trust encumbering the Cedros Property, and a $353,829 deed of trust encumbering the Sandra Property. Debtor also identified secured debt against two vehicles totaling $29,203.

On December 17, 2019, Debtor filed an amended schedule D [doc. 37]. In her amended schedule D, Debtor added the following liens, encumbering the Cedros and Sandra Properties: (A) a $15,000 lien in favor of Pace Funding Group, LLC; and (B) a $20,000 lien in favor of Renovate America, Inc. The amended schedule D also identified a $35,000 lien in favor of Ygrene Energy Fund CA LLC; Debtor did not identify which asset(s) this lien encumbers.

In her schedule C, Debtor claimed exemptions in $10,340 of personal property, as well as a $100 exemption in the Cedros Property and a $30,725 exemption in the Sandra Property. In her schedule E/F, Debtor identified $2,976 in unsecured debt.

In her original schedules I and J, Debtor indicated that she and her spouse are disabled, and that their monthly net income is ($1,506). On December 17, 2019, Debtor filed amended schedules I and J [doc. 37], in which she indicated she and her spouse receive monthly net income of $9.

B. The Motion to Continue the Automatic Stay and Amended Schedules

On November 27, 2019, Debtor filed a motion to continue the automatic stay (the "Motion to Continue Stay") [doc. 19]. On December 5, 2019, the Court entered an order [doc. 31] temporarily continuing the stay and instructing Debtor to cure certain deficiencies by filing:

1. An amended statement of financial affairs that correctly states the debtor's gross income during this year and the two previous years and any lawsuit, court action or administrative proceeding in which the debtor was a party within one year before she filed her petition.
2. An amended schedule D that lists all liens against the debtor's real properties and whether the debtor disputes those liens.
3. An amended schedule I that includes the required statement for each real property showing gross receipts, ordinary and necessary business expenses and the total monthly net income.
4. A declaration by the debtor explaining the home improvement and/or tax liens that may have attached to her real properties.
5. A declaration by the debtor discussing the amount she proposes to pay monthly in adequate protection payments and how the debtor will afford those adequate protection payments.
6. All unexpired leases listed in the debtor's schedule G.

Chapter 11

On December 17, 2019, in response to the Court's order, Debtor filed amended schedules [doc. 37]. Debtor also filed a declaration responding to the additional issues set forth in the Court's order, in which Debtor proposed to pay $2,200 and $1,763 in adequate protection payments to her lenders.

On December 18, 2019, the Court held a hearing on the Motion to Continue Stay. At that time, the Court queried how, in light of her monthly net income, Debtor would timely satisfy her proposed adequate protection payments. Nevertheless, the Court granted the Motion to Continue Stay on an interim basis, instructing Debtor to file a declaration to demonstrate that she timely made adequate protection payments to her lenders.

Debtor did not timely file a declaration regarding adequate protection payments. Instead, one day before the continued hearing on the Motion to Continue Stay, Debtor's counsel filed a declaration that Debtor had not made the required payments. As such, on January 23, 2020, the Court entered an order denying the Motion to Continue Stay.

C. Miscellaneous Matters and this Order to Show Cause

On December 26, 2019, the Court entered an order setting June 1, 2020 as the deadline for Debtor to file a proposed chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement [doc. 49]. The Court also instructed Debtor to file and serve a status report no later than June 4, 2020.

On June 1, 2020, Debtor filed an ex parte request to extend the deadline to file a chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement [doc. 65]. On June 8, 2020, the Court entered an order granting the request and extending the deadline to July 16, 2020. The Court also instructed Debtor to file and serve a status report no later than July 16, 2020.

To date, Debtor has not filed a proposed chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement. Moreover, to date, Debtor has not timely filed a single monthly operating report.

On July 29, 2020, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause why this case should not be dismissed or converted to a chapter 7 case [doc. 75]. On August 13, 2020, Debtor

II. ANALYSIS

11 U.S.C. § 1112(b) provides in pertinent part—

(b) (1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, subsection (c) of this section, and section 1104(a)(3), on request of a party in interest, and after notice and a hearing, absent unusual circumstances specifically identified by the court that establish that the requested conversion or dismissal is not in the best interests of creditors and the estate, the court shall convert a case under this chapter to a case under chapter 7 or dismiss a case under this chapter, whichever is in the best interests of creditors and the estate, if the movant establishes cause. . . .

(B) the grounds for converting or dismissing the case include an act or omission of the debtor other than under paragraph 4(A) – based on the ‘best interests of the creditors and the estate.’" In re Nelson, 343 B.R. 671, 675 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006).

Here, Debtor repeatedly has failed to timely fulfill her duties as a chapter 11 debtor in possession. Debtor did not timely file her monthly operating reports, did not timely file a chapter 11 plan and disclosure statement or timely request an extension of that deadline, did not timely file a status report and did not timely make adequate protection payments to preserve the automatic stay. Debtor has not explained how she will be able to fund a chapter 11 plan on the monthly net income reflected in her amended schedules I and J.

Moreover, to date, Debtor apparently has not reached a resolution with any of her secured creditors, which hold claims secured by real properties, regarding plan treatment. Debtor’s response to the OSC does not adequately provide an explanation for these repeated and significant deficiencies. Consequently, there is cause to dismiss or convert this case.

Because Debtor’s schedules indicate that Debtor’s assets are either fully encumbered or claimed as exempt, conversion likely would not result in any distribution to unsecured creditors. Given the additional administrative costs that would be incurred in a chapter 7 case, and because most of Debtor’s creditors have security interests in Debtor’s assets, dismissal is in the best interests of creditors.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss this case.

The Court will prepare the Order.

Tentative Ruling:

See calendar no. 1.

9/17/2020 Tentative:

On August 26, 2020, the Court entered an order instructing the debtor to file a status report, supported by evidence, no later than September 3, 2020 [doc. 83]. Why did the debtor not timely file a status report?

Assuming the Court grants the application to employ proposed replacement bankruptcy counsel, when will that counsel be able to file a chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement?

On December 27, 2019, the Court entered the Order Setting Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim [doc. 51]. The resulting bar date is March 2, 2020.

Pursuant to that order, the debtor was required to serve written notice of the bar date on all creditors, using the court's mandatory form, by December 30, 2019. Did the debtor timely serve all creditors, including all holders of disputed liens, with the required written notice of the bar date?

The Court notes that, because the debtor failed to meet the conditions which the Court set to continue the automatic stay, the debtor's motion to continue the automatic stay was denied. See Order Denying Motion for Order Imposing a Stay or Continuing the Automatic Stay, entered on January 23, 2020 [doc. 58].

Chapter 11

The debtor(s) must lodge the Order Setting Bar Date for Filing Proofs of Claim, using mandatory court-approved form F 3003-1.ORDER.BARDATE, within seven (7) days.

8/13/20 Ruling

On March 5, 2017, Jasmin DeVillar ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 13 petition, initiating case 1:17-bk-10553-VK. Debtor was represented by Dana M. Douglas. During the pendency of that chapter 13 case, Debtor did not confirm a chapter 13 plan.

On September 21, 2017, on Debtor's motion, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's prior case to one under chapter 11 (the "Conversion Order") [1:17-bk-10553-VK, doc. 30]. Pursuant to the Conversion Order, Debtor had 14 days to file a Chapter 11 Statement of Your Current Monthly Income and a list containing Debtor's 20 largest unsecured creditors. Debtor did not timely file either of these documents. Consequently, on October 17, 2017, the Court dismissed Debtor's prior case [1:17-bk-10553-VK, doc. 34].

On March 14, 2020, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating the pending case. Debtor is again represented by Ms. Douglas. On July 30, 2020, Debtor filed an initial chapter 11 status conference report [doc. 27]. In that status report, Debtor states that she intends to file a motion under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) to avoid a tax lien in favor of the California Department of Tax and Fee Administration (the "CDTFA"). On June 10, 2020, the CDTFA filed proof of claim 17-1, asserting a secured claim in the amount of $150,162.89 based on liens recorded pursuant to Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757 (the "Tax Lien").

On July 25, 2020, Ms. Douglas filed an application to be employed as debtor in possession counsel, requesting nunc pro tunc employment as of March 13, 2020 [doc. 25]. In that application, Ms. Douglas does not provide an explanation as to why she waited four months after she began providing services to Debtor to file an employment application. On August 6, 2020, the United States Trustee filed an objection to that employment application [doc. 28].

"A retroactive authorization order should not be issued where the lateness in seeking court approval of employment is accompanied by inexcusable or unexplained negligence." Downtown, 89 B.R. at 63–64.

Under Local Bankruptcy Rule 2014-1(b)(E), "an application for the employment of counsel for a debtor in possession should be filed as promptly as possible after the commencement of the case, and an application for employment of any other professional person should be filed as promptly as possible after such person has been engaged."

Here, Ms. Douglas has failed to provide a satisfactory explanation for her failure to file an employment application promptly after commencement of this case. Moreover, Ms. Douglas is not competent to represent Debtor as a debtor in possession. For example, after Ms. Douglas failed to file routinely required documents timely, as required by the Conversion Order, Debtor's prior chapter 11 case was dismissed

Additionally, as it is not a judicial lien, Debtor cannot avoid the Tax Lien under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 522(f)(1):

Notwithstanding any waiver of exemptions but subject to paragraph (3), the debtor may avoid the fixing of a lien on an interest of the debtor in property to the extent that such lien impairs an exemption to which the debtor would have been entitled under subsection (b) of this section, if such lien is—kind that is specified in section 523(a)(5)....

(emphasis added). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 101(36), "[t]he term 'judicial lien' means lien obtained by judgment, levy, sequestration, or other legal or equitable process or proceeding." Under 11 U.S.C. § 101(53), "[t]he term 'statutory lien' means lien arising solely by force of a statute on specified circumstances or conditions, or lien of distress for rent, whether or not statutory, but does not include security interest or judicial lien, whether or not such interest or lien is provided by or is dependent on a statute and whether or not such interest or lien is made fully effective by statute."

Where a valid lien is created and perfected by statute, it is statutory. See e.g., In re Scott, 400 B.R. 257, 265-66 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2009); In re Cox, 349 B.R. 4, 12 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2006). In relevant part, Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757(a) states:

If any person fails to pay any amount imposed under this part at the time that it becomes due and payable, the amount thereof, including penalties and interest, together with any costs in addition thereto, shall thereupon be a perfected and enforceable state tax lien.

The language of this statute is clear: the lien is created and perfected by statute alone. Consequently, a lien arising from Cal. Rev. & Tax. Code § 6757 is a statutory lien for purposes of 11 U.S.C. § 101(53), and therefore, not subject to avoidance under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). As bankruptcy counsel to an individual debtor, Ms. Douglas should be aware that the Tax Lien is not avoidable under 11 U.S.C. § 522(f).

Moreover, in this district, in the last three years (not to mention prior years), Ms. Douglas has been debtor in possession counsel in numerous cases. These cases uniformly have ended in dismissal without court approval of a disclosure statement and/or confirmation of a chapter 11 plan. The following is a list of these cases.

In case 1:19-bk-12810-VK, which is currently pending before the Court, Ms. Douglas is debtor in possession counsel. The Court recently issued an order to show cause why the case should not be dismissed or converted because Ms. Douglas failed to meet the deadline to file a chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement and otherwise did not comply with an order of the Court [1:19-bk-12810-VK, doc. 75].

Not only has Ms. Douglas failed to file her employment application promptly, but she has consistently shown that she is not capable of prosecuting a chapter 11 case to confirmation of a chapter 11 plan of reorganization. Consequently, the Court will not approve employment of Ms. Douglas as debtor in possession counsel.

The Court will continue this status conference to September 17, 2020 at 1:00 p.m., for Debtor to obtain qualified chapter 11 bankruptcy counsel. By September 3, 2020,

#8.00 Trustee's notice of intent to abandon estate property

Docket 90

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will allow abandonment of the subject property.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 29, 2020 ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. In its schedule A/B, Debtor identified an interest in real property located at 6475 Marigayle Circle, Huntington Beach, CA 92646 (the "Huntington Property"). On September 2, 2020, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [doc. 69]. David K. Gottlieb was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On October 13, 2020, the Trustee filed a notice of intent to abandon the estate's interest, if any, in the Huntington Property (the "Notice") [doc. 86]. On the same day, the Trustee filed another notice of intent to abandon the estate's interest, claims, rights and defenses in the adversary proceeding involving the Huntington Property, bearing adversary no. 1:20-ap-01070-VK [doc. 90].

On October 28, 2020, United Lender, LLC ("United") filed an opposition to the Notice (the "United Opposition") [doc. 93], objecting to abandonment without a plan addressing certain concerns regarding the Huntington Property. On November 4, 2020, the City of Huntington Beach (the "City") untimely filed an opposition to the Notice (the "City Opposition") [doc. 97], also opposing abandonment based on complaints received by the City about the Huntington Property, and requesting appointment of a receiver or trustee. On November 4, 2020, the Trustee filed an omnibus reply to the United Opposition and the City Opposition [doc. 96]. On November 5, 2020, secured creditor Anh Thy Song Nguyen, Trustee of Mother Nature Trust (the "Trust") also filed a reply to the oppositions [doc. 98], as well as evidentiary objections to the Declaration of Jesse Bosque ("Bosque Declaration"), the Declaration of Maurice Weiner (the "Weiner Declaration") and Exhibit A, all attached to the United Opposition.

II. ANALYSIS

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 554(a), "[a]fter notice and a hearing, the trustee may abandon any property of the estate that is burdensome to the estate or that is of inconsequential value and benefit to the estate."

Here, the parties do not dispute that the Huntington Property is burdensome to the estate, and that it is of inconsequential value and benefit to the estate. Instead, United and the City argue that the Court should not allow abandonment of the Huntington Property until there is a plan in place to protect the Huntington Property, such as the appointment of a receiver.

United did not provide any authority in support of its argument. In addition, the City, in its late-filed City Opposition, only cites 28 U.S.C. § 959(b) (and two cases analyzing that statute). However, 28 U.S.C. § 959(b) states that "a trustee, receiver or manager appointed in any cause pending in any court of the United States, including a debtor in possession, shall manage and operate the property in his possession as such trustee, receiver or manager according to the requirements of the valid laws of the State in which such property is situated, in the same manner that the owner or possessor thereof would be bound to do if in possession thereof." (emphasis added). The City has not set forth any state laws the Trustee has violated during the course of this bankruptcy case. Instead, the City references certain sections of the Huntington Beach Municipal Code. Multiple sections of the United States Code define "State" as "any of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas, or any territory or possession of the United States." Compare 28 U.S.C. § 3002; and 16 U.S.C. § 2902 (defining State as quoted); with 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(4) (referring to "governmental unit" when inclusive of city or municipal government).

In any event, as explained by the Supreme Court of United States, 28 U.S.C. § 959(b) "does not directly apply to an abandonment under § 554(a) of the Bankruptcy Code" and "does not de-limit the precise conditions on an abandonment;" instead, the section is relevant only as support for the notion that "Congress did not intend for the Bankruptcy Code to pre-empt all state laws that otherwise constrain the exercise of a trustee's powers." *Midlantic Nat. 494, 505, 106 S.Ct. 755, 761, 88 L.Ed.2d 859 (1986). To the extent the Huntington Beach Municipal Code, which is not "state law," falls within the purview of Midlantic, Midlantic provides the relevant standard when assessing an exception to the Trustee's ability to abandon estate property.

In Midlantic, the Supreme Court found a narrow exception to the Trustee's power to abandon property under 11 U.S.C. § 554(a)—

In the light of the Bankruptcy trustee's restricted pre-1978 abandonment power and the limited scope of other Bankruptcy Code provisions, we conclude that Congress did not intend for § 554(a) to pre-empt all state and local laws. The Bankruptcy Court does not have the power to authorize an abandonment without formulating conditions that will adequately protect the public's health and safety. Accordingly, without reaching the question whether certain state laws imposing conditions on abandonment may be so onerous as to interfere with the bankruptcy adjudication itself, we hold that a trustee may not abandon property in contravention of a state statute or regulation that is reasonably designed to protect the public health or safety from identified hazards.

Midlantic, 474 U.S. at 506-07. The Supreme Court specified—

This exception to the abandonment power vested in the trustee by § 554 is a narrow one. It does not encompass a speculative or indeterminate future violation of such laws that may stem from abandonment. The abandonment power is not to be fettered by laws or regulations not reasonably calculated to protect the public health or safety from imminent and identifiable harm.

Id., 474 U.S. at 507 n.9 (emphases added); see also In re Howard, 533 B.R. 532, 545 (Bankr. S.D. Miss. 2015) ("The majority of Courts that have interpreted footnote nine (9) in Midlantic have held that the 'narrow' exception to a trustee's abandonment power only applies in situations where an imminent and identified harm to the public health and safety exists."). The party opposing abandonment has the burden of proving that the condition of the property creates an imminent and identified harm to the public. Howard, 533 B.R. at 547 (citing In re St. Lawrence Corp., 239 B.R. 720, 726-27 (Bankr. D.N.J. 1999)).

First, neither United nor the City has provided competent evidence in support of their oppositions. The City has not provided a declaration authenticating its exhibits. As for United, the Bosque Declaration was filed in connection with a prepetition state court action and, as such, qualifies as hearsay. Further, the March 24, 2020 declaration has little bearing on the current condition of the Huntington Property. Moreover, the Weiner Declaration purports to authenticate documents received by the City. Mr. Weiner, who is counsel for United, has not articulated why he has personal knowledge regarding the documents, or why he is able to properly authenticate the City's records. As such, there is no evidence in support of the oppositions. This alone is sufficient to disregard the oppositions to the Notice.

In addition, the opponents have not demonstrated that violations of the statutes referenced by the City qualify as the type of public health or safety risk envisioned by Midlantic. Midlantic involved "470,000 gallons of highly toxic and carcinogenic waste oil in unguarded, deteriorating containers" that "present risks of explosion, fire, contamination of water supplies, destruction of natural resources, and injury, genetic damage, or death through personal contact." Midlantic, 474 U.S. at 499 n.3. A vast majority of post-Midlantic cases involve contaminated properties that violate state environmental laws or regulations. United and the City have not cited, and the Court could not locate, a single case preventing abandonment based on local municipal statutes similar to the ones referenced by the City, which relate to noise disturbances, loitering or the diminution of property values based on debris or junk on the property. The City has not articulated why these statutes qualify as laws or regulations calculated to protect public health or safety.

However, even if the statutes referenced by the City may be read as protecting public health or safety, and even if the Court considers the documents attached to the oppositions, the opponents have not met their burden of proving that violation of the referenced statutes will lead to imminent harm, as required by Midlantic. In the Bosque Declaration, Mr. Bosque stated that he spoke to three neighbors who stated that "the Home was at one time operating as [a] sober living facility business" and that "many people still come and go at the Home," but that, at the time they were interviewed by Mr. Bosque, the neighbors did not know who was living at the Huntington Property or the nature of any operation on the Huntington Property. Bosque Declaration, ¶ 2. Mr. Bosque also stated that he saw CO2 cartridges on the Huntington Property that he believed were indicative of drug use. Bosque Declaration, ¶ 3.

Notwithstanding the speculative nature of these statements, the Bosque Declaration is dated March 24, 2020. Assuming these conditions still exist on the Huntington Property, which has not been proven, the fact that Mr. Bosque investigated these conditions seven months before United opposed the Notice indicates that any threat from these conditions is not imminent. Even in cases where there was a risk to the public health or safety, courts denied relief where the risk was not imminent. See In re Shore Co., Inc., 134 B.R. 572, 579 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1991) ("Given the lack of action on the part of the [state water commission], this Court can only conclude that it has long been the judgment of the [commission] that the refinery property constituted more of an environmental concern than an immediate danger."); and In re Franklin Signal Corp., 65 B.R. 268, 269 n.1 (Bankr. D. Minn. 1986) ("The logical inference of the State's inaction [regarding drums filled with possibly hazardous waste] is that the drums do not pose any imminent threat to the public.").

The same is true about the documents from the City. The police reports and code enforcement complaints date back to 2018. As with the issues raised in the Bosque Declaration, it does not appear the City, or any other entity, has taken any action to resolve these complaints. In addition, the nature of the complaints reinforce the lack of imminence; the complaints include: the Huntington Property being used as a sober living facility [FN1], "multiple people coming and going," "dog constantly off the leash," "filming music videos," "excessive trash build up," "rat infestation," "strong smell of marijuana," "illegal parked vehicles" and "disruptive raised voices." Weiner Declaration, ¶ 3, Exhibit 1. The police reports attached to the City Opposition include similar complaints about illegally parked vehicles, as well as some complaints about medical issues experienced by people in or around the Huntington Property.

Complaints about individual medical issues are personal, and do not pose an imminent threat to the public. As such, individual health or safety concerns do not come within the purview of the Midlantic exception. While the remaining complaints may be bothersome to the community, United and the City have provided no evidence that the health or safety of neighbors was compromised by the conditions in the complaints. At most, the complaints reflect more of a "concern than an immediate danger." Shore Oil, 134 B.R. at 579.

As discussed above, the exception to the Trustee's power to abandon is narrow, and the burden rests on opponents to demonstrate an imminent and identifiable harm. The complaints about the Huntington Property reflected in the United Opposition and the City Opposition are not comparable to the threat posed by, for example, severe environmental contamination. To place the burden to resolve the issues related to the Huntington Property on the Trustee would open the door for owners or secured creditors to oppose abandonment for the purpose of shifting the cost of property maintenance (and liability stemming therefrom) to the estate. In a case where there is no imminent and identifiable threat to public health or safety, the Court will not impose such a burden on a bankrupt estate.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will allow abandonment of the Huntington Property.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. While the code enforcement complaints include some discussion about whether the Huntington Property was being used as a sober living facility, the most recent emails indicate that all detox clients had been "kicked out." Weiner Declaration, ¶ 3, Exhibit 1, p. 20. As such, even the unauthenticated documents indicate that the Huntington Property may not currently be used as a detox center.

Docket 22

Tentative Ruling:

In February 2018, the debtor paid movant $875,000 for the real property at issue (the "Property"), made an initial payment of $475,000 and entered into an agreement with movant to finance the remainder of the purchase price. The balance of the loan was due on April 18, 2020.

In the motion, movant states that the Property's fair market value is $790,500.00, and that the amount payable to movant is $419,518.40.

Regarding the request for relief under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1), at this time, there appears to be a significant equity cushion regarding movant's secured claim, and movant has not demonstrated the extent to which the value of the Property is declining, given that the expiration date for the recording of a final map is March 10, 2022.

Assuming that the debtor takes no further action to develop the Property, at what point in time will movant no longer have a significant equity cushion?

fr. 7/29/20; 8/26/20

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Defendant Navient Solutions, LLC contends that the Court does not have subject matter jurisdiction over any claims other than the plaintiff's claims under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(8). In addition, both the defendants do not consent to entry of a final judgment by this Court. However, the plaintiff apparently seeks relief only under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(8). In § 523 actions, the Court does not need consent from the parties to enter final judgment. See In re Deitz, 760 F.3d 1038, 1050 (9th Cir. 2014) ("We hold that, even after Stern, the bankruptcy court had the constitutional authority to enter a final judgment determining both the amount of [the plaintiffs'] damage claims against [the debtor], and determining that those claims were excepted from discharge.") (referencing Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011)).

Parties should be prepared to discuss the following:

Deadline to complete discovery: 3/1/21.

Deadline to file pretrial motions: 3/31/21.

Deadline to complete and submit pretrial stipulation in accordance with Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1: 4/21/21.

Pretrial: 5/5/21 at 1:30 p.m.

If any of these deadlines are not satisfied, the Court will consider imposing sanctions against the party at fault pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 7016-1(f) and (g).

The Court will prepare the Scheduling Order.

Tentative Ruling:

The plaintiff did not timely serve the summons on the defendants.

The plaintiff must request Another Summons from the Court. The plaintiff can obtain Another Summons by filing form F 7001-1.2.REQUEST.ANOTHER.SUMMONS, located on the Court's website. Upon receiving the filing of the Request that the Clerk Issue Another Summons and Notice of Status Conference, the Clerk will issue Another Summons.

The Another Summons must be served upon the defendants within 7 days of its issuance by the Court, pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7004 and Local Bankr. R. 7004-1(b). The plaintiff must attach to the Another Summons a copy of the complaint and a copy of Judge Kaufman's Status Conference Instructions.

To demonstrate proper service of the Another Summons and the complaint and instructions to be served with that summons, the plaintiff must file a signed proof of service indicating that the Another Summons and the documents to be served with that summons were timely served on the defendants. If the plaintiff can obtain an issued Another Summons from the Court by November 30, 2020, the status conference will be continued to 1:30 p.m. on February 10, 2021.

#18.00 Motion for partial summary adjudication

Docket 35

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will grant the motion in part and deny the motion in part.

I. BACKGROUND

A. State Court Proceedings

On August 23, 2012, SE-SOCAL, LLC and/or Assigns ("SOCAL"), a California limited liability company, entered into a residential income property purchase agreement (the "Purchase Agreement") to buy a 115-unit apartment building located at 13607 Cordary Avenue, Hawthorne, California 90250 (the "Property") from sellers Vatche Boyadjian, Houchick Boyadjian (the "Debtor"), John Porichis and Taline Porichis for $12,718,073.63 [doc. 35, Exh. A, Purchase Agreement]. Vatche Boyadjian and Debtor held a 55% interest in the Property; John Porichis and Taline Porichis held the remaining 45% interest [id., Exh. E, Final Award, p. 1].

SOCAL assigned the Purchase Agreement to Corrdary, LLC ("Corrdary"), a California limited liability company, to complete the purchase [id., Exh. A, State Court Complaint, ¶ 5]. On October 5, 2012, at the closing of the sale, SOCAL and Corrdary assumed the full amount of the existing loan encumbering the Property held by Wells Fargo in the amount of $11,119,161.30 [id., Exh. E, Final Award, p. 1]. Corrdary transferred management of the Property to Sridhar Equities, Inc. (the "Plaintiff") [id., Memorandum of Points and Authorities, p. 3].

Vatche Boyadjian acted as the agent for the sellers when negotiating the sale of the Property to SOCAL [id., Exh. E, Final Award, p. 1]. Vatche Boyadjian represented to SOCAL that the Property was producing income including, among other things, that: (1) the rent rolls were accurate; (2) tenants were paying rent; (3) there were only five vacancies; (4) the loan held by Wells Fargo was current on all payments; and (5) the loan was not in default. Id., at p. 3.

On October 25, 2012, SOCAL and Corrdary discovered that representations made by the sellers were not accurate [id., Exh. A, State Court Complaint, ¶ 7]. Specifically, SOCAL and Corrdary discovered, among other things, that: (1) the rent rolls were not accurate; (2) some tenants were not paying rent; (3) there were thirty vacancies; (4) the loan owed to Wells Fargo was not current on payments; and (5) the loan was in default [id., Memorandum of Points and Authorities, p. 3; Exh. E, Final Award, p. 2–3]. As a result, the loan defaulted, incurring interest, penalties and other fees in the amount of $472,576.11 [id., Memorandum of Points and Authorities, p. 3].

Plaintiff was unable to cure the default; Wells Fargo accelerated the outstanding balance due on the loan and began foreclosure proceedings. Id., at p. 4–5. On November 6, 2013, the Property was sold at a trustee's sale. Id., at 5.

Consequently, on September 21, 2015, SOCAL and Corrdary (collectively, the "Plaintiffs") filed a complaint against Vatche Boyadjian, Debtor, John Porichis, Taline Porichis and Does 1-50 (collectively, the "Defendants") in the Superior Court of California, for the County of Los Angeles (the "State Court"), seeking among other things, actual damages in the minimum amount of $1 million, exemplary damages, interest on damages, attorney's fees and costs (the "State Court Action") [id., Exh. A, State Court Complaint]. In the State Court Action, Plaintiffs alleged:

[Defendants] made representations of fact to Plaintiffs that were untrue when made, including other things, that the Property produced certain income, and that the then-existing loan, which would be transferred with the Property, was current and in good standing. These representations, and others unknown at this time, were false when made, and were made with the intent to induce Plaintiffs into entering into the Purchase Agreement with Defendants.

Plaintiffs reasonably believed the misrepresentations by Defendants were true, and in reliance upon those misrepresentations entered into the Purchase Agreement to buy the Property.

Chapter 7

Pursuant to the terms of the Purchase Agreement under Paragraph 35.B, the State Court Action was sent to arbitration [id., Exh. A, Purchase Agreement, Paragraph 35.B].

On February 6, 2018, Debtor, the wife of Vatche Boyadjian, was deposed [id., Exh. B, Deposition Transcript]. During the deposition, Debtor explained that she worked with her husband in the office, and that her role was limited to bookkeeping, collecting rent from tenants and paying the expenses of the Property, including the loan held by Wells Fargo. Id., at p. 12–22. Debtor also stated that she was not aware that her husband misrepresented information when the Property was sold. Id.

From April 24, 2018 through April 26, 2018, JAMS arbitrator John W. Kennedy, Jr. held an evidentiary hearing [id., Declaration of Kenneth R. Van Vleck, ¶ 5; Exh. E, p. 2]. At that hearing, each side offered documentary evidence, called witnesses and cross-examined opposing witnesses [id., Exh. E, Final Award, p. 2]. At the conclusion of the presentation of evidence, the parties submitted post-arbitration briefing. Id.

On October 16, 2018, the arbitrator issued a Final Award (the "Arbitration Award") [id., Exh. E, Final Award]. In the State Court Action, on December 12, 2018, the State Court confirmed the Arbitration Award (the "Judgment") [doc. 37, Exh. F, Order]. The Judgment is final. Id.

On December 27, 2018, SOCAL and Corrdary assigned the Judgment to Madhu Sridhar [doc. 12, Exh. C, Assignment of Judgment]. On January 2, 2020, Madhu Sridhar assigned the Judgment to Plaintiff [id., Exh. D, Assignment of Judgment].

A. Arbitration Award and the Judgment

In relevant part, the Arbitration Award states the following:

ISSUES

...

1. Intentional misrepresentation

By clear and convincing evidence, [Plaintiffs] established that Vatche Boyadjian intentionally misrepresented tenant occupancy and corresponding rent income. While he warranted to [Plaintiffs] that there were only 8 vacancies (7%), there were in fact 30 vacancies (26%). That resulted in tenant income being overstated, for example in the month of June 2012, by 23.7% ($81,251 actual as opposed to $100,497 reported). The impact on the apartments' bottom line was dramatic; Boyadjian reported to [Plaintiffs] that there was a positive cash flow for the first six months of 2012 in the amount of $61,902.09. In fact, as reported by Boyadjian, to the mortgage holder, Wells Fargo Bank, the cash flow for the first six months of 2012 was a negative $110,597.42.

Boyadjian also falsely reported the status of the Wells Fargo mortgage loan to [Plaintiffs]. In the representations and warranties, he represented that the Wells Fargo loan was current. In his deposition testimony, Boyadjian admitted that he received monthly mortgage statements from Wells Fargo up to the time he sold the property, so he knew the true status of the loan. I find that he fabricated an email (Exhibit 20) which he showed Sridhar stating that "we are current as of today [September 25, 2012]." The truth is that he received notice from Wells Fargo as of September 19, 2012 that past due payments owed to Wells Fargo were $390,192.26 (Exhibit 35). His blatant misrepresentation of the status of the loan was clearly intended to, and did, induce [Plaintiffs] to close the sale on October 5, 2012. The lie that the loan was current was one of the most egregious lies I have encountered in 38 years as a judge and mediator/arbitrator. Accordingly, I find that the misrepresentation of the status of the Wells Fargo loan was a further fraudulent misrepresentation and I so find by clear and convincing evidence.

I find that it was reasonable for [Plaintiffs] to trust Boyadjian to be truthful. Also, I find that Boyadjian's false e-mail (Exhibit 35) was designed to look legitimate as a means of facilitating Boyadjian's misrepresentation. Because of its appearance of authenticity, I find that Sridhar was reasonable in relying on its truthfulness.

2. Negligent misrepresentation

I find that the misrepresentation in this case were intentional. I do not find they were negligent.

3. Damages

In this case, once the various misrepresentations were discovered, [Plaintiffs] elected not to make any further loan payments. As a result, the loan went into default and the bank foreclosed on the property. The foreclosure sale wiped out any equity [Plaintiffs] might have had. [Defendants] take the position that [Plaintiffs] could have re-negotiated a plan with Wells Fargo and the apartment would not have had to be lost in foreclosure. [Defendants] contend that failure to make attempts to reinstate the loan constitutes a failure to mitigate damages, such failure to be considered in the assessment of damages. I conclude, however, that the misrepresentation regarding the tenant income and the excessive vacancy factor justified [Plaintiffs] in concluding that it made no sense to invest several hundred thousand dollars to cure [Defendants'] default, for the privilege of operating a money-losing apartment complex with significant deferred maintenance.

TOTAL FINAL AWARD

- I. As to John and Taline Porichis and Houchick Boyadjian in favor of Corrdary, LLC, a California limited liability company and SE-SOCAL, LLC, a California limited liability company, on the claim for intentional misrepresentation:

Compensatory damages	$1,989,120.00
Attorney fees	$122,371.00
Costs	$23,908.59
JAMS fees	$36,355.58
TOTAL AWARD	$2,171,755.17

Liability as to Houchick Boyadjian is based upon proof that Vatche Boyadjian, her husband, was acting as her agent during the events described herein, which resulted in a finding of liability for intentional misrepresentation.

II. As to Vatche Boyadjian in favor of Corrdary, LLC, a California limited liability company and SE-SOCAL, LLC, a California limited liability company on the claim for intentional misrepresentation:

Compensatory damages	$1,989,120.00
Punitive damages	$1,000,000.00
Attorney fees	$122,371.00
Costs	$23,908.59
JAMES fees	$36,355.58
TOTAL AWARD	$3,171,755.17

The Arbitration Award states that, because Debtor is the wife of Vatche Boyadjian and he acted as her agent in managing the Property, Debtor is liable for intentional misrepresentation when the Property was sold to SOCAL and Corrdary.

The Judgment states, in relevant part, that "Petitioners Corrdary, LLC and SE-SOCAL, LLC recover from Respondents Houchick Boyadjian, John Porichis, and Taline Porichis the sum of $2,171,585.17, including compensatory damages, attorney fees, costs, and JAMS fees, with interest at 10% per annum from October 10, 2018 and attorney fees of $2,680 and costs of this proceeding of $110" [doc. 37, Exh. F, Order, p. 2].

B. The Adversary Case

On August 27, 2019, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition, initiating case no. 1:19-bk-12150-VK. On November 5, 2019, Corrdary filed a complaint against Debtor objecting to the discharge of the debt to it pursuant to the Arbitration Award under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4) and (a)(6), initiating this adversary proceeding [doc. 1].

On August 31, 2020, Plaintiff, an assignee for Corrdary, filed a motion for partial summary adjudication on the 11 U.S.C. § 523 claims (the "Motion") [doc. 35] and a request for judicial notice [doc. 37]. Debtor did not file an opposition or response to the Motion.

In the Motion, Plaintiff argues that the Arbitration Award has collateral estoppel effect and the finding of fraud bars the discharge of Debtor's debt to Plaintiff under §§ 523(a)(2)(A), (a)(4) and (a)(6). Regarding the § 523(a)(4) claim, Plaintiff argues that Debtor acted wrongfully in taking money from Corrdary. Moreover, concerning the § 523(a)(6) claim, Plaintiff argues that Debtor acted willfully and maliciously.

II. DISCUSSION

A. Motion for Summary Judgment

Pursuant to Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure ("FRCP"), applicable to this adversary proceeding under Rule 7056 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP"), the Court shall grant summary judgment if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. See Fed. R. Civ. Pro. 56; Fed. R. Bankr. Pro. 7056; Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202 (1986). "By its very terms, this standard provides that the mere existence of some alleged factual dispute between the parties will not defeat an otherwise properly supported motion for summary judgement; the requirement is that there be no genuine issue of material fact." Anderson, 477 U.S. at 247–48 (emphasis in original).

As to materiality, the substantive law will identify which facts are material. Only disputes over facts that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will be properly preclude the entry of summary judgment. Factual disputes that are irrelevant or unnecessary will not be counted . . . [S]ummary judgment will not lie if the dispute about a material fact is "genuine," that is, if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party[.]

Id. at 248–50 (internal citations omitted). Additionally, issues of law are appropriate to be decided in a motion for summary judgment. See Camacho v. Du Sung Corp., 121 F.3d 1315, 1317 (9th Cir. 1997).

The initial burden is on the moving party to show that no genuine issues of material fact exist based on "the pleadings, dispositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 91 L.Ed.2d 265 (1986). Once the moving party meets its initial burden, the nonmoving party bearing "the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue" must identify facts beyond what is contained in the pleadings that show genuine issues of fact remain. Id. at 324; see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256 ("Rule 56(e) itself provides that a party opposing a properly supported motion for summary judgment may not rest upon mere allegation or denials of his pleading, but must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.").

The nonmoving party meets this burden through the presentation of "evidentiary materials" listed in FRCP 56, such as depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations, stipulations, admissions and interrogatory answers. Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 324. To establish a genuine issue, the non-moving party "must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts." Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586, 106 S. Ct. 1348, 89 L. Ed. 2d 538 (1986); see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252 ("The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the [nonmoving party's] position will be insufficient."). Rather, the nonmoving party must provide "evidence of such a caliber that 'a fair-minded jury could return a verdict for the [nonmoving party] on the evidence presented.'" U.S. v. Wilson, 881 F.2d 596, 601 (9th Cir. 1989) (quoting Anderson, 477 U.S. at 266).

B. Issue Preclusion

"A bankruptcy court may rely on the issue preclusive effect of an existing state court judgment . . . In so doing, the bankruptcy court must apply the forum state's law of issue preclusion." In re Plyam, 530 B.R. 456, 462 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2015); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1738 (federal courts must give "full faith and credit" to state court judgments). The requirements for issue preclusion in California are:

- (1) the issue sought to be precluded from relitigation is identical to that decided in a former proceeding;
- (2) the issue was actually litigated in the former proceeding;
- (3) the issue was necessarily decided in the former proceeding;
- (4) the decision in the former proceeding is final and on the merits; and
- (5) the party against whom preclusion is sought was the same as, or in privity, with the party to the former proceeding.

Chapter 7

To prevail on a § 523(a)(2)(A) claim, the plaintiff must demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, the following five elements:

- (1) Misrepresentation, fraudulent omission or deceptive conduct by the debtor;
- (2) Knowledge of the falsity or deceptiveness of his statement or conduct;
- (3) An intent to deceive;
- (4) Justifiable reliance by the creditor on the debtor's statement or conduct; and
- (5) Damage to the creditor proximately caused by its reliance on the debtor's statement or conduct.

In re Weinberg, 410 B.R. 19, 35 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009) (citing In re Slyman, 234 F.3d 1081, 1085 (9th Cir. 2000)). A claim under § 523(a)(2)(A) may arise from the "concealment or intentional nondisclosure as well as affirmative misrepresentations of material facts." In re Evans, 181 B.R. 508, 515 n. 6 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1995).

Plaintiff has met its burden of proving that it is entitled to summary judgment on its 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) claim based on the fraud finding in the Arbitration Award. However, Plaintiff is not entitled to summary judgment on its 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) and (a)(6) claims; respectively, larceny, and willful and malicious injury.

1. Issue Preclusion Applies to the Fraud Finding in the Arbitration Award

Through the Arbitration Award, the State Court held that Debtor was liable for intentional misrepresentation. The Arbitration Award is based on the same facts alleged in the State Court Action.

With respect to § 523(a)(2)(A), "Ninth Circuit case law conforms that the elements of fraud under California law match the ones under § 523(a)(2)(A)." In re Davis, 486 B.R. 182, 191 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2013) (citing In re Younie, 211 B.R. 367, 373–74 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997) ("The elements of § 523(a)(2)(A) 'mirror the elements of common law fraud' and match those for actual fraud under California law."). The same elements apply to fraud in the inducement. Parino v. BidRack, Inc., 838 F.Supp.2d 900, 906 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (applying California law on fraudulent in the inducement); see also In re Nga Tuy Pham, 2009 WL 3367046 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2009) ("A debt is excepted from discharge if it results from fraud in the inducement. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)[A]."). Based on these authorities, the issues are identical to the issues before this

The "actually litigated" requirement addresses whether the issues were "properly raised, submitted for determination, and determined in that proceeding." Happy Nails & Spa of Fashion Valley, L.P. v. Su, 159 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503, 512 (Ct. App. 2013). As noted in the Arbitration Award, both parties appeared at the evidentiary hearing and presented oral and written documentary evidence. Based on the Arbitration Award, the issues related to fraud were litigated. Based on the evidence at the hearing, cross-examination and post-arbitration briefing, the arbitrator rendered his final decision. Consequently, this element is satisfied.

"In order for the determination of an issue to be given preclusive effect, it must have been necessary to a judgment." Creative Venture, LLC v. Jim Ward & Assocs., 126 Cal. Rptr. 3d 564, 580 (Ct. App. 2011). The issues present here were necessarily decided in the State Court Action. The State Court could not have entered a judgment holding that Debtor is liable for fraud unless the State Court decided all of the issues under § 523(a)(2)(A), including Plaintiff's justifiable reliance. The Arbitration Award specifically found that Debtor made a false misrepresentation when Vatche Boyadjian acted as her agent; Plaintiff relied on this misrepresentation and Plaintiff was injured as a result. Accordingly, this element also is satisfied.

The Judgment is final and, on the merits, as evidenced by the Arbitration Award, which includes detailed findings about why Debtor is liable for intentional misrepresentation as asserted in the State Court Action. This element is satisfied.

The parties to this proceeding are identical to the parties in the State Court Action. Plaintiff is an assignee of Corrdary, a party in the State Court Action. As such, this element is also satisfied. Accordingly, the Court may give preclusive effect to the fraud finding in the Arbitration Award.

2. The Entire Arbitration Award is Nondischargeable under § 523(a)(2)A

Although the Arbitration Award's finding of fraud may be given preclusive effect, "only those damages proximately caused by the fraud . . . may be given preclusive effect." In re Henkel, 490 B.R. 759, 782 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 2013); see also Demerdjian v. Thompson (In re Thompson), 354 B.R. 174, 180 (Bankr. E.D. proximately caused by the fraud is nondischargeable under § 523(a)(2)(A).") (citing Novartis Corp. v. Luppino (In re Luppino), 221 B.R. 693, 703–04 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1998) (finding that analysis still required on each debt to determine whether it was proximately caused by § 523(a)(2)(A) acts) (additional citations omitted); see also Lewis v. Lowery (In re Lowery), 440 B.R. 914, 925 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2010) ("[Issue Preclusion] as to liability is not the same as [issue preclusion] as to damages, and the Court must separately analyze the damages awarded to the Plaintiff.").

The Arbitration Award states that compensatory damages can be considered proximately caused by Debtor's intentional misrepresentation. The Arbitration Award states that Corrdary and SOCAL were unable to cure the default and suffered damages in maintaining a money-losing apartment complex induced by Debtor's fraud.

Although breach of contract damages generally are dischargeable, if that breach of contract is accompanied by fraud, the damages may be nondischargeable. As the district court in In re Roth, 518 B.R. 63, 71 (S.D. Cal. 2014), aff'd, 662 F. App'x 540 (9th Cir. 2016), states:

A "fundamental polic[y] of bankruptcy law is to give a fresh start only to the 'honest but unfortunate debtor.'" Accordingly, simple breaches of contract are dischargeable. See In re Riso, 978 F.2d 1151, 1154 (9th Cir. 1992). However, if a debt for an intentional breach of contract is "accompanied by" a tort, it is excepted from discharge. Id. (refusing to discharge a debt for a breach of contract accompanied by willful and tortious conduct). This applies equally to breaches of contract accompanied by fraud under the other subdivisions of § 523. See Banks v. Gill Distribution Centers, Inc., 263 F.3d 862, 868 (9th Cir. 2001). The fraud makes nondischargeable a preexisting obligation, it does not itself create a new obligation. In re Jercich, 238 F.3d 1202, 1205 (9th Cir. 2001). As such, the original breach of contract claim is the correct measure of the amount of the debt excepted from discharge. See Banks, 263 F.3d at 868.

the contract fraudulently. Therefore, the state court judgment is the correct damage measure because it is the debt resulting from the fraud. The bankruptcy court correctly found the breach of contract damages were precluded from discharge based on [the debtor's] accompanying fraud. Accordingly, the bankruptcy court's ruling that the $2.8 million debt is nondischargeable is affirmed.

Roth, 518 B.R. at 71.

Here, Debtor was found to have committed fraud by clear and convincing evidence. Debtor's fraud involved intentional misrepresentation, as Debtor fraudulently induced Corrdary and SOCAL to enter into the Purchase Agreement to buy a money-losing apartment complex. Accordingly, the damages awarded in the Arbitration Award for intentional misrepresentation are the correct measure of damages; it is a debt resulting from fraud.

The arbitrator clarified that, though Debtor may have not been aware of her husband's conduct, Vatche Boyadjian was acting as her agent. Therefore, Debtor is liable for intentional misrepresentation because those damages were proximately caused by Debtor's fraud. If Debtor had not fraudulently induced Corrdary and SOCAL into entering the Purchase Agreement, Plaintiff would not have suffered damages. Accordingly, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), the intentional misrepresentation damages awarded in the Arbitration Award are nondischargeable.

Additionally, "[o]nce it is established that specific money or property has been obtained by fraud . . . 'any debt' arising therefrom is excepted from discharge," including treble damages. Cohen v. de la Cruz, 523 U.S. 213, 218, 118 S.Ct. 1212, 140 L.Ed.2d 341 (1998). Accordingly, the interest and costs awarded against Debtor in the Judgment also are nondischargeable.

D. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4) – Larceny

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4), a bankruptcy discharge does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement, or larceny."

"Federal law and not state law controls the definition of embezzlement for purposes of section 523(a)(4)." In re Wada, 210 B.R. 572, 576 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1997).

"Embezzlement is defined as 'the fraudulent appropriation of property by a person to whom such property has been [e]ntrusted or into whose hands it has lawfully come.'" Id. (quoting Moore v. United States, 160 U.S. 268, 269, 16 S. Ct. 294, 40 L. Ed. 422 (1895)).

"Embezzlement" within the meaning of § 523(a)(4) requires three elements: (1) property rightfully in the possession of the non-owner debtor; (2) the non-owner's misappropriation of the property to a use other than that for which it was entrusted; and (3) circumstances indicating fraud. In re Littleton, 942 F.2d 551, 555 (9th Cir. 1991). "The elements of larceny differ only in that a larcenous debtor has come into possession of funds wrongfully." In re Mickens, 312 B.R. 666, 680 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2004).

"Fraudulent appropriation requires an intent to deprive, which can be inferred from the conduct of the person accused and from the circumstances of the situation." Savonarola v. Beran, 79 B.R. 493, 496 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1987). For purposes of embezzlement and larceny, a fiduciary relationship is not required. Littleton, 942 F.2d at 555.

To succeed in using collateral estoppel, Plaintiff must show that the arbitrator's findings demonstrate larceny as defined by § 523(a)(4), demonstrating that Debtor "came into possession of funds wrongfully," involving "circumstances indicating fraud" and with "intent to deprive."

In this case, the arbitrator found Debtor liable for intentional misrepresentation; however, the issue of larceny was not examined. Because the arbitrator did not find that Debtor committed fraud while in wrongful possession of funds, the elements of larceny sufficient for Plaintiff to have a nondischargeable claim under § 523(a)(4) are not satisfied.

E. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6)

11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) states that a discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727 does not discharge an individual debtor from any debt "for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity." "Both willfulness and maliciousness must be proven to block discharge under section 523(a)(6)." In re Ormsby, 591 F.3d 1199, 1206 (9th Cir. 2010).

Demonstrating willfulness requires a showing that a defendant intended to cause the injury, not merely the acts leading to the injury. Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 523 U.S. 57, 61–62, 118 S. Ct. 974, 140 L. Ed. 2d 90 (1998). Debts "arising from recklessly or negligently inflicted injuries do not fall within the compass of § 523(a)(6)." Id. at 64. It suffices, however, if the debtor knew that harm to the creditor was "substantially certain." In re Su, 290 F.3d 1140, 1145–46 (9th Cir. 2002); In re Jercich, 238 F.3d 1202, 1208 (9th Cir. 2001) ("[T]he willful injury requirement of § 523(a)(6) is met when it is shown either that the debtor had a subjective motive to inflict the injury or that the debtor believed that injury was substantially certain to occur as a result of his conduct.")

Under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), the injury must also be the result of maliciousness. In re Su, 290 F.3d at 1146. Maliciousness requires: (1) a wrongful act; (2) done intentionally; (3) which necessarily causes injury; and (4) without cause or excuse. Id. at 1147. Maliciousness does not require "personal hatred, spite, or ill-will." In re Bammer, 131 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 1997).

In In re Cecchini, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that a partner's conduct may be imputed to another partner for purposes of § 523(a)(6) "[w]hen a wrongful act such conversion, done intentionally, necessarily produces harm and is without just cause or excuse, it is 'willful and malicious' even absent proof of a specific intent to injure." Cecchini, 780 F.2d 1440, 1443 (9th Cir. 1986).

However, in Geiger, the United States Supreme Court concluded that establishing § 523(a)(6) liability "takes a deliberate or intentional injury, not merely a deliberate or intentional act that leads to injury . . . [T]he (a)(6) formulation triggers in the lawyer's mind the category 'intentional torts,' as distinguished from negligent reckless torts. Intentional torts generally require that the actor intend 'the consequences of an act,' not simply 'the act.'" Geiger, 523 U.S. at 61–62 (internal citations omitted). As such, nondischargeability under § 523(a)(6) may not be imputed.

"[T]he lack of a specific intent to injure holding in Cecchini was effectively overruled by the Supreme Court in its Geiger decision. Consequently, the continued efficacy of Cecchini as precedent on related questions is compromised." In re Huh, 506 B.R. 257, 268 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2014); see also Matter of Miller, 196 B.R. 334, 336 (E.D. La. 1996) ("In Section 523(a)(6), the phrase 'by the debtor' follows the phrase 'for willful and malicious injury.' Thus, the plain meaning test requires that the debtor must have been the one who caused the willful and malicious injury. Imputed liability is insufficient.").

Chapter 7

The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the Ninth Circuit also has "held that 'vicarious liability' can be the basis for a claim under Section 523(a)(2) . . . [yet] Section 523(a)(6), unlike Section 523(a)(2) makes specific reference to a 'willful and malicious injury by the debtor.' This difference arguably justifies a different application of imputed liability to Sections 523(a)(2) and (a)(6)." In re Rumjahn, 2006 WL 6602239, at *3 (S.D. Cal. 2006) (referencing In re Austin, 36 B.R. 306, 312 (M. Tenn. 1984) ("[A]pplication of vicarious liability would effectively vitiate the § 523(a)(6) requirement that only debts resulting from willful acts committed by the debtor be nondischargeable.")).

Here, Plaintiff asserts that the Arbitration Award establishes a nondischargeable claim under § 523(a)(6) because the arbitrator allegedly found that Debtor engaged in deliberate wrongful acts to intentionally harm Plaintiff. However, the arbitrator held that Debtor's conduct did not rise to the level that warranted an award of punitive damages against her. There are no findings that Debtor intended to inflict injury on Plaintiff or knew that harm to Plaintiff was substantially certain. Consequently, the arbitrator's findings are not sufficient to demonstrate that Debtor acted with sufficient intent for Plaintiff's claim to be nondischargeable under § 523(a)(6).

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion on Plaintiff's § 523(a)(2)(A) claim in the amount of $2,171,585.17. The Court will deny the Motion on Plaintiff's § 523(a)(4) and (a)(6) claims.

Plaintiffs must submit the order within seven (7) days.

#9.00 MayallPostan LLC's Motion to Dismiss Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition; Request for Fees and Costs in an Amount of No Less Than $7250.00

Docket 14

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will dismiss the involuntary petition.

I. BACKGROUND

A. Relevant Prepetition History

In 1977, Nathaniel Brown, Sr. ("Nathaniel") and Beatrice Brown purchased real property located at 9126 4th Avenue, Inglewood, CA 90305 (the "Property"). Request for Judicial Notice ("RJN") [doc. 14], Exhibit 1; Declaration of Loretta Brown ("Brown Declaration") [doc. 24], ¶ 3. Their daughter, Loretta Brown ("Loretta"), contends she has an interest in the Property pursuant to a testamentary instrument. Brown Declaration, ¶ 4.

On May 2, 2018, a grant deed was executed transferring the Property from Nathaniel to Josette Brown ("Josette"), Loretta's estranged sister. RJN, Exhibit 2; Brown Declaration, ¶ 2. The grant deed was notarized by Darryl C. McConnell ("Darryl"). Id. Loretta contends that Josette forged Nathaniel's name on the grant deed, and Darryl notarized the grant deed using a fake California Driver's License. RJN, Exhibit 6. On May 23, 2018, Josette executed a grant deed transferring the Property to Mayallpostan LLC (the "Alleged Debtor"). RJN, Exhibit 4. Mayallpostan obtained a purchase money loan, secured by a deed of trust in favor of several entities (the "Lenders"), to fund the transfer. RJN, Exhibit 5.

On August 13, 2019, Loretta filed a complaint against the Alleged Debtor, Josette, Darryl and an individual named Larnardo Crockett ("Larnardo"), initiating case no. 19STCV28662 (the "State Court Action"). RJN, Exhibit 6; Brown Declaration, ¶ 15. Through the complaint, Loretta asserted twelve causes of action; as to the Alleged Debtor, Loretta asserted causes of action for quiet title, cancellation of deed, actual fraudulent transfer, constructive fraudulent transfer and declaratory relief. Loretta asserted these five causes of action against the Alleged Debtor, Josette and Larnardo. On March 17, 2020, the state court held a hearing on a motion for judgment on the pleadings filed by the Alleged Debtor. Brown Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit 1. At that time, the state court issued a minute order denying the motion and holding that the complaint was adequately pled (the "Pleading Order"). Id. The state court also held that Loretta sufficiently alleged standing to pursue her quiet title cause of action. Id.

On June 12, 2020, the Alleged Debtor filed an answer to the complaint, denying several allegations and asserting 21 affirmative defenses, including based on expiration of applicable statute of limitations, failure to mitigate of damages, violation of certain equitable doctrines and the Alleged Debtor's assertion that qualifies as a bona fide purchaser (the "Answer"). RJN, Exhibit 7.

On March 6, 2020, a notice of default was recorded by the Lenders. RJN, Exhibit 9. On May 13, 2020, Loretta filed amendments to the complaint, adding the Lenders as defendants. RJN, Exhibit 8. On June 16, 2020, the Lenders recorded a Notice of Trustee's Sale, indicating that a foreclosure sale was scheduled for July 16, 2020. RJN, Exhibit 10.

On July 14, 2020, the state court held a hearing on ex parte application for a temporary restraining order enjoining the foreclosure sale (the "Ex Parte Application"). RJN, Exhibit 11. At that time, the state court issued a minute order postponing the foreclosure sale pending a hearing on an Order to Show Cause re: Preliminary Injunctions (the "Injunction OSC"). Id. On August 13, 2020, the state court held a hearing on the Injunction OSC. RJN, Exhibit 12. At that time, the state court approved a preliminary injunction on the condition that a bond be posted, in the amount of $398,266.66, by August 17, 2020. Id. The state court noted that, "[i]f the bond is not posted, the Preliminary Injunction will dissolve." Id.

B. The Involuntary Petition

On August 17, 2020, Loretta, individually and on behalf of Nathaniel Brown, Jr. (together, "Petitioning Creditors"), filed an involuntary chapter 7 petition against the Alleged Debtor. On the same day, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause (the "OSC"), requiring Petitioning Creditors to appear at a hearing and file a brief explaining why this case should not be dismissed.

On September 10, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the OSC. At that time, the Court issued a ruling noting that Petitioning Creditors did not timely file proof of service of the involuntary summons and petition (the "Service Ruling") [doc. 10]. In the Service Ruling, the Court instructed Petitioning Creditors to obtain an Alias Summons and properly serve the Alleged Debtor with the Alias Summons and the involuntary petition within seven days. The Court also instructed Petitioning Creditors to file proof of proper service.

On September 23, 2020, the Clerk of the Court issued an Alias Summons [doc. 12]. On October 5, 2020, Petitioning Creditors filed two proofs of service indicating that, on September 28, 2020, they served a summons, notice of status conference and involuntary petition on the Alleged Debtor. The proofs of service indicated the documents were addressed to "Willie Henderson, Mayallpostan LLC, 10400 Canoga Avenue, Unit 205, Chatsworth, California 91311."

On October 5, 2020, the Alleged Debtor filed a motion to dismiss the involuntary petition (the "Motion") [doc. 14]. In the Motion, the Alleged Debtor contends that: (A) service of the summons and petition was improper; (B) Petitioning Creditors' claims are subject to a bona fide dispute; (C) alternatively, the Court may dismiss or suspend proceedings under 11 U.S.C. §§ 305(a) or 707(a); and (D) the Alleged Debtor is entitled to costs and fees under § 303(i).

On November 5, 2020, Petitioning Creditors filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 22]. In the Opposition, Petitioning Creditors assert: (A) service was proper; (B) the Alleged Debtor failed to present evidence that it disputes the Lenders' debts; (C) the Alleged Debtor did not present evidence disputing Loretta's declaration; and (D) the Court should not require Petitioning Creditors to pay the Alleged Debtor's fees and costs. On November 12, 2020, the Alleged Debtor filed a reply to the Opposition and evidentiary objections [docs. 25, 26].

Chapter 7

As a preliminary matter, the propriety of the initial proof of service discussed by the Alleged Debtor is irrelevant. At the hearing on the OSC, the Court instructed Petitioning Creditors to obtain an Alias Summons and complete service of process using the Alias Summons. As such, the pertinent issue is whether the Alias Summons was properly served.

As to the Alias Summons, the Alleged Debtor contends it was not properly served because: (A) the postmark date on the envelope it received conflicted with the date stated in the proof of service; (B) Petitioning Creditors served Willie Henderson without specifying his title; and (C) the proof of service indicates service of the summons instead of the Alias Summons. As to the first argument, Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7004(e) provides—Service made under Rule 4(e), (g), (h)(1), (i), or (j)(2) F.R.Civ.P. shall be by delivery of the summons and complaint within 7 days after the summons is issued. If service is by any authorized form of mail, the summons and complaint shall be deposited in the mail within 7 days after the summons is issued.

(emphasis added). Thus, the relevant question is not whether the summons was postmarked within 7 days, but whether the summons was deposited in the mail within 7 days. In any event, both the postmarked date and the date on the proof of service are within the 7 days required by FRBP 7004(e).

As to the second argument, FRBP 7004(b)(3) requires that service by mail on corporations be accomplished "by mailing a copy of the summons and complaint to the attention of an officer, a managing or general agent, or to any other agent authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process...." The Rule does not state that, where an officer or agent is served by name, the officer or agent's title also must be included. The Alleged Debtor's cited authority does not support its contention. The complete quote referenced by the Alleged Debtor provides—

In serving a corporation ..., it is not necessary for the officer or agent of the defendant to be named in the address so long as the mail is addressed to the defendant's proper address and directed to the attention of the officer or agent by reference to his position or title.

Chapter 7

In re C.V.H. Transp., Inc., 254 B.R. 331, 333 (Bankr. M.D. Pa. 2000) (emphasis added). Thus, the court merely stated that, where an officer or agent is not named, the mail should be addressed to the attention of an officer or agent by reference to their position or title. Here, Petitioning Creditors explicitly named Willie Henderson.

Finally, as to the final argument that the proof of service refers to a summons instead of the Alias Summons, the Alleged Debtor admits that it received the Alias Summons. See Motion, p. 6 (“The proof of service for the Alias Summons identifies the document served as ‘Summons and Notice of Status Conference in an Involuntary Bankruptcy Case’ – even though it accompanied the Alias Summons...”) (emphasis added). The Alleged Debtor has not provided authority that referring to the Alias Summons as “Summons and Notice of Status Conference in an Involuntary Bankruptcy Case” counts as defective service where the Alleged Debtor received the proper documents. In any event, despite proper service, the Court will dismiss this case for the reasons discussed below.

B. Bona Fide Dispute

"Section 303 requires that creditors filing a petition for involuntary bankruptcy against a debtor have claims that are not subject to a bona fide dispute." In re Vortex Fishing Sys., Inc., 277 F.3d 1057, 1064 (9th Cir. 2002). "For a majority of the federal circuits, including the Ninth Circuit, a ‘bona fide dispute’ exists if ‘there is an objective basis for either a factual or legal dispute as to the validity of a debt.’" In re EB Holdings II, Inc., 589 B.R. 704, 722 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2017) (quoting Vortex Fishing, 277 F.3d at 1064). "The same objective test applies for determining a bona fide dispute as to the amount of a debt." Id. (citing In re Marciano, 708 F.3d 1123, 1126 (9th Cir. 2013)).

"A bankruptcy court is not asked to evaluate the potential outcome of a dispute, but merely to determine whether there are facts that give rise to a legitimate disagreement over whether money is owed, or, in certain cases, how much." Vortex Fishing, 277 F.3d at 1064. In the Ninth Circuit, "the mere existence of pending litigation or the filing of an answer is insufficient to establish the existence of a bona fide dispute." Id., at 1066. "In contrast, the existence of affirmative defenses may suggest that a bona fide dispute exists." Id., at 1067; see also In re TPG Troy, LLC, 492 B.R. 150, 159 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("Congress intended to disqualify a creditor whenever there is an legitimate basis for the debtor not paying the debt, whether that basis is factual or legal.").

Chapter 7

The Court will take judicial notice of the documents attached to the RJN. Those documents reflect that there is an objective basis for both a factual and legal dispute as to the validity and amount of Petitioning Creditors' claims. Multiple affirmative defenses asserted by the Alleged Debtor would create a dispute over whether Petitioning Creditors hold a valid claim at all. For instance, the Alleged Debtor has asserted that it acquired the Property as a bona fide purchaser without actual or constructive notice of Petitioning Creditors' alleged interest in the Property. The objective dispute over this affirmative defense is supported by the recorded grant deeds, which do not reflect that Petitioning Creditors held title to the Property.

In addition, other affirmative defenses create a dispute over the amount of Petitioning Creditors' claims. For example, through another affirmative defense, the Alleged Debtor contends that, where other parties were responsible for certain acts or omissions, the court should apportion liability based on each party's respective faults. In the state court complaint, each cause of action asserted against the Alleged Debtor also is asserted against Josette and Larnardo. As such, there is an objective dispute regarding apportionment of each of the state court defendants' liabilities to Petitioning Creditors, if any. Aside from these affirmative defenses, the Alleged Debtor has asserted nineteen other affirmative defenses, most of which signal either a factual or legal dispute regarding the validity or amount of Petitioning Creditors' claims.

Petitioning Creditors reference the Pleading Order as support for their argument that a bona fide dispute does not exist. However, the Pleading Order merely allowed the action to move beyond the pleading stage. Significantly, the order predated the filing of the Answer, which includes the affirmative defenses that establish a bona fide dispute. Although Petitioning Creditors contend, in the Opposition, that the affirmative defenses are no longer "at issue," Petitioning Creditors do not offer an explanation in support of this conclusory statement. Moreover, many of the factual assertions in the Declarations filed in response to the Motion are not admissible as evidence.

As noted above, the Court "is not asked to evaluate the potential outcome of a dispute, but merely to determine whether there are facts that give rise to a legitimate disagreement over whether money is owed, or, in certain cases, how much." Vortex Fishing, 277 F.3d at 1064. In light of the legal and factual disputes over the Alleged Debtor's affirmative defenses, the Petitioning Creditors' claims are in bona fide dispute over validity and amount. [FN1]. As such, the Court will dismiss the petition.

C. Abstention or Dismissal under 11 U.S.C. § 305(a)

"[N]otwithstanding a bankruptcy court's jurisdiction over an involuntary case pursuant to § 303, § 305(a) provides that the bankruptcy court may dismiss an involuntary case, or suspend all proceeding in that case, and thereby decline to exercise jurisdiction." In re Macke Int'l Trade, Inc., 370 B.R. 236, 246 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007). Section 305(a) provides in relevant part:

The court, after notice and a hearing, may dismiss a case under this title, or may suspend all proceedings in a case under this title, at any time if—

- (1) the interests of creditors and the debtor would be better served by such dismissal or suspension...

11 U.S.C. § 305(a)(1). To determine dismissal or abstention under this statute, courts consider the following factors:

- (1) the economy and efficiency of administration; (2) whether another forum is available to protect the interests of both parties or there is already a pending proceeding in state court; (3) whether federal proceedings are necessary to reach a just and equitable solution; (4) whether there is an alternative means of achieving an equitable distribution of assets; (5) whether the debtor and the creditors are able to work out a less expensive out-of-court arrangement which better serves all interests in the case; (6) whether a non-federal insolvency has proceeded so far in those proceedings that it would be costly and time consuming to start afresh with the federal bankruptcy process; and (7) the purpose for which bankruptcy jurisdiction has been sought.

In re Marciano, 459 B.R. 27, 46–47 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011), aff'd, 708 F.3d 1123 (9th Cir. 2013).

Even if Petitioning Creditors' claims were not in bona fide dispute, the Court would abstain in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 350(a). First, there already is a pending proceeding in state court, which is available to protect the interests of all parties. As demonstrated by Loretta's own requests for injunctions before that forum, the state court offers tools to preserve the status quo while the parties proceed with litigation. In addition, Loretta has added the Lenders as additional defendants, and asserts causes of action against other defendants, such as Josette. As such, proceeding before the state court is more efficient than involving those parties in an involuntary bankruptcy case.

Moreover, a bankruptcy case is not necessary to achieve a just and equitable solution. Petitioning Creditors contend that the Property is the Alleged Debtor's sole asset. The State Court Action revolves around that sole asset, and the causes of action asserted by Petitioning Creditors are crafted to preserve any right Petitioning Creditors may have in the Property. The state court is capable of adjudicating those rights in relation to the rights of other parties, such as the Alleged Debtor and the Lenders. The only benefit to Petitioning Creditors is use of the automatic stay to halt foreclosure of the Property; however, this does not benefit other creditors of the Alleged Debtor, such as the Lenders, who sought to foreclose on their collateral.

In addition, other than application of the automatic stay (from which interested parties may obtain relief), Petitioning Creditors have not articulated how a bankruptcy case will help the parties. If Petitioning Creditors are successful on some of their claims, the Alleged Debtor's sole asset will be taken out of the estate, and Nathaniel will have title to the Property. If Petitioning Creditors are not successful on their claims, the Lenders, the only other creditors referenced by the parties, will not need bankruptcy to collect on their debts. Given the existence of these factors, even if Petitioning Creditors' claims were not in bona fide dispute, the Court would dismiss this case under § 305(a).

D. Attorneys' Fees and Costs

The Alleged Debtor requests fees and costs incurred requesting dismissal of the petition. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 303(i)—

If the court dismisses a petition under this section other than on consent of all petitioners and the debtor, and if the debtor does not waive the right to judgment under this subsection, the court may grant judgment—

- (1) against the petitioners and in favor of the debtor for—
 - (A) costs; or
 - (B) a reasonable attorney's fee; or
- (2) against any petitioner that filed the petition in bad faith, for—
 - (A) any damages proximately caused by such filing; or
 - (B) punitive damages.

The Court need not make a finding of bad faith to reimburse an alleged debtor its incurred fees and costs pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 303(i)(1); such a finding is required only for requests for damages under § 303(i)(2). The Alleged Debtor does not request damages under § 303(i)(2).

Section 303(i)(1) "is a fee-shifting provision rather than a sanctions statute. Like other fee-shifting provisions and in contrast to Rule 11, eligibility for fees turns on the merits of the litigation as a whole, rather than on whether a 'specific filing' is well founded." In re S. California Sunbelt Developers, Inc., 608 F.3d 456, 462 (9th Cir. 2010). "In deciding whether to award fees, a court considers the 'totality of the circumstances,' including"—

1. the merits of the involuntary petition;
2. the role of any improper conduct on the part of the alleged debtor;
3. the reasonableness of the actions taken by the petitioning creditors; and
4. the motivation and objectives behind filing the petition.

Id. (citing In re Vortex Fishing, 379 F.3d 701, 707 (9th Cir. 2004) ("Vortex II"). As explained by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in Vortex II—

Chapter 7

Although we adopt the totality of the circumstances test as the appropriate standard under § 303(i)(1), we do not abandon the premise that "any petitioning creditor in an involuntary case ... should expect to pay the debtor's attorney's fees and costs if the petition is dismissed." In re Kidwell, 158 B.R. 203, 217 (Bankr.E.D.Cal.1993). Thus, when an involuntary petition is dismissed on some ground other than consent of the parties and the debtor has not waived the right to recovery, an involuntary debtor's motion for attorney's fees and costs under § 303(i)(1) raises a rebuttable presumption that reasonable fees and costs are authorized. In re Scrap Metal Buyers of Tampa, Inc., 233 B.R. 162, 166 (Bankr.M.D.Fla.1999). This presumption helps reinforce the idea that "[t]he filing of an [i]nvoluntary [p]etition should not be lightly undertaken," In re Advance Press & Litho, Inc., 46 B.R. 700, 702 (Bankr.D.Colo.1984), and "will serve to discourage inappropriate and frivolous filings." 1 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶ 303.15 (15th ed.2004). Filing an involuntary petition should be a measure of last resort because even if the petition is filed in good-faith, it can "chill[] the alleged debtor's credit and sources of supply," and "scare away his customers." In re Advance Press, 46 B.R. at 702 (quoting In re SBA Factors of Miami, Inc., 13 B.R. 99, 101 (Bankr.S.D.Fla.1981)).

Vortex II, 379 F.3d at 707.

Here, the applicable factors, coupled with the presumption that reasonable fees and costs are authorized, merit an award of attorneys' fees and costs. First, for the reasons discussed above, the involuntary petition lacks merit because Petitioning Creditors' claims are in bona fide dispute. In addition, the record does not reflect that the Alleged Debtor engaged in improper conduct. Further, given that Petitioning Creditors filed the petition the same day as the deadline to post a bond, it appears Petitioning Creditors were motivated by a desire to benefit from the automatic stay without posting a bond. Even if Petitioning Creditors believed they acted reasonably under the law, the factors weigh in favor of awarding fees and costs.

Although the Court will allow an award of reasonable attorneys' fees and costs, the Court will continue this hearing for the Alleged Debtor to file and serve a declaration and attach an itemized statement of the incurred fees and costs. Prior to analyzing such an itemized statement, the Court cannot assess whether the incurred fees and costs are reasonable.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss the involuntary petition. However, the Court will continue this hearing to 1:00 p.m. on December 17, 2020, to assess whether the Alleged Debtor's request for fees and costs is reasonable. No later than November 25, 2020, the Alleged Debtor must file and serve a declaration attaching an itemized billing statement. No later than December 3, 2020, Petitioning Creditors must file and serve any response to that billing statement.

The Court will prepare the Order.

FOOTNOTES

1. Petitioning Creditors also assert that the Lenders' claims against the Alleged Debtor are not in bona fide dispute. The Lenders have not joined the involuntary petition, and the validity or amount of their claims are not at issue. As noted in Vortex Fishing, "[s]ection 303 requires that creditors filing a petition for involuntary bankruptcy against a debtor have claims that are not subject to a bona fide dispute." Vortex Fishing, 277 F.3d at 1064. Petitioning Creditors are the creditors which filed the involuntary petition; consequently, with respect to the Motion, the Court is assessing whether the validity or amount of Petitioning Creditors' claims are in dispute.

Tentative Ruling:

The debtor has not timely filed its monthly operating report for October 2020.

In its order which set the deadline for the debtor to file a chapter 11 plan and related disclosure statement [doc. 20], the Court erroneously used the date of March 12, 2021, instead of November 1, 2020. November 1, 2020 was the deadline that the Court adopted at the initial chapter 11 case status conference, held on September 24, 2020.

In light of the debtor's representation that it is prepared to file a chapter 11 plan and related proposed disclosure statement significantly prior to March 12, 2021 [doc. 29], the Court will amend that deadline to December 21, 2020.

#12.00 Motion for Turnover of Property of Post-Petition Rent Payments

fr. 11/5/20

Docket 120

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 26, 2018, Antoine R. Chamoun ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David Seror was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). At all times during this case, Debtor has been represented by counsel.

In his latest-amended schedule A/B, filed on November 29, 2018 [doc. 23], Debtor identified a fee simple interest in the real property located at 1706 Empty Saddle Road, Simi Valley, CA 93063 (the "Empty Saddle Property"). Debtor valued the Property at $500,000. In his amended schedule C, Debtor claimed a homestead exemption in the Empty Saddle Property, pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 704.730(a)(2), in the amount of $100,000. In his amended schedule D, Debtor identified three encumbrances against the Empty Saddle Property: (A) a $287,311 deed of trust in favor of Bank of America; (B) a $46,123 deed of trust in favor of another lender; and (C) a $333,434 lien in favor of Walid Chamoun.

In his original and amended schedule G, Debtor identified a lease with Patricia Chamoun (the "Lease"). In Debtor's original schedule G and schedule I, filed in June 2018 [doc. 1], Debtor indicated that Ms. Chamoun pays the lease payment/mortgage on the Empty Saddle Property directly to the "holder of 1st Trust Deed" or "lenders." In November 2018, when he filed his amended schedule G, Debtor attached the Lease. The attached Lease provides that, as rent, Ms. Chamoun agreed to pay the mortgage on the Empty Saddle Property directly to Bank of America, the holder of the first deed of trust encumbering the Empty Saddle Property.

Chapter 7

On January 18, 2019, the Trustee filed a Notice of Assets [doc. 26]. On February 27, 2019, the Bank of New York Mellon ("BONY") moved for relief from the automatic stay to foreclose on the Empty Saddle Property (the "BONY RFS") [doc. 28]. On March 6, 2019, the Trustee and BONY submitted a stipulation to continue the hearing on the BONY RFS (the "BONY Stipulation") [doc. 30]. In the BONY Stipulation, the parties stated that the "Trustee's proposed counsel advised [BONY's] counsel that the Trustee believes there may be sufficient net equity in the [Empty Saddle] Property to provide adequate protection to [BONY]...." Subsequently, the parties submitted two other stipulations including the same language [docs. 44, 51]. The Court approved all three stipulations [docs. 31, 45, 52].

On March 25, 2019, the Trustee filed an application to employ general bankruptcy counsel (the "Application to Employ Counsel") [doc. 33], stating that the Trustee required counsel to investigate, among other things, potential avoidance actions against Ms. Chamoun and Walid Chamoun related to the Empty Saddle Property. Debtor opposed the Application to Employ Counsel [doc. 35]. On May 9, 2019, the Court entered an order approving the Application to Employ Counsel [doc. 42].

On September 16, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Ms. Chamoun and Walid Chamoun, initiating adversary proceeding [1:19-ap-01105-VK] and seeking, in relevant part, to avoid the Lease, as well as the lien against the Empty Saddle Property in favor of Walid Chamoun.

On February 19, 2020, the Trustee filed an application to employ a real estate broker (the "Application to Employ Broker") [doc. 65], explicitly stating that the Trustee needed a broker to sell the Empty Saddle Property. In response, Debtor filed a motion to convert this case to a chapter 13 case [doc. 72] and opposed the Application to Employ Broker [doc. 76], arguing that, upon conversion, the Trustee would "be divested of power over the assets of the estate." On May 7, 2020, the Court entered an order approving the Application to Employ Broker [doc. 91] and denying Debtor's request to convert this case [doc. 92].

On August 5, 2020, the Trustee filed a first amended complaint in the adversary proceeding against Ms. Chamoun and Walid Chamoun (the "FAC") [1:19-ap-01105-VK, doc. 27], asserting that Ms. Chamoun breached the Lease by failing to make payments on the mortgage. On August 25, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion for turnover in the adversary proceeding, requesting an order for Ms. Chamoun to turn over the Empty Saddle Property based on her failure to pay the mortgage (the "First Turnover Motion") [1:19-ap-01105-VK, doc. 38].

On September 2, 2020, Ms. Chamoun filed an opposition to the First Turnover Motion (the "Chamoun Opposition") [1:19-ap-01105-VK, doc. 42]. To the Chamoun Opposition, Ms. Chamoun attached a declaration, testifying that she made payments in accordance with the Lease to Debtor. Declaration of Patricia Chamoun [1:19-ap-01105-VK, doc. 42], ¶ 4. In addition, Ms. Chamoun attached a Residential Lease Addendum (the "Addendum"), which provided that Ms. Chamoun must make her monthly lease payments to Debtor. Id., Exhibit B.

On October 13, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion for turnover against Debtor (the "Motion") [doc. 120], requesting turnover to the estate of the rents paid to Debtor by Ms. Chamoun, totaling $56,328. On November 6, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 127]. In the Opposition, Debtor admits that he received postpetition rent from Ms. Chamoun. Declaration of Antoine R. Chamoun [doc. 127], ¶ 14. However, Debtor contends he was "under the assumption" that the Trustee abandoned the Empty Saddle Property because: (A) the Trustee did not timely object to Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption; (B) the Trustee did not take any action regarding the Empty Saddle Property; and (C) there is no equity in the Empty Saddle Property after accounting for the exemption and the encumbrances against the Empty Saddle Property. As such, Debtor contends he was entitled to the postpetition rent payments. If the Court disagrees with Debtor, Debtor asks that the Court deduct the amount owed to the Trustee from Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption.

On November 12, 2020, the Trustee filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 128]. In the Reply, the Trustee contends that Debtor provided no legal support for his arguments, did not explain his prior false statements to the Court regarding Ms. Chamoun's payment of rent directly to Bank of America and did not use the rent payments he received to pay the mortgage on the Empty Saddle Property. The Trustee also asserts that, through September 2020, Debtor has continued to collect rents from the Empty Saddle Property, bringing the total Debtor owes to the estate to $61,022.

 - (1) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c)(2) of this section, all legal or equitable interests of the debtor in property as of the commencement of the case.
 - (6) Proceeds, product, offspring, rents, or profits of or from property of the estate, except such as are earnings from services performed by an individual debtor after the commencement of the case.

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 542—

- (a) Except as provided in subsection (c) or (d) of this section, an entity, other than a custodian, in possession, custody, or control, during the case, of property that the trustee may use, sell, or lease under section 363 of this title, or that the debtor may exempt under 522 of this title, shall deliver to the trustee, and account for, such property or the value of such property, unless such property is of inconsequential value or benefit to the estate.

Debtor appears to argue that, based on his claim of a homestead exemption and Debtor's belief that the "Trustee never took any action as to" the Empty Saddle Property, the Trustee abandoned the Empty Saddle Property. Debtor has cited no legal or evidentiary basis in support of this argument. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 554(a), "[a]fter notice and a hearing, the trustee may abandon any property of the estate that is burdensome to the estate or that is of inconsequential value and benefit to the estate." Under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 6007(a)— and committees elected pursuant to § 705 or appointed pursuant to § 1102 of the Code. A party in interest may file and serve an objection within 14 days of the mailing of the notice, or within the time fixed by the court. If a timely objection is made, the court shall set a hearing on notice to the United States trustee and to other entities as the court may direct.

Alternatively, under 11 U.S.C. § 554(b), "[o]n request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court may order the trustee to abandon any property of the estate that is burdensome to the estate or that is of inconsequential value and benefit to the estate." Otherwise, "any property scheduled under section 521(a)(1) of this title not otherwise administered at the time of the closing of a case is abandoned to the debtor...." 11 U.S.C. § 554(c) (emphasis added).

Here, the Trustee has not filed a notice of abandonment of the Empty Saddle Property pursuant to § 554(a), and no party in interest has moved for abandonment of the Empty Saddle Property in accordance with § 554(b). As a property scheduled under § 521(a)(1), the Empty Saddle Property, if not otherwise administered, will be abandoned to Debtor at the time of the closing of a case. Given that a notice or motion for abandonment has not been filed, and because this case is not being closed, the Empty Saddle Property has not been abandoned.

Moreover, the record does not support Debtor's belief that the Empty Saddle Property was abandoned because "the Trustee never took any action." Opposition, p. 2. By January 2019, the Trustee filed a Notice of Assets. From February 2019 through September 2019, the Trustee repeatedly indicated that she was investigating the Empty Saddle Property, and specifically whether the Empty Saddle Property had equity. During this time, the Trustee filed: (A) multiple stipulations with BONY explicitly noting that the Trustee was investigating whether there was equity in the Empty Saddle Property; (B) the Application to Employ Counsel to investigate a possible action against Ms. Chamoun and Walid Chamoun for avoidance of the Lease and Walid Chamoun's lien against the Empty Saddle Property; and (C) an adversary complaint against Ms. Chamoun and Walid Chamoun for avoidance of these transfers.

In February 2020, the Trustee moved to employ a broker, clearly stating the broker would be used to sell the Empty Saddle Property. In response to this Application to Employ Broker, Debtor requested conversion of his case to divest the Trustee of power over assets of the estate. As such, Debtor implicitly acknowledged that the Trustee retained control over the Empty Saddle Property.

The mailing list associated with this case reveals that Debtor's counsel receives notice of every filing via the Court's electronic noticing service. As such, it is unclear why, based on this docket and this record, Debtor would believe that the Trustee did not take any action to investigate the Empty Saddle Property for the purpose of liquidation. Even if Debtor initially harbored such a belief, Debtor continued to collect rents through September 2020, long after the Trustee explicitly stated, in February 2020, that she intended to sell the Empty Saddle Property.

As to Debtor's arguments regarding his homestead exemption, Debtor has not explained why his claim of a homestead exemption would entitle him to rents generated post-petition by the lease of the Empty Saddle Property. To the extent Debtor asserts that his claim of a homestead exemption leaves no equity to be liquidated by the Trustee, the Trustee's avoidance action against Walid Chamoun, if successful, would preserve that lien for the benefit of the estate. See 11 U.S.C. § 551. In other words, if the lien is avoided, Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption remains inferior in priority to the preserved lien, which Debtor valued at $333,434.

To the extent Debtor argues that his claim of an exemption resulted in abandonment of the Empty Saddle Property, Debtor's argument is not supported by his referenced authority. Debtor cites In re Mwangi, 473 B.R. 802 (D. Nev. 2012), aff'd, 764 F.3d 1168 (9th Cir. 2014), in support of his argument. In Mwangi, upon the debtors' filing of a chapter 7 petition, the debtors' bank placed a hold on the debtors' account. Mwangi, 473 B.R. at 804-05. Subsequently, the debtors claimed an exemption in 75% of the funds pursuant to Nevada law. Id., at 805. After receiving no objection to their claim of exemption, the debtors contacted the bank to request that the hold be lifted based on the debtors' exemption in the funds. Id. The bank refused. Id.

In response, the debtors sought damages under 11 U.S.C. § 362(k). Id. The bankruptcy court rejected the debtors' request. Id. After an appeal to the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit, which remanded the matter to the bankruptcy court, the bankruptcy court again denied the debtors' request for damages. Id., at 806-07. The debtors appealed to the District Court; as relevant to this case, the District Court had to assess when exempt property is removed from the estate, as well as whether all or part of the asset is removed from the estate. Id., at 809-10. First, the District Court noted that "[t]he estate does not relinquish property until it is administered in the bankruptcy proceeding, the bankruptcy case is closed, or the estate abandons the property under 11 U.S.C. § 554." Id., at 809. As to exempt property, the court held that "if no one timely objects to a debtor's claimed exemption, then the property is exempt from property of the estate and passes to the debtor upon expiration of the time to object." Id.

However, where the statute permitting the debtor to claim a particular exemption does not allow the debtor to exempt the entire property interest, but instead permits exemption of an interest in the property up to a particular dollar amount, "what is removed from the estate is an 'interest' in the property equal to the value of the exemption claimed at filing." In re Gebhart, 621 F.3d at 1210. In such cases, the underlying asset remains property of the estate, and the estate does not relinquish the property until it is administered in the bankruptcy, the trustee abandons the property, or the bankruptcy case is closed. Id. at 1210, 1212; Schwab, 130 S.Ct. at 2667 ("Where a debtor intends to exempt nothing more than an interest worth a specified dollar amount in an asset that is not subject to an unlimited or in-kind exemption under the Code ... [and] an interested party does not object to the claimed interest by the time the Rule 4003 period expires, title to the asset will remain with the estate pursuant to § 541, and the debtor will be guaranteed a payment in the dollar amount of the exemption.").

Id., at 810.

While Mwangi does not deal with turnover of property, the case reaffirms the fact that the Empty Saddle Property was not abandoned to and did not revert in Debtor. Debtor claimed an exemption pursuant to CCP § 704.730(a)(2), which exempts up to $100,000 of a homestead, i.e., "a particular dollar amount." Mwangi, 473 B.R. at 810. Because the exemption does not allow Debtor to exempt the entire property, under Mwangi, the Empty Saddle Property remained property of the estate despite Debtor's claim of an exemption.

Finally, to the extent Debtor argues that his claim of an exemption gives Debtor the right to collect rent from the Empty Saddle Property, Debtor has not provided any relevant authority. California's statutes regarding homestead exemptions do not provide for exemption of rent generated from the property. Given the purpose of and requirements for claiming a homestead exemption, such a provision would not make sense.

CCP § 704.730(a)(2) allows a $100,000 exemption in property to "the judgment debtor or spouse of the judgment debtor who resides in the homestead..." (emphasis added). "The factors a court should consider in determining whether the debtor has sufficient residency to establish an exemptible interest in the property and, thus, to qualify for the automatic homestead, are physical occupancy of the property and the intention with which the property is occupied." In re Elliott, 523 B.R. 188, 196 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2014). "Homestead laws are designed to protect the sanctity of the family home against a loss caused by a forced sale by creditors." Amin v. Khazindar, 112 Cal. App. 4th 582, 588 (Ct. App. 2003). There is no indication the statutes allow judgment debtors to exempt rental income generated by homesteads. [FN1]. Debtor having provided no law to the contrary, Debtor's claim of an exemption does not absolve Debtor of the requirement to turn over rents paid pursuant to the Lease, after Debtor filed his chapter 7 bankruptcy case, to the Trustee.

As to Debtor's request to deduct the $61,022 he owes the estate from his claim to a homestead exemption, Debtor has not provided any law in support of this request. Given the encumbrances against the Empty Saddle Property, one of which may be avoided and preserved for the benefit of the estate, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 551, Debtor may not receive any proceeds from the sale of the Empty Saddle Property. Because Debtor's homestead exemption likely will not come into play, Debtor's offer does not justify his retention of post-petition rents which were inappropriately paid to him and are to be administered by the Trustee.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion. No later than 14 days after entry of the Order, Debtor must pay the estate $61,022.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Chapter 11

#15.00 Motion to extend debtor's exclusivity period to file and obtain acceptances of debtor's plan under 11 U.S.C. § 1121(D)

Docket 62

Tentative Ruling:

For the reasons discussed below, the Court will grant in part and deny in part the motion.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 22, 2020, Transpine, Inc. ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. Debtor owns a single asset in the form of residential real property located at 4256 Tarzana Estate Drive, Tarzana, California 91356 (the "Tarzana Property"). The Tarzana Property is encumbered by a single deed of trust; as evidenced by Debtor's schedules and monthly operating reports, the Tarzana Property is not producing any income.

As discussed in the Court's ruling in the related adversary Case No. 1:20-ap-01074-VK, the Tarzana Property has been transferred between family members, related parties and Debtor [Adversary Docket, doc. 23]. On November 5, 2020, the Court entered an order modifying the automatic stay to allow Overland Direct Inc. ("Overland") to proceed to final judgment against Debtor regarding the claims asserted in Case No. LC105743, in the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles (the "Stay Relief Order") [doc. 66].

On October 29, 2020, Debtor filed a Motion to Extend Debtor's Exclusive Period to File and Obtain Acceptances of Debtor's Plan under 11 U.S.C. § 1121(d) (the "Motion") [doc. 62]. In the Motion, Debtor requests an extension of the plan filing exclusivity period to May 18, 2021, and period to solicit acceptances to July 19, 2021. On November 5, 2020, Overland filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 65].

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1121, in pertinent part:

(b) Except as otherwise provided in this section, only the debtor may file a plan until after 120 days after the date of the order for relief under this chapter.

(c) Any party in interest . . . may file a plan if and only if -

...

(2) the debtor has not filed a plan before 120 days after the date of the order for relief under this chapter; or

(3) the debtor has not filed a plan that has been accepted, before 180 days after the date of the order for relief under this chapter, by each class of claims or interests that is impaired under the plan.

(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (2), on request of a party in interest made within the respective periods specified in subsections (b) and (c) of this section and after notice and a hearing, the court may for cause reduce or increase the 120-day period or the 180-day period referred to in this section.

(2)(A) The 120-day period specified in paragraph (1) may not be extended beyond a date that is 18 months after the date of the order for relief under this chapter.

(B) The 180-day period specified in paragraph (1) may not be extended beyond a date that is 20 months after the date of the order for relief under this chapter.

444, 453 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2002). Relevant factors showing cause include:

(1) a first extension; (2) in a complicated case; (3) that had not been pending for a long time, relative to its size and complexity; (4) in which the debtor did not appear to be proceeding in bad faith; (5) had improved operating revenues so that it was paying current expenses; (6) had shown a reasonable prospect for filing a viable plan; (7) was making satisfactory progress negotiating with key creditors; (8) did not appear to be seeking an extension of exclusivity to pressure creditors; and (9) was not depriving [creditors] of material or relevant information.

Id., at 452 (citing to In re Dow Corning Corp., 208 B.R. 661, 664-65 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 1997); In re Express One Int'l, Inc., 194 B.R. 98, 100 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1996)).

"The party seeking . . . an extension or reduction must establish that there is cause for the court to do so based upon the facts and circumstances of the particular case." In re New Meatco Provisions, 2014 WL 917335, at *2 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. Mar. 10, 2014) (unpublished disposition).

Here, this would be Debtor's first extension. The case has not been pending for a long time; Debtor filed its chapter 11 petition on July 22, 2020. The deadline to file proofs of claim is December 18, 2020.

However, other factors weigh against a multi-month extension. This is a not a complicated bankruptcy case. Rather, it is a case involving Debtor's ownership of one single family home. There are few non-insider creditors. Moreover, Debtor may be proceeding in bad faith based on, among other things, a history of interests in the Tarzana Property having been transferred among family members and related parties. Debtor has not shown that it has increased its revenue and is able to pay its regular operating bills or creditors. Debtor also not shown a reasonable prospect for refinancing its secured debt, considering that its only asset, the Tarzana Property, is not producing any income.

Based on the application of the Dow Corning factors, the Court will deny in part the Motion to extend the exclusivity period to file a chapter 11 plan to May 18, 2021, and an extension of the exclusive right to solicit acceptance to July 19, 2021. Rather, in order for Debtor to evaluate all timely filed proofs of claim, and in light of the Court's recent entry of the Stay Relief Order, the Court will grant in part the Motion by extending Debtor's exclusivity period to file a plan to December 31, 2020, and if Debtor files a proposed disclosure statement and plan by that deadline, the period to solicit acceptances to March 15, 2021.

This extension is subject to termination if a chapter 11 trustee is appointed in this case, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 1121(c)(1), and without prejudice to any party in interest's ability to request, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 1121(d)(1), a reduction in these extended exclusivity periods, should there be cause for the Court to do so.

#5.10 Motion to quash subpoena to JP Morgan Chase Bank N.A.

fr. 11/18/20

Docket 53

Tentative Ruling:

Deny.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 26, 2018, Antoine R. Chamoun ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. David Seror was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In his schedule A/B [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 23], Debtor identified an interest in real property located at 1706 Empty Saddle Road, Simi Valley, CA 93063 (the "Property").

On September 16, 2019, the Trustee filed a complaint against Patricia Chamoun and Walid R. Chamoun, initiating this adversary proceeding. In the operative amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 27], the Trustee requests, in relevant part: (A) avoidance of a marital settlement agreement between Ms. Chamoun and Debtor; (B) avoidance of a lease agreement between Ms. Chamoun and Debtor (the "Lease"), through which Ms. Chamoun agreed to lease the Property by paying the mortgage on the Property; (B) damages based on Ms. Chamoun's alleged breach of the Lease; (C) turnover of the Property; and (D) unjust enrichment based on Ms. Chamoun's tenancy in the Property without making payments under the Lease.

On August 25, 2020, the Trustee filed a motion for turnover against Ms. Chamoun (the "Turnover Motion") [doc. 38], requesting turnover of the Property based on Ms. Chamoun's failure to pay the mortgage on the Property. On September 2, 2020, Ms. Chamoun filed an opposition to the Motion, arguing that she made payments under the Lease to Debtor, in accordance with an addendum to the Lease (the "Addendum"). In his reply to the Opposition, the Trustee questioned the validity of the Addendum, as well as Ms. Chamoun's assertion that she had made rent payments to Debtor [doc. 43].

Chapter 7

On September 24, 2020, the Trustee served a notice of a subpoena to produce documents, information or objects issued to JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. (the "Chase Subpoena"). Declaration of Robert Altagen [doc. 53], ¶ 1, Exhibit A. Through the Chase Subpoena, the Trustee requested "[a]ll account statements, checks, wire transfers, payments and all other documents related to any account in the name of Patricia Chamoun... from 1/1/2016 through present." Id.

On October 20, 2020, Ms. Chamoun filed a motion to quash the Chase Subpoena (the "Motion") [doc. 53]. In the Motion, Ms. Chamoun argues that, while bank records prior to execution of the marital settlement agreement (in July 2016) are relevant, the request for records dated after the marital settlement agreement is irrelevant and overbroad. Ms. Chamoun also argues that the Chase Subpoena violates her right to financial privacy under California law.

On November 4, 2020, the Trustee filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 56]. In the Opposition, the Trustee asserts he needs the bank records to verify if Ms. Chamoun made payments to Debtor under the Lease, and that the information is relevant to the Trustee's claim that Ms. Chamoun breached the Lease. The Trustee further contends that, with the exception of invoices executed by Ms. Chamoun and Debtor and processed checks produced for February 2020 through July 2020, Ms. Chamoun has provided no evidence verifying that she consistently made payments under the Lease. The Trustee also argues that Ms. Chamoun does not have a right to financial privacy under federal law. Ms. Chamoun has not timely filed a reply to the Opposition.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Whether the Bank Records are Protected by a Financial Privilege

Pursuant to Fed. R. Evid. 501—

The common law--as interpreted by United States courts in the light of reason and experience--governs a claim of privilege unless any of the following provides otherwise:

- the United States Constitution;
- a federal statute; or
- rules prescribed by the Supreme Court.

Chapter 7

But in a civil case, state law governs privilege regarding a claim or defense for which state law supplies the rule of decision.

"The federal law of privilege applies unless state law supplies the rule of decision as to the claim or defense in an action, in which case state law of privilege would apply. Where the complaint alleges both federal and state law claims concerning the same conduct, the federal law of privilege would control." Oyarzo v. Toulumne Fire Dist., 2013 WL 1758798, at *9 (E.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 2013) (citing to Agster v. Maricopa County, 422 F.3d 836, 839 (9th Cir. 2005)). Federal privilege law applies to actions brought under the Bankruptcy Code. See, e.g. In re Yassai, 225 B.R. 478, 482-83 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1998) (finding that federal privilege law applied in a denial of discharge action under 11 U.S.C. § 727).

Here, although the FAC includes claims under California law, the FAC also includes several claims under the Bankruptcy Code. As a complaint that alleges both federal and state law claims, under the authorities above, the federal law of privilege applies. In the Motion, Ms. Chamoun references only California law.

"The Ninth Circuit has stated that it knew 'of no authority which recognizes a privilege for communications between bank and depositor' and 'decline[d] to create such a privilege....'" Yassai, 225 at 483 (quoting Harris v. United States, 413 F.2d 316, 319 (9th Cir. 1969)). "In subsequent cases, courts have uniformly held that the 'banker depositor privilege was not recognized at common law' and 'does not exist in the Federal Courts.'" Id. (quoting Delozier v. First Nat'l Bank of Gatlinburg, 109 F.R.D. 161, 163 (E.D. Tenn. 1986)). "Additionally, assuming that a state constitution creates a right to privacy in financial records, such state privilege does not preclude discovery of bank records in a federal court suit." Id. (internal quotation omitted).

"The party who resists discovery has the burden to show that discovery should not be allowed, and has the burden of clarifying, explaining, and supporting its objections." Oakes v. Halvorsen Marine Ltd., 179 F.R.D. 281, 283 (C.D. Cal. 1998).

In light of the above, Ms. Chamoun may not assert financial privilege as a shield to discovery. Ms. Chamoun's reference to California law is insufficient to show a privilege preventing the Trustee from obtaining the information requested in the Chase Subpoena. Thus, the Court will not grant the Motion on this basis.

B. Whether the Chase Subpoena is Irrelevant or Overbroad

"Upon motion of the party opposing a subpoena, the court 'must quash or modify a subpoena that . . . subjects a person to undue burden. The party seeking to quash a subpoena has the 'burden of persuasion.'" Id. (quoting Travelers Indem. Co. v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 228 F.R.D. 111, 113 (D. Conn. 2005)). "However, the party issuing the subpoena must demonstrate, in turn, that the information sought is relevant and material to the allegations and claims at issue in the proceedings." Rocky Mountain Medical Management, LLC, v. LHP Hospital Group, Inc., 2013 WL 6446704, at *2 (D. Idaho 2013). "In all controverted cases, it is up to the court to strike a balance among the degrees of relevance of the requested material, the severity of the burden on the subpoenaed person or entity, and the utility of the protective mechanisms provided by the Federal Rules." Id. Pursuant to Rule 26(b)(1)—

Unless otherwise limited by court order, the scope of discovery is as follows: Parties may obtain discovery regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense and proportional to the needs of the case, considering the importance of the issues at stake in the action, the amount in controversy, the parties' relative access to relevant information, the parties' resources, the importance of the discovery in resolving the issues, and whether the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit. Information within this scope of discovery need not be admissible in evidence to be discoverable. (emphasis added).

"Relevant information for purposes of discovery is information reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence." Survivor Media, Inc. v. Survivor Prods., 406 F.3d 625, 635 (9th Cir. 2005) (internal quotation omitted). "District courts have broad discretion in determining relevancy for discovery purposes." Id.

Here, Ms. Chamoun has not met her burden of showing that the Chase Subpoena is unduly burdensome or irrelevant. First, as noted by the Trustee, the production of documents will not burden Ms. Chamoun because Ms. Chamoun is not required to act in response to the Chase Subpoena. Ms. Chamoun's bank will bear the burden of producing the requested documents.

Chapter 7

As to relevance, Ms. Chamoun does not dispute that bank records from January 2016 through July 2016, when Ms. Chamoun and Debtor entered into their marital settlement agreement, are relevant. Instead, Ms. Chamoun asserts that bank records after that time are irrelevant and beyond the scope of discovery. Ms. Chamoun does not articulate why records dated after July 2016 are irrelevant.

In fact, such records are highly relevant to the Trustee's claims against Ms. Chamoun for breach of the Lease, turnover of the Property and unjust enrichment. As explained by the Trustee, the Trustee needs such records to verify whether Ms. Chamoun made required payments under the Lease and, if so, to whom. The information in the bank records directly impacts whether the Trustee can prove up his allegations. Ms. Chamoun did not timely file a reply disputing the Trustee's stated need for the records. As such, Ms. Chamoun not having met her burden, the Court will not quash the Chase Subpoena on the bases of undue burden or irrelevance.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion.

The Trustee must submit an order within seven (7) days.

#9.00 Order to Show Cause Why This Adversary Proceeding
Should Not Be Dismissed for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction or, in the Alternative, Remanded to State Court

Docket 71

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will remand this matter to state court.

I. BACKGROUND

A. The State Court Action and Relevant Pleadings

On January 15, 2020, Any Thy Song Nguyen, Trustee of Mother Nature Trust ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint in state court against United Lender, LLC ("United"), Shawn Ahdoot, Albert A. Ahdoot, Megan E. Zucaro, Helping Others International, LLC ("Debtor"), Western Fidelity Associates, LLC ("Western Fidelity"), American Financial Center, Inc. ("American") and John B. Spear (collectively, "Defendants"). Notice of Removal, Exhibit 2.

On January 21, 2020, Plaintiff filed the operative first amended complaint (the "FAC"), asserting causes of action for: (A) wrongful foreclosure – fraud; (B) fraud and deceit – intentional misrepresentation; (C) negligence; (D) breach of contract; (E) relief based on rescission of contract; (F) quieting title; (G) cancellation of written instruments; (H) declaratory relief; and (I) unfair business practices. Notice of Removal, Exhibit 14. Plaintiff demanded a jury trial. Id. In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges—

Plaintiff was the seller of residential real property located at 6475 Marigayle Circle, Huntington Beach, CA 92648 (the "Huntington Property"). United is the purported holder of a first deed of trust against the Huntington Property; Shawn and Albert Ahdoot are principals and alter egos of United. Debtor was the buyer of the Huntington Property and the trustor or debtor under the first deed of trust encumbering the Huntington Property; Ms. Zucaro is a principal and alter ego of Debtor, as well as a licensed real estate broker. Western Fidelity is the trustee under the first deed of trust, and recorded a Notice of Trustee's Sale with a sale set for January 27, 2020. Mr. Spear is a licensed real estate broker and the "responsible broker" for Ms. Zucaro. Finally, American Financial is the purported holder of a third deed of trust against the Huntington Property. Defendants were agents of one another and co-conspirators.

In March 2019, Plaintiff received a call from Ms. Zucaro, who stated she was a real estate broker interested in buying the Huntington Property. Plaintiff told Ms. Zucaro she would sell the Huntington Property for $2.5 million. However, Ms. Zucaro stated she did not have sufficient funds for the purchase, but would pay $3 million if Plaintiff would carry a promissory note secured by a second deed of trust for one year, while Ms. Zucaro sold other properties. Ms. Zucaro also requested an additional $150,000 commission. Plaintiff sold the Huntington Property to Debtor on these terms and obtained a promissory note from Debtor, secured by a second priority deed of trust, in the amount of $1.2 million.

Subsequently, Debtor did not make any payments to Plaintiff. On July 1, 2019, Debtor obtained a loan from American secured by a third priority deed of trust in the amount of $75,000. On September 18, 2019, United caused Western Fidelity to record a Notice of Default and Election to Sell Under Deed of Trust. On December 20, 2019, United caused Western Fidelity to record a Notice of Trustee's Sale, setting a foreclosure sale for January 27, 2020.

Since then, Plaintiff discovered that United sent a letter to Debtor noting that Debtor and Ms. Zucaro were current on United's loan. Plaintiff also discovered that Defendants have engaged in similar fraudulent conduct related to other real property. As such, Plaintiff believes Defendants acted in concert to steal Plaintiff's equity in the Huntington Property.

Id. On these allegations, Plaintiff seeks, among other relief, rescission of the sale agreement, a judgment that Defendants have no interest in the Huntington Property and monetary damages. Id.

Chapter 7

On March 4, 2020, United filed a cross-complaint against Debtor, Plaintiff, Ms. Zucaro, Mr. Spear and Tri Star Equity Group Corp. (the "Cross-Complaint"), asserting causes of action for: (A) judicial foreclosure of deed of trust; (B) specific performance of assignment of rents; (C) appointment of receiver pursuant to provision in deed of trust; (D) injunctive relief; (E) breach of contract; (F) negligent misrepresentation; (G) fraudulent concealment; (H) negligence; (I) negligent hiring/supervision; (J) conspiracy; and (K) unjust enrichment. Notice of Removal, Exhibit 75. United also demanded a jury trial. Id. In the Cross-Complaint, United alleges—

On April 3, 2019, Debtor submitted to United a request for a loan secured by the Huntington Property. On May 1, 2019, Debtor and United entered into a loan transaction through which United provided $1,957,000 in financing for the purchase and sale of the Huntington Property. Pursuant to the promissory note executed in connection with this transaction, Debtor was to make monthly payments on the first of each month, beginning on June 1, 2019.

Debtor defaulted on the promissory note, which is due and payable in full, in the total sum of $2,234,390.66. Debtor has refused to cure its defaults. In addition, United believes that Debtor is using the Huntington Property as an unlicensed halfway house or sober living facility. United believes the other cross-defendants have conspired with Debtor to defraud United by inflating the sale price and using United's loan to enrich themselves.

Id. On these allegations, United seeks, among other things, sale of the Huntington Property, enforcement of its deed of trust as a first priority deed of trust, specific performance of the deed of trust and a monetary judgment. Id.

B. Removal of the State Court Action and the First OSC

On June 29, 2020, Debtor filed its chapter 11 petition. On July 17, 2020, United removed the state court action to this Court, initiating this adversary proceeding. On July 24, 2020, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause re: Remand (the "First OSC") [doc. 5]. On September 2, 2020, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 69]. David K. Gottlieb was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee"). In response to the First OSC, the Trustee filed a brief opposing remand and asserting that the Huntington Property was a "primary asset" and the outcome of this adversary proceeding would be "critical" to administration of Debtor's estate [doc. 24].

On September 9, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the First OSC. At that time, the Court issued a ruling holding that the applicable factors weighed against remanding this matter to state court (the "First Ruling") [doc. 33]. Taking into account the Trustee's preliminary evaluation and position, the Court stated—

[T]he impact of this proceeding on administration of the estate is significant. The proceeding will impact whether one of Debtor's critical scheduled assets remains property of the estate, as well as the amount of secured claims encumbering the Huntington Property (and asserted as claims against the estate in general). The Complaint, the Cross-Complaint and United's proposed first amended cross-complaint indicate a high degree of relatedness to the main bankruptcy case.

First Ruling, p. 10. In addition, because Plaintiff did not consent to entry of a final order or judgment by this Court, or to jury trial held by this Court, the Court noted the possibility that the United States District Court either would withdraw the reference, or the Court would have to issue a report and recommendation to the District Court. First Ruling, p. 11.

C. Abandonment of the Huntington Property and the Current OSC

On October 13, 2020, the Trustee filed a notice of intent to abandon the Huntington Property, as well as a notice of intent to abandon the estate's interest, claims, rights, and defenses in this adversary proceeding (the "Notices to Abandon") [Bankruptcy Docket, docs. 86, 90]. After hearing opposition to one of the Notices to Abandon, the Court entered an order approving abandonment of the Huntington Property [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 108].

In light of the Notices to Abandon, on October 30, 2020, the Court issued another Order to Show Cause (the "OSC") [doc. 71], asking the parties to brief why this adversary proceeding should not be dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction or, in the alternative, remanded to state court. On November 11, 2020, United filed a response to the OSC [doc. 74], asserting that the Court has subject matter jurisdiction because this proceeding will impact the ability of creditors to recover from the estate, as well as the validity of liens against the Huntington Property. As to remand, United contends that: (A) the state court will have more difficulty than this Court resolving the "adverse conditions" at the Huntington Property; (B) this Court may expeditiously approve the sale of the Huntington Property; (C) other bankruptcy cases may impact the Huntington Property; (D) United prefers the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure related to service; (E) there is no right to a jury trial in a quiet title action; (F) federal courts are faster than state courts; and (G) jury trials in state court are delayed.

On the same day, the Trustee filed a response to the OSC [doc. 78], noting that: (A) creditors impacted by the lawsuit are likely secured creditors; (B) the Trustee believes Debtor's case will be a "no-asset" case, such that unsecured creditors are unlikely to receive a distribution; and (C) in light of the Notices to Abandon, the Trustee will not be pursuing a sale of the Huntington Property.

American also timely filed a response to the OSC [doc. 79], noting concerns about delay and asking the Court to retain jurisdiction over an anticipated motion under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9011 ("Rule") against Plaintiff. Finally, Plaintiff filed a response to the OSC [doc. 80], requesting remand of this matter to state court.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Parties cannot consent to subject matter jurisdiction. Clapp v. Commissioner, 875 F.2d 1396, 1398 (9th Cir. 1989) ("Subject matter jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon the court by consent or waiver."); and In re Marshall, 264 B.R. 609, 619 (C.D. Cal. 2001) ("[I]n so far as the issue is the actual subject matter jurisdiction of the federal courts, rather than just the bankruptcy court's power to enter a final judgment, such jurisdiction cannot be conferred by consent.").

1. Arising Under Jurisdiction

"A matter arises under the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010).

Chapter 7

2. Arising In Jurisdiction

"A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id.

Matters that "arise under or in Title 11 are deemed to be 'core' proceedings" In re Harris Pine Mills, 44 F.3d 1431, 1435 (9th Cir. 1995). Title 28, United States Code, section 157(b)(2) sets out a non-exclusive list of core proceedings, including "matters concerning the administration of the estate," "allowance or disallowance of claims," "objections to discharges," "motions to terminate, annul, or modify the automatic stay," and "confirmation of plans." Bankruptcy courts have the authority to hear and enter final judgments in "all core proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in a case under title 11" 28 U.S.C. § 157\(b\)\(1\); Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 475-76, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 2604, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011).

3. Related to Jurisdiction

Bankruptcy courts also have jurisdiction over proceedings that are "related to" a bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); In re Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d 1189, 1193 (9th Cir. 2005). A proceeding is "related to" a bankruptcy case if:

[T]he outcome of the proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. Thus, the proceeding need not necessarily be against the debtor or against the debtor's property. An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate.

Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d at 1193 (quoting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984) (emphasis omitted)).

At this time, it is questionable whether the Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this matter. This proceeding involves the Huntington Property, and the Trustee has abandoned both the Huntington Property and any interest the estate has in this adversary proceeding. In addition, adjudication of the validity of liens against the Huntington Property will not impact the estate. The Trustee anticipates filing a "no-asset" report; if the Trustee determines that there are no assets to distribute to unsecured creditors, any unsecured claims that may be impacted by this proceeding also will not have an effect on the estate. Nevertheless, because the Trustee has not yet issued a "no-asset" report, the Court may have subject matter jurisdiction over this proceeding based on the possible impact on claims against the estate. Either way, for the reasons discussed below, the Court will remand this matter to state court.

Chapter 7

B. Equitable Remand

"Bankruptcy courts have broad discretion to remand cases over which they otherwise have jurisdiction on any equitable ground." In re Enron Corp., 296 B.R. 505, 508 (C.D. Cal. 2003). 28 U.S.C. § 1452(b) provides, in pertinent part: "The court to which such claim or cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground." "[E]ven where federal jurisdiction attaches in actions 'related to' bankruptcy proceedings, Congress has explicitly provided for courts to find that those matters are more properly adjudicated in state court." Parke v. Cardsystem Solutions, Inc., 2006 WL 2917604 (N.D. Cal. October 11, 2006) (quoting Williams v. Shell Oil Co., 169 B.R. 684, 690 (S.D. Cal. 1994)).

Courts generally consider up to fourteen factors in deciding whether to remand a case to state court. Enron, 296 B.R. at 508. Factors courts should consider in deciding whether to remand are:

- (1) the effect or lack thereof on the efficient administration of the estate if the Court recommends [remand or] abstention;
- (2) extent to which state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues;
- (3) difficult or unsettled nature of applicable law;
- (4) presence of related proceeding commenced in state court or other nonbankruptcy proceeding;
- (5) jurisdictional basis, if any, other than [section] 1334;
- (6) degree of relatedness or remoteness of proceeding to main bankruptcy case;
- (7) the substance rather than the form of an asserted core proceeding;
- (8) the feasibility of severing state law claims from core bankruptcy matters to allow judgments to be entered in state court with enforcement left to the bankruptcy court;

- (9) the burden on the bankruptcy court's docket;
- (10) the likelihood that the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy court involves forum shopping by one of the parties;
- (11) the existence of a right to a jury trial;
- (12) the presence in the proceeding of nondebtor parties;
- (13) comity; and
- (14) the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action.

Id., 508 n.2; see also In re Cytodyn of New Mexico, Inc., 374 B.R. 733, 738 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2007).

Given the Trustee's authorized and effective abandonment of both the Huntington Property and the estate's interest in this adversary proceeding, the factors heavily weigh in favor of remand. In the First Ruling, relying on the Trustee's evaluation of the Huntington Property and this action, as of that time, the Court held that this proceeding would have a significant impact on the estate, and a high degree of relatedness to the main bankruptcy case, because this proceeding involved one of "Debtor's critical scheduled assets," i.e., the Huntington Property. At that time, these factors, coupled with certain other factors, justified retention of this proceeding, despite concerns regarding other factors. The abandonment of the Huntington Property changes the landscape.

Now that the Huntington Property has been abandoned, any claims that impact title to the Huntington Property will not alter the estate. While creditors involved in this proceeding may assert unsecured claims against the estate, the Trustee's updated assessment is that the estate will not have any assets to distribute to such creditors. As such, this proceeding will not have a significant impact on the efficient administration of the estate, and no longer maintains a high degree of relatedness to the main bankruptcy case. Consequently, retaining this adversary proceeding will be a burden on the Court's docket.

In addition, the pleadings assert California law causes of action; under the current circumstances, comity dictates remand of this proceeding. Further, in light of the Notices to Abandon, none of the parties have articulated why any of the causes of action would qualify as "core."

Further, as noted in the First Ruling, Plaintiff requested a jury trial and did not consent to entry of a final judgment by this Court. Although United contends that quiet title causes of action are not entitled to a jury trial, United does not discuss whether Plaintiff is entitled to a jury trial on its remaining claims. In any event, even without entitlement to a jury trial, the balance of factors weighs in favor of remand.

United's additional arguments do not impact this analysis. First, United's arguments that this Court may resolve the adverse conditions at the Huntington Property and expeditiously sell the Huntington Property no longer apply; the Court already approved abandonment of the Huntington Property. As to United's preference for federal rules of procedure or noticing timelines, United has not articulated why the Court should give priority to such a preference over the objection of other parties and in spite of the established factors outlined above. Such preference is not a basis to refrain from equitable remand in the presence of many factors weighing in favor of remand. Further, United's concerns regarding possible future bankruptcy filings involving the Huntington Property are speculative.

There also is no guarantee that this Court will enter judgment or accommodate a jury trial faster than the state court. As noted in the First Ruling, retaining this action likely means the Court would have to issue a report and recommendation to the United States District Court, which would delay entry of a final judgment. While such report and recommendation may be done faster than a state court's entry of judgment, the same constraints on jury trials are present in both state and federal courts. Covid-19 impacts the ability to select and conduct jury trials in federal courts for the same reason it has an effect on jury trials in state court.

Finally, as to American's arguments, American does not appear to contest remand of this matter. Instead, American requests that the Court retain jurisdiction over an anticipated Rule 9011 motion.

Regarding American's contention that Plaintiff is pursuing frivolous claims against American, American may make such arguments before the state court, based on state law. This Court will not make any findings regarding the merits of Plaintiff's claims. The state court may properly adjudicate such substantive issues, and this Court will not issue any rulings, concerning the merits of the claims, or the conduct of the parties, that may have a preclusive effect on the state court.

With respect to American's arguments regarding delay, United was the party that removed this action to this Court, not Plaintiff. In addition, as discussed in the First Ruling, removal was not improper at the time. The delays caused by Covid-19 also are not attributable to Plaintiff. Consequently, the Court will remand this matter to state court.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will remand this matter to state court.

The Court will prepare the Order.

accordance with its Operating Agreement. The Manager shall execute all agreements on behalf of the LLC and make all final decisions, but shall delegate day-to-day work of supervising and completing the Project to [Mr. Schwartz] as the Project Manager.

Control of the Project. The Project shall be controlled by the Manager, which will be responsible for making all decisions concerning the Project, in consultation with the Project Manager, except for those matters which the Manager delegates to the Project Manager. The Manager shall be responsible for handling all funds and finances of the Project and for making all payments which may be required.

Engagement and Duties of Project Manager. The LLC hereby engages [Mr. Schwartz] to provide services with respect to the Project and the Property in accordance with the terms and provisions of this Agreement (the "Services"). Schwartz filed a motion to convert the case to a chapter 7 case (the "Motion to Convert") [doc. 16]. In the Motion to Convert, Mr. Schwartz asserted that he did not consent to the filing of a chapter 11 case, and that his consent was required by the Operating Agreement. Debtor opposed the Motion to Convert [doc. 36].

On August 13, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the Motion to Convert. At that time, the Court issued a ruling noting that Debtor had not adequately addressed whether it had authority to file the chapter 11 petition without Mr. Schwartz's consent. The Court continued the hearing for Debtor and Mr. Schwartz to provide supplemental briefing about the issue.

On August 27, 2020, Mr. Schwartz voluntarily dismissed the Motion to Convert [doc. 45]. On the same day, Debtor, PPL and Mr. Schwartz executed a stipulation to permit this case to continue as a chapter 11 case (the "Stipulation") [doc. 47]. In relevant part, the Stipulation provides—

F. The Voting Members desire to have this bankruptcy case continue and not be dismissed. The Voting Members acknowledge that they disagree with each other on many of the key decisions that are facing the Debtor.

2. The Members agree that LLC Operating Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A, is amended pursuant to Section IX, sub part 9, to provide that Section II, subpart 4, shall be replaced in its entirety and shall now read as follows: The Voting Members along with Jeffrey Golden shall manage the Company and all management decisions of the Company will be made by them jointly as set forth below. Any Voting Member may make a proposal to the others regarding any aspect of the operations of the Company. If the Voting Members are unable to agree on any decision or proposal made by either of them to the other, Jeffrey Golden shall be and hereby is given the power to attempt to mediate and if necessary, to vote on the proposal and thus "break the tie."

meeting to discuss the issue. Mr. Golden will meet with the Voting Members with or without counsel as they choose and try to help them reach an agreement. If they do not reach an agreement, Mr. Golden is authorized to make the decision on the particular proposal as he sees fit.

7. The Voting Members agree to list the property for sale with an agent to be determined either by themselves or with Mr. Golden casting the deciding vote. The Members also agree to file a Plan on time to continue the case as chapter 11.

On September 17, 2020, the Court entered an order approving the Stipulation [doc. 60]. On November 6, 2020, Mr. Schwartz filed the Motion [doc. 68]. In the Motion, Mr. Schwartz contends that Mr. Vanjani, Mr. Golden and Mr. Schwartz attended a meeting and made several decisions regarding the sale of the Property. According to Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Vanjani did not agree to a number of decisions made by Mr. Golden and Mr. Schwartz. Mr. Schwartz asserts that, subsequent to this meeting, Mr. Vanjani claimed that Mr. Schwartz is not a voting member of Debtor and, as such, should not have a say in decisions regarding Debtor. As such, Mr. Schwartz requests an order enforcing the Stipulation.

On November 13, 2020, PPL filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 81]. In the Opposition, PPL argues that, pursuant to the PDA, PPL has the sole right to make decisions on behalf of Debtor. PPL also asserts that the Stipulation may be terminated at any time, and, as the sole voting member, PPL has the authority to remove Mr. Golden as a "provisional director."

II. ANALYSIS

Mr. Schwartz asserts that judicial estoppel prevents PPL from arguing that Mr. Schwartz is not a voting member. In response, PPL argues that issue preclusion (a different doctrine) does not apply. Neither type of estoppel is pertinent to the dispute between the parties. Judicial estoppel applies where a "party has succeeded in persuading a court to accept that party's earlier position, so that judicial acceptance of an inconsistent position in a later proceeding would create the perception that either the first or the second court was misled." New Hampshire v. Maine, 532 U.S. 742, 750-51, 121 S.Ct. 1808, 1815, 148 L.Ed.2d 968 (2001) (internal quotations omitted). Here, PPL has not previously argued that Mr. Schwartz is a voting member of Debtor. In addition, although the parties refer to Mr. Schwartz as a voting member in the Stipulation, prior to execution of the Stipulation, the parties did not brief whether Mr. Schwartz qualifies as a voting member or ask for a legal determination from this Court regarding that issue. Thus, neither party "succeeded in persuading [the Court] to accept" the position that Mr. Schwartz is a voting member.

For similar reasons, issue preclusion also does not apply to this dispute. "[C]ollateral estoppel applies only where it is established that... (1) the issue necessarily decided at the previous proceeding is identical to the one which is sought to be relitigated; (2) the first proceeding ended with a final judgment on the merits; and (3) the party against whom collateral estoppel is asserted was a party or in privity with a party at the first proceeding." Hydranautics v. FilmTec Corp., 204 F.3d 880, 885 (9th Cir. 2000). Here, regarding the issue of Mr. Schwartz qualifying as a voting member, the Court has not entered a final order on the merits. The Court did not make a final decision in response to the Motion to Convert because Mr. Schwartz withdrew the Motion to Convert and the parties settled by executing the Stipulation. In addition, the Court's entry of an order approving the Stipulation was not a decision on the merits; the Court merely approved the parties' agreement.

Rather than the doctrines of judicial estoppel or issue preclusion, the parties' own agreements govern the outcome of this dispute. PPL asserts that the PDA designates PPL as the sole voting member of Debtor. While there is no language in the PDA regarding voting rights, the PDA does designate PPL as the manager of Debtor, with authority to "execute all agreements on behalf of the LLC and make all final decisions...." Although this language appears to have assigned decision-making authority to PPL, other portions of the PDA delegate managerial and supervision authority to Mr. Schwartz. For instance, Mr. Schwartz is defined as the "manager for all improvements to the Property... to oversee and supervise" improvements and the sale of the Property. Other provisions in the PDA require PPL to consult with Mr. Schwartz regarding the sale of the Property. Thus, at least as concerns the parties' dispute over the sale of the Property, it is not clear that the PDA prohibits Mr. Schwartz from providing his input.

Nevertheless, even if the PDA stated that PPL was the sole voting member of Debtor, the parties subsequently amended the Operating Agreement to explicitly designate Mr. Schwartz a manager and voting member of Debtor. First, the Operating Agreement allowed for amendments or modifications by a written agreement signed by all members of Debtor. The same is true for the PDA; the PDA may be modified in writing signed by the parties to the PDA. Thus, the Stipulation properly amends the Operating Agreement and modifies the rights set forth in the PDA because it is signed by both PPL and Mr. Schwartz and explicitly states, in writing, that the parties intend to make Mr. Schwartz a manager with voting rights. [FN1].

Next, there is no ambiguity to the language in the Stipulation: Mr. Schwartz and PPL agreed to provide both Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Golden management rights and to give Mr. Schwartz voting power, with Mr. Golden providing the tiebreaker vote if needed. Both the original Operating Agreement and the PDA predate the Stipulation; as the most recent agreement executed by the parties, the language in the Stipulation controls over any language in the original Operating Agreement or PDA. See Frangipani v. Boecker, 64 Cal.App.4th 860, 863 (Ct. App. 1998) ("Where there is an inconsistency between two agreements both of which are executed by all of the parties, the later contract supersedes the former.").

PPL asserts that referring to Mr. Schwartz as a voting member in the Stipulation is insufficient to give Mr. Schwartz voting rights. However, notwithstanding the fact that PPL does not offer a reasonable alternative interpretation of such language, the Stipulation explicitly provides Mr. Schwartz management rights. See Stipulation, p. 3 ("The Voting Members along with Jeffrey Golden shall manage the Company and all management decisions of the Company will be made by them jointly....") (emphasis added). PPL bases its own voting rights on the language in the PDA that provided PPL management rights over Debtor. As such, the Court's interpretation of the Stipulation is not founded solely on the reference to Mr. Schwartz as a voting member, but also on the language designating Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Golden managers of Debtor.

Moreover, although Mr. Vanjani argues that he did not intend to provide Mr. Schwartz voting rights, Mr. Vanjani acknowledges that he signed the Stipulation to accomplish his own goal, i.e. to prevent conversion or dismissal of this case. This goal also is stated in the Stipulation. As such, Mr. Vanjani benefitted from the Stipulation, and the unambiguous compromise to allow Mr. Vanjani to retain that benefit was to provide voting and management rights to Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Golden. In addition, Mr. Vanjani's comments regarding Debtor's counsel are not pertinent to this issue; Debtor's counsel did not represent Mr. Vanjani and/or PPL, and neither Mr. Vanjani nor PPL elected to hire counsel prior to execution of the Stipulation. Not being represented by counsel is not grounds to nullify a valid agreement between the parties.

PPL also argues that the Stipulation "can be terminated at any time," but provides no law in support of this assertion. Instead, PPL appears to rely on the fact that the Stipulation does not contain a provision that it remains effective for a certain period of time. However, the lack of a provision regarding expiration of the Stipulation leads to the opposition conclusion: that the Stipulation permanently amends the Operating Agreement to add the language regarding Mr. Schwartz's and Mr. Golden's roles.

Finally, PPL asserts that Mr. Schwartz breached the terms of the Stipulation by failing to communicate with PPL in the manner outlined in the Stipulation. However, PPL has not moved for enforcement of the Stipulation, or otherwise argued in a properly noticed motion that Mr. Schwartz breached the terms of the Stipulation. Having set forth no valid reason to disregard the Stipulation, the Court will instruct PPL to comply with the terms of the Stipulation.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant the Motion.

Mr. Schwartz must submit an order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. PPL mentions that Mr. Golden has not signed the Stipulation. However, the Operating Agreement and the PDA require only that Mr. Schwartz and PPL must sign an agreement modifying or amending those documents. Thus, the signatures by Mr. Schwartz and PPL are sufficient.

#12.00 Motion to approve application to employ Todd Wohl as debtor's real estate agent and related listing agreement

Docket 72

Tentative Ruling:

Many of the issues mentioned by Pacific Precision Laboratories, Inc. ("PPL") in its response concern the debtor's motion to enforce the stipulation between PPL and David Schwartz, not to the proposed employment of the real estate agent.

As to PPL's opposition to the listing price, the debtor's reply indicates that the real estate agent relied on, among other things, an appraisal valuing the subject property at $7.57 million. In light of this information, PPL has not articulated why the Court should question the debtor's business judgment and the assessment of the debtor's proposed real estate agent.

In addition, PPL's assertion that Nelson Shelton Real Estate ("NSRE") may be entitled to a commission, based on an executed postpetition listing agreement, is inaccurate. The Court has not entered an order approving the employment of NSRE, or approving the payment of any compensation to NSRE.

Todd Wohl has not signed the declaration of disinterestedness. The debtor must file a signed declaration of disinterestedness. If the debtor files the signed declaration, the Court will grant the motion employing Mr. Wohl as real estate broker.

fr. 11/18/20

Docket 44

Tentative Ruling:

Grant in part and deny in part.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 9, 2019, Peter M. Seltzer ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On December 26, 2019, the Court entered an order converting this case to a chapter 7 case [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 98].

On December 16, 2019, Darren Kessler filed a complaint against Debtor, initiating this adversary proceeding. On May 12, 2020, Mr. Kessler filed the operative first amended complaint against Debtor (the "FAC") [doc. 15], requesting denial of Debtor's discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(5) and an exception to discharge under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2), (a)(4) and (a)(6).

On October 7, 2020, Mr. Kessler filed a motion for summary judgment, requesting judgment on his claims under 11 U.S.C. § 727 (the "Motion") [doc. 44] or partial summary adjudication. Debtor timely opposed the Motion [doc. 52].

A. The Original Schedules and Statement of Financial Affairs

On July 21, 2019, Debtor filed his original set of schedules and statements (the "Original Schedules") [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 10]. Debtor signed the Original Schedules under penalty of perjury. Undisputed Fact from Debtor's Responsive Separate Statement ("Undisputed Fact") [doc. 52], ¶ 7. In his schedule A/B, Debtor identified real and personal property totaling $7,098,581, including a fee simple interest in real property located at 4179 Prado de la Puma, Calabasas, CA 91302 (the "Calabasas Property"). Debtor noted that the Calabasas Property "is in disrepair because of smoke damage caused by the fire in November 2018...."

In the Original Schedules, Debtor also identified, among other things: (A) a Chase checking account with $121,000, which Debtor stated was "held in trust for insurance proceeds for property damage to house and furniture;" (B) a Merrill Lynch account with $435,967, which Debtor stated was encumbered; and (C) a Frost IRA with $69,678 [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 10].

In his Statement of Financial Affairs ("SOFA"), filed with the Original Schedules, Debtor indicated that: (A) in 2019, he received no income from employment or operation of a business; (B) in 2018, he received $250,000 from employment; (C) within 90 days before he filed for bankruptcy, he did not make any transfers within the scope of Item 6; (D) within one year before he filed for bankruptcy, he made no payments to insiders within the scope of Items 7 or 8; (E) within two years before he filed for bankruptcy, he did not give any gifts within the scope of Items 13 and 14; (F) within one year before he filed for bankruptcy, he did not lose anything because of theft, fire, other disaster or gambling; (G) within two years before he filed for bankruptcy, he did not make any transfers within the scope of Item 18; and (H) within four years before he filed for bankruptcy, he was a member of three business entities: ITM, 2305 LLC and Jakdyl LLC. Undisputed Fact, ¶ 13.

B. The § 341(a) Meeting of Creditors and Mr. Kessler's Discovery

On August 15, 2019, Debtor appeared for his § 341(a) meeting of creditors (the "Meeting of Creditors"), where he testified under oath regarding his assets and liabilities. Undisputed Fact, ¶ 14. Subsequently, Mr. Kessler conducted discovery; specifically, from August 26, 2019 through September 26, 2019, Mr. Kessler filed several motions to examine, under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("Rule") 2004, Debtor and several other entities (collectively, the "Rule 2004 Examinations") [Bankruptcy Docket, docs. 21, 22, 36, 45, 47, 50]. With the exception of the motion to examine Debtor, which the Court denied based on Mr. Kessler's initiation of this adversary proceeding against Debtor, the Court entered orders granting Mr. Kessler's requests for Rule 2004 Examinations [Bankruptcy Docket, docs. 39, 40, 48, 52, 54].

Chapter 7

Documents obtained by Mr. Kessler, coupled with Debtor's testimony at the Meeting of Creditors, revealed the following:

i. Transfers from the accounts of 2305 LLC and ITM

At the Meeting of Creditors, the U.S. Trustee (the "UST") asked questions about Debtor's interests in 2305 LLC and ITM. Regarding his interest in 2305 LLC, Debtor testified that the company had approximately $35,000 in an account, and that it was Debtor's personal LLC that he used for various businesses. Undisputed Fact, ¶¶ 21-22; Declaration of Craig G. Margulies ("Margulies Declaration") [doc. 46], ¶ 4, Exhibit A, 22:19-24. As to ITM, Debtor testified that he set up the company to receive his salary from ACC Enterprises, LLC ("ACC Enterprises") in 2018, but that ITM was "being let go" because he no longer worked for ACC Enterprises. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit A, 23:8-13.

During the chapter 11 portion of this case, monthly operating reports ("MORs") filed by Debtor reflected that Debtor maintained an account under the name of 2305 LLC (the "2305 Account") and an account under the name of ITM (the "First ITM Account"). Undisputed Fact, ¶ 39. For instance, on September 18, 2019, Debtor filed his July 2019 MOR [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 41], which showed that 2305 LLC maintained a bank account with Wells Fargo (the "2305 Account").

On October 31, 2019, after Debtor had filed the July 2019 MOR, Mr. Kessler filed a Rule 2004 motion to examine Wells Fargo [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 61]. The bank statements from Wells Fargo reveal the following prepetition transfers from the 2305 Account: (A) on February 26, 2019, a wire transfer to Fidelity National Title in the amount of $50,000; (B) on March 18, 2019, a wire transfer to Etw Management in the amount of $150,000; (C) on April 19, 2019, a wire transfer to Harris Ritoff in the amount of $100,000; (D) on May 20, 2019, two withdrawals in the amounts of $28,000 and $7,000; and (E) on May 28, 2019, a withdrawal in the amount of $4,000. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 12, Exhibit D.

Debtor's July 2019 MOR, filed on September 18, 2019 [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 41], also showed that ITM maintained a bank account with Frost Bank, ending in x0639 (the "First ITM Account"). On September 26, 2019, Mr. Kessler filed a Rule 2004 motion to examine Frost Bank [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 50]. Subsequently, Mr.

Kessler obtained bank statements from Frost Bank regarding a different bank account, ending in x0647 (the "Second ITM Account" and, together with the First ITM Account, the "ITM Accounts"). Margulies Declaration, ¶ 13, Exhibit E.

The bank statements show that, in January 2019, the First ITM Account had $73,823.80 and the Second ITM Account had $809,850.56. Id. In July 2019, shortly before the petition date, the First ITM Account had $37,449.76 and the Second ITM Account had $12.53. Id. Mr. Kessler also references the following transfers: (A) on August 27, 2018, Debtor transferred $800,000 from the First ITM Account to the Second ITM Account; (B) on February 7, 2019, Debtor wired $10,000 from the Second ITM Account to the 2305 Account; (C) on February 12, 2019, Debtor wired $500,000 from the Second ITM Account to Fidelity National Title; (D) on March 13, 2019, Debtor transferred $170,000 from the Second ITM Account to the First ITM Account; (D) on March 15, 2019, Debtor wired $170,000 from the First ITM Account to the 2305 Account; (E) on March 15, 2019, Debtor transferred $60,000 from the Second ITM Account to the First ITM Account; (F) on May 13, 2019, Debtor transferred $20,000 from the Second ITM Account to the First ITM Account; and (G) on May 28, 2019, Debtor transferred $45,431.68 from the Second ITM Account to the First ITM Account. Margulies Declaration, ¶¶ 13, 16, Exhibits E, G. Prior to and during the chapter 11 portion of Debtor's bankruptcy case, Debtor used the 2305 Account and the First ITM Account to pay most of his personal expenses, such as gas, restaurants, travel, utilities and car payments. UF, ¶ 40.

ii. The Harris Transfer

At the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor testified that he had never provided anyone money for the purchase of real property. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit A, 30:6-17. When questioned about an individual named Neal Harris, Debtor responded that Mr. Harris was a former employee of ACC Enterprises. Id., 31:6-9. Debtor also testified he was not suing Mr. Harris. Id., 10-12.

The bank statements from Frost Bank show that, in February 2019, Debtor transferred a total of $550,000 from the 2305 Account and the Second ITM Account to Fidelity National Title in Las Vegas, Nevada. Margulies Declaration, ¶¶ 12-13, 16, Exhibits D-E, G. The outgoing wire transfer receipt included a memo line that read "sale/purchase of property." Margulies Declaration, ¶ 16, Exhibit G.

In two gift letters regarding this "sale/purchase of property" (the "Gift Letters"), Debtor indicated the funds were a gift to be applied toward the purchase of real property located at 4201 San Alivia Court, Las Vegas, NV (the "LV Property"). Margulies Declaration, ¶ 18, Exhibit H. Despite contributing 30% of the purchase price, the LV Property was not acquired in Debtor's name, or in the name of one of Debtor's businesses. Undisputed Fact, ¶ 70. Instead, the LV Property was purchased in the name of Neal and Francesca Harris. Id. The Gift Letters stated that Mr. and Mrs. Harris are Debtor's nephew and niece. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 18, Exhibit H.

iii. The Fire Damage and Insurance Proceeds

During the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor testified that the Calabasas Property was damaged by the Woolsey Fire, and that Debtor had submitted a claim with his insurance company. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit A, 9:21 – 10:8. When asked by the UST about the claim, Debtor stated that the insurance company had accepted "some things" but that Debtor was in the process of negotiating reimbursement for other things. Id., 10:18-25. Debtor further testified that the funds were "not [his] money," and that he placed the insurance proceeds in "the debtor account... to pay for all the construction workers to do all the different work." Id., 11:1-6.

Through discovery, Mr. Kessler obtained bank statements from Chase Bank for an account in Debtor's name, ending in x7875 (the "Chase Account"). Margulies Declaration, ¶ 9, Exhibit B. The Chase Account reflected that, in May 2019, Debtor made deposits from Nat Gen Premier totaling approximately $178,750. Id. The statements also show that, on May 29, 2019, Debtor transferred $40,000 to Tactical Mitigation Services. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 15, Exhibit F. In addition, on July 8, 2019, Debtor withdrew $9,866.64 from the Chase Account. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 9, Exhibit B. On July 22 and July 23, 2020, i.e., postpetition, Debtor withdrew another $126,000 and $2,832.76, respectively. Id.

C. The Amended Schedules

Regarding the businesses, at the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor's counsel had noted that the UST identified a total of 20 businesses about which the UST needed additional information. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit A, 4:1-5. Debtor's counsel stated that, of the 20 businesses, Debtor identified "two or three businesses" that would be added to an amended SOFA. Id., 4:11-13. During the Meeting of Creditors, the UST and Debtor also discussed ACC Enterprises and ACG Industries, Inc. ("ACG Industries"). Id., 4:22-25, 19:1-15.

In the Amended Schedules, Debtor stated that he held an interest in ACG Industries and that ACG Industries was shut down in 2017. Undisputed Fact, ¶ 83. Debtor also testified, at the Meeting of Creditors, that he shut down ACG Industries in 2017. Undisputed Fact, ¶ 84. In the Amended Schedules, Debtor also indicated that, in 2018, he made $250,000 in employment income and $6,850 in income from operating a business. Undisputed Fact, ¶ 82.

The Second ITM Account's bank statements show that, in March 2018, this account received $20,000 from ACC Enterprises. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 13, Exhibit E, p. 104. The bank statements also show that, from March 2018 through May 2018, this account received wire transfers totaling $925,000. Id., pp. 104, 106, 109.

On January 9, 2020, Debtor filed another amended schedule A/B [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 106], adding an interest in Resurgent valued at $9,500.

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Motion for Summary Judgment Standard

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 56, applicable to this adversary proceeding under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure ("FRBP") 7056, the Court shall grant summary judgment if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2509-10, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986); Rule 56; FRBP 7056. summary judgment; the requirement is that there be no genuine issue of material fact." 477 U.S. at 247–48 (emphasis in original).

As to materiality, the substantive law will identify which facts are material. Only disputes over facts that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will properly preclude the entry of summary judgment. Factual disputes that are irrelevant or unnecessary will not be counted. . . . [S]ummary judgment will not lie if the dispute about a material fact is "genuine," that is, if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party. . . .

Id. at 248–50 (internal citations omitted). Additionally, issues of law are appropriate to be decided in a motion for summary judgment. See Camacho v. Du Sung Corp., 121 F.3d 1315, 1317 (9th Cir. 1997).

The initial burden is on the moving party to show that no genuine issues of material fact exist based on "the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2553, 91 L.Ed. 265 (1986). Once the moving party meets its initial burden, the nonmoving party bearing "the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue" must identify facts beyond what is contained in the pleadings that show genuine issues of fact remain. Id., at 324; see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256 ("Rule 56(e) itself provides that a party opposing a properly supported motion for summary judgment may not rest upon mere allegation or denials of his pleading, but must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.").

The nonmoving party meets this burden through the presentation of "evidentiary materials" listed in Rule 56, such as depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations, stipulations, admissions, and interrogatory answers. Id. To establish a genuine issue, the nonmoving party "must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts." Matsushita Electrical Industry Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586, 106 S.Ct. 1348, 1356, 89 L.Ed.2d 538 (1986); see also Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252 ("The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the [nonmoving party's] position will be insufficient."). Rather, the nonmoving party must provide "evidence of such a caliber that 'a fair-minded jury could return a verdict for the [nonmoving

B. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A)

Regarding objections to discharge, as a whole, "[i]n keeping with the 'fresh start' purposes behind the Bankruptcy Code, courts should construe § 727 liberally in favor of debtors and strictly against persons objecting to discharge. This does not alter the burden on the objector, but rather means that actual, rather than constructive, intent is required on the part of the debtor." In re Retz, 606 F.3d 1189, 1196 (9th Cir. 2010) (internal citations and quotations omitted).

11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A) provides that a court shall grant a debtor a discharge unless "the debtor, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor or an officer of the estate charged with custody of property ... has transferred, removed, destroyed, mutilated, or concealed ... property of the debtor, within one year before the date of the filing of the petition...."

"Two elements comprise an objection to discharge under § 727(a)(2)(A): 1) a disposition of property, such as transfer or concealment, and 2) a subjective intent on the debtor's part to hinder, delay or defraud a creditor..." In re Beauchamp, 236 B.R. 727, 732 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). The transfer must occur within one year prepetition. In re Lawson, 122 F.3d 1237, 1240 (9th Cir. 1997).

In examining the circumstances of a transfer under § 727(a)(2), certain "badges of fraud" may support a finding of fraudulent intent. These factors, not all of which need be present, include (1) a close relationship between the transferor and the transferee; (2) that the transfer was in anticipation of a pending suit; (3) that the transferor debtor was insolvent or in poor financial condition at the time; (4) that all or substantially all of the debtor's property was transferred; (5) that the transfer so completely depleted the debtor's assets that the creditor has been hindered or delayed in recovering any part of the judgment; and (6) that the debtor received inadequate consideration for the transfer. In re Retz, 606 F.3d at 1200.

Intent may be inferred from the actions of the debtor. In re Devers, 759 F.2d 751, 753-54 (9th Cir. 1985). The necessary intent under § 727(a)(2) "may be established

i. Transfers from the 2305 Account

With the exception of the $50,000 wired to Fidelity National Title from the 2305 Account in February 2019, Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proving that Debtor concealed or transferred property of Debtor. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 12, Exhibit D. As to the $50,000, the Gift Letters state that the funds were gifted to Debtor's relatives, and named Debtor, personally, as the donor. Margulies Declaration, ¶ 18, Exhibit H. Debtor also indicated in the Amended Schedules that he has a personal claim against Mr. Harris for $550,000 [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 56]. Thus, the Court will adjudicate that Debtor transferred $50,000 of his property from the 2305 Account within one year of the petition date.

While the bank statements for the 2305 Account show the other transfers to which Mr. Kessler refers, there is no showing that the transferred funds belonged to Debtor, instead of to the company. For instance, Mr. Kessler has not proven that Debtor otherwise would be entitled to receive the transferred funds. Although Mr. Kessler contends that the 2305 Account was used as Debtor's personal account, at the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor testified that he used 2305 LLC for "various businesses." Margulies Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit A, 22:19-24. The record does not include any contradictory evidence showing that the referenced transfers were not used for business purposes. As such, with the exception of the $50,000 transfer to Fidelity

National Title in February 2019, it is not clear that the transfers from the 2305 Account were transfers of property of Debtor.

Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proving that Debtor made these transfers with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors. In the Motion, Mr. Kessler states, in a conclusory fashion, that Debtor transferred funds between his business accounts, such as the 2305 Account and the ITM Accounts, in an effort to shield funds from creditors. However, Mr. Kessler has not provided any circumstantial evidence demonstrating intent, and has not provided evidence showing the presence of the applicable badges of fraud.

As evidence of the requisite intent, Mr. Kessler also points to the fact that Debtor did not schedule the 2305 Account in his Original Schedules or Amended Schedules. However, Mr. Kessler has not identified where in the schedules or statements Debtor was required to identify an account in the name of one of his businesses. In his Original Schedules, Debtor did identify 2305 LLC as a business in which he had an interest. In addition, Debtor attached bank statements from the 2305 Account to his first filed MOR. Mr. Kessler's referenced pattern of transfers from one account to another may be a factor in demonstrating intent at trial. However, at this summary judgment stage, the evidence as a whole is not so strong as to yield "no plausible conclusion but that the debtor's intent was fraudulent." Marrama, 445 F.3d at 522.

ii. Transfers from the ITM Accounts

The same issues are present with respect to the transfers from the ITM Accounts. Although Debtor testified at the Meeting of Creditors that ITM was a vehicle for receiving his salary from ACC, the bank statements reflect funds wired from other, unspecified sources. As such, with the exception of the $500,000 transfer to Fidelity National Title, it is not clear that the transfers from the ITM Accounts were of Debtor's property.

However, the Court will adjudicate that the $500,000 gift to his relatives, evidenced by the Gift Letters in which Debtor was named as the donor, was a transfer of Debtor's property within one year of the petition date. As noted above, Debtor himself stated in his Amended Schedules that he has a personal claim against Mr. Harris, worth $550,000.

Nevertheless, Mr. Kessler has not proven that Debtor acted with the requisite intent. Mr. Kessler has not provided evidence of the relevant badges of fraud, or other circumstantial evidence that would prove intent by a preponderance of the evidence.

Further, Mr. Kessler notes that Debtor did not identify the ITM Accounts in his Original Schedules or Amended Schedules. As with the 2305 Account, Mr. Kessler has not identified where in the schedules or statements Debtor was required to list accounts in the name of his businesses; Debtor identified ITM in his Original Schedules. Once again, while the pattern of transfers may be a factor evidencing intent after trial, at this time, Mr. Kessler has not satisfied his burden of proof.

iii. The Harris Transfer

As discussed above, the Court will adjudicate that, within one year of the petition date, Debtor transferred $550,000 of his property to the Harrises.

At this time, the Court will not enter judgment as to intent. Certain badges of fraud may be present, such as a close relationship between Debtor and the Harrises (if they are related), and that Debtor may have received inadequate consideration for the transfer, if it was a gift. Mr. Kessler also references certain inconsistencies between Debtor's testimony at the Meeting of Creditors, the Gift Letters and the Amended Schedules.

However, Mr. Kessler has not provided any evidence as to the remaining factors. In addition, the Court will need to assess Debtor's credibility regarding the inconsistencies noted above, which must be done at trial.

iv. The Burr Transfer

The Court will adjudicate that, within one year of the petition date and according to Debtor's own Amended Schedules, Debtor transferred $50,000 to Mr. Burr. However, Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proving that Debtor made this transfer with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors.

Mr. Kessler does not provide evidence of any badges of fraud related to this transfer, such as a close relationship between Mr. Burr and Debtor, collection efforts by creditors at the time Debtor transferred the funds, whether the transfer depleted all or substantially all of Debtor's assets or any other factor that would support a finding of intent. Instead, Mr. Kessler merely argues that Debtor's comments regarding this transfer, in the Amended Schedules, do not make sense. This is insufficient to show intent, and an assessment of whether Debtor's testimony "makes sense" requires a credibility determination by the Court. Thus, at this time, the Court will not enter judgment as to this transfer.

v. Concealment of Businesses and Insurance Proceeds

Section 727(a)(2)(A) involves a debtor's prepetition concealment of property. The failure to disclose the businesses and insurance proceeds occurred postpetition, when Debtor filed the Original Schedules and Amended Schedules. As such, these concerns are more appropriately addressed by § 727(a)(4), below.

C. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)

Section 727(a)(4)(A) denies a discharge to a debtor who "knowingly and fraudulently" made a false oath or account in the course of the bankruptcy proceedings. To bring a successful § 727(a)(4)(A) claim for false oath, the plaintiff must show: (1) the debtor made a false oath in connection with the case; (2) the oath related to a material fact; (3) the oath was made knowingly; and (4) the oath was made fraudulently. In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 62 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999). "[A] false oath may involve a false statement or omission in the debtor's schedules." In re Roberts, 331 B.R. 876, 882 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2005), aff'd and remanded on other grounds, 241 F. App'x 420 (9th Cir. 2007).

"A fact is material if it bears a relationship to the debtor's business transactions or estate, or concerns the discovery of assets, business dealings, or the existence and disposition of the debtor's property." Retz, 606 F.3d at 1198 (quoting In re Khalil, 379 B.R. 163, 173 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007)). "A debtor acts knowingly if he or she acts deliberately and consciously." Retz, 606 F.3d at 1198 (quoting Khalil, 379 B.R. at 173) (internal quotation omitted).

Circuit Court of Appeals has described as follows:

The creditor must show that (1) the debtor made the representations; (2) that at the time he knew they were false; (3) that he made them with the intention and purpose of deceiving the creditors; (4) that the creditors relied on such representations; (5) that the creditors sustained loss and damage as the proximate result of the representations having been made.

Roberts, 331 B.R. at 884. Intent usually must be established by circumstantial evidence or inferences drawn from the debtor's course of conduct. Khalil, 379 B.R. at 174 (circumstances might include multiple omissions or failure to clear up omissions).

i. Debtor's 2018 Income

Mr. Kessler contends that Debtor misrepresented the amount of income he received in 2018, and falsely represented that ACG Industries shut down in 2017. The evidence does not support Mr. Kessler's contention. Regarding Mr. Kessler's assertion that Debtor received $905,000 from ACG Industries in 2018, the relevant bank statements actually reflect a $20,000 receipt from ACC Enterprises, not ACG Industries, and $925,000 of transfers from unspecified sources. There is no evidence that Debtor received funds from ACG Industries in 2018, and, as such, no evidence that Debtor misrepresented that ACG Industries shut down in 2017.

Next, Mr. Kessler contends that Debtor testified that he used the ITM Accounts solely to receive salary from ACG Industries, which, in turn, must mean that the receipt of funds into the First ITM Account constituted Debtor's salary from ACG Industries. However, during the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor actually testified that he used the ITM Accounts to receive salary from ACC Enterprises. In addition, the bank statements reflect that Debtor frequently transferred funds from one business account to another. Thus, it is not clear that the receipt of $925,000 came from income or operation of business, as opposed to transfers of existing funds from different accounts. During the time period referenced by Mr. Kessler, the bank statements show only $20,000 received from ACC Enterprises. Consequently, Plaintiff has not demonstrated that Debtor made a false oath as to ACG Industries shutting down in 2017, or with respect to Debtor's stated income in 2018.

ii. The Harris Transfer

The Court will adjudicate that Debtor made a false oath in connection with the Harris Transfer by failing to include the transfer in his Original Schedules, and failing to identify his claim against Mr. Harris in the Original Schedules. In the Amended Schedules, Debtor indicated he was supposed to get investment returns from this transaction, and valued his claim at $550,000. As such, the Court also will adjudicate that the omission was material.

However, Mr. Kessler has not proven that Debtor omitted this information knowingly or fraudulently. As discussed above, in connection with § 727(a)(2)(A), "[w]here intent is at issue, summary judgment is seldom granted." Gertsch, 237 B.R. at 165. To prove intent conclusively, Mr. Kessler would have to show that the record "yields no plausible conclusion but that the debtor's intent was fraudulent." Marrama, 445 F.3d at 522. At this time, the evidence is not so conclusive as to show that Debtor acted knowingly and fraudulently in omitting information about the Harris Transfer. The Court will assess Debtor's credibility at trial.

iii. Failure to Disclose Fire Damage and Insurance Payments

The Court will adjudicate that Debtor did not disclose the prepetition transfers of insurance proceeds in his Original Schedules or Amended Schedules. The Court also will adjudicate that Debtor did not respond to Item 15 of his original SOFA, which calls for information about loss suffered from fire or other disaster. The Court also will adjudicate that these omitted facts were material.

However, Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proving intent. Although Debtor did not respond to Item 15 of the SOFA in his Original Schedules, Debtor stated in his original schedule A/B that the Calabasas Property was "in disrepair because of smoke damage caused by the" November 2018 Woolsey Fire. Thus, Debtor did make certain disclosures about the fire damage. As to the insurance proceeds, Debtor testified at the Meeting of Creditors that the proceeds were "not [his] money," and were meant to be used to pay for construction work. In the Original Schedules, Debtor indicated the insurance proceeds were in a checking account held "in trust" for the purpose of fixing property damage.

Further, at the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor discussed both the fire damages and receipt of certain insurance proceeds. See In re Mereshian, 200 B.R. 342, 347 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1996) (holding that disclosure of transactions not included in schedules at the first § 341(a) meeting of creditors may show lack of intent). In light of these facts negating intent, at this time, Mr. Kessler has not proven that Debtor acted knowingly and fraudulently.

iv. Transfers from the 2305 Account and the ITM Accounts

Mr. Kessler has not demonstrated that Debtor had an obligation to disclose, in his schedules and statements, the specified transfers from the 2305 Account and the ITM Accounts. Given that these accounts are in the name of Debtor's businesses, and because Debtor disclosed both businesses in his Original Schedules, Mr. Kessler has not shown where in the schedules and statements Debtor should have disclosed transfers made by these businesses.

To the extent Mr. Kessler argues the funds actually belonged to Debtor, and not the businesses, Mr. Kessler has not made such a showing. For instance, Mr. Kessler has not demonstrated that the entities were sham entities hiding Debtor's personal funds, or that the transferred funds otherwise would have been paid to Debtor as his income. Although Mr. Kessler makes conclusory statements asserting these companies were "shell" entities, Mr. Kessler has provided no evidence or legal authority in support of this conclusion. Thus, Mr. Kessler has not proven that Debtor made a false oath in connection with the transfers from the 2305 Account and the ITM Accounts.

Even if Debtor made a false oath, Mr. Kessler has not made a showing of intent. Debtor identified 2305 LLC and ITM as businesses in which he had an interest in the Original Schedules. Debtor also attached bank statements from both businesses to his first filed MOR, and discussed both businesses at the Meeting of Creditors. In light of these facts negating intent, Mr. Kessler has not shown, at this time, that Debtor acted knowingly or fraudulently.

v. The Omitted Businesses

The Court will adjudicate that Debtor omitted nine businesses from his Original Schedules. The Court also will adjudicate that the missing information was material, because the information relates to Debtor's business transactions.

However, Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proving intent. In the Amended Schedules, Debtor indicated that the omitted businesses either were shut down or nonoperational, or that Debtor was no longer involved with the business. Mr. Kessler has not provided contradictory evidence. In addition, Debtor openly discussed a few of these businesses at the Meeting of Creditors, prior to any discovery by Mr. Kessler. Given these factors that negate intent, Mr. Kessler has not, at this time, met his burden regarding intent.

D. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5)

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5), a debtor's discharge will be denied if "the debtor has failed to explain satisfactorily, before determination of denial of discharge under this paragraph, any loss of assets or deficiency of assets to meet the debtor's liabilities." Under § 727(a)(5), the objecting party must demonstrate that:

- (1) debtor at one time, not too remote from the bankruptcy petition date, owned identifiable assets; (2) on the date the bankruptcy petition was filed or order of relief granted, the debtor no longer owned the assets; and (3) the bankruptcy pleadings or statement of affairs do not reflect an adequate explanation for the disposition of the assets.

Retz, 606 F.3d at 1205. See also Devers, 759 F.2d at 754 (concluding that debtors could be denied discharge under § 727(a)(5) where they failed to offer a "satisfactory explanation" for the "disappearance" of a tractor they had owned that they did not produce for repossession).

satisfactorily account for the disposition." In re Chu, 511 B.R. 681, 687 (Bankr. D. Haw. 2014) (internal quotation omitted). "This definition of 'satisfactory' is consistent with the basic principle that section 727 must be interpreted in favor of the debtor." Id.

i. The Transfers from the 2305 Account and the ITM Accounts

Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proof regarding the transfers from the 2305 Account and the ITM Accounts. As noted above, with the exception of the $550,000 transferred to the Harrises, Mr. Kessler has not shown that the funds in these accounts belong to Debtor, instead of to ITM or 2305 LLC. Moreover, Mr. Kessler has not demonstrated where in Debtor's schedules or statements Debtor was required to provide an explanation of transfers from the accounts of nondebtor entities.

Moreover, even assuming the assets belong to Debtor, and that Debtor had an obligation to disclose the assets in his schedules and statements, Mr. Kessler has not demonstrated that he received an inadequate response from Debtor regarding the transfers. First, Mr. Kessler has not shown that he actually asked for additional information about the transfers. See In re MacMillan, 2020 WL 3634255, at *3 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. Apr. 9, 2020) (denying summary judgment under 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5) because there was "insufficient evidence that Debtors were ever asked to explain their loss or deficiency of these alleged assets"). Second, the line items from the bank statements related to these accounts include a description of the nature of the transfer.

Even if Debtor did not initially schedule transfers of his property, Mr. Kessler now has the benefit of detailed bank statements. To the extent Mr. Kessler was unclear about where certain funds went, Mr. Kessler has not specified any such line items in the Motion, and there is no indication Mr. Kessler has asked Debtor to clarify the nature of such transfers.

ii. The Insurance Proceeds

Mr. Kessler contends that Debtor transferred approximately $52,000 of the insurance proceeds without providing a satisfactory explanation about the nature of these transfers. First, Mr. Kessler's calculation of transferred funds appears to include the postpetition transfer of $2,832. Section 727(a)(5) applies only to prepetition transfers. In re Choy, 569 B.R. 169, 184-185 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2017).

As to the remaining transfers, Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proving that Debtor provided an unsatisfactory explanation. At the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor indicated the insurance proceeds were being used to pay construction workers. In addition, Mr. Kessler has not provided any evidence that he actually requested additional information about these transfers. As such, Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proof as to the insurance proceeds.

iii. The Harris Transfer

As to the $550,000 transfer to the Harrises, Mr. Kessler asserts that Debtor only disclosed this transfer after discovery by Mr. Kessler. Courts deny debtors their discharge under § 727(a)(5) only if debtors fail to provide a satisfactory explanation "before determination of denial of discharge under this paragraph...." 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(5) (emphasis added). Here, long before Mr. Kessler moved for a determination regarding denial of Debtor's discharge, Debtor disclosed information in the Amended Schedules.

Mr. Kessler also argues that the disclosures regarding the Harris Transfer are not satisfactory. However, Mr. Kessler has not specified what additional information he needs about this transfer. The evidence submitted by Mr. Kessler indicates that Mr. Kessler already has information about the recipients, the use of the funds for purchase of real property and Debtor's statements that the transfer was meant as a business investment. Mr. Kessler has not met his burden of proving that Debtor failed to satisfactorily explain this transfer.

iv. The Burr Transfer

The same problems are present with the Burr Transfer. Once again, Mr. Kessler's argument that Debtor disclosed the Burr Transfer after discovery by Mr. Kessler is irrelevant to whether Debtor made appropriate disclosure before a determination regarding his discharge.

Moreover, although Mr. Kessler argues that Debtor's disclosures regarding the Burr Transfer are not sufficiently specific, Debtor has filled out the information required by schedule A/B and the SOFA. Mr. Kessler has not specified what information is missing. Further, if Mr. Kessler believes he needs additional information about this transfer, there is no evidence that Mr. Kessler has requested such information.

Finally, Mr. Kessler appears to suggest that Debtor did not respond to questions posed by the UST. However, Mr. Kessler's citations to the transcript of the Meeting of Creditors do not support this conclusion. The transcript reflects that Debtor answered the questions that were posed. Thus, as to all the transfers above, the transcript of the Meeting of Creditors does not reflect that Debtor failed to answer any specific question asked by the UST.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will grant partial summary adjudication as set forth above. The Court otherwise will deny the Motion.

Mr. Kessler must submit an order within seven (7) days.

I. BACKGROUND

On May 14, 2020, Thomas A. Perez ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 7 petition. Nancy J. Zamora was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

A. Debtor's Bankruptcy Planning

By early 2019, Debtor was "getting constant, threatening phone calls from various collection agencies." According to Debtor, after exploring the option of getting a reverse mortgage, and being informed that he could not qualify, Debtor decided to seek another solution. Declaration of Thomas A. Perez ("Perez Declaration") [doc. 45], ¶¶ 2-5; see also [doc. 70], Exhibit C, ¶¶ 2-5.

Debtor met with a group called "Legal Experts" to discuss what to do. Id., ¶¶ 4-9. According to Debtor, someone at Legal Experts said that he did not "qualify for bankruptcy" because of the equity in Debtor's house. Then, another individual at Legal Experts, i.e., "Moshe," asked Debtor if he knew a "reliable person of confidence" who could help Debtor and his wife "with some paperwork that would make the BK possible." Id., ¶¶ 9-11. Debtor thought of his sister, Maria Perez. Id., ¶ 10.

Debtor allegedly informed Moshe that Ms. Perez had helped Debtor and his spouse financially throughout the years, but that there was no formal agreement of repayment between the two. Id., ¶ 11. Debtor asserts that, at that time, Moshe advised Debtor to create a third mortgage against the Property in favor of Ms. Perez, and to wait one year before filing a bankruptcy case. Id., ¶ 12. Debtor and his spouse then executed a promissory note and a deed of trust against their home, for the benefit of Ms. Perez. Id., ¶ 13.

B. Debtor's Schedules and Statements

On May 14, 2020, Debtor filed his original schedules of assets and liabilities with his chapter 7 petition. [FN1]. In his schedule A/B, Debtor identified a joint tenancy interest in real property located at 9251 Woodley Avenue, North Hills, CA 91343 (the "Property"). Debtor valued the Property at $625,000. In his schedule C, Debtor claimed a $27,497 exemption in the Property under California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 703.140(b)(5).

In his schedule D, Debtor identified the following encumbrances against the Property: (A) a first priority deed of trust in favor of PHH Mortgage Services ("PHH") in the amount of $343,758; (B) a second priority deed of trust in favor of PHH in the amount of $53,745; and (C) a third priority deed of trust in favor of Maria Rita Perez, Debtor's sister, in the amount of $200,000 (the "Perez DOT"). In schedule D, Debtor noted that the debt underlying the Perez DOT was incurred in May 2019.

C. The § 341(a) Meeting and Amended Schedules

On June 19, 2020, Debtor attended a § 341(a) meeting of creditors (the "Meeting of Creditors"). During the Meeting of Creditors, the Trustee asked Debtor questions about the Perez DOT and requested copies of pertinent documents. Supplemental Declaration of Trustee [doc. 93], ¶ 2, Exhibit 1. Specifically, the Trustee asked Debtor to provide additional information regarding when Ms. Perez funded the underlying loan, why Debtor recorded the Perez DOT when he did and whether Debtor made any payments to Ms. Perez. Id. The Trustee also informed Debtor that a realtor planned to visit and assess the Property. Id. [FN2].

On the same day as the Meeting of Creditors, the Trustee filed a Notice of Assets [doc. 11]. [FN3]. On June 26, 2020, the Trustee filed an application to employ a real estate broker (the "Broker Application") [doc. 15].

According to Debtor, after the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor recognized he was in "trouble" over the Perez DOT. Perez Declaration [doc. 45], ¶ 16; see also [doc. 70], Exhibit C, ¶ 16. As a result, after the Meeting of Creditors, Debtor again consulted Legal Experts for advice. Supplemental Declaration of Thomas Perez (the "Supplemental Declaration") [doc. 94], ¶ 6. According to Debtor, Legal Experts told Debtor to hire another attorney. Id.

On June 30, 2020, Debtor hired his current bankruptcy counsel, Stephen Parry. Supplemental Declaration, ¶ 7; Substitution of Attorney [doc. 17]. According to Debtor, at that time, Mr. Parry advised Debtor to call Ms. Perez and ask her to reconvey the Perez DOT immediately. Supplemental Declaration, ¶ 7. That evening, Debtor called his sister to relay this information to her. Id., ¶ 8. At that time, Ms. Perez stated she would unwind the Perez DOT as soon as possible. Id., ¶¶ 8-9.

On June 30, 2020, Debtor also filed amended schedules, including an amended schedule A/B and an amended schedule C [doc. 18]. In his amended schedule C, Debtor claimed a homestead exemption, under CCP § 704.950, in the amount of $175,000.

In his amended schedule A/B, Debtor set forth a liquidation analysis regarding the Property. Using a value of $599,000.00, which Debtor attributed to the Trustee's proposed real estate broker, and after deducting costs of sale and amounts payable regarding the first and second deeds of trust, Debtor's liquidation analysis stated:

Debtor (age 65) has corrected and amended his Schedule C and claimed his Homestead Exemption pursuant to CCP 704.950, such that the claim Homestead Exemption amount is $175,000. Accordingly, there are no net proceeds available to the Bankruptcy Estate from a forced sale of [the Property].

In the amended schedule A/B, Debtor further noted:

Debtor's sister has a Third Trust Deed lien on this property which constitutes an avoidable preference, having been recorded less than 1 year prior to the filing of this case. Accordingly, said lien was not included in the Chapter 7 liquidation analysis.

D. Emails Between Debtor's Counsel and the Trustee

On July 2, 2020, Mr. Parry sent an email to the Trustee: (A) stating that he had substituted into the case; (B) noting that amended schedules had been filed to address mistakes in Debtor's original schedules; (C) asking if the Trustee needed additional documents from Debtor; (D) inquiring if the Trustee agreed to abandon the Property; and (E) agreeing to pay the Trustee's incurred fees and costs. Declaration of Barry Sisselman [doc. 69], ¶ 5, Exhibit D. On the same day, Ms. Perez called the escrow company to begin the process of reconveying the Perez DOT. Supplemental Declaration, ¶ 9. That day, the Trustee responded to Mr. Parry's email, stating, in relevant part—

Further, as the amended schedules note, the third deed of trust is a preferential transfer that I can avoid and preserve for the benefit of the Estate.

Id. To this email, Mr. Parry responded, on July 2, 2020, that he expected "to have the preferential lien voluntarily released, by the recording of a Full Reconveyance, within the next week to 10 days." Id.

On July 3, 2020, Debtor's counsel sent another email to the Trustee, stating, in relevant part—

We expect that Mr. Perez's sister will be meeting with a title company today to execute a Declaration of Lost Original Note for the filing of a Full Reconveyance of the 3rd Trust Deed Lien. The title company will record the document and will be requested to provide a Certified Copy [of] the Reconveyance. We will provide that to you as soon as we receive it. She is not fighting the fact that it constitutes an avoidable preference.

Id. The record before the Court does not reflect a response to this email by the Trustee.

On July 3, 2020 and July 6, 2020, Ms. Perez visited the escrow company and the title company, respectively, to continue the reconveyance process. Supplemental Declaration, ¶ 9. On July 8, 2020, Ms. Perez completed the reconveyance by signing and notarizing the reconveyance deed. Id. However, according to Debtor, because the County Recorder is closed to the public on account of the pandemic, the recording of the reconveyance deed was delayed until July 15, 2020. Id.

E. Other Pertinent Filings would voluntarily reconvey the Perez DOT, the Trustee filed an adversary proceeding against Ms. Perez, requesting avoidance of the Perez DOT as a preferential transfer and a fraudulent transfer (the "Perez Complaint") [1:20-ap-01067-VK]. On July 7, 2020, the Trustee filed an application to employ counsel to represent the Trustee in this adversary proceeding (the "Litigation Application") [doc. 23].

On July 11, 2020, Debtor filed a motion to convert this case to a chapter 13 case (the "Motion to Convert") [doc. 25]. On August 6, 2020, Debtor filed another set of amended schedules A/B, C, D, E/F, G, I and J [doc. 44]. In this amended schedule A/B, Debtor asserted that, on July 8, 2020, the Perez DOT had been voluntarily released by a full reconveyance.

On August 13, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the Motion to Convert. At that time, the Court issued a ruling denying the Motion to Convert (the "Conversion Ruling") [doc. 52]. In the Conversion Ruling, the Court held that, because "Debtor fabricated a deed of trust in favor of his sister to prevent liquidation of the Property by a chapter 7 trustee," "Debtor engaged in the type of bad faith conduct that warrants denial of his request to convert this case." Conversion Ruling, p. 5. In relevant part, the Court also stated—

Nevertheless, because Ms. Perez voluntarily reconveyed her deed of trust, obviating the need for legal action by the Trustee, the Court questions whether there are sufficient grounds to deny Debtor his homestead exemption. To facilitate a resolution to the dispute over Debtor's homestead exemption, the Court will order Debtor and the Trustee to attend mediation in an attempt to resolve this issue without expending significant estate resources.

Conversion Ruling, p. 5. Subsequently, the parties attended mediation; according to the mediator's certificate [doc. 68], the parties did not reach a resolution regarding Debtor's entitlement to a homestead exemption.

F. The Pending Motion and Objection

On October 12, 2020, Debtor filed a motion for declaratory relief or, in the alternative, a motion for dismissal of Debtor's case (the "Declaratory Relief Motion") [doc. 69]. In the Declaratory Relief Motion, Debtor asserts that, based on the Conversion Ruling, the Trustee cannot object to Debtor's claim of a homestead exemption under 11 U.S.C. §

522(g). Debtor also asserts that the Perez DOT was voluntarily reconveyed without the need for action by the Trustee. In the alternative, Debtor requests dismissal of this case and/or the filing of a no asset report by the Trustee.

On October 15, 2020, the Trustee filed an objection to Debtor's claim of a homestead objection (the "Objection") [doc. 78] and an opposition to the Declaratory Relief Motion [doc. 77]. On October 19, 2020, Debtor filed a reply to the opposition [doc. 80] and an opposition to the Objection [doc. 81]. On October 20, 2020, the Trustee filed an evidentiary objection to Exhibit E, attached to the Declaratory Relief Motion [doc. 84]. On October 28, 2020, the Trustee filed a reply to Debtor's opposition [doc. 88].

II. ANALYSIS

A. Declaratory Relief

Debtor contends that he is entitled to declaratory relief based on the Court's Conversion Ruling. However, the Conversion Ruling did not establish that Debtor is entitled to a homestead exemption under 11 U.S.C. § 522(g). In the Conversion Ruling, the Court merely stated that it "questions whether there are sufficient grounds to deny Debtor his homestead exemption." Conversion Ruling, p. 5 (emphasis added). The Court did not hold that Debtor is entitled to a homestead exemption, or conduct an analysis under the relevant legal standards.

As discussed below, even if the legal action was unnecessary to avoid the Perez DOT, section 522(g) bars claims of exemptions even where a trustee "recovers" property without formal legal action. Thus, the Court will deny Debtor's request for declaratory relief and, in the context of the Trustee's objection to the claimed exemption, address Debtor's arguments regarding his entitlement to a homestead exemption.

B. Request to Dismiss and/or for the Trustee to File a No Asset Report

Debtor has not provided any legal support regarding his requests to dismiss this case or compel the Trustee to file a no asset report. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 707(a), "[t]he Court may dismiss a case under this chapter only after notice and a hearing and only for cause...." (emphasis added). Under 11 U.S.C. § 305(a)(1), "[t]he court, after notice and a hearing, may dismiss a case under this title, or may suspend all proceedings in a case under this title, at any time if... the interests of creditors and the debtor would be better served by such dismissal or suspension."

Debtor has not articulated why dismissal of this case is in the best interest of creditors. At this time, while the Trustee is investigating Debtor's assets, dismissal of this case is premature.

C. Entitlement to Homestead Exemption

Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 522(g)—

Notwithstanding sections 550 and 551 of this title, the debtor may exempt under subsection (b) of this section property that the trustee recovers under section 510(c)(2), 542, 543, 550, 551, or 553 of this title, to the extent that the debtor could have exempted such property under subsection (b) of this section if such property had not been transferred, if—

(1)(A) such transfer was not a voluntary transfer of such property by the debtor;
and

(B) the debtor did not conceal such property; or

(2) the debtor could have avoided such transfer under subsection (f)(1)(B) of this section.

11 U.S.C. § 522(g) (emphasis added).

A debtor's claim to an exemption under § 522(g) is disallowed where: (A) "a debtor voluntarily transfers property in a manner that triggers the trustee's avoidance powers or the debtor knowingly conceals a prepetition transfer or an interest in property;" and (B) "such property is returned to the estate as a result of the trustee's actions directed toward either the debtor or the transferee...." In re Glass, 164 B.R. 759, 764-65 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994), aff'd, 60 F.3d 565 (9th Cir. 1995).

Here, there is no dispute that Debtor voluntarily made the subject transfer, i.e., executed the Perez DOT. Although the parties dispute whether Debtor concealed the transfer, a showing that Debtor voluntarily made the subject transfer is sufficient to satisfy the first prong of the test set forth in Glass. As such, the outcome hinges on the second prong of the test: whether the Trustee's actions resulted in recovering equity in the Property.

In Glass, prepetition, the debtor had quitclaimed his interest in real property to his son; the debtor did not identify the real property in his schedules and statements. Glass, 164 B.R. at 760. At a meeting of creditors, a creditor informed the chapter 7 trustee about the prepetition transfer. Id. In response, the debtor filed amended schedules and claimed a homestead exemption in the property. Id. The chapter 7 trustee objected under § 522(g). Id., at 760-61.

Three days after the chapter 7 trustee filed the objection to the claimed exemption, the debtor's son reconveyed the property to the debtor. Id., at 761. In light of the reconveyance, the bankruptcy court ruled that the debtor was entitled to a homestead exemption because the chapter 7 trustee did not direct any action, formal or informal, against the son to achieve reconveyance of the property to the estate. Id.

The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit (the "BAP") disagreed. The BAP held that "it is not apparent from the word 'recovers' that a formal adversary proceeding against the transferee is needed for a court to deny a debtor's claim of exemption." Glass, 164 B.R. at 763. Specifically, the BAP stated—

In the bankruptcy context, a trustee may "recover" fraudulently transferred property in several ways: by initiating a formal adversary proceeding, by obtaining a judgment in his or her favor in that adversary action, or merely by using the threat of the avoidance powers to convince a debtor or third party transferee to return the property to the estate. Thus, it would appear that the word "recovers" does not necessarily require that the trustee regain possession of the property through a formal legal action.

Id. Under this definition of "recovers," the BAP determined that the chapter 7 trustee had recovered the property into the estate—

We further conclude that the Trustee's actions toward the Debtor directly, and the Debtor's son indirectly, were instrumental in the return of the property to the estate. Three days after the Trustee filed his Objection, the Debtor's son reconveyed the property to the Debtor by quitclaim deed.

Chapter 7

Since the Debtor and the transferee are father and son and the transfer occurred on the heels of the Objection, the only reasonable inference to be drawn is that the Trustee's promise of legal action had a coercive effect on father and son, directly resulting in the return of the property to the estate.

Without the Trustee's intervention and discussions with the Debtor as to why the property should be reconveyed to the estate, there would be no residence in which the Debtor could claim an exemption.

Id., at 765. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the BAP's decision; in relevant part, the Court of Appeals noted that the trustee taken "some action" to recover the subject property—

In this case, following the debtor's failure to properly disclose the property transfer there was not only a "suggestion" by the trustee, but also a filed objection that contained the threat of use of avoidance powers. The trustee is correct that even under Snyder, relied upon by both the bankruptcy court and Glass, he should prevail.

Although the Snyder court indicated it would evaluate whether or not a trustee expended "a significant amount of effort" in a case such as this, id. at 154, there is arguably not a lot of difference between filing a complaint and filing an objection threatening to file a complaint. Snyder also states that "[t]he language of § 522(g) requires that the trustee, or a creditor acting in a similar capacity, have taken some action which has resulted in the recovery of the property." Id. (emphasis added). The filing of the objection containing the threat to use avoidance powers which resulted in the reconveyance of the property to the estate was "some action."

In re Glass, 60 F.3d 565, 569 (9th Cir. 1995) (citing In re Snyder, 108 B.R. 150, 154 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1989)).

At least one court has held that, even where a trustee acts, there should be some relation between the action taken by the trustee and the recovery into the estate. See In re Leach, 595 B.R. 841 (Bankr. D. Idaho 2018). In Leach, the debtors did not accurately identify a vehicle in their schedules; although they remained on title, the debtors also indicated they had given the vehicle to their daughter. Id., at 843. During a § 341(a) meeting of creditors, the mistake came to light. Id. After the meeting of creditors, the debtors did not amend their schedules to correct the mistake in their schedules. Id.

Two months after the discovery of the error, the chapter 7 trustee sent a demand letter to the debtors, requesting turnover of the vehicle. Id. Shortly thereafter, the debtors amended their schedules to correct the description of the vehicle and claim a $7,000 exemption in the vehicle. Id. The trustee then objected to the exemption, arguing the debtors were not entitled to an exemption under § 522(g). Id. After holding that the debtors voluntarily transferred the vehicle to their daughter, thus satisfying the first prong of the Glass test, the bankruptcy court decided the trustee did not recover the vehicle for purposes of § 522(g). Id., at 844-47. In relevant part, the court stated—

In this case, Trustee knew that Debtors were the title owners of the Vehicle as of June 28, 2018, and Debtors were similarly aware of their mistake at that time. Trustee waited nearly two months, but when no effort was made to correct the schedules, he wrote a formal demand letter to Debtors informing them of the Vehicle's inclusion in their bankruptcy estate and demanding turnover, and sought their daughter's name and address so Trustee's auctioneer could pick the car up. Under Glass, this is very close to constituting a "recovery" under § 522(g).

However, the Vehicle was voluntarily returned to the Debtors shortly after July 8, 2018, not due to any action by Trustee, but because their daughter purchased a new car and no longer needed it, as demonstrated by the text messages in evidence. Moreover, as explained above, the transfer at issue was a transfer of possession only, and Debtors' daughter voluntarily returned possession of the Vehicle to them. Thus, both legal title and possession rested with Debtors by the time Trustee wrote the demand letter. Additionally, under the broad definition of estate property under § 541(a), the Vehicle was already included in Debtors' bankruptcy estate, as they legally owned it by virtue of the certificate of title. The original transfer of possession to Debtors' daughter did not confer legal title to her under Idaho law. As such, the only "recovery" Trustee's demand letter brought about was Debtors' act of formally correcting the model year of the Vehicle on their schedules. ...

Chapter 7

While it would not require a particularly expansive reading of Glass to conclude that the facts presented here constitute a recovery for the purposes of § 522(g), the Court is nevertheless mindful of the well-established standard that exemption statutes are to be liberally construed in favor of debtors. As such, the Court interprets "recovers" within the meaning of § 522(g) to not include this instance, where Trustee's actions did not result in the transferred interest being returned to the estate, and in fact occurred subsequent thereto.

Id., at 845-46 (internal citations omitted). [FN4].

Here, the record does not reflect that the Trustee took the type of action contemplated by the Glass decisions. In the BAP's Glass decision, the BAP held that the "only reasonable inference to be drawn is that the Trustee's promise of legal action had a coercive effect" on the debtor and the transferee, which "directly result[ed] in the return of the property of the estate." Glass, 164 B.R. at 765 (emphasis added). Similarly, the Court of Appeals highlighted that "there was not only a 'suggestion' by the trustee, but... a filed objection that contained the threat of use of avoidance powers." Glass, 60 F.3d at 569 (emphasis added). In both decisions, the relevant threat was a threat of legal action that was instrumental to return of property of the estate. The Leach court, relying in part on the liberal construction afforded to exemption statutes, further stressed the importance of causation; there, even where the chapter 7 trustee wrote a formal demand letter, the court held that the transferee voluntarily reconveyed the property for reasons unrelated to the trustee's letter and, as a result, the trustee did not "recover" the property for purposes of § 522(g).

The timeline in this case indicates that the Trustee's threats were not instrumental in the reconveyance of the Perez DOT. The Trustee references the following as actions that led to the recovery of equity in the Property: (A) stating her intent to take action against Ms. Perez at the Meeting of Creditors; (B) filing the Notice of Assets; (C) requesting a certified copy of Debtor's petition; (D) filing the Broker Application; (E) retaining counsel on June 29, 2020; (F) filing a complaint against Ms. Perez; and (G) filing the Litigation Application.

First, some of these actions do not qualify as the type of threat within the scope of § 522(g). For instance, despite the Trustee's assertion, the transcript from the Meeting of Creditors shows that the Trustee did not threaten use of her avoidance powers (or any other legal action). Instead, the Trustee merely asked Debtor questions about the Perez DOT.

Likewise, neither the Notice of Assets nor the Broker Application included any mention of the Perez DOT. In addition, the Trustee does not contend that Debtor, Debtor's counsel or Ms. Perez had any knowledge that the Trustee retained counsel on June 29, 2020 or, if so, for what purpose. The Trustee also does not indicate that her request for a certified copy of Debtor's petition included the type of threat contemplated by the Glass decisions.

Although the Litigation Application and the Perez Complaint qualify as threats to use (or, in the case of the Perez Complaint, the actual use of) the Trustee's avoidance powers, the record does not demonstrate that these actions resulted in the reconveyance of the Perez DOT. Instead, prior to the filing of the Litigation Application and the Perez Complaint, Debtor and Ms. Perez began the process of reconveying the Perez DOT.

In fact, the record before the Court reflects that the first mention of avoidance of the Perez DOT was made by Debtor on June 30, 2020, when Debtor filed his amended schedule A/B [doc. 18]. According to Debtor, on the same day, Debtor's new counsel advised Debtor to unwind the transfer to Ms. Perez immediately. As such, Debtor voluntarily acted before the Trustee communicated an intent to avoid the Perez DOT.

On July 2, 2020, after Debtor filed his amended schedule A/B and began the process of eliminating the Perez DOT, the Trustee emailed Mr. Parry and referenced Debtor's own schedules to note, for the first time, that the Perez DOT was subject to avoidance as a preferential transfer. The Trustee did not explicitly threaten to file a lawsuit. Nevertheless, assuming this email qualifies as a threat under Glass, the threat postdates Debtor's voluntary action. In addition, on July 2, 2020, the date of the Trustee's email, Mr. Parry informed the Trustee that he expected the Perez DOT to be released voluntarily within 10 days. Thus, by the time the Trustee discussed avoidance of the Perez DOT with Mr. Parry, Mr. Parry informed the Trustee the Perez DOT was being reconveyed. There was no further need for the Trustee to act.

Given the "well-established standard that exemption statutes are to be liberally construed in favor of debtors," under these facts, the Trustee's actions did not result in recovery of the equity in the Property. Leach, 595 B.R. at 846. Because the Perez DOT was in the process of being reconveyed prior to the Trustee taking "some action," as required by Glass, the Trustee did not "recover" the equity in the Property for purposes of § 522(g). Glass, 60 F.3d at 569.

3. As of the September 22, 2020 claims bar date, only $13,124.84 of unsecured claims were filed against Debtor's estate.
4. In Glass, the Court of Appeals stated that, notwithstanding the debtor's status as a pro se debtor and the liberal construction afforded exemptions, the debtor was not entitled to an exemption based on the debtor's inequitable actions. That debtor had concealed his fraudulent transfer of his residence to his son in two separate bankruptcy cases, one that the debtor filed under chapter 11 and one that he filed under chapter 7. In contrast, in In re Adeeb, 787 F.2d 1339 (9th Cir. 1986), where the debtor, on advice of counsel, took action prepetition to recover property that he had improperly transferred, the Court of Appeals stated it was good policy to "encourage[] debtors to reveal transfers and to attempt to recover the property previously transferred," and to afford "bankruptcy attorneys who are retained after the debtor has made some mistakes an incentive to see that those

Chapter 7

#4.00 Motion for relief from stay [UD]

JYARUNG LI
VS
DEBTOR

Docket 12

Tentative Ruling:

On November 13, 2020, this case was dismissed. Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to obtain possession of the property.

The order is binding and effective in any bankruptcy case commenced by or against the debtor for a period of 180 days, so that no further automatic stay shall arise in that case as to the property.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Deny request for relief under 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(4). Section 362(d)(4) appears to be inapplicable. The movant is the owner of property, not a creditor whose claim is secured by an interest in the property, as specified in the statute.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

Docket 16

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from the automatic stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to proceed to final judgment in the nonbankruptcy forum, provided that the stay remains in effect with respect to enforcement of any judgment against the debtor and property of the debtor's bankruptcy estate.

Movant may proceed against the non-debtor defendants in the nonbankruptcy action.

Any other request for relief is denied.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

fr. 5/20/20(stip); 6/10/20; 7/15/20; 10/7/20

Docket 4

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will set a deadline of December 23, 2020 for the defendant to file an answer to the complaint. Because the remaining claims are under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2) and (a) (6), it is highly unlikely that the Court will grant a motion for relief from the automatic stay for the parties to pursue this action in state court.

The plaintiff's counsel notes that she intends to file a motion to substitute the plaintiff, who passed away, with the proper party in interest. The plaintiff must file and serve this motion by the applicable deadline set forth in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 25(a).

The Court will continue this status conference to 1:30 p.m. on January 27, 2021. No later than January 13, 2021, the parties must file a joint status report.

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 26(a)(1), which applies to this adversary proceeding pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026, "a party must, without awaiting a discovery request, provide to the other parties," among other things:

- (i) the name and, if known, the address and telephone number of each individual likely to have discoverable information – along with the subjects of that information – that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless the use would be solely for impeachment;
- (ii) a copy--or a description by category and location--of all documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that the disclosing party has in its possession, custody, or control and may use to support its claims or defenses, unless the use would be solely for impeachment.

Rule 26(a)(1)(A)(i)-(ii). In addition, under Rule 26(f)—

- (1) Conference Timing. Except in a proceeding exempted from initial disclosure under Rule 26(a)(1)(B) or when the court orders otherwise, the parties must confer as soon as practicable--and in any event at least 21 days before a scheduling conference is to be held or a scheduling order is due under Rule 16(b).
- (2) Conference Content; Parties' Responsibilities. In conferring, the parties must consider the nature and basis of their claims and defenses and the possibilities for promptly settling or resolving the case; make or arrange for the disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(1); discuss any issues about preserving discoverable information; and develop a proposed discovery plan. all unrepresented parties that have appeared in the case are jointly responsible for arranging the conference, for attempting in good faith to agree on the proposed discovery plan, and for submitting to the court within 14 days after the conference a written report outlining the plan. The court may order the parties or attorneys to attend the conference in person.

Rule 26(f)(1)-(2) (emphasis added).

In accordance with Rule 37(b)(2), which applies to this adversary proceeding pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7037, if a party fails to comply with the Rule 26, a court may sanction the party by, among other things, "prohibiting the disobedient party from supporting or opposing designated claims or defenses, or from introducing designated matters in evidence," "striking pleadings in whole or in part," "rendering a default judgment against the disobedient party" or "treating as contempt of court the failure to obey any order." Rule 37(b)(2)(A)(ii)-(iii), (vi)-(vii).

The parties have not met and conferred. According to the plaintiffs, the defendant refused to meet and confer prior to this status conference. Under the Rules above, the defendant has an obligation to meet and confer, in good faith, with the plaintiffs and to provide the disclosures outlined above. If the defendant does not comply with the Rules, the Court may sanction the defendant using one or more of the methods set forth in Rule 37(b).

The Court will continue this status conference to 1:30 p.m. on January 13, 2021. No later than December 30, 2020, the parties must file a joint status report indicating whether they met and conferred and whether the parties are in compliance with Rule 26.

Appearances are not excused on December 9, 2020, and the parties must appear via CourtCall for the initial status conference set for December 9, 2020 at 1:30 p.m.

Chapter 7

#9.00 Debtor's Motion To Approve Cash Collateral Stipulation And To Surcharge Collateral To Pay Chapter 7 Administrative Fees And Expenses Of The Trustee And His Professionals Pursuant To 11 U.S.C. § 506(c)

Docket 114

Tentative Ruling:

The Court will approve the stipulation between the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee") and United Lender, LLC. In addition, the Court will grant the motion as to the $15,936.25 in rents collected from the real property located at 422 N. Soto Street, Los Angeles, CA (the "Soto Property"). Anh Thy Song Nguyen, Trustee of Mother Nature Trust (the "Mother Nature Trust"), does not have a security interest in the Soto Property or rents generated from the Soto Property and, as a result, does not have standing to oppose the surcharge of rents collected from the Soto Property.

As to the Trustee's request for surcharge of rents collected from the real property located at 6475 Marigayle Circle, Huntington Beach, CA (the "Marigayle Property"), with respect to the pending Motion, the parties have not submitted the deed of trust in favor of the Mother Nature Trust. As such, it is not evident that the deed of trust in favor of the Mother Nature Trust includes an assignment of rents clause that would give the Mother Nature Trust an interest in rents generated by the Marigayle Property.

In addition, in its opposition, the Mother Nature Trust states that "alternatively, [the Trustee] may be allowed to keep the rents he collected in the amount of $2,500...." As such, it is unclear if the Mother Nature Trust objects to the Trustee's surcharge of $2,500 from the Marigayle Property.

DEBTOR

Docket 9

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to obtain possession of the property.

The order is binding and effective in any bankruptcy case commenced by or against the debtor for a period of 180 days, so that no further automatic stay shall arise in that case as to the property.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Any other request for relief is denied.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

#3.00 Motion for relief from stay [AN]

MILLER WOODWORKING INC
VS
DEBTOR

Docket 73

Tentative Ruling:

Grant relief from the automatic stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

Movant states that it seeks recovery only from applicable insurance.

Movant may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to proceed to final judgment in the nonbankruptcy forum, provided that the stay remains in effect with respect to enforcement of any judgment against the debtor and property of the debtor's bankruptcy estate.

Movant may proceed against the non-debtor defendants in the nonbankruptcy action.

The Court will grant the movant's request to annual the automatic stay. The movant's declaration states that any actions taken prior to October 2, 2019, were done without knowledge of the debtor's bankruptcy case.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

#13.00 Motion of Defendants Ruvyn Feygenberg, Michael Leizerovitz, and Sensible Consulting and Management, Inc. to Dismiss First Amended Adversary Complaint

Docket 32

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

I. BACKGROUND

On June 1, 2020, Lev Investments, LLC ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On June 5, 2020, FR L.L.C. ("Plaintiff") removed a state court action against Debtor, Dmitri Ludkovski, Sensible Consulting and Management, Inc. ("Sensible"), Ruvyn Feygenberg and Michael Leizerovitz (collectively, "Defendants") to this Court.

On October 14, 2020, Plaintiff filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC"). In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges—

The lawsuit concerns the real property located at 13854 Albers Street, Sherman Oaks, CA 91401 (the "Property"). In late December 2018, Defendants approached Plaintiff's assignor for a loan of $119,000, secured by the Property. Defendants promised Plaintiff's assignor that the terms of the loan were for half a year with interest of 10% per annum and interest in the amount of $992 due on the first of every month, beginning on February 1, 2019 and continuing to July 1, 2019. On July 1, 2019, the principal and interest would be due in full.

Defendants also promised that, upon the sale of the Property, which would take place no later than half a year from the date of the loan, Plaintiff's assignor would receive a proportional share of the profits from the sale of the Property, minus interest already paid. Based on these promises, Plaintiff's assignor deposited $119,000 to escrow/title for the benefit of Defendants. To date, Plaintiff has not been provided a note or first priority deed of trust, and has not received any interest payments or profits from the Property.

On these allegations, Plaintiff asserts claims for: (A) conversion; (B) negligent bailment; (C) unjust enrichment; and (D) quiet title.

On October 28, 2020, Sensible, Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz filed a motion to dismiss the FAC (the "Sensible Motion") [doc. 32]. On November 16, 2020, Debtor filed a motion to dismiss the FAC (the "Debtor Motion") [doc. 34]. On December 2, 2020, Plaintiff filed an omnibus opposition to the Sensible Motion and the Debtor Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 39]. In the Opposition, Plaintiff added several allegations that were not in the FAC, including that a third party arranged the loan from Plaintiff's assignor, now alleged to be Kevin Moda, to Defendants, and that the alleged loan was meant to help Debtor's contribution to an agreement between Defendants to purchase certain secured debt against the Property. On December 9, 2020, Defendants filed replies to the Opposition [docs. 42, 44].

II. ANALYSIS

A. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986).

"A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). Under the "incorporation by reference" doctrine, a court may look beyond the four corners of the complaint to take into account documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint, but not physically attached, and may do so without converting a Rule 12(b)(6) motion into a motion for summary judgment. Davis v. HSBC Bank Nevada, N.A., 691 F.3d 1152, 1160 (9th Cir. 2012). The court "may treat the referenced document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id., quoting United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Pursuant to Rule 9(b), "[i]n alleging fraud or mistake, a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake. Malice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged..." Neubronner v. Milken, 6 F.3d 666, 671 (9th Cir. 1993). "[M]ere conclusory allegations of fraud are insufficient." Moore v. Kayport Package Exp., Inc., 885 F.2d 531, 540 (9th Cir. 1989).

Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

B. Sufficiency of General Allegations under Rule 8(a)

A complaint must "give the defendant fair notice of what the claim is and the grounds upon which it rests." Twombly, 550 U.S. at 545. "Where a complaint pleads facts that are 'merely consistent with' a defendant's liability, it 'stops short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to relief.'" Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 557). A complaint does not "suffice if it tenders 'naked assertions' devoid of 'further factual enhancement.'" Id. (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 557).

"It is the responsibility of the complainant clearly to allege facts demonstrating that he is a proper party to invoke judicial resolution of the dispute and the exercise of the court's remedial powers." Renne v. Geary, 501 U.S. 312, 316, 111 S. Ct. 2331, 2336, 115 L. Ed. 2d 288 (1991) (internal quotation omitted). In addition, "[i]t is well-settled that where the complaint names a defendant in the caption but contains no allegations indicating how the defendant violated the law or injured the plaintiff, a motion to dismiss the complaint in regard to that defendant should be granted." Dove v. Fordham Univ., 56 F.Supp.2d 330, 335 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (internal quotations omitted).

The FAC does not satisfy Rule 8(a). As set forth by Defendants, the FAC does not include any allegations regarding the identity of the assignor or the terms of the alleged assignment from the assignor to Plaintiff. This information is vital for Defendants to assess, for example, affirmative defenses to liability. See Searles Valley Minerals Operations Inc. v. Ralph M. Parsons Serv. Co., 191 Cal.App.4th 1394, 1402 (Ct. App. 2011) ("The assignee 'stands in the shoes' of the assignor, taking his rights and remedies, subject to any defenses which the obligor has against the assignor prior to notice of the assignment.") (emphasis in Searles Valley) (internal quotation omitted). In addition, the FAC does not allege the role of each of the Defendants; instead, Plaintiff generally alleges that Defendants participated in the alleged transaction. As such, it is unclear how each Defendant injured Plaintiff.

Although the Court may not "look beyond the complaint to a plaintiff's moving papers,

United States Bankruptcy Court

such as a memorandum in opposition to a defendant's motion to dismiss," the additional allegations in the Opposition are insufficient to cure the FAC. Schneider v. California Dep't of Corr., 151 F.3d 1194, 1197 n.1 (9th Cir. 1998). Specifically, the FAC and the Opposition present contradictory allegations. For instance, despite alleging in the FAC that "Defendants, and each of them, approached Plaintiff's assignor for a loan," in the Opposition, Plaintiff alleges that a nonparty attorney arranged the alleged loan. Opposition, pp. 3-4.

Moreover, in the FAC, Plaintiff alleges its assignor was promised a "first priority deed of trust," FAC, ¶ 25, but in the Opposition, alleges that the debt purchase agreement between Defendants entitled Mr. Feygenberg and Mr. Leizerovitz to a first position deed of trust. Opposition, p. 3. Further, in the FAC, Plaintiff alleges the assignor loaned Defendants, "and each of them," the funds to be secured by the Property, FAC, ¶¶ 21-24, but in the Opposition, alleges that the nonparty attorney raised funds from the assignor to help pay for Debtor's share of the contribution to the alleged debt purchase agreement. Opposition, p. 4.

As such, although the Court may not consider allegations in the Opposition in assessing the adequacy of the FAC, the allegations in the Opposition, if included in the FAC, would not strengthen the FAC from attack under Rule 12(b)(6). The documents attached to Plaintiff's request for judicial notice also do not help Plaintiff overcome the motions to dismiss. First, certain exhibits provided by Plaintiff are not judicially noticeable. Next, the documents that are judicially noticeable do not support the FAC. Those documents mostly establish a chain of title to the Property that does not involve Plaintiff and/or its assignor; the documents are not pertinent to the allegations in the FAC, namely, the alleged loan transaction between the assignor and Defendants.

In the Opposition, Plaintiff does not appear to defend the FAC. Instead, Plaintiff asserts it could plead sufficient facts. Thus, Plaintiff appears to acknowledge that the FAC itself, the relevant document which the Court must assess, is inadequate. See Schneider, 151 F.3d at 1197 n.1 ("The focus of any Rule 12(b)(6) dismissal... is the complaint."). Because the allegations in the FAC are insufficient to meet the requirements of Rule 8(a), the Court will dismiss the FAC in its entirety, with leave to amend. [FN1].

C. The Quiet Title Claim

Although the Court is dismissing the FAC in its entirety based on Plaintiff's failure to satisfy Rule 8(a), the Court also will address deficiencies in Plaintiff's quiet title and conversion claims. In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges that the "basis of Plaintiff's title to or interest in the Property is the conversion of Plaintiff's money for the purchase of the Property and its right to have been declared as the title holder of the Property." FAC, ¶ 43. Plaintiff also alleges that its assignor "was to have been given a Note and Deed of Trust evidencing the entrustment of money and interest thereon." FAC, ¶ 49.

In the Opposition, Plaintiff offers no explanation regarding why conversion of funds (which funds allegedly would have entitled Plaintiff to a promissory note and deed of trust) would result in Plaintiff holding title to the entire Property. Instead, in the Opposition, Plaintiff contends that it "can allege and prove" that Debtor took title to the Property pursuant to a resulting trust for the benefit of Plaintiff and a third party.

First, the FAC does not contain any allegations regarding resulting trusts. As such, if Plaintiff intends to rest its quiet title claim on a resulting trust theory, Plaintiff must amend the FAC to reflect that. In addition, even if Plaintiff included allegations regarding being the beneficiary of a resulting trust, the allegations, as they stand, would not state a viable claim for relief.

Under California law, "[a] resulting trust arises by operation of law from a transfer of property under circumstances showing that the transferee was not intended to take the beneficial interest. Such a resulting trust carries out and enforces the inferred intent of the parties." Fid. Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Schroeder, 179 Cal.App.4th 834, 847 (Ct. App. 2009) (internal quotations omitted) (emphasis added). "A resulting trust does not arise unless both parties to the transaction intended that the holder of the property was to hold it in trust for the other." In re Cedar Funding, Inc., 408 B.R. 299, 315 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2009).

"Intent to establish a security interest rather than a trust, is not a sufficient basis to impose a resulting trust to remedy the failure to perfect the security interest." Id., at 315 (emphasis added) (citing In re Foam Systems Co., 92 B.R. 406, 409 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1988), aff'd, 893 F.2d 1338 (9th Cir. 1990) (holding that a resulting trust was not imposed against bank account where express intent between debtor and surety company was that surety would have lien against the account). "If... the person who paid the purchase price manifested an intention that the transferee should hold the property beneficially and should be liable merely to repay the purchase price lent to him, no resulting trust arises." Garcia, 92 F. App'x 486, 486-87 (9th Cir. 2004) ("Both the bankruptcy judge and the BAP correctly concluded that the initial transaction between Garcia and the sellers did not create a resulting trust in favor of [the creditor], because the parties clearly intended that [the debtor] would have the beneficial interest in the property and would ultimately repay [the creditor] for the down payment.") (emphasis in Garcia) (citing Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 445).

In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges that its assignor loaned money to Defendants in exchange for a promissory note and a deed of trust against the Property. FAC, ¶¶ 21-24. However, in the Opposition, Plaintiff alleges that the assignor contributed funds towards a debt purchase agreement, not towards the purchase of the Property. Opposition, p. 4. As such, Plaintiff's own allegations reflect that the intention of the parties was not to provide Plaintiff's assignor a beneficial interest in the entirety of the Property, even if the assignor allegedly was entitled to a deed of trust against the Property.

Nevertheless, even if Plaintiff alleges that the parties intended to provide Plaintiff's assignor an interest in the Property, as opposed to a deed of trust, Plaintiff would be entitled to a resulting trust proportional to the amount paid—

Part payment of the purchase price, not subsequent monetary contributions, gives rise to a resulting trust to the extent thereof. The rule is that where one person pays part of the purchase price and title is taken in another's name, the payor cannot secure a greater interest in the property by way of a resulting trust than the proportion of the amount he paid bears to the total purchase price.

Martin v. Kehl, 145 Cal.App.3d 228, 243 (Ct. App. 1983) (citing, inter alia, Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 454).

In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges its assignor paid $119,000 towards the debt purchase agreement. FAC, ¶ 24. Plaintiff alleges in the Opposition that the debt purchase agreement was worth $2,037,302.61. Opposition, p. 2. To the extent the assignor's alleged contribution to the debt purchase agreement would produce a resulting trust in the Property, the resulting trust would be worth $119,000. Consequently, even considering the allegations in the Opposition, Plaintiff has not adequately stated a claim for quiet title. [FN2].

Additionally, the FAC does not include the information required by California Code of Civil Procedure ("CCP") § 761.020. Pursuant to that statute, a quiet title complaint "shall be verified and shall include all of the following:"

- (a) A description of the property that is the subject of the action. In the case of tangible personal property, the description shall include its usual location. In the case of real property, the description shall include both its legal description and its street address or common designation, if any.
- (b) The title of the plaintiff as to which a determination under this chapter is sought and the basis of the title. If the title is based upon adverse possession, the complaint shall allege the specific facts constituting the adverse possession.
- (c) The adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff against which a determination is sought.
- (d) The date as of which the determination is sought. If the determination is sought as of a date other than the date the complaint is filed, the complaint shall include a statement of the reasons why a determination as of that date is sought.
- (e) A prayer for the determination of the title of the plaintiff against the adverse claims.

CCP § 761.020.

Here, although the FAC satisfied CCP § 761.020(a), it does not include sufficient allegations regarding CCP § 761.020(b)-(e). The FAC also is not verified. As such, to adequately assert a claim for quiet title, Plaintiff must amend the FAC to include allegations under CCP § 761.020.

D. The Conversion Claim

"In California, '[t]he elements of a conversion are the creditor's ownership or right to possession of the property at the time of the conversion; the debtor's conversion by a wrongful act or disposition of property rights; and damages.'" In re Thiara, 285 B.R. 420, 427 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2002) (quoting *Farmers Ins. Chapter 11

"[A] mere contractual right of payment, without more, will not suffice" to support a claim for conversion. Zerin, 53 Cal.App.4th at 452. Although the "existence of a lien... can establish the immediate right to possess needed for conversion," Plaintiff has not alleged that it has a lien against the Property. Plummer v. Day/Eisenberg, LLP, 184 Cal.App.4th 38, 45–46 (Ct. App. 2010). In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges that Defendants promised its assignor a deed of trust, but that such a deed of trust was never executed. FAC, ¶ 25. In the Opposition, Plaintiff also contends that "a deed of trust was not provided to Plaintiff (i.e. that a transfer of an interest in real property did not occur[])." Opposition, p. 11. As such, the allegations plead a contractual right of payment, not a property interest.

To the extent Plaintiff asserts that the oral promise of a deed of trust created a lien against the Property, Plaintiff has not offered a legal basis for such a conclusion. As noted by Debtor, an oral deed of trust violates the Statute of Frauds. Cal. Civ. Code §§ 1624, 2922.

The creation of a lien by a deed of trust is a grant of an interest of real property. Such a grant must comply with the statute of frauds as codified by state law. Miller & Starr, California Real Estate 2d. § 1:58 (Bancroft–Whitney 1989); Cal. Civ. Code § 2922. California law requires that such a grant be in writing and signed by the grantor. Cal. Civ. Code § 1091. The grant then becomes effective upon delivery by the grantor. Cal. Civ. Code § 1054.

In re Van Ness Assocs., Ltd., 173 B.R. 661, 666 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1994).

In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges, at most, an oral promise to create a deed of trust. These allegations do not satisfy the Statute of Frauds. Although, as noted in Footnote 2, certain equitable interests in property (like resulting trusts) do not need to satisfy the Statute of Frauds, Plaintiff has not adequately alleged such a theory. Thus, without a property interest in the Property, Plaintiff's conversion claim is based on a breach of a contractual right to payment, which is not appropriate.

E. Plaintiff's Request for Attorneys' Fees

Plaintiff has not alleged a basis for its request for attorneys' fees, such as a statute or contractual agreement between Plaintiff and/or its assignor, on the one hand, and Defendants, on the other hand. As such, if Plaintiff elects to amend the FAC, Plaintiff should elaborate on its basis for its request for attorneys' fees.

F. The Negligent Bailment Claim

In the Opposition, Plaintiff agreed to voluntarily dismiss its negligent bailment claim. As such, the Court need not address the parties' arguments regarding this claim.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss the FAC with leave to amend, and to serve the amended complaint, no later than December 30, 2020.

Defendants must submit an order on each of their motions within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. Because the FAC does not meet the more lenient standard under Rule 8(a), the Court need not address whether the FAC is sufficient under Rule 9(b). In the FAC, Plaintiff bases its conversion claim, in part, on the allegation that Defendants acted "with the intent to defraud..." FAC, ¶ 31. In any amended complaint, if Plaintiff intends to base any claim on fraudulent conduct, Plaintiff must meet the more stringent standard under Rule 9(b). See Kearns v. Ford Motor Co., 567 F.3d 1120, 1125 (9th Cir. 2009) (holding that even if fraud is not an element of a claim, if a plaintiff alleges fraudulent conduct, the pleading must still satisfy Rule 9(b)).
2. Debtor asserts that the Statute of Frauds bars Plaintiff's allegations. However, if Plaintiff intends to base its claim of quiet title on its resulting trust theory, the Statute of Frauds does not apply. See Matter of Torrez, 63 B.R. 751, 754 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1986) ("The Statute of Frauds has no applicability to an action for a resulting trust.") (citing Jones v. Gore, 141 Cal.App.2d 667, 673 (Ct. App. 1956)).

#16.00 Motion to Dismiss Adversary Proceeding Complaint

Docket 9

Tentative Ruling:

Grant.

I. BACKGROUND

On July 15, 2020, Lindsay Hemric ("Debtor") filed a chapter 13 petition. On September 7, 2020, Debtor filed a complaint against Total Lender Solutions, Inc. ("TLS"), Joseph Bunton, as Trustee of the Joseph Bunton Trust U/T/A, Joseph Bunton and Ryan Alexander (collectively, "Defendants"). On the same day, Debtor filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 2]. In the FAC, Debtor alleges—

On January 8, 2015, Debtor entered into a loan transaction under the corporation The Heart Lodge LLC ("Heart Lodge") with Defendants to purchase five parcel properties at 2034 North Topanga Canyon Blvd., Topanga, CA 90290 (the "Property"). In connection with this transaction, Defendants took a security interest in the Property. On February 26, 2020, TLS recorded a Notice of Default regarding the loan. On July 16, 2020, one day after the petition date, Defendants foreclosed on the Property.

On these allegations, Debtor asserts claims for: (A) violation of the automatic stay; (B) declaration of invalidity of the foreclosure sale as violative of the automatic stay; and (C) intentional infliction of emotional distress.

On November 13, 2020, the Court entered an order dismissing Debtor's bankruptcy case [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 28].

On November 16, 2020, Defendants filed a motion to dismiss the FAC (the "Motion") [doc. 9], arguing that: (A) the Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over this matter because the Property is not property of the estate; (B) Debtor did not properly serve Defendants; and (C) Debtor failed to state a claim because the automatic stay did not bar foreclosure of property that is not property of the estate. On December 2, 2020, Debtor filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 18]. In the Opposition, Debtor argues that, as the sole member of Heart Lodge, she had an equitable interest in Heart Lodge and all of Heart Lodge's assets.

On December 8, 2020, Defendants filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 19], noting that, after the filing of the Motion, Debtor served Another Summons on Defendants. As such, it appears the issue of proper service of process is moot.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

28 U.S.C. § 1334(b), with regard to bankruptcy cases and proceedings, provides that:

Except as provided by subsection (e)(2) and notwithstanding any Act of Congress that confers exclusive jurisdiction on a court or courts other than the district courts, the district courts shall have original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11.

1. Arising Under Jurisdiction

"A matter arises under the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010).

2. Arising In Jurisdiction

"A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id.

Matters that "arise under or in Title 11 are deemed to be 'core' proceedings" In re

Harris Pine Mills, 44 F.3d 1431, 1435 (9th Cir. 1995). Title 28, United States Code, section 157(b)(2) sets out a non-exclusive list of core proceedings, including "matters concerning the administration of the estate," "allowance or disallowance of claims," "objections to discharges," "motions to terminate, annul, or modify the automatic stay," and "confirmation of plans." Bankruptcy courts have the authority to hear and enter final judgments in "all core proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in a case under title 11" 28 U.S.C. § 157\(b\)\(1\); Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 475-76, 131 S.Ct. 2594, 2604, 180 L.Ed.2d 475 (2011).

3. Related to Jurisdiction

Bankruptcy courts also have jurisdiction over proceedings that are "related to" a bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); In re Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d 1189, 1193 (9th Cir. 2005). A proceeding is "related to" a bankruptcy case if:

[T]he outcome of the proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy. Thus, the proceeding need not necessarily be against the debtor or against the debtor's property. An action is related to bankruptcy if the outcome could alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options, or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) and which in any way impacts upon the handling and administration of the bankrupt estate.

Pegasus Gold Corp., 394 F.3d at 1193 (quoting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984) (emphasis omitted)).

A bankruptcy court's "related to" jurisdiction "cannot be limitless." Celotex Corp. v. Edwards, 514 U.S. 300, 308, 115 S.Ct. 1493, 1499, 131 L.Ed. 2d 403 (1995). "'[R]elated to' jurisdiction is not as broad in a Chapter 7 liquidation proceeding as in a Chapter 11 reorganization proceeding." Cardinalli v. Superior Court for Cty. of Monterey, 2013 WL 5961098, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 7, 2013).

"[C]ivil proceedings are not within 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b)'s grant of jurisdiction if they... 'are so tangential to the title 11 case or the result of which would have so little impact on the administration of the title 11 case... Put another way, litigation that would not have an impact upon the administration of the bankruptcy case, or on property of the estate, or on the distribution to creditors, cannot find a home in the district court based on the court's bankruptcy jurisdiction.'" In re Wisdom, 2015 WL 2128830, at *10 (Bankr. Idaho May 5, 2015) (quoting 1 Collier on Bankruptcy, ¶ 3.01[3][e][v] (Alan N. Resnick & Henry J. Sommer eds., 16th ed. 2014)).

Here, the Court does not have subject matter jurisdiction over Debtor's claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress. This claim does not arise under the Bankruptcy Code. In addition, because this claim exists independent of Debtor's bankruptcy case, there also is no "arising in" jurisdiction. To the extent the Court had "related to" jurisdiction over this claim, Debtor's bankruptcy case has been dismissed, and, as a result, any subject matter jurisdiction over this claim has been extinguished.

With respect to Debtor's claims regarding a violation of the automatic stay, such claims arise under the Bankruptcy Code. However, for the reasons stated below, the Property is not property of the estate and, as a result, the automatic stay does not protect the Property.

B. General Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 12(b)(6) Standard

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted); citing, inter alia, Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 547, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007); and Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009)).

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986).

"A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). Under the "incorporation by reference" doctrine, a court may look beyond the four corners of the complaint to take into account documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint, but not physically attached, and may do so without converting a Rule 12(b)(6) motion into a motion for summary judgment. Davis v. HSBC Bank Nevada, N.A., 691 F.3d 1152, 1160 (9th Cir. 2012). The court "may treat the referenced document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id., quoting United States v. Richie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

- (5) any act to create, perfect, or enforce against property of the debtor any lien to the extent that such lien secured a claim that arose before the commencement of the case under this title;
- (6) any act to collect, assess, or a recover a claim against the Debtor that arose before the commencement of the case;

Here, the allegations in the FAC and the judicially noticeable documents provided by Defendants reflect that Heart Lodge, and not Debtor, had legal title to the Property. In the Opposition, Debtor does not dispute this point. Instead, Debtor asserts she maintained an equitable interest in the Property because of her membership interest in Heart Lodge.

As legal support, Debtor references In re MCEG Prods., Inc., 133 B.R. 232 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1991). However, MCEG is inapposite. There, MCEG, Inc. and 35 subsidiaries (the "Debtor Entities") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. MCEG, 133 B.R. at 233. Subsequently, the bankruptcy court approved a compromise and sale transaction between the Debtor Entities and certain creditors (the "Compromising Creditors"). Id. In relevant part, the agreement provided that the Debtor Entities would transfer the stock of one of the Debtor Entities to one of the Compromising Creditors in exchange for a reduction of the creditors' claims and certain releases. Id. Another entity, Pheasantry Films, Inc. ("Pheasantry"), objected to the approval of this compromise and sale, arguing that the agreement negatively impacted Pheasantry's claim against one of the Debtor Entities. Id. The bankruptcy court overruled these objections. Id., at 234.

After the bankruptcy court approved the compromise and sale, and overruled Pheasantry's objections, Pheasantry filed a petition for damages and injunctive relief against the Compromising Creditors in a different forum. Id. Pheasantry did not name any of the Debtor Entities as defendants. Id. The injunction relief action sought to enjoin the Compromising Creditors from participating in the compromise and sale. Id. In response to the filing of the injunctive relief action, the Debtor Entities and Compromising Creditors sought a temporary restraining order from the bankruptcy court, arguing that the filing of the injunctive relief action violated the automatic stay. Id.

The bankruptcy court agreed, noting that, under 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(7), property of the estate includes "any interest in property that the estate acquires after the commencement of the case." Id. Relying on § 541(a)(7) and a Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision, the bankruptcy court held that the compromise and sale agreement was property of the estate and "created specific contract rights subject to the automatic stay." Id. (citing In re Carroll, 903 F.2d 1266 (9th Cir. 1990)). As such, the court stated that the injunctive relief action violated the automatic stay because it interfered with the contract and sale agreement, which was property of the estate. Id., at 235.

Thus, although Debtor focuses on the transfer of stock that was part of the compromise and sale agreement, the transfer of stock was not a dispositive issue in the bankruptcy court's holding. Instead, the bankruptcy court focused on the estate's interest in the contract and sale agreement.

Moreover, neither a transfer of stock nor an action to enjoin such transfer is comparable to the facts alleged in the FAC. The allegations do not establish that Defendants' actions (i.e., foreclosure of the Property) violated the automatic stay's protection of Debtor's membership interest in Heart Lodge, the only property of the estate relevant to the FAC.

"A limited liability company is an entity distinct from its members." Cal. Corp. Code § 17701.04(a). The debts, obligations or other liabilities of a limited liability company "are solely the debts, obligations, or other liabilities of the limited liability company" and "do not become the debts, obligations, or other liabilities of a member... solely by reason of the member acting as a member... for the limited liability company." Cal. Corp. Code § 17703.04(a)(1)-(2). In addition, "a member in a limited liability company does not hold any interest in the real property owned by the limited liability company." Fashion Valley Mall, LLC v. County of San Diego, 176 Cal.App.4th 871, 886 (Ct. App. 2009). "Instead, a member possesses a personal property interest in its limited liability company interest." Id.; see also Swart Enterprises, Inc. v. Franchise Tax Bd., 7 Cal.App.5th 497, 510 (Ct. App. 2017) ("members hold no direct ownership interest in the company's specific property"). "Because members of [a limited liability company] hold no direct ownership interest in the company's assets, the members cannot be directly injured when the company is improperly deprived of those assets." *PacLink Commc'ns Int'l, Inc. v. Chapter 13

Federal courts that have addressed the issue of whether the automatic stay applies to assets of a nondebtor entity have decided that it does not. "Though the automatic stay in the personal bankruptcy estate was still effective, we agree with the bankruptcy court that an automatic stay does not extend to the assets of a corporation in which the debtor has an interest, even if the interest is 100% of the corporate stock." In re Furlong, 660 F.3d 81, 89–90 (1st Cir. 2011) (internal quotation omitted). The First Circuit Court of Appeals noted that "[t]his proposition is well-settled." Id., at 90 n.9 (collecting cases from multiple circuits).

Although there is sparse in-circuit authority on the specific issue presented here, it appears courts within the Ninth Circuit would not deviate from this "well-settled" proposition. For instance, in In re Calvert, 135 B.R. 398 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1991), the debtor was a shareholder in a nondebtor corporation. Calvert, 135 B.R. at 399. Postpetition, the nondebtor corporation gave notice of a special meeting of the board, at which time the board authorized the corporation to issue additional shares of stock in satisfaction of a debt owed by the corporation. Id. The impact of the issuance of additional shares of stock was to reduce the percent of ownership represented by the number of shares held by the bankruptcy estate. Id.

The chapter 11 trustee asserted that the dilution of the estate's shares violated the automatic stay. Id., at 400. In response, and despite disagreeing that the automatic stay was implicated, the corporation filed a motion for nunc pro tunc relief from the automatic stay. Id. The bankruptcy court framed the issue as follows: "the basic issue is whether the intangible rights and obligations of stock ownership, which are property of a debtor's estate, are sufficiently broad to preclude a non-debtor corporation from taking actions which may have an effect on the value of that stock." Id. After reviewing several out-of-circuit authorities, the court reached the following conclusion—

This Court agrees with the rationale of the foregoing cases. [The nondebtor corporation] is a separate legal entity and there has been no suggestion that it is a sham corporation or that it is the alter ego of the debtor. Indeed, the few facts before the Court suggest the contrary. While the trustee's argument has appeal in circumstances like the present, this Court has not found any satisfactory way to draw a meaningful line separating the circumstances and incidences of stock ownership which would implicate the automatic stay from those that would not. In this

Court's view, the better rule is that [the nondebtor corporation] is a separate legal entity entitled to act through its duly constituted board and officers, even though those actions may have an effect on the value of shares of stock held by the estates of debtors. Accordingly, this Court concludes that the automatic stay does not apply to actions of the board of the corporation in determining to exchange debt for equity with another shareholder, thereby giving that shareholder a majority interest in the corporation.

Id., at 402 (emphasis added). [FN1]. As such, even where a debtor's personal property interest in an entity is devalued by actions taken against a nondebtor entity, the automatic stay is not implicated. Approximately two weeks ago, in a different context, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel of the Ninth Circuit held that an individual debtor may not claim a homestead exemption in real property owned by the debtor's limited liability company—

[The debtor] has never identified any beneficial or equitable interest in the Property to support his homestead exemption claim and concedes that he has no legal interest in it. Instead, he listed his interest in the LLC as exempt under California's residential exemption, C.C.P. § 704.730. But under California law a limited liability company is a separate and distinct legal entity from its owners or members. Consequently, limited liability company members have no interest in the company's assets. California's residential exemption is inapplicable to [the debtor's] interest in the LLC, which constitutes a personal property interest outside the statutory definition of a homestead under C.C.P. § 704.710(c).

In re Schaefers, 2020 WL 7043564, at *4 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Dec. 1, 2020).

Although outside of the Ninth Circuit, Kreiser v. Goldberg, 478 F.3d 209 (4th Cir. 2007), is directly on point. There, one of the debtors' wholly owned subsidiaries, a limited liability company (the "Subsidiary LLC"), was a party to a ground rent lease on real property. Kreiser, 478 F.3d at 211. The property was titled in the Subsidiary LLC's name, and this interest in the property was the Subsidiary LLC's sole asset and the reason for the company's organization. Id., at 211-12. Prepetition, the owner of the ground rent filed a complaint for ejectment in state court and obtained a default judgment against the Subsidiary LLC. Id., at 212.

Chapter 13

Postpetition, the owner of the ground rent moved for relief from the automatic stay. Id. The bankruptcy court provided such relief and, as a result, the property was sold at auction. Id. The debtors then filed a motion for violation of the automatic stay, seeking to void the ejectment action and to compel turnover of the property to the estate. Id. The bankruptcy court denied the motion and a district court affirmed the order. Id. On appeal, the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with the bankruptcy court, holding—

The fact that a parent corporation has an ownership interest in a subsidiary, however, does not give the parent any direct interest in the assets of the subsidiary. Although [one of the debtors] could have established an ownership interest in the property, it chose not to do so. Instead, it created an LLC for the purpose of holding title to the property. Having assumed whatever benefits flowed from that decision, it cannot now ignore the existence of the LLC in order to escape its disadvantages. See Terry v. Yancey, 344 F.2d 789 (4th Cir. 1965) (explaining that "where an individual creates a corporation as a means of carrying out his business purposes he may not ignore the existence of the corporation in order to avoid its disadvantages"). The district court therefore correctly distinguished between [the debtor's] interest in [the Subsidiary LLC] and [the Subsidiary LLC's] direct interest in the [property]. The assets of [the Subsidiary LLC] belonged to [the Subsidiary LLC] and did not form part of [the debtors'] bankruptcy estate. Consequently, an action to obtain possession or exercise control over [the Subsidiary LLC's] property was not an action to obtain possession or exercise control over property of [the] bankruptcy estate.

Id., at 214 (emphasis in Kreisler). Moreover, in response to the debtors' argument that disposal of the property would cause the estate's interest in the Subsidiary LLC to lose value, the court stated—

[The Subsidiary LLC] existed for the sole purpose of holding title to the property and had no other assets. [The debtor] contends that, as a result, [the debtor's] ownership interest in [the Subsidiary LLC] would lose all value if [the Subsidiary LLC] were ejected from the property. The fact that [the debtor's] interest in [the Subsidiary LLC] may lose value, however, is not dispositive. The nature and extent of [the debtor's] interest in [the Subsidiary LLC] remains unchanged by [the Subsidiary LLC's] loss of the property.

Id.; see also In re HSM Kennewick, L.P., 347 B.R. 569, 572 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006) ("[The debtor] does not possess an interest to specific assets or property of [the LLC], as it is only a member of the LLC; thus the automatic stay does not apply to protect it.").

In light of these authorities, Debtor cannot state a claim for violation of the automatic stay for the alleged foreclosure sale of property owned by Debtor's limited liability company. Debtor's allegations that she is the sole member of Heart Lodge, or that her interest in Heart Lodge will be devalued by the foreclosure, does not change the analysis. Because the FAC cannot be cured by an amendment, the Court will dismiss the FAC without leave to amend. See Jackson, 353 F.3d at 758.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will dismiss the FAC without leave to amend.

Defendants must submit an order within seven (7) days.

FOOTNOTES

1. Calvert involved a corporation instead of a limited liability company. However, for purposes of this discussion, the result is the same whether the nondebtor entity is a limited liability company or a corporation. See, e.g. Denevi v. LGCC, LLC, 121 Cal.App.4th 1211, 1214 n.1 (Ct. App. 2004) ("Like corporate shareholders, members of a limited liability company hold no direct ownership interest in the company's assets").

#1.00 Trustee's Final Report and Applications for Compensation

David Seror, Chapter 7 Trustee

Brutzkus Gubner, Attorneys for Chapter 7 Trustee

SLBiggs, A Division of Singer Lewak, Accountant's for Trustee

Docket 200

Tentative Ruling:

David Seror, chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $67,151.82 and reimbursement of expenses of $208.50.

Brutzkus Gubner, counsel to chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $345,205.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $11,080.79, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis. The Court will not approve $1,728.50 in fees for the reasons below.

SLBiggs, accountant to chapter 7 trustee – approve fees of $10,240.00 and reimbursement of expenses of $129.61, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 330, on a final basis.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(2) provides that the court may, on its own motion, award compensation that is less than the amount of the compensation that is requested.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(1)(A) provides that a court may award to a professional person employed under § 327 "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services" rendered by the professional person. "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to the professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—(A) the time spent on such services; (B) the rates charged for such services; (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title; [and] (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed . . .". 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(3). allow compensation for—(i) unnecessary duplication of services; or (ii) services that were not—(I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor’s estate; or (II) necessary to the administration of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 330(a)(4)(A).

11 U.S.C. § 328(b) provides that an attorney may not receive compensation for the performance of any trustee’s duties that are generally performed by a trustee without the assistance of an attorney. In re Garcia, 335 B.R. 717, 725 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2005) (holding that bankruptcy court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to compensate chapter 7 trustee’s counsel for services rendered in connection with the sale of property of the estate and for preparing routine employment applications).

Local Bankruptcy Rule ("LBR") 2016-2(e)(2) provides a "nonexclusive list of services that the court deems ‘trustee services.’" This list includes, among other activities: conduct 11 U.S.C. § 341(a) examination; routine investigation regarding location and status of assets; turnover or inspection of documents; recruit and contract appraisers, brokers, and professionals; routine collection of accounts receivable; routine documentation of notice of abandonment; prepare motions to abandon or destroy books and records; routine claims review and objection; monitor litigation; answer routine creditor correspondence and phone calls; review and comment on professional fee applications; and additional routine work necessary for administration of the estate.

In Garcia, the BAP upheld the bankruptcy court’s refusal to approve fees for preparation of employment applications, observing that "absent a showing by applicant to the contrary, routine employment applications remain a trustee duty." Garcia, 335 B.R. at 726. With respect to its holding, the BAP explained "a case trustee may only employ professionals for tasks that require special expertise beyond that expected of an ordinary trustee." Id. at 727.

In accordance with Garcia and LBR 2016-2(f), the Court does not approve the fees billed by Brutzkus Gubner while general counsel to the chapter 7 trustee for the services identified below. It appears that these fees are for services that are duplicative of those that could and should have been performed by the chapter 7 trustee, as a trustee.

Docket 259

Tentative Ruling:

Levene, Neale, Bender, Yoo & Brill LLP (“LNBYB”), counsel to debtor – approve fees of $205,669.50 and reimbursement of expenses of $8,434.20 for the period covering June 1, 2020 through November 20, 2020, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 331, on an interim basis. The Court will allow LNBYB to apply the remaining pre-petition retainer balance in the amount of $37,547.64. For the reasons set forth below, the Court will not approve $134.50 in fees.

Secretarial/clerical work is noncompensable under 11 U.S.C. § 330. See In re Schneider, 2008 WL 4447092, *11 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2008) (court disallowed billing for services including: monitoring and reviewing the docket; electronically distributing documents; preparing services packages, serving pleadings, updating service lists and preparing proofs of service; and e-filing and uploading pleadings); In re Ness, 2007 WL 1302611, *1 (Bankr. Docket 76

Tentative Ruling:

I. BACKGROUND

A. The Deed of Trust and the Genesta Property

On April 6, 2006, America's Wholesale Lender made a $1 million loan (the "Loan") to Delia Webster [doc. 76, Exh. A, Deed of Trust, p. 6–7]. The Loan is secured by a deed of trust which encumbers residential real property located at 5019 Genesta Avenue, Encino, CA 91316 (the "Genesta Property"). Id.

On April 17, 2006, Delia Webster recorded a grant deed in the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office, transferring her interest in the Genesta Property to 5019 Partners, LLC ("Debtor") for less than $100.00 [1:08-bk-13370-GM, doc. 33, Exh. 7, Grant Deed].

On July 1, 2010, the deed of trust encumbering the Genesta Property was transferred via an assignment deed of trust and mortgage to the Bank of New York Mellon FKA the Bank of New York, as Trustee for the Certificateholders CWALT, Inc., Alternative Loan Trust 2006-OA9 Mortgage E Pass-Through Certificates, Series 2006-OA9 ("BNYM") [doc. 76, Exh. A, p. 23].

B. The First Chapter 11 Case

On May 22, 2008, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating case no. 1:08-bk-13370-GM (the "First Case"). In its schedule A, Debtor identified an interest in the Genesta Property. First Case, doc. 11. In its schedule B, Debtor listed no cash, accounts or personal property. Id. In its schedule D, Debtor represented that the Genesta Property was encumbered by a deed of trust for the benefit of Countrywide, securing a claim in the amount of $1.5 million. Id. In its Statement of Financial Affairs, Debtor identified two equity holders, Gary Pitts and Tyler Murphy, and represented that it had no income. Id.

On August 5, 2010, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d)(1), (d)(2) and (d)(4), the Court entered an order granting relief from the automatic stay against the Genesta Property. Id., doc. 87. The Court determined that Debtor's petition was part of a scheme to delay, hinder and defraud creditors based on: (1) the transfer of all or part ownership of, or other interest, in the Genesta Property without consent of the secured creditor or court approval; and (2) multiple bankruptcy filings affecting that property. Id.

On January 14, 2013, the Court entered an order granting Debtor's motion for voluntary dismissal of its chapter 11 case. Id., doc. 148. On November 15, 2012, the First Case was closed. Id., doc. 152.

C. The Second Chapter 11 Case

On December 4, 2019, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating case no. 1:19-bk-13011-VK (the "Second Case"). In its schedule A/B, Debtor identified an interest in the Genesta Property and listed no cash, accounts or personal property. Second Case, doc. 1. In its schedule D, Debtor represented that the Genesta Property was encumbered by: (1) a deed of trust for the benefit of BNYM, securing a claim in the amount of $1 million; and (2) a judicial lien, securing the claim of Koll/Per Calabasas, LLC in the amount of $21,736.11. Id. In its schedule E/F, Debtor lists only two nonpriority unsecured creditors, one of which has a disputed claim, in the aggregated amount of $13,500.00. Id. In its Statement of Financial Affairs, Debtor identified two equity holders, Gary Pitts and Tyler Murphy. Id., doc. 8.

On January 24, 2020, the Court entered an order dismissing the Second Case based on Debtor's failure to file a case status conference report and monthly operating reports on a timely basis, in violation of the Court's previously issued order. Id., docs. 19, 20. On June 23, 2020, the Second Case was closed. Id., doc. 26.

D. The Third Chapter 11 Case

On February 11, 2020, Debtor filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition, initiating the pending bankruptcy case. In its schedule A/B, Debtor listed an interest in the Genesta Property and $900 in cash [doc. 1]. Debtor valued its interest in the Genesta Property at $800,000.00, based on an appraisal conducted on October 15, 2020 [doc. 76, Exh. B, Appraisal].

In its amended schedule D, Debtor states that the Genesta Property is encumbered by: (1) a deed of trust for the benefit of BNYM, securing a claim in the principal amount of $1 million; (2) a deed of trust for the benefit of BAC Home Loan Servicing, securing a claim in the amount of $350,000.00; and (3) a judicial lien, securing the claim of Koll/Per Calabasas, LLC in the amount of $21,736.11 [doc. 75]. In its schedule E/F, Debtor lists only two nonpriority unsecured creditors, one of which has a disputed claim, in the aggregated amount of $13,500.00 [doc. 1].

Regarding filed proofs of claim, the Internal Revenue Service has filed a proof of claim in the amount of $4,400.00 [Proof of Claim 1-1]. The California Franchise Tax Board has filed a proof of claim, asserting a secured claim in the amount of $5,467.17 and an unsecured claim in the amount of $18,023.14.

In April 2020, BNYM filed proof of claim 2-1 in the amount of $1,859,629.46 [doc. 76, Exh. A, p. 3]. Based on the proof of claim, as of the date this case was filed: (1) the interest due is $495,255.69; (2) the escrow deficiency for funds advanced is $212,216.03; (3) the total prepetition arrearage is $853,618.46; and (4) since March 2009, no payments have been made on the Loan.

In its Statement of Financial Affairs, Gary Pitts and Tyler Murphy are identified as Debtor's sole equity holders. Id.

Based on its monthly operating reports for the months of May 2020 through October 2020, Debtor is not generating any income [docs. 55, 56, 57, 58, 66, 74, 95]. In its October 2020 monthly operating report, Debtor lists only $134.38 in cash [doc. 95]. As reflected in Debtor's monthly operating reports from February 2020 through November 2020, during this case, Debtor has not made any payments to BNYM [docs. 30, 50, 55, 56, 57, 58, 66, 74, 95, 108].

On October 19, 2020, Debtor filed a Motion to Determine Secured Value of Real Property; to Stay Post Petition Payments (the "Motion to Value") [doc. 76]. In the Motion to Value, Debtor's principal, Tyler Murphy, states that Debtor filed for bankruptcy "to reorganize and manage secured claims on the residential property at 5019 Genesta Avenue in Encino (the "REAL PROPERTY"). Debtor 5019 succeeded to the REAL PROPERTY in April 2006, settlement of a business transaction between 5019 and the prior owner who is the original borrower on the mortgage on the REAL PROPERTY." Declaration of Tyler Murphy, ¶ 2–3, doc. 76 (formatting and errors in original).

Debtor seeks an order valuing the Genesta Property at $800,000.00, based on an appraisal report conducted on October 15, 2020 [doc. 76, Exh. B, Appraisal]. After valuation, Debtor proposes to bifurcate and treat the secured claims as follows:

Lienholders (order of priority)	Secured Portion of Claim	Unsecured Portion of Claim
BNYM	$800,000.00	$1,059,629.46
BAC Home Loan Servicing	$0.00	$350,000.00
Koll / Per Calabasas, LLC	$0.00	$21,736.11

On November 5, 2020, BNYM filed an opposition to the Motion to Value (the "Opposition") [doc. 93]. In the Opposition, BNYM asserts that Delia Webster, not Debtor, is the borrower under the deed of trust encumbering the Genesta Property. BNYM asserts that it "has not engaged in any conduct to accept the transfer or Debtor as a replacement mortgagor." Id., p. 6, line 6–15. BNYM represents that it filed its proof of claim in case the Court finds that BNYM is a creditor, after the deadline to file claims passed. Id. BNYM argues that, because Debtor is not the original borrower, and there is no creditor-debtor relationship, Debtor cannot bifurcate BNYM's secured claim pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 506(a), nor modify BNYM's rights as a secured creditor pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(5).

On November 13, 2020, Debtor filed a reply to the Opposition (the "Reply") [doc. 94]. In the Reply, Mr. Murphy avers that:

[T]he original borrower never tendered a payment on the loan to which BNYM has succeeded. Debtor tendered the first payment after the transaction closed along with subsequent payments and, during its prior bankruptcy in 2008–2013, Debtor tendered adequate protection payments to BNYM's predecessor.

Declaration of Tyler Murphy, ¶ 2, doc. 94. On December 8, 2020, BNYM filed a supplemental opposition [doc. 103].

II. DISCUSSION

11 U.S.C. § 101, in pertinent part, provides:

(5) The term "claim" means—

(A) right to payment, whether or not such right is reduced to judgment, liquidated, unliquidated, fixed, contingent, matured, unmatured, disputed, undisputed, legal, equitable, secured, or unsecured. . . .

...

(10) The term "creditor" means—

(A) entity that has a claim against the debtor that arose at the time of or before the order for relief concerning the debtor;

(B) entity that has a claim against the estate of a kind specified in section 348(d), 502(f), 502(g), 502(h), or 502(i) of this title; or

(C) entity that has a community claim.

...

(12) the term "debt" means liability on a claim.

11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(5) provides:

(b) Subject to subsection (a) of this section, a plan may—

(5) modify the rights of holders of secured claims, other than a claim secured only by a security interest in real property that is the debtor's principal residence, or of holders of unsecured claims, or leave unaffected the rights of holders of any class of claims[.]

Chapter 11

When determining whether a party is a "creditor" under the Bankruptcy Code, the terms "debt" and "claim" are interrelated. In re Davis, 778 F.3d 809, 812 (9th Cir. 2015) ("[T]he meanings of 'debt' and 'claim' were intended by Congress to be coextensive") (quoting Pa. Dep't of Pub. Welfare v. Davenport, 495 U.S. 552, 558, 110 S. Ct. 2126, 109 L. Ed. 2d 588 (1990); see also In re Enron., 357 B.R. 32, 47 (S.D.N.Y. 2006) ("It is well settled that 'claim' and 'debt' are synonymous, such that whenever a 'claim' arises, a 'debt' necessarily arises as well; the only distinction between the two terms is the party to which it applies") (citing Davenport, 495 U.S. at 558).

In connection with evaluating the bifurcation and treatment of a secured claim in a chapter 11 case, a court may refer to case law regarding chapter 13. See In re Lievsay, 199 B.R. 705, 708 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1996). In connection with chapter 13 cases, several courts have held that, when a debtor is not the original borrower, there is no creditor-debtor relationship with the mortgagee. As noted in In re Jones, 98 B.R. 757, 758 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1989): "Because Debtor is not liable on the mortgage, there exists no debt owing to the Bank; the Bank has no claim against Debtor; and there exists no creditor-debtor relationship."

As a result, these courts also have held that the debtor could not modify the mortgagee's rights to payment, in accordance with the terms of the pertinent loan. See In re Parks, 227 B.R. 20, 21 (Bankr. W.D.N.Y. 1998) (The Bankruptcy Code "may not be used to force a mortgagee to accept installment payments . . . where, as here, the debtor and mortgagee are not in privity of contract."); In re Kizelnik, 190 B.R. 171, 179 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1995)(rights and remedies of a secured creditor cannot "be blocked by the voluntary intervention of a new obligor . . . who undertakes no liability whatever for that indebtedness or any deficiency"); and Perscillo v. HSBC Bank U.S.A., Nat. Ass'n, 2015 WL 417659, at *2 (W.D.N.Y. Jan. 30, 2015) ("[A] debtor has no right to restructure mortgages in bankruptcy when the debtor is not in privity with the mortgagee").

Here, BNYM and Debtor do not have a creditor-debtor relationship. A creditor is defined as an "entity that has a claim against the debtor. . . ." 11 U.S.C. § 101(10)(A). As the original borrower, Delia Webster is the party who is liable to pay BNYM's secured claim, and BNYM neither consented to Ms. Webster's transfer of her interest in the Genesta Property to Debtor, nor did BNYM (or any predecessor in interest) consent to Debtor's assumption of the Loan. Consequently, between BNYM and Debtor, there is no creditor-debtor relationship.

Under California Law, an assumption of debt must be in writing, or included in the conveyance of the property. See Cal. Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6) ("The following contracts are invalid, unless . . . in writing . . . An agreement by a purchaser of real property to pay an indebtedness secured by a mortgage or deed of trust upon the property purchased, unless assumption of the indebtedness by the purchaser is specifically provided for in the conveyance of the property"); Cal. Civ. Code § 2922 ("A mortgage can be created, renewed, or extended, only by writing, executed with the formalities in the case of a grant of real property."). "A mere grant of the property subject to the mortgage debt is not sufficient to impose any personal liability on the grantee to pay the debt or perform any of the obligations thereof. To effect such obligation there must be a distinct assumption of the debt or of the contractual obligations thereunder." See Snidow v. Hill, 87 Cal. App. 2d 803, 807 (1948).

Debtor has not demonstrated that it assumed Ms. Webster's debt to BNYM or that Debtor has any personal liability to BNYM. Furthermore, BNYM has not consented to Debtor's assumption of the Loan. Likewise, Debtor's monthly operating reports and BNYM's proof of claim reveal that Debtor has not made any post-petition payments on the Loan. Given that there is no contractual relationship between Debtor and BNYM, Debtor has not properly assumed any obligation to repay the Loan, and BNYM has not consented to Debtor's assumption of the Loan, Debtor cannot modify BNYM's secured claim.

III. CONCLUSION

The Court will deny the Motion to Value.

BNYM must submit an order within seven (7) days.

Grant relief from stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) and (d)(2).

Movant (and any successors or assigns) may proceed under applicable nonbankruptcy law to enforce its remedies to repossess and sell the property.

The 14-day stay prescribed by FRBP 4001(a)(3) is waived.

Movant must submit the order within seven (7) days.

Note: No response has been filed. Accordingly, no court appearance by movant is required. Should an opposing party file a late opposition or appear at the hearing, the Court will determine whether further hearing is required and movant will be so notified.

#14.00 Defendants' motion to dismiss first amended complaint

fr. 12/9/20

Docket 20

Tentative Ruling:

Grant, with leave to amend.

I. BACKGROUND

On May 25, 2018, Victory Entertainment, Inc. ("Debtor") filed a voluntary chapter 11 petition. On September 27, 2018, the Court entered an order converting Debtor's case to a chapter 7 case [Bankruptcy Docket, doc. 108]. Howard M. Ehrenberg was appointed the chapter 7 trustee (the "Trustee").

On May 24, 2020, the Trustee filed a complaint against Hala Enterprises, LLC ("Hala") and Agassi Halajyan (together, "Defendants"). On September 11, 2020, the Trustee filed a first amended complaint (the "FAC") [doc. 16]. In relevant part, the Trustee alleges—

Mr. Halajyan is the cousin of Debtor's former principal, Arshavir Khachikian. Mr. Halajyan also was a corporate officer of Debtor. In 2007, Mr. Halajyan sold, transferred and conveyed Debtor to Mr. Khachikian on terms not publicly disclosed. After the transfer, Mr. Halajyan testified as the "Person Most Knowledgeable" on behalf of Debtor and supplied written discovery responses on behalf of Debtor.

On December 28, 2007, Debtor and Hala entered into a long-term triple net commercial lease (the "Lease") of the real property located at 12147 Victory Boulevard, North Hollywood, CA 91606 (the "Property"). Mr. Halajyan is the registered agent and principal of Hala. The monthly rental payment and annual rent increase provisions in the Lease were in excess of the prevailing market rate for the time and location. The Lease did not contain a "percentage rent" provision that is common in similar industries and businesses. As such, the rent paid to Hala was approximately 27.1% of Debtor's operating venue, equating to $3.58 per square foot, which is at least two times higher than market rate for other similar businesses. Through the Lease, Debtor also was required to pay property tax, insurance and other costs associated with the Property. The Trustee believes that Mr. Halajyan and Mr. Khachikian agreed that consideration for the acquisition of Debtor would be paid, in part, by utilizing the over market payments from Debtor to Hala.

At the time payments were made to Defendants, Debtor had multiple creditors. The payments made to Defendants could have been used to satisfy these creditors. From 2008 through 2018, Hala received, directly or indirectly, over $2.4 million from Debtor. In addition, within the year preceding the petition date, Defendants received over $250,000 from Debtor.

In addition, Hala and Mr. Halajyan are alter egos, such that their creditors dealt with them as one entity and a single economic unit. Hala and Mr. Halajyan operated from the same address, and Hala often paid debts and revenue on behalf of Mr. Halajyan, and vice versa. Hala and Mr. Halajyan also regularly commingled funds.

On these allegations, the Trustee asserts claims for: (A) avoidance of intentional fraudulent transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 548 and California Civil Code ("CCC") § 3439.04(a)(1); (B) avoidance of constructive fraudulent transfer under § 548 and CCC § 3439.04(a)(2); (C) avoidance of preferential transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 547(b); and (D) turnover. The Trustee also alleges alter ego liability.

On October 16, 2020, Defendants filed a motion to dismiss the FAC (the "Motion") [doc. 20]. On November 25, 2020, the Trustee filed an opposition to the Motion (the "Opposition") [doc. 24]. On December 2, 2020, Defendants filed a reply to the Opposition [doc. 26].

A motion to dismiss [pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6)] will only be granted if the complaint fails to allege enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.

We accept factual allegations in the complaint as true and construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Although factual allegations are taken as true, we do not assume the truth of legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Therefore, conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss.

Fayer v. Vaughn, 649 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted); citing, inter alia, Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 547, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007); and Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009)).

In evaluating a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, review is "limited to the contents of the complaint." Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1994). However, without converting the motion to one for summary judgment, exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as matters of public record, may be considered in determining whether dismissal is proper. See Parks School of Business, Inc. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995); Mack v. South Bay Beer Distributors, Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986).

"A court may [also] consider certain materials—documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice—without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). Under the "incorporation by reference" doctrine, a court may look beyond the four corners of the complaint to take into account documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint, but not physically attached, and may do so without converting a Rule 12(b)(6) motion into a motion for summary judgment. Davis v. HSBC Bank Nevada, N.A., 691 F.3d 1152, 1160 (9th Cir.

2012). The court "may treat the referenced document as part of the complaint, and thus may assume that its contents are true for purposes of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6)." Id., quoting United States v. Richie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003). State court pleadings, orders and judgments are subject to judicial notice under Federal Rule of Evidence 201. See McVey v. McVey, 26 F.Supp.3d 980, 983-84 (C.D. Cal. 2014) (aggregating cases); and Reyn's Pasta Bella, LLC v. Visa USA, Inc., 442 F.3d 742, 746 n.6 (9th Cir. 2006) ("We may take judicial notice of court filings and other matters of public record.").

Pursuant to Rule 9(b), "[i]n alleging fraud or mistake, a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake. Malice, intent, knowledge, and other conditions of a person's mind may be alleged generally." Allegations must be "specific enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged..." Neubronner v. Milken, 6 F.3d 666, 671 (9th Cir. 1993). "[M]ere conclusory allegations of fraud are insufficient." Moore v. Kayport Package Exp., Inc., 885 F.2d 531, 540 (9th Cir. 1989). Dismissal without leave to amend is appropriate when the court is satisfied that the deficiencies in the complaint could not possibly be cured by amendment. Jackson v. Carey, 353 F.3d 750, 758 (9th Cir. 2003); Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000).

B. The Trustee's Fifth Claim for Relief for Avoidance of Preferential Transfers

i. Sufficiency of Allegations Related to this Claim

Defendants raise the following issues regarding the adequacy of the Trustee's allegations: (A) first, that the FAC does not include adequate allegations regarding the date or amount of each transfer; (B) second, that the Trustee does not sufficiently allege whether Debtor was insolvent at the time of each transfer; and (C) third, that the Trustee fails to include allegations regarding whether the Trustee brought this action "based on reasonable due diligence in the circumstances of the case and taking into account a party's known or reasonably knowable affirmative defenses under subsection (c)." 11 U.S.C. § 547(b).

As to the first issue, the Trustee has made sufficient allegations to meet the plausibility standard of Rule 12(b)(6). Defendants, referencing In re Caremerica, Inc., 409 B.R. 346, 351 (Bankr. E.D.N.C. 2009), assert that the Trustee must specifically allege the date and amount of each transfer. In Caremerica, the chapter 7 trustee alleged that the debtors made preferential transfers of at least $7,438.39 within 90 days before the petition date. Caremerica, 409 B.R. at 349. The subject complaint did not include additional allegations about the alleged transfers. Id.

On those facts, the court held that, under the standard set forth in Iqbal, the "pleading standard for claims for relief requires more than a conclusory assertion that transfers occurred within 90 days." Id., at 352. "[T]he trustee must provide factual assertions showing that it is plausible the transfers were made during the 90-day preference period." Id. In Caremerica, the court suggested that the trustee "can accomplish this by including in his complaint specific dates and amounts of each alleged transfer." Id.

The court did not hold that only allegations regarding the specific dates and amounts could satisfy the plausibility standard with respect to preferential transfer claims. Instead, the court stated that, in that case, pleading specific dates and amounts would be one way to satisfy Rule 12(b)(6)'s requirements. Here, the Trustee does not plead, in a conclusory fashion, that transfers were made within the 90-day and/or one-year period preceding the petition date. Rather, the Trustee alleges the specific terms of the Lease, which obligated Debtor to pay monthly base rent set at $32,578 and monthly common area maintenance charges of $1,100. FAC, ¶ 20. The Trustee further alleges that, by the petition date, Debtor was delinquent in the payment of rent by $6,000. Id. In addition, Defendants themselves request judicial notice of their relief from stay motion, which sets forth a prepetition payment schedule. Request for Judicial Notice [doc. 20], Exhibit 1. These allegations, if accepted "as true and construe[d]...in the light most favorable to the Trustee," indicate that it is plausible Debtor made transfers, within the preferential period, pursuant to the terms of the Lease. Fayer, 649 F.3d at 1064.

Nevertheless, the Trustee fails to adequately allege whether Debtor was insolvent during the period between 90 days before the petition date and one year before the petition date. Under 11 U.S.C. § 547(f), "[f]or the purposes of this section, the debtor is presumed to have been insolvent on and during the 90 days immediately preceding the date of the filing of the petition." Because the presumption only applies to the 90 days preceding the petition date, the Trustee must include allegations regarding Debtor's insolvency for any transfers the Trustee seeks to avoid before this presumptive period. In the FAC, the Trustee alleges that Debtor scheduled certain creditors and faced liability from a prepetition class action lawsuit. FAC, ¶ 37. However, there are no allegations as to whether Debtor was insolvent at the time it faced these liabilities, i.e., whether Debtor did not have sufficient assets to satisfy these debts.

Another issue raised by Defendants is that the Trustee does not include any allegations regarding whether he filed this action "based on reasonable due diligence in the circumstances of the case and taking into account a party's known or reasonably knowable affirmative defenses under subsection (c)." 11 U.S.C. § 547(b). The Trustee asserts that this language, which was added to § 547(b) via the Small Business Reorganization Act, only applies to Chapter 11, Subchapter V cases. However, the plain language of § 547(b) does not limit application of this new amendment only to Subchapter V cases. In addition, the July 23, 2019 House Report clarifies Congressional intent—

The bill also includes two provisions, not limited to small business chapter 11 cases, pertaining to preferential transfers. In sum, it specifies an additional criterion that a trustee must consider before commencing an action to recover a preferential transfer (i.e., a transfer of property by the debtor made before the filing of the bankruptcy case preferential to a creditor and to the detriment of similarly situated creditors). The first provision would require the trustee to determine whether to exercise such authority based on reasonable due diligence in the circumstances of the case and take into account a party's known or reasonably knowable affirmative defenses.

H.R. REP. 116-171 (emphasis added). The FAC does not include any allegations regarding reasonable due diligence or whether the Trustee considered Defendants' known or reasonably knowable affirmative defenses. Without such allegations, the FAC is deficient as to these new provisions of § 547(b).

With respect to the "known or reasonably knowable affirmative defenses," Defendants assert that their administrative claim serves as a defense pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 547(c)(4).¹ "To establish a new-value defense under § 547(c)(4) in the Ninth Circuit, [defendants] must show that: (1) it advanced new value to the debtor after the preferential transfer; (2) that the advance of new value was unsecured; and (3) that the advance of new value remains unpaid or, if paid, the payment must also be avoidable." In re Modtech Holdings, Inc., 503 B.R. 737, 745 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2013). Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 547(a)(2), "new value" means money or money's worth in goods, services, or new credit, or release by a transferee of property previously transferred to such transferee in a transaction that is neither void nor voidable by the debtor or the trustee under any applicable law, including proceeds of such property, but does not include an obligation substituted for an existing obligation." "Most courts addressing the issue have held that where a debtor is a lessee on an unexpired real property lease, 'new value' is created by the debtor's right to continue a leasehold estate in exchange for the rental payment." In re PMC Mktg. Corp., 518 B.R. 150, 158 (B.A.P. 1st Cir. 2014) (collecting cases) (internal quotation omitted); see also In re Workboats Nw., Inc., 201 B.R. 563, 567 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. 1996) ("[B]y permitting the debtor to remain in possession without paying rent, the landlord extends value that did not exist at the time the lease was executed.").

At this time, a determination by the Court regarding whether the affirmative defense bars or reduces the Trustee's potential recovery is premature. Although the Court may take judicial notice that Defendants filed an administrative claim against the estate, and that Defendants filed a motion for relief from the automatic stay, the Court may not take judicial notice of the facts that would establish the elements of the new value defense. Nevertheless, to plead a claim under § 547(b) properly, the Trustee must include allegations that he filed this action exercising reasonable due diligence and taking into account the known or reasonably knowable affirmative defenses under § 547(c), including, for example, the asserted defense under § 547(c)(4).

ii. Whether Mr. Halajyan is an "Insider"

The parties also dispute whether Mr. Halajyan is deemed an "insider" under the Bankruptcy Code. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 101(31)(B), the term "insider" includes, if the debtor is a corporation—

- (i) director of the debtor;
- (ii) officer of the debtor;

Chapter 7

In the FAC, the Trustee alleges that Mr. Halajyan is Mr. Khachikian's first cousin. Whether a first cousin qualifies as a relative "within the third degree as determined by the common law" appears to be a matter of first impression in the Ninth Circuit.

The Court will take this portion of the parties' dispute under submission. Nevertheless, construing the FAC in the light most favorable to the Trustee, the FAC includes sufficient allegations that Mr. Halajyan is an "insider," even if he is not a "relative." "The use of the word 'includes' [in § 101(31)] is indicative of Congress' intent not to limit the classification of insiders to the statutory definition." In re Enter. Acquisition Partners, Inc., 319 B.R. 626, 631 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2004) (internal quotation omitted); see also 11 U.S.C. § 102(3) ("'includes' and 'including' are not limiting"). Courts recognize two types of insiders: "entities specifically mentioned in the statute... i.e., per se insiders;" or "those not listed in the statutory definition, but who have a... sufficiently close relationship with the debtor that... conduct is made subject to closer scrutiny than those dealing at arm's length with the debtor." Enter. Acquisition, 319 B.R. at 631 (citing In re Anderson, 165 B.R. 482, 485 (Bankr. D. Or. 1994)).

As to the latter type of insider, "[t]he determination is a fact-intensive one, and must be decided on a case-by-case basis." In re Farson, 387 B.R.784, 792 (Bankr. D. Idaho 2008). For instance, in In re Standard Stores, Inc., 124 B.R. 318, 325 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1991), the court held that the debtor's principal's former brother-in-law was an insider, despite not qualifying as a per se insider under § 101(31)—

It cannot be reasonably disputed that [the insider] had a close relationship with Debtor at the time of Transfer. [The insider] had been Debtor's general manager for years; [the insider] considered [the principal], the president of Debtor, to be "family" although [the principal] was no longer related by affinity; [the insider] had made an unsecured loan of $25,000 relying strictly upon [the principal's] word, and [the insider] was in the midst of arranging the purchase of a significant portion of Debtor's operations, with the services of Debtor's attorney and several high-ranking employees. [The insider] even borrowed Debtor's dba, "All Automotive Products," in naming the New Corporation. When all these facts are considered, I am impelled to find that [the insider] had the kind of close relationship with Debtor contemplated by Congress.

Chapter 7

The allegations in the FAC present a similar fact pattern. Like in Standard Stores, Mr. Halajyan is alleged to be a former principal of Debtor; in fact, the Trustee alleges Mr. Halajyan previously was Debtor's sole shareholder and officer. FAC, ¶ 16. In addition, the Trustee alleges that, after the transfer of Debtor to Mr. Khachikian, Mr. Halajyan continued to maintain a close relationship with Debtor, such as by testifying as Debtor's "Person Most Knowledgeable" "in a deposition taken in the pre-petition Salazar Class Action against [Debtor], on August 10, 2012" and supplying "all of the information that was provided on behalf of [Debtor] in its written discovery responses in the Salazar Class Action against" Debtor. Id. At this pleading stage, the Court must "construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the" Trustee. Fayer, 649 F.3d at 1064. As such, these allegations, paired with the allegation that Mr. Halajyan is Mr. Khachikian's first cousin, are sufficient for purposes of Rule 12(b)(6).

C. The Trustee's First, Second, Third and Fourth Claims for Avoidance of Fraudulent Transfers

i. The Statute of Limitations

The parties dispute whether the statute of limitations is calculated from the date of execution of the Lease, or if each payment under the Lease qualifies as a separate transfer triggering its own limitations period. In discussing this issue, the parties primarily reference In re Upstairs Gallery, Inc., 167 B.R. 915 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1994), and In re Pan Trading Corp., 125 B.R. 869 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1991). While these cases are relevant to a determination regarding when an obligation was incurred, they do not provide a complete picture for purposes of 11 U.S.C. § 548 or California's Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act ("CUFTA"). Both Upstairs Gallery and Pan Trading involve a determination regarding when an antecedent debt was incurred for purposes of § 547(b), the preferential transfer statute. See Upstairs Gallery, 167 B.R. at 917 ("Only the second element, whether the transfer was for or on account of an antecedent debt under subsection (b)(2), is at issue in the instant appeal."); and Pan Trading, 125 B.R. at 875 ("HPD contends only that the Trustee failed to prove that the transfer satisfied Code § 547(b)(2), which requires that the transfer be 'for or on account of an antecedent debt owed by the debtor before such transfer was made.'). However, 11 U.S.C. § 548(a) and CUFTA allow for avoidance of transfers as well as incurred obligations. [FN2].

Under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1), a "trustee may avoid any transfer... of an interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation... incurred by the debtor..." (emphasis added). Similarly, under CCC § 3439.04(a), a plaintiff may avoid a "transfer made or obligation incurred by a debtor..." (emphasis added). Thus, both statutes draw a distinction between "transfers" and "incurred obligations." In addition, both the Bankruptcy Code and CUFTA broadly define "transfer." Under 11 U.S.C. § 101(54), the term "transfer" means, among other things, "each mode, direct or indirect, absolute or conditional, voluntary or involuntary, of disposing of or parting with... property or... an interest in property." Likewise, under CCC § 3439.01(m), "transfer" means "every mode, direct or indirect, absolute or conditional, voluntary or involuntary, of disposing of or parting with an asset or an interest in an asset, and includes payment of money, release, lease, license, and creation of a lien or other encumbrance."

A similar argument was addressed by the court in In re Omega Door Co., Inc., 399 B.R. 295, 303 (B.A.P. 6th Cir. 2009). There, a trustee sought to recover, as fraudulent transfers, payments on a note made by the debtor to the transferees during the four years preceding the debtor's bankruptcy case. Omega Door, 399 B.R. at 297. After evaluating cross-motions for summary judgment, the bankruptcy court held that the trustee could not recover any payments made under the note because the note was executed over four years before the petition date. Id. Specifically, the court concluded that the "installment payments represent an obligation 'incurred' by the... debtor on the [execution of the original agreement], and, therefore, the respective statutes of limitations bar the state and federal fraudulent transfer actions." Id., at 300. On appeal, the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the Sixth Circuit (the "6th Cir. BAP") disagreed. Id., at 298.

It is a "settled rule that a statute must, if possible, be construed in such fashion that every word has some operative effect." United States v. Nordic Village, Inc., 503 U.S. 30, 36, 112 S.Ct. 1011, 1015, 117 L.Ed.2d 181 (1992). The Panel must therefore give "operative effect" to the word "or" in the applicable statutes. The bankruptcy court focused on the obligation that [the debtor] incurred in 1999. However, Ohio Revised Code § 1336.04 states that "[a] transfer made or an obligation incurred by a debtor is fraudulent..." (Emphasis added.) The Ohio statute is not restricted only to an obligation incurred. Likewise, 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1) is not restricted to an obligation incurred; it also allows the trustee to avoid transfers or obligations. "Although sections 544 and 548 of the Bankruptcy Code authorize the trustee to avoid a transfer or an obligation, section 102(5) negates any implication that the trustee may not avoid both a transfer that secures or is otherwise related to an obligation and the obligation itself." Gerald K. Smith & Frank R. Kennedy, Symposium on Bankruptcy: The Trustee's Avoiding Powers: Fraudulent Transfers and Obligations: Issues of Current Interest, 43 S.C. L.Rev. 709, 717 (1992). The word "or" is not exclusive when used in the Bankruptcy Code. 11 U.S.C. § 102(5).

Id., at 303. The 6th Cir. BAP also assessed the definition of "transfer" under Ohio law and the Bankruptcy Code, holding that the definitions are "very broad" and "not limited to incurring an obligation." Id. [FN3]. Under these definitions, the 6th Cir. BAP held that "without question, 'transfer' includes both incurring an obligation and any payments on any obligation." Id., at 304.

The Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals, in assessing New Jersey law, reached the same conclusion where the plaintiff had asserted two separate claims for avoidance of fraudulent transfer: one to avoid the obligation incurred by the debtor, and another to avoid the transfers made pursuant to that obligation—

Moreover, even if ATN's obligation arose on December 23, 1998, its claims still would not be barred by the statute of limitations. As the bankruptcy court recognized, an "odd quirk" of New Jersey law "allows a party to allege constructive fraud to avoid both a 'transfer' and an 'obligation.' Because of this duality, ATN has alleged two counts for each type of fraudulent transfer claim. One count asserts that the 'transfer' is avoidable. The second count asserts the 'obligation' is avoidable." Bankr.Ct. Order at 2, 321 B.R. 308, 316; see N.J. Stat. Ann. § 25:2–27(b). The bankruptcy court erred, however, by dismissing all of ATN's claims—half of which seek to avoid the transfer—based on the incorrect calculation of the date when ATN's obligation to pay the Allens arose.

obligations or transfers, the allegation that the Lease was executed outside the limitations period does not prevent the Trustee from avoiding transfers made under the Lease, if such transfers were made within the applicable period. In addition, although there are no cases analyzing this particular issue under California law, California law strengthens the conclusion that the Trustee may avoid individual transfers under the Lease that are not time barred, even if the Trustee is barred from avoiding the Lease altogether.

"It is settled in California that periodic monthly rental payments called for by a lease agreement create severable contractual obligations where the duty to make each rental payment arises independently and the statute begins to run on such severable obligations from the time performance of each is due." Tsemetzin v. Coast Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn., 57 Cal.App.4th 1334, 1344 (Ct. App. 1997) (emphasis in original). As explained by the Supreme Court of California—

Generally speaking, continuous accrual applies whenever there is a continuing or recurring obligation: "When an obligation or liability arises on a recurring basis, a cause of action accrues each time a wrongful act occurs, triggering a new limitations period." (Hogar Dulce Hogar v. Community Development Commission (2003) 110 Cal.App.4th 1288, 1295, 2 Cal.Rptr.3d 497.) Because each new breach of such an obligation provides all the elements of a claim—wrongdoing, harm, and causation (Poosh v. Philip Morris USA, Inc., supra, 51 Cal.4th at p. 797, 123 Cal.Rptr.3d 578, 250 P.3d 181)—each may be treated as an independently actionable wrong with its own time limit for recovery.

Aryeh v. Canon Bus. Sols., Inc., 55 Cal.4th 1185, 1199 (2013). "The theory is a response to the inequities that would arise if the expiration of the limitations period following a first breach of duty or instance of misconduct were treated as sufficient to bar suit for any subsequent breach or misconduct; parties engaged in long-standing misfeasance would thereby obtain immunity in perpetuity from suit even for recent and ongoing misfeasance.... To address these concerns, we have long settled that separate, recurring invasions of the same right can each trigger their own statute of limitations." Id., at 1198.

Although these cases are not in the context of fraudulent transfer litigation, California courts have clarified that the continuous accrual doctrine has broad application—

Chapter 7

Based upon our review of legal precedent and our understanding of the principles and policies of the continuous accrual theory, we conclude that the theory is not limited in its application to cases in which a payor has acted "wrongfully" in the sense of failing or refusing to make a periodic payment to a payee. There is no logical reason, founded in law or policy, to hold, for example, that a payor who has made excessive periodic payments—or other periodic payments to which the payee is not legally entitled—over an extended time may not bring an action as to specific periodic payments for which the statute of limitations has not run. (Cf. Aryeh, supra, 55 Cal.4th at p. 1200, 151 Cal.Rptr.3d 827, 292 P.3d 871 [payor-lessee challenging allegedly fraudulent practice of lessor-payee in excessive periodic billings in equipment lease]; Howard Jarvis Taxpayers, supra, 25 Cal.4th 809, 107 Cal.Rptr.2d 369, 23 P.3d 601 [payor-taxpayer challenging legality of monthly imposition of municipal taxes not time-barred as to periodic payments for which statute of limitations has not run].)

Blaser v. State Teachers' Ret. Sys., 37 Cal.App.5th 349, 372 (Ct. App. 2019); see also Aryeh, 55 Cal.4th at 1200 ("To determine whether the continuous accrual doctrine applies... we look not to the claim's label... but to the nature of the obligation allegedly breached.").

In light of these authorities, California law provides additional support for the conclusion that each payment under the Lease triggers a new statute of limitations period. As such, even if the Court assesses the payments as incurred obligations instead of transfers, California law views each payment as a separate obligation that arises each time a monthly payment comes due.

Thus, the Trustee is not barred from recovering transfers that are within the limitations period. As with the federal authorities above, such as Omega Door, this California law "supports recovery only for damages arising from those breaches falling within the limitations period." Aryeh, 55 Cal.4th at 1199. Although the Trustee may not recover transfers outside the limitations period, the Trustee's fraudulent transfer claims are not otherwise time barred.

Chapter 7

The Trustee asserts that he may step into the shoes of the Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS") to take advantage of the ten year statute of limitations set forth in 26 U.S.C. § 6502(a). In In re CVAH, Inc., 570 B.R. 816, 834 (Bankr. D. Idaho 2017), the court collected cases regarding whether a bankruptcy trustee may step into the shoes of the IRS to avoid transfers, finding that a vast majority of cases held that a trustee may do so—

There are no case decisions that bind the Court on this issue. But a clear majority of courts that have considered the question have held that when a bankruptcy trustee steps into the shoes of IRS under § 544(b)(1), the trustee is likewise immune to the time limits in state statutes, just as IRS would be. Notably, it appears only one court has come to a different conclusion: Vaughan Co. v. Ultima Homes, Inc. (In re Vaughan Co.), 498 B.R. 297 (Bankr. D. N.M. 2013). And since that decision was made, at least two other courts have disagreed with its reasoning, and have joined the majority. In re Kaiser, 525 B.R. at 709–14; In re Kipnis, 555 B.R. at 881–83. Having considered this case law, for the reasons that follow, this Court declines to follow Vaughan, and holds that Trustee, standing in the shoes of IRS, is immune from the Idaho four-year extinguishment period for fraudulent transfers in this case.

CVAH, 570 B.R. at 834. Although the Court agrees with the majority regarding the notion that, under 11 U.S.C. § 544(b)(1), a bankruptcy trustee may step into the shoes of the IRS, the Trustee misconstrues § 544(b)(1).

Under § 544(b)(1), the Trustee "may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property or any obligation incurred by the debtor that is voidable under applicable law by a creditor holding an unsecured claim that is allowable under section 502 of this title...." (emphasis added).

By its terms, Section 544(b)(1) requires the existence of an actual creditor who could avoid the transfer. In other words, the effect of this section is to clothe the trustee with no new or additional right in the premises over that possessed by a creditor, but simply puts him in the shoes of the latter. If the actual creditor could not succeed for any reason—whether due to the statute of limitations, estoppel, res judicata, waiver, or any other defense—then the trustee is similarly barred and cannot avoid the transfer.

Chapter 7

In re DBSI, Inc., 869 F.3d 1004, 1009 (9th Cir. 2017) (internal quotations omitted) (emphasis added); see also In re Acequia, Inc., 34 F.3d 800, 809 (9th Cir. 1994) ("[T]he trustee is chained to the rights of creditors when invoking section 544(b)."). "[T]he existence of a section 544(b) cause of action depends upon whether a creditor existing at the time the transfers were made still had a viable claim against the debtor at the time the bankruptcy petition was filed." Acequia, 34 F.3d at 807 (emphasis in original) (internal quotations omitted).

In In re Kipnis, 555 B.R. 877, 881 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2016), the case relied on by the Trustee, the court allowed the trustee to step into the shoes of the IRS because the IRS was an actual unsecured creditor of that estate—

The IRS is a creditor holding an unsecured claim allowable under § 502 and, on the filing date of this bankruptcy case, the IRS could have timely filed a complaint to avoid the Bank Account Transfer and the Condominium Transfer under applicable Florida fraudulent transfer law. Therefore, the Trustee, pursuant to § 544(b), can now step into the shoes of the IRS to avoid these transfers.

Kipnis, 555 B.R. at 881.

Here, the FAC is devoid of allegations that the IRS is an actual creditor of Debtor's estate. In addition, the Court may take judicial notice of the fact that the IRS has not filed a proof of claim and that the IRS is not a creditor identified in Debtor's schedules. In the Opposition, the Trustee asserts that "Debtor's counsel represented in the U.S. Trustee Reporting Compliance Cover Sheets that the Debtor's last filed tax return was for the year 2016" and that "there is no evidence that the Debtor ever filed its 2017 or 2018 tax return...." Opposition, p. 23. However, in connection with a motion under Rule 12(b)(6), the Court may not consider evidence, and such facts are not subject to judicial notice. There being no allegations regarding the IRS in the FAC, and the Court taking judicial notice of the facts that the IRS has not filed a proof of claim and is not a scheduled creditor, the Trustee cannot currently rely on 26 U.S.C. § 6502.

For the same reasons discussed above, the Trustee has not included sufficient allegations regarding whether Debtor was insolvent at the time of the relevant transfers. Although the Trustee must amend to include this information, Defendants' remaining arguments under In re Blast Fitness Grp., LLC, 2020 WL 584100, at *5 (Bankr. D. Mass. Feb. 5, 2020), are unpersuasive. There, the plaintiff asserted a similar theory, arguing that inflated rent paid to a landlord constituted a fraudulent transfer. Blast Fitness, 2020 WL 584100 at *5. The court found the complaint lacking, stating—

Other than the amount of the monthly rental payment made by BFG to Cape Jewel at some point in time ($45,000), the complaint contains no allegations concerning why the rental rate should be considered inflated, market rates for comparable space, the dates or total amounts of rent payments made by BFG, the date or terms of any lease between the BFG affiliate and Cape Jewel, the number of other tenants in the building or the monthly rent they were charged, or the amount of space leased by the BFG affiliate or any other tenants. The trustee alleges only that the monthly rent of $45,000 was "inflated." I am unable to draw a reasonable inference that BFG did not receive reasonably equivalent value in exchange for lease payments. The allegations concerning inflated rent are conclusory and do not rise above the level of speculation for purposes of fraudulent transfer claims in counts III and IV.

Id.

The FAC does not present the same concerns. Here, the Trustee makes detailed allegations regarding his contention that the amounts paid to Defendants were excessive. See FAC, ¶¶ 17-28. The FAC includes several allegations regarding industry standards related to similar leases for adult clubs, such as paying percentage rent, market values based on the nature of the property and rates based on similar clubs in comparable locations. Unlike Blast Fitness, the Trustee also makes numerous allegations about the terms of the Lease. Defendants' argument that the Trustee's identified comparable locations are not similar to Debtor's business or location veers into the realm of an evidentiary dispute. These contentions may be raised when evidence is properly before the Court.

Chapter 7

The Trustee's Sixth and Eighth Claims are dependent on whether the Trustee may avoid transfers as preferential or fraudulent. Assuming the Trustee successfully amends the FAC, the Trustee also may proceed on his claims for preservation of transfers and turnover.

E. The Trustee's Seventh Claim

To invoke alter ego liability "two elements must be alleged: 'First, there must be such a unity of interest and ownership between the corporation and its equitable owner that the separate personalities of the corporation and the shareholder do not in reality exist. Second, there must be an inequitable result if the acts in question are treated as those of the corporation alone.'" Gerritsen v. Warner Bros. Entm't Inc., 116 F.Supp.3d 1104, 1136 (C.D. Cal. 2015) (quoting Sonora Diamond Corp. v. Superior Court, 83 Cal.App.4th 523, 526 (Ct. App. 2000)). As noted by Defendants, "[c]onclusory allegations of 'alter ego' status are insufficient to state a claim. Rather, a plaintiff must allege specific facts supporting both of the necessary elements." Gerritsen, 116 F.Supp.3d at 1136.

Defendants contend that the Trustee's allegations are conclusory. However, the Trustee alleges facts beyond the two elements of alter ego liability. Aside from allegations repeating the two elements above, the Trustee alleges: (A) creditors dealt with Defendants as a single economic unit; (B) Defendants operated from the same address; (C) Hala often paid debts and received revenue on behalf of Mr. Halajyan; (D) Defendants regularly commingled funds; (E) Mr. Halajyan received payments owed to Hala; (F) Mr. Halajyan is the sole officer, managing principal and managing member of Hala; and (G) Defendants' assets are intertwined. FAC, ¶¶ 99-101, 104-05. These allegations are not merely conclusory, and sufficiently allege alter ego liability.

Defendants are correct that "there is no such thing as a substantive alter ego claim...." Ahcom, Ltd. v. Smeding, 623 F.3d 1248, 1251 (9th Cir. 2010). However, the Trustee is not seeking a standalone claim of alter ego. Instead, through his alter ego allegations, the Trustee seeks to impose liability on both Defendants as to the Trustee's other, substantive claims. Although the Trustee identifies alter ego as a separate claim, this defect may be cured with an amendment moving the alter ego allegations to the general allegations portion of the FAC, instead of alleging the facts as a separate claim.

1. 11 U.S.C. § 101(34) is now 11 U.S.C. § 101(45).
2. Similarly, Defendants' citations to In re Markair, Inc., 240 B.R. 581 (Bankr. D. Alaska 1999), and In re Futoran, 76 F.3d 265 (9th Cir. 1996), involve an analysis of when an antecedent debt is incurred for purposes of § 547(b), not whether recurring payments qualify as "transfers" for purposes of § 548(a). In addition, Upstairs Gallery, Pan Trading, Markair and Futoran do not include a discussion of CUFTA or California law.
3. The definition of "transfer" under Ohio law largely mirrors the definition of "transfer" under California law. Pursuant to Ohio law, a "transfer" is "every direct or indirect, absolute or conditional, and voluntary or involuntary method of disposing of or parting with an asset or an interest in an asset, and includes payment of money, release, lease, and creation of a lien or other encumbrance."
